In 1860 Mr. Klemmer married Marietta Bower, daughter of Gideon Bower of District township. She died June 4, 1904, aged sixty-four years, and was buried in the Catholic graveyard. Seventeen children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Klemmer: Clara, deceased (m. John Pfeiffer, deceased); Matilda, deceased (m. Edward W. Boshold); Sarah (m. Jules Lanshe); Lena, deceased (m. Edward Morris); Katie and Rosie, at home; Martha, who is Sister Harlindes, at Danville, Pa.; Ida, who is Sister Piona, at Pittston, Pa., both belonging to the Order of Christian Charity; Jerome, Francis, John, Anna S., Mary A., Sarah A., William G. and Lucy, all deceased; and Joseph, who resides at home.

LEVI P. RICKENBACH, representing an old established family of Berks county, was born in Ontelaunee township in 1838, son of Jonathan and Mary (Phillips) Rickenbach.

John Rickenbach, the paternal grandfather, was a farmer and landowner, whose whole life was given to agricultural pursuits and who died on his farm at the age of eighty-six years. His children were: Sallie, Phoebe, Elizabeth, Nancy, Franie, Benneville, John and Jonathan.

Jonathan Rickenbach was born on his father's homestead in 1803, and was reared to a farmer's life. He became the owner of the home place and like his father followed farming all his life. His death occurred in his eightieth year. He was twice married. His first wife was Mary, daughter of Sebastian Phillips, and she died when only thirty-five years old, leaving three children, namely: Rebecca, m. to the late James Gambler, and now residing at West Leesport, Berks county; Elmira, Mrs. John Haines, of the same place; and Levi P. The second wife was Annie Kestner, who died at the age of eighty-six, and to this union were born one son and two daughters, as follows: Silas M., deceased, m. Mary Ringler, and is a wholesale grocer on North Eighth street; Salome m. the late Llewellyn Bundt, of Leesport, and Lanita m. Samuel Kurtz, and resides at Springmont.

Levi P. Rickenbach passed his boyhood like most farmers' sons, helping on the farm and going to the district school. When old enough to learn a trade he went to work under John Fisher at carpentry, and later was employed by Jacob Ahrens, who became his father-in-law. In 1866 Mr. Rickenbach came to Reading and worked fifteen years with Mr. Bushong, thirteen with David Moser, later with various contractors and builders of the city. He is a most reliable and efficient workman and his services are always in great demand by the builders of the city.

Mr. Rickenbach married in 1862 Miss Caroline Ahrens, daughter of Jacob and Barbara (Koenig) Ahrens, a union which was blessed with three sons. Oscar A., the oldest, a molder by occupation, resides at home. Jonathan A. is a plater, and is still a resident of Reading. L. Luther, a musician, teaches the violin and mandolin and plays with the Philharmonic Band of Reading, his instrument being the clarionet. He married Lottie Robertson and lives in his father's home, No. 141 North Fourth street. Levi P. Rickenbach, while never an active political worker, is yet a strong supporter of the Democratic party. He holds membership in Trinity Lutheran Church.

Henry Ahrens, grandfather of Mrs. Rickenbach, was born in Germany, and came to America when a young man. He was well educated in English and German, and when he came to this country he was brought by a sailor who wished to be taught the German language. When they arrived in America, the sailor died and young Ahrens having no money to return to the Old World, was obliged to remain in America. He later settled in Berks county, where he died.

IGNATIUS SHADE, who is now living retired at his beautiful home, No. 1339 Mineral Spring Road, Reading, was for many years engaged in various business enterprises in this city, and is an honored veteran of the great Civil war. Mr. Shade was born in 1840, in Bavaria, Germany, son of Anthony and Anna E. (Fleckenstine) Shade.

Anthony Shade came to America first in 1844, and for three years was engaged in business in Reading, but at the end of that period returned to his native country, where until 1858 he was engaged in the commission business. He then came to America again, this time bringing his family, whom he settled in Reading, he engaging in a saloon business, which he carried on until his death in 1868, in his fifty-eight year. He and his wife were members of the Catholic Church. They had these children: Ignatius, Elizabeth, Michael A., Eva, John and Margaret.

Ignatius Shade's education was obtained in Germany, and on coming to Reading in 1858, he engaged with Frederick Lauer, with whom he remained three years, the next year being spent with the Mellerts. In 1861 Mr. Shade enlisted in Company A, 3d Pa. Reserves, under Captain Lenhardt, serving three years and receiving his honorable discharge. He was wounded at the battle of Fredericksburg and taken prisoner in 1862, being paroled in February, 1863, after having been confined in Libby Prison for two and one-half months. Upon his return to Reading, Mr. Shade engaged in work at the William R. McIlvaine rolling mill, continuing there three years. At this time the Philadelphia & Reading Company removed their plant to Ninth street, and Mr. Shade contracted to unload and cut the iron rails, employing six men, and being there engaged for three years. Mr. Shade's next venture was in the hotel business, and he continued therein for twelve years as proprietor of the "Lafayette," now the "Berkshire." He then engaged in the drug business with his brother, Michael, at Seventh and Penn streets, a partnership which continued for about twelve years, when Ignatius sold his interest to his brother, and spent the next year in retirement, re-engaging in the drug business with Herman Esterly at Fifth and Court streets. He retired in 1902. In his political belief, Mr. Shade is a Democrat. He is connected with the Loyal Veteran Legion of Pennsylvania. His religious belief is that of the Catholic Church.

Mr. Shade married Lavena Rippel, a native of Germany, and to them were born eight children, two of whom survive; Emma, m. to Edward Ganter; and Rev. Joseph I., a priest of St. Paul's Catholic Church, Reading, who was ordained at St. John's Church, Rome, Italy.

PETER MOYER, Sr., who after a long life devoted to agricultural pursuits, in which line he won more than ordinary success, is now living retired at Womelsdorf, Pa., is a native of Berks county, born at Host, Feb. 15, 1838, a representative of a family that for over one hundred and fifty years has been located in this vicinity.

The progenitor of the American branch of the Moyer (also spelled Myers and Mayer) family was Johannes (John) Moyer, who was one of the German settlers from the Schoharie district in New York. With others he came through the forests into Upper Pennsylvania, and thence on rafts down the Susquehanna river as far as Harris's Ferry (now Harrisburg). From there they came on foot through the Lebanon Valley into Heidelberg township, Berks county. There were different influxes of these people from the Schoharie district into Bethel, Heidelberg and Tulpehocken townships, some as early as 1719, others in 1723, 1728-1729 and later. Johannes Moyer was among the later comers, and in 1759 he was a taxable in Heidelberg township. He owned land which is still today in the family name. On this he erected buildings, which were replaced in 1849 and 1850, by Peter Moyer, father of Peter Moyer, Sr. He died in 1765, in which year he had made his will, and this was probated Dec. 28, 1765. He was then a resident of Tulpehocken township. In his will he made ample provision for his wife Anna Maria, and the following children are mentioned: George, to whom was bequeathed the homestead of 120 acres and the still house, but who was to pay his brothers and sisters two hundred pounds; Henry, to whom was willed the mill and house and 128 acres of land (George and Henry were the executors of the will); Anna Barbara (m. George Wolff); Eva Catharine (m. a Stetler); Gideon; Catharine (m. a Deissinger); and Valentine. The testator's beloved son-in-law, George Wolff, was made guardian over the children of Catharine Deissinger and Valentine Moyer.

George Moyer, son of one Johannes, was born in western Berks county, June 26, 1770, and he died April 29, 1847, and is buried at Host. He was a farmer by occupation, and owned the tract now owned by his great-grandson Samuel. He married Susanna Peiffer, born May 20, 1773, died Feb. 4, 1833. Their children were: John, Michael, Peter, Heinrich, Jacob, Daniel, Mrs. John Holtzman; and Mrs. John Bomberger.

Peter Moyer, son of George, and father of Peter, Sr., was born in Tulpehocken township, on the old farm at Host, Aug. 11, 1796. His life was a successful one, his energies being wisely devoted to farming pursuits. In 1849 he built a house on the homestead, which he owned, and also the barn. His death occurred Sept. 8, 1859, when he was aged sixty-three years, and his remains, and those of his wife, are buried in the cemetery at Host. He married Catharine Edris, born March 1, 1798, died Dec. 19, 1859. They had eight children: John, who had four children, Levi, William, Rebecca and Emma; Michael, who had four, Simon, Calvin, Kate and Emma; Peter, Sr.; Margaret; Mary; Sarah; Susanna; and one that died in childhood.

Peter Moyer, Sr., son of Peter and the subject proper of this sketch, received his education in the old pay schools near his home at Host. This school was held in a cellar room, and often after the holidays as many as eighty pupils would be gathered there. The old school master was John Salam. Young Moyer worked on the home farm as was customary with the farmers' sons at that time, and when he started out for himself he naturally turned his attention to the same line of work. In 1860 he began farming on his father's farm, which consisted of eighty acres of fertile land, and this he purchased from his father, making it his home for many years. In 1899 he sold it to his son, Samuel, and purchased a farm of 300 acres, known as the old Jacob Kurtz farm in Caernarvon township. Upon this he lived for three years, and when he sold it at the end of that time, he moved to Womelsdorf, and has since lived retired. He also owns a large farm in Marion township. Mr. Moyer was a very practical farmer, and was quick to see the good in new methods, and equally quick to adopt them if fitted to his needs. His farms always bore a look of thrift and good management, and he was ever able to command good prices for his produce.

In his political principles Mr. Moyer is a Democrat. He and his family attend the Host Union Church, of which they are Reformed members, and in which he has served as elder and deacon.

Mr. Moyer has been twice married. In 1859 he wedded Mary Bentz, daughter of John Bentz. She was born in 1838, and died in 1864, the mother of three children, Amelia, Frank and Mary Ann. Mr. Moyer married (second) Sarah Haas, born Nov. 12, 1843, daughter of Leonard and Hannah (Machmer) Haas, and to this union have been born twelve children, as follows: Alice, Samuel, Rebecca, Charles (born Dec. 13, 1869, died Dec. 1, 1870), Peter, Jr., George, Aaron, Sarah (born Oct. 18, 1876, died Aug. 22, 1879), Thomas, Calvin, Anna (born Oct. 11, 1882, died July 11, 1888), and James.

THOMAS H. MORGAN, a member of the Reading school board and one of the city's enterprising business men, who is engaged in the manufacture of paints and painters' supplies, was born in Reading, Pa., Nov. 25, 1838, son of Thomas and Elizabeth (Hill) Morgan.

Thomas Morgan was born in 1812, at Tunbridge Wells, County Sussex, England, and died April 26, 1872. When eighteen years of age he came to America, and located at Reading, assisting in the work on the Schuylkill Canal as a stone-cutter. After the completion of the canal he engaged in boating thereon for thirty-five years, and became very successful, owning property on North River street, where he resided for twenty-five years. He was married to Elizabeth Hill, born Dec. 25, 1810, who died in her ninety-third year, daughter of Jacob Hill and wife, Susan (Lansiscus), daughter of Jacob Lansiscus, who received a large tract of land by patent from William Penn, which is now included in Mineral Spring Park, Mt. Penn borough, St. Lawrence borough, Carsonia Park, Stony Creek village and Antietam creek. To Thomas and Elizabeth (Hill) Morgan were born children as follows: Hannah m. Harry DeMoss; Susan m. John W. Orr; Thomas H.; Ruth m. D. H. Wheatley; Emma m. George W. Diehl; Harry m. Savilla Homan (all of these children being residents of Reading); and several died in infancy.

Thomas H. Morgan received his education in the public schools of Reading and later attended the Reading Academy, then located on the present site of the Girls' high school, it being under the supervision of Prof. A. C. High. For eighteen years he was a boatman, owning a boat and team, and after discontinuing this occupation he became a cabinet maker for four years, being employed in a large establishment at Philadelphia. On his return to Reading he took charge of the finishing department of E. S. Miller's undertaking establishment, where he remained about one year, then entering the employ of the Reading Railway Company, with which he remained nine years. One year later he went to Media, where he erected a fine residence for Dr. Brinton, who was for many years editor of the Medical Journal, and after the completion of this work engaged for one year in the contracting and building business in Delaware county, also erecting a number of large buildings in and around Royersford and Spring City. He again returned to his native city and continued contracting for one year, but subsequently erected his factory and paint establishment at No. 122 Wood street. After having charge of the paint mill of A. Wilhelm for eleven years, Mr. Morgan was influential in the establishment of the Morgan & Ruth paint establishment, which firm continued successfully for eight years, at which time the business was sold to Jackson & Smith, and Mr. Morgan was retained as superintendent, it being from his plans and specifications and under his supervision that the present building was erected in 1895 between Eighth and Ninth streets on Windsor. In December, 1895, Mr. Morgan took possession of his present place on Wood street, where for six years he was engaged in business.

He then purchased a farm of 120 acres near Phoenixville, Chester county, where he moved factory and fixtures, but after two years, not being satisfied with that location, returned to Reading and again located in the Wood street plant, where he has since conducted a flourishing business. He manufactures all kinds of paints, and does principally a custom trade. He is also an inventor of some reputation and has a number of good plans on paper, for which patents have been applied for. His own residence, at No. 121 South Fourth street, was erected after his own specifications. In politics Mr. Morgan is a Republican, and in 1907 he became a member of the Reading school board. He and his family are members of the First Baptist Church of Reading, and he was active in the organization of the First Baptist Mission, which afterward became the Second Baptist Church, and later was merged into the Berean Baptist Church. He also held prominent position as Moderator of the Reading Baptist Association.

In 1870 Mr. Morgan married Wilhelmina D. Pennepacker, daughter of Daniel and Rebecca (Major) Pennepacker, and to this union there have been born two daughters: Ruth S., a graduate of the high school, class of 1884, is now engaged in teaching in Reading. Mary J. married Clarence T. Neilor, an associate with Mr. Morgan in the paint business, and they have one daughter, Wilhelmina, and they reside on their farm near Phoenixville, Pennsylvania.

LEVI MAST, a highly esteemed retired farmer of Berks county, who is living on his snug little farm of thirty-two acres of fertile land in Caernarvon township, was born in this township, July 19, 1835, son of Daniel and Rachel (Plank) Mast, and grandson of John and Mary (Kurtz) Mast.

Daniel Mast, father of Levi, was born April 1, 1803, and he died Aug. 18, 1883, after a long and useful life spent in agricultural pursuits and in the ministry of the Amish Church. He married Rachel Plank, born April 15, 1805, who died Feb. 6, 1873. To them there were born the following children: John P., born in 1826 and died Nov. 19, 1888, was a minister and subsequently a bishop in the Amish Church; Sarah, born Nov. 13, 1828, m. David Stoltzfus, and died March 30, 1892; Anna, born March 5, 1831, died Sept. 4, 1834; Mary, born Feb. 13, 1833, m. a Mr. Peters, and died in 1900; Levi, born July 19, 1835; Rachel, born Dec. 29, 1837, died Aug. 20, 1840; Hannah, born June 24, 1840, m. Jacob Stoltzfus; Fannie, born April 7, 1842, m. Christian Beiler, and died March 8, 1894; Rebecca, born April 17, 1844, m. (first) Eli Stoltzfus and (second) John Lapp; and Lydia, born Aug. 9, 1848, died, it is thought, from injuries received at the hands of burglars, who seized her at the throat, June 21, 1874.

Levi Mast, son of Daniel, received his education in the schools of his native locality, and early in life engaged in agricultural pursuits which he continued until his retirement from active life. He is a Republican in politics, and for nine years served as a member of the school board, of which he was treasurer during the Civil war. He is a member of the Amish Church, and is well known and highly esteemed in the locality in which he has spent his entire life. Mr. Mast sustained a great loss in 1905, when his only son, Daniel Z., with wife and two children, were taken away in an epidemic of typhoid fever.

Levi Mast was married to Miss Christiana Zook, born April 10, 1836, daughter of Henry and Catherine (Kurtz) Zook, and to this union there were born children as follows: Sara lives at home; Daniel Z., born March 3, 1862, died Nov. 1, 1905, married Elizabeth Hertzler, and had eight children, Anna (born 1884, died 1905), Saidy (born 1895, died 1905), Levi H. (born May 30, 1885), Henry (born Dec. 18, 1887), John P. (born April 11, 1889, died March 27, 1903), Isaac (born April 12, 1891, died Sept. 10, 1891), Ida Christianna (born July 31, 1892, died Jan. 2, 1894) and Samuel (born Nov. 27, 1899).

Hans Zook (Zug), great-great-great-grandfather of Mrs. Mast, was an elder in the Mennonite Church, of Berne, Switzerland, where he was imprisoned for his religious teachings, and after his release removed to Germany, whence his grandsons Christian, Moritz and Johannes, who were born near Darmstadt, came to America, arriving at Philadelphia, Sept. 21, 1742. They removed thence to Whiteland, Chester county, where Christian Zook, great-grandfather of Mrs. Mast, died in December, 1787.

Christian Zook, son of Christian, and grandfather of Mrs. Mast, was born April 20, 1752, in Bern township, Berks county, and became a farmer and minister in the Amish Church, in the faith of which he died Oct. 8, 1826. He married Magdalena Blank, born in Lancaster county in 1751, who died Aug. 8, 1833.

Henry Zook, father of Mrs. Mast, was born near Malvern, Pa., March 18, 1794, and died at Binkley's Bridge, Lancaster county, in 1865. He married Catherine Kurtz, born Sept. 21, 1801, who died March 23, 1874.

EDWARD CURTIS PRICE, foreman at the plant of Orr & Sembower, at Millmont, Pa., was born Sept. 24, 1855, at Pottsville, son of Richard M. Price.

Joseph Price, grandfather of Edward C., was born May 8, 1797, and he died April 16, 1873. He married Catherine (Kate) Masser (born Feb. 15, 1806, died Feb. 22, 1884). Abraham Masser, her father, was born April 2, 1779, and his wife, Catherine, Dec. 26, 1781. Their children were: Hannah (Dantrich), Catherine (Price), William, Daniel, Mary (Hartman), David, Magdalena (DeHart), Elizabeth (Fies), Sallie and Benjamin. To Joseph and Catherine (Masser) Price were born the following children: James M., born Sept. 1, 1827, died May 8, 1888; Wilhelmina M., born Feb. 2, 1830, died Feb. 22, 1903; Richard M.; Annie E., born Oct. 28, 1834, m. William Spohn, and died April 20, 1894; Amos, born Oct. 15, 1835, m. Louisa Wertz, and lives in Cumru township; Catherine, born June 29, 1837, lives with her daughter in Reading; Israel M., born March 4, 1839, lives retired at Mohnton; and Moses M., born March 1, 1847, died Aug. 24, 1890.

Richard M. Price, son of Joseph, was born Sept. 12, 1832, and died April 3, 1903. He married Lucinda Richards, and they had three children, namely: Edward Curtis; Joseph M., born Aug. 24, 1857; and Charles W., born Aug. 6, 1859.

Edward Curtis Price attended school in Pottsville and Reading, and was only a boy when he began work at the truck business in Bergen, now a part of Jersey City, New Jersey. After a short time there he became a newsboy for the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad Company, and remained in that Company's employ for three years. He then learned the business of boiler-making at Reading with F. J. Obert. After finishing his apprenticeship he continued work there until he had been in that place six years, when he went to Allentown. At the end of two years he went to Grand Rapids, Mich., where he was employed seven years as foreman. The next two years he was in Lansing, Mich., in the same capacity. The firm at the latter place sent him to Usal, Mendocino Co., Cal., to put up large boilers for a sawmill. Returning to Lansing he remained but a short time. In 1883 and 1884 he was at Sunbury, Pa. He was badly burned about the face and hands in a gas explosion, March 3, 1888, at Grand Rapids, Mich. In 1892 he came back to Reading, and for about three years was in the employ of the Philadelphia & Reading Company. In 1899 he became foreman of the boiler department for Orr & Sembower, with thirty-five men under him, and he is still giving great satisfaction to his employers, showing marked executive ability and a thorough knowledge of the work.

Mr. Price married Elmira Palm, daughter of Lucien Palm, of Reading. They have had children as follows: Charles E., who died aged five years; Richard W., who died aged two years; Edward C. J. R., living at No. 1246 Muhlenberg street, Reading; and Ellen L., who married William Bloch, of Reading. Mr. Price is a Republican, and for four years has been a member of the school board from the Second ward and re-elected for a second term of four years. His fraternal connections are with Aerie

No. 66, F. O. E., in which he has passed all the chairs and is now a member of the house committee, and since 1907 has been president of the Mountain Home Association; the Twentieth Century Quakers; Veteran Firemen's Relief Association; Washington Fire Company, and Washington Firemen's Relief Association; the Lincoln Republican Club and Northeastern Republican Club. He has his home at No. 632 Bingaman street, Reading.

AMOS S. RATHMAN, one of the best known and most highly esteemed citizens of Berks county, who now resides near Angelica, in Cumru township, was for twenty years a justice of the peace in that township. Mr. Rathman was born in the Angelica district on May 19, 1843, son of Levi and Sarah (Schonauer) Rathman.

Jacob Rathman, grandfather of Amos S., was a farmer and cabinet maker of Cumru township, where his entire life was spent. A well known Whig of his day, he was very patriotic, and raised a number of liberty poles in the township. Mr. Rathman married Barbara Fitterling, daughter of Michael Fitterling, and to them were born these children: Catherine m. George Fitterling; Jonathan m. Mary Quinter; Polly m. Thomas Glassmoyer; Barbara m. Jacob Fox; Levi; Elizabeth m. Elias Kohl; and Isaac m. Kate Hertz.

Levi Rathman, father of Amos S., was a lifelong resident of Cumru township, where he was born Oct. 15, 1815, and died June 10, 1899. In his early years he was associated with his father in the undertaking business, and later he owned a farm of 136 acres in the Angelica district. He married Sarah Schonauer, and to this union there were born eight children: John died single in 1862; Jacob m. Susan Keffer; Elizabeth m. William Strock; Amos S.; Susan m. Jacob Wert; Barbara m. Benjamin Hertz; Sarah m. Joel Ziemer; and a son died in infancy.

Amos S. Rathman was reared on his father's farm, and received his education in the old eight-cornered schoolhouse near Angelica. In the early sixties Mr. Rathman engaged in school teaching for some time, but, as he himself puts it, he inherited the trade of his father, that of carpentering, which he followed for upward of ten years. In 1874 he was elected a justice of the peace, in which office he served for twenty consecutive years, being in this time the peacemaker of the entire community, and never had a discharged case or a decision appealed. For many years Mr. Rathman was clerk at public vendues, and for ten years was a school director, during all of which time, except the first year of his incumbency, he served as treasurer of the board. In 1896 Mr. Rathman purchased a tract of five acres, near Angelica, where he now makes his home, prior to this time having lived on the old Rathman homestead. In political matters Mr. Rathman is a Democrat, while fraternally he is connected with the Sr. O. U. A. M., being the only beneficial charter member of Angelica Council No. 91. He is also a member of the State Council of this Order, in which he has held office, being recording secretary for the past thirty years, and is also connected with K. G. E. Castle No. 137, of Mohnton. Mr. Rathman is a member of the Lutheran congregation of the Allegheny Union Church, of Brecknock township.

A. J. DARLINGTON, who will be remembered as the efficient manager of the Western Union Telegraph Company's office at Reading, as well as city ticket agent for the Philadelphia & Reading Company, was born near Parkesburg, Chester Co., Pa., son of Robert and Rachel (Lawrence) Darlington.

Mr. Darlington was educated in the schools of Chester county until the age of fourteen years, when he entered the telegraph office at Oxford to learn telegraphing. During this period he enlisted for service in the Civil war, entering Company I, 3d Pa. Vols., Heavy Artillery, in which he served until June 19, 1863, when he was honorably discharged. During his service he was wounded quite seriously, and through the rest of his life suffered on account of it, and this probably was the cause of his death.

After the close of his service in the army, Mr. Darlington came to Reading and entered the employ of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad Company as telegraph operator. Promotion followed rapidly and he was soon placed in charge of the company's ticket office here. He was also placed in charge of the Western Union Telegraph office in the same building, and he continued to fill these offices until his death. His genial manner and hearty manliness made him a favorite with every one who came within his influence, and the name of "Jack" Darlington was one of affection instead of familiarity. Outside his bereaved family and inner circle of friends, the public at large mourned his death.

In 1867 Mr. Darlington married Elizabeth Mishler, daughter of Jacob and Elizabeth (Bechtel) Mishler, and they had three children, namely: Mary E., wife of Lewis V. Halberstadt; Edmund L., chief clerk in the Reading office of R. G. Dun & Co.; and Margaret, deceased. In political sentiment, Mr. Darlington was a staunch Democrat. On one occasion, giving way to the desire of friends, he permitted his name to be used as a candidate for mayor, polling a large complimentary vote. He was a member of the Royal Arcanum, the I. O. O. F., and of St. Paul's Memorial Reformed Church.

JOHN H. DRUMHELLER. The American ancestor of the Drumheller family was J. Leonhart Drumheller, who crossed the ocean on the brigantine "Mary & Sarah," Captain Thomas Brodrick, from Amsterdam, which landed at Philadelphia, Oct. 26, 1754. Soon thereafter J. Leonhart Drumheller located in the lower section of Berks county, where he reared his family, died and is buried. In 1759 there is record that Dewald Drumheller lived in Rockland township, which was bounded by Earl township on the south. In that year he paid a federal tax of four pounds. Tradition says he, too, had issue, and that later generations claim kinship with him.

Nicholas Drumheller, grandfather of John H., lived and died in Earl township. In 1782 he was a tax payer, and by occupation he was a farmer. His wife was a member of the Shaner family, and their children were: John; a daughter m. to Philip Nagel; Sally, m. to John Bans; a daughter m. to Peter Spotts; a daughter m. to John Hauffman. They are all buried in the old graveyard at Huff's Church.

Nicholas Drumheller had a brother John Drumheller, who also was a resident of Earl township, and he, too, paid a tax in 1782. John Drumheller died in 1815. His will is on record in Will Book II, page 132. The will was made June 13, 1814, and was entered Aug. 17, 1815. His wife, Regina, bore him a number of children, but a son Leonard is the only one mentioned in the will.

Leonard Drumheller, son of John, died in 1837 in Earl township. His wife, Susanna, obtained a plantation of thirty acres in Earl township. His will is on record in Will Book VII, page 438. David and Hettie are the only children mentioned in the will, but reference is found elsewhere to other children, of whom one was named Daniel (his wife was Elizabeth), a resident of Pike township. Daniel's will, made in 1835, was probated in 1859, and it mentions these children: Elizabeth, Hannah, Daniel, John, Lydia, Jacob and Reuben.

Returning to the direct line, John Drumheller, son of Nicholas, was born in Earl township, in 1798, and died in Oley township in 1884, aged eighty-six years and thirteen days. He was a tailor by trade, and worked at it from the time he was eleven years of age, continuing at work until within two years of his death. This remarkable old gentleman was very active, and could easily walk to Reading, a distance of ten miles. In 1860 he removed to Oley township, where he owned a farm now occupied by his son John. He was a Reformed member of the Oley Church, where he is buried. He married Elizabeth Hill, daughter of Frederick Hill, and she is buried at the Oley Church. These children were born to them: Rebecca m. Isaac Reinhart, both deceased; Caroline m. Aug. Renninger, and is deceased; Miss Elizabeth resides at Boytertown; John H.; Nicholas died in childhood. Mrs. Drumheller was born Oct. 28, 1809, and died Jan. 20, 1846, aged thirty-six years and three months.

John H. Drumheller was born April 9, 1842, in Earl township, on the old Drumheller homestead, and is a successful farmer of Oley township, residing between "Yellow House" and Griesemersville. When he was eighteen years of age he removed with his father to Oley, but did not commence working for himself until ten years later, and at that date he bought his father's farm of twenty-two acres, which he now operates, renting his other farm of seventy-seven acres. On the first mentioned farm, Mr. Drumheller has excellent buildings which were built by David Drumheller who was shot at Earlville by a man named Pott. On the seventy-seven acre farm are buildings over a hundred years old, but so substantially were they built that they are in good condition today. His land is productive and well kept.

In 1870 Mr. Drumheller married Sarah Price of Exeter, daughter of Anthony and Elizabeth (Himmelreich) Price. The following children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Drumheller: John is unmarried and a railroad mail clerk; Elizabeth m. Curvous G. Yoder, of Pike township, a railroad mail clerk; Allen m. Mary Boyer, and lives at Reading; a daughter died in infancy.

JOHN WESLEY KLINGER, who is engaged in the shoe business at No. 1624 Cotton street, Reading, is a native of that city, born Dec. 26, 1850, son of Michael and Matilda (Fair) Klinger.

Peter Klinger, the founder of this family in America, lived in Exeter township, and is buried at Stonetown. He owned property, and his will was probated in 1790, the year of his death. Mr. Klinger, as well as his wife, was a native of Swabia, Germany. Among their children were: Philip, who had a son Philip; John, and William.

William Klinger, born Dec. 6, 1799, son of Peter and grandfather of John W., was a hatter, and for some years worked at his trade in Reading. To him and his good wife Polly were born: William, of whom nothing was heard after the Civil war; John (Jack), who lived at different places, his place of death being unknown; Charles, who was a cigar maker and hatter, dividing his time between Reading and Lancaster, and died in Lancaster; Mary, who married John Bargdol, for some years a resident of Reading and later of Philadelphia, where he was killed on the Pickering Valley Railroad; and Michael.

Michael Klinger, father of John W., was born in 1823, and died in Reading Feb. 8, 1857, age thirty-three years, two months, and twenty-four days. The major part of his life was spent in Reading, where he was engaged as a laborer for many years and in later years in boating. On Oct. 20, 1847, in Reading, by the Rev. Mr. Pauly, he was married to Matilda Fair, born March 25, 1832, above Birdsboro. She died in Reading, Aug. 13, 1899, age sixty-seven years, four months and nineteen days. They had four children: William Howard, born Oct. 3, 1848, lives in Maple Bay, Minn. (m. to Matilda Homan, of Reading); John Wesley was born in Reading Dec. 26, 1850; Charles Henry, born in Reading, May 22, 1853, died July 4, 1903, in Philadelphia, Pa., aged fifty years, one month and thirteen days; Anna Maria, born in Reading, Oct. 9, 1855, died Dec. 23, 1855.

John W. Klinger was educated at the Reading schools, and at an early age entered the Reading Cotton Mills, where he worked about four years, he then learning the blacksmith's trade with Amos Albright of Bern township, with whom he was employed two years. For one year he worked at Harrisburg for the Franklin Foundry Company, and the following year entered the employ of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad, with which company he was connected for upward of seven years. At the end of this time Mr. Klinger established himself in business, opening a shoe store at No. 1624 Cotton street, in 1894, and here he has been engaged to the present time with much success. He is industrious and enterprising, is a self-made man, and is esteemed by his fellow citizens for his honesty and integrity. Mr. Klinger is a Democrat in politics, and at one time was quite active in public affairs. He has been prominent fraternally, belonging to Reading Lodge No. 549, F. & A. M.; Dauphin Lodge, No. 160, I. O. O. F., of Harrisburg; St. John Castle, No. 17, A. O. K. M. C., of Harrisburg; Fidelia Chamber, No. 5, Knights of Friendship, of Reading; Aaron Lodge, No. 95, American Protestant Association, of Reading; Washington Camp, No. 329, P. O. S. of A., of Reading; and Union Fire Company, No. 13, Union Association and Veteran Firemen's Association, all of Reading, in which he is very popular.

In the year 1869 John Wesley Klinger was married at Harrisburg to Kate Louisa Smith of that city, by the Rev. Thomas M. Griffith. She was born Dec. 1, 1849, daughter of George Z. and Mary (Albright) Smith (the former of whom was a railroad man of Harrisburg, Pa.), and died July 2, 1892, aged forty-two years, seven months, one day. Mr. and Mrs. Klinger had fourteen children, as follows: George William, born April 10, 1870, in Harrisburg, m. (first) Jennie Howard, of Harrisburg, and after her death (second) Bessie Glass, of Harrisburg; Mary Matilda, born Aug. 19, 1871, in Reading, m. Jacob Merget, of Reading; Charles Daniel, born June 22. 1873, in Harrisburg, died Feb. 18, 1874; John Wesley, Jr., born Dec. 10, 1874, in Harrisburg, died July 16, 1876; Katie Iruba, born March 28, 1876, in Harrisburg, m. Edward John Weand, of Reading; Annie Glenzora, born Dec. 13, 1877, in Harrisburg, m. Edward Rohm, of Harrisburg; Clyde Day, born Aug. 28, 1879, in Harrisburg, m. Mary VanBuskirk, of Reading; Vernon Leroy, born Sept. 20, 1881, in Harrisburg, died Aug. 10, 1882; Owen Swartz, born March 3, 1883, in Harrisburg, died in Reading Feb. 3, 1905, aged twenty-one years and eleven months; Eddie Fern, born Feb. 14, 1886, in Reading, m. Olive Fairchild; Earl DeA., born in Reading, Aug. 6, 1887, m. Florence Stonesifer, of Steelton; Calvin Hoffeditz, born Dec. 14, 1889, in Reading, m. Anna V. Moyer, of Reading, and she died Feb. 18, 1909, aged seventeen years and twenty-seven days; Amy May, born May 15, 1891, in Reading, died Jan. 29, 1892, aged eight months and fourteen days; and William Howard.

WALTER JOSEPH LOY, one of the well-known citizens of Hamburg borough, who is engaged as a furniture dealer and in the undertaking business, was born Jan. 8, 1870, in Windsor township, Berks Co., Pa., son of Justice Walter S. and Elementa (Baver) Loy, well known in Perry township.

Adam Loy, the great-grandfather of Walter J., was a weaver and farmer of Albany township, and the owner of a farm consisting of 100 acres of land. He married Catherine Focht, and among their children was a son, Joseph.

Joseph Loy, son of Adam, was born Oct. 25, 1825, in Albany township. He was a farmer and wheelwright in Albany township for many years, and is still living, and, considering his advanced age, is very well preserved. He has lived retired for a number of years, being well-to-do, and makes his home with his only son, Walter S.

Walter S. Loy was born Nov. 8, 1850, in Windsor township, was reared on the farm of his father, and received his education in the local schools and the Keystone State Normal school at Kutztown. He taught school for a number of years, later learning the trade of wheelwright with his father, and is now located successfully as a farmer in Perry township, where he is also serving as a justice of the peace. He married Elementa Baver, daughter of Joseph and Mary Ann (Focht) Baver, and their only child was Walter J., whose name heads this sketch.

Walter J. Loy was reared on the farm and he received his intellectual training in the public schools of his native township. At the age of eighteen years he learned the trade of house-painting, which he followed in addition to farming for some years, and has also a practical knowledge of the machinist's trade, having "set up" many different pieces of farm machinery. In 1889 he became a clerk in Peter Nagel's liquor store, and the following year accepted a clerkship in N. A. Confer's variety store in Hamburg, where he remained for nine years. On Nov. 20, 1899, Mr. Loy purchased the good-will and fixtures of Mahlon Mengel's furniture store and undertaking establishment on South Fourth street, Hamburg, and since that time has been successfully engaged in business. The great flood of Aug. 3, 1906, completely ruined his buildings, furniture and new hearse. His loss was the heaviest of any individual citizen of Hamburg, it amounting to $10,000. During the great flood Mr. Loy displayed wonderful presence of mind, and did heroic service in the rescuing of life and property. He was not dismayed or discouraged by his loss, but at once set about to retrieve his fortune.

Mr. Loy is a member of the Board of Trade, and a director of the Hamburg Building Association, No. 3. He was a consistent member of St. John's Lutheran Church, of which he has been a deacon for seven years, and is also serving as a trustee. He has been secretary of the Church for the past four years. Mr. Loy was married Nov. 6, 1894, to Lizzie Mengel, daughter of Harrison and Caroline (Breininger) Mengel.

THOMAS T. DAVIS, auctioneer, of Reading, was born July 22, 1859, in Penn township, Berks county, and is a member of the fourth generation of his family in the county. He is of Welsh descent, tracing his line from Edward Davies (also Davis), who was one of three brothers to come from their native Wales and settle in America. The other two settled in the South.

(I) Edward Davies first located in Chester county, Pa., in middle life moving to Berks county and settling at Berkley, above Reading. There he owned a large farm and erected a set of buildings, on the property now belonging to Reese Davis, one of his descendants. He died upon this farm at a ripe old age, and is buried at the Friends' meeting-house in Ontelaunee township. His wife was a Morgan from Morgantown, her family being one of the foremost in Berks county during the Revolutionary period. Mr. and Mrs. Edward Davies had the following children: Elizabeth, born in 1789 (died young); Hannah, 1790 (married Thomas Ives); Ann, 1793; Luke, 1795; Franklin, 1798 (died without issue at Leesport); Lewis Reese, 1801; Elizabeth (2), 1810.

(II) Luke Davis, son of Edward, born May 2, 1795, in Chester county, between Morgantown and Churchtown, died in 1861, aged sixty-six years. He came with his parents to Berkley, Berks county, became a miller, and owned a grist-mill, which he conducted for many years. Forty acres of land belonged to the mill property, and he also owned an adjoining farm of 100 acres. There was a set of buildings on each piece of property. He married Catharine Dunkel, daughter of John Dunkel and his wife, whose maiden name was Deisher. Luke Davis and his wife were both members of the Society of Friends, and they were buried at the Berkley meeting-house. All their family of thirteen children were reared in that faith. They were as follows: John, born in 1817; Edward, 1819; Elizabeth, 1821; Cyrus, 1822; Hannah, 1825; Rufus K., 1827; Eliza, 1829; Mark, 1831; Luke D., 1833; George, 1835; Judith, 1837; Catharine, 1840; Reese F., 1843.

(III) Cyrus Davis, son of Luke, and father of Thomas T. Davis, was born in 1822 at Berkley near the old Friends' meeting-house, and died in 1874, aged fifty-two years. He is buried at Bern Church. He lived in Penn township, where he followed farming, owning 118 acres of land which he cultivated successfully. His land was a part of the old homestead, and the present apple orchard on the place (which is now owned by Harry Hiester) was planted by Cyrus Davis when he was a mere boy. This orchard and farm later became his own property, and there all his children were born and reared. The large Swiss barn on the place was built by his father, Luke Davis. The property was very desirable, Plum creek flowing through the land, and there was water for the cattle in each of the eight fields.

Cyrus Davis married Priscilla Kerschner, who survived him ten years, dying on Christmas morning, 1884, at the age of sixty-five years. They were the parents of seventeen children, thirteen sons and four daughters, namely: Rufus and Morgan, both of whom died young; Mary, m. Joseph Lewis; John; Cyrus, of Penn township; Emma, m. to George Lash (both deceased); Howard; Heber, who died in 1874, unmarried; George; Rosa, m. to Daniel Burkhart; Mahlon, of Reading; Thomas T.; James, who died in 1874 at the same time as his father and brother Heber, all being victims of typhoid fever (Cyrus and Heber Davis were buried at the same time, in one grave); Susan, deceased, m. to Jacob Engel, of Shoemakersville; Lewis; and Harry and Penrose, both deceased.

During the Civil war Cyrus Davis was three times drafted for service, but he never entered the army. He was a Hicksite Quaker, and warfare was against his religious principles, but another and possibly stronger reason was the fact that his large family needed him, and his neighbors, by whom he was held in the highest respect, assisted him in securing substitutes, raising the necessary money. The three drafts cost him in all $2,500. One of his neighbors, a man named Kauffman, came to him on one of these occasions with a bagful of money, saying: "Davis, you must not go to war, your wife and small children must need you." One of his substitutes, Albert Ludwig, was shot shortly after entering the service, meeting instant death, and the fact grieved Mrs. Davis sorely; Ludwig was a single man.

(IV) Thomas T. Davis, son of Cyrus, received his early education in the schools of his native township and later attended the high school at Bernville. He was reared upon the farm, which he left, however, in his twenty-first year, after which he learned the butcher's trade from his brother George, at Reading, working for him several years. Later he was employed by J. F. Lengel and others in Reading, and it was while still engaged in this line that he began to cry sales, in 1884. He was so successful that he soon gave up his trade and devoted all his time to the new occupation, with which he combined real estate dealing, and he has been interested in this business ever since. He is the best known auctioneer in Reading, being an expert in that line, and he has cried more sales annually than there are days in the year. He is the auctioneer for the sheriff's office of Berks county, a position he has filled since the administration of former Sheriff Fahrenbach, in 1891. For many years he has cried more sales than any other auctioneer in Reading, his services being constantly in demand. He has a clear, loud voice, an affable manner, a comprehensive knowledge of values, and a faculty for getting the highest price for goods—a combination of qualities which accounts for his success. His familiarity with the real estate business gains him universal confidence and makes his services doubly valuable. He has been in the building business since the year 1903, since when he has erected sixteen nice residences at Riverside, which have given him the reputation of being as honest a builder as there is in Reading. His speculations in land and city lots have covered a long period, and he is an extensive owner of property in and about Reading.

On January 11, 1883, Mr. Davis married Laura K. Boas, daughter of John S. and Mary (Kline) Boas, of Reading, and they have had nine children, namely: Walter B., Addie B., Eva B., Mary P., Thomas W., Laura Frances, Florence H., Violet M. (who died in 1896) and Harry B.

Mr. Davis has lived in the Tenth ward in Reading since 1902. He is a Republican in politics, and he and his family are members of the Lutheran Church. He himself was named after, baptized, confirmed and married by Rev. Thomas Theophilus Iaeger, of Reading. The family burial plot is in Aulenbach cemetery.

(III) Rufus K. Davis, son of Luke, was born Oct. 16, 1827, on the homestead, and died in August, 1886, aged fifty-eight years. He was a farmer by occupation, and in 1872 moved to Cumru township, where he purchased a fifty-acre farm which was formerly one of the Swartz properties. He owned a 134-acre farm in Penn township on which he lived prior to 1872. He married Tamson Swartz, daughter of Joseph Swartz and granddaughter of John Swartz, and to them were born two children, Joseph S. and Lucy. Both are unmarried, and live in Cumru township, near the State barracks.

(III) Luke D. Davis, son of Luke, was born Oct. 2, 1833, on the homestead at Davis Mill, at Berkley. He was educated in the local pay school and in the Friends school at Reading. For ten years after beginning work he was a clerk in the general store of Amos W. Potteiger, at Reading, and then he learned the milling business from Christian Bechtel, in Cumru township, following that line ever since—for thirty-three years. He was engaged for a number of years with his father-in-law, William Krick. In 1888 he became proprietor of the Spring Mill, in Heidelberg township, which he has ever since conducted; in connection with that property he owns forty acres of land, and he also owns seven houses in Reading.

On Jan. 27, 1857, Mr. Davis married Sarah Krick, and they had two children, Margaret and William Luke, the latter dying in infancy. The daughter married Thomas B. Althouse, and has one son, Luke D.; they reside at Philadelphia. Mr. Davis adheres to the faith of his forefathers, being a member of the Society of Friends. He is a Republican in politics, and served six years as school director.

WILLIAM M. STAUFER, a prominent retired citizen of Reading, was born in Chester county, Pa., Nov. 12, 1831, son of Jacob and Mary (Meyers) Staufer.

The Staufer family is of German descent, John Staufer, the great-grandfather of William M., being the progenitor of the family in America. He settled first in Berks county, in the early part of the eighteenth century.

John Staufer, son of the emigrant John, was born in Berks county, but in early life removed to Chester county, settling in East Coventry township. There he purchased a tract of 127 acres of fine farming land, which is still called the "old Staufer homestead." He was known for his thrift and enterprise, and it is said of him that his honesty and integrity were never questioned, his word being as good as his bond. He married a Miss Latshaw, and they became the parents of five children: John (deceased) was a lifelong resident of Chester county; Catherine m. Rev. Jacob Harley, a minister of the German Baptist Church; Elizabeth died in early womanhood; Jacob is mentioned below; Mary died young. In religious belief the family were Mennonites.

Jacob Staufer, father of William M., was born in 1790 in Berks county, Pa. He received his early schooling in the common and subscription schools of Berks and Chester counties, was reared on the farm, and early evinced a desire to make farming his life work, following it successfully all of his active years. He died on the old Staufer homestead, Sept. 22, 1862, aged seventy-two years. His wife, Mary Meyers, daughter of Martin Meyers, died Nov. 7, 1873, in her seventy-ninth year. They were also members of the Mennonite Church. In politics he was a Republican. He was known as a good man, honest and upright in all of his dealings with his fellow-men. The children born to Jacob Staufer and wife were: John M., a farmer, died in 1891; Catherine m. Abram Halteman, lived in Juniata county, and is now deceased; Mary Ann m. Christian Bleim, lived in Montgomery county, and is now deceased; Jacob, Jr., is deceased; Abraham; Henry M.; Sarah m. John Latshaw; Elizabeth m. Joel Ebert; Isaac died in 1891 in Montgomery county; William M. is mentioned below; Leah m. Hiram Ellis; Harriet m. Henry S. Pennypacker, of Chester county; Lovinia m. George C. Green.

William M. Staufer was educated in the schools of Chester county and also in Montgomery county, completing his studies at Freeland Seminary, at Trappe, conducted for many years by H. A. Hunsicker, and known to many as the old Hunsicker school. After completing his schooling he turned his attention to farming during the summer months, and to teaching during the winter seasons. This he followed for seven terms, teaching in both Berks and Chester counties.

On Feb. 7, 1857, Mr. Staufer m. Miss Susan Prizer, daughter of Henry Prizer, of East Coventry, Chester county. Their one child died in infancy.

After farming for several years more Mr. Staufer became associated with Orr, Painter & Co., of Reading, in the manufacture of stoves. He continued with this firm eleven years, and after leaving the concern built the well-known Mt. Penn Stove Works and Foundry. Upon placing this company on a paying basis he sold out and engaged in business at Royersford, where he followed a similar line of work successfully until 1903, and then retired from active business lines. He has been one of the best known business men of Reading, and during his later life has been financially successful. His operations have always been of a legitimate character, as he does not believe in so-called wild-cat schemes or investments. He has invested much of his money in real estate and local enterprises. He built the handsome four-story brick block known as the Staufer building, at the corner of Sixth and Franklin streets, which is equipped with all modern conveniences—light, heat and elevator service. The first floor is utilized for store rooms and offices; the second floor is given by Mr. Staufer to the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, the third floor being occupied by the Women's Employment Association. The object of this latter society is to find employment for girls and women in the various vocations of life, and afford a temporary home for the worthy, friendless and homeless, while unemployed, and to elevate and improve the conditions of domestic service as much as lies within the ability and power of the Association. The business of the Association is controlled by a local board of managers, consisting of Christian men and women, representing many of the different religious denominations, and elected by delegates of the different churches in the city, on Dec. 7, 1897, and thereafter by the membership of the association. This organization consists of persons who contribute toward the expenses of it the sum of one dollar or more annually. All persons paying the sum of twenty-five dollars become life members. Mr. Staufer is serving as president of this association in Reading, of which he was one of the originators and to which he has devoted much time and money. The building occupied by the association, in addition to conveniences and equipments already mentioned, has a fourth floor for sleeping apartments. The building is also open for any and all kinds of reform work, the uplifting of humanity in its various forms of endeavor, and Mr. Staufer has provided for its future by an endowment.

Mr. Staufer is one of the directors of the Homeopathic Hospital, and of Hope Rescue Mission. He is president and a director of the Commercial Trust Company, one of the safest banking and trust institutions in Pennsylvania. For many years he has been a member of St. Peter's M. E. Church, and is one of the board of trustees. In political matters he is a stanch Prohibitionist, but takes no active part in political campaigns outside of temperance work. His influence is universally acknowledged. Mrs. Staufer has been a faithful laborer in the W. C. T. U. for a number of years. Both she and Mr. Staufer are noted for their many charities and philanthropies, and few citizens in Reading are held in higher esteem.

EDWARD HOWDEN (deceased), who for many years was a well known figure in railroad construction work, and who was employed by the Reading Railway Company, from the time of grading the road until his retirement in 1889, was born in 1814, in County Cavan, Ireland.

Mr. Howden came to America in 1834, and at once engaged in railroad and construction work and when the work on the Reading Railway was commenced he was made section boss. His ability to handle large bodies of men made his services very valuable to that company, and he was often called upon to carry out large contracts.* Mr. Howden continued in this firm's employ until his retirement in 1889, and he died May 31, 1890.

In 1839 Mr. Howden married Lavina Kline, who survives him and to this union were born twelve children: Catherine A., unmarried; John K., deceased; Jane, unmarried; Edward and Mary, deceased; Elizabeth, m. to William Deisher; Rebecca, m. to Michael Buckley; George, who is with the Pennsylvania Railway, at Auburn, Pa.; D. James, deceased; William, in the employ of the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Co.; Agnes C., deceased; and Rose T., m. to Patrick Quinn. The family are connected with St. Joseph's Catholic Church, in which faith Mr. Howden died. In politics he was a Democrat.

J. CLINTON D. KOCH, the chorister at Bowers, Pa., and one of the leading music teachers of Berks county, was born on the line of Berks and Montgomery counties, May 20, 1858, son of Abraham E. and Elizabeth (Dotterer) Koch, and grandson of Andrew and Mary (Eshbach) Koch.

(I) Andrew Koch was a native of Saxony. He came to lower Berks county when a young man, and there he was married to Mary Eshbach, who was born in Washington township, near Bally. By trade Andrew Koch was a carpet weaver, and followed this occupation all his life. All of his sons learned the same trade, and nearly all of them worked at it in conjunction with other callings. Andrew Koch and his wife are buried at Bally Mennonite meeting house cemetery. They had the following children: Elijah, of Niantic, Pa., m. Mary Mumbower, and had six children; Eliza married Henry Mack of Fruitville, Montgomery county, and had five children; John, of East Greenville, Montgomery county, m. Sophia Geisinger, and had six children; Henry, of Allentown, m. (first) Sarah Nester, had seven children, (second) a Miss Trout, and had two children; Susan m. Daniel Stoudt, and had seven children; Catharine m. Jacob Huber, of Niantic, and had nine children, all but three now deceased; Fietta m. George Jacob, of Bally, and had six children; Mary Ann m. Samuel Linsenbigler, and had twelve children, all deceased but two; Sarah died at the age of three years; William, of East Greenville, m. Mary Shiery, and had five children; Jeremiah, of Niantic, m. Matilda Latshaw, and had two children; and Abraham E. m. Elizabeth Dotterer, and had ten children, seven yet living.

(II) Abraham E. Koch was born near Niantic, one mile from the Berks county line, and one mile from Bally in Berks county, in 1832, and he died Dec. 2, 1902, aged seventy years. He is buried at Huber church in Montgomery county, of which during life he was a consistent member, and in which he held all the offices. His wife Elizabeth was a daughter of John and Elizabeth (Hauck) Dotterer, of Falkner Swamp. To Mr. and Mrs. Koch were born ten children: J. Clinton D.; J. Warren; J. Abraham; Anna A. m. F. F. Huber; Leanna m. W. D. Reminger; J. Humphry died young; Lucena m. A. B. Frank; J. Grant died young; Lizzie m. Warren Schanly; and Katie died young. Mrs. Koch was born Oct. 12, 1838, and lives in Pennsburg, Pa., with her daughter Lizzie. During his life Mr. Koch was a farmer, and dying he left a nice legacy for his family.

(III) J. Clinton D. Koch was reared upon the farm until he was seventeen, and he attended the common schools of his locality. At the age of seventeen his musical ability was recognized and he began study under J. L. Leinbach of Gilbertsville, Montgomery county. Later he took instruction in instrumental music under Philadelphia professors, and a special course in vocal music under Prof. J. High Stauffer, of Loganville, Ohio, a celebrated musician and composer, and also under the late W. A. Ogden, of Chicago, also a composer of repute. Mr. Koch continued his musical studies until he was twenty-three, and then moved to the vicinity of Schultzville, Berks county, where he engaged in teaching music. At once the young musician became prominent, for he is a genius and his classes grew to thirty-five pupils. In 1882 he was elected organist of Huff's and Huber's churches. These churches he served for seven years, but in 1889 he was elected organist of St. Stephen's Reformed church of Pottstown, Pa., where he remained for two years. In 1891 he became organist at Bowers, and still fills that position. For two years he was the organist for De Long's Union Church, and two years later was elected organist of Christ Lutheran church at Dryville and St. Peter's church at Topton. DeLong's Union church was destroyed by fire in 1903, and each congregation held its own meetings, but Mr. Koch continued to act as organist for both. He is still actively engaged in teaching music, although his talented daughter Miss Lulu relieves him of much of the work.

On May 20, 1882, Mr. Koch married Emma S. Schell, daughter of Peter D. and Matilda Y. (Schultz) Schell of Schultzville. Two children have been born of this marriage: Elsie S., at home; and Lulu S., a graduate of the Keystone State Normal, class of 1908, of which she was one of the youngest members. She is a public school and music teacher and a young lady of unusual ability, a great help to her father.

The family all belong to the Reformed church and are active in it. During the many years he has been in the profession Mr. Koch has rendered very valuable services not only as organist to the several churches with which he has been connected, but also to his classes, and many of his pupils are now holding positions of importance throughout the country. Mr. Koch is a man to whom music is the very breath of life and he possesses in marked degree the power of transmitting some of his own genius to those studying under him. In addition to his standing as a musician, Mr. Koch has won an enviable position socially through his pleasant manner and extreme courtesy, and he is a great favorite with all who have the honor of his acquaintance.

CHARLES F. BRISSEL, one of Reading's well known residents, who has been school controller of the Tenth ward for the past ten years, was born July 12, 1856, in Reading, son of John and Catherine (Egelman) Brissel.

John Brissel was born in June, 1817, in Hessen, Germany, and was a boiler maker during all of his active life, he retiring ten years prior to his death, Aug. 12, 1888. He emigrated to America about 1840, and two years thereafter was married to Catherine Egelman, daughter of Charles F. Egelman, eight children being born to this union: Emma A. m. Alfred Wentzel, a printer of Philadelphia; Mary m. James Kilpatrick, a machinist of Reading; Charles F.; Kate died single in 1901, aged forty-three years; Minnie m. Harry Heffelfinger, a moulder of Reading; John E. m. Clara Ludwig, and is a machinist of Reading; Frederick died in infancy; and Charlotte m. Charles Miles, a machinist of Reading.

Charles F. Brissel attended the local schools, and when seventeen years of age learned the machinist's trade with Miller & Allen (at the Scott foundry), in whose employ he continued for eight years. He then worked as a journeyman in the socket department of the Reading Iron Works for six years, and since 1901 has been working at his trade for the Birdsboro Steel, Foundry & Machine Company. In political matters Mr. Brissel has always been a staunch Democrat, casting his first Presidential vote for Samuel J. Tilden (in the Ninth ward), and in the spring election of 1898 was elected school controller of the Tenth ward, a position he has efficiently held to the present time, his present term bringing his service to twelve years. He has been a resident of the ward since 1885, having prior to that time been a resident of the Second. He is a member of the Heptasophs, Berks Conclave No. 133, of Reading; and the Veteran Firemen's Association, of which he was president for two years. Mr. Brissel and his family are members of St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran Church of Reading, of which he was one of the organizers, deacon for several years and member of the first vestry.

On July 7, 1877, Mr. Brissel married Caroline S. Greiner, born Jan. 26, 1856, daughter of Matthias and Louisa (Martin) Greiner, and to this union there were born four sons, three of whom died in infancy, the survivor, John Matthias, born June 19, 1883, being at present a clerk in the city assessor's office, Reading. He is a member of Chandler Lodge, No. 227, F. & A. M.; a charter member of Reading Lodge of Perfection; Camp No. 89, P. O. S. of A.; and Aerie No. 66, F. O. E., all of Reading.

HOWARD F. MARKS, a leading and substantial citizen of Cumru township, Berks county, who is extensively engaged in milling operations at Grill, Pa., was born in Cumru township, Jan. 2, 1867, son of John H. and Catherine (Weidner) Marks.

Conrad Marks, great-grandfather of Howard F., came to America from Switzerland, and settled in Brecknock township, Berks county, where he lived until his death, on a small tract of ten acres, besides attending to which he also engaged in weaving. For about fifteen years prior to his death, which occurred at a very old age, Mr. Marks was blind. He and his wife were buried at Gouglersville. They were the parents of the following children: John, who died on the homestead, was also a weaver; Joseph died in Brecknock township; George was the grandfather of Howard F.; Polly m. William Cole; Susan m. Mr. Hosheir; and Elizabeth m. Peter Krick.

George Marks was born in 1800 in Brecknock township, and followed day laboring until coming to Cumru township, where he died in 1880, being buried at Gouglersville. He married Elizabeth Hornberger, daughter of Conrad Hornberger, who died aged sixty-three years. To this union were born children as follows: Elizabeth m. Daniel Krick; Catherine m. Ephraim Shilling; William m. Lovina Heck; Richard m. Catherine Hinnershitz; John H. is mentioned below; George, who served in the Civil war, died at the age of sixty-three years; and Joseph and a daughter died young.

John H. Marks was born Aug. 4, 1837, in Mohnton, Berks county, and attended the public schools of Cumru township until the age of seventeen years, when he engaged in milling, learning the trade with Adam Young, at Angelica. This he followed for thirty-five years at Angelica, and also worked at Mohnton for Jonathan H. Miller during the Civil war. In 1893 he located in Shillington, where he has since been engaged at different kinds of work. In political matters he is a Republican. John H. Marks married (first) Catherine Weidner, daughter of Obediah Weidner, and to them were born: Ellsworth, who died in infancy; Ella, m. George Tothero; Anna, m. Jacob DeTemple; and Howard F. Mr. Marks m. (second) Priscilla White, daughter of John R. and Elizabeth (Mengel) White, and to this union there were born: John is living in the West; George W. died single, aged twenty-nine years; Catherine m. Howard Ruth, and is living in Shillington; Charles m. Sarah Angstadt; and Mary m. George Beaver, and resides in Reading.

Howard F. Marks spent his school days in Cumru township, and when a young man learned the milling business with his father, with whom he continued until twenty-three years of age. He was then employed for five years at Angelica, engaged at days work and trucking, and then came to Grill, engaging with Irvin Shanneman as teamster and salesman in the Angelica flour mill. He continued with Mr. Shanneman for one and one-half years, and then went to Reading, where he was employed in F. S. Keller's flour and feed store for one year. Returning to Grill he rented the Angelica mills for five years with his brother George W., the firm name being Marks & Brother, this partnership continuing until April 1, 1901, when Mr. Marks purchased the mill and property, consisting of seventy-two acres of land about two miles south of the city of Reading. Here he has continued to the present time with much success, manufacturing the well known Angelica Daisy and Angelica White Rose brands of flour, for which he finds a ready market in Reading and the surrounding country. His mill, which was erected in 1797 by Joseph and Elizabeth Hemmig, and which is one of the land marks of this section of the county, Mr. Marks has equipped with the latest and finest machinery. He is a man of enterprise and his business is constantly assuming larger proportions. Mr. Marks is a member of Emblematic Lodge, No. 169, I. O. O. F., Red Men No. 186, and the Modern Woodmen of America. In his political belief he is a Republican, and has always taken a great interest in the success of his party in this section, serving at various times as a member of election boards. In February, 1909, he was elected auditor of Cumru township. Mr. and Mrs. Marks and their children attend the Yocom Reformed Church and Sunday-school, and for some time he has served as deacon of the former.

Howard F. Marks married Emma E. Schnable, daughter of Jacob and Catherine (Fritz) Schnable, and granddaughter of John Schnabel (whose wife was a Grade), and to this union there have been born two children: Elmer, born September, 1889, is a miller, assisting his father; and Bertha is attending the Yocom school.

CHARLES AMMARELL, one of the solid, substantial business men of Reading, Pa., and an honored veteran of the Civil war, who is engaged in numerous flourishing business enterprises, was born at Weimar, Saxony, Germany, July 17, 1845, son of Frederick and Rosalie (Monz) Ammarell, and grandson of Frederick Ammarell, who died in Germany.

Frederick Ammarell, the father, was born at Weimar, Germany, April 16, 1809, his education being secured in the common schools. In August, 1854, he came to the United States on a sailing vessel, landing at New York City after an eight weeks' voyage. Having learned the trade of carpenter in his native country, he was engaged at that occupation in New York for a short time, but subsequently removed to Northampton county, Pa., engaging there at the business of boat-building. Later he was employed on Felix's Dam, in Bern township, Berks county, and died at the home of his son at Epler's Church, in that township, Jan. 3, 1886, aged seventy-six years, eight months, seventeen days. His wife, Rosalie (Monz) Ammarell, died in Germany when about sixty-five years old, the mother of children as follows: Louisa, who married a Mr. Beck, of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Robert, who resides on his farm in Bern township; Charles, who died in infancy; Charles (2), the subject of this sketch; Lena, who married a Mr. Danz; and Alma, who married Draugott Kott.

Charles Ammarell received his earlier education in the schools of Germany, and later attended in this country. On July 10, 1859, he came to the United States, making the trip in a sailing vessel, the voyage taking six weeks. From New York City he came to Bern township, and until 1862 was engaged in work for the widow Althouse and William Leinbach. On Oct. 14th of that year he enlisted in Company K, 151st Pa. V. I., a nine months' regiment, with which he served in the battles of Chancellorsville and Gettysburg. He then returned to the farm, but on Feb. 16, 1864, re-enlisted for a term of three years, becoming a member of Company E, 46th Pa. V. I., and after going to Chattanooga, joined Sherman's army in their great march to the sea, his corps traveling over 1,500 miles. He was mustered out July 27, 1865, having served two years and three months, and during this whole period he was never sick a day so as to incapacitate him for service. Willing and cheerful, brave and faithful, he made an ideal soldier, and won the respect and admiration of both officers and men. On completing his services to his adopted country, Mr. Ammarell returned to the farm, and later took up agricultural pursuits on his own account in Muhlenberg and Bern townships. He also spent nine years on Judge Stitzel's farm in Muhlenberg township, and in 1896 came to Reading, locating at No. 634 North Front street, where for about four years he was engaged in contracting the hauling for the Carpenter Steel Works. In 1898, in company with W. M. Leinbach, and

H. F. Kramer, Mr. Ammarell built the West Buttonwood Street Market House, a building 75x185 feet, located at the corner of McKnight and West Buttonwood streets, and since that time he has been acting as manager and superintendent of this enterprise, positions for which he is eminently fitted. Mr. Ammarell began his extensive building operations in 1900, since which time he has erected numerous dwellings and business blocks, including twenty-six houses on Schuylkill avenue, forty houses on Greenwich and North Front streets, and twenty-seven on North Front between Green and Greenwich streets, on the west side. In 1907 he also erected nine houses at Coatesville, Pa. He is a director of the Berks Coal Company. With his partner, H. F. Kramer, he owns valuable building property in Reading, and in the real estate, financial and commercial circles of the city is recognized as a man of great business capacity, sterling integrity and stanch adherence to the principles of right. Mr. Ammarell is a Republican in politics, but he has never cared for political favors, although while a resident of Muhlenberg township he served as school director for one term. His religious connection is with Epler's Church, in which he has filled the various offices. He is a popular comrade of McLean Post No. 16, G. A. R. Mr. Ammarell is very fond of travel, and in 1891, with his brother Robert, made a trip to Germany, where he visited old scenes and re-established old acquaintances. With Mrs. Ammarell and Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Kramer, he made a trip of 9,499 miles in 1906, going to Southern California, and spending some time in a visit to Yellowstone Park and Canada.

In 1866, Mr. Ammarell married Amanda Machemer, daughter of Charles and Mary (Haag) Machemer, agricultural people of Bern township, Berks county, and there were four children born to this union, as follows: Amelia married Morris J. Ulrich, assistant superintendent of the Market House, Reading; Clara married Daniel K. Wanner, a Reading business man; Katie married Irvin K. Kessler, also in business in this city; and Charles, Jr., died when eight years old. The family are highly esteemed by all who have the pleasure of their acquaintance, and they are known to stand for all that represents the best type of citizenship.

CALVIN D. MOSER stands representative of two of the old and honored families of the Schuylkill Valley, where both his paternal and maternal grandparents and ancestors were numbered among the earliest settlers, and where the respective names have ever stood exponent of the best type of citizenship. He himself is a native of Berks county, and here he has well upheld the prestige of the family name, and has gained a position of prominence as a citizen and business man. His standing as a man among men is best evidenced by the distinctive popularity which he enjoys in his native county, where his circle of friends is limited only by that of his acquaintances.

Calvin D. Moser was born in Reading, Oct. 11, 1847, and is a son of Solomon and Catherine (Deturck) Moser, both of whom were likewise born in this county, where they continued to reside until death. Mr. Moser was afforded the advantages of the common schools of the locality and period, and that he made good use of his educational opportunities is shown in the fact that he became a successful teacher, following the pedagogic profession for some time when a young man. For several years he was employed as a clerk in local mercantile establishments, after which he became an accountant in the office of the Reading Fire Insurance & Trust Company, an office of which he remained incumbent until 1880. In that year he became teller of the Commercial National Bank of Reading. While in tenure of this position he became associated with several prominent capitalists of Reading in the organization of the Penn National Bank, which dates its inception back to 1883. The directorate of the new institution forthwith elected him to the responsible and exacting position of cashier, and of this executive office he has since been incumbent. The business of the bank has been most successful, and it is known as one of the substantial and leading monetary institutions of this section of the State, basing its operations upon an ample capital and the most responsible management. The bank is capitalized for one hundred thousand dollars and its surplus fund is now in excess of two hundred and fifty thousand dollars, while the market price of the stock is held at a premium of more than three hundred and twenty-five dollars a share. It is conceded on every side that the successful upbuilding of this stanch institution has been in large measure due to the conservative methods and splendid executive talent of its cashier, who has co-operated with its directorate in guiding its course wisely and well.

In the spring of 1907 the Penn National Bank completed its magnificent new building on Penn street, and the same is one of the most complete bank buildings in this section. The equipment of the banking offices is of the best modern type, being excelled by few other banks in the State, and thus every facility is afforded for the proper handling of the large business of the concern, while the building is an ornament and credit to the city of Reading, and an evidence of the enterprising spirit of its stockholders, who are numbered among the most influential and honored citizens of this section.

Mr. Moser is a man of gracious personality and unvarying courtesy, and these characteristics combine with his sterling attributes of character to keep him on the high plane of popularity on which he is firmly placed in the community which has been his home throughout his life. He shows an abiding interest in all that tends to conserve the material and civic welfare of his home city, and is essentially loyal and public-spirited. His political allegiance is given to no political party, and he has never sought nor desired political office. He and his wife are zealous members of St. Andrew's Reformed Church, and he has taken an active part in the various departments of church work, especially that of the Sunday-school, in which he has been teacher of a large class of young men and women for a number of years.

As a young man Mr. Moser affiliated himself with Camp 61, Patriotic Order Sons of America, now the oldest camp in existence in the Union, and he is now one of the oldest members of this noble and patriotic organization. He has attained to the Knights Templar degree in the Masonic fraternity, being identified with the local lodge, No. 549, of which he was the first master; Excelsior Chapter, No. 237, of which he is the oldest Past High Priest, and Reading Commandery, No. 42, having held various offices in all of these bodies.

In the year 1879 Mr. Moser married Miss Mary A. Fink, daughter of William Fink, of Reading, who died in 1884, leaving no children. In 1886 Mr. Moser married (second) Miss Florence E. Freet, daughter of John Freet, who was a well-known citizen of Reading. Mr. and Mrs. Moser have two daughters, Mabel and Edith, and the family home is a center of gracious and unreserved hospitality.

WILLIAM C. FEATHER, manufacturer of building materials and undertaker at Wernersville since 1896, was born in North Heidelberg township, May 29, 1864, son of Joseph and Isabella (Moyer) Feather. His grandfather was William Feather, of Bernville, who was constable for many years of Bernville Borough. Mrs. Isabella Feather was the daughter of William and Annie (Lamm) Moyer, of North Heidelberg, but her mother dying when she was but a year and a half old, she was reared by Mr. and Mrs. John Lamm (nee Klopp), of North Heidelberg township. Her father served three years and nine months in the Civil war. Mrs. Feather died in 1901 aged fifty-seven years.

William C. Feather came to Wernersville when he was a boy four years old, and received his education in the local schools. When eighteen years old he entered the cabinet-making shop of George Wolfensberger, and, learning the trade, continued in his employ until his decease, in 1896. One of his sons, Richard A. Wolfensberger, and Mr. Feather then formed a co-partnership for the purpose of continuing the well-established business of cabinet-making and undertaking, together with running a planing-mill, and under the name of Wolfensberger & Feather they have carried on the plant in a very successful manner until the present time. All the mill work for the buildings in the surrounding community for many miles, both large and small, particularly of dwellings, has been supplied by them; and they also conduct the funerals for a considerable distance around Wernersville, the junior partner, Mr. Feather, attending to this branch of the business in connection with superintending at the planing mill. Their supplies give entire satisfaction, and quite naturally their factory is always busy. Mr. Feather took great interest in establishing a hose company at Wernersville for protecting the inhabitants against fire, and in the erection of the building he was one of the building committee.

In 1884 Mr. Feather married Mary Wolfensberger, a daughter of his employer. They have no children of their own, but they adopted a boy four years old by the name of Clarence N. Lamm, now eighteen years of age; he was educated in the Wernersville school, after which he took two courses in Stoner's Business College, of Reading, and is a bookkeeper for Wolfensberger & Feather.

WILLIAM H. DE HART, a survivor of the Civil war, and one of Reading's well-known retired citizens, who now makes his home in his comfortable residence at No. 910 North Front street, was born in Reading, Feb. 25, 1842, son of Charles M. DeHart, and grandson of Cornelius DeHart.

Cornelius DeHart was born in the State of Delaware, Jan. 15, 1777, and on reaching man's estate came to Berks county, Pa., settling in Amity township, where Oct. 27, 1795, he married Mary Miller, born Nov. 17, 1779. He was a well known weaver, an occupation which he followed for many years in this locality, in later years removing to Robeson township, where he died July 8, 1858, his burial taking place at Amityville. His wife died July 17, 1848, having been the mother of these children: Ann, born Oct. 1, 1797; Thomas, Aug. 21, 1799; William, Dec. 16, 1801; Michael, July 17, 1804; John, Feb. 23, 1807; Charles M., May 30, 1809; Andrew, Sept. 14, 1812; Levi, Feb. 13, 1815; Margaret, Oct. 19, 1817; and Harriet, March 20, 1822. Of this family Michael DeHart, who died in Reading in 1893, in his ninetieth year, married Harriet Bechtel, daughter of Jacob Bechtel of Reading, and they had these children: Tamsen, Angeline, Matilda, Maria, Amelia (widow of David Buxton, who was second lieutenant in the 1st Pa. Cav., and died in Libby Prison in 1864 from wounds received in battle), George and Anson B.

Charles M. DeHart, father of William H., was a machinist by trade, an occupation which he followed all of his life in Reading and Altoona, Pa., and Nashville, Tenn., his death occurring in the first-named place in 1886. He was buried in the Charles Evans cemetery. Mr. DeHart married Mary W. Davies, daughter of Benjamin Davies who for many years was connected with the Farmers' National Bank of Reading. To this union there were born children as follows: William H.; Davies, of Philadelphia; Edward, still living in Reading; Charles, who died in Iowa; Elizabeth, of Reading; Emily, deceased; and Mary, the wife of George W. Chaney, of Lebanon, Pennsylvania.

William H. DeHart secured his education in the public schools of Reading, and after leaving high school learned the trade of machinist in the shops of the Philadelphia & Reading Company, following this occupation until April, 1861, when he enlisted as corporal of Company G, 7th Pa. V. I., in which he served four months. On Dec. 5, 1861, he enlisted in the engineering corps, United States Navy, and July 25, 1866, was promoted to second assistant engineer, resigning in December, 1869, after having seen extremely hard service. On his return to Reading, he re-entered the service of the Philadelphia & Reading Company, later became connected with the Scott Works, and finally identified himself with the American Iron & Steel Company, where he served as foreman for several years. Since 1906 he has lived retired. Mr. DeHart is fraternally connected with the P. O. S. of A.

Mr. DeHart married Miss Agnes Speir, daughter of John Speir, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and they have had children as follows: Agnes, a teacher in the Reading public schools; Bessie B., who married William E. Feger, and died leaving two sons, Robert and Frederick; Alice; Helen, who married Harry Fox, of Valparaiso; and Arthur, a machinist, who makes his home in Reading.

GEORGE BEGGS, superintendent of the machine shop of the Scott foundry in Reading, is a Scotchman, and spent the earlier years of his life in his native land. He was born in Ayrshire, June 15, 1849, son of William and Margaret (Breckenridge) Beggs, farming people, who lived and died in Scotland.

As a boy George Beggs was engaged in farm work until he was fourteen years old, but at that age he entered upon a five years' apprenticeship as a machinist. When this preparatory period was over, he was employed for some years as a journeyman, and had become the head of a large machine shop at the time he finally left Scotland for America. Going directly to Reading he arrived there July 22, 1873, and he has ever since been in the employ of the Scott foundry. Beginning as an erective engineer, he spent twenty years traveling through the South and Southwest, engaged for the most part in putting up cotton mills. About 1893 he gave up traveling and returned to the shops until 1903, when he was made general foreman of the machine department, a position he still holds, with about sixty men under him. Mr. Beggs has established a reputation as a skilled mechanic of the highest order, and all his work is of a character that speaks for itself.

In 1870 Mr. Beggs married, in Scotland, Miss Martha Linton, daughter of William Linton, and a native of Glasgow. Mrs. Beggs is a member of the Methodist Church, while her husband belongs to the Presbyterian denomination. Fraternally he is a member of the Red Men. To the union of George and Martha Beggs, six sons have been born, three of whom died at early ages; the survivors are all young men of marked ability. The oldest, William, who was born in Glasgow, is foreman of a machine shop in Auburn, Schuylkill county. George, after graduation from the Reading high school, went to Lehigh University, and there was prominent in athletics, playing on the first team in base-ball. From 1900 to 1903 he was assistant city engineer at Reading, and between 1903 to present head of Department of Mathematics in the Boys' High School, of Reading. Harry, the youngest son, was graduated from the high school, attended Lehigh University for a year and then went to Ursinus College, Collegeville. He was also prominent as an athlete both at Lehigh and Ursinus, playing base-ball, basket-ball and foot-ball.

SAMUEL S. HOOVER, justice of the peace of Penn township, is an enterprising business man of Mount Pleasant, and belongs to one of Berks county's old and honored families. Mr. Hoover was born July 28, 1870, in Penn township, son of John H. and Elvina (Snyder) Hoover.

John Hoover, the great-great-great-grandfather of Samuel S., in 1724 settled on 1,000 acres of land near where the village of Reamstown, Lancaster county, now stands. It is thought he was a native of Austria. His son, Francis Joseph Hoover, was the father of

Joseph Hoover, the great-grandfather of Samuel S. He was born in Lancaster county, and spent his life on a farm about five miles northwest of Reamstown. He married Jane Keating, and they had the following children: John, Jacob, Joseph, Samuel, William, Nancy (who married Isaac Foltz) and Margaret. Of this family

John Keating Hoover, the grandfather of Samuel S., was born near Reamstown, in West Cocalico township, Lancaster county, Nov. 11, 1793, and died in Lower Heidelberg township, Berks county, April 10, 1864. He is buried at the Corner Church near Robesonia. He came to Berks county when twenty-one years of age, locating in Maidencreek township, where he followed the trade of miller and millwright, and also owned a small farm on which he carried on agricultural operations. He died in his seventy-first year. His first wife was Catherine Hottenstine, whom he married in Reading in 1822, and they had five children: Joseph H., born Sept. 8, 1823, who married (first) Annie Reihould, and (second) Amanda Frees; Mary, deceased, who married Samuel Kehr; Henry, who died in Franklin county, Pa.; John H.; and Catherine, living in Reading. The grandfather's second marriage was to Catherine Berger, of Oley township, and to this union there was born one son, Rev. Francis, a Lutheran minister of Lockport, N. Y., who married Jennie Hedley.

John H. Hoover, father of Samuel S., was formerly a well-known schoolmaster in Bern, Penn and Lower Heidelberg townships, and later became a clerk at Centreville. At the time of his death he was engaged in farming in Penn township, where he passed away in 1904; he was buried at Belleman's Church. He married Elvina Snyder, daughter of Abraham Snyder, and they had these children besides Samuel S.: Kate, who married Frank Backenstose; Prof. C. S., who is teaching history at Valparaiso, Ind.; Roger S., ticket agent at Tuckerton for the Philadelphia & Reading railroad; David S., a saddler at Fleetwood; Mary, who married Adam D. Backenstose; Frances S., unmarried and at home in Penn township; Helen, who married Thomas Degler, of Ruscombmanor township; John and Jacob, who died young; and two who died in infancy.

Samuel S. Hoover attended the public schools of West Leesport, and later the Keystone State Normal School, at Kutztown, after leaving which he taught school for one term in North Heidelberg, two terms in Bern and six terms in Penn township. In 1899 he became connected with Ahrens & Richardson, in the creamery business, and he now has charge of the Mt. Pleasant creamery. Mr. Hoover is a Democrat, and in addition to having served his township as auditor, he is now serving his second term as justice of the peace. He was one of the original board of directors of the First National Bank of Bernville. His religious connection is with the Hain's Church.

Mr. Hoover married Katie Susanna Hain, only daughter of John W. and Mary (Henninger) Hain, of Wernersville, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel S. Hoover live in Mount Pleasant, and they have been blessed with one daughter, Mary E.

JOHN CHELIUS, who is successfully engaged in the grocery business at the corner of Marion and Moss streets, Reading, Pa., was born Dec. 29, 1860, at Boyertown, Pa., son of Nicholas and Catherine (Gleser) Chelius.

Daniel Chelius, grandfather of John, arrived in America in 1855. He became a farmer in Iowa, where he had settled in 1862. He and his wife, Elizabeth German, had children: Nicholas, Frank, Peter, Mary, Elizabeth and Emma.

Nicholas Chelius, son of Daniel, was a resident of Berks county all of his life. He was first engaged as a miner at Barto, being made foreman, a position which he held for fifteen years, and later he had charge of mines at Siesholtzville, where he continued for six years. He then removed to Palm, where in 1879 he purchased 120 acres of land, and in 1889 he removed to Norristown. He died in Reading in 1893, while his widow, Catherine Gleser, still survives, and makes her home at No. 944 North Tenth street, Reading. They were the parents of children as follows: Emma, Frank, John, Elizabeth, Nicholas, William, Rita, Mary, George, Edwin L., Catherine and Rose, all of whom except William are living.

John Chelius was educated in the schools of Bally, Pa., and his first work was in the mines, where he continued for ten years. He learned the cigar-making trade at East Greenville, and worked at that occupation for about ten years. In 1889 he came to Reading and engaged in his present business, in which he has had much success.

In political matters Mr. Chelius is a Democrat, and he has served as tax collector of the Thirteenth ward for three terms. He is a member of St. Joseph's Catholic Church, and has been very active in church work, serving as a member of the building committee of St. Joseph's Parochial school, and as Sunday-school teacher for sixteen years. Fraternally he is connected with the Knights of Columbus.

On Sept. 17, 1888, at Bally, Mr. Chelius was married in the church of the Blessed Sacrament by the Rev. Father Renold to Mary Melchers, daughter of Bennet Melchers, and they have had children as follows: Paul and Joseph, both deceased; Luke; Mark; Hanna; Daniel; Mary; and John and Rose, both deceased.

PETER A. HAIN, a farmer of Lower Heidelberg, residing at Wernersville, was born Oct. 19, 1867, in the township named, and was educated in the public schools. After assisting his father on the farm until he became a young man he learned the trade of milling in the Peter Hain mill, and then carried on the business for himself from 1899 to 1904. Recently, besides looking after his farm, he has directed his attention to painting. Mr. Hain's father was Levi L. Hain, who married Eva Laucks, and they and earlier ancestors of Mr. Hain are referred to elsewhere.

In 1899 Mr. Hain married Kate S. Linsman, of Reading, daughter of William H. Linsman and his wife Sarah Yoder, a daughter of William Yoder, of Wernersville. She was born in 1850, but died at the early age of twenty-three years. They had one child, Kate, now Mrs. Peter A. Hain. William H. Linsman was born at Reading in 1849, was there educated, and learned the trade of carpenter in the car shops of the Philadelphia & Reading Company. He has been continuously in the employ of that company from the time he was fifteen years old, a period exceeding forty years. For his second wife Mr. Linsman married Emma Moll, a daughter of David Moll, of Molltown, and after her decease wedded Ellen Strasser, daughter of David Strasser, of Hamburg.

Mr. Linsman's father was William Linsman, of Wurtemberg, Germany. He emigrated to Pennsylvania in 1847, locating at Lancaster, and after living there a year settled at Reading, where he followed the occupation of carpenter and builder until his death, in 1889, at the age of seventy-nine years. He married Mary Riegler, of Manheim, Germany, who emigrated with him. She died in 1906, at the age of seventy-nine years. Her parents and five other daughters emigrated at the same time, locating at Lancaster. In their journey across the sea they were fifty-seven days on the way.

Mrs. Hain's grandfather, William Yoder, was a farmer in Lower Heidelberg, east of Wernersville, living for twenty-five years on the same farm. He was born in 1820, and died at the age of sixty-nine years. He married Susanna Strunk, of the same township, a daughter of Jacob Strunk, carpet weaver, and she died in 1897, aged seventy-two years. They had five children: Jacob m. Jennie Wenrich; Daniel m. Cornelia Lengel; Sarah m. William H. Linsman; Lydia m. Darius Spohn; and Kate m. Aaron Lieb. Mrs. Hain's great-grandfather was John Yoder; he m. Lydia Brown.

GEORGE W. YEAGLEY, of Reading, engaged in business as a painter, paper hanger and decorator, was born Aug. 14, 1865, in Jefferson township, Berks county, son of William Yeagley, grandson of Samuel Yeagley, great-grandson of Mathias Yeagley, and a direct descendant from Baltzer Yeagley of Hereford township, Berks Co., Pennsylvania.

William Yeagley, his father, was a blacksmith and farmer in Jefferson township, where he died Dec. 19, 1899. He is buried at St. Paul's Church, Schaefferstown, that township, as is also his wife, whose maiden name was Salome Derr. They had children as follows: Morris, who is living at Lebanon, Pa.; Levi, of Philadelphia; James, of Myerstown, Lebanon Co., Pa.; George W.; Alfred, who died at the age of thirty years; and Elizabeth, married to Howard S. Knoll.

George W. Yeagley attended the public schools of his native township and a graded school at Bernville taught by Prof. M. A. Gruber. He taught school two terms, one in Spring township and one in Tulpehocken, and then went to Lebanon, where he learned the trade of painter and paper hanger. He remained at that place five years, then went to Philadelphia for a year, and in 1892 settled in Reading, where he has since made his home. For nine years after coming to Reading he was in the employ of M. J. Earl, at the end of that time becoming a member of the firm of Kuebler, Yeagley & Co., located at No. 917 Penn street. He was interested in that business until 1906, since when he has been engaged in the same line on his own account, his establishment being at No. 1018 Chestnut street. He has a large patronage, gained by reliable work and honorable dealing. He is a member of Chandler Lodge, No. 227, F. & A. M.; Aerie No. 66, F. O. E.; Camp No. 663, P. O. S. of A., and other societies.

On June 26, 1890, Mr. Yeagley married Tamsey Miller, daughter of Joseph Miller, of Pottsville, Pa., and they have had three children: Harry G., born Oct. 17, 1891, now a member of the class of 1910, Reading high school; Alfred, born Nov. 13, 1894; and Helen, born April 23, 1897, who died Jan. 15, 1898, and is buried in the Charles Evans cemetery, at Reading.

EMANUEL L. BUSH, who holds the position of night foreman of the Oley street mills of the Reading Iron Company, and deputy for Berks county of the Brotherhood of America, resides at No. 812 Gordon street, Reading. He was born June 27, 1850, at Amityville, Pa., son of Jacob and Lucetta (Levengood) Bush.

George Bush, grandfather of Emanuel L., married a Miss Yerger, and they had these children: Peter; Sarah; Matthias; Mary, who died in her ninety-second year in June, 1905, the widow of George Straub; Catherine, who married a Mr. Chamberlain; George; Zacharias; Jacob; and Rachel, who married Samuel Fegley.

Jacob Bush, father of Emanuel L., was a laborer in Amity township, and later came with his family to Reading, where he met his death in a railroad freight yard in 1864, when forty-three years old. He married Mrs. Lucetta (Levengood) Bohn, of Pottstown, who by her former marriage had six children, three of whom are living: John L., Adam L. and James L.; Mrs. Bush died at the age of forty-four years, and both she and Mr. Bush were buried at Oley Church. They had these children: Emanuel L., Zacharias, and Sarah (m. Richard Marks).

Emanuel L. Bush spent nine years on the farm, and then came to Reading, where he lost his father at the age of thirteen years and his mother two years later. He engaged in the draying business, which he followed for five years, and he then secured employment at the old Keystone Rolling Mill, later being advanced to puddler, and for twenty-five years worked at that trade. He is now night foreman for the Reading Iron Company. At the age of eighteen years he joined the Junior Mechanics, and was a member a few years, when he dropped out, at the same time uniting with Freedom Circle No. 7, Brotherhood of America. He then became a member of Reading Lodge No. 348, I. O. O. F., which is now extinct. In the Brotherhood he held the office of Scroll Keeper for two years, after which he was appointed District Deputy of Berks county by the Grand Circle, the term of office being one year.

On April 22, 1869, Mr. Bush married Clara C. J. Burkert, daughter of Nicholas and Caroline (Kissinger) Burkert, of Reading, the former a well-known boatman on the canal. Two children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Bush: Samuel died at the age of three years; and Elmira L. married George Hinkel. Mr. Bush is a member of St. Mark's Reformed Church.

JOHN DRESHER. The first Dreshers in America, evidently the ancestors of John Dresher, and others of the same name, were George and Christopher Dresher, Jr. They with 261 other passengers arrived at Philadelphia, Sept. 12, 1734, in the ship "St. Andrew," John Stedman, master, from Rotterdam, last from Cowes. These settled Berks, Lehigh and Montgomery counties. Many of the passengers were Schwenkfelders, but among them were Lutherans, Reformed, Episcopalians, Presbyterians, Catholics, Quakers, Dunkards, Mennonites, and representatives of other denominations, so that a varied religious complexion was not lacking in the new communities founded in spite of many disadvantages and hardships.

Lawrence Dresher and a brother Philip resided on adjoining farms, where they worked and lived. These farms were originally over 300 acres in area, and situated in Longswamp township, near Mertztown. Lawrence Dresher married a Miss Fegley, and they had two sons, Samuel and John.

Samuel Dresher, son of Lawrence, was born on the old homestead in Longswamp township, and he married a Miss Catherine Keiser. They had two children: John and Marietta (m. Reuben Butz). Samuel Dresher and his wife resided in Longswamp township, Berks county, until his death.

John Dresher, son of Samuel, was born on the old homestead, Sept. 21, 1804, and died March 12, 1852, aged forty-seven years, five months and twenty-one days. He was a prosperous farmer all his life, and a worthy and well-known citizen. He married Diana Grim, who was born June 5, 1805, in Maxatawny township, and died Feb. 11, 1885. They had five children: Samuel, who died May 19, 1906, m. Sarah Leibensperger, and one son survives him, Alfred D. Dresher; John; Nathan, a resident of Reading, m. Catherine Trexler, who died in 1892, the mother of John, Nathan, Edward, James and Ella (deceased); Elizabeth m. Walter J. Grim, of Allentown, and they have two children, Charles and Ida; Charles m. Mariella Butz, who died leaving children, George, Henry, Florence and Annie.

John Dresher, son of John, was born on the old homestead, in 1837, and here he has spent his life. Receiving a good education, he had the privilege of attending the Freeland Seminary at the Trappe, after completing his common school course, and then he settled down to farming, like his people before him. He is now retired from active business life. Mr. Dresher has never married, remaining at home with his mother, whose last days he greatly cheered. After her demise, he lived with his brother Samuel, and still has his home with some of his relatives, by whom he is greatly beloved. Mr. Dresher is a consistent member of the Mertztown Lutheran Church, and enjoys the confidence and esteem of a wide circle of friends.

HENRY J. HUESMAN has established himself as one of the leading florists of Reading. His large greenhouses are at the corner of Schuylkill avenue and Greenwich street, and he also owns the Brookside Cut Flower Store, which is under the management of his son.

Mr. Huesman was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., in 1844, but he has passed practically all his life in Reading, his parents, Joseph and Lena (Cook) Huesman, having moved hither in 1845. Both the parents were natives of Germany, coming to America while young. Joseph Huesman was a shoemaker by trade, and he had a thriving business in New York City. When he settled in Reading he purchased property in the vicinity of the Hampden reservoir, but he died soon after his removal to this city. He was the father of the following named children: Ida, widow of Hillary Keffer, now living in New York; Henry J.; George and Louisa, deceased. The family were all of the Catholic faith.

Henry J. Huesman was educated in the Reading public schools, but his father having died when he was a young child he did not have many early advantages. However, he did have the benefit of excellent practical training. He was only ten years old when he began work in the line which he has since continued to follow, and in which he has met with such substantial success. His first employer was Michael Houser, who was located in Ninth street, and with whom he remained for the unusually long period of twenty-two years—in fact until he felt able to commence business on his own account. In 1887 he settled at the location on Schuylkill avenue where he has ever since had his business headquarters, and where he now has a plant which for completeness and quality of equipment will compare with any up-to-date hothouse in Pennsylvania. He has facilities for raising 100,000 plants, having over 20,000 feet of glass, and makes a specialty of house and bedding plants, also doing a large business in cut flowers, particularly for weddings, funerals and decorative purposes. For the special accommodation of this branch of the business he conducts the Brookside Cut Flower Store, at No. 104 South Fifth street, his son, Harry C. Huesman, being in charge there. Mr. Huesman includes in his business all the branches of floriculture usually carried on by modern florists, for he is enterprising in keeping abreast of the times, and indefatigable in investigating new methods which promise better results. Mr. Huesman has been successful solely because he has devoted himself industriously to his work and pursued a most commendable course. His establishment has been developed to its present large proportions gradually, all his business operations being conducted upon a sound basis. He has acquired and held an extensive custom by giving honest service to his patrons, and he is highly respected for his substantial worth and the honorable career he has led.

Mr. Huesman married Elizabeth Lenox, who was born in Philadelphia, Pa., and they have had two children, Harry C. (m. to Mary Rickert) and Mary. The Huesmans are members of the Catholic Church, and in politics Mr. Huesman is a Democrat. He is not active, however, in party affairs, or other public interests, devoting himself solely to the business in which he has found his life work.

GEHMAN. The early home of the Gehman family was in the Palatinate on the Rhine. The early members of the family to come to America were Christian and Benedict Geeman, and a brother who located in Brecknock township, Lancaster county. They landed at Philadelphia Aug. 11, 1732, like many others seeking the land of civil and religious liberty. They were Mennonites in religious faith. One Christopher Geeman (also spelled Gehman) settled in Hereford township, Berks county, prior to 1737, and became the owner of 300 acres of land. This tract has since been divided into three farms, all owned by his descendants. In 1759 Christopher Gehman paid a federal tax of ten pounds in Hereford township. The Gehman who located in Brecknock township in a part now belonging to Berks county, was, without doubt, Christian Gehman, as his name appears in the tax list of 1759. It seems that the one who located in Hereford was Christopher, not Christian. The names are very near alike, and the same abbreviation is often used for both. The name Gehman is spelled on the records Geman, Geeman, Geyman, and in Bucks county it appears Gayman. (I) The pioneer who located in Hereford township had three sons and several daughters. His eldest son, Abraham, bought a farm near Telford, Bucks county, occupied by the late Rev. Abel Horning.

(II) Rev. Johannes Gehman, second son of "Christ" of Hereford township, was a Mennonite minister. In 1767 he purchased a tract of land in Hereford, from Andrew Maurer, and this tract included the present farms of the Jacob Greiss estate, John B. Gehman estate and Sylvester Shuler (formerly Jacob Gehman) and eighty-six acres of Joel M. Gehman. Rev. Johannes Gehman married Anna Stauffer, of Colebrookdale township, and she died young. Both she and her husband are buried at the Mennonite Meeting House at Zionsville, Lehigh county. Their children were: David, of the Hosensack; Lydia, m. to Samuel Weinberger; Elizabeth, m. to Jacob Stauffer; Heinrich, and Johannes.

(III) Heinrich Gehman, son of Rev. Johannes, was born in Hereford township, and he became a farmer, owning an eighty-six-acre tract on which his father erected the present large barn in 1824. There is also a small stone house, which is very old. Mr. Gehman was a Mennonite, and is buried at the Meeting House in Upper Milford. He married Elizabeth Bechtel, and their children were: Lydia m. Isaac Oberholtzer; John B.; Susan m. (first) Joseph Kriebel, and (second) Lewis Taylor (Snyder); Elizabeth m. Joseph Romig; Bevvy died small; and Cassie m. Abraham Musselman.

(IV) John B. Gehman, son of Heinrich, was born on his father's farm Dec. 18, 1829, and he died July 4, 1901, and is buried at Upper Milford Mennonite Meeting House, of which he was a member. He was a farmer all of his life except for six years which he spent in partnership with his cousin, Solomon Gehman, in conducting Kriebel's mill in Hereford. In 1861 he married Mary Oberholtzer, and they have had seven children: Alvin O., of Coopersburg; Charles J., of Allentown; Henry A., born Nov. 18, 1868, a carpenter at Allentown (m. Rosa Wendling, and has children—John B., Anna M., Arthur R., Bertha W., Willard F., Marie W., and Robert W.); Anna, who died in her second year; John O., of Pennsburg; Katie (m. Francis Hoffman, of Reading); and Franklin B.

(V) FRANKLIN B. GEHMAN, son of John B., was born on the homestead whereon he now lives Nov. 20, 1878. He married Annie Mensch, of Hereford, and they have four children: Florence, Ada, Elsie and Ralph.

(III) Johannes Gehman, son of Rev. Johannes, was a lifelong farmer and distiller. He burned much applejack, which he hauled in barrels in big Conestoga wagons to Philadelphia, where he received twenty-five cents a gallon. The distillery on his farm was one of the first in this part of the State, and the old building, which is still standing, was erected long before the American Revolution. He built the barn that stands on the present Joel M. Gehman farm in 1806, and the house before 1800. He was a Mennonite, and is buried at Zionsville. He married Lydia Moyer, daughter of Conrad Moyer, and they had twelve children: Sarah, Joel M., Solomon, Lydia, Ambrose, William, David, Allen, Rebecca, Elmira, and Abraham and John, who both died young.

(IV) Joel M. Gehman, son of Johannes, was born Dec. 15, 1834. He lives on the old homestead, which came into his possession after his father's death in 1869. His whole life has been devoted to farming. He is a trustee of the Mennonite church at Zionsville. In 1867 he married Hannah Schantz, and they have four children: Theodore, Elenora, John and Mary.

WILLIAM J. FREDERICK, who, as a member of the well-known firm of J. P. Sellers & Co., is prominent in business cirles in Reading, Pa., was born Dec. 29, 1859, in Allentown, Pa., son of Adam B. and Mary (Sellers) Frederick, and grandson of Solomon S. Frederick, of Allentown.

Adam B. Frederick was born in Lehigh county, Pa., and early in life learned the carpenter's trade. He became proprietor of the Allentown Planing-mill, which he was operating at the time of his death, in 1900, in his sixty-ninth year. Mr. Frederick married (first) Mary Sellers, by whom one son, William J., was born. He m. (second) Sarah Ritter, daughter of Jacob Ritter, and four children were born of this union: Frank, who conducts the planing-mill established by his father; Joseph, also interested in the planing-mill business; Charles, of Bethlehem, Pa.; and Sally, who married John Sefing. In religious belief Adam B. Frederick was a Lutheran, and he took an active part in church affairs, serving as elder and deacon.

William J. Frederick was educated in the schools of Allentown. He then clerked in a grocery store at Ninth and Hamilton streets, Allentown, and later he learned the tailor's trade, under C. L. Newhard & Son, becoming an expert cutter and designer of children's clothes, and this occupation he followed from 1876 to 1903, in which latter year he purchased Mr. W. B. Medler's interest in the firm of J. P. Sellers & Co., a business established by James Jameson in 1844. While still in Allentown, Mr. Frederick was manager of the children's department in Koch Brothers' clothing store.

On Sept. 17, 1882, Mr. Frederick married Ella E. Grim, daughter of Peter K. Grim, of Allentown, and seven children were born to this union: Elizabeth M. E., Mabel

T., Lillian M., Edgar G., Raymond P., Willie B., and Luther S. Mr. Frederick and his family are members of St. Matthew's Evangelical Lutheran Church, in which he is a deacon. He is a member of the Heptasophs, Hancock Conclave of Allentown, Pa., and regent of Mount Penn Council, Royal Arcanum. On Dec. 12, 1907, he was raised a Mason in Chandler Lodge, No. 227, F. & A. M., of Reading. He is a member of the Reading Board of Trade. Mr. Frederick is rather inclined to be independent in local politics.

JOHN C. K. BALTHASER, the present auditor of Centre township and a farmer in that region, was born near Scull Hill, in Penn township, Nov. 15, 1875, son of John K. Balthaser and grandson of Samuel Balthaser.

Samuel Balthaser lived in Penn township, Berks county, and followed farming, owning 123 acres of land. He died there at the age of fifty-six years, and is buried at St. Michael's Church, in what is now Tilden township. His wife, whose maiden name was Maria Kissling, is buried beside him. He was born March 6, 1810, and died Oct. 9, 1866. She was born March 28, 1809, and died Jan. 19, 1884. They had children as follows: Jared K. is deceased; Levi; Aaron; William; John K.; Monroe; Mary married Abraham De Turk; Lydia m. William Folk; Amelia m. Levi Kauffman; Isabella m. John L. Wagner, of Bernville.

John K. Balthaser, father of John C. K., was born in 1850, and died in 1898. He is buried at St. Michael's Church, in what is now Tilden township. He owned and farmed the old homestead in Penn township, where he lived until his death, and was much respected and beloved for his industry and kind-heartedness. He married Leanda Kauffman, daughter of William Kauffman, and she now lives with her eldest son, William, on the old homestead. Mr. and Mrs. Balthaser had six children: William; John C. K.; Edwin; Lizzie, who married Joseph Mengel; and Ammon and Sallie, both deceased.

John C. K. Balthaser attended the public schools of Penn township and continued to remain at home, working for his father, until he was twenty-one years old. He then commenced farming in Penn township on his own responsibility, and in 1904 came to his present place in Centre township, which he bought from the Kauffman estate. It was the old Kauffman homestead and is considered one of the best farms in the township. The buildings are all substantial and in good order, and the 138 acres included in the property are all under an excellent state of cultivation. Mr. Balthaser is particularly noted for his success in raising potatoes, and in his banner season had a crop of 3,700 bushels from eighteen acres. He has all up-to-date machinery and improved farm appliances, taking great interest in the progress of his industry and having an intelligent conception of its requirements.

Mr. Balthaser married Emma Reinsel, daughter of William and Fiaetta (Feik) Reinsel, and they have had four children: Tama, Ada, Sallie (deceased) and Lila (deceased). At present Mr. Balthaser is serving as auditor of his township, to which office he was elected as the choice of the Democratic party. He is a member of St. Michael's Church, belonging to the Lutheran congregation.

SAMUEL H. CROW, a dealer in coal and wood in Reading, was born in Chester county, Pa., Dec. 5, 1860, son of George and Wilhelmina (Benner) Crow.

Mr. Crow remained in Chester county till he was about twenty-seven years old. When he left school he worked as a farm laborer till he was of age, and then engaged in agricultural pursuits on his own account till 1887, when he determined to get into some other line of work and so removed to Reading. He secured a place as special officer for the Reading Iron Company and served in that capacity for nine years, but meantime embarked in business on his own account. Opening a coal yard he built up a trade which by 1896 demanded his whole attention. In 1902 he moved to his present location at the corner of Laurel and Ninth streets, formerly the Union Coal Yard. He does a large business and supplies much of the best trade in Reading. Mr. Crow is favorably known all through Reading and vicinity, having earned a reputation as an able and upright business man and good citizen.

In 1882 Mr. Crow married Miss Anna L. Slider, and they had a family of seven children: George H., Florence I., Clarence S., Mabel J., Ethel S., and two that died in infancy. Mrs. Crow died June 21, 1905, at the age of forty-one years. She was a very active member of St. Peter's M. E. Church, to which all the family belong, and had a large circle of friends in the various church organizations, to whom her death was a great loss.

Mr. Crow is connected with a number of social and fraternal organizations among which may be mentioned the Heptasophs; Wyanet Tribe, No. 301, I. O. R. M.; the Jr. O. U. A. M.; and the Knights of Malta. In politics he is independent, disregarding party lines in favor always of those whom he considers the best candidates.

SHEARER. For many years the Shearer family has been prominently identified with the best interests of Berks county, and its members have been associated with the general development and prosperity. Among those to whom special attention is called are William Y. Shearer, justice of the peace of Bern township, and Dr. James Y. Shearer, a physician of Spring township.

(I) Christopher Shearer, the founder of the Shearer family in America, when seventeen years old came from Germany to Reading, Pa., when that city was but a small town. He was a justice of the peace, and had his office at what is now the corner of Eighth and Penn streets. His wife was a member of the Phillipi family. These two spent the remainder of their lives in Reading, dying there. Their children were: John P., Jonathan P., Benjamin P., and Solomon P., all but John dying at Reading.

(II) John P. Shearer was born at Reading, but in early manhood he removed to Bern township, locating on the farm now owned by Judge Shearer. He took up 100 acres of land in 1799, and there spent the remainder of his useful life, dying in 1847, when seventy-four years of age. He is buried at Epler's Church. During his residence in the township he became prominent in local affairs, was constable, and later justice of the peace. Under his management his farm was improved and he erected necessary buildings, which were rebuilt by his son, Samuel T. Shearer. His first wife was Sophia Tobias, a daughter of Christian Tobias, and of this marriage the following children were born: Esther T., who died unmarried; John T.; Jacob T.; Abraham T.; William T.; Samuel T.; George T.; Elizabeth T., who died unmarried; Mary T., who married John Herbine; Annie T., who married Joseph Reigel; and Sarah T., who married David Souder. After the death of his wife Sophia, John P. Shearer married a Miss Lehr, by which union there was no issue. By his third wife, Lydia Ziemer, widow of William Ziemer, he had two children: Senator Edward, an attorney of Reading, and Susan, who was killed in a railroad accident when a girl.

(III) Samuel T. Shearer, the father of William Y. and Dr. James Y. Shearer, was born in Bern township, where he engaged in farming. In 1829 he was married in Reading, to Catherine Yorgey, a daughter of Henry Yorgey, of Exeter, and twelve children were born to them: William Y. and James Y. are mentioned below; Catherine married Emanuel Hain; Eliza married Benneville Dundore; Sarah married Thomas Weitzel; Gettie married Evan Hiester; Benjamin Y., Esq., of Reading, married Clara Leinbach; Aaron married Emma Hiester, and, after her demise, Mary Ann Hornberger; Amos has his home with his brother William Y.; three died young.

While not a public official, Samuel T. Shearer always took an interest in public affairs, and was a good farmer and business man. He lived on the home place, further improving it, and when it passed into the hands of William Y. Shearer it was considered one of the best pieces of property in the township, and is still so regarded.

WILLIAM Y. SHEARER was born in Reading, Pa., Jan. 12, 1830, but when seven years of age he was brought to Bern township, where he completed the education begun in the public schools of Reading. Later, from 1864 to 1869, he taught school in Bern township, being engaged at the Epiers, Albright and what was then known as the Mine Hole (now the Shearer) schools. However, the better portion of Mr. Shearer's life has been spent in farming, and he is regarded as one of the representative farmers of his township. For over half a century he has also been a surveyor, and has been employed in surveying much of the county. In 1864 he was elected a justice of the peace and has since served as such, now being the oldest justice in Berks county. During his term of service as auditor of Berks county, to which office he was elected in 1869, the county was cleared of debt, and his financial foresight gained him a high reputation as a public official. In politics he is a Jeffersonian Democrat, and firm in his belief in the future of his party. His religious affiliations are with the Reformed faith.

On Oct. 27, 1853, Mr. Shearer married Caroline C. Bryan, a daughter of Jeremiah and Elizabeth Bryan, born Dec. 8, 1829, died Oct. 19, 1897, at the age of sixty-seven. She is buried at Epler's Church. No children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Shearer, but they took a little girl of eleven, Ellen Fleisher, and reared her as their own. Miss Fleisher is also a native of Bern township.

One of the old landmarks of Berks county was the court-house built in 1761, and torn down in 1840, and Mr. Shearer remembers it well, as he does many very interesting events connected with local and national affairs. He is a man of unflinching principle, true to his best ideals, and a citizen of whom the county may well be proud.

James Y. Shearer, M. D., A. M., of Sinking Spring, a successful practitioner of medicine in Berks county for upward of forty years, was born at Reading Oct. 5, 1836. When he was a child his father removed to Bern township, and he there received his early education in the public schools. Later he attended the normal school at Reading, conducted by Rev. Dr. William Good, who afterward became the first county superintendent of common schools. At that institution he acquired a further knowledge of books, making a specialty of Latin and Greek. When but fifteen he began to teach school, and he thus continued for five years, spending three years at Tuckerton and two years in Upper Tulpehocken township, near Strausstown. In 1860 he determined to study medicine, and after successfully passing a severe literary examination under Dr. Edward Wallace, to demonstrate his fitness, he entered the office of this eminent physician, with whom he remained for three years, accompanying him in his daily work among his patients. During the fall and winter months of 1860-61-62 he attended lectures at the Jefferson Medical College, and was graduated therefrom in 1862. Immediately thereafter he located at Strausstown, entering into an introductory practice among the people whose confidence he had gained as a school teacher, and there remained for three years. Learning then of a larger and in every way better opening at Sinking Spring, caused by the removal of Dr. Michael T. Livingood to the West, he determined to take his place in an office which had been started by Dr. A. H. Witman about 1840, and has been carried on continuously ever since. Since his removal to Sinking Spring, Dr. Shearer has been in active practice. His patients are scattered over an area of many miles. At the request of many of his patients he opened an office in Reading, where he sees office patients upon stated days.

In 1862 Dr. Shearer became a member of the Medical Society of Berks county; in 1868 he joined the Pennsylvania State Medical Society, and in 1880 he became associated with the American Medical Association, and is still a member of all three bodies. He was president of the Berks County Medical Society for several terms, and has represented the society as delegate to the State and national associations more than once. His papers upon various professional topics have aroused favorable comment. In 1887 he was the only accredited representative from Berks county to the International Medical Congress at its ninth annual convention, held at Washington, D. C., and received one of the handsome medals specially prepared to mark the occasion. This medal is one of Dr. Shearer's most valued possessions. In 1884 Franklin and Marshall College conferred the degree of Master of Arts upon Dr. Shearer by reason of his acquirements in Latin and Greek. Twelve men who afterward became successful physicians studied medicine under Dr. Shearer and learned to love as well as respect and admire him. He is the best known physician in lower Berks county, where he has witnessed many changes in social and industrial progress.

While Dr. Shearer was practising at Strausstown he was selected to act as school director of Upper Tulpehocken township, and he officiated as secretary of the board for one term. This was during the Civil war, and as secretary he raised the necessary funds to fill the quota of soldiers from the township to avoid the draft, levying the tax, according to law, to meet the obligation. As director of the Farmers National Bank, of Reading, for twenty-five years Dr. Shearer has given the bank the benefit of his sagacity and business foresight.

Dr. Shearer married Eliza G. Potteiger, daughter of Jacob Potteiger, of Upper Tulpehocken, and they had one daughter, Alva, who married Dr. J. D. Madeira. Dr. Madeira was one of Dr. Shearer's medical students, and thus met his future wife; later he graduated from Jefferson College, and is now a successful physician of Reading. In 1879 Mrs. Eliza G. Shearer died aged forty-nine years. In 1882 Dr. Shearer married Susanna Schwartz, daughter of James Schwartz, a miller, who for many years resided at the mouth of the Wyomissing creek, in Cumru township, opposite Reading.

From this brief chronicle can be readily gathered the importance of the services rendered by the Shearer family to Berks county, both in their capacity as public officials and as private citizens. The name has come to be associated with all that is best and most public-spirited, and the present representatives of the family hold the esteem and admiration of their neighbors in the several communities in which they are to be found.

HARRY JOHN WENDLER, an enterprising young business man of Reading, Pa., who is the popular proprietor of the well known "Hotel Wendler," was born Sept. 14, 1871, at Wilmington, Del., son of Martin J. and Anna (Moyer) Wendler.

Martin J. Wendler was born in 1841, at Reutlingen, Wurtemberg, Germany, and died at Wilmington, Del., in March, 1885. He came to America at the close of the Civil war, as did his wife, Anna Moyer, to whom he was married at Philadelphia, in 1868. He was a carriage finisher by trade, and was a skilled mechanic, being for many years the superintendent of the Kendal & McLear Carriage Works, at Wilmington, Del. He had four children: Sophia (m. Frank Ernst, of Reading); Harry J.; Lena (m. Bernard Stoeber, of Reading); and Julius. After the death of her husband, Mrs. Wendler came to Reading, where she was married (second) to Michael Mayser, a native of Wurtemberg, Germany, who was for seven years in the United States navy and five years in the army.

Harry John Wendler was educated in the public schools of his native city and had passed the examination for admission to the high school at the time of his father's death. When sixteen years of age he went to Omaha, Nebr., where he was weighmaster for Swift & Company for one year, his mother having removed to Reading in the meantime. In 1887 Mr. Wendler came to this city, where he has since resided with the exception of two years when he was proprietor of the "Hotel Cresson," at Atlantic City. In 1901, Mr. Wendler commenced business for himself, succeeding his mother, who had conducted the business eight years prior to that time. As proprietor of the "Hotel Wendler," Mr. Wendler has shown his business capacity, and his hostelry is now one of the most popular and best patronized in his section of the city. For three years he was also employed as flagman for the Reading Railway Company. He was one of the organizers of Company I, 4th Regiment, National Guard, and served as its first lieutenant for three years, at the end of which time, in 1901, he resigned. Socially, he is connected with Aerie No. 66, F. O. E.; Unamis Tribe, I. O. R. M.; D. J. Laing Council, O. of I. A., of Reading; Junior Fire Company; Humane Association; the Old Guard Association, composed of all former members of the National Guard Harmonie Maennerchor; Philharmonic Band; and the Northeastern Republican League. Mr. Wendler is a gifted artist with the pencil, and has demonstrated his skill in this line by doing a number of fine crayon portraits. He is athletically built, standing six feet tall, and is of robust constitution.

On July 8, 1897, Mr. Wendler married Abbie S. Rutz, daughter of Henry and Susanna Rutz, of Reading. They have one son: Harry J., born June 7, 1898.

JOHN B. STOUDT, stove dealer, tinsmith and roofing and spouting contractor of Womelsdorf, Berks county, was born March 26, 1852, in Shelby county, Ohio, son of Simon and Catherine (Oliver) Stoudt, and grandson of Daniel Stoudt.

Daniel Stoudt was born Oct. 26, 1785, and died Jan. 18, 1855. He resided in North Heidelberg township, where he was a shoemaker and where he also cultivated a seventy-five-acre tract of land. Mr. Stoudt married Susanna Ulrich, born Nov. 4, 1787, who died July 1, 1841, aged fifty-three years, seven months, twenty-seven days, and they had the following children: Daniel; Peter had a son Frank, who resides at Myerstown, Pa.; Reuben, who had a son William (now deceased), resides at Myerstown, and is in his seventy-seventh year; Simon (also known as Samuel) is mentioned below; Salome m. Andrew Zerbe; and Susanna m. John Schaeffer, a farmer of North Heidelberg township.

Simon Stoudt, father of John B., was born in Marion township, Berks county, in 1819, and died in 1892, at the age of seventy-three years. He is buried at Houston Station, Ohio, whither he had gone in middle life. Mr. Stoudt married Catherine Oliver (born at Erie, Pa., in 1820, daughter of James Oliver, and died in 1895), whom he met in Ohio. To this union were born the following children: Sarah; Nancy and Susanna, twins; Daniel; James; John B.; Simon B.; William; Reuben, and Mary Jane. They all remained near Houston Station, Shelby Co., Ohio, with the exception of John B., who came back to the land of his fathers.

John B. Stoudt was reared to agricultural pursuits, which he followed until eighteen years of age, and then, having returned East in company with his uncle Reuben Stoudt, who had visited his brother, learned his trade at Myerstown, Pa. After completing his apprenticeship Mr. Stoudt went to Lebanon, Pa., where he continued until 1897, and in this year located at Womelsdorf, where he has since continued, having built up a large trade. He employs two men, carries a large stock of tinware, and enjoys an extensive patronage from the people of his town. He is a Democrat in politics, and he and his family are members of the Reformed Church, of which he has been deacon and is now elder.

In 1876 Mr. Stoudt was married to Emma Barto, of Myerstown, Pa., daughter of Jeremiah and Rachel (Engelhart) Barto, farming people. Two children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Stoudt, namely: Oliver, who died in 1884, at the age of nine years; and Eve, born in 1890, who resides at home.

JAMES M. GICKER, a retired citizen of Reading, residing at No. 630 Schuylkill avenue, was born in 1842 in Bern township, Berks county, son of Jacob H. and Casiah (Miller) Gicker, and a grandson of Jacob Gicker.

Jacob Gicker, who was a distiller in his early days, spent all of his life in Bern township, and became very wealthy. He married a Miss Huyett, and to them were born these children: John, Jacob H., Daniel, Mrs. Boone, Mrs. Shoup, Mrs. Dickerson, Mrs. Steiley, Mrs. Sheidy, and Anna (who died single).

Jacob H. Gicker, like his father, spent all of his life in Bern township, and was engaged extensively in agricultural pursuits. He died in 1892, aged seventy-eight years, and his wife in 1882, when sixty-six years of age. They had four children: James M. is mentioned below; Casiah married Frank Romig; Jane married (first) a Mr. Kirkhoff, by whom she had two children, Emma and Jacob, and married (second) Sebastian Kissling; Amanda is unmarried. In religious belief the family are Reformed. Mr. Gicker was a Democrat.

James M. Gicker received his educational advantages in Bern and Spring townships. At the age of twenty-five years he left the farm and came to Reading, where for twelve years he was engaged in driving a team for John McKnight, the iron merchant, remaining in his employ until he retired from active life. He has lived at his present residence, No. 630 Schuylkill avenue, since 1891.

Mr. Gicker married Angeline Herbein. No children have been born to them. In political matters he is a Democrat, and he is fraternally connected with the South End Gun Club, in which organization he has won a number of prizes. Mr. and Mrs. Gicker attend the Reformed Church.

SAMUEL GRILL HATT (deceased), a successful agriculturist and leading citizen of Spring township, Berks Co., Pa., whose death occurred March 15, 1887, was born Sept. 15, 1830, in Brecknock township, Berks county, son of Jacob and Catherine (Grill) Hatt, and died March 15, 1887.

Conrath (Conrad) Hath, the great-grandfather of Samuel G. Hatt, was a farmer of Cumru township, where he owned considerable property at the time of his death, in 1789. His will is on record in the Berks County Court House, written in German and signed by himself, and after he makes ample provision for his aged wife, Margaretha, he in equal shares divides the estate among the following children: Henry; Philip, who died Sept. 3, 1824, the father of the following children—Philip (who died intestate in 1856), Daniel (who died in 1864, leaving two sons, Jacob and William), Susanna, Catherine, John, Conrad, Jacob, William and Elizabeth (then under age); Conrad, Jr., grandfather of Samuel G.; Margaretha; Maria Elizabeth; Anna Maria; Juliana, and Catherine, who married John Kleinginna.

Conrad Hatt, Jr., was a farmer living between Fritztown and Gouglersville, and owned the old homestead. He married and became the father of six children: Jacob, the father of Samuel G.; William; Daniel; Betsey, who married a Behm; Catherine; and Mary, who married Isaac Weitzel.

Jacob Hatt, son of Conrad, Jr., was born May 12, 1800, and after a long life spent in agricultural pursuits passed away Aug. 5, 1876, being buried at Sinking Spring Church, of which he had been a member. Mr. Hatt married Catherine Grill, and to them there were born twelve children: Samuel G.; Louisa m. Abraham Matz; Catherine m. Daniel Ruth; Jacob m. Beckie Miller; Catherine m. Henry Wertz; Sallie m. Henry Matz; John m. Magdalena Fritterich; Levi died single, aged thirty-four years; Polly m. William Ruth; Betsy m. Fred Hain; and two died young.

Samuel Grill Hatt was educated in the schools of his native locality, and from early youth engaged in agricultural pursuits. At the time of his death he was the owner of a fine farm of 145 acres in Spring township, and left a large estate to his widow and children. Mr. Hatt was a Democrat in politics and was very active in the ranks of his party, being on a number of occasions elected school director. He was a consistent member of Gouglersville Reformed Church, of which he was secretary and treasurer for many years.

On Sept. 24, 1864, Mr. Hatt was married to Caroline Spatz, born Sept. 26, 1840, daughter of Benjamin and Elizabeth (Huttison) Spatz, and to them there were born five children: Jacob S., who resides in Reading, m. Martha Huyett; Lizzie S. m. May 2, 1908, Henry B. Frees, an employee of the Reading Iron Company, and lives at Brookside;

M. Agnes m. Henry Mosser, of Reading; Eva A. died in infancy; James H. m. Cora Hatt.

Mrs. Lizzie S. (Hatt) Frees, who has devoted her life to the care of her mother, built a fine brick residence in the spring of 1901 at Hemmig's corner in the borough of Shillington, Pa., and in this home, which is one of the finest residences of the town, mother and daughter lived until the latter's marriage, the mother now residing with Mrs. Frees in Brookside.

ISAAC KISSINGER, who until recently conducted the successful grocery business at No. 606 North Ninth street, Reading, was born May 26, 1848, in Tulpehocken township, Berks county, son of Amos and Mary A. (Wagner) Kissinger. His grandfather, Abraham Kissinger, was a lifelong farmer of Berks county.

Amos Kissinger, father of Isaac, was a farmer and miller of Berks county, where he spent his entire life. He died in Reading in 1882, in his sixty-fifth year. His first wife died in 1861, leaving him these children: Elam; Isaac; Franklin; Amelia (married Richard Burkholtz); Amos; Emma (married Jacob Neff); John W., and Elizabeth (married Howard Frank). Mr. Kissinger's second marriage was to Rebecca Klopp, who died in 1909, leaving two children, Howard and Maggie. Amos Kissinger was a Lutheran in religious belief, and in political matters was a Democrat.

Isaac Kissinger was educated in the schools of Reading, and his first work was in a brickyard, after leaving which he engaged in boating on the canal, at which he continued for twelve years. He was then appointed police sergeant, an office in which he served for ten years under Mayors Evans and Rowe, and the next four years he spent as watchman at the Reading Iron Works. Mr. Kissinger then spent two years at the Philadelphia & Reading railway roundhouse, and in 1891 engaged in the grocery business, carrying a complete and up-to-date line of staple and fancy groceries, and commanding a good trade. He retired from business March 30, 1908.

In 1880 Mr. Kissinger married Miss Agnes E. Rambo, daughter of Thomas Rambo. Mr. and Mrs. Kissinger have no children. They are members of the Lutheran Church. Politically Mr. Kissinger is a Republican, and fraternally he is connected with the K. G. E.

REBER. (I) Jacob Reber, the ancestor of many of the Rebers of Berks county, was born Feb. 4, 1760, and died Sept. 19, 1843, aged eighty-three years, seven months, fifteen days. He owned a fine farm in Bern (now Upper Tulpehocken) township, where he died. His wife, Susanna, born Nov. 10, 1762, died Nov. 24, 1843, aged eighty-one years, fourteen days. They are buried side by side at the Zion's Blue Mountain Church.

(II) Jonathan Reber, son of Jacob, born Feb. 21, 1802, died June 6, 1859, aged fifty-seven years, three months, sixteen days. He was a farmer in Upper Tulpehocken township, owning a farm of about 160 acres near Strausstown, at the Blue Mountain Church. He is buried at the Blue Mountain Church. He married Susanna Grime, born Aug. 27, 1803, died Jan. 7, 1871, and to them were born the following named children: Charlotte, Jonathan G., Benneville G., Mary, Solomon G., Catharine, Issabella, Percival G., Elias G., Adam and Amilia. Of this family we have the following record:

(III) Charlotte Reber married Adam Spangler, who had a farm in Snyder county, Pa., where he died. He is buried at the Keiser Church. Mrs. Spangler died in Fremont, Nebr., and her remains were brought East to the home of her youngest son, Adam, in Selin's Grove, Snyder county, where the funeral was held. There she was buried, by the side of her husband. They had children: Jonathan, Diana, Lewis, Charles, Frank, George, Clara and Adam.

(III) Jonathan G. Reber, born Dec. 30, 1828, died Jan. 22, 1897, and is buried at the Blue Mountain Church. He was a successful business man, carrying on until his death a furniture and undertaking establishment at Strausstown. A member of St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran Church, he took an active part in the work of that congregation. In politics he was a Democrat. He married Sarah A. Batteiger, born April 17, 1830, died Jan. 20, 1906, and they had two children, of whom Caleb died at the age of two years. The other was Commodore V. Reber, a well-known business man of Strausstown.

(III) Benneville G. Reber, born July 29, 1830, at Strausstown, Pa., died March 29, 1904, at No. 3711 Filbert St., West Philadelphia, Pa. He married Sarah Ann Shubert, born Jan. 30, 1835, at Ardmore, Montgomery Co., Pa., died Aug. 12, 1905, at Durham, Bucks Co., Pa., at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Mertz. Both are buried in the Ardmore cemetery. They had three children: (1) Clara M. Reber, born Feb. 2, 1862, married Rev. J. A. Mertz, who has three congregations in his charge. They have two sons: Paul Allen, the elder, now (1909) aged nineteen years, is a junior at Ursinus College, Collegeville, Montgomery Co., Pa., and the younger, John Ernest, fourteen years old, is preparing for college at Riegelsville Academy. (2) Charles Shubert Reber, born Feb. 3, 1863, at Ardmore, Montgomery Co., Pa., lives at No. 3823 Hamilton street, Philadelphia. They have a family of five children: Florence, Laura, Charles, Jr., Clara and Edna. (3) George Ervin Reber, born June 16, 1868, at Pleasantville, Montgomery Co., Pa., lives at Palmyra, N. J. He has two children, Marian and Horace.

(III) Mary Reber married Daniel Ketterer. They are buried in St. John's Church cemetery, at Hamburg, Pennsylvania.

(III) Solomon G. Reber, born Feb. 5, 1834, died March 20, 1886. He was a farmer in Upper Tulpehocken township, cultivating the land now owned by his son Albert D. Reber, a tract of sixty-three acres, upon which he resided until his death. He is buried at the Blue Mountain Church. He married Elizabeth De Turk, born July 26, 1835 (daughter of Abraham De Turk), died June 15, 1906. They had a family of three children: Albert D., Milton and Cassie M. Milton Reber is a resident of Portland, Ind. Cassie M. is the wife of Jacob Seyfert, a teacher and notary public of Strausstown, Berks county.

(III) Catharine Reber married George R. Heilig, and they resided at No. 739 Franklin street, Reading, Pennsylvania.

(III) Issabella Reber married Jonathan Christ, and they reside at No. 612 Gordon street, Reading. They have two children, Thomas and Lizzie.

(III) Percival G. Reber married Eliza Schaum, and to them were born seven children: Caleb Webster, born Oct. 10, 1859, resides at Wildwood, Mich.; Howard Lawrence, born Sept. 11, 1861, resides in Vineland, N. J.; Charles Alvin, born May 8, 1864, lives out West; James Wallace, born Aug. 22, 1866, is deceased; Lillie Miranda, born Nov. 14, 1868, lives in the West; Adam Henry, born May 26, 1871, is deceased; Willie S., born July 12, 1874, is deceased.

(III) Elias G. Reber is buried in the Frieden's Church cemetery, at Shartlesville, Berks county.

(III) Adam Reber died while quite young, and he is buried in the cemetery of the Zion's Blue Mountain Church.

(III) Amilia Reber married Levi Kauffman and lives at Wyomissing, Pa. They have four children, Byron, Laura, Lizzie and Stanley.

(IV) Commodore V. Reber, son of Jonathan G., was born May 2, 1861, in Upper Tulpehocken township. He received his education in the public schools, and then learned the furniture and undertaking business under his father, for whom he worked until the older man died, since when he has carried on the business on his own account. Mr. Reber has a profitable patronage, and few men are more respected in the community for sterling worth and honorable character. He is an active member of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, in which he has been deacon and elder, and is at present secretary of the Sunday-school. In politics he is a Demorat.

Mr. Reber married Diana R. Henne, daughter of Moses and Leah Feick. They have no children.

(IV) Albert D. Reber, son of Solomon G., born Aug. 15, 1857, attended the public schools during his boyhood and afterward assisted his father with the work at home until he was twenty-one, from which time he had entire charge of the farm, which he bought after his father's death. He has continued to make his home and carry on the work there. The farm is a fertile tract, well watered, and under an excellent state of cultivation, which Mr. Reber is well fitted to maintain. Besides his farming interests he does considerable business as a dealer in fertilizers, in the sale of which he has become well known throughout upper Berks county. In the winter months he engages in carpet weaving, having learned this trade from his father, and he finds a ready sale and steady demand for the products of his loom. Mr. Reber has been quite active in the church and in the affairs of the community generally. He served as school director; for two years as president of the school board; is a stanch Democrat and local party worker, having been a member of the election board; is a member of the Lutheran Church, in which he has held all the offices; and is a member of the P. O. S. of A.

Mr. Reber married Sallie Bertram, daughter of Elias Bertram, of Strausstown. They have no children.

MICHAEL HAUSER was a native of Baden, Germany, and he served an apprenticeship as a florist and gardener in the old country. After coming to America he traveled through a number of States, in 1834 locating in Reading, where he took charge of a large garden belonging to the late Gen. George M. Keim. Here he laid the foundation of his success, winning a good reputation among the leading people of the day. Later he purchased a small property on North Ninth street and started a truck garden of his own, and by energy and close attention to business secured a competency. In 1861 he purchased nearly one hundred acres on Centre avenue, and established there a large nursery, which he carried on as long as he lived. He began the cultivation and sale of flowers as early as 1840, and each year brought increasing demands in this branch of the business. He became one of the best practical botanists in the State. He was a prominent member of St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church, and was exceedingly generous in his contributions to religious and charitable causes. He was very anxious that Reading should he made a See city, and he presented several acres of ground to the church on which to erect a cathedral. He sold on very liberal terms some of his valuable land to the management of the Reading Dispensary, for hospital purposes. He married Barbara Christ, and their children were: Barbara married Matthias Mayer; Francis (deceased) married Mary Vogel; Mary married Peter Cullen; Theresa married David H. Steckler; Theodore resides at South Bethlehem, Pa. Mr. Hauser died Oct. 23, 1873, and was laid to rest in the Catholic cemetery.

DAVID H. STECKLER (deceased), who was for many years a prominent business man of Reading, was born in Allegheny county, Pa., and accompanied his parents to York county, where a portion of his education was received. When about seventeen years of age he went to Philadelphia, where he remained a few years as clerk in Green's restaurant, coming to Reading in 1874. He engaged in the dairy and farm produce business, and at one time operated a large milk route, employing three wagons to distribute the product of his dairy. In connection with this he also operated a grocery store on Sixth street, at the present site of Dives, Pomeroy & Stewart's new building, and there he continued until 1878. In January of the latter year he engaged in farming, continuing therein until 1883, when he engaged in the greenhouse business which had been established by his father-in-law, Michael Hauser, and in this line he continued until 1903, when he was compelled to retire from active work on account of ill health. Mr. Steckler died in that year, and the business is now conducted by his sons, Bertram D. and Leo G.

On Sept. 25, 1877, Mr. Steckler married Theresa Hauser, daughter of Michael and Barbara (Christ) Hauser, and to this union were born five children: George (deceased), Bertram D., Irene, Leo G. and Loretto. In religious belief the family are Catholics, attending St. Paul's German Catholic Church. Mr. Steckler was a stanch Republican in political matters.

LEININGER. The name of Leininger is inseparably connected with the best interests of that section of Berks county comprising the township of Cumru. Howard S. Leininger is engaged extensively in the coal business at Mohnton; Isaac G. Leininger is a successful contractor and builder in the growing town of Edison; Albert G. Leininger is a prosperous farmer and dairyman; George H. Leininger is an enterprising manufacturer at Mohnton; and William G. Leininger, also of Mohnton, is at the head of the important industry that bears his name. All bear high reputation for industry and integrity, and all have proved themselves worthy as intelligent, progressive and useful citizens.

(I) (Johann) Jacob Leininger came to America on the ship "Phoenix," John Mason, commander, landing at Philadelphia Aug. 28, 1750, and became the founder of an honored family of Berks county, Pa. In 1759 he was a landowner and taxpayer (his taxes amounting to £5) in Heidelberg township, this county. Tradition says that he was a young man when he emigrated and that he married in Heidelberg township. Among his children was a son Daniel.

(II) Daniel Leininger, son of the emigrant, was born Feb. 27, 1780, and became a well-known farmer in Spring township, near Gouglersville. There he died Aug. 29, 1860, aged eighty years, six months, two days, and was buried in the cemetery at that place. He was twice married. His first wife was Margaret Hornberger, and his second, Hannah Texter. To his first marriage were born the following children: John; George, who lived at Fritztown; Daniel, who lived near Fritztown; Kate, who married Adam Weiler; and Polly, who married David Gentz. The children of the second marriage were: Susanna married Charles Fix, of Indiana; Sally married Samuel Kegerise, and moved West; Hannah and Joseph T. were twins, of whom the former was married to Moses Stamm, and the latter became the father of George H. and Mrs. Albert G. Leininger; Ann was married to Rev. John Seyfrit, of Allentown, Pa.; and Jacob went to Missouri and there married, afterward going to California.

(III) John Leininger, eldest son of Daniel, and father of John D., was born in Spring township Aug. 31, 1804. He died in Mohnton, where he owned a small tract of land, on March 18, 1873, aged sixty-eight years, five months, eighteen days, and lies buried in the Mohnton cemetery. His religious faith was that of the Evangelical Church. He married Annie Dechart, born April 3, 1814, died April 5, 1885, aged seventy-one years, two days, and they had children as follows: Isaac, who married Elizabeth Henne, and lived at Flat Rock, Ohio, where he died in 1906; James (1837-1879), who is mentioned at length in the next paragraph; Daniel, who married Mary Gilbert and lived in Flat Rock, Ohio; John D., father of Howard S.; Elijah, who died in boyhood; Henry, who died unmarried at the age of forty-two years; Katie, who married Daniel Wolf, of Mohnton; Annie, who married Daniel Anthony, of Mohnton; and Joseph, who died aged eighteen years.

(IV) James Leininger, son of John and father of William G., was born in Cumru township in 1837. In his younger days he was a miller by trade, but eventually settled down to farming and was thus engaged at the time of his death in 1879. He owned a tract of fine land, and was one of the substantial men of his neighborhood. In politics he was a good Republican. He married Lydia A. Grill, born in 1839, daughter of Adam and Catherine (Mohn) Grill. She died in 1894, the mother of the following children: Arabella, who married John J. Eshelman, a cigar manufacturer of Mohnton; Isaac G., a butcher and horse dealer of Edison, Pa., who married Miss Alice H. Fry; William G.; and Albert G., present owner of the homestead. Mr. Leininger and his family were all members and faithful supporters of the Mohnton Evangelical Church, and in the graveyard adjoining rest both Mr. and Mrs. Leininger.

(III) Joseph T. Leininger, son of Daniel, was born near Gouglersville May 30, 1830, and died Jan. 26, 1907. By trade he was a carpenter, a calling learned in his youth, and which he followed for about six years. In 1869 he purchased a farm at Mohn's Hill, on which he lived until 1884. He then built a home on this property into which he moved the following year. He did some little work at farming and trucking, largely for pastime. He was very prosperous, and was esteemed a good citizen. For many years he was trustee and class-leader in the church of the Evangelical Association at the place, of which he was a liberal supporter and a regular communicant. In 1853 he was married to Rebecca Hoyer, daughter of Peter and Sarah (Luft) Hoyer, born March 30, 1829. Nine children were born of this union, as follows: Frank, who died in infancy, from the effects of a burn; Charles H.; Sarah, who died in infancy; Ellen, who was married to Samuel Stork; Thomas, who was married to Caroline Coldren, and died leaving a son, Stephen; George H.; Kate, who was married to Daniel Epler; Mary H., who was married to Albert G. Leininger, mentioned below; and Rufus, who died in childhood.

(IV) George H. Leininger, president of the Mohnton National Bank, son of Joseph T. and Rebecca (Hoyer) Leininger, was born in Spring township, Berks county, June 25, 1862. He left school early to work on his father's farm, but he was a good student and secured a fair education in the local schools. He continued to assist his father until 1880, and then worked with him two years more, at cigar-making. In 1882 he embarked in that business for himself at Mohn's Hill, and continued there for three years, thence moving to Mohnsville, now Mohnton, where he has been established ever since. He continued his cigar business until 1897. In March, 1896, Mr. Leininger formed a partnership with William G. Leininger for the manufacture of seamless hosiery, which business they continued for two and one-half years. On Nov. 1, 1898, they dissolved partnership and each continued on his own account. The firm name of Industrial Hosiery Mills was retained by Mr. George H. Leininger, who now operates a modernly equipped mill at Mohnton, employing about seventy hands. Here are the main offices of several mills established later, which have a combined capacity of ten thousand pairs of hosiery daily. Goods are shipped throughout the United States, Canada, and to Honolulu. In 1903 Mr. Leininger, in partnership with his brother Charles H., started a hosiery mill at Mohn's Hill, Vinemont Station, and there they now operate a fair-sized mill, where sixty hands are constantly employed. In November, 1904, Mr. Leininger started a branch mill, at Ephrata, Lancaster county, and this was put in charge of a brother-in-law, John A. Bohler, and here there are forty employes. Mr. Leininger has brought to his work the qualities surest to tell in business and his success has been unmistakable and well deserved.

On Sept. 13, 1884, George H. Leininger was married to Ella S. Mohn, daughter of Samuel K. and Susanna (Spatz) Mohn, and five children have been born to them: Wellington, born March 3, 1886, who was graduated from Albright College in 1907, and later entered Harvard University (at Boston), taking a post-graduate course; Charles M., born Feb. 24, 1888, a graduate of Schuylkill Seminary and a member of the class of 1910, Haverford College; Beulah, born Jan. 2, 1891, and E. Mae, born May 5, 1893, both attending school; and George D., born April 16, 1898, who died Dec. 17, 1900. Mr. Leininger and his family are members of the Zion's United Evangelical Church, of Mohnton, where he is class-leader and trustee. Since 1899 he has also been superintendent of the Sunday-school, which numbers 520 members, and he gives freely of his time and money to the church. In politics he is an Independent voter.

(IV) John D. Leininger, son of John and father of Howard S., is now living retired in Cumru township. He was born where the "Hotel Mohnton" now stands, Aug. 29, 1842. His boyhood days were spent in Mohnton, and when twenty-five years of age he learned the hatter's trade, which he followed for eighteen years. He then ran a dairy wagon for about ten years. In politics he is a Republican, and his social relations are with Lodge No. 485, K. of P., and the Sr. O. U. A. M., both of Mohnton. Mr. Leininger served during the Civil war, on the Union side. He and his family attend the Zion's Evangelical Church of Mohnton, in which he was assistant class-leader of Class No. 1 for some years. On March 5, 1868, he married Mary Strunk, daughter of George and Mary (Yocum) Strunk, and they have had children as follows: Howard S., who married Annie Sheneman; Frank S., who married Nora Aulenbach; Emma, who died in infancy; Lizzie, who died aged sixteen years; Maggie, at home; and Annie, also at home.

(V) Howard S. Leininger, son of John D., and one of Mohnton's leading business men, was born in Cumru township, Dec. 26, 1868. He attended the township schools at Mohnton. His first work was at the hatter's trade, which he followed for about ten years. The following two years he spent in farming, and in 1889 he began for himself, always carrying on agricultural pursuits in connection with his other business. He owns three tracts of land, all in Cumru, consisting of about 100 acres of good, productive soil. He is an exceedingly busy man, and he has won the honorable position he now holds by thrift and industry. He is extensively engaged in hauling, both in Mohnton and the surrounding country, as well as in Reading, having twenty-two head of horses, and owning about forty-four wagons. When he engaged in the coal business, in 1898, he purchased his supply from the Reading dealers, but in 1901 he began to buy by the carload. He has his chutes at Seventh and Bingaman streets, Reading, and does an extensive business. He was the first man to engage in this line in the new borough of Mohnton. In politics Mr. Leininger is a Republican, and his social connections are with Camp No. 211, P. O. S. of A., and Castle No. 137, K. G. E., both at Mohnton. With his family he belongs to Zion's United Evangelical Church.

Mr. Leininger married Miss Annie Sheneman, daughter of Lewis and Harriett (Strunk) Sheneman, of Cumru township. They have one son, Elmer, who assists his father in business. They reside in a charming home on Church street, and are highly esteemed by all who know them.

(V) Isaac G. Leininger, son of James, is a very busy and successful contractor and builder at Edison, where he was one of the first two residents. He was born upon his father's farm in Cumru Oct. 14, 1860. When sixteen years of age he learned the hatter's trade under the George Hendel Company, and this he followed for a period of sixteen years. In November, 1893, with Mr. Albert Tobias, he erected the first dwelling in Edison, a two-story double frame house. In 1894 Mr. Leininger engaged in the butcher business, which he carried on with considerable success for thirteen years. He had a stand in the Bingaman street market in Reading. In 1903 he began contracting, and up to the present has erected seventy-five houses. In 1893 he erected the fine residence in which he now makes his home. It is nicely furnished within, and the lawns are kept in perfect condition. From 1893 to 1901 Mr. Leininger conducted a general store in his own building, but he now rents this. He is a man of enterprise, and has met with well-merited success, owning considerable property, including eleven houses at Edison, and a farm of fifty-five acres on the road leading from Gouglersville to Vinemont, seven acres of this being woodland. In 1904 he erected a Swiss barn 45 x 55 feet, which he has rented. He also deals in horses and is interested in various enterprises. He is independent in politics, and he and his family attend the United Evangelical Church.

On July 26, 1881, Mr. Leininger married Alice H. Fry, born May 19, 1863, daughter of James and Hannah (Heberling) Fry, of Spring township. Six children, one son and five daughters, have blessed this union, namely: Nora died in infancy; Carrie married Benton Henning; Alma married Wayne Musser, a barber at Mohnton; James married Daisy Spencer; Naomi is at home; Elsie died in infancy. James Fry, father of Mrs. Leininger, had three children: Alice H., Mrs. Leininger; Aquilla, who died aged seven years; and James, who married Kate Nagel, and lives in Shillington, Pennsylvania.

(V) William G. Leininger, head of one of the leading industrial plants at Mohnton, with a branch at Fritztown, was born in Cumru township, Dec. 27, 1863, son of James and Lydia A. (Grill) Leininger. He passed his boyhood and youth in attendance at the district schools, and in helping about the farm. At the age of eighteen he left home to familiarize himself with the hat finishing trade, working under John Hendel & Son, of Reading. For fourteen years this business engrossed his attention, and then in 1895 he engaged in a mercantile enterprise in Mohnton. Two years later he discontinued this and for eight months tried broom manufacturing, but this proved unsatisfactory. In March, 1896, he went into partnership with Mr. George H. Leininger, under the firm name of the Industrial Hosiery Mills, of Mohnton. So successful were they and so ready a demand was found for their goods that they agreed to separate and to establish two distinct plants for the manufacture of hosiery. This firm was dissolved Nov. 1, 1898, and Mr. William G. Leininger gave his entire attention to the management of a factory he had erected the preceding year. It is a structure 28 x 70 feet, three stories high, and seventy-five hands are employed, turning out some four hundred and fifty dozen pairs a day. The plant is known as the William G. Leininger Factory, and is an important factor in the industrial life of the community. Mr. Leininger also has established a branch at Fritztown, which was opened Jan. 1, 1907. The building there is 28 x 36 feet, two stories high, and employment is furnished to thirty people. They turn out over two hundred dozen pairs daily. The goods are all of excellent quality and find a ready market in all parts of the United States, and in the Sandwich Islands, and Mr. Leininger does an exceptionally large business in Los Angeles, Cal. For some years, too, he was interested in the Steffy Music and Furniture Company, which he was instrumental in establishing, and of which he was treasurer. The company was very successful from its inception, but Mr. Leininger found that his other business interests required his entire attention, and so withdrew from the concern Jan. 1, 1906. The present owner is Dr. Miller, who conducts it under the name of the Mohnton Furniture House. Mr. Leininger assisted in organizing the Mohnton National Bank, and was elected a director thereof. In his political views he is strictly non-partisan. He regards public office as a public trust, demanding the highest available efficiency and integrity, and always votes for the candidates he thinks best meeting those requirements. He is public-spirited, active in local matters, was largely instrumental in the establishment of Mohnton as a borough, and was elected a member of the first borough council. He is active as a member of the Knights of Pythias Lodge, No. 485, Knights of the Golden Eagle and the Modern Woodmen, all of Mohnton.

On July 3, 1885, Mr. Leininger was married to Agnes H. Behm, daughter of Adam and Elizabeth Behm. They have four daughters, viz.: Bessie B.; Luella B., who married John E. Grimes, of Mohnton, and has one daughter, Marguerite Elizabeth; Stella B.; and Edna B. They are all members of the Zion's United Evangelical Church, of which Mr. Leininger has been a trustee continuously since 1892, and he is also steward and a member of the Men's Bible class.

(V) Albert G. Leininger, youngest son of James and Lydia A. (Grill) Leininger, was born June 30, 1866. He, like the rest of the children, obtained a limited education in a Cumru township public school. As a child he desired to study medicine. But his father died in the prime of life, when the boy was about thirteen years old, and this sad event ended Albert's school career. For many years he supported and cared for his aged and helpless mother and grandmother. He was instinctively inclined toward nature. He loved the soil, the huge, beautiful trees which covered the hillside, the glorious sky over the picturesque valley of his home; and the animals on the farm became his companions. During these years, after his father's death, he managed the work for his mother. He was also a lover of peace and rather enjoyed the solitary life. So in the spring of 1888 he purchased the old Leininger homestead. Both the land, in fertility, and the buildings have been greatly improved. A new house was erected in 1893 and later other conditions were altered which make the property more convenient and valuable. Together with agriculture Albert Leininger, with the help of his family, carried on a successful dairy, retailing the milk and truck at Reading and Shillington. In politics he was formerly a Republican, but seeing the terrible curse of liquor upon our nation and the human race generally, he strongly assisted the Prohibition party of his community. His fraternal connections are with the Knights of Pythias (Lodge No. 485) and Knights of the Golden Eagle (Castle No. 137), both of Mohnton. All of his family are loyal members of Zion's United Evangelical Church.

On May 15, 1885, Mr. Leininger was married to Mary H. Leininger, daughter of Joseph T. and Rebecca Leininger, in Spring township. To this union came six children: Martha L., who attended Albright College, being a member of the class of 1909, and later took up medical work; Katie and Laura, who died at an early age; Robert R., who is continuing the work on the farm; Albert A., now at school and preparing for college; and Ruth Rebecca, also at school. They have enjoyed the freedom of the country, the fresh air, the rippling brook, and the pets which they found in the animals for which they cared.

HOWARD L. DREXEL, the proprietor of Drexel's Café, has conducted that establishment since 1898. He has led an active life, spent for the most part in and around Reading, and was variously engaged before he settled down to his present business, in which he has been very successful.

Mr. Drexel was born Feb. 12, 1861, in Spring township, Berks county, son of John Drexel and grandson of John Drexel. The latter was a native of Wurtemberg, Germany, born 1790, and coming to America, settled in Reading, where he died. He married Susan Schlabach, who died on the old Drexel homestead in Spring township, and they had a family of ten children, namely: Reuben; Jacob, who was killed in the army; John; Catherine, wife of Barney Dreyfus; Henry, who lives at Exeter Station; Susan, deceased, wife of Henry Wagner; George W., a retired citizen of Reading, living on North Second street; Rose, deceased, wife of Cornelius Rothenberger; Samuel, who died in middle life; and Anna also deceased. The father was a stone-cutter by trade, and he helped to build the pillars of the Berks county court-house and the abutments on the old Schuylkill canal. He was a Democrat in politics, and he and his family belonged the Lutheran Church.

John Drexel, father of Howard L., was born Sept. 11, 1824, in Boyertown, Berks county, and passed his entire life in this country. He was educated in the common schools. During his youth he was employed as a day laborer until he reached the age of eighteen, after which he learned the trade of bricklayer, in time commencing the manufacture of bricks on his own account. Many years ago he moved to West Reading, and he was the first brick manufacturer in that place, continuing in that line and conducting a stone quarry until his retirement twenty-eight years before his death, Feb. 11, 1897. In middle age Mr. Drexel had both his legs broken, and this injury caused him much trouble in his later years. His death, in fact, was due directly to his falling down-stairs. He prospered in his business undertakings, acquiring considerable property, including that at No. 853 Penn street, a large place on South Ninth street, and holdings in various other sections of Reading.

John Drexel married Maria Krick, who died June 30, 1906, aged seventy-four years. To them were born nine children, eight of whom are still living: William K., Emma

(m. Isaac Robinson, who was accidentally killed at the Reading Hardware Co., in 1882), John K., George K., Adam K., Clara (deceased), Howard L., Charles K. and Kate (m. Howard Goodhart). In religious connection Mr. Drexel was a Lutheran, and he was a Democrat in politics.

Howard L. Drexel was but seven years old when brought from his native township to Reading, where he received his education in the public schools. He commenced work as errand boy for a shoe store on Penn street, above Eighth, and later for several years was employed in the hardware establishment of Drexel & Rapp, located at Ninth and Bingaman streets. In this connection he learned nickel plating and polishing, at which he was engaged in Reading for some time in charge at the Chantrell Tool Works, and also in Allentown. During 1880 he worked with the civil engineering corps of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, at Tyrone, Pa., and the following spring went to Cincinnati, Ohio, where he entered the employ of W. C. Davis & Co., stove manufacturers, of the Favorite Stove Works, now located at Piqua, Ohio. With this firm he continued until 1885, doing nickel plating and polishing, and upon his return to Reading in that year he engaged at the hatter's trade, a knowledge of which he had acquired before going west, during a period of employment in a hat store in this city. He never took it up regularly, however, until he came back from Cincinnati, when he found a position with I. N. Levan, remaining with him about two years. In 1886-87 he managed a hat and men's furnishings store at Pottsville, Pa., for W. A. Boas, thence returning to Reading, where he was again connected with the Chantrell Tool Company, working for them about twelve years, 1887-1898, until he resigned to embark in his present enterprise. He had charge of the nickel department, and being an excellent mechanic as well as a competent manager his services were considered very valuable.

On Feb. 2, 1898, Mr. Drexel took charge of the property at No. 150 Penn street then known as the Pennsylvania House, which he purchased and remodeled, and where he continued to do a successful business until 1908, when he changed to his present location, at the corner of Fifth and Cherry streets. In 1902 he changed the name of his establishment to the Drexel Café, by which name it has since been known. Mr. Drexel does both a hotel and restaurant business, having nineteen rooms, equipped with every modern convenience, steam heat, hot and cold water, electricity and gas, lacking nothing for the comfort or convenience of the guests. The restaurant, up-to-date and attractive, draws a fine class of patrons, who appreciate the excellent service and the uniformly high quality of the food. Mr. Drexel also carries a complete stock of choice wines and liquors, and domestic and imported cigars, etc. He is a thorough business man, with a keen understanding of the conditions essential to make his establishment popular with the public and profitable as an investment. On Oct. 25, 1907, he came into possession of the property he now occupies, and proceeded to make every improvement of advantage to the enterprising business man before occupying the premises, on April 1, 1908. This stand is well known and one of the most popular in the city.

Mr. Drexel is one of the best known men in Reading among the fraternal orders. He is a member of the Knights of the Golden Eagle; the Port Royal Club in Juniata county, Pa., where they have an acre of ground; the Independent Gunning and Sporting Club; the Commercial Club (which he joined in 1889); the West End Club; the Casino Amusement Company; and the Maennerchor. He was the first charter member of the local Aerie No. 66, of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, and was the original founder of the Eagles' Mountain Home Association, in which he is one of the heaviest stockholders. He is a member of the Keystone Hook & Ladder Company, and of the Veteran Firemen's Association, and a contributing member of the Friendship Fire Company. He is a member of and stockholder in the Casino Amusement Association, which conducts Carsonia Park. He is a member of the Cold Spring Association, being interested as a stockholder in the "Cold Springs" at the corner of Berks and Lebanon counties, on the line of the Little Schuylkill railroad. The association has a tract of eighty-seven acres there. It is a matter of history that this place was originally founded by a community of monks during the early days of the Tulpehocken settlement. Conrad Weiser, with others of the settlement, was at one time interested in it, but the daughter of Peter Klapp was the only one to continue steadfast in the faith. Mr. Drexel is also a charter member of the Lake View Club, whose grounds overlook Antietam Lake in Alsace township; this club was organized in 1909, and owns five acres of land with fine buildings and the best springs.

On June 6, 1896, Mr. Drexel married Annie L. Reeser, daughter of Jacob H. and Mary A. (Boyer) Reeser, of Amity township, Berks county. They have one child, Mayetta.

IRVIN N. MANWILLER, a substantial business man of Mount Penn borough, Berks county, Pa., was born July 22, 1867, in Exeter township, son of William and Mary Ann (Nein) Manwiller, and grandson of Samuel Manwiller.

The progenitor of the Manwiller family of Berks county was one Daniel Manwiller, who in 1775 lived in Oley township, where his name appears on the tax list of that year. In 1799 Daniel Manwiller and Daniel Manwiller, Jr., were taxables in Exeter township. In 1806, a Daniel Manwiller paid fourteen pounds tax in Oley township. This probably was Daniel, Jr. Daniel Manwiller, the elder, in 1778 is mentioned as a taxable in Bern township. Besides Daniel, Jr., above mentioned, he had a son Michael (probably others).

Daniel Manwiller, Jr., was born March 19, 1773, and died June 26, 1840. He married Sarah Gamler (1780-1834), and both are buried in a private burial ground on the farm owned by Seth De Turck. Their children were: John, of Ruscombmanor township, who lived to be nearly ninety years old; David, also of Ruscombmanor, who died in 1886, when past eighty-three years; Elijah, who died at Pine Grove, Schuylkill county; Amos, a shoemaker and farmer in Oley; Daniel, who died unmarried; and Joshua, a shoemaker by trade, who followed farming in Oley, and whose children were—Nathaniel, Anna, Amelia, Howard, Joshua, Calvin, Sarah, Emma, Deborah and James.

Michael Manwiller, son of Daniel the elder, was born Feb. 6, 1785, and died Oct. 28, 1863, and is buried at Schwartzwald Church. His wife, Margaret Ulein, born May 19, 1785, died April 10, 1861. They had three children: Charles, Samuel and Jessie (m. Samuel Fry, of Exeter township).

Samuel Manwiller, grandson of Daniel the elder, was born March 14, 1811, in Exeter township, and died there Feb. 18, 1881. His life was spent in farming and laboring. He was a member of Schwartzwald Reformed Church, where he is buried. Mr. Manwiller married Mary Himmelreich, born Jan. 31, 1813, died Sept. 11, 1883. They had seven children, as follows: Elmina is the widow of Peter Sherry of Stonersville; Samuel, timekeeper of the plant at Birdsboro, and for forty years superintendent of the Perkiomen & Reading Turnpike Company, married Emily Kline; William; Hannah is the widow of Amos Herbine, of Stonersville; Sarah married George Ritchey, of Stonetown; Elam died in boyhood; and Anna died in infancy.

William Manwiller was born in August, 1845, in Exeter township, where he has spent his entire life, and where he owns a comfortable home and some thirty acres of good land, in the cultivation of which he has been engaged in connection with considerable work on highways and in the building of roads. In politics he is a Democrat. He and his good wife, Mary Ann (Nein), who was born in September, 1847, and who like her husband has been a resident of Exeter township all of her life, are members of the Reformed Church. They have one child: Irvin N.

Irvin N. Manwiller spent his boyhood on the farm and attended the district schools, which he left at the age of eighteen years to engage in work at the blast furnaces at Birdsboro. Here he remained for nearly three years, when he located at gate No. 1, as keeper of the Perkiomen turnpike, a position he held for four years. On March 9, 1893, he opened a general mercantile establishment at what was then Dengler's P. O., now Mt. Penn, since which time he has successfully conducted this business. Mr. Manwiller is one of the enterprising business men of the borough, of which he was one of the organizers. He served Lower Alsace township for two terms as auditor, has filled the office of borough auditor of Mount Penn, and is at present a member of the school board. In politics he is a Democrat. He was one of the organizers of Trinity Reformed Church, of which he has served as elder, and is active in the work of the Sunday-school. He is fraternally connected with Camp No. 230, P. O. S. of A., of St. Lawrence.

On Jan. 28, 1887, Mr. Manwiller married Miss Catherine Koch, daughter of Isaac and Emma Koch, of Wernersville, Berks county, and to this union have been born three children: Warren, a musician, who is proficient on the pipe-organ and piano, resides at home; William assists his father in the store; and Florence is at home. The family reside in the pleasant home on Perkiomen avenue, and have a wide social circle.

ISAAC S. SPATZ, vice-president of the Berks County Trust Company since its organization in 1901, owner of or stockholder in several large manufacturing plants, is one of the leading men of Mohnton. He was born there Oct. 15, 1857, son of John H. and Mary (Snader) Spatz.

John H. Spatz, born in Cumru township, died Jan. 5, 1898, aged seventy years, and is buried in the old cemetery at Mohnton. He was reared in Chester county, Pa., and in his youth learned the trade of wheelwright and blacksmith, which he followed some twenty years. About 1850 he moved to Mohnsville, and here purchased a farm, which he spent several years in cultivating. For three years—1870-1873—he was a member of a company engaged in the manufacture of wool hats. He then built the lower factory, and organized the firm of Spatz, Mohn & Co., engaging in the manufacture of hats until 1879, when the firm was changed to J. H. Spatz & Co., and a new mill erected. This he continued to operate as long as he lived. He was also for seven years the proprietor of the Wyomissing Hat Company, and was a member of the Mohnsville Water Company. Active and enterprising in business, he was far-seeing, progressive and public-spirited, and was well known throughout the county. He dealt in real estate, and erected many of the first houses in the town. In politics he was a Republican, and in religion a member of the Evangelical Church, being class-leader and steward. He married Mary Snader, of Terre Hill, Lancaster county, and their children were: Emma, married to J. G. Mohn, a hat manufacturer of Reading; Isaac S.; Anna, married to Aaron Warner, a hat manufacturer of Mohnton; and Susan, married to Monroe Killion, a hosiery and underwear manufacturer of Mohnton (in partnership with Aaron S. Hornberger).

Isaac S. Spatz received his education in the common schools and in Cedar Hill Seminary, at Mount Joy, Pa. In 1879 he joined his father in business, and after the latter's death assumed control of their combined interests. In 1885 he took charge of the Reinhold Hosiery Mills, and he is the owner of the Wyomissing Hosiery Mills, of Mohnsville, as he is also of the Penn Straw Works, which he built in 1886. The remarkable success of his ventures and the rapidly increasing business induced him to look for another outlet, and he formed the Globe Hat Company, which, since 1897, has been manufacturing wool hats at Mohnsville. Mr. Spatz employs a large force and he has the happy faculty of winning and retaining the respect and esteem of his employes. Besides looking after his manufacturing interests he serves as president of the Safe Harbor Electric Light and Power Company, capitalized at $50,000, and is a heavy stockholder in the Mohnton Electric Light Plant, the latter having six hundred lights and being one of the advantages of the town. He is the owner of several hundred well improved acres of land, well stocked with high-grade cattle; and he is also engaged to some extent in the lumber business. For a time he was also a director in the Penn National Bank. Mr. Spatz is a man of remarkable business ability and of sound judgment, and his advice has been of inestimable value to all the concerns with which he has been identified.

On March 18, 1879, Mr. Spatz married Ellen Gring, of Cumru township, and three children have been born to them: Norah, a clerk in her father's office; Sallie; and Elmer. Mr. Spatz is a Republican in his political belief, and on April 30, 1907, at the first borough election, he was elected a member of the Mohnton council by a large majority; he is serving at present as secretary of that body. He is a member of the Evangelical Church, in which he has been Sunday-school superintendent, trustee and class-leader; and he is a member of the board of publishing of the Evangelical Association of Cleveland, Ohio. Mr. Spatz is a man of genuine worth, and has many friends in the community in which his entire life has been spent.

WILLIAM Y. LEVAN, of Boyertown, was born Nov. 23, 1867, at Reading, and is a member of a family which has been settled in Berks county for several generations.

The Levans are of French Huguenot origin, and this branch of the family is descended from Isaac Levan, whose father, Daniel Levan, a French Huguenot, left Picardy, France, and went to Holland, where Isaac was born in about 1700. He was one of four brothers who came to find a home in America, one dying, however, before his arrival. The other three settled in Berks county, Pa., one in Oley township, one in Maxatawny, and one in Exeter. Isaac, the one who settled in Exeter, came to the new land in about 1730, this fact being established by the records of land grants made to him bearing the dates 1731 and 1734 and 1737-38, as well as grants made him along the Schuylkill river, this land aggregating in all over a thousand acres, most of which was in Exeter township. Some of the property has remained in the family ever since. He and his wife, Mary Margaret, had these children: Abraham, Isaac, Daniel, Jacob, Mary and Judith.

Jacob Levan, son of Isaac, was the great-great-grandfather of William Y. Levan. He lived and died in Exeter, falling heir to a goodly portion of his father's estate, his possessions including the old homestead, known as the Cyrus Levan estate, in Exeter, and the tannery. He also added to the original property by purchase, and at the time of his death, when he had been living retired some years, he was considered one of the most substantial citizens and largest landowners in his section of Berks county. He married Susannah Ludwig, and they had a large family, among whom were Jacob and Abraham.

Jacob Levan, son of Jacob, was a farmer in Exeter, where he passed his life. He owned between five hundred and six hundred acres of land, all in one body. He died in 1852, in the faith of the Reformed Church. He married Catharine Fegeley, who bore him two children: Anna married Capt. Henry Schaeffer, of Reading; Isaac was the grandfather of William Y. Levan.

Isaac Levan, son of Jacob, was a farmer all his life in Exeter township, where he owned between four hundred and five hundred acres of land. He died upon his farm in 1857, at the age of forty-one years, and was buried in the new cemetery at the Schwartzwald Church. He was a leading member of the Reformed Church and a stanch Democrat in politics. He was twice married, his first wife being Rebecca Brumbach, daughter of Jacob Brumbach. She died in 1853, when thirty-three years old, the mother of the following named children: (1) William B., born March 21, 1842, in Exeter township, when a young man learned telegraphy, and was employed with the P. & R. Co. for a period of twenty-five years. In March, 1893, when the Reading National Bank was organized, he became its messenger, and here he is still employed. He enlisted in August, 1862, in Co. A. 128th Regiment, Pa. Vols., for the nine months' call, and was discharged in May, 1863. He married in 1864 Miss Clarinda Adams, daughter of John and Hannah (Koller) Adams. Six children born to this union, namely: Rosa married Alfred Bordes, and they reside in Philadelphia (they have a son, Raymond); Rebecca married Darias Fisher, and they have one child, Leroy; Laura married James Loose, and they have a child, Catharine; Bessie, widow of Harry Addis, has two children, Margaret and Robert; Alice married Daniel H. Herflicker, has one child, Mabel, and resides at Camden, N. J.; and Florence is at home. William B. Levan resides at No. 133 Pear street, Reading. (2) Jacob B. resides at St. Lawrence, Exeter township. (3) Isaac B. is the father of William Y. (4) George died in childhood. (5) Daniel died in infancy. (6) Henry B. is a merchant at Lorane, Pa. In 1856 Mr. Levan married (second) Louisa Wien, and one child was born to this union, Rebecca, the wife of John B. Knorr, of Reading.

Isaac B. Levan was born in 1846 in Exeter township, and attended the public schools there, later going to Boyertown Academy. He taught school for a time in Berks county, was appointed deputy sheriff, and served under George D. Boyer, and part of George B. Schaeffer's term. He then bought a farm in Virginia, where he spent one year, and on his return to Pennsylvania went to Lancaster county, where he was appointed deputy sheriff. He served in that capacity for a period of nine years, after which he located at Manheim, Lancaster county, where he is still making his home. He is engaged in the creamery business, which he began when he settled at Manheim.

Mr. Levan married (first) Mary E. Yeich, daughter of William Yeich, of Reading, a pioneer tinsmith of that city. She died in 1878, the mother of seven children: William Y., Annie E., Laura E., J. Harry (m. Annie Montgomery and lives in Reading), Mary M. (m. Fred Cook), E. Alice (m. William Smith) and Edith M. Mr. Levan's second marriage was to Lizzie Woodworth, and to this union were also born seven children, of whom three are living, Allen, Estella and Helen.

William Y. Levan received his education in the public schools of his native city, and after commencing work was with the Reading Telephone Company for some time, during 1886-87. He then learned the tinsmith's trade from George W. Hassinger, finishing his apprenticeship under him, and followed that calling as a journeyman until he engaged in business on his own account in Reading, in 1892, on Bingaman street, above Eighth. From there he removed to Mount Penn borough, where he was located for six years, and in 1900 he changed to Manheim, in Lancaster county, where he was in business until August, 1907, since which time he has been a resident of Boyertown. Here he has been doing business at the old Lefevre stand, and he is well known in and around the borough. He follows all the various branches of his trade, doing tin roofing, spouting and general sheet metal work, and dealing in stoves, ranges, furnaces and hot water and steam heaters, installing the different kinds of heating plants.

Mr. Levan married Regina Bickel, daughter of Moses Bickel, of upper Berks county, Pa. He is a member of the Keystone Fire Company and of the Firemen's Relief of Boyertown.

EZRA S. WENRICH, proprietor of a restaurant at No. 705 Penn street, Reading, is a native of Berks county, born in Heidelberg township, in 1865, son of Richard M. and Mary Ann (Koch) Wenrich. The father, who has been one of the successful farmers of the region, has for the last few years been living retired at Reading. He and his wife, who died in October, 1906, had five children: Ezra S., Robert E., Richard C. N., Nathaniel C. R. and Annie (deceased wife of Levan Rabock).

Ezra S. Wenrich as a boy attended the township school, and later, in 1881, went to the Millersville State Normal School, and qualified himself for teaching. He followed that profession only one term, in Marion township, and then having in the meantime learned telegraphy, stenography and bookkeeping he secured a position at such work with Coxe Brothers & Co., at Drifton, Luzerne county, finally becoming chief clerk in the mining department. He remained with that firm for eight years, until 1893, and at the end of that time moved to Reading, and engaged in his present business. His first restaurant was located at No. 433 Penn street, whence he moved to No. 545 Penn street, and then in 1900 to the location which he still occupies, at Nos. 705-707, on the same street. Mr. Wenrich purchased the property in 1902, and has since then added many improvements to the place. His restaurant is one of the most modern in the city, is very well conducted and is one of the most popular cafés of Reading. Mr. Wenrich's home is on the premises, as the family occupy the upper floors at No. 705 Penn street. Mr. Wenrich also owns Nos. 15 and 17 North Seventh street, and Nos. 700-02-04 Court street, all of which is valuable property and well improved.

In 1889, Mr. Wenrich married Miss Margaretta Marley, of Drifton, daughter of Mich. and Margaret (Drumheller) Marley, and to this union five children have been born, namely: Elwood, deceased; Claude G.; Mabel A.; Arthur E.; and Ruth M. M. Mr. Wenrich is a man of considerable influence in St. Matthew's Lutheran Church, of which he is a member and one of the trustees. In 1903 he placed his name upon the roll of the Y. M. C. A. Fraternally he is a Scottish Rite Mason, a member of Blue Lodge, No. 62, Excelsior Chapter, No. 237, Reading Commandery No. 42, the A. A. O. N. M. S., and the Lodge of Perfection. Mr. Wenrich is a man of much ability, has been very successful in his business operations, and enjoys the respect of all who know him.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN STEFFY, a representative citizen of Cumru township, who has for some years been Steffy family of Berks county, and was born Feb. 1, 1868, engaged in piano tuning, is a member of the well-known at Adamstown, Lancaster county, son of Benjamin K. and Catherine (Ruffner) Steffy.

Benjamin K. Steffy was born Dec. 20, 1834, on the Steffy homestead, and for upward of forty years conducted a smithy at Adamstown, where he also owned a farm and grew fruit. Since 1899 he has lived retired at Mohnton. Mr. Steffy and his family attend Allegheny Church, and fraternally he is connected with the Sr. O. U. A. M., at Adamstown. He married Catherine Ruffner, daughter of Daniel and Barbara (Keffer) Ruffner, of Angelica, and they had these children: Rosa m. Frank Hatt, of Adamstown; Sarah m. Abner Harding, of Edison; Wayne died Jan. 13, 1908; B. Franklin; Lydia, born Jan. 7, 1871, m. John Rollman, of Adamstown, and died Nov. 27, 1891; Maggie, born June 12, 1874, died Jan. 17, 1895; Mary, born April 2, 1877, died Feb. 15, 1898; and Edwin, born Aug. 7, 1880, died Jan. 31, 1898.

B. Franklin Steffy spent his school days at Adamstown, and then assisted his father on the farm and in the fruit growing business. Later he engaged with his father for some years in the manufacture of cigars, a trade he had learned from his father when a mere lad. Mr. Steffy is an accomplished musician, showing his talent when but ten years of age. He was a teacher and instructor of bands in various parts of Berks county when but sixteen years of age, being especially accomplished on the piano, violin and clarionet, and he now has many pupils in Reading and all over the southwestern portion of Berks county. In 1906 Professor Steffy took a special course in the Boston School of Piano Tuning, and on New Year's Day, 1907, he associated himself with the well-known O. F. Kauffman Music House, No. 48 North Eighth street, Reading. Professor Steffy was located for a time in Mohnton, but since 1906 he has made his home at No. 623 Weiser street, Reading. In the spring of 1903 Mr. Steffy, with Dr. M. L. Miller and William G. Leininger, organized the Steffy Furniture Company, of which he was made president, and this enterprise was successful from the start and now does a large business, being now conducted by Dr. Miller, who purchased his partners' interests. Fraternally Mr. Steffy is connected with Mohn-ton Lodge No. 485, Knights of Pythias, and he and his family are members of Grace United Evangelical Church, Sixth and Elm streets, Reading.

On March 4, 1886, Professor Steffy was married to Ella F. Remp, daughter of Henry Remp, a complete sketch of whose life will be found elsewhere. Six children have been born to this union: Mazie R., Emma M., James L., Alta, Arthur L., and one that died in infancy.

JOHN STROUP, a highly esteemed citizen of Wyomissing, Pa., where he now holds the position of school director, was born Jan. 14, 1870, at Harrisburg, Pa., son of John and Anna (Thomas) Stroup.

John Stroup, father of John, was born Jan. 1, 1818, in Mifflin county, Pa., and in his young manhood learned the trade of stair-builder, which he followed all of his life. He was a skilled mechanic, and did much work at the State Capitol at Harrisburg, becoming one of the best-known men in his line in this section of the country. A remarkable example of his skill is a large walnut sideboard upon which is carved the coat of arms of Pennsylvania, made by Mr. Stroup when seventy years old, and which is now one of the valued possessions of his son John. Mr. Stroup died at Reading Feb. 14, 1896, aged seventy-eight years, one month, thirteen days, and is buried in the Charles Evans cemetery. He married Anna Thomas, born Nov. 3, 1838, who still survives her husband and makes her home with her son John, being well preserved both in body and mind. Five children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Stroup, namely: Sallie T. m. George W. Francis, of Reading; Anna died young; Carrie M. m. William McClelland, formerly of New York and now of East Orange, N. J.; Herbert lives in Reading; and John.

John Stroup received his education in the schools of Reading, whither his parents had come when he was a child, and when only eleven years old he became an errand boy in the millinery establishment of J. K. Righter at No. 514 Penn street, where he remained two years. He then learned the book-binding trade with Charles F. Heller, with whom he also remained two years, and in 1885 entered the employ of C. K. Whitner, dry-goods merchant at Reading. The following year, 1886, Mr. Stroup became a salesman in the dress goods department of Kline & Eppihimer's dry goods establishment at No. 522 Penn street, Reading, and in 1891 was placed in charge of the silk department, a position which he has since occupied. He has entire charge of the buying of silks for the department, in which capacity he is called upon to exercise his knowledge of the business.

In 1895 Mr. Stroup located in Wyomissing, having formerly lived at No. 815 Front street, Reading, and on Sept. 18th of that year moved to his fine new residence, which he had erected in the spring. Mr. Stroup is a member and Past Master of Reading Lodge No. 549, F. & A. M. In politics he is an independent Republican, and became one of the first school directors of Wyomissing, serving in the office one year, and in February, 1907, he was elected to a full term of three years. He is a member of the Wyomissing Civic League, and was prominent in the incorporation of the town into a borough.

On Sept. 14, 1898, Mr. Stroup was married to Miss Jennie M. Cutler, estimable daughter of James Q. and Salinda (Homan) Cutler, of Reading, and to this union there had been born two bright children: Anna K. and Robert C.

H. A. HERTWIG, a highly esteemed resident of Reading, Pa., who is conducting the "Harugari Hotel," Nos. 48-50 South Sixth street, was born in Leesport, Berks county, Pa., in 1858, son of J. E. and Othela (Schuman) Hertwig.

H. A. Hertwig was educated in the schools of Reading, and was first employed at the Thalheimer cigar box factory and later at the Mitchell cracker bakery. From there he became helper at the Addis bucket shop, where he remained for one year, and was later employed as a molder at the Mellert Pipe Foundry.

In 1878 Mr. Hertwig engaged in the hotel business, being employed by his father at Harugari Hall until 1885. Mr. Hertwig's father then purchased the property No. 1038 Centre avenue, then known as Andulisa Hall. This was later converted into a Concert Park and known as Hertwig's Family Park. Mr. Hertwig managed this place of business for his father from 1885 to 1891. Mr. Hertwig's father later conducted the C. B. Miller Family Park and Mr. Hertwig was employed there for one year. From there Mr. Hertwig managed the "Lafayette Hotel" for Ignatius Shade, and was later employed by Thomas Fry, proprietor of the Veteran Saloon, Seventh and Chestnut streets. In July, 1892, Mr. Hertwig received a position as head bar clerk at the "Central House," John Brobst, proprietor, and remained there until December, 1899, when he purchased the old homestead, Harugari Hall, from James Morgan, and is conducting same at this time.

In 1884 Mr. Hertwig married Roselle Orth, daughter of William Orth, and to them has been born one son, Robert, photo engraver, who married Minnie Kessler. Mr. Hertwig is a member of Teutonia Lodge No. 367, F. & A. M.; Reading Chapter No. 152, R. A. M.; De Molay Commandery, K. T.; Rajah Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S., and Allen Council No. 23. He is also connected with the Reading Hose Fire Company. In his political belief Mr. Hertwig is independent, voting rather for the man than the party.

GEORGE H. HERTWIG, one of Reading's popular and enterprising young citizens, who is at present filling the position of manager of the Auditorium, is a native of that city, where he was born Sept. 2, 1877, son of Otto J. and Caroline M. (Schick) Hertwig.

Mr. Hertwig's educational training was secured in the public schools of Reading, and he later supplemented this with a course at the Inter-State Commercial College of the city, graduating therefrom in 1895. After leaving school, Mr. Hertwig entered the office of R. L. Jones, with whom he was connected for a short time, when he accepted a position with the American Protective Association of Reading, and he continued in the employ of this firm for seven years, resigning therefrom to engage in the real estate and insurance business at Sixth and Penn streets, Reading, with E. P. Van Reed and J. S. Ebbing, and in conjunction therewith engaged in well drilling in Pennsylvania and New York State, operating three machines. In this latter business he continued for five years, selling out to a Mr. Rahn. At this time Mr. Hertwig was secretary and treasurer of the Auditorium, and in July, 1904, he was made manager thereof, a position he has since ably filled. The Auditorium, which has been lately built, is a fine structure at Nos. 127-129-131-133 South Fifth street, 60x235 feet, one of the finest buildings of its kind in the State.

Mr. Hertwig is a Mason, holding membership in Teutonia Lodge No. 367; the Reading Lodge of Perfection, 14°; the Philadelphia Consistory, 32°; and is a Shriner, belonging to Rajah Temple. He also belongs to Elks Lodge No. 115, the Knights of Malta, No. 47, Washington Camp No. 509, P. O. S. of A., and is very popular in all of these organizations. He is connected with the Lutheran Church.

In 1906 Mr. Hertwig married Minnie K. Snyder, daughter of John Snyder, and to them has been born one son, Otto Snyder. Mr. Hertwig resides at No. 47 North Tenth street, Reading.

HENRY HARRISON KOCH, dealer in coal and feed at Birdsboro, is one of the younger business men of this section, who have made their presence felt in the community, and who have already won a substantial footing among the successful men of the town. Mr. Koch was born in old Union township, Berks county, May 8, 1873, son of Isaac K. and grandson of Isaac Koch.

Isaac Koch, the grandfather, was born and reared in Berks county, and there spent all the years of his life until 1902, when he went to Montgomery county, Pa., and he is now living there at the age of ninety-five years. All his active years were devoted to farming, although he worked at his trade of shoe-making, learned in his youth, in connection with it. He is a member of the Lutheran Church, and in politics is a Democrat. At one time he served as supervisor of Amity township. His wife, Anna Mariah Kern, died at the age of sixty-five years. Their children were: Anna M. m. David Eagle; Jacob; Henry; Catharine m. George Kulp; Isaac K.; Lizzie m. George Updegrove; David; and Malinda m. John Shirey.

Isaac K. Koch was reared in Amity township, and there attended the public schools. He learned the trade of painting and paper hanging, and this he has followed the greater part of his life. He married Sarah Elizabeth Updegrove, daughter of Levi and Sophia (Davidheiser) Updegrove, and they have two children, Henry Harrison and Roy C. Mr. Koch is a member of Neversink Lodge, I. O. O. F., and the P. O. S. of A. He is a man of high principles, and his life has been lived along lines of industry and integrity, and he is eminently respected.

Henry Harrison Koch attended the public schools and secured a good practical education. With his father he learned the trade of paper hanger and painter, and this he followed with success for eleven years. In 1899 he purchased the coal yards, formerly the property of George Brown, and since that time he has found his time fully occupied in caring for his rapidly increasing business. He now sells upward of 1,500 tons annually. He is strictly honest and upright in his dealings, is courteous, accommodating and kind-hearted, and is very popular with his associates.

In 1896 Mr. Koch was married to Miss Delilah March, daughter of Isaac F. March, and they have five children, Sarah Elizabeth, Alberta Ruth, Esther Livingood, Isaac March and Henry Matthias. They attend the Lutheran church, of which both Mr. and Mrs. Koch are members. He belongs to Camp No. 417, P. O. S. of A.

F. PIERCE D. GRILL, a farmer and dairyman of Berks county, whose fine property of fifty-five acres is situated in Cumru township, was born Feb. 28, 1865, on the farm on which he now resides, son of Adam M. and Sarah (Dewees) Grill.

Adam Grill, grandfather of F. Pierce D., was born Aug. 22, 1793, in what is now Spring township, and died May 21, 1858. He was a farmer of Cumru township, where he owned a farm of 155 acres, on which he built a barn in 1832. He married Catherine Mohn, born Jan. 11, 1800, who died March 31, 1888, daughter of Daniel and Barbara (Albright) Mohn. Ten children were born to this union: Samuel (m. Betsy VonNeida); Elizabeth (m. Henry VonNeida); Catherine (m. Christil Kress); Polly (m. Richard Hornberger); Levi (m. Polly Eshelman); Sally (m. Nicholas Mosser); Adam M. (m. Sarah Dewees); Lydia (m. James Leininger); Daniel (m. Mary Matz); and Henry (m. Mary Hiester).

Adam M. Grill was born Oct. 17, 1835, and was reared on the original homestead, where he lived until 1904, then retiring and removing to Church street, Mohnton. Since 1897 he has conducted a milk route into Mohnsville, owning a twenty-six acre farm about two miles northwest of that village. In politics he is a Republican. He and his family attend Zion's Evangelical Church; he was class-leader, treasurer and trustee of the church of that denomination at Mohn's Hill.

Mr. Grill married Nov. 6, 1860, Sarah Dewees, born Jan. 4, 1841, daughter of John M. and Leah G. (Matz) Dewees, and five children were born to this union: William D. m. Ida Miller, and had three children—Jennie (died when three years old), Leo and Harry; Alice R. died unmarried at the age of twenty-eight years; F. Pierce D.; Martin D. m. Hannah Weidner, and has three children—John, Stanley and Forest; and Quinton D. is unmarried.

F. Pierce D. Grill has spent his entire life on the property on which he now lives, and which he obtained from his father. This property, which consists of fifty-five acres, is a part of the old homestead owned by his grandfather, and which has been in the family possession for upward of 100 years. The original barn, built in 1832 by Adam Grill, still stands, as does the home, built by his son, Adam M., in 1868. Mr. Grill is also engaged in operating a milk route, running a team daily, except Sunday, to Mohnton. In politics he is a Republican. He and his family are connected with Mohn's Hill Memorial United Evangelical Church.

On Aug. 11, 1889, Mr. Grill married Annie H. Fisher, born July 31, 1866, daughter of Richard and Annie (Hoyer) Fisher, and three children have been born to this union: Stephen F., born June 10, 1890; Leroy F., Jan. 21, 1893; and Lillie F., May 24, 1898.

JOHN G. HERBINE, a well-known citizen residing at No. 824 Elm street, Reading, formerly first assistant clerk of the board of county commissioners of Berks county, Pa., was born June 5, 1865, in Oley township, Berks county, son of George G. and Sarah (Herbine) Herbine.

John Herbine, grandfather of John G., was a native of Exeter township, where he was a farmer and drover all of his life, dying well advanced in years at Yellow House, Berks county. He married Sarah Gemart, and to them were born these children: Jacob G., Mary Ann, Charles G., Abner G., John (who met an accidental death), George G. and Mary Ann. The family were members of the Reformed Church.

George G. Herbine was reared in Exeter township, but on reaching maturity removed to Oley township, where he owned and operated a property of 121 acres, and was engaged in the cattle business. There he died April 21, 1904, aged sixty-four years. He married Sarah Herbine, who is still living at Oley, and they had these children: Emma H. m. Daniel K. Young, deceased; John G.; Howard H.; Ella H.; Katie H.; and Clara m. Mahlon H. Knabb. In religious belief the family were Reformed.

John G. Herbine attended the schools of Oley township and later studied at Amityville Seminary for two terms, and then worked for a time on the home farm, later clerking in a country store for about five years, and also engaging in butter making at the Oley line. In 1893 he came to Reading and engaged with Yocum's flour and feed store for about seven years, as their salesman, and on Jan. 1, 1906, he was appointed first assistant clerk of the board of county commissioners for a term of three years. Personally Mr. Herbine is genial and courteous, and possesses the happy faculty of making friends. He is of striking appearance, standing five feet, ten inches, and weighing about 200 pounds, and except for accidents has never been sick a day in his life. He has always been active in the ranks of the Democratic party, casting his first vote for Grover Cleveland, and since 1894 has been a resident of the Ninth ward, where he wields much political influence. He was judge of election for seven years and on numerous occasions has been a delegate to State and county conventions, his entry into politics being as delegate from Oley township for Judge H. Willis Bland. He was assistant postmaster from 1888 to 1894 under Chas. S. Snyder, at Limekiln, and was county committeeman from Oley three terms. He is a member of the Northeast Democratic Association, and has attended a number of city and county caucuses. He was a member of the city Executive Committee for three years. On Dec. 24, 1908, he was appointed by the retiring board of county commissioners to the office of mercantile appraiser for Berks county, having the full vote of the board consisting of Chester B. Cleaver, James M. Yerger, James F. Fisher. His work in this new and responsible position covers not only Reading but all Berks county.

In 1893 Mr. Herbine was married to Amanda Cleaver, daughter of Frank R. Cleaver, of Pleasantville, and to them have been born three children: Stanley C., Frederick W., and Sarah A. Mr. Herbine was a member of Schwartzwald Church until coming to Reading, when he united with St. Stephen's Reformed Church, being teacher and treasurer of the Sunday-school. He is fraternally connected with Oley Lodge No. 218, I. O. O. F., and Washington Camp No. 221, P. O. S. of A.

GEORGE W. WARTMAN. In the death of George W. Wartman, at Reading in 1901, the city lost one of its good citizens and highly esteemed residents. Mr. Wartman, who will be remembered as an efficient special officer of the Philadelphia & Reading Company, was born in Reading in 1854, son of Jonathan and Judith (Beaver) Wartman.

Jonathan Wartman was in early life engaged in the hotel business on North Fifth street, near the present stand of the "Farmers' Hotel," but later he engaged with Conrad Frame, Sr., in the coal business, and was so employed when stricken, and was disabled for nine years before his death. He married Judith Beaver, and to them were born five children: Alfred; Henry; George W.; Elmira (m. Andrew Sleath) and Jennie (m. Charles Maurer). In religious belief the family were Lutherans. Mr. Wartman was a Democrat.

George W. Wartman was educated in the schools of Reading, and when young engaged at blacksmithing, at which he served an apprenticeship. After following this for many years, he was appointed a police officer under James K. Getz, and served about one term, when he resigned to accept the position of special officer with the Philadelphia & Reading Company, continuing in that position until his death. His experiences were many while serving in his official capacity, and he was on one occasion shot in the leg by a tramp, the bullet breaking the bone. Mr. Wartman was very popular with all who knew him, and he was held in the highest esteem by his employers. He was a member of the Order of Good Fellows and the Protestant Association.

In 1880 Mr. Wartman married Mary A. Frill, daughter of John and Mary (Stroehecker) Frill. Mrs. Wartman, who survives her husband, attends the Lutheran Church.

JACOB B. LEVAN. One of the oldest and most honored families of Berks county, Pa., is that of Levan, members of which have distinguished themselves in the various walks of life. A worthy representative of this family is found in Jacob B. Levan, a prominent and influential citizen of St. Lawrence, Exeter township.

Daniel Levan, great-great-great-grandfather of Jacob B., left France, and settled in Amsterdam, Holland, during the Huguenot persecution. He married in France Marie Beau.

The first of the family to come to America was Isaac Levan, son of Daniel and Marie (Beau) Levan, who was born in Holland in about 1700. He came to America in about 1730, this fact being established by the records of land grants made to him bearing the dates of 1731 and 1734 and 1737-38, as well as grants made him along the Schuylkill river, this land aggregating in all upward of 1,000 acres, most of which lay in Exeter township. Isaac Levan, the emigrant, built the tannery on the second land grant on the site where now the Brumbach Bros. Woolen Mill stands in St. Lawrence, and in 1758 sold it with nine acres to John Fisher, and afterward conveyed the first grant and remaining 123 acres of the second grant to his son Jacob Levan, great-grandfather of Jacob B. Isaac Levan and his wife Mary Margaret had these children: Abraham, Isaac, Daniel, Jacob, Mary (m. Peter Feather) and Judith (m. Samuel Weiser). Isaac Levan died in 1786 in the borough of Reading.

Jacob Levan, great-grandfather of Jacob B., born between 1736 and 1740, fell heir to a goodly portion of his father's estate, his possessions including the old homestead, known as the Cyrus Levan Estate, in Exeter township. He also added to his original property by purchase, and at the time of his death, when he had been living retired for some years, he was considered one of the most substantial men and largest landowners in this section of Berks county. He married Susannah Ludwig, and they had a family of eleven children, three sons and eight daughters, namely: Abraham; Jacob L.; Daniel; Margaret m. (first) Peter Rightmeyer, (second) John Woolison; Susannah m. John Stitzel; Elizabeth m. Samuel Kurst; Mary m. Henry Werner; Hannah m. Godfrey Kershner; Catharine m. Jacob Goodman; Sarah m. Adam Stitzel; Judith m. Henry Leese. Jacob Levan died in 1814 was buried on the old homestead in a private graveyard located on his first land grant in Exeter township.

Jacob L. Levan, grandfather of Jacob B., was born in 1784. He was a farmer and owned between 500 to 600 acres of land, all in one body. He died in 1851 in the faith of the Reformed Church. Mr. Levan married Catherine Fegley, and she bore him two children: Anna m. Capt. Henry Schaeffer, of Exeter township; and Isaac.

Isaac Levan, son of Jacob, was an agriculturist all of his life in Exeter township, where he was a stanch Democrat and leading member of the Reformed Church. He died in 1857, at the age of forty-one years. Mr. Levan was married (first) to Rebecca Brumbach, daughter of Jacob Brumbach, and she died in 1853, when thirty-three years of age, having borne her husband these children: William, of the Reading National Bank; Jacob B.; Isaac B., a resident of Manheim, Lancaster county; George, who died in childhood; Daniel, who died in infancy, and Henry B., a merchant at Lorane. In 1856 Mr. Levan was married (second) to Louisa Wein, and one child was born to this union, Rebecca, wife of John Knorr, of Reading.

Jacob B. Levan was born Jan. 8, 1844, in Exeter township, where he attended the public schools; and later went to Oley Academy. In 1858 he went to live with his guardian, Josiah DeTurk, with whom he continued until he was nineteen years of age, and thereafter spent some time in farming with Joseph Levan. At the age of twenty-four years Mr. Levan engaged in a hotel and mercantile business at Lorane, where he continued for four years, then engaging in farming, at which he continued until 1896. He became the owner of several farms, all of which he has since sold, and since 1896 he has been engaged at various occupations. He has always been active in movements having for their object the betterment of conditions in his community, has erected eight houses in St. Lawrence, was a promoter of the St. Lawrence Water Company and attends to the plumbing therefor, and platted most of the land and sold the lots for the village of St. Lawrence. For fifteen years he served efficiently as township auditor.

On April 25, 1869, Mr. Levan was united in marriage with Miss Emma Stauffer, daughter of Abraham and Mariah (Bitting) Stauffer, of Bechtelsville and Allentown, and five children have been born to this union, namely: William lives in Mt. Penn borough; Rebecca m. William Van Buskirk, of Lebanon, superintendent of the cold punch department of the American Iron and Steel Company at Lebanon, and they have one son, Arthur; Jacob, who is engaged in butchering in the city of Reading, m. Cora Wentzel, and they have two children, Bessie and Margaret; George, an employe of the cold punch department of the American Iron and Steel Company at Lebanon, m. Minnie Dinkel, and has three children, Catherine, Charles and Amie R.; and Victor, who completed his fourth year in the United States Navy in May, 1908, has cruised in Asiatic waters, and is now an able seaman. Mr. and Mrs. Jacob B. Levan are members of the Schwartzwald Reformed Church, and Mr. Levan is a member of the cemetery board.

J. JEROME MILLER, a highly esteemed resident of Hamburg, Berks county, who has been cashier of the Hamburg Savings Bank since 1877, was born in that borough Oct. 29, 1843, son of Edward M. Miller.

Edward M. Miller was born in 1818, followed cabinetmaking for a number of years, and served the Schuylkill Navigation Company for a long time as section boss along the canal from Leesport to Schuylkill Haven. He acted as a councilman of the borough for several terms and officiated as chief burgess. He died in 1897, aged seventy-nine years, and his wife, who had been Sarah Moyer, born in 1823, daughter of John Moyer, of Hamburg, died in 1899, aged seventy-six years. Mr. and Mrs. Miller had eight children: Miss Clara; John R. (m. Benie Westwood); J. Jerome; Emma (m. Dr. J. F. Isett); Gustavus A.; Simon; J. Edward; and a son who died in infancy.

J. Jerome Miller was educated in the borough schools, and when the Civil war broke out in 1861, he enlisted as a private for three years in Company G, 96th Pa. V. I., commanded by Capt. James N. Douden. He was engaged in all the battles fought by the Army of the Potomac, and was honorably discharged Aug. 6, 1865. At Spottsylvania Court House, May 12, 1864, Mr. Miller was wounded, and on account of this wound was transferred to Company F, 22d Veteran Reserve Corps, and was promoted to corporal.

Upon his discharge Mr. Miller returned to Hamburg and learned cabinet-making, which, in connection with carpentering, he followed for several years. He then engaged in a general store business with J. F. Isett, under the firm name of Miller & Isett, which he continued for three years, and then resumed cabinet-making, being employed at his trade until Jan. 1, 1877. The directors of the Hamburg Savings Bank having elected Mr. Miller cashier, he began his connection with this financial institution in the northern section of the county, and has continued to fill this responsible position to the present time. At the start the paid-up capital of the bank was $10,000 on an authorized capital of $50,000; the resources showed a loss of $20,000 on account of prominent bank failures at Philadelphia, and the deposits were but $18,000. However, the affairs of the bank were straightened out, improving steadily, until on July 1, 1906, the capital was $50,000 and the reserve funds $55,000. Mr. Miller has officiated as councilman and school director for twenty-one years. He has take a prominent part in the discussion and efforts of the Board of Trade for the improvement of Hamburg, officiating as president of that body for fifteen years until July, 1906, when he resigned.

Mr. Miller married Amanda Bean, daughter of Nehemiah Bean, in 1874, and they have one daughter, Sadie; another daughter, Clara, died when seven years old.

WILLIAM ZIMMERMAN BECKER, a highly esteemed retired citizen of Reading, Pa., whose pleasant home is situated at No. 1657 North Tenth street, was for many years engaged in various business enterprises in the city. He was born March 8, 1828, in Centre (then Upper Bern) township, son of John and Rebecca (Zimmerman) Becker.

John Becker, grandfather of William Z., was born in Maiden-creek township. He followed agricultural pursuits throughout his active life in Muncy Valley, in Union county, Pa. The name of his second wife was Gottshall.

John Becker, son of John and father of William Z., was a hotel keeper and shoemaker in early life, but in later years engaged in farming, at which the rest of his life was spent, his death occurring in his seventy-ninth year. He and his wife, Rebecca Zimmerman, had twelve children, of whom five survive: William Z., Augustus, Henry, Joseph and Nathan.

William Z. Becker was educated in the common schools of his native locality, and also spent one year at Fremont Academy, after leaving which he taught school for one winter. At the age of sixteen years he apprenticed himself to the tailor's trade, which he followed for nine years, and then engaged in farming in Maiden-creek township. After eight years spent in agricultural pursuits, Mr. Becker sold out and removed to Reading, where in 1864 he started carpentering in the Philadelphia & Reading shops, where he remained two years, leaving when he was elected tax collector and assessor of the Second Ward. After serving five years in this official position, Mr. Becker engaged in the manufacture of cigars, in which he continued for seven years, and then returned to the employ of the Philadelphia & Reading Company. After eleven more years in the company's employ Mr. Becker engaged in building, in which he continued until his retirement. Mr. Becker owns three valuable properties in the vicinity of his home, in which community he is well known and highly respected.

Mr. Becker married Rebecca Nunnemacher in 1855, and to this union there were born three children, one of whom survives: John N. Becker, M. D. In politics Mr. Becker is a Democrat, and in 1878-79 he was a member of the city council. He and Mrs. Becker attend the Lutheran church.

GULDIN. The Guldin family traces its history back to (I) Hans Joachim Guldin, who was born at St. Gall, Switzerland, and became a citizen of Berne, Switzerland, in 1633. He married Susanna Triboleb and their children were: Hans Joachim T., born Feb. 4, 1635; Anna, born Sept. 22, 1636; Samuel, born Sept. 22, 1638.

(II) Hans Joachim T. Guldin, son of Hans Joachim Guldin, was born at Berne, Switzerland, Feb. 4, 1635. He married Anna Maria Koch, and their children were: Anna Maria, born Aug. 24, 1660, who died in infancy; Anna Maria, born March 19, 1662, who died in infancy; Samuel K., born June 8, 1664; and Anna Magdalena, born June 18, 1667.

(III) Rev. Samuel K. Guldin, born at Berne, Switzerland, June 8, 1664, married Mary Magdalena Malcarida, and came to Philadelphia on Sept. 24, 1710. He died at Roxborough, Pa., Dec. 31, 1745. His children were: Samuel M., born Nov. 8, 1693, at Stettlen, Switzerland; Maria Catherine, born at Stettlen, Jan. 8, 1696; Christoffel, born at Berne, July 17, 1697; and Eumanuel Frederick, born at Berne, March 13, 1699.

(IV) Samuel M. Guldin settled in Oley township, Berks Co., Pa., in 1718, and became the founder of the Guldin family there. He married May 22, 1722, Elizabeth Hilsaweek, and their children were: Samuel; Susanna; John; Mary Magdalena, who married Frederick Leinbach; Frederick; Daniel H.; Janna; Esther, and Clara Elizabeth. He was a farmer and blacksmith.

(V) Daniel H. Guldin, born in Oley township April 20, 1735, married Catherine Elizabeth Gelbbach and their children were: Samuel, who died in infancy; Daniel; John Jacob; Samuel, who died in infancy; John; Elizabeth; George; Abraham; Samuel; Frederick; Peter, and David. Daniel H. Guldin owned a farm of 260 acres adjoining the "Yellow House" property on the north.

(VI) John Guldin was also a resident of Oley township. He and his wife Catherine had three sons: Daniel, who married Rachel Levan and had children—Ezra, Lewis, Joel, Calvin, Mary and John; Abraham; and John D., born in 1846, who died in 1872.

(VII) ABRAHAM GULDIN, now deceased, was born in Oley township July 9, 1842, and died Oct. 15, 1877, aged thirty-five years, three months, six days. He is buried at Oley Churches. By occupation he was a farmer, and he owned a valuable farm, now the property of his widow. On July 25, 1862, Mr. Guldin married Sarah B. Yoder, who was born Aug. 5, 1840, and was a daughter of David Yoder and granddaughter of Daniel Yoder of Oley township. They had seven children, as follows: John Y., born Oct. 24, 1863; David Y., May 31, 1866 (died in May, 1903); William Y., June 25, 1868; Horace Y., Jan. 1, 1871 (resides in Philadelphia; has one son, Arthur); Annie C., Sept. 6, 1873; Francis Y., April 19, 1875, and George Y., July 4, 1877.

Of the above children, Annie C. Guldin married William G. Haas, a farmer residing near Pleasantville, in Berks county. Her farm consists of over seventy acres. They have two sons, Lawrence and Arthur G.

Mrs. Guldin is a very pleasant and hospitable woman and one who has many friends in her neighborhood. She speaks both English and German. She makes her home with Mrs. Haas, although she owns the Guldin homestead, and is possessed of considerable means. The homestead is operated by George Y. Guldin, who makes his home upon it.

The late Abraham Guldin, although cut off in the very prime of life, had gained the honor and respect of all who knew him. Possessing as he did fine natural abilities as well as those qualities which constitute the true man and valuable citizen, it was not difficult for him to win the esteem and admiration of those about him. A hard worker, he amassed a property which left his family comfortable. Although he died so many years ago his memory is tenderly cherished, and his many excellent qualities remembered to this day. He came of an old and honored family, and although his days were few he never failed to uphold its dignity and to live up to the high standards set by those who went before him.

JOHN Y. GULDIN, son of the late Abraham and Sarah B. (Yoder) Guldin, is a prominent farmer of Oley township, born Oct. 24, 1863. He was reared upon the homestead, attending school in the neighborhood and learning farming under his father's care. Later he had the advantage of a course at the Oley Academy. In 1888 he began farming on his own account upon his grandfather's farm, which then was the property of his mother. Mr. Guldin now owns the Wright farm which he purchased in 1898. It is located one mile north of the "Yellow House" property and consists of 121 acres of excellent land. The stone residence upon it, erected by M. Roberts in 1769, is a large house and so substantially built that it is much to be preferred to a new structure. On this property is a spring house which was built in 1716 by a pioneer of Oley township. It is 20x16 feet and two stories high. The barn is considerably more than one hundred years old, and like the house is very substantial. The farm is well stocked, Mr. Guldin keeping seven horses and seventeen head of cattle. He uses the latest improved machinery and methods in his farming and is very successful in his work.

John Y. Guldin married in 1883 Hannah Botts, daughter of William and Mary (Smith) Botts, of Earl township. Their children are: Mary, Annie Lucretia, Susan Melissa, Charlotte Agnes, Abraham, John, Alice Katie, Theodore and Hannah Elda.

Mr. Guldin is a Republican and has held many of the local offices. He and his family are members of Salem Oley Reformed Church, of which he has been deacon for four years. Socially he is a member of Manatawny Castle, K. G. E. Progressive, public-spirited, a good citizen and conscientious man, Mr. Guldin inspires fullest confidence and is one of the substantial farmers of Oley township.

DAVID Y. GULDIN, son of the late Abraham and Sarah B. (Yoder) Guldin, was born May 31, 1866, on the old Guldin homestead in Oley township, Berks county, and was educated in the public schools of his native township and the Oley Academy. On Sept. 26, 1885, he was married to Miss Emma Louisa A. Specht. This union was blessed with seven children, all daughters: Sallie, Olivia, Edna, Mabel, Edwina, Minnie, and one that died in infancy. David Y. Guldin was the owner of a nice farm in Earl township, where he lived for some time. There his wife died six years ago, after which he sold out and made his home with his aged mother, and began working for the Long Distance Telephone Company. He worked several years for that company, later engaging with the Postal Telegraph Company, in whose service he was killed. He was working on a high pole, when accidentally he came in contact with a live wire which gave him a shock, holding him in mid-air for about five minutes, after which he fell on a second wire some distance below. His head struck the curb, crushing his skull, and he died twenty-four hours later at the Delaware Hospital, Wilmington. He was a member of Manatawny Castle, No. 461, K. G. E., and of Minnehaha Lodge, K. P., of Friedensburg, and of the Oley Reformed Church.

GEORGE Y. GULDIN, son of the late Abraham Guldin, and brother of John Y. Guldin, resides upon the farm where he was born July 4, 1877. He was reared upon this farm and attended the public schools. His father dying when he was only three months old, Mr. Guldin was brought up by his mother and has always been her right-hand man. In 1902 he began farming for himself, and now cultivates the family homestead of 104 acres, which under his care is a very fine property. The residence upon it was erected by his grandfather, John Guldin, in 1867, and the barn was put up in 1855. This farm has a good spring that has never gone dry, and its water is recognized as excellent throughout the township. Mrs. Guldin still uses the old family dinner gong to summon her husband and his men from the fields. These gongs are becoming very valuable on account of their scarcity. This particular one is specially good and strong, and was forged at Sprang's forge a little over one hundred years ago. It can be heard distinctly for a distance of three and one-quarter miles. Another much prized heirloom in the possession of Mr. Guldin is an old grandfather clock which is also over one hundred years old and came from the Yoder side of the family.

In 1898 George Y. Guldin was married to Mary Conrad, of Oley township, and they have one son, Lester C. Mr. Guldin is a member of the K. of P. lodge at Manatawny, Oley post-office, and the P. O. S. of A. Camp of Oley township. In politics he is an independent Republican. He and his family belong to the Oley Reformed Church.

Like other members of this old and honorable family Mr. George Y. Guldin is much esteemed in his neighborhood and is considered one of the representative men of his township.

HORNING. For nearly two centuries the Horning family has been residing in this section of Pennsylvania, and members in each generation have been active in the work of the Mennonite Church, and all have led God-fearing, upright lives. Among those who today are active in mercantile or agricultural life may be mentioned Jeremiah Horning, his brother John Horning, and, in the younger generation, John B., Isaac Z. and Aaron Horning.

(I) Bentz Horning was the first of the family in Berks county. He came from Germany early in the eighteenth century, and with his son Paul settled in what is now Brecknock township. He had two sons, Michael and Paul. Of these, Michael settled at the Trappe, in Montgomery county, and his son John lived in Huntingdon county, where he owned a large farm. Gilbert Horning, son of John, was born at Rebecca Forge in 1820, and lived on the homestead all his life, becoming a man of affairs, and prominent in public work, serving as director of the poor; he married Elizabeth Beightal, and had children: John (a minister of the Central Pennsylvania Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church), Gilbert C. (a bookkeeper for the Reading Iron Company, Reading) and William D. (born July 3, 1847, an attorney in Berks, director of the poor for three years, married Laura J. Shaffer, of Reading, and has one child, Mary E.).

(II) Paul Horning, son of Bentz, accompanied his father from the Fatherland, and settled in Brecknock township, then a part of Lancaster county. He owned a tract of land at Alleghenyville, which is now the property of Jeremiah Hoshour. He was a farmer and windmill (fan-mill) maker. Both he and his wife Margaret are buried at the Allegheny meeting-house, and their graves are marked with rough sandstones, but the inscriptions are no longer decipherable. He died in 1831, when well advanced in years. His children were: Polly; Kate; Daniel, who died unmarried; Wendel, who lived above Reamstown, and is buried at Mohler's meeting-house; Samuel, who lived for some time in Maryland, but later returned to Pennsylvania, and died in Lancaster county; Joseph; Nancy; Sally, who married Isaac Powell, of Lancaster; and Susan, who married Charles Heiffler.

(III) Joseph Horning, son of Paul, was born May 9, 1798. He made his home in Brecknock township, along the Allegheny creek, where he owned a small tract of land. He was a wagoner by trade, and followed that line nearly all his life in connection with farming. He was very well known, was highly esteemed, and was a consistent follower of the Mennonite faith. He died Jan. 25, 1876, aged seventy-seven years, eight months, sixteen days, and his remains rest in the cemetery at the Allegheny meeting-house. He married Fannie Mosser, who was born July 22, 1803, and who died Jan. 24, 1889, in her eighty-sixth year. Their five children—two sons and three daughters—were: Rev. Benjamin; Esther, who married Joseph Shirk, of Spring Grove, Pa.; Nancy, who married Peter Lichty, of Churchtown, Pa.; Moses, of Bowmansville; and Fannie, born Sept. 30, 1830, who married Henry Gehman, of Adamstown, and is the only one now living, at the present time making her home with her son.

(IV) Rev. Benjamin Horning, son of Joseph, was born on his father's farm Feb. 22, 1824, and his death occurred Nov. 3, 1903. He passed his entire life in the one neighborhood, making his home on a tract of forty acres he owned near the Allegheny Church, and which is now owned by his son Aaron. From his father he learned the wagoner's trade, which he followed continuously until 1890, when he gave up his business that he might devote his entire time to the service of the Master. He was ordained to the ministry of the Mennonite Church in 1862. His ministerial work was largely confined to the churches of Alleghenyville, Berks county; Adamstown; Gehman's Church; and Bowmansville, Lancaster county. In his younger days he was often called to preach the word to other congregations, and he frequently officiated at funerals of friends of other denominations. Occasionally he preached in the Allegheny Union Church to Lutheran and Reformed people. His funeral, attended by a large concourse of friends, was held in that church. He was possessed of a high sense of honor, and was beloved by all who knew him. In the pulpit he was an able and fluent speaker, one whose earnestness and sincerity were never questioned. He married Luzetta Ziemer, born Nov. 8, 1824, died Nov. 16, 1900, daughter of Jeremiah and Polly (Westley) Ziemer, well-known farming people of Brecknock township. To Rev. Benjamin and Mrs. Horning were born thirteen children, namely: Augustus, a farmer near Bowmansville, Pa.; John, mentioned below; Joseph, a farmer near Bowmansville, who died in 1898; Jeremiah, mentioned in full farther on; Susan, who married Martin Newswanger, of Goodville, Pa.; Mary, who died in young womanhood; Fannie, who died young; Sarah, who married John Shirk, of Philadelphia; Benjamin, who died in infancy; Lizzie, who married Monroe Good, of Bowmansville; Isaac Z., full mention of whom is made later; Katie, who married Christian Martin, of Terre Hill, Pa.; and Aaron, who resides on the old homestead at Alleghenyville, mentioned below.

(V) John Horning, son of Rev. Benjamin, was born near Alleghenyville, Nov. 3, 1849, and was reared to manhood on the farm. He obtained a limited education in the township school, which he left at an early age. When twenty years old he started out for himself, for two years working on a farm in Lancaster county. In 1872 he was married, and after that for a while worked at day's labor, but again took up farming, which he successfully carried on nine years. At the end of that time he purchased a forty-acre tract in Paradise township, Lancaster county, which he operated for six years. Forming a partnership with H. E. Musser in 1889, under the name of Musser & Horning, he engaged in the hardware and implement business at Kinzers, a venture that proved very successful and was continued for eleven years. The partnership was then dissolved, and Mr. Horning took entire charge. A year later he sold the implement business to his former partner, but the hardware line he retained, and this he improved, adding to the stock, and meeting the growing demands of the trade. He prospered in his work, but because of a good offer made him by the McCormick Harvesting Machine Company he discontinued the business, and moved to Lancaster, Pa., where he has a comfortable home. While Mr. Horning was yet associated in business with Mr. Musser he did most of the traveling in the interest of the firm, and in this way obtained a thorough knowledge of the implement business. Since 1900 he has given all his time and energy to the interests of the McCormick Company. His territory includes twelve counties in Pennsylvania, Virginia and Maryland. His success is due to his thorough knowledge of the business and his upright principles. On Jan. 30, 1872, he married Hettie A. Good, who was born in Leacock township, Lancaster county, Nov. 24, 1848, daughter of Isaac H. and Hettie (Hurst) Good. Both Mr. and Mrs. Horning adhere to the Mennonite faith.

(V) Jeremiah Horning, son of Rev. Benjamin and brother of John, was born April 7, 1853, and was reared upon his father's farm, remaining at home until he was twenty years of age. He then married and engaged in trucking on the old Henry Westley farm of twenty acres, where he remained two years. In the centennial year he moved upon his present property, which he then bought, and engaged in butchering, farming and trucking on a large scale. While butchering, which he continued for a period of fifteen years, he killed on an average six steers a week, and had two teams on the road, besides attending the Reading market three times a week. Three hired men were kept constantly at work, and much was accomplished under Mr. Horning's able supervision.

In 1900 Mr. Horning became engaged in the lumbering business, and since then has had two portable sawmills in operation, cutting down timber and sawing the logs for market. In this connection he has some half dozen people employed. In 1888 he engaged in mercantile business in Alleghenyville, and this he carried on until 1904, when he turned it over to his son John B., who now conducts it. For about ten years he has been engaged in cattle dealing, handling as many as one thousand head per annum.

Mr. Horning is the founder of Alleghenyville, and he had all the buildings of the village erected with the exception of the church and the school-house. Most of the town is built on land belonging to him. He is the foremost man in the township, and has done more for the community than any other one man. His farm consists of 100 acres of good land, and he had a well drilled 500 feet from his buildings, 127 feet deep, which furnishes the best of water for his family as well as his stock. In politics he is a Republican, has been delegate to county conventions, and was the first postmaster at Alleghenyville, also serving as school director for six years. He was one of the liberal contributors to the Allegheny Church, erected in 1878, and he and his family are all faithful Mennonites.

On March 8, 1873, Jeremiah Horning was married to Sarah Beam, born June 29, 1853, daughter of Richard and Salome (Kern) Beam, of Bowmansville. To this union were born seven sons and five daughters: Mary married Isaac Griffith, of Alleghenyville; Samuel married Mary Schnader, and resides in Philadelphia; Lucy married Raymond Fritz, of Reamstown; Alice married James Hornberger, of Reading; John B. married Lillie M. Kachel, and is a merchant at Alleghenyville; Sallie died in her third year; Benjamin died in infancy; Harry B. is a mechanic at Cleveland, Ohio; and Irwin, Abel, Annie V. and Walter are all at home.

(V) Isaac Z. Horning, son of Rev. Benjamin and brother of Jeremiah, was born Oct. 18, 1868, and was reared with his brothers and sisters on the home farm, attending the district schools until he was fifteen years old. He assisted in the work of the home farm until 1886, when he began working for his brother Jeremiah as butcher and farm hand. Here he continued for eight years, for the last three being chief butcher. In 1897 he bought out the business, and since then has attended the Reading market twice a week in the winter and three times in the summer. He has stalls Nos. 60-61 at the Bingaman street market, where he enjoys a large patronage. He kills on an average five or six steers a week during the entire year. Besides his market trade he runs a wagon throughout the county. His reputation is of the best, and he conducts his business on honorable principles. Like all his family he is a Mennonite in religious faith, attending the church in which his father was for so many years the minister. In politics he is a Republican, and since 1899 has efficiently served as school director, for one year being secretary of the board.

On Dec. 11, 1886, Isaac Z. Horning was married to Ellen Yelk, daughter of John and Jestina (Trait) Yelk, the former a farmer and blacksmith in Brecknock township. To this union have come two children: Katie, who married Rudy M. Matz, of Alleghenyville; and Lewis Y., who is assisting his father, and who is married to Sallie Matz.

(VI) John B. Horning, son of Jeremiah, was born Oct. 24, 1882. His early education was obtained in the township schools, and he later attended Perkiomen Seminary, from which he graduated in 1902, being among the first ten in class of fifty and one of the commencement speakers. He was a prominent athlete, being captain of the class track team in his senior year and a member of the relay team which carried off first honors at the University of Pennsylvania relay races. In the fall of 1899 he began teaching in his native township, teaching the Remps school two terms, and at Alleghenyville one term. In the spring of 1903 he bought out his father's store at Alleghenyville, and in conducting this has proved he chose wisely when he adopted a mercantile career. He is courteous and obliging, and keeps up a good stock, successfully meeting the wants of his large and increasing custom. He served as assistant postmaster to his father from 1902 to 1905, when the office was discontinued by the establishment of the rural mail route. Mr. Horning is a young man who has earned his prosperity by a close adherence to the high business principles instilled in him by his honored father, and he keeps wide awake to the interests of the community. He was one of the charter members of Knauer Lodge, No. 3052, Knights and Ladies of Honor, organized Sept. 16, 1908, at Knauer's, Pa., and its first financial secretary.

In 1901 John B. Horning was married to Lillie Kachel, daughter of Albert and Maggie (Griffith) Kachel, well known farming people of Brecknock township. Four children have blessed this union, namely: Stanley, Inza, Esther and Elsie. Mr. Horning has been active in the Republican party, has served on the election board, and has been the township committeeman since 1906. He is a Lutheran in religious faith, attending the Allegheny Union Church, and he served as superintendent of the Sunday-school from 1900 to 1907.

(V) Aaron Horning, a truck farmer at Alleghenyville, was born there Oct. 15, 1872, son of Rev. Benjamin and Luzetta Horning. He was reared upon the farm and attended the township schools, after the manner of the farmer boys of that locality. He remained on the home farm assisting his father until 1894, when he began for himself on the old homestead, which consists of forty-seven acres of good truck land. He pays especial attention to trucking and goes to the Reading market once or twice a week, having stand No. 66 at the Bingaman street market. He has met with success in his work, and is hard-working and honest. He and his family are Mennonites, and have their place of worship below Alleghenyville.

Mr. Horning was married in 1893 to Mary Ellen Brendel, who was born Dec. 23, 1871, daughter of Esaias and Eliza (Kline) Brendel, farming people of Brecknock township. They have two sons, Paul, born Nov. 17, 1894, and Howard, born Feb. 11, 1898. Mr. Horning owns the old farm where his father lived and died, while the home of his grandfather stood but a short distance to the southeast.

CONRAD SAMUEL REBER, M. D. Among the prominent members of the medical profession in Berks county, Pa., none is more favorably known in his locality than Dr. Conrad Samuel Reber, whose chosen field of practice is the village of West Reading. Dr. Reber was born Sept. 23, 1876, at Bernville, Berks county, son of William H. and Fyetta (Stoudt) Reber.

John Reber, great-grandfather of Dr. Conrad S., was a farmer of Penn township, where he died in 1860, at the age of eighty-five years, being a son of Valentine Reber, who is buried in the old Union Church cemetery at Bernville. John Reber married Salome Steiner, and they had a family of nine children, namely: Conrad; Elizabeth; Samuel m. Catherine Berger; Eva m. John Christian Berger; Sarah m. Peter Umbenhauer; Christiana m. Daniel Kline; Catherine m. Michael Kline; Polly m. Daniel Schneider; and Molly m. Jacob Kline. John Reber was buried in the old homestead burial ground, still maintained, in which five generations of the family, in a direct line, rest, namely: John, who died in 1860; his son Conrad, his grandson William, his great-grandson John, and his great-great-grandson Robert.

Conrad Reber, grandfather of Dr. Conrad, was a farmer of Penn township, where he was born on the old homestead in 1798, the property being situated along the Northkill, about a mile north of Bernville. He was an active member of the German Baptist (Dunkard) denomination, and in that faith he died in 1872. He m. Susan Hiester, daughter of Daniel Hiester, of Upper Bern township, and they had a family of thirteen children: John m. Caroline Strause; William; Polly m. Joseph Lengel; Daniel m. Catherine Gicker, (second) Elizabeth Smith, and (third) Mary Kerper; Henrietta m. Harrison Stoudt; Elizabeth m. Michael Ebling; Joel; Isaac m. Sarah Stump, and five died young. After the decease of his first wife, Conrad Reber married Caroline Bickel, but no children were born of this union.

William H. Reber, father of Dr. Conrad S., was born in 1831, on the Reber homestead, where he was reared to manhood, and spent his entire life there, dying in 1904. He married Fyetta Stoudt, daughter of William Stoudt, of the same place, and by her had seven children: Harrison m. Carolina Levan; Levi m. Amelia Faust; Franklin m. Lillian Naftzinger; Annie m. Aaron Eckert; Conrad S.; and two died young.

Conrad Samuel Reber received his preliminary education in the local schools, and then attended Juniata College, graduating from the commercial department in 1893, and the general department two years later. Upon his return home, he taught school in Penn township, in the Scull Hill school for three terms, and with this additional preparation he selected the profession of medicine for his vocation, and entered the office of W. G. Beyerle, at Bernville, for the purpose of reading medicine under his instruction. In 1899, he entered Jefferson Medical College, at Philadelphia, and graduated in 1903, when he located at West Reading. Here he has carried on a successful practice to the present time, and in 1905 he erected one of the finest dwellings in the place for his home and office.

Dr. Reber married Tillie E. Ruth, daughter of Edwin G. Ruth.

IRVIN S. BRANT, a prosperous produce commission merchant of Reading, Pa., was born at Sanatoga, Montgomery Co., Pa., Dec. 9, 1869, son of Washington R. and Sarah (Stettler) Brant.

As far as is known, the family is of German descent. The grandfather of Irvin S. Brant was Samuel M. Brant, a farmer of Montgomery county, the farm on which he operated still being in possession of the family, as it has been for one hundred years. The children of Samuel M. Brant and his wife were: Elizabeth m. Henry Boos; Susannah m. Henry Lindman; Mary m. Isaac Truckmiller; Hannah became Mr. Truckmiller's second wife; Joseph; Nathan; Frederick; Samuel, Jr.; and Washington R. In religious belief the family were members of the Dutch Reformed Church.

Washington R. Brant received his education in the schools of Montgomery county, and when a youth learned the milling business. With his brother, Nathan, he conducted a general store for several years, later selling out his interest to engage in farming on the old homestead. Mr. Brant was very prominently connected in Sanatoga, Montgomery county. He and his wife became the parents of eight children, six living: Mary and Rebecca died at ages of nine and eleven years, respectively; Frank is secretary of the North American, Philadelphia; Samuel S. is a farmer of Sanatoga; Newton C. is at home, engaged in farming; Irvin S.; Annie m.

Edward Scheffey; and Kate is at home. The family are members of the Reformed Church, although the mother is a Lutheran. Washington R. Brant died in February, 1909, the last of the family of his generation.

Irvin S. Brant left home when twenty-one years of age, having received his education in the common schools of his native locality, and started out first as a salesman for the Philadelphia Press, with which concern he remained but a short time. He then secured a clerkship in a grocery store in Philadelphia, but on account of failing health returned to his home, remaining one year. In 1893 he came to Reading, accepting a position as clerk with the Reading Cold Storage Company, and, after being with the firm for one year, was promoted to the position of bookkeeper the second year. He then became public circulating agent of the Public Ledger, but, after remaining with that organization three years, returned to Reading, being elected Secretary and superintendent of the Reading Cold Storage Company. Fifteen months later, Mr. Brant resigned this position and formed a partnership with Ahrens & Richards, commission merchants, and after one year purchased the two partners' interests in the business. He has been successful in his venture, handling eggs and butter principally, and he distributes about two tons of the latter and fifty crates of the former per week. Mr. Brant buys the entire output of two creameries and the partial product of five others, this being in addition to what he purchases from the farmers.

In 1899 Mr. Brant married Miss Elizabeth Geist, of Pottstown, Pa., and the one child born to this union died in August, 1908. In political matters, Mr. Brant is a Democrat.

FRED D. ARNOLD, a well known resident of Womelsdorf, Pa., who is engaged in the undertaking business, and also carries on cigar making, was born Feb. 12, 1871, in Womelsdorf, son of William and Lizzie (Stettler) Arnold.

Martin Arnold, the progenitor of the Arnold family in Berks county, was a native of Germany and emigrated to America on the brigantine "Mary," which arrived at Philadelphia, Aug. 25, 1752. In 1759 he had settled in Heidelberg township, and in that year paid a federal tax of $7.98, or three pounds. It appears that he was married before his emigration. Among his children were: John had sons, Isaac, Daniel, William, Samuel, John, Henry and Amos; Jacob; and Rebecca married Daniel Schneider.

Jacob Arnold, son of Martin, was born July 10, 1787, and died Jan. 15, 1850, aged sixty-two years, six months, five days. He was a brick-layer by trade, and built a house on Second street, Womelsdorf, where he died, and he was buried in the borough. Mr. Arnold saw service in the war of 1812, and was a good and upright citizen. He married Christmas Day, 1812, Eve Catherine Fidler, born in 1790, who died in Fairfield county, Ohio, in her eighty-fourth year. To them were born seven children: Eli died at Womelsdorf; Harry died in Fairfield county, Ohio; Lovina m. Benjamin Peifer, and died in Marion township; Jacob m. Catherine Moore, daughter of William Moore, of Reading, and died at Womelsdorf; Mary Ann m. Fred Killis (whose father came from Germany and settled and died at Womelsdorf); William; and Daniel, twin of William, died in Fairfield county, Ohio, in 1905. All of the family are deceased with the exception of William, who is still at Womelsdorf.

William Arnold, father of Fred D., was born Nov. 2, 1822, in Womelsdorf, where he attended school for a limited period, his teachers being Walter Stephen and Francis Vessel, both natives of Ireland. They were strict disciplinarians and learned men. After leaving school William Arnold learned the cabinet making trade and the undertaking business at Stouchsburg, from Samuel Burkholder. He started in business at Womelsdorf in 1860, and he has since carried it on here, with the exception of the time he spent in the Civil war. When he first started in the business Mr. Arnold was in the service of a Mr. Moyer, who died years later, since which time Mr. Arnold's business has been the only one of the kind in the borough. He has buried over 1,700 people during his long career in the business, is the oldest undertaker in Berks county, and is widely known.

In 1862 Mr. Arnold enlisted in the Civil war as a member of Company D, 55th P. V. I., and rendered valuable services to his country, being twice wounded while in action, receiving a gun shot wound in the right arm at the battle of Duvall's Bluff and later a flesh wound in the side. He was foreman of the carpenters at Beaufort, S. C., for a period of eighteen months, having charge of thirty men. He was mustered out of the service at Richmond, Va., at the end of the war, with an excellent record. Mr. Arnold is a member of the New Lutheran Church.

In 1857 Mr. William Arnold was married to Lizzie Stettler, born May 13, 1832, daughter of Francis and Annie (Reinhart) Stettler, of England, whose marriage, however, took place at Pottstown, Pa., and they later resided at Bernville. Six children were born to this union, namely: Eva Ann m. Samuel Kurtz, mentioned elsewhere; Francis J. is a shoe merchant of No. 706 Penn street, Reading; Mary Catherine m. (first) Elias Hopkins, of Shenandoah, Schuylkill Co., Pa., and (second) Charles Fausnacht, foreman of the Lebanon Stove Works; Sallie died in infancy; William E. is a resident of Womelsdorf; and Fred D.

Fred D. Arnold was educated in the borough schools, and when still a lad began to earn his own living, being reared to the undertaking business in his father's establishment, of which he took charge in 1896, and which he has carried on with the same success that attended his father's efforts. Mr. Arnold also learned the cigar making trade in 1888, and since Oct. 24th of that year he has carried it on in the employ of the Valentines. In politics he is a Democrat, and for three years served as a school director. He holds membership in Golden Rule Lodge No. 59, I. O. O. F., American Mechanics, No. 127, both of Womelsdorf; and the Ridgely Protective Association, of Worcester, Mass., which is a branch of the I. O. O. F. He and his family are Lutheran members of Zion's Union Church, of Womelsdorf.

On July 1, 1893, Mr. Arnold was married to Annie Good, daughter of George and Rebecca (Anthony) Good, of Lancaster county. No children have been born to this union.

CAMERON E. STRAUSS, of the real estate firm of Strauss & Company, Reading, Pa., is a descendant of the Strauss family which settled Strausstown, Berks county. Two brothers came to America from Germany—John and Philip—as early as 1700, and took up large estates. Our subject's grandfather, Solomon, lived at Strausstown, and there spent his life in farming.

Joel S. Strauss, the father of Cameron E., was a merchant tailor at one time, and also followed farming near Strausstown, the land there still being in the possession of the family. He enlisted in the Civil war, and served gallantly throughout that long struggle, at the close of which he received his honorable discharge. He married Amelia R. Miller, daughter of William L. Miller, a marble dealer of Myerstown, and six children were born to this union, two of whom, Elizabeth and William, died in early childhood. The survivors are: Charles A., assistant superintendent of the Prudential Life, at Baltimore; Laura, wife of W. Wray, of Bridgeport, Conn.; Sallie K., wife of William Labe, of Myerstown; and Cameron E.

Cameron E. Strauss was born in Myerstown, May 5, 1869. He was educated in the public schools of Reading, graduating from the high school in 1886. He then became stenographer for C. H. Schaeffer, and drifted into the real estate business, trading as Strauss & Co., E. Carroll Schaeffer being the partner. Mr. Strauss is a member of the P. O. S. of A., the Knights of Friendship, the Sons of Veterans, and Isaac Hiester Lodge, No. 660, F. & A. M. In politics he is a Republican, and since January, 1891, has held five commissions as notary public.

Mr. Strauss married Minnie I. Schwartz, daughter of Charles and Carrie B. Schwartz, of Allentown, Pennsylvania.

THOMAS JOSEPH SMITH, an enterprising young farmer and poultry raiser of Windsor township, Berks county, was born on his father's farm in this township, Sept. 13, 1871, son of John R. and Sarah (Mengel) Smith.

Andraes Smith, a native of Germany, who was the immigrant ancestor of this family in America, settled in Berks county prior to 1750, and was the progenitor of a numerous offspring.

Michael Smith, son of Andraes, born Jan. 25, 1796, who died July 12, 1859, was twice married. His first wife, Elizabeth Reber, daughter of John Reber, became the mother of four daughters. His second wife, whom he married Jan. 24, 1829, was also named Elizabeth Reber (she was a daughter of Jacob Reber). They had a family of twelve children, eight of whom grew to maturity, namely: Jeremiah, Thomas, David, Michael, Joseph, Jacob, Mary (m. Jacob Adam) and Catherine (m. John Kerschner).

Joseph Smith, grandfather of Thomas J., born Nov. 15, 1809, was a well-known farmer and extensive land owner of Windsor township, owning several good properties near Windsor Castle. He held many public offices and was very prominent in his day. His children were: John R., Jacob, Maria, Daniel, Joseph L., S. Paul, William and David.

John R. Smith, who since the spring of 1896 has lived retired in Virginville, was born and reared upon a farm in Windsor township, and followed agricultural pursuits all of his life until his retirement. He owned two large properties, selling one to his son Thomas J. for $7,000 a few years ago, and the other to his son-in-law. Mr. Smith married (first) a Miss Trexler, and they had one daughter, Mary (m. Logan Dreibelbis). Mr. Smith m. (second) Sarah Mengel, daughter of Joseph Mengel, and their children were: Emma m. Benjamin Levan; Alice m. John Bortz; Maurice m. Annie Monroe; Agnes died aged twenty-six years; Senora m. John Landis; Thomas J.: Samuel m. Sabia A. Baer; James m. Ella Heinly; David m. Susan Dreibelbis; Hettie (twin to David) died aged eleven years; Ella m. Daniel Boyer; John died in childhood; and Sallie m. Allen Hoffman.

Thomas J. Smith received his education in the township public schools, and has lived upon the same farm all of his life. In 1896 he began farming for himself on his father's farm, and after nine years of tenant farming purchased the property, which consists of 160 acres of good, fertile land, eight acres being timber land. Mr. Smith is a successful farmer. He uses the latest improved machinery, and in addition has two wind pumps, which pump his water supply to the house and barn. Mr. Smith has made a specialty of poultry raising, and in this he has been immensely successful, in 1903 raising 124 turkeys and 500 chickens. He has a fine chicken yard, and here matters are arranged very conveniently. He averages about fifteen head of cattle the year around. He has a home cream separator, and his fine quality of creamery butter finds a ready market. Honest and industrious, energetic and enterprising, Mr. Smith has made his farm one of the fine ones of his community, and the success which he has gained has been well deserved. He is popular in the vicinity of his home, where he has a number of friends, drawn to him by his many sterling qualities of character.

On Nov. 26, 1892, Thomas J. Smith married Miss Hettie L. Dunkleberger, daughter of Samuel and Fianna (Engel) Dunkelberger, and to them have been born three children, as follows: Florence M., born June 13, 1894; Nevin B., born March 28, 1897; and Irwin A., born Nov. 20, 1900. In political matters Mr. Smith is a Democrat, and is a tower of strength in the ranks of his party in this section. He has been chosen by his fellow citizens to represent them in various county conventions as a delegate, and his service as a member of the school board of the township for six years was eminently satisfactory to all concerned. Mr. Smith for some of this time was secretary of the board. He and his family are members of Zion's Union Church, belonging to the Reformed denomination, and he was a deacon of the church for three years.

JAMES H. RENNINGER, of Reading, engaged in the contracting business, was born Aug. 21, 1851, in New Berlinville, Berks county, son of Josiah and Matilda (Gilbert) Renninger.

Jacob Renninger, his grandfather, was a merchant and farmer of Montgomery county, Pa., and a very prominent man in his day. He married Fannie Hoover, and they had the following children: Sophia m. Deeter Smith; Mary Ann m. Simeon Snyder; Josiah m. Matilda Gilbert; Susan m. Abraham Croll; William. The father of this family was a Lutheran in religious belief, and a Democrat in politics.

Josiah Renninger was a general merchant at Gilbertsville, Montgomery county, and later at New Berlinville, Berks county, and also carried on lumbering, throughout his business career. He died at New Berlinville, in 1853, aged thirty-four years. He married Matilda Gilbert, who bore him four children: Percival, James H., Emma and Rose. In 1862 Mrs. Renninger married Rev. Daniel Wieand, a minister of the Evangelical denomination. No children were born to this union.

James H. Renninger was brought to Reading by his mother in 1861, and his education was received in the public schools of that city. He later took a course in the Freeland Seminary (now Ursinus College), under A. H. Fetterolf, principal of Girard College. In 1869 he obtained employment at the Stichter hardware store as clerk, continuing there until after the fire in 1872. In 1873 he entered the employ of Lerch Brothers, across the street, and continued with that firm until 1882, when he went into business with J. H. Obold, under the firm name of J. H. Obold & Co., H. McKnight also being a member of the firm. Later Messrs. Obold and Renninger purchased Mr. McKnight's interest, the firm continuing in business under the same name until the spring of 1903. At this time Mr. Renninger's health became impaired, and for several months he traveled through the Western States, engaging, after his return, in contracting at Boyertown. In this business he has continued to the present time with much success, being now located at No. 46 North Third street, Reading. He built twenty-five residences in Boyertown and seventeen in Pottstown, and has purchased the beautiful sandstone building of Jacob Wallock, the property being one of the finest in Boyertown and very desirable for residential purposes. Mr. Renninger is a thirty-second-degree (Philadelphia) Scottish Rite Mason, belonging to St. John's Lodge, No. 435; Excelsior Chapter, No. 237; Reading Commandery, No. 42, K.T., and the A. A. O. N. M. S. He is secretary and treasurer of the Masonic Temple and Building Trust Company. He is an official member of the Memorial Church of the Holy Cross.

In 1872 Mr. Renninger was married to Catherine Williams, daughter of John B. Williams, and six children have been born to this union: Clarence, who is in the employ of J. H. Obold & Co.; Marion; Estelle, m. to Walter S. Painter, chief architect of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, with office and residence at Montreal, Canada; Paul, an assistant of his father; Catherine, and James, Jr.

ALLEN G. MERTZ, an enterprising and energetic citizen of Mount Penn borough, Berks county, where he is engaged in the retail milk business, was born Sept. 26, 1873, in Longswamp township, Berks county, son of Charles and Catherine (Gerr) Mertz.

The Mertz family is quite numerous in Berks and surrounding counties, and the name is perpetuated by the town Mertztown, in Longswamp township, and Mertz's church in the same section. Johannes Märtz (also Maertz), son of Johannes Märtz, of Stockhausen, Wurtemberg, Germany, came to America in 1749. In 1756 he married Rosina Hase, daughter of Melchior Hase, and their children were: Johannes, born 1757; Anna Maria, 1760; Maria Salome, 1763; Melchior, 1765; and Peter, 1769-1833.

Peter Mertz, son of Johannes, m. in 1793, Catharine Phillips, of Bern township, and had children, Christina, John, Peter, Samuel, Kate, Rosina and Elizabeth. Peter, the father, was born in Oley township, but died at Orwigsburg, where he had lived some years.

Charles Mertz, a descendant of Johannes Märtz, was an agriculturist of Longswamp township. He died there in 1873, when still in young manhood. By his wife Catherine Gerr, he had two children: Reuben, a carriage maker of Mertztown; and Allen G. His widow married (second) Lewis Roeder, by whom she had five children, and died in 1882, at the age of about thirty-six years.

Allen G. Mertz received but meagre educational advantages, being compelled to go to work at an early age, as his father had died when he was but four months old. He was hired out on the farm of Daniel Otto in Lehigh county, where he continued for seven and one-half years, and continued working on farms at different places until 1896, with the exception of four years, having spent two years at shoe mending, which he had learned from a Mr. Berlin, of Reading, and two years in the Reading car shops. He is an excellent mechanic, but was forced to give up this work on account of poor health. In 1893 he went from Lehigh county to Reading, where he resided until 1899, and in the latter year located in Mount Penn, where he has made his home ever since. In 1900 he engaged in the milk business, running a team daily to Reading, where he retails 150 quarts daily. In 1906 Mr. Mertz erected a handsome residence on Friedensburg avenue, Mount Penn, and here he has since resided. In politics he is a Republican, and he is fraternally connected with the Jr. O. U. A. M. as a charter member of Council No. 753, Allentown, which was organized in 1889. In religious belief he and his wife are Lutherans, and attend Mt. Penn Chapel. He was confirmed by the late Rev. Mr. Leopold, at Cetronia Church in Lehigh county.

In the year 1900, Mr. Mertz married Ida Kuhns, daughter of Francis and Messena (Schneck) Kuhns and granddaughter of George and Angelina (Bachman) Kuhns, both parents and grandparents being farming people of Macungie township, Lehigh county. Mr. and Mrs. Mertz have one son, Irwin Allen, born Sept. 19, 1900, who is now attending school.

MICHAEL F. FLEISHER, proprietor of the "Centre Hotel" in Cumru township, situated on the New Holland (State) Road, two and one-half miles southwest of the city of Reading, was born Dec. 13, 1870, in Lancaster county, Pa., son of George and Sarah (Fox) Fleisher.

George Fleisher, grandfather of Michael F., was a farmer in Lancaster county, where he died at the age of twenty-five years, his widow surviving until June 28, 1905, when she passed away in her seventy-eighth year. To George and Polly (Hossler) Fleisher there was born one son, George, father of Michael F. He was born on the farm in Lancaster county, and when a young man learned the trade of stone mason, which he still follows at Ephrata, Lancaster county. He married Sarah Fox, daughter of Joseph and Mary A. (Louders) Fox, and she died in 1888, the mother of children as follows: Michael F.; Joseph J., of Reading, m. Alice Emore, and has two children—Clara and Bloomer; Annie m. William P. Richwine, of Oakbrook, Pa., and has five children—Edna, William, Donald, Elizabeth and Reynold; and Katie m. William Kreamer, of Ephrata, Lancaster county, and has two children—Mabel and Miriam. In politics Mr. Fleisher was a Republican. The family were members of the Reformed Church.

Michael F. Fleisher was educated in the schools of Berks county, and after completing his education engaged at farm work for four years and at driving a team for a like period. The next four years were spent as an employe at the Reading abattoir, and in 1900 he engaged in the butchering business at Centre. He was very successful in this line, and in 1906 he purchased the well-known "Centre Hotel," on which he has made many improvements. He has been very successful in this line, and has made many friends throughout the community. He is a Republican in politics, while fraternally he is connected with Mohnton Lodge No. 137, K. G. E.; and Council No. 186, O. of I. A., of Shillington.

On March 23, 1889, Mr. Fleisher married Emma L. Lush, born Nov. 5, 1871, daughter of Francis and Rebecca (Fritz) Lush, and two children have been born to this union: Estella R., at home; and Paul L., at school. Mr. and Mrs. Fleisher attend Yocom's Union Reformed Church, in which he served as a deacon for four years.

HARRY SPANGLER, who has been connected with the Reading Hardware Company for a number of years, has proved his ability and worth. He was born in Reading in 1871, son of William R. and Annie (Seiders) Spangler, and grandson of Reuben Spangler.

Reuben Spangler was a native of Berks county, born in Heidelberg township, and was engaged all of his life as a farmer and veterinary surgeon, being very successful in these lines. He died in 1900, aged eighty-four years, while his widow, who survives him, resides in Reading. Mr. Spangler was a stanch supporter of the principles of the Democratic party. He and his estimable wife were the parents of six children: William R.; Samuel R.; David; Maria married William Toole: Reuben, deceased; and Sarah married Franklin Eagle.

William R. Spangler, father of Harry, was also born in Lower Heidelberg township, and until he came of age worked upon a farm. Locating in Reading, he was first employed on the Schuylkill canal as boatman, later engaging with Jacob Shaffer, an extensive coal dealer of the city, with whom he remained several years. At the end of this time he secured a position with the Reading Hardware Company, as polisher, in the finishing department, and was also employed by the Reading Stove Works as foreman, and the Cycle Manufacturing Company. In 1905 he accepted a position with the Berks County Trust Company, as messenger, and he has since been filling that position in a highly creditable manner. He married Annie Seiders, and they had two children: Harry; and John W., cashier for the Light & Hill Insurance Company of Reading, who married Annie Young, of Allentown, Pa., and had six children —John, Catherine (deceased), Paul, Edwin, and two who died in infancy. The family are members of the Reformed Church.

Harry Spangler received his education in the schools of Reading, after leaving which he learned the trade of polisher in the shops of the Reading Hardware Company, and here he has been engaged ever since. He is very popular among the young people of Reading, and is highly regarded by his employers as a steady, faithful man. Mr. Spangler was married in 1891 to Miss Elsie Trate, daughter of Urias Trate, and two children have been born to them: William and Herbert. Mr. and Mrs. Spangler are members of the Reformed Church. Fraternally a member of the I. O. R. M., Mr. Spangler is identified politically with the Democratic party. He is secretary and business manager of the Winona Band, at Mohnton, Pennsylvania.

JACOB C. KESSLER, superintendent of Jacob Kessler & Co., hat manufacturers of Mohnton, was born in Cumru township, June 4, 1875, son of Jacob and Christina (Scholl) Kessler, and was the first of his family born on American soil.

Balthaser Kessler, his paternal grandfather, was a native of the Rheinpfalz, Bavaria. He was an agriculturist, who owned and cultivated a tract of ten acres. He and his wife, whose maiden name was Mary Filaneous, were the parents of these children: Carl, who crossed the Atlantic eight times; Marguerite, deceased; Catherine, Mrs. Gottlieb Keiser; Jacob; Conrad, now residing in America; and Barbara, wife of Jacob Keuchel, of Germany.

Jacob Kessler was born in the Rheinpfalz, on Sept. 27, 1832. He received the prescribed education of the German schoolboy, and in the year 1854 he entered the army. After serving thirteen weeks he was given a furlough to visit his parents and spent two weeks at home. Instead of returning to the army, he made his way to Havre, France, and on Wednesday, Sept. 17, 1854, embarked for America. He landed at Castle Garden, Nov. 29th of that year, in company with his brother, Conrad, and at once made his way to Reading, in the vicinity of which he has ever since lived. During the first year he worked at whatever came to his hand, but afterward secured a place with Stauffer & Kutz to learn hat-making and he remained there eight years. The following twelve years were spent in the employ of Kutz and Arnold.

In 1875 Mr. Kessler with his brother Conrad, under the firm name of Kessler & Bro., embarked in the manufacturing of wool hats for men, boys and children. At first they met with only the most flattering results, but in the fall of 1879, the entire plant was destroyed by fire, entailing a loss of many thousands. Instead of rebuilding on the same site in Mohnton, the brothers returned to Reading, purchased the hat factory at Eleventh and Spruce streets and established themselves there for several years. Meantime in 1880 Jacob Kessler built his present factory at Mohnton and operated it under the name of Jacob Kessler and Co. The building is 46 x 72 feet, four stories high, and is partly run by water power from the Wyomissing creek. For some years he devoted his attention to this hat factory, but later was again associated with his brother in Reading, after which he once more concentrated his efforts on the Mohnton enterprise. The firm employs about sixty-five people and finds a ready market for the product all over the country.

On March 23, 1856, was solemnized the marriage of Jacob Kessler and Christina Scholl, a daughter of William Scholl. To this union nine children were born, viz.: Katie died in infancy; Mary m. John Keischman, a hatter of Mohnton; Henry died aged six; George died aged four; Charles m. Miss Elizabeth E. Shannaman, and had three children, William, Katie and Norma, and died when thirty years old; Barbara m. Dr. W. B. Schauer, of Pottstown; Julia m. William Rollman; Christina m. William Trout; and Jacob C. The family are members of St. John's Lutheran Church, of which Mr. Kessler was elder for many years. In politics he is a pronounced Democrat, and has often been sent as a delegate to county conventions.

Jacob C. Kessler studied in the township schools until he had completed the course offered there and then went to the Reading Business College. He was graduated in 1891, and at once entered his father's employ, where he has remained ever since, and now holds the responsible position of superintendent of the factory. In addition to these duties Mr. Kessler has been quite active in politics, working in the Democratic ranks. On June 4, 1904, his twenty-ninth birthday, he received the nomination of his party for the office of director of the poor for Berks county, and in the following fall was elected by a large vote. He still holds the place and has proved himself most efficient in meeting the demands thus made upon him.

On Dec. 23, 1897, Mr. Kessler married Miss Nellie C. Miller, daughter of Samuel K. and Mary (Hornberger) Miller, the former a retired hatter residing in Mohnton. Four sons have been born to this union, Charles N., John J., Carl M. and Warren B. Both Mr. and Mrs. Kessler are members of the St. John Lutheran Church, of Mohnton, of which Mr. Kessler has been secretary since 1890. Their home is a large one, handsomely furnished and surrounded by a beautiful lawn, and is conveniently located at Kesslertown, just above Mohnton, where the factory is situated. Fraternally Mr. Kessler is a member of the K. of P., Knights of the Golden Eagle, and the P. O. S. of A., all of Mohnton, and of Mt. Penn Lodge, I. O. O. F., of Reading.

WILLIAM L. DAUTH, who, in association with his younger brother, Luther G. Dauth, is engaged in a tinsmith business at Reading, being his father's successor, the latter now living retired, was born at Boyertown, Pa., Oct. 9, 1873, son of John P. and Amanda (Graul) Dauth.

Philip Dauth, great-grandfather of William L., was born in the Rheinpfalz, Germany, and came to America in 1835, locating at Newark, N. J., where he was engaged in contracting and building. Later in life he revisited his native land where he owned considerable real estate, and died and was buried there. He had five children.

Charles V. Dauth, son of Philip, was born at Kirchheimbolanden, Rheinpfalz, Germany, Jan. 29, 1814, and was a mere lad when he came to America. At Philadelphia, Dec. 11, 1838, he was married to Madelaide Mellert, born March 28, 1817, in Haslock, Germany, who died at Reading, March 7, 1854. Their children were: John P.; Lewis, born June 26, 1842; George W., born Aug. 13, 1844; Mary T., born Oct. 29, 1847, m. Charles Dauth; and Arnold, born March 7, 1850. The maternal grandparents of this family were John and Theresa (Kleily) Mellert, natives of Germany. Charles V. Dauth died at Reading, July 6, 1898, aged eighty-four years.

John Philip Dauth, father of William L., was born Oct. 29, 1840, at Philadelphia, Pa. He was educated in the public schools of Reading, to which city he was brought when three years of age. He was reared in the family of the late John Mellert from the age of nine years, and when ten years old began to learn the tinsmith, plumbing and gas fitting trades with his father. He was one of the first of the young men to show a willingness to offer his life and services to his country in the Civil war. His services merit an extended account and hereby is attached as nearly a complete army record as it has been possible to secure:

John P. Dauth was enrolled at Reading, April 7, 1861, and was mustered into the State service at Camp Easton on the seventh of the following June. He was in Company F, 3d P. R. V. C., as musician, and this regiment served in the First Brigade, McCall's Division, Army of the Potomac. They were there drilled until June 27, when they were sent on to Washington, D. C., to protect the capital of the country. On July 27, 1861, they were mustered into the United States service, and a division was formed in Tennallytown, where they laid several months. From there they came to Camp Pierpont where they were quartered for the winter. The first fight was at Tennallytown, where a decisive victory was won. The other engagements were as follows: reconnoitred to Drainsville, Oct. 19, 21, 1861; skirmish near Drainsville, Dec. 20th; advanced on Manassas, March 10, 14, 1862; to the Peninsula, June 8-11; Seven Days battle, June 26 to July 1; battle of Mechanicsville (Beaver Dam Station); battle of Gaines' Mill, June 27; Charles City Cross Roads (White Oak Swamp), June 30; Malvern Hill, July 1; movement to reenforce Pope, Aug. 14-23; Northern Virginia campaign, Aug. 24 to Sept. 2; battle of Gainesville, Aug. 28; Groveton, Aug. 29; Bull Run, Aug. 30-31; Chantilly, Sept. 1; Maryland campaign, Sept. 6-20; South Mountain, Sept. 14; Antietam, Sept. 16-17; moved to near Warrenton, Oct. 26 to Nov. 6; Fredericksburg, Dec. 12-15; Hamilton's Crossing, Dec. 13; Burnside's second campaign, Jan. 20-24, 1863; duty in defense of Washington, February, 1863, to January, 1864; moved to Martinsburg, W. Va., Jan. 5-7, 1864; expedition from New Creek to Moorefield, Jan. 31 to Feb. 6; raid on Virginia Central R. Mr. Dauth entered the service as a musician, was wounded in the second battle of Bull Run, Va., Aug. 31, 1862 (gunshot in left leg); also in battle of Antietam, Md., Sept. 17, 1862 (gunshot in left arm), and was mustered out June 30, 1864.

After the close of his military service, Mr. Dauth engaged in business for himself at No. 754 Penn street, Reading, where he continued until 1902, since which time his sons have continued the business at No. 18 South Eighth street. He retains his building on Penn street. He is the owner and proprietor of the Reading Granite Quarry, located at Mohnton, Pa., where he has given as many as thirty-five men employment at one time.

On April 23, 1865, John P. Dauth was married to Amanda Graul, a daughter of Samuel B. Graul, whose history appears in this volume. They had four children, namely: Adalaide M.; William L.; John S., born Aug. 22, 1875, died March 31, 1876; and Luther G., born at Reading, Sept. 13, 1877. Mr. Dauth and family are members of Old Trinity Lutheran Church of Reading, in which he has been very active and was connected with the Sunday-school for many years after he returned from the army. Fraternally he is a member of Chandler Lodge, No. 227, F. & A. M.; Excelsior Chapter, No. 237; Reading Commandery, No. 42, and a charter member of Rajah Temple. Formerly he belonged to Lu Lu Temple of Philadelphia. He organized Washington Camp, No. 61, P. O. S. of A., at Reading, in 1860, passed all the chairs and is still a member. He belongs also to Oley Lodge of I. O. O. F., is the father of that order at Reading, and is a past grand, having served five times. In politics he is an independent Democrat, and served as a member of the Reading common council in 1879-80-81 and 1882.

To the large business built up by John P. Dauth the sons William L. and Luther G. have still further added and now control a large part of the city trade in their line.

HARRY K. HIESTER, farmer of Penn township, was born on the old Hiester homestead in Bern township, this county, July 27, 1874, son of Harrison K. Hiester, and grandson of John Christian Hiester.

John Christian Hiester was a man of ample means, owning two farms near the well-known Bern Church, and he was noted for his fine personal appearance as well as for his good judgment and foresight. He and his wife are buried at Bern Church. He married Catherine Kramer, a native of Bern township, and they had five children: Benneville, Jared, Harrison K., Washington and Maria (who married John Eyrich). The oldest surviving member of this family, Washington Hiester (a twin of Harrison), is now residing on North Queen street, Lancaster, Pennsylvania.

Harrison K. Hiester, son of John Christian, was born in Bern township, Aug. 6, 1832, and died April 27, 1904; he was laid to rest in Bern churchyard. He was the owner of the old homestead, consisting of 134 acres, and later he bought an adjoining farm of 107 acres, from his brother Benneville, the transaction taking place in 1876. He was an enterprising farmer and a man of progress in his community. In politics he was a Democrat. In religious matters he was a liberal supporter of the Reformed faith and of the Bern Church. He married Rosabella Kerschner, born Sept. 16, 1834, who died Feb. 24, 1878, aged forty-three years, five months, eight days. They had children as follows: Kate, widow of Aaron Bohn, lives at Mt. Pleasant; Ellen is the wife of J. F. Yeager; Thomas K. is a farmer of Bern township; Mary is the wife of Jonathan Ohlinger, of Penn township; Rosa is the wife of Adam Gruber; Sallie (deceased) was the wife of Cyrus Bohn; Annie is the wife of Henry Stamm, of Penn township; Jennie, unmarried, resides at Reading; Edward K. lives in Bern township; Harry K. is a farmer of Penn township; Lizzie, residing in Bern township, is the wife of Grant Hartman.

Harry K. Hiester received his early education in the schools of Bern township and later pursued his studies at the Keystone State Normal School, at Kutztown, Berks county. Remaining at home with his father until he was nineteen years old, he made his home with his sister, Mrs. Kate Bohn, for the next four years, at the end of that time commencing farming on his own account. He first lived on Joseph Reber's farm in Bern township, for one year, and then moved to the William Dundore farm, in the same township, for three years, after which he was on James T. Reber's farm, in Lower Heidelberg township, for two years. In October, 1904, he bought a place in Penn township from his father's estate, and there he has ever since resided, carrying on general agricultural pursuits. He has 118 acres of fine land, upon which he is continually making improvements, and he attends the Reading market once a week, having a steady demand for his products.

In 1895 Mr. Hiester married Miss Kate Mengel, daughter of William and Annie (Keim) Mengel, of Bern township, and granddaughter of Benjamin and Elizabeth (Snyder) Keim. Three children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Hiester, Lester, Charles and Carrie. Mr. Hiester is a member of Bern Reformed Church and, in fraternal connection, of the K. G. E. at Leesport. He is a Democrat in political opinion.

FRANK HARNER, a well known young business man of Reading, a member of the firm of Vogel & Harner, conducting a first-class restaurant at No. 661 Penn street, was born at Reading, June 12, 1874, son of Aaron and Sarah (Maurer) Harner.

The grandfather of Mr. Harner was William Harner, who was born in Exeter township, Berks Co., Pa. By trade he was a plasterer. He married Anna Moyer and two of their children still survive, namely: Aaron and Henry, the latter of whom follows the trade of bricklayer at Reading (m. Minnie Kline).

Aaron Harner, father of Frank, was born Sept. 22, 1844, in Muhlenberg township, Berks Co., Pa. He learned the shoemaking trade, and has been in this business ever since November, 1858. For a quarter of a century he has had his shop at No. 51 South Sixth street, Reading, and is one of the oldest workmen in the city. He married Sarah Maurer, who died in February, 1896, and is buried in the Charles Evans Cemetery. They had the following children: Charles died aged twenty-one years; Aaron died aged nine months; John died aged twenty-eight years; Emma m. James Gilmore and died aged thirty-six years; Lillie m. Lewis Bachofer and died aged twenty-six years; Harry died aged twenty-seven years; Frank; Samuel is employed by his brother Frank; Walter is also in Frank's employ; and James. The father of this family is a member of the Second Reformed Church. He belongs to Emblematic Lodge, No. 169, I. O. O. F.

Frank Harner attended the public schools in boyhood, and when he went to work it was as an employe of E. B. Slicter, who conducted an oyster business at Sixth and Cherry streets, Reading, and remained there for five years. After this he worked for a time for Frederick Peck, and in July, 1888, entered the employ of Mr. Vogel. In recognition of his years of faithful and efficient service, Mr. Vogel invited Mr. Harner in January, 1904, to become his partner and since then the business has been conducted under the firm name of Vogel & Harner.

Mr. Harner married Miss Carrie L. Luigard and they have one son, Theodore Franklin. Mr. Harner and family reside at No. 656 Penn street. He is a member of the Masonic fraternity, belonging to Lodge No. 227, F. & A. M., Reading.

DANIEL H. WEIDNER, engaged in truck farming in Berks county, was born March 6, 1875, in Ruscombmanor township, Berks county, son of William R. and Emma (Himmelreich) Weidner.

William R. Weidner was born Nov. 27, 1837, in Pike township, and when fourteen years of age began going to the public school, which he attended for a few winters only. He has been a lifelong farmer in Oley, Ruscombmanor, Alsace and Exeter townships, having spent the last twenty-six years in the latter, and the last twenty years in one location. Mr. Weidner is wonderfully preserved for his age, and works every day. In politics he is a Democrat, and he and his family worship at Spies's Church, being Lutheran members thereof. On Dec. 31, 1864, Mr. Weidner married Emma Himmelreich, and to them were born children as follows: Seth, a woolen goods manufacturer of Reading, m. Emma Clauser; Amanda m. Augustus Wentzel, a trucker of Alsace township; Emma m. George Haag, a hosiery manufacturer of Reading; William, a milk dealer of Exeter, m. Sallie Schmehl; Katie died aged twenty-two years; John H. and Daniel H. are twins, the former of whom has been an invalid since 1901; Thomas, a farmer of Muhlenberg township, m. Dora Buchert; Mary m. Cleaven Steffey, of Wyomissing; Valentine, a hatter of Reading, m. Irene Hinnershitz; and Misses Sallie and Lillie are at home.

Daniel H. Weidner attended the schools of Alsace township for two years and for several years those of Exeter township and at an early age went to work in Brumbach's woolen mills, at St. Lawrence, where he continued for twelve years, nine years of which time he was a weaver. This position he was compelled to resign on account of failing health, and on Jan. 2, 1906, he established himself in the milk business, which he successfully carried on, having a route in Reading and disposing of 130 quarts daily. He lived for some time in Mount Penn borough, when he and his family resided in their own home on Perkiomen avenue, which was erected by them in 1905. In 1907 he moved to his own farm and now as a trucker attends market regularly. In political matters Mr. Weidner is a Democrat, while his fraternal affiliations are with P. O. S. of A. Camp No. 230, of St. Lawrence, and Knights of Friendship Chamber No. 26, of the same town. He and his family worship at Spies's Church, he being a Lutheran, while his wife is a member of the Reformed denomination.

On Dec. 17, 1904, Mr. Weidner was united in marriage with Carrie Grommis, daughter of John and Rebecca (Weitzel) Grommis, and to this union there have been born four children: Helen Rebecca, Verna Carrie, Alice May and Elmer Harry.

CLAYTON IRVIN MILLER, undertaker and embalmer at Reading, in which business he succeeded his father, the late Ephraim S. Miller, was born in Reading, at the family home, No. 420 Washington street, Nov. 1, 1873.

Several generations of the Miller family have found homes and fortune in Berks county. Jacob Miller, great-grandfather of Clayton I., lived all his life in Robeson township, Berks county, and was a prominent farmer. He married Susanna Coplin, and their children were: Jacob, Levi, Henry, David, Harriet and Ann.

Levi Miller, son of Jacob and Susanna, was born in Robeson township, Oct. 11, 1817, and in his youth he learned the blacksmith's trade, which he followed some years, finally, however, turning his attention to farming, in which occupation he was engaged at the time of his death, May 10, 1849. In politics he was an old-line Whig, and he held a number of local offices. He married Susanna Scarlet (born June 29, 1814, died May 28, 1854), daughter of Ephraim and Lydia Scarlet, Quakers who formerly lived in Chester county, but afterward located on Hay creek, near Birdsboro, this county. Three children were born to Levi and Susanna (Scarlet) Miller, namely: Ephraim S., Elizabeth and Mary D., all now deceased.

Ephraim S. Miller, son of Levi, was born in Robeson township, March 31, 1840, and was educated in the common schools and in the school at Morgantown, under Prof. Tutton. The cabinet maker's trade attracted him, and after completing an apprenticeship thereto, served under Frederick Henninger, at Reading, with whom he remained six years, in August, 1861, he began for himself by opening a shop at No. 329 Penn street, Reading. At the end of six years he moved to No. 420 Washington street, and opened an undertaking establishment, and at the time of his death June 13, 1907, he was the oldest funeral director in Reading, having been continuously engaged in business for forty-six years. For some years in connection with his business he conducted a livery stable. He devoted much time to perfecting himself in his work, and for twelve yeears was a member of the Undertakers' Examining Board for the State of Pennsylvania, to which position he was appointed by four consecutive Governors. He was the only undertaker in Reading who was a member of the State Funeral Directors' Association, a society which he was instrumental in organizing, and in which he was a member of the Executive committee. Mr. Miller was a member of the First Baptist Church, which he had served as a trustee for forty-seven years, sixteen of which he was president of the board. His fraternal connections were with Lodge No. 62, F. & A. M.; Excelsior Chapter, No. 237, R. A. M.; Reading Commandery, No. 42, K. T.; Mt. Penn Council, No. 495, R. A.; Reading Council, No. 46, O. U. A. M.; and the K. G. E. In politics he was a Republican, and for three terms he represented the Seventh ward in the common council.

Ephraim S. Miller was twice married. On March 28, 1861, he wedded Amelia Seyfert, and their children were: Etna m. Charles O. Custer; Elizabeth m. John J. Kienzle; Clyde S.; Howard L.; Susanna m. William R. Monyer; Clayton Irvin; and Daniel. Mrs. Miller died April 7, 1891. Mr. Miller m. (second) Deborah H. Lee, daughter of Thomas and Rachel Lee, Quakers of Oley township, and she survives him. Mr. Miller's funeral was in charge of the Funeral Directors' Association of Pennsylvania, which organization held a meeting in Reading the week of his death, and interment was made in the Charles Evans cemetery.

Clayton Irvin Miller has always lived in Reading. The public schools afforded him a good education and as he had assisted his father in the undertaking business from the time he was thirteen years old, it was natural that he should later become associated with him in the business, and eventually succeed to it. At his father's death, Mr. Miller bought out the long established business, and he has since carried it on quite successfully, winning new laurels for the name. In October, 1891, he finished a course in embalming at the United States College of Embalming, New York City, which qualified him as an embalmer; and on March 12, 1897, he passed an examination before the State Board of Undertakers, and received a license to practise his profession throughout the State.

Fraternally Mr. Miller belongs to Lodge No. 62, F. & A. M.; Excelsior Chapter, No. 237, R. A. M.; Reading Commandery, No. 42, K. T.; Friendship Lodge, No. 247, Knights of Malta; Thaddeus Stevens Council, No. 252, O. of I. A., of which he was secretary ten years; Wyomissing Council, Royal Arcanum; and Camp No. 670, P. O. S. of A., which he served as secretary six years. He is a member of the First Baptist Church, in which he has been a trustee since 1902.

On Nov. 28, 1895, Clayton I. Miller was married to Mary E. Carrigan, born at Blandon, daughter of the late Samuel Carrigan, a native of Lancaster county. After the death of Mr. Carrigan, his widow became the wife of David Lebo, and now resides at No. 629 Laurel street, Reading. Mr. and Mrs. Miller have one son, Irvin Parker.

MARTIN H. FRITZ, an enterprising young business man of Shillington, Pa., engaged in the manufacture of hosiery and as an insurance agent, was born Dec. 15, 1876, on his grandfather's farm in Cumru township, Berks county, son of Henry G. and Susan (Hinnershitz) Fritz, and a descendant of Baltzer Fritz, the ancestor of the family.

Martin Fritz, great-grandfather of Martin H., is buried at Yocom's Church, as is also his wife, Catherine Kettig. He owned land in about the center of Cumru township, the ground on which the blacksmith shop stands having formerly been his property. The children of Martin Fritz were: Harry, John and George, of Lancaster county; Jacob, a blacksmith of Brecknock township, Berks county; Martin; Elias, who lived at the Center in Cumru township, on the old Fritz stand; Mary, who married Henry Foreman; Catherine; and Harriet, who married Cyrus Strohl, of Lancaster county, Pennsylvania.

Martin Fritz, son of Martin, was born Aug. 11, 1806, in Cumru township, and died in 1890, aged eighty-four years. He was a large land owner and farmer, and lived for a number of years in Wernersville, and later at Sinking Spring, his death occurring in Cumru township. He was buried at Yocom's Church. He married Margaretta, daughter of Henry Gring, and to them were born the following children: Henry, born April 1, 1833, died young; Lewis, born Dec. 17, 1834, conducts the "Fairview Hotel," in Cumru; John, born Jan. 23, 1837; Susan, born Nov. 18, 1838; Samuel, born in 1840; Henry G., born Aug. 25, 1842; Joseph died at the age of twenty years; Amos, born Dec. 25, 1846, died young; and Sarah m. John M. Grill.

Henry G. Fritz, father of Martin H., was born Aug. 25, 1842, in Cumru township, and began farming in 1863 near the "Green Tree" as a tenant. After living on different farms in the township until 1882, he moved upon the Fritz homestead near the "Five Mile House," and there he remained until 1893, having acquired this property in 1881. He is a Republican in politics, and for a number of years was a tax collector in Cumru township, a most responsible position. He is an official member of Yocom's Church, he and his wife belonging to the Lutheran congregation.

In 1862 Mr. Fritz was married to Susan Hinnershitz, daughter of George and Susan (Shade) Hinnershitz, and to them there were born these children: Rebecca m. Daniel Krick; Sallie m. Cyrus Althouse; Cyrus m. Ida Trexler; and Martin H. m. Ada G. Eberly.

Martin H. Fritz was educated in the public schools, the Keystone State Normal school, from which he was graduated in 1898, the Perkiomen Seminary, and later took the scientific course at the Keystone State Normal school. In 1896 Supt. E. M. Rapp licensed him to teach school, and in the fall of that year he began teaching at the Mt. Pleasant school in his native township. He taught in all six terms, and met with much success as an educator. In 1900 Mr. Fritz took a business course with the International Correspondence school, and in the following year engaged in the manufacture of seamless hosiery, erecting, in 1901, a factory at Shillington, 28x60 feet, two and one-half stories high. He employs fifty persons, and his output averages 400 dozen pair of hose daily. He manufactures a fine grade of goods, and his product finds a ready market in all of the large cities of the country. He does his own printing and extracting. In political matters Mr. Fritz is a Republican. He is a member of Yocom's Union Church, belonging to the Lutheran denomination thereof, and has been superintendent of the Sunday-school for the past three years, holding a like position for two years at the Mt. Pleasant Union Sunday-school.

S. HERBERT YODER, who is largely identified with the real estate and building interests of Reading, was born in this city in 1875, son of James E. and Rachel H. (Reed) Yoder.

James E. Yoder was a native of Churchtown, Lancaster county, and was a cabinet maker by trade, an occupation which he followed for many years in his native vicinity, also operating an undertaking establishment. He was a good business man and exemplary citizen, and had the respect and esteem of all who knew him. He died in 1896, at the age of sixty-seven years, in the faith of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Fraternally Mr. Yoder was a member of the I. O. O. F. James E. Yoder and his wife, Rachel H. (Reed), were the parents of four children, as follows: Mary R. and William R., deceased; Miss Martha; and S. Herbert. Mrs. Yoder is still living and is a faithful member of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

S. Herbert Yoder was educated in the common schools of Reading, and graduated from the Reading high school in the class of 1892. For a short time thereafter he clerked in a grocery store, and then entered the employ of the National Bolt, Nut & Rivet Works, with which company he continued until its consolidation in 1898 with the American Iron & Steel Manufacturing Company. He then went to Lebanon, Pa., in the latter company's employ, and continued with them until May, 1904, when he returned to Reading, becoming manufacturers' agent for machinery, and in this capacity represented eighty lines and companies. In 1905 he discontinued this business, and engaged in a real estate and building line, in which he has continued to the present time with much success. Mr. Yoder is considered one of Reading's able young business men. In political matters he is a Republican.

WORTHS A. DRIES, the genial proprietor of the "Keystone House," the leading hotel at Kutztown, Pa., was born Feb. 18, 1875, at Blandon, in Maiden-creek township, Berks Co., Pa., son of Daniel A. and Mary Jane (Hawkins) Dries.

The Dries family in America can be traced to the landing of what was probably the one and only Dries family of the country, at Philadelphia, on Sept. 29, 1733. The members of the family were listed as follows: Cornelius Dries; Johan Adam Dries; Andreas Dries; Barbara Elizabeth, aged twenty-four years; Maria Barbara, aged thirteen years; and Ann Maria, aged eleven years.

John Dries, great-grandfather of Worths A., was a farmer in Maiden-creek township and his remain lie buried at Moslem Church. He had these children: John, David, Daniel, Jacob, Elizabeth (m. Daniel Berndt), Lydia (died single) and Kate (m. John O'Beil).

David Dries, stone-mason and farmer, of Maiden-creek township, later of Perry township, was the grandfather of Worths A. He was born in 1816, and died in 1895 in his seventy-ninth year. He married Elizabeth Komp, and they had children as follows: Harriet m. Daniel G. Herbster; Cyrus, of Reading, is the father of nine sons and seven daughters (of whom three sons and one daughter died in youth; one son, Wirt, is a Lutheran minister, and one son, Charles, is a physician); George died suddenly at Lyons, in 1887, aged about thirty-five years; Daniel A. resides at Kutztown; David died aged twenty-one years; John is at Font, Chester Co., Pa.; William lives in Maiden-creek; Elizabeth m. Robert Andrews; and James is of Oley, Pennsylvania.

Daniel A. Dries, son of David, was born May 30, 1849, and is a retired citizen of Kutztown. For some years he engaged in farming in Maiden-creek township, but for twenty-five years he was engaged in a hotel business. He married Mary Jane, daughter of Samuel Hawkins, and they had children: Worths A.; Norman C. died in youth; Samuel J. is in the grocery business at Kutztown; William D. is a clerk at Kutztown; and Florence M. died in infancy.

Worths A. Dries was reared on the home farm, and was thirteen years of age when his father moved to Moselem Furnace, where he went into the hotel business. Mr. Dries was educated in the local schools in Maiden-creek and Richmond townships. For many years he was engaged with his father in the hotel business, and when his father retired, in the spring of 1906, he took charge of the "Keystone House," his previous training making him well acquainted with the demands of the public in this line. He has made this hostelry the leading one of the place.

On Jan. 13, 1906, Mr. Dries married Katie F. Dengler, daughter of Jacob G. and Sarah Ann (Diehl) Dengler and granddaughter of Henry Dengler, on the paternal side, and of Daniel Diehl, on the maternal side. Mr. and Mrs. Dries have one daughter, Mary Sarah. The family belong to the Lutheran Church. Fraternally Mr. Dries belongs to Castle No. 374, K. G. E., of Fleetwood, and Camp No. 103, P. O. S. of A., of the same place. He is president of the Dries Family Reunion, an association organized in July, 1906, for the purpose of bringing all of the kindred into communication, and the first united meeting was held at that time, proving one of great enjoyment.

JOHN G. SPEIDEL, engaged at Reading, Pa., in the manufacture of machinery, is a native of Balingen, Wurtemberg, Germany, born Dec. 4, 1855. He received his education in his native country, where he also learned the machinist's trade, and he came to America when a little over sixteen years of age, going from New York City after a year and a half to Philadelphia, where he followed his trade for about three and a half years. In 1876 Mr. Speidel returned to the Old World, and attended a technical school in Winterthur, Switzerland, and in 1879 he again came to America. For about two years he was employed in Philadelphia as a draughtsman, and in 1881 he came to Reading. For three years he was employed at the Scott foundry, in the drawing department, and he then went to Scranton, where he was employed as draughtsman by the Dickinson Manufacturing Company for a period of five years. Again returning to Reading in 1888, he engaged in business on his own account, first in a small shop at Orange and Bingaman streets, and in 1893 he located on Cherry street, above Eighth. In 1896 Mr. Speidel moved to Eighth street, below Chestnut, and there remained until 1900, when he erected on West Buttonwood and Gordon streets his present place of business, a two-story brick building, 130x95 feet, fitted with the latest improved machinery, and with an extensive yard for the storage of iron, wood, coal, etc. He manufactures Speidel's patent chain hoists, cranes, overhead tramways, elevators, dumb-waiters, special hoisting machinery, and he holds patents on all of his goods. Mr. Speidel was the inventor of all of his valuable patents, and was the architect of his own plant. He employs from thirty to thirty-five men, and his product finds a ready market all over the United States, as well as in nearly every foreign country in the world. Mr. Speidel resides at Mt. Penn, on Perkiomen avenue, and opposite Twenty-fourth street. Mr. Speidel made all the plans and superintended the construction of the present buildings of the Reading Hardware Company, which had been destroyed by fire July 2, 1888.

Mr. Speidel married Miss Sophie Weis, and to them have been born the following children: Clara, Marie, Lillian, Florence and John George, Jr. He is a member of St. Paul's Catholic Church. Few men have gained such great success as rapidly as has Mr. Speidel. He is skilled in his profession, and is energetic and enterprising, an employer who is kind and considerate. In all business transactions he is honest and trustworthy, and as a citizen he is held in the highest esteem in the community.

CONRAD B. HIGH, a representative business man of Reading, Pa., and secretary and treasurer of the Penn Planing Mill Co., of that city, was born in 1872, in Poplar Neck, Berks county, son of William P. High.

Mr. High was educated in the schools of Cumru township, after leaving which he worked on the home farm until he accepted a clerkship with Bright & Lerches. This position he resigned to become secretary of the F. Shunk Planing Mill, in which position he served until the new company was organized at the time of Mr. Shunk's death, under the style of Penn Planing Mill Company, Incorporated, with the following officers: Harry Shunk, president; K. M. High, vice-president; and C. B. High, secretary and treasurer. He is a young man of much business ability, and is very popular with the employees of the company, which is one of the large concerns of Reading. Mr. High is also one of the incorporators of the Saltkeatchee Lumber Company (Inc.), with mills at Olar, South Carolina, of which he is a director and at present secretary.

Mr. High was married in 1892 to Miss Katherine M. Shunk, and their union was blessed with three children: Edgar Earl, now (1909) fifteen years old; Clarence Stewart, who died in infancy; and Conrad Gordon, now aged seven years.

JAMES W. SUENDER, proprietor of the "Filbert House," is a new comer to Strausstown, Berks county. He is a native of Schuylkill county, Pa., born at New Ringgold in 1870, and is of German descent, his grandfather, George Suender, having been a native of Germany.

George Suender was a spinner by trade, and followed that occupation while in his native country. He emigrated to America in 1847, on the ship "Louisa Maria," landing at New York May 7th of that year, after a stormy voyage of seven weeks. He brought with him his wife and a small family. Settling in what was then Bloomsburg, in Bern township, Berks Co., Pa., Mr. Suender engaged as a laborer and hucksterer, and there remained until his death, in 1890, when he was seventy-two years old. His widow survived until 1903, reaching the age of eighty-four years. Her maiden name was Catherine D. Eisenhart, and they were the parents of the following named children: George C., who is a well-known citizen of Reading, Berks county; Charles E., M. D., now deceased; Catherine, m. to Charles Best, and now living at Leesport, Pa.; and Louisa, m. to George Kramer. In religion this family adhered to the faith of the Reformed Church. Mr. Suender was naturalized in 1855, and was a staunch Democrat in political opinion. He and his wife are buried in the Bern Church burial ground in Bern township.

Dr. Charles E. Suender, father of James W., was born in 1847 on board the vessel which brought the family to this country, about three days before they landed. He received his early education in the local schools in the vicinity of his boyhood home and his professional training at the Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, graduating in 1867. He began practice at New Ringgold, Schuylkill county, and was also at Middleport, that county, before removing to Gratz, Dauphin county, where he was located until his death, in 1877. His career, thus cut short at the early age of thirty years, was one of promise. He is buried at Gratz. Dr. Suender married Sue Lindenmuth, daughter of Michael Lindenmuth, and they had two children: Charles, who is now in the express business at Mahanoy City, Pa.; and James W.

James W. Suender attended the public schools and later a college in Iowa. Since he began life on his own account he has been engaged for the most part traveling for the McCormick Machine Company, by which concern he was employed for a period of eighteen years, his district including twenty-six States. Tiring of this business, however, he located for a time at Pine Grove, Schuylkill county, and in 1908 came to his present location at Strausstown, embarking in the hotel business. His house has twenty rooms, and though he is comparatively new to the hotel business he has a familiarity with the demands of the traveling public which well equips him for the position of host. He is courteous and attentive to the wants of his patrons and his house bids fair to become both popular and profitable. Socially Mr. Suender is a member of the I. O. O. F. He is a Republican in political sentiment but not active in such matters.

Mr. Suender married Lida Ley, and they have had one child, Lavinia. Mrs. Suender is a daughter of William Ley, granddaughter of Christian Ley, and great-granddaughter of an early resident of Berks county, in that part of the county now included in Lebanon. He owned a fine farm, a place now the object of popular interest, General Washington having stopped there in Colonial times.

CHARLES S. PEIFFER, one of Marion township's leading business men, who is engaged in the manufacture of cigars at Stouchsburg, was born at Mount Aetna, Pa., Jan. 13, 1878, son of Adam T. and Emma S. (Snyder) Peiffer.

Jacob Peiffer, also known as Johan Jacob, the progenitor of this large family of western Berks county, was born May 1, 1730, and died May 21, 1798, on his farm. His name appears among the taxable residents of the Tulpehocken section in 1759, he paying a tax of three pounds in that year. His wife, Margaretta, was born Nov. 28, 17—, and died in Feb. 2, 1792. Jacob Peiffer's will, which was made ten days prior to his death, is on record in Will Book A, page 378. His children were: Philip, George, Margaretha, Anna Maria and Heinrich; the latter two being under age when their father died, Simon Riegel was appointed their guardian. Philip and George Peiffer were the executors of their father's estate. Philip Peiffer was born June 4, 1769, and died Feb. 7, 1850. He married (first) Margaretha Miller, and (second) Catherine Kreiger, and had a son Philip (1802-1874), who m. Elizabeth Seibert. Johann George Peiffer was born Aug. 24, 1771, and died April 18, 1825.

Heinrich Peiffer, great-grandfather of Charles S., was born Jan. 6, 1782, and died April 10, 1847. He was a farmer of Marion township, and is buried in the old burial ground at Tulpehocken Church. Mr. Peiffer married Maria Riehl, born Oct. 12, 1777, died Jan. 16, 1837. They had children: Henry, born Sept. 25, 1804, died Sept. 7, 1867, m. Elizabeth Battorf (1807-1894), and Samuel.

Samuel Peiffer, grandfather of Charles S., was born Dec. 25, 1807, and died Dec. 13, 1888, and is buried at Tulpehocken Reformed Church. He followed the shoemaking trade in Marion township for forty years. His wife, Catherine Loose, born Feb. 18, 1821, daughter of John and Magdalena (Fisher) Loose, died in March, 1885. They had three children: Cecelia, who died aged five years; Samuel H., and Adam T.

Adam T. Peiffer was born on his father's farm in Marion township, Nov. 12, 1853, and worked thereon until sixteen years of age, when he learned the trade of saddler. He then resumed his work upon the farm, where he continued until thirty-four years of age, and in 1885 went to Stouchsburg, and has resided there to the present time. One year after locating in that town he learned the trade of cigar making, and since March, 1903, he has been interested in the business with his son. Mr. Peiffer is an active Democrat, and since 1882 has filled the office of clerk of Marion township, being elected on numerous occasions without opposition. He was committeeman of his district for three years, and has been a delegate to numerous county conventions. Fraternally he is connected with the Ancient Order of Good Fellows No. 42, of Stouchsburg; Camp No. 237, P. O. S. of A.; and Mrs. Peiffer is connected with the Ladies' branch of the Patriotic Order of Americans of Stouchsburg. Mrs. Peiffer has in her possession an ordinary walnut table, 34 x 48 inches in dimensions, which she obtained from her father, who bought it at Peter Snyder's sale for twenty-five cents, this sale occurring at the time of the remodelling of Reith's Church. This table, which was originally donated by one of the Reiths, was used as altar and communion table at the first communion services in the church, and later for thirty years was used by old Jacob Reith. This valuable old relic is 179 years old (1909) and a large sum has been offered Mrs. Peiffer for it. Mr. and Mrs. Peiffer are members of Tulpehocken (Welker's) Reformed Church, of which Mr. Peiffer was a deacon for three years. On Jan. 20, 1877, Mr. Peiffer married Emma S. Snyder, daughter of Aaron and Lovina (Lebo) Snyder, the former of whom was a justice of the peace for thirty years. One son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Peiffer, Charles S.

Charles S. Peiffer was still an infant when his parents removed to Marion township and settled near the Rev. Thomas Leinbach's estate, where he spent eight years of his boyhood, and at the end of that time came with his parents to Stouchsburg, where he attended the public schools. He learned the trade of cigar making when sixteen years of age, and worked at the bench until March 4, 1903, when he engaged in the business on his own account, and now employs fourteen hands. Most of his product is disposed of to jobbers, but in addition to this he has an excellent local trade, all of his goods being hand made. He manufactures the famous "Davy Campbell," named after Davy Campbell, a Civil war veteran, who participated in twenty-six engagements. This brave old soldier was very popular in Stouchsburg, and was an intimate friend of Mr. Peiffer. The cigar at once sprung into prominence and is now one of the best sellers in Berks county. Mr. Peiffer is prominently identified with the Patriotic Order Sons of America, and he was president of the third district of Berks county in 1903. He is a member of Camp No. 237, P. O. S. of A., at Stouchsburg, in which he has passed through the chairs; is a past grand of the Ancient Order of Good Fellows, No. 42, of Stouchsburg; and a member of Myerstown Lodge, I. O. O. F. He is an active Democrat in politics, and has held a number of township offices. He attends the Tulpehocken Reformed Church.

SAMUEL N. WALLEY, one of Reading's successful and representative business men, was born June 10, 1871, at Reading, son of Samuel Walley, a member of one of the old families of Chester county. The name was formerly spelled Walleigh.

Samuel Walley was born in Chester county, Pa., but for many years was engaged in business at Reading, conducting a large grocery in this city, in association with his sons. He died March 16, 1909. Mr. Walley married Miss T. Jane Lockhardt, and of their children are living: George William; Samuel N.; Charles H., also in the grocery business; and Mary E., wife of John S. Fredericks, who is in business in Reading.

Samuel N. Walley attended school in his native city until the age of fifteen years, and then accepted a position as clerk in a tea and coffee store, later filled the same position as manager of the Reading Branch, and subsequently became concerned with his brother in the grocery business, the firm being C. H. Walley & Bro. They have very suitably fitted business houses located respectively on the corner of Fifth and Elm streets, at No. 246 South Fifth street, and at No. 300 South Tenth street. Their business was one of the most extensive in the city, but Mr. Samuel N. Walley has disposed of his grocery business and is now interested in a real estate and building business, and owns two apartment houses, one located at Fifth and Elm, and the other at No. 133 South Eighth street.

Mr. Walley married T. Elmira Reinoehl, daughter of the late William H. Reinoehl, formerly a large hat manufacturer at Reading, and they have one son, Harold R. Mr. and Mrs. Walley are members of Grace United Evangelical Church, in which Mr. Walley is a trustee, steward and superintendent of the Sunday-school.

SOLOMON FREEMAN, the farmer on the famous Hillside Stock Farm, in Spring township, near Fritztown, Berks county, was born July 5, 1872, in Lower Heidelberg township. His family is an old and honored one in Pennsylvania.

Jurig (George) Freeman, the American ancestor of the family, was born in Germany in 1706, and came to this country in his thirty-third year, landing at Philadelphia, Aug. 27, 1739, in the ship "Samuel," commanded by Hugh Percy. It appears that he settled in Cumru township some time after 1750.

George Freeman, the great-grandfather of Solomon Freeman, was born Jan. 10, 1783, and died in 1825. He married Elizabeth Gerhard, born in 1786, and they became the parents of children as follows: George, born Dec. 5, 1808; John; Catherine, born May 7, 1811; Jacob, born Oct. 17, 1813; Elizabeth, born May 28, 1815; Benjamin, born June 1, 1817; Cornelius, born Nov. 29, 1819; Peter; and Samuel.

George Freeman, son of George, and grandfather of Solomon, was born Dec. 5, 1808, and died July 31, 1881, aged seventy-two years, seven months, twenty-six days. He married Sarah Breidenstein, of Cumru township, who lived near his parents. She was born March 17, 1807, and died March 23, 1893, aged eighty-six years, six days. They had these children: Moses, Catherine, Jacob, Benjamin and Levi. Mr. Freeman was a farmer in Spring township, whither he had moved early in life.

Benjamin Freeman, son of George, was engaged as a blacksmith at West Reading, Pa., for the long period of thirty years. At the end of that period he bought a farm of forty-nine acres in Lower Heidelberg township, Berks county, upon which he has since lived and followed farming. He married Sarah, Miller, daughter of Solomon Miller, of Spring township, and to whom have been born nine children, six of whom survive, as follows: George, Solomon, Ida (married to Henry Gehert), Alice (married to Daniel Kessler), William and Annie.

Solomon Freeman spent his boyhood days upon his father's farm, and attended the district schools of the locality. In 1887 he came to Fritztown, where he has since made his home. His home property consists of one acre of ground, upon which he built a nice frame house in 1894. Since 1902 he has managed the farming interests of the Hillside Stock Farm, which has a national reputation among horsemen. It is the property of Harry Orr, of Reading.

Mr. Freeman was united in marriage June 4, 1887, with Miss Matilda Smith, daughter of Joseph and Lydia Smith, of Fritztown, who are fully mentioned elsewhere. Mr. and Mrs. Freeman have one son, John Howard, born Feb. 1, 1888. They are Lutheran members of St. John's Church at Sinking Spring. Mr. Freeman has a burial lot in the cemetery at that church, where his grandmother is buried. He is a Democrat in politics. Socially he belongs to Castle No. 334, Knights of the Golden Eagle, at Sinking Spring.

FRANCIS W. LEVAN, a well-known young business man of Kutztown, Berks county, who has been engaged in the droving business for some years, was also well-known as the proprietor for some time of the "Black Horse Hotel."

Mr. Levan was born Nov. 29, 1876, at Lenhartsville, Berks county.

Jacob Levan, the immigrant ancestor of this family, came to America in 1717 with his two brothers. The Levans were French Huguenots, and the father of the immigrants was driven out of France because of his religious belief. Jacob Levan became the owner of large tracts of land in and around Kutztown, his residence being at the old Levan Mill, near Eagle Point. He was a man of great prominence, was a judge of Berks county for ten years, and during the French and Indian war was directed by the English to provision Fort Allen. In 1742 he was visited by Count Zinzendorf, the distinguished Lutheran missionary, who preached from the balcony of the old mill to a large concourse of people. Sebastian Levan, elder son of the immigrant, was the most distinguished man in all northeastern Berks, serving as a Colonel in the Revolutionary war, and as a member of the Committee of Safety, and of the Executive Council. He lived on the old mill homestead.

Jacob Levan (2), son of Jacob the immigrant, died in middle life, and is buried in the old graveyard on the David Levan farm. He had children: Jacob, Daniel, John and Maria.

Of these, John Levan, son of Jacob (2), had these children: Daniel, who lived in Whitehall, Lehigh county; Gideon, who lived near Kutztown, Pa.; John, who lived in Maxatawny township; Samuel, who lived in Zanesville, Ohio; David, who died on the old homestead; Harrison; Perry, who lived in Kutztown; six daughters; and one son, Benjamin, who died in infancy.

Harrison Levan, son of John and grandfather of Francis W., was born in Maxatawny township in 1812, and is the oldest citizen in that township. He came to Lenhartsville when a young man, and has been a resident and agriculturist thereof all of his life. In his advanced years Mr. Levan is very active and spry, and is still able to dance a "jig," which he occasionally does to the intense delight of his friends. To him and his wife Maria were born: James m. Judith Schlenker; Jacob m. Sally Leiby; John m. Isabella Bast; Daniel resides at Findlay, Ohio; William B. is the father of Francis W.; Francis m. Missouri Billich; Frederick m. Ellen Keim; Alvin m. Valaria Graver; Mary m. John Reitz; and Hettie m. James Graham.

William B. Levan, son of Harrison, a well-known drover of Lenhartsville, was born on the farm on which he now resides. He is extensively engaged in the cattle business, handling every year about 3,000 head, and also owns several valuable properties near Lenhartsville. He married Mary Stump, of Greenwich township, and to them were born the following children: Sallie m. Wilson Seidel; Wallace R. m. Ellen Heinly; Wilson M. m. Ellen Griffith; Francis W.; Alice M. m. Samuel Fink; Mamie m. Elwood G. Krause; and Annie is single.

Francis W. Levan was educated in the common schools of his native village, and in his boyhood days assisted his father in the cattle business, which he has followed ever since, except in the spring and summer of 1906, when he was proprietor of the "Black Horse Hotel, Kutztown." Although a young man, Mr. Levan has through thrift and economy accumulated some valuable property, and has a residence on Noble street, Kutztown.

On Nov. 3, 1901, Mr. Levan married Mamie A. Moyer, daughter of William L. and Susan (Seidel) Moyer, and two children have been born to them, Helen Marie and Mary Susanna.

ALFRED K. MOYER, merchant at Barto, Berks county, was born June 6, 1874, near Dillingersville, Lehigh Co., Pa., son of Levi B. and Elmira (Kepler) Moyer. The family has been settled in Bucks county for several generations.

Johannes (John) Moyer, great-great-grandfather of Alfred K. Moyer, came from Springfield, Bucks county, to Colebrookdale township, Berks county, settling on the road leading from New Berlinville to the Hill Church. He was a farmer by occupation. He married a member of the Landis family, and they had a family of ten children, namely: William, who had seven daughters, but no sons; Heinrich; Martin, born Dec. 11, 1782, died Feb. 3, 1863 (m. Susanna Bauman, 1787-1858, and had eight sons and two daughters); Jacob; Catherine m. Heinrich Stauffer); Elizabeth (m. Isaac Bowman); Anna (m. Georg Bechtel); Molly (m. Isaac Stauffer and had thirteen children); John (m. a Dierolf); and Abraham.

Abraham Moyer, son of Johannes, lived near Spinnerstown, Bucks county, owning a farm there. He also had a sawmill, but as the only propelling power at his command was water, and there was a sparsity of that, it was known as the "dry" sawmill. His wife's maiden name was Beidler, and they were the parents of six children, among whom were Abraham, John B., Christian (of Doylestown, Pa.) and Henry B. (of Quakertown, Pa.).

John B. Moyer, son of Abraham, was born in 1822 and died in April, 1904, aged eighty-two years; he was buried on Good Friday, at the Mennonite meeting-house near Steinsburg, in the upper end of Bucks county. He was a Mennonite in religious faith. He lived in Milford township, Bucks county, where he owned a large farm. He married Hannah Beidler, and their six children were: Levi B.; John B., of Springfield township, Bucks county; Abraham, of Sumneytown, Montgomery county; Henry, of Center Valley, Lehigh county; Mary, who is married to Samuel E. Weaver; and Annie, wife of William Fisher.

Levi B. Moyer, son of John B. Moyer, was born Dec. 3, 1852, near Spinnerstown, in Bucks county, and he has been a lifelong farmer, his home being in Milford township, Bucks county. He and his family are members of the Lutheran Church at Spinnerstown, which he has served as deacon. He married Elmira Kepler, daughter of Willoughby and Marietta (Wetzel) Kepler, of Lehigh county, and to them was born one son, Alfred K.

Alfred K. Moyer was born June 6, 1874, near Dillingersville, Lehigh county, and was reared in Milford township, Bucks county, upon the farm, meantime attending the public schools there. When twenty-one years old he began working in the creamery in Milford Square, Bucks county, where he was employed for one year, engaging in that business for himself in the year 1900, at Kumry, Bucks county, which is two miles from Milford Square. He continued in business there for seven years, handling 2,000 pounds of milk per day and conducting a store also, besides serving as assistant postmaster for seven years. In the spring of 1908 Mr. Moyer came to Barto, Berks county, where he has a mercantile business, having succeeded the firm of B. F. Sell & Son. For one year he also conducted the creamery at this place, but he is now giving his attention exclusively to the merchandise business, in which line he has an extensive patronage. He carries a full line of general merchandise and has shown himself to be a man of judgment in all his dealings with his business associates.

Mr. Moyer married Feb. 18, 1893, Miss Flora S. Markley, daughter of Joshua H. and Elizabeth (Shoemaker) Markley, of Milford township, Bucks county. Four children have been born to them, Florence, Stanley, and William and Thomas (twins). Mr. Moyer is a Lutheran in religious belief, holding membership in Scheetz's Church, in Bucks county; his wife is a member of the Reformed denomination, belonging to Trinity Church, at Spinnerstown. He is a Republican in politics.

J. L. BACHOFER, proprietor of a hotel and café, at the corner of Elm and Third streets, Reading, is one of the city's deservedly prosperous men. He was born in Germany, Dec. 21, 1870, son of John and Josephine (Mann) Bachofer.

John Bachofer brought his family to America in the spring of 1874, landing at Castle Garden, and he came immediately to Reading, where he secured work with the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad Company; there he remained until he entered the employ of the brewer, Frederick Lauer, with whom he remained for twenty-two years. In 1890 he built the stand now occupied by his son. He died in 1896, at the age of fifty-six years, his widow surviving until 1903. They had a family of nine children, six of whom lived to maturity, namely: John L.; Frederika, wife of Frank Seiders; Christian, of Reading; Maria, single; Jacobina, wife of Ira Hinnershitz, of Shillington, Pa.; and J. George, of the Reading Real Estate, Loan & Investment Company. In politics John Bachofer was identified with the Democratic party. In religious belief the family is Lutheran.

John L. Bachofer was educated in the parochial and the public schools of Reading. His first work after leaving school was clerking in his uncle's grocery store in Philadelphia, where he remained for two years, and upon his return to Reading he worked for several years for Henry B. Hintz, and then became associated with G. H. Delp & Co., wholesale grocers, continuing there until 1890, when he changed to his father's establishment, assisting him until the father died. When the property was sold to the Deppen Brewing Company, in 1903, he engaged in his present business.

Mr. Bachofer was married (first) in 1895, to Lillian May Harner. After her death he m. (second) in 1903, Isabella Schucker, who was born in Berks county. In politics Mr. Bachofer is an independent, being one of the prime movers in independent politics in the Sixth ward. He belongs to the Eagles and the Knights of Malta. For some years he has also been a member of the Neversink Fire Company. He is one of the enterprising and progressive as well as popular business men of this city.

JACOB B. MOYER, who is engaged in farming in Oley township, where he was born March 9, 1849, comes of an early settled German family.

John Moyer, his grandfather, was a resident of Pike township, though at one time he lived in Colebrookdale township. He was a farmer by occupation, and he owned a small home at the time of his death. He was a Lutheran member of the Hill Church, where he is buried. His wife, whose maiden name was Dierolf, is also buried at Hill Church. Their children were: John, of Rockland township; Isaac D.; and Mrs. Herman Stofflet, who lived in Pike township.

Isaac D. Moyer, son of John and father of Jacob B., was a farmer in Pike township, but his death occurred in Washington township, in December, 1906, when he was aged eighty-three years. He was a farmer for many years, but later owned a small tract where he died. His remains were interred at Hill Church. He married Apollonia Baer, daughter of Jacob Baer, and their children were: Jacob B.; Henry (on the homestead in Pike township); Fianna (m. Jonathan Moser, and lives in Douglass township, this county); Augustus (living near Bally in Washington township).

Jacob B. Moyer was early trained to farming pursuits. When he was yet a mere child his parents removed to Pike township. In 1885 he began farming for himself on his father's farm in Pike township, and there he continued until in the spring of 1898, when he moved to his present place, which he bought in 1897 from Samuel A. Weidner, son of John and grandson of Jacob Weidner. In 1899 he built a fine brick residence, and in 1907 he remodeled the barn, and he has otherwise greatly improved the place. The farm contains 125 acres of fertile land, all now under cultivation. In politics Mr. Moyer is a Republican, and he and his family are Lutheran members of Hill Church.

In 1886, Mr. Moyer married Amanda Deysher, daughter of John Deysher and wife (whose maiden name was Rohrbach), and to this union have come four children: Charles, Lyman, and Amandus and Carrie.

FRANK S. BARSOTTI, an energetic and enterprising business men of Reading, Pa., extensively engaged as a dealer in fruit, was born in Lucca, Tuscany, in the northern part of Italy, Feb. 24, 1859, son of Stephen and Santa (Partssianna) Barsotti.

Stephen Barsotti was a native of Italy, where his whole life was spent, he dying there in September, 1905, in his eighty-ninth year. His wife died in 1876, aged fifty-five. In religious belief the family were devout members of the Catholic Church of Rome. Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Barsotti were the parents of five children, three of whom still survive, namely: Robert is a resident of Italy; John, a manufacturer of ornamental statuary, resides in Baltimore, Md.; and Frank S.

Frank S. Barsotti came to America in 1885, on the steamer "Estella," landing in New York. Having learned the trade of sculptor while in his native country, he at once engaged in the manufacture of ornamental statuary, being an expert in his line. He followed this business for several years, until he had accumulated a sufficient amount to enable him to enter his present business. Seeing a good opening at Williamsport, he located there in 1890 and remained until 1894 in which year he came to Reading, and in company with P. Denino & Bro., engaged in business at the corner of Seventh and Penn streets. Wishing to engage in business on his own responsibility, the partnership entered upon with Denino & Bro. was dissolved, and Mr. Barsotti has since conducted his business alone. He has been very successful in this venture, and through frugal habits and a straightforward way of doing business has accumulated a comfortable income. He owns two fine residences in Reading, and commands some of the city's best trade, handling only first-class fruits, both domestic and imported, and all varieties are kept during the seasons.

Mr. Barsotti was married in September, 1896, to Anna E. Roshorn, daughter of Jesse Roshorn, of Ephrata, Lancaster county. Both Mr. and Mrs. Barsotti are members of the First United Evangelical Church of Reading, and both take a deep interest in religious work. Mrs. Barsotti is a member of the Missionary Society and is an enthusiastic worker in the cause of Temperance. Her father was a cigar manufacturer of Lancaster county and died in 1882. He married Catherine Hullenbach, and seven children were born to the union: Frank, Emma, Lefevre, George, Catherine, Anna E. and Ella. Mrs. Catherine (Hullenbach) Roshorn was a granddaughter of Johannes Strauss, founder of Strausstown, who came to America in 1717 and settled near Bernville, his land being still in the possession of members of his family. The Strauss family were the first to build Blue Mountain Church, and all their children were baptized there in the Lutheran faith, and many of them buried there.

Mr. Barsotti has traveled extensively in the Old World. In 1873 he visited Bavaria, Germany, remained four years in Berlin, and saw Dresden, Amsterdam, Holland, Stockholm, Sweden, and London. He is well posted on the manners and customs of the people of the countries he has visited, and is a very pleasing conversationalist.

IRWIN Y. PHILLIPS, a representative agriculturist of Berks county, Pa., who is carrying on operations on his seventy-acre tract in Cumru township, about four and one-half miles from the city of Reading, was born March 13, 1866, in Bern township, Berks county, son of Reuben G. and Mary (Yoder) Phillips.

Solomon Phillips, the progenitor of the family in America, came to this country in the ship "Phoenix," Capt. John Mason, which arrived at Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 28, 1750, he being the only Phillips in the 339 passengers. He settled in Bern (now Centre) township, where many of the name now reside, and lived to advanced years, as did his son, Michael. Michael's son, John H. Phillips, who attained the age of 105 years, had a son, Jacob, who died when ninety-two years old, the latter being the great-grandfather of Irwin Y.

Henry B. Phillips, son of Jacob, was a lifelong resident of Centre township, where he followed the trade of stone mason in early life and farming in his latter years, owning two large farms of 133 and 129 acres, respectively. He was a stanch Democrat in politics, was public-spirited to a high degree, and was often called upon to act as delegate to county conventions. He was a Lutheran member of Belleman's Union Church, in which he was a deacon and elder. He married Hannah Geschwindt, sister of Henry Geschwindt, and they had eight children, namely: Nathaniel G., Reuben G., Levi G., Mrs. Reuben Ludwig, David G., Henry G., Mrs. Henry Christ and Mrs. Joseph Althouse.

Reuben G. Phillips was born Aug. 27, 1838, on the Phillips homestead in Centre township, and from 1885 until his retirement, in 1897, lived on his ninety-two-acre farm in Lower Heidelberg township. He now lives in his residence at Wernersville, where he and his wife attend Sinking Spring Lutheran Church, of which he is an official member. In politics he is a Democrat. Mr. Phillips married Mary Yoder, a daughter of Frederick and Mary (Shartle) Yoder, and to them there were born five children: Clara m. Henry Huyett; Sallie m. Webster Potteiger; Irwin Y.; Katie m. Charles Miller; and Frederick m. Annie Hornberger.

Irwin Y. Phillips was educated in the Bern township and Lower Heidelberg schools, which he attended until twenty-one years of age, and he then went to Sac county, Iowa, working on a farm there for one year. In 1890 Mr. Phillips began farming for himself on what is known as the Maccabees farm, near Shillington, but after two years removed to the Endlich farm in Alsace township. In 1899 he purchased the Benneville M. Gaul farm in Cumru township, and here he has since made his home. He cultivates seventy acres of land, and keeps a fine herd of cows, running a milk wagon daily to Reading, about four and one-half miles distant. Mr. Phillips uses the latest makes of machinery, and his property is considered one of the finest of its size in the community. In political matters he is a Democrat, and fraternally he is connected with the Maccabees. He and his wife are Lutheran members of St. John's Church of Mohnsville.

In the year 1889, Mr. Phillips married Deborah Kalbach, born Feb. 21, 1865, daughter of Harrison and Sarah (Gerhart) Kalbach, farming people of Bern township. Six children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Phillips: Laura M., born Oct. 25, 1889; Annie I., March 5, 1891; Irwin, March 14, 1893; Wayne H., Jan. 22, 1898; Amly Ruth, Dec. 3, 1907 (died July 19, 1908); and Deborah, Dec. 22, 1908.

ABRAM S. KURTZ, a retired agriculturalist of Caernarvon township, Berks county, who had spent all of his life in the vicinity of Morgantown, was born in this locality, June 15, 1855, son of Abram and Barbara (Stoltzfus) Kurtz.

Jacob Kurtz, grandfather of Abram S., was born in 1782, and died in 1853, aged seventy-one years, four months, twenty-one days. In 1809 he married Sallie Kurtz, born in 1791, who died in 1877. In the year of his marriage Mr. Kurtz purchased the old Morgan farm, where he resided until 1847, and in this year erected the buildings at King's, where he made his home until his death.

Abram Kurtz, son of Jacob, was born Feb. 26, 1820, on the old Gen. Morgan homestead, of which he took charge in 1847. After five and one-half years he removed to King's, a part of the Clymer farm, where he remained for eight and one-half years. He then put up a new set of buildings on the Morgan farm, where he made his home until his death. Although Mr. Kurtz lived to nearly eighty-eight years old, he retained his strength to a remarkable degree. He died February 8, 1908, and was buried in the Beiler cemetery. He was one of the grand old men of Caernarvon township, and as such was respected and esteemed by all who knew him. Mr. Kurtz married Barbara Stoltzfus, of Lancaster county, Pa., who was born Jan. 31, 1828, and died Dec. 31, 1895. She was buried in the Beiler cemetery, near Elverson, Pa. Seven children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Kurtz: Abram S.; Sarah m. Jacob Beiler; Elizabeth resided with her father; Isaac married Susan Esch; Barbara married Samuel Petersheim, and lives in Morgantown; Jacob S. m. Lydia Mast; and Annie m. Gideon Zook.

Abram S. Kurtz lived on the old Morgan homestead from April, 1878, until April, 1907, when he sold this old and historic place, which had been in the family for a period of ninety-eight years, three generations having occupied it during that time. The old house is still standing, and the old granaries may be seen in the attic, where the grain was hidden during the Revolutionary war, as well as the secretive walls in the basement, with their movable stones.

Mr. Kurtz married Miss Susan Yoder, of Holmes county, Ohio, to which State her parents moved in pioneer days with an old Conestoga wagon, the journey requiring three weeks. Mr. and Mrs. Kurtz are the parents of the following children, all born on the old Morgan farm: Fannie m. Daniel Hertzler; Elizabeth died Sept. 26, 1904, aged twenty-three years, one month, fifteen days; Jacob lives at Elverson; Susan; Barbara and Ida.

EDMUND GOLDMAN, a well-known business man of Reading, whose "Bon Ton" millinery establishment has been located in the city since 1886, was born in Austria in 1858. His education was secured in Philadelphia, Pa., where he was first employed in a wholesale millinery establishment. In 1886, in company with Mr. A. S. Cohn, Mr. Goldman established his present business, the partnership being dissolved in 1903 on Mr. Cohn's withdrawal.

Mr. Goldman has been very successful in his business enterprise, his employes numbering about one hundred people, fifty to sixty of whom are milliners and trimmers. He is a very heavy importer, doing an extensive wholesale business throughout eastern Pennsylvania, besides commanding the leading retail trade in the city. Some idea of his business may be estimated from the fact that his semi-annual openings are attended by from 6,000 to 7,000 ladies of Reading and the surrounding country. His store building, which is 25 x 150 feet, three stories and basement, brick, is fully equipped with modern fixtures and appurtenances.

Mr. Goldman is very popular, both in business and social circles. He is a member of Reading Lodge, F. & A. M., No. 549; Harrisburg Consistory, thirty-second degree, and Rajah Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S. He is also a member of Lodge No. 115, B. P. O. E.

GEORGE K. LUTZ, the genial and popular proprietor of the "Washington Hotel" at Birdsboro, was born in Exeter township, Berks county, son of David and Susan (Keller) Lutz. His entire life has been passed practically in this county, where he has a wide acquaintance.

David Lutz was a thorough and industrious farmer, and accumulated a comfortable fortune. He made his home in Reading for ten years after retiring from work. To him and his wife, whose maiden name was Susan Keller, was born a large family of children, of whom seven are now living: George K.; William is a distiller at the Neversink Distillery; John is engaged in the local express business in Birdsboro; Mary married Charles Ruppert; Sarah m. Calvin Miller; Carrie m. Roswell Hook; and Miss Jennie makes her home with her brother, George K. They are all Lutherans in religious belief, and the father has always been a staunch adherent to Democratic principles.

George K. Lutz received a good common school education in his native township, and when starting out in the world first learned the trade of hatter at the Hendel hat factory in Reading. This trade engrossed his attention for about five years, at the end of which time he returned to the farm, and for three years devoted himself most profitably to dairying. His next work was as assembler with the Acme Bicycle Company in Reading, and later he accepted a position in Lebanon in the machine shop of John C. Xander, and was employed there for three years. In 1899 he returned to Reading, and at Twelfth and Franklin streets began the career of hotel proprietor that he has since followed with such success. He remained in that location one year and then came to Birdsboro, and opened a hotel on the present site of the "Washington," the name of the new structure over which he has since presided. The present building was erected in 1905, and contains thirty-five sleeping rooms, and is fitted with all the modern conveniences so appreciated by the traveling public. The dining room and service are excellent, while the bar facilities, with the choice line of imported and domestic liquors and cigars, delight the social masculine soul.

In 1896 Mr. Lutz married Susan Moser and they have three children: J. William, Helen M. and George D. In religious belief they are Lutherans, and in his political faith Mr. Lutz has followed in the footsteps of his father, and has steadfastly given his support to the Democratic party.

WALTER D. SWOYER, who is extensively engaged in squab culture at Bowers Station, Maxatawny township, was born on the old Swoyer homestead, March 18, 1874, son of Jacob S. Swoyer.

The Swoyers are an old family in Berks county, and the name is found variously spelled—Schweyer, Swoyer, Schwoyer, etc. Jacob S. Swoyer was born in Maxatawny township, Jan. 20, 1847, son of Jacob and grandson of Samuel. He was educated in the public schools, Maxatawny Seminary, then under the guidance of Prof. H. R. Nicks, and now known as the Keystone State Normal School. The change in the control of the school took place during the time Mr. Swoyer was there, and he thus became one of the first students of that now famous institution, among his fellow students being Rev. Dr. N. C. Schaeffer, now Superintendent of Public Instruction for the State; Rev. Dr. William Schaeffer, instructor of theology at Lancaster; and D. Nicholas Schaeffer, an attorney at Reading; and Prof. S. A. Baer, Ph. D. Mr. Swoyer is a man of intelligence, and he has been a very enterprising farmer. He has a fertile farm of 105 acres on which he resides, another of fifteen acres, forty perches, and a third of 115 acres, all of which adjoin, and are located in the central part of Maxatawny township. This is a great wheat producing region, and the land is very valuable. Mr. Swoyer cultivated this all himself until the spring of 1908 when he rented the 115-acre tract to his son Oscar. Since 1899 he has been in the dairy business, conducting the White House Dairy. He daily runs a wagon to Kutztown where he sells an average of 265 quarts per day. He keeps from twenty-five to forty cows and about fifteen horses.

Mr. Swoyer has always been a stalwart Republican, and in a district where there are 125 Republicans and 600 Democrats he was elected school director. He was also supervisor of the township for two years. He has been delegate to many county conventions and is a very popular man.

In 1873, Mr. Swoyer married Louisa Deisher, a daughter of John D. and Hannah (Kohler) Deisher, of Maxatawny township, and thirteen children have been born to them: Walter D., Mary, Ida, Elwood (who died from an accident in 1893 when fifteen years old), Oscar, Cora, Jacob, Carrie, Howard, Minnie, Edna, Elton and Irvin. Mr. and Mrs. Swoyer are members of St. John's Lutheran Church at Kutztown. He was a deacon and trustee for many years, serving in the former office when the present church edifice was built.

Walter D. Swoyer obtained his education in the district school known as Schwoyer's school, and later attended the Keystone State Normal School, where he graduated in 1893. For four terms he taught in the public schools of Marion township, and he holds a master's diploma from the State. He then assisted his father upon the farm for a few years, and then prepared himself for the railway mail service, taking the civil service examination at Harrisburg in 1899. In July, 1900, he received his appointment, and served between New York and Pittsburg until he resigned Oct. 11, 1905. He located in Bowers, where he has since made his home. In 1906 he erected a handsome residence and he has since been extensively engaged in the squab industry, raising thousands of birds. He has up-to-date buildings, and his premises are kept in strictly sanitary condition. His product is shipped to New York and other large cities. His plant is known as the "Golden Rule Squab Lofts" and this motto is always kept in mind when any birds are sold as breeders—a choice lot of well mated birds being always for sale.

In 1903 Mr. Swoyer married Miss Sarah G. Trexler, daughter of the late Charles L. Trexler, of Lyons [See Trexler Family sketch elsewhere in this publication]. Both Mr. and Mrs. Swoyer are members of the Lutheran church. They are very highly esteemed in the community, and occupy a prominent position in the society of the town.

JOHN E. BIEHL, a highly respected citizen of Reading, Pa., who resides at No. 136 West Douglass street, and is employed in the manufacture of hats at the John Hendel's Sons hat factory, was born in 1857, in Exeter township, Berks county, son of Isaac Y. and Susanna (Eidel) Biehl.

Daniel Biehl, grandfather of John E., was a tinsmith by trade, and for many years lived in Oley township, where his death occurred. He married Catherine Yoder, and to them were born children as follows: Abraham Y.; Isaac Y.; Daniel; Elizabeth (m. Joseph Kissling); Catherine (m. John Stapleton). In religious belief the family were Lutherans.

Isaac Y. Biehl was born in Kutztown, Pa., and after completing a common school course learned the blacksmith's trade, which he followed practically all of his life, being employed in the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad shops. In 1898 he resigned from this position and removed to Exeter township, locating on a small farm, on which he died in 1901, aged seventy-six years, his widow still surviving. To Mr. and Mrs. Biehl were born these children: Catherine m. (first) John Lincoln, by whom she had four children—Howard, Isaac W., Permilla and Harrison T.—and (second) Charles Leinbach, by whom two children have been born—Warren and Catherine; Daniel m. Mary Lincoln and has four children—Sallie, Susan, Martha and Mary; Emma m. Jacob Esterly, and has six children—Harry, Catherine, Susan, Jacob, Franklin and Mary; Isaac m. Amanda Hiester, and has four children—Elizabeth, John, Edward and Florence; James m. Catherine High, and has five children—Percival, Laura, Charles, Warren and Helen; John E.; and Susan is deceased. In religious belief the family are Lutherans. Mr. Biehl was a Democrat.

John E. Biehl was educated in the common schools of Exeter and Alsace townships, after leaving which he learned the trade of hatter with the company by which he is now employed, and with which he has been associated since 1874. During his long term of service with this well-known concern, Mr. Biehl has become regarded as a most faithful and valued employe, and he is highly esteemed by his fellow citizens. In 1880 he married Sarah Young, daughter of Adam Young, of Muhlenberg township, and to this union there have been born four children, as follows: Miss Anna M.; Frank (married Eva Angstadt, and has one child, Wilson); George (m. Lillian Dieffenderfer, and has three children, LeRoy, Beulah and Robert), and Charles H. (attending school).

Mr. Biehl is a member of the P. O. S. of A., and of the Trinity Brotherhood. He is a member of St. Luke's Lutheran Church, in which he has filled the office of deacon.

J. MICHAEL KNOLL, proprietor of the Tulpehocken Hotel, a well-known hotel in Jefferson township, Berks county, was born in that township in 1861. His grandfather was a farmer and blacksmith there, and died in Jefferson township. Both he and his wife are buried at the Host Church. Their children were Henry, Sarah and Michael.

Michael Knoll, father of J. Michael, was born in Jefferson township Nov. 22, 1815, and died July 19, 1896, aged eighty years, seven months, twenty-seven days. He married Magdalena Scheaffer, daughter of Jonathan Scheaffer, born May 14, 1822, died Feb. 6, 1896, aged seventy-three years, eight months, twenty-two days. Both are buried at St. Paul's Union cemetery, Schaefferstown. Mr. Knoll learned the blacksmith's trade in his young manhood and followed it for several years, later engaging in farming in Jefferson township. He lived retired for a few years before his death. Eight children were born to him and his wife: Sarah married John Hemmig, of Reading; Adam S. is living in Jefferson township; Emma is unmarried; Isabella (1850-1900) m. William S. Wenrich; Elanore m. George Peters, of Bethel township; Aaron S., born in 1845, died in 1897; J. Michael is mentioned below; George is living at Upper Lehigh, Luzerne Co., Pa., and is head butcher for a large coal company.

J. Michael Knoll attended the public schools, and remained with his father until he was eighteen years old. He learned the trade of carriage trimmer, which he followed for eight years, in 1888 engaging in the hotel business at his present stand in Jefferson township. His house is well known to the traveling public and he is regarded as a reliable citizen of his community. Mr. Knoll served six years as township assessor, to which office he was elected by a large majority. In 1905 he was a strong candidate for the office of county commissioner, receiving the second highest vote. He is a strong Republican and one of the most influential party workers in the county, being very popular among his fellow-citizens. His church connection is with the Reformed denomination.

Mr. Knoll married Lovina E. Holzman, daughter of the late John S. Holzman, of Jefferson township, who served at one time as treasurer of Berks county. Three children have been born to this union: Nellie H.; Emma H. and Marie H.

WALTER YODER BECKER, deputy-warden of the Berks county jail since 1895, was born in Centre township, Berks county, in September, 1850. He was educated in the township school and at Brunner's Business College, after which he taught public school for twenty-three terms until 1895 (nineteen in Centre township, three in Ontelaunee, and one in Exeter), when he received the appointment of deputy-warden at the county prison, and he has continued to fill this position in a very satisfactory manner by re-appointment by the board of inspectors. He has been prominently identified with the P. O. S. of A. and the K. G. E. for many years. He is a Democrat in politics and has filled the local offices of assessor and auditor of Centre township. He continues to reside in Centre township though employed at Reading. He owns the mill property which was owned by his father, and also a farm in the township which he is cultivating.

Mr. Becker married Emeline Dunkelberger, daughter of Samuel and Mary (Hafer) Dunkelberger, of Bern township, and they have three children: Howard (m. Katie Gromis); Adam (m. Mamie Kamp); and Charles (m. Katie Williams).

Mr. Becker's father, John Becker, was born in Albany township, in 1820. He learned the trade of carpenter which he carried on for some years, then purchased a grist-mill in Centre township near Centreport, which he operated until his decease in 1900. He married Mary Yoder (daughter of John Yoder, of Centre township), by whom he had nine children: Walter, Elmira, John (who lives on the homestead, m. Katie Christ), Amanda (m. Howard Phillips), and five who died young.

His grandfather was also named John. He was born in Maiden-creek township and learned the trade of shoemaker which he followed for some years, then directed his attention to the hotel business at Wessnersville for six years and at Tripoli, in Lehigh county, for one year. In 1834 he bought a plantation in Centre township, near Centreport, and this he then cultivated until his decease in 1873, aged seventy-nine years. He also bought the Yoder grist-mill which is now the property of his grandson Walter. He married Rebecca Zimmerman, daughter of John Zimmerman, of Centre township, and they had fourteen children, eleven sons and three daughters, twelve reaching maturity. The eldest son, William Z., is still living, aged over eighty-one years.

And his great-grandfather was also named John, born in Richmond township, and brought up to farming, which he carried on for some years and then located in Northumberland county, where he was engaged in the same vocation.

HARRY L. O'BRIEN, a prominent business man of Reading, was born in that city in 1856, son of Joseph T. O'Brien, also a native of Reading, born in 1831.

Joseph T. O'Brien engaged in the milling business, at the foot of Penn street, Reading. Mr. O'Brien remained in that business for a number of years, and then engaged as a grocer at No. 233 Penn street, and later at No. 319 North Sixth street, continuing at the latter place, very successfully, until his death in 1891, aged sixty-six years. Joseph T. O'Brien married Mary A. Boyer, who survived her husband two years, and was sixty-three years old at the time of her death. They had two children, Thomas B., who died when forty-eight years old, and Harry L., our subject.

Harry L. O'Brien received his education in his home city and assisted his father in the grocery business as a clerk, remaining with him for about six years. In 1877 he engaged in the variety business in which he has since continued, locating first at No. 626 Penn street, and in 1891 removed to his present location, No. 728 Penn street. He carries a full line of toys and varieties, dealing wholesale and retail, and pays strict attention to business. Mr. O'Brien has won an enviable reputation for honesty and integrity and this no doubt is one of the reasons of his great success.

Mr. O'Brien was married in 1885, to Mary J. Hillegass, of Reading, and one daughter, Edna M., who is attending the College for Girls at Frederick, Md., was born to this union. Mr. O'Brien is a Republican, and he is a member of Trinity Lutheran Church.

DANIEL H. KRICK, one of the most valued citizens of Spring township, a man of sterling honesty and broad-minded views, was born Aug. 19, 1860, in Lower Heidelberg township, Berks county, son of William B. and Anna (Hain) Krick.

William B. Krick engaged in farming throughout his active years, owning seventy-six acres in Lower Heidelberg township. He died in February, 1905, aged about seventy-six years. In politics he was a Democrat, and he filled the offices of township treasurer and auditor, serving in the latter office for twenty years. He married Anna Hain, daughter of Daniel and Mary (Hain) Hain, and they had three children: Daniel H.; John I., who owns his father's farm in Lower Heidelberg township; and Mary, who married Fred W. Gaul, of Wernersville.

Daniel H. Krick attended the district schools during his boyhood and remained assisting his father on the home farm until he was twenty-three years of age, when he took charge of the place and operated it for himself seven years. In 1895 he purchased his present farm in Spring township of George and Isaac Krick. It then contained 149 acres, to which Mr. Krick has added several acres. The residence of stone, which still stands, was built in 1842, but it has been converted into a modern home by Mr. Krick. A substantial barn was erected in 1868. From the time he took possession until April 6, 1907, Mr. Krick continued to improve his property and his prosperity seemed assured. On the morning of the day mentioned he arose and looked over his possessions with justifiable pride, because they had been acquired through his own patient and persistent industry. In the evening of the same day, through a fire that started mysteriously in the barn, he was bereft of a large part of all he owned. The barn itself was totally consumed together with nineteen valuable milch cows, seven hundred bushels of wheat, two hundred bushels of oats, ten tons of hay, five tons of straw and all the farm tools, machinery and farming implements. The fire occurred in the morning and its glare could be seen for miles around. His neighbors, however, could not reach him in time to render any adequate assistance. Their sympathy and admiration were given him, for he has borne the calamity with courage and resolution and already has made much progress toward future prosperity. The barn was rebuilt in the same summer, a substantial structure 90 by 45 feet, with a shed adjoining, 28 by 33 feet. For fourteen years Mr. Krick operated a dairy.

In 1873 he was married to Rebecca Fritz, daughter of Henry G. Fritz, and they have one son, William F., who is now a medical student at the University of Pennsylvania. His parents are giving him every possible educational advantage and he has the ambition to profit by the same. Mr. Krick and his family belong to the Reformed Church at Sinking Spring. In politics he is a Democrat.

JAMES J. MERKEL, the popular and widely known county detective residing in Reading, stands very high in the esteem of the public.

Mr. Merkel comes from an old and honorable family in Berks county. His great-grandfather, Benjamin, and his grandfather of the same name, were leading farmers of Richmond township.

Levi Merkel, father of James J., followed them in that most honorable of occupations, in Oley township, dying Feb. 13, 1905, at the age of seventy-seven years. His wife was Keziah De Turk, daughter of Elijah, of Kutztown, also a farmer. Their children were five in number, as follows: Irvin I. died March 15, 1904, aged forty-six; Elijah U. is a merchant on Penn street, Reading; Sallie m. Charles Harbein; Alice m. Ezra De Turk, farmer of Oley township; and James J.

James J. Merkel was born Dec. 18, 1867, in Oley township, where he was reared and educated. He remained at home on the farm until he was twenty-four years old, and then took a position in his brother's store in Reading, where he continued for some seven years. Tiring of the confinement of a mercantile life, he secured a position as salesman for the National Biscuit Company, and this he was filling when on Jan. 1, 1905, he received the appointment of county detective, the Philadelphia Record being authority for the statement that he was appointed "because he knew more people in Berks county than any other man there." He is a popular officer of the county and is doing effective work. He apprehended a murderer in Billings, Okla., and brought him back for trial March 17, 1908, traveling a distance of 1,772 miles, the greatest distance ever traveled by a Berks county detective.

On June 7, 1891, Mr. Merkel married Hannah, daughter of the late Solomon Peter, a farmer of Oley township, and their children are, Marie and Paul P., both in school. Mr. Merkel is a deacon in Hope Lutheran church, and is a member of the Knights of the Golden Eagle, of the P. O. S. of A., and of the Royal Arcanum. He votes the Democratic ticket.

CHRISTIAN ZOOK, of Caernarvon township, who died Dec. 27, 1898, was a representative of an old and honored German family that has lived in Pennsylvania since 1742. He was born near Malvern, Chester Co., Pa., April 27, 1831. On Dec. 19, 1859, he married Susan (Stoltzfus), born Oct. 2, 1841, daughter of Christian and Susan (Lantz) Stoltzfus, one of Pennsylvania's old and highly esteemed families. To this union were born children as follows: Henry, born in 1861, is in the mercantile business at Elverson (m. Miss Lizzie Stoltzfus); Christiana, born in 1863 (m. John S. Mast, lives on one of the Mast farms, and has had three children—Christian Z., born Nov. 4, 1885; John, born Nov. 9, 1890, died Nov. 11, 1890; and Christiana, born Dec. 29, 1891, died Jan. 13, 1892); and Malinda, born July 16, 1869 (m. Amos Hertzler, lives on the old homestead, and has had children—Susan Ella, born Dec. 11, 1894; Elmira, born Aug. 16, 1896; Ada Christina, born Oct. 12, 1898, died Feb. 17, 1899; and Alfred, born April 11, 1900). Mrs. Zook has also given a home to an orphan child, Anna Megert, who is now twenty years of age. Mrs. Zook now makes her home on the old Zook homestead, a fine property of 102 acres, on which is situated a handsome residence surrounded by a beautiful, well-kept lawn. She and her children also own an adjoining farm of eighty acres of limestone land, now occupied by one of Mrs. Zook's daughters, Mrs. John S. Mast.

John Zook (Zug), great-great-grandfather of Christian Zook, was of Darmstadt, Germany. He was a son of Hans Zook (Zug), an elder in the Mennonite Church at Berne, Switzerland, where in 1659 he and six other preachers of that faith were arrested and thrown into prison. They were detained until 1671, and then released on their promise to leave that section. From Berne Hans Zook moved to Canton Zug, Switzerland, and later to Darmstadt, Germany, where he died.

Christian Zook (Zug), son of John, and great-grandfather of Christian, was born near Darmstadt, Germany. Accompanied by two brothers, Moritz and Johannes, he arrived in Philadelphia, Sept. 21, 1742, later settling in Whiteland township, Chester Co., Pa., where he died in December, 1787. He was twice married, (first) to Anna Kannabell, and (second) to Anna (Dodereas) Missler, a widow. Christian Zook's children, all by his first wife, were: a daughter who married a Miller and had descendants; Barbara, who married Henry Kauffman, and also had descendants; Elizabeth, who married a Miller; John, whose wife's given name was Catherine; Jacob; Yost; and Christian.

Christian Zook, son of Christian, was born April 20, 1752, in Bern township, Berks county, where he spent his life in agricultural pursuits, being also a minister in the Amish Church. He died Oct. 8, 1826. He married Miss Magdalena Blank, born in Lancaster county, Pa., in 1751, who died Aug. 8, 1833. To them were born the following children: John (m. Elizabeth Kurtz); Christian (m. Magdalena Zug); Barbara (m. Daniel Hertzler); Magdalena (m. Jacob Hertzler); Nancy (m. Christian Hertzler); Jacob (m. Anna Summers); Christiana (m. John Summers); and Henry.

Henry Zook, son of Christian and father of Christian of Caernarvon township, Berks county, was born near Malvern, Pa., March 18, 1794, and died at Burkleys Bridge, Pa., in 1865. He married Christiana Kurtz, born Sept. 21, 1801, and died March 23, 1874. They had the following children: Jacob K., born Nov. 24, 1823, died in August, 1904 (m. Nov. 21, 1846, Lydia Mast, born Sept. 21, 1824); Magdalena, born March 11, 1826 (m. Jacob Troyer, born May 8, 1834, in Holmes county, Ohio); Anna, born Jan. 12, 1828, died July 4, 1903 (m. John P. Mast); Christian; Elizabeth died aged four years; Christiana, born April 10, 1836 (m. Levi Mast, born July 19, 1835); Sara, born Dec. 6, 1839, died May 5, 1878 (m. Samuel Lantz); and Nicholas, the youngest, died at the age of three years.

JOHN GRUBE, who has for eleven years been engaged in the milling business at Hartz's Mills, near Morgantown, Pa., was born in Caernarvon township, Lancaster county, in 1867, son of Elias and Anna (Wanner) Grube.

Elias Grube was born at New Holland, Lancaster county, in 1842, and died in 1877. He married Anna Wanner, born in Salisbury township, Lancaster county, in 1835, who now lives in Salisbury township. To this union there were born four children: Elam, born in 1864, lives with his mother; John; Amos, born in 1870, lives near Christiana, Chester county; and Clara, born in 1873, married Frank Martin, of Lancaster county.

John Grube obtained a good common school education, and at the age of sixteen years learned the milling trade at Grube's Mill, whence he went to Morgantown, being employed at Hartz's Mills for two years. The next eight years were spent at Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia, but subsequently he returned to Hartz's Mills, where he has continued ever since. Mr. Grube is a staunch supporter of the principles of the Republican party, and for some years he has been a township supervisor. He attends the Methodist church at Morgantown, of which he is a trustee and steward.

On March 14, 1896, Mr. Grube married Miss Emma Clark, daughter of John Clark, of Caernarvon township, Lancaster county. One child, Ethel, was born to this union in 1899.

GEORGE J. RAAB, one of the well known business men of Reading, Pa., is secretary of the Deppen Brewing Company, and has charge of the collections of the company. Mr. Raab was born in 1866, in Carbon county, Pa., son of John and Christina (Weldner) Raab.

John Raab was born in Wurtemberg, Germany, and came to the United States when a lad of sixteen years, settling first in New York City, and a few years later in the West, and at Phoenixville he helped to build the P. & R. Railroad. He then came to Reading, reaching this city with fifteen dollars in his pocket. He had learned the carpenter's trade, and this he followed for many years, spending much time in the anthracite coal regions. For thirty-two years he was with the Philadelphia & Reading Company, and was also janitor of the public school at Fourth and Elm streets. He is now living retired at his home, No. 527 Buttonwood street, Reading. He and his wife had sixteen children, among them four sets of twins: John, Katie, Charles, Peter, George J., Henry, Bertha, Mary, Frank, Fred, Clara, Elizabeth, Amelia, Anna, and two whose names were not given. Mr. and Mrs. Raab in religious belief are Catholics. In politics he is a Democrat.

George J. Raab was educated in the schools of Reading, and his first work as a boy was with Postmaster A. M. High, of Reading, from whom he received one dollar a week. He worked for Mr. High for two years, and then engaged with J. C. Hoffeditz to learn coach painting, and after two years and eight months with this gentleman, engaged as a waiter at the café of Philip Bissinger (now Brownmiller's Café), where he remained seven years and nine months, then engaging with John Adams, at No. 527 Penn street, as hotel clerk. He next conducted the hotel at Front and Hamilton streets, known as the "Hamilton House," and after remaining there for four and one-half years, sold out and rented the old Keystone Brewing Company building, and carried on the business successfully for five years. He took as partner John Roerich, and they continued the business for five years longer, when they sold out to the Deppen Brewing Company in 1902. Since this time Mr. Raab has been retained by the firm as traveling salesman and manager of collections, and is now secretary. Messrs. Raab, Taylor and Roerich hold the majority of stock in the brewery, and have built a new brewery at No. 3 Buttonwood street. Mr. Raab is also a partner in the Crescent Shoe Company, Sharman & Raab, proprietors, Pearl street, Reading.

Although Mr. Raab has been an earnest worker in the ranks of the Democratic party since his majority, he has never been an office seeker, and time and again has refused to allow his name to be used as a candidate for public position. However, at the solicitation of the leaders of the organization in this section, he finally allowed himself to be persuaded to accept the nomination for sheriff of Berks county. He is very popular with all classes, and is well known not only in business and political life, but in social circles as well, being connected with Coatesville Aerie, F. O. E.; also Eagles Home, Coatesville; Americus Club; Northeast Democratic Club; Jackson Club; Commercial Association; Buffaloes, and the Hampden Fire Association. Mr. Raab resides with his parents in Reading, for whom he is providing a comfortable home in their declining years.

JAMES F. SCHLASMAN, one of Tulpehocken township's representative citizens, who for more than twenty years was engaged in the hotel business as proprietor of the "Mansion House," at Mount Aetna, Pa., was born Nov. 22, 1862, at Stouchsburg, Berks county, son of Isaac and Mary (Livengood) Schlasman.

Peter Schlasman, grandfather of James F., was a farmer of Rehrersburg, where he married Eva Bomberger. Their children were: Augustus m. Rebecca Hicks, and removed to Girardville, Schuylkill county, where he carried on painting and paperhanging until his death; Isaac became the father of James F.; Mary m. John Peiffer, a farmer of near Myerstown, Lebanon county, and had five children—James, Emma, Clara, Nora and Clayton; and Adam left home when quite young and was for many years a resident of Texas and later of Oklahoma. Mrs. Schlasman survived her husband many years, and died at the home of her daughter, at the age of ninety-three.

Isaac Schlasman was at an early age apprenticed to Samuel Burkholder, of Stouchsburg, with whom he learned cabinet making, an occupation at which he worked until the outbreak of the Civil war, when he commenced work for the Government. He was married to Mary A. Livengood, daughter of James and Elizabeth (Scheetz) Livengood, for many years residents of Stouchsburg, where Mr. Livengood was a constable for twenty-seven years. Mr. and Mrs. Schlasman had children: Kate Elizabeth m. Henry E. Kauffman, and resides in Reading; Eva m. John Schmehl; Mary Ella m. Erasmus Kurr, and has four children—Charles, Nettie, Mary and Louis; James F.; Isora m. Morris C. Bordner, and they reside on his farm near Millersburg; Harry Augustus, a carpenter in the employ of the Philadelphia & Reading Railway, resides in Reading and is married; Anna Margaret m. Walter Walters, of Reading; and Margaret Anna (twin to Anna Margaret) m. Charles C. Berger, of Reading.

James F. Schlasman was educated in the public schools of his native district and later at Womelsdorf, whither his parents had removed in 1873 to take charge of the "Nicholas House." In the spring of 1877 they went to Millersburg where they conducted the "Centre House" for seventeen years, and where Mr. Schlasman died. Here James F. Schlasman assisted his parents, and in addition carried the daily mail between Bethel and Myerstown for nine years, but in 1886 removed to Mount Aetna, where he took charge of the "Mansion House" and continued to conduct it for twenty-one years, at the same time dealing largely in horses, poultry and calves. By thrift and good management he accumulated a competency, and he is now practically retired and lives in his own home. He is an active Democrat, and has been mercantile appraiser for one term, as well as being delegate to various conventions and holding minor township offices. He is a member of Golden Rule Temple, of which he is treasurer, and is also connected with Camp No. 69, P. O. S. of A. With his family he attends the old Lutheran Church at Rehrersburg.

Mr. Schlasman was married to Dora Noecker, daughter of Israel M. and Rebecca (Lerch) Noecker, and their children were: Mary, member of the 1909 class at the Keystone State Normal School, is an accomplished musician; Robert died aged one year, five days; and Mark James is in school.

WILLIAM M. REIFF, a highly esteemed citizen of Reading, Pa., residing at No. 935 Oley street, has been a trusted employe of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad for nearly forty-five years. He was born April 19, 1844, in Lower Providence, Montgomery county, Pa., son of Christopher and Sarah Ann (Barrett) Reiff.

George Reiff, grandfather of William M., was a resident of Montgomery county, where he died when still a young man, being buried at Lower Providence Baptist Church. He married Peggy Heebner, and they had two children: Christopher; and Elizabeth, who married Henry Lonacker, of Lower Providence.

Christopher Reiff was born Oct. 5, 1819, in Montgomery county, and died Nov. 25, 1908, aged eighty-nine years, one month and twenty days. His last years were passed at the home of his son George H., in Allentown. He was a farmer in his earlier life, but in 1855 he located at Norristown, where he learned core making. Later he became a railroader, but after coming to Reading he again followed core making, but subsequently, in 1858, when the East Penn. Railroad was opened, he accepted an appointment as baggage agent, a position which he filled until the road was leased to the Reading Railroad. Mr. Reiff married Sarah Ann Barrett, daughter of Philip Barrett, and her death was caused by a fall from a two-story window while asleep, May 22, 1890. They had five children: Ann Elizabeth died young; William M.; George H., of Allentown; Ann Rebecca, who died in infancy; and Irwin D., of Reading.

William M. Reiff accompanied his parents to Norristown when quite small, and in 1855 came with them to Reading, where he has since resided with the exception of from 1877 to 1885, when he conducted the train between Kutztown and Topton, having his home at the former place. He attended the public schools of Reading, and later lived one year with an uncle at Turbotville, Northumberland county. On his return he became a clerk with William Rhoads, Jr. & Sr., who conducted a general store at the old jail building, at the corner of Fifth and Washington streets, and remained in their employ two years, afterward for one year attending Prof. John S. Ermentrout's select school in Reading. He then clerked for two years in F. B. Shalter's store, where the "United States Hotel" is now located, and in 1862 he entered the employ of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad, remaining with them for two months. At this time he enlisted in Company E, 128th Pa. V. I., for nine months service, his captain being William H. Andrews, who was killed at Antietam. He was at Antietam in reserve, South Mountain, Chancellorsville, May 1, 2, 3, 1863, and was mustered out at Harrisburg, May 19, 1863, with a fine war record. On his return he was employed by the Hope Express Company for a period of six months, and then again entered the railroad service, Dec. 25, 1863, as a brakeman, later became baggagemaster and then train dispatcher, and since May 1, 1877, he has been a conductor. Since 1896 his run has been between Reading and Philadelphia, he having the 6:20 a. m. from Reading. Mr. Reiff has never had a serious accident, and is one of the company's most trusted employes, as he is one of the most popular conductors on the line. He owns his own fine large residence in Reading, and is highly esteemed in the community in which he has lived so long. Mrs. Reiff is a lady of refined tastes, and is greatly interested in the biographical history of the Baer or Barr family, being one of the secretaries of the Baer family association.

Mr. Reiff was married in 1865 to Emma C. Barr, daughter of Ephraim and Rebecca Barr, and three children have been born to this union: Mame A. (m. J. Morris High, now deceased); Anna R. (died aged two weeks); and William H. (holds a responsible position with the American Iron & Steel Company, at Lebanon). Mr. Reiff is fraternally connected with Huguenot Lodge, No. 377, F. & A. M., of Kutztown; Reading Chapter; and DeMolay Commandery of Reading; and O. R. C., of Nicolls, Division of America.

HOWARD K. WININGS, who has been engaged in agricultural pursuits all of his life, is now operating an excellent farm in Robeson township, whither he came when seventeen years of age. Mr. Winings was born July 3, 1846, in Chester county, Pa., son of Jacob and Leah (Keen) Winings.

Jacob Winings was a farmer by occupation and this he followed throughout life, operating a farm in Warwick township, which he owned, until 1864, after which he rented farms for some years. He retired some years previous to his death, which occurred in 1884, at the age of seventy-three years. He and his wife were the parents of eight children: Louisa m. Benjamin Roberts; Howard K.; Catherine died young; Jacob, deceased, was a moulder; Miss Clara; Eli E. is a moulder; and Misses Rosie and Emma. In religious matters the family were connected with the Evangelical Church. Mr. Winings was a Democrat in politics.

Howard K. Winings was educated in the schools of Warwick township, Chester county, and there he made his home until seventeen years old, when he came to Berks county, where he has since been carrying on agricultural operations. He has always been an industrious, hard-working citizen, and has wielded some influence in local politics, being prominent in the ranks of the Democratic party and serving on the petit and grand juries. In religious belief he is Lutheran.

In 1877 Mr. Winings married Maggie H. Brown, daughter of John M. Brown, and to this union two sons have been born; John B. (m. Sarah N. Davis, and has three children: J. Harold D., Margaret L. and Howard Lester); and Howard L. (m. Rose Murray and has one child, Florence C.). Both sons are engaged in farming, and both follow in their father's footsteps politically, voting in support of Democratic principles.

John M. Brown, father of Mrs. Maggie H. (Brown) Winings, died aged sixty-three years. He married Margaret P. Haws, who died in 1879, ten years after her husband, at the age of nearly eighty years. They were both natives of Berks county, and their home farm was that now occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Howard K. Winings. Both Mr. and Mrs. Brown were Lutherans and active in church and Sunday-school work and the church—St. John's Lutheran and Reformed—was erected on the Brown property. Mrs. Winings has never lived anywhere except in her present home. Her sister, Mrs. M. A. Bodder (mentioned elsewhere), died there two years ago.

NATHAN M. WENRICH, who stands deservedly high as a business citizen at Fritztown, Spring township, where he is the proprietor of a successful mercantile establishment, was born April 6, 1865, at Reinhold's Station, Lancaster county, son of John and Elizabeth (Merkel) Wenrich.

The Wenrich family, which is one of the oldest of the State, had its origin here in Mathias Wenrich, Sr., who was one of the very earliest settlers of Berks county. He was a large land owner in Heidelberg township, where two of his sons: Balthaser and Mathias, Jr., were taxables in 1759.

Mathias Wenrich, Jr., great-grandfather of Nathan M., was an early resident of that township, and was an extensive land owner. He served as an ensign in the Fourth Battalion of Col. Nicholas Lotz's Sixth Company, in the Revolutionary war, which was in service May 17, 1777. He was a man of prominence in his day. Among his sons were: Daniel, who married Hannah Hain and had these children: Daniel, Isaac, Adam, Manasses, Elizabeth, Sophia, Annie, Rebecca and Sarah; David L., who was a prominent citizen of Berks county and county commissioner in 1857, 1858, 1859, 1860, 1863, 1864, 1865, and 1866; and John.

John Wenrich, grandfather of Nathan M., was an agriculturalist, and for many years was engaged in operating a farm at Reinhold's Station. He is buried at Swamp Church. Mr. Wenrich married Sarah Schaeffer, and to them were born these children: James settled in Waterloo, Ind.; Sophia m. Michael Miller; Rebecca m. Augustus Emes; John; Anna m. Joseph Eberly; Rev. Samuel has a charge at Danville, Pa.; Benjamin is of Lehigh county, Pa.; and Mary m. Lewis Whitman.

John Wenrich, father of Nathan M., was born Aug. 3, 1833, and for many years has resided at Reinhold's Station, where he has been engaged in operating his sixty-five acre tract of fine land. Although well advanced in years, Mr. Wenrich is sound in body and mind, and he is well known and highly esteemed in his locality. In political matters he is a Democrat, while his religious belief is that of the Lutheran Church; he worships with that denomination at Swamp Church, where he has been deacon and elder. He married Elizabeth Merkel, born Feb. 20, 1835, who died Dec. 30, 1904, daughter of Solomon Merkel, of Gouglersville, Pa. Mr. and Mrs. John Wenrich became the parents of the following children: Daniel died in 1902, aged forty-four years; Sarah m. John Wealand; Miss Mary resides at Denver, Pa.; Rev. John is a Lutheran minister stationed at Stoutsville, Ohio; Nathan M.; Amanda m. Jacob H. Gelsimer, of Reinhold's Station, Pa.; Lemon; Alice m. Harry Aungst, of Reinhold's Station; Lydia died at the age of seventeen years; Rev. S. Martin is a Lutheran minister at Northampton Heights, Pa.; Clara m. Anson Moyer, of Reinhold's Station, Pa.; and Emma died in infancy.

Nathan M. Wenrich obtained a liberal education in the district schools and the Millersville State Normal School, the latter of which he attended for five terms. He then took a course at Eastman's Business College, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., from which he was graduated in the spring of 1887, after which he taught school for two terms and subsequently became a clerk in J. S. Lauser's general store, at Schaefferstown, Lebanon county. After four years with Mr. Lauser, Mr. Wenrich resumed teaching, which he carried on for seven terms in Lancaster county, and became well and favorably known as an educator. In 1899, Mr. Wenrich obtained his permanent certificate, having been first licensed to teach in 1885, by Professor Brecht, and in 1900 he came to Fritztown, where he engaged in the mercantile business. From the first the business prospered, and it has now grown to large proportions. Mr. Wenrich carries everything in a mercantile line, and by paying strict attention to the needs of the people of his community he has won a place for himself among the leading business men of Fritztown.

On Sept. 14, 1889, Mr. Wenrich was married to Sarah Bechtel, born Oct. 12, 1866, daughter of William and Leah (Gensemer) Bechtel, by whom he has had two children: Emma, who died in infancy; and John William, born Jan. 24, 1898.

MORRIS F. RENTSCHLER, a popular hotel-keeper of Berks county, who conducts the "Black Horse Hotel," at Kutztown, Pa., was born in Upper Bern township, Berks county, Oct. 20, 1865, son of Charles F. and Cassia (Fleisher) Rentschler.

The Rentschler family, which is of German stock, was founded in Berks county about the time of the close of the Revolutionary war, there being three brothers, one of whom settled in the city of Philadelphia, one near Sunbury, Pa., and the other, John George, in Bern (now Upper Bern) township. John George Rentschler was born Oct. 11, 1755, and was married in 1785 to Catherine Wagoner, born Dec. 23, 1765, who died Jan. 2, 1847. They became the parents of ten children, six sons and four daughters, namely: Daniel; George, who settled out West; Samuel; Elizabeth, Mrs. Peter Phillips; Jacob; Mrs. Christ. Kauffman; Mrs. Joseph Kauffman, and three others—two sons and one daughter.

Jacob Rentschler, son of John George and grandfather of Morris F., was born April 3, 1804, and reared in Bern township. He was a farmer and also owned a woolen mill, the buildings of which are still standing about three-quarters of a mile from Upper Bern postoffice. He manufactured woolen bed-spreads and woolen goods from which men's and women's clothes were made, and in his time was known as a hard-working, energetic man. In about middle life he became paralyzed, and during the rest of his life he was lame. He died Jan. 28, 1874. Mr. Rentschler was twice married, his first wife being Sarah Fegley, by whom he had four children, namely: Charles F., Fietta, Matilda and Frank. The second Mrs. Rentschler was Sarah Diehl, and by this union there were two children: Dr. Henry, of Ringtown, Schuylkill county, Pa.; and Lewis, who died in 1898, in his forty-fifth year.

Charles F. Rentschler was born June 11, 1835, and died Sept. 6, 1900. He was a resident of Shartlesville, Upper Bern township, where he was engaged in the mercantile and hotel business for many years. He was a prominent citizen and an active Democrat and was prothonotary of Berks county from 1876 to 1878, also serving as school director of his township for some time. He and his family belonged to the Lutheran Church, and he was buried at the Charles Evans cemetery. On Oct. 17, 1857, Mr. Rentschler was married to Cassia Fleisher, daughter of Henry and Mary Magdalena (Tobias) Fleisher, and to this union there were children born as follows: Milton (m. Mina Missimer); Rosabella (died in infancy); Alma (m. Rev. A. M. Webber, of Boyertown, Pa.); Charles (unmarried, is a druggist of Reading, Pa.); Morris F. (the hotel keeper of Kutztown); Harry; Hannah Irene (died in infancy); Tamsa (m. Wilson Richardson); and Miss Mary.

Morris F. Rentschler attended the schools of his locality until seventeen years of age, although at the age of fourteen he learned cigar making, following it in the winter months while working on the farm in summers. Thus he continued until twenty years of age. In 1886 he located in Reading, being employed with Brobst & Rentschler, with whom he continued for three years, then removing to the "Eagle Hotel" at Bernville, which was then owned by his father. This place he successfully conducted for eighteen years, making it a very popular stand, and during the latter years of his occupancy he had many summer boarders. In April, 1904, Mr. Rentschler began attending to his valuable farm in Penn township, and dealing in hides and leather, in which he had engaged some years previous, but in September, 1905, he located at Kutztown, taking charge of the "Black Horse Hotel." Under Mr. Rentschler's management the hotel has become one of the leading ones of Kutztown.

In his political views Mr. Rentschler is a Democrat and for years has been actively engaged in the ranks of his party in this section. He is a good citizen and an energetic and enterprising business man, having an enviable reputation in the community for honesty and integrity. Mr. and Mrs. Rentschler attend the Lutheran Church.

On Sept. 30, 1886, Morris F. Rentschler married Ida S. Graeff, daughter of Francis and Masitta (Miller) Graeff, the latter of whom were the parents of these children: Elmer, Charles, Lester, Ida (Mrs. Rentschler), Allen, and James. To Mr. and Mrs. Rentschler there have been born two sons and two daugnters, namely: May C.; Walter M.; Hannah I.; and Charles F. The family are very highly esteemed in the community in which they reside.

I. HENRY BERG, who is residing in his fine brick residence at Grace and Fern streets, Oakbrook, Pa., is a moulder by trade, and is now employed at the Reading Stove Works.

Mr. Berg was born June 18, 1870, in Ontelaunee township, Berks county. After attending the public schools of his native township, he entered the Reading Business College, and in 1888 began his trade at the well-known Mellert foundry, where he remained a period of four years. He has since been connected with several of the leading companies of Berks county, and at present is employed at the Reading Stove Works, where his services are highly valued. He is a steady workman and skilled mechanic, and has won the esteem and regard of his employers and fellow employes. Mr. Berg has been prominent in the ranks of the Republican party, serving Cumru township as register assessor for four years, and as clerk of the election board. In 1909 he was appointed supervisor of the first precinct of Cumru township. He is a popular member of Heptasophs Conclave No. 31, and the Iron Workers Union No. 35. In 1892 he purchased a fine brick residence at Grace and Fern streets, and he is well known and highly esteemed in that community.

On June 23, 1893, Mr. Berg married Miss Emma Worley, daughter of Obediah and Catherine (Zimmerman) Worley. To this union one son has been born: George O., Dec. 17, 1896, who is now attending school at Reading.

WILLIAM H. BROWN, carrier over Rural Free Mail Delivery Route No. 1, Robesonia, is a well-known citizen of Robesonia. He was born Dec. 3, 1861, son of John L. and grandson of Martin Brown.

John L. Brown was born July 11, 1821, in Marion township, and he died at Robesonia, March 22, 1889, aged sixty-seven years, eight months and eleven days. He married Lovina R. Fisher, who was born in 1821, and William H. is the youngest of their seven children.

William H. Brown was educated in the public schools, and he assisted his brother on the farm until he was sixteen years of age. After a short period of additional school attendance he embarked in a mercantile business at Robesonia. In 1904 he accepted his present position, and his duties require him to drive a distance of twenty-five miles each day. He is a reliable citizen in every particular, and has a wide acquaintance and hosts of friends.

In 1887, Mr. Brown was married to Miss Mary Kintzer, and they have one daughter, Naomi. This young lady is a graduate of the West Chester State Normal School, in the class of 1907, and at present is putting her education to practical use, being the popular teacher of what is called the Furnace school near Robesonia. In 1887, Mr. Brown erected his present residence. He is a member of St. Daniel's (Corner) Lutheran Church.

FRANK B. GOTTSHALL, broom manufacturer and farmer in Boyertown, was born in Douglass township, Montgomery county, Pa., March 1, 1869, and is a member of a very highly respected family that is descended from Rev. Jacob Gottshall.

Rev. Jacob Gottshall came over from Holland in 1702, and is said to be the direct ancestor of all of the name in Montgomery and surrounding counties. He was a minister of the Mennonite Church, well educated, energetic and self-sacrificing. He was one of the three translators, from Dutch to German, of the celebrated "Mirror of Martyrs" (1601)—a translation that was one of the important literary achievements of Colonial Pennsylvania. The date of his death and place of burial are not known. He preached many years at Skippack, and may be buried in the old Mennonite Lower Skippack Church, or he may be buried at Germantown in the cemetery surrounding the oldest Mennonite church in America, built in 1770, on the site of the log church erected in 1708. Some of his children settled in Montgomery county.

Gottshall Gottschalk, great-grandfather of Frank B., settled in Frederick township, Montgomery county, in 1781, and his old homestead is now owned by M. C. Gottshall, a cousin, of Frank B. He was a weaver by trade, and followed that occupation in connection with farming, doing an excellent business, and at his death in 1824 he left a fine farm of 246 acres to be divided between his two sons, Dillman and William.

William Gottshall, grandfather of Frank B., was born in 1784, and he inherited the farm mentioned above as the property of M. C. Gottshall. He was the father of thirteen children—eleven sons and two daughters—of whom twelve grew to maturity and reared families: Rev. Moses, William, Dillman, John, Andrew, Addison, Rev. Abraham, Gottshall, Mrs. Bergey, Mrs. Umstead, Jacob and Joseph.

Rev. Abraham Gottshall, son of William, was born at Schwenkville, in 1825, and he died April 1, 1901, and is buried at Bally. He lived at Niantic, Montgomery county, where he owned a farm of fifty-four acres. From the time he was about forty he was a preacher of the New Mennonite Church, and was a very fluent speaker. He was greatly beloved by those who knew him best. He married Maria Bowman, daughter of John and Magdalena (Bower) Bowman, of Niantic, and their children were: Diana, who died aged fifteen years; Menno, of Boyertown; Lizzie, who died unmarried at the age of forty; John and Abraham, twins; May, deceased wife of Daniel Urfer; William, of Sunbury; Milton, of Boyertown; Katie, wife of Harry Riegner; Abraham, of Schwenkville; and Frank B.

Frank B. Gottshall was educated in the schools of his district and reared to farming. He worked for his parents until his marriage, and in 1888 came to Boyertown, settling on a tract of fifty-four acres, which he bought the following year. This has since been his home, the house being at the corner of East Fourth and Madison streets, at the lower end of Boyertown. The summers are devoted to the cultivation of the land, and the winters to the manufacture of brooms. He is a trustee in the New Mennonite Church, to which his family also belong.

On Sept. 15, 1888, Mr. Gottshall was married to Hannah Borneman, daughter of Amos and Margaret (Heistand) Borneman, and granddaughter of Henry Borneman and of Abraham Heistand (of Shimerville, Lehigh county). To Mr. and Mrs. Gottshall were born: Elnora, at home; Margaret, at the West Chester State Normal School; Pierce; Pearl; Martha, deceased; Franklin; Chester; and Stella. Mrs. Gottshall has a grandfather's clock that belonged to Mr. Abraham Heistand. She also has the family tree of the Borneman family. It was made of wood by Amos Borneman in 1879, taking eighteen months of steady work. It is a piece of rare workmanship, and has attracted considerable attention. Eight generations are represented, and 3,200 members of the family appear on it. Forty-two pairs of twins are shown, four pairs appearing in one family of thirteen children. This family tree is the only one of its kind known to be in existence, and is considered very valuable.

MORRIS M. RUTH, who in November, 1908, moved from Millmont to Reading, was an experienced coremaker, connected with the large foundry plant of Orr & Sembower, at Millmont, Pa. He was born Nov. 2, 1860, in Marion township, Berks county, youngest of the eleven children of John L. Ruth.

John L. Ruth was a son of Frederick Ruth and wife (whose maiden name was Ludwig). He married Matilda Moyer, daughter of George W. and Barbara (Fisher) Moyer, and they had eleven children: Alfred; Cyrus; John; James; Adam; George; Prissilla m. William H. Keller; Alize m. Daniel F. Spatz; Matilda m. Richard Adams; Ellen m. William Goodhard; and Morris M.

Mr. Ruth attended the schools of his native township and those of the city of Reading, and at the age of fourteen years began carrying papers. For about one year he was employed in the drilling department of the Reading Hardware Company, and for two years at the Rick foundry. At the age of eighteen years he went to Missouri, where he spent three years, being engaged in farm work and railroading. Returning to Berks county at the end of that time, he was again employed at the Reading Hardware Company's works, but after a short time went back to Missouri, remaining two years. He then again returned to his native county, and for ten years was successfully engaged in a retail milk business in Reading, but in 1898 located in Millmont, where for a short time he was employed in the pipe mill and later in the stove works. Mr. Ruth then became connected with the firm of Orr & Sembower as a core-maker, a position he filled most efficiently. On Nov. 3, 1908, he moved to No. 428 Wunder street, Reading.

In 1884 Mr. Ruth married Annie B. Fatz, daughter of Adam and Cecelia C. (Hassel) Fatz, of Reading, and to them have been born the following children: William J., a stove-plate moulder by trade, m. Mary Fricker; Nathan I., a machinery moulder by trade, and employed at the Orr & Sembower plant at Millmont, was formerly president of Camp No. 678, P. O. S. of A., Reading, and was elected in July, 1906, president of the moulders' union of Reading, being a young man of much executive ability, well and favorably known in union circles; Cecelia C. m. Author Westley, of Reading; and Annie M. is at school. Mr. Ruth erected a pleasant home at Millmont in 1900, where they resided until the removal to Reading. They attend the Reformed Church. In political matters Mr. Ruth is a Democrat, and fraternally he is connected with Camp No. 689, P. O. S. of A., Reading; Independent Americans, Lodge No. 27, Reading; Iron Moulders' Union, and since 1882 with the Keystone Fire Company. Mrs. Ruth is also prominent in several fraternities including St. Bernard Temple, L. G. E., No. 16, Reading; Daughters of Liberty No. 122, Reading; and Dames of Malta No. 22, Reading.

JACOB HENRY RHOADS, who is engaged in carrying mail in the city of Reading, has been a resident of the city for nearly a quarter of a century, and since 1904 has made his home at No. 1260 Spruce street. Mr. Rhoads was born Feb. 17, 1868, at Leesport, Berks county, son of Caleb K. Rhoads and Mary R. Hottenstein.

John Rhoads, son of John Jacob, and great-grandfather of Jacob Henry, married Catharine Greiner, and their youngest son was Samuel.

Samuel Rhoads, son of John and grandfather of Jacob Henry, was a blacksmith and farmer. In his earlier life he made his home in Amity township, but later lived in Birdsboro. He died in 1891, aged eighty-six years. In 1833 he married Elizabeth Kline (whose parents were Dunkards), and she died in 1888, aged seventy-six years. Their children were: Edith died unmarried in 1902; Cyrus was killed at a grade crossing in Birdsboro in 1906; Caleb K.; Mahlon is a retired farmer in Birdsboro; Joel died in infancy; Sarah m. Milton Z. Geiger, and died in 1901; Enoch m. Catharine S[illegible]s; Aaron died in youth; H. Ella died unmarried in [illegible] and Miss Emma E., now living in Reading, was [illegible]d in the schools at Birdsboro, and the Keystone State Normal School, and is active in church life and much interested in genealogical research, having prepared a tree of the Rhoads family.

Caleb K. Rhoads, son of Samuel, was born in 1835-6, and died in 1901, at Birdsboro, where he was buried. He was a school teacher for many years in Amity and Ontelaunee townships, and was especially proficient in mathematics. For a number of years he worked for L. H. Focht, the contractor, estimating measurements, etc., and was a most valuable man in that line. He was later bookkeeper for the Brooke Iron Company, of Birdsboro. For twenty years he was superintendent of the Birdsboro Sunday-school.

Jacob Henry Rhoads was reared in the village of Leesport, where he lived until thirteen years of age, then spent one year and a half on a farm at Berkley, and in 1883 came to Reading, where his education was completed. He took a course in bookkeeping in the Interstate Commercial College, and for the next six years worked at Wilhelm's Paint Works, Reading, then being employed by the Morgan, Ruth, Moore Paint Company. In February, 1894, Mr. Rhoads passed a civil service examination, in which there were thirty-six competitors, and in this examination he made third best average, and was appointed a substitute mail carrier Aug. 10th of that year, and a regular carrier March 15, 1899. Socially Mr. Rhoads is connected with Reading Castle No. 49, K. G. E.; Reading Chamber No. 26, O. K. of F.; Royal Arcanum; and the Letter Carriers' Association. He and his wife attend St. Andrew's Reformed Church.

On Oct. 24, 1888, Mr. Rhoads married Sarah Row, born in Reading, Feb. 23, 1868, daughter of John and Sarah (Maurer) Row, and to this union were born children as follows: Warren Earl; Estella May; Edith Sarah, who died Oct. 18, 1898, aged a little over eight months; Walter Leroy, and Raymond Jacob.

To Mr. and Mrs. John Row, the parents of Mrs. Rhoads, were born these children: Susan, m. to Alexander Printz; William H., m. to Sallie Breidegam, deceased; John D.; Elizabeth, m. to N. Levi Ehrgood; Fred, m. to Sallie Landis; Mary, m. to Thomas Darlington, deceased; Sarah, Mrs. Rhoads. All of these children reside in Reading

HOTTENSTEIN. In maternal lines, Mr. Rhoads is descended from Jacob Hottenstein, who emigrated from Germany, and settled in Oley township, Berks county, Pa., in 1727. In 1729 he removed to Maxatawny township, where he bought a farm. He was the father of a son, William.

Henry Hottenstein, great-grandfather of Jacob H. Rhoads, was a son of William and grandson of Jacob the emigrant. He and his wife Catharine resided in Reading at the corner of Fifth and Cherry streets. Their children were: William, Abraham, Benjamin, David, Henry, Philip, Isaac, Charles, Jacob, Polly, Sallie, Katie and Esther.

Jacob Hottenstein, son of Henry, was born April 3, 1806. He settled about one mile above Mohrsville, but later moved to Leesport, where both he and his wife died and were buried in Gernant's cemetery. He married Esther Rahn, born Aug. 30, 1809, daughter of Adam N. and Margaret (Snyder) Rahn, and their children were: Aaron, John, Henry, Jacob, Annie, and Mary R.

Mary R. Hottenstein was born Nov. 11, 1838. On May 15, 1880, at Leesport, she married John S. Clay, and they later moved to Reading, where she died May 4, 1905, and was buried in Aulenbach's cemetery. Mr. Rhoads' half sister, Elizabeth E. Himmelrich, resides with him at No. 1260 Spruce street.

HENRY L. STUMP, proprietor of the "Oley Valley Hotel" at Friedensburg, and one of the best-known and most popular men of Oley township, was born in Albany township, Berks county, April 15, 1862, son of Samuel and Elizabeth (Brobst) Stump, and member of a family known here for an hundred and more years.

Jonas Stump, grandfather of Henry L., was born in Albany township, this county, Aug. 30, 1789, and he was engaged in farming in his native township until his death, Oct. 1, 1857, in his sixty-ninth year. He married Mary Brobst, born Dec. 4, 1791, died March 19, 1869. They were both buried at the New Jerusalem Church. Their children were: Benjamin, Samuel, Heinrich, Elizabeth (married Abraham Dennis), Sallie (married Michael Zimmerman), Catharine (married John Landis), Annie (married William Miller), Lydia (married John Wessner), Maria (married Michael Stein) and Sophia (died unmarried).

Samuel Stump, son of Jonas, was born on his father's farm in Albany township March 25, 1817, and died there Nov. 13, 1893, aged seventy-six years, seven months, eighteen days; he is buried at New Jerusalem Church, of which he was an official Lutheran member. He owned a good farm of seventy acres, to which he gave his attention, this now being owned by his son Henry L. In 1842 he married Elizabeth Brobst, born in 1825, died in 1866, and they had fourteen children: Catharine, Sarah, Tilghman, Seniah, Emma, John B., James, Rebecca and Louisa (twins), Henry L., Isabella, and three, Charles, Samuel and Amanda, who all died young and were buried at New Jerusalem Church.

Henry L. Stump attended the common schools of his native district and worked for his parents until he was about twenty-one years old. When he first left home he went to Boyertown, and there clerked in the grocery store of Samuel Brunner for a year, at the end of that time going to Delaware county, Pa., where for three years he was engaged at farm work. He then returned to Albany township, and again worked on his father's farm. In 1888 he entered the hotel business at Kempton, where he successfully conducted the "Kempton House" for fourteen years, establishing a good reputation with the traveling public. His well laden tables, good service and clean rooms appeal to the tired traveler and when he left Kempton in the spring of 1902, it was to become the proprietor of the "Washington House," on South Seventh street, Reading, where he remained for one and a half years, but owing to the difficulty of obtaining good help at that point he sold out. In a short time he assumed charge of the "Oley Valley House," at Friedensburg, and this he has been successfully conducting ever since, enjoying in a high degree the goodwill and respect of the community.

Mr. Stump is a progressive and up-to-date business man, and he is interested in whatever will benefit his town and county. He was one of the organizers and is a member of the board of directors of the Oley Hosiery Mills, where some thirty hands are employed; and he was also one of the organizers and is a director of the First National Bank of Oley, a very prosperous financial institution. Mr. Stump is a well-known sportsman, being a fisherman and hunter of some repute. In 1890 he caught the first large carp ever caught in the Ontelaunee, this weighing sixteen pounds. In 1905, with four other sportsmen, Mr. Stump made a trip to Virginia and killed three deer. In the fall of 1906, with five others, he made a trip to Center county, where four deer were shot, Mr. Stump shooting a buck weighing two hundred pounds, which he has mounted and on exhibition in his hotel. The meat he had roasted and served to two hundred friends. In 1908 he and six other sportsmen made another trip to Center county and killed two deer, Mr. Stump killing one.

Fraternally Mr. Stump is a member of Suyeto Tribe, No. 477, I. O. R. M., of Oley; Castle No. 119, K. G. E.; Council No. 544, American Mechanics, Kempton (of which he is a charter member), and Aerie No. 66, F. O. E., Reading.

JOHN B. STUMP, a prosperous farmer near Friedensburg, Oley township, was born in Albany township, Aug. 6, 1853, son of Samuel and Elizabeth (Brobst) Stump. His early training was all along the line of farm work, and he gave his services to his parents until he was about twenty years old. He then lived out among the farmers of Albany and Upper Bern townships for four years. In 1874 he came to Oley and he continued working for others until 1892, when he began for himself. Since 1904 he has lived at his present place, which is the property of Susan DeTurck, and is known as the old Kemp farm in Oley, the house being erected by Jacob Kemp in 1757 and still in a good condition. Another built by J. and Catharine Kemp in 1809 stands on the same farm. Mr. Stump is interested in good stock, and at the present time has six horses, six mules and twenty-seven head of cattle. His farm is kept in good condition and he shows his ability to get good results from his labors.

On Jan. 20, 1874, Mr. Stump married, in Oley, Amanda Smith, daughter of Isaac and Susan (Hartline) Smith, and they have had children: Edwin, of Reading, married Annie Haines; Charles, of Oley township, married Laura Yoder; Andrew, of Friedensburg, married Amanda Fiering; George and Maurice are at home; Ella married Isaac Rhoads, of Friedensburg; Miss Sadie is at home.

Isaac Smith, father of Mrs. Stump, was the father of four children: Mary Ann, Ezra, Amanda and John.

Jacob Smith, father of Isaac, lived in Earl township. He married Mary Yoder, and their children were: Mary, Lizzie, Susanna, John, Jacob, Isaac and Abraham.

HARRY N. NOLL, a blacksmith at Mohnton, was born at Newmanstown, Lebanon county, Pa., Jan. 19, 1868, son of Levi and Eliza M. (Newman) Noll.

The history of the Noll family in America begins long before the Revolution. On Sept. 21, 1751, Philip Heinrich Noll landed at Philadelphia, from the ship "Two Brothers," and tradition has it that a brother Benjamin had already settled in Lebanon county, a tradition supported by the recorded fact that such a name appears on the tax list of Lebanon township, Lebanon county, in 1750. Philip Noll settled at Newmanstown, and both operated a small farm and worked at his trade as a shoemaker. He lived to a very advanced age, and his remains are buried in the village where he lived so long. His wife was Rebecca Uhricht, by whom he had five children, viz.: George, a stone mason at Newmanstown; William, similarly engaged there; Isaac; Sedock, a shoemaker at Newmanstown; and Polly, wife of Harry Reed, of that same place.

Isaac Noll was born in Newmanstown and there died, his life covering the span from 1809 to 1893. He was the owner of a small farm of forty-five acres, which he carried on in addition to shoemaking. Twice married, his children were all by his first wife, Rebecca Forry, and numbered seven, viz.: Lydia m. John Leininger, of Womelsdorf; Caroline M. m. Peter Mornin, a railroad employe; Edward, a blacksmith at Richland, Pa., m. Miss Katie Hoffman; William, of Schaefferstown, m. Miss Emma Sanders; Levi F.; Sarah m. John Heffelfinger, a plasterer at Mt. Etna; and Malinda.

Levi F. Noll was born Feb. 19, 1834, and during all of his active life was a blacksmith, working in Newmanstown, Jacksonwald, St. Lawrence and Reading. In the last city he was employed for some years by Howard Ahrens. He first located there in 1874, then spent twelve years in Jacksonwald and St. Lawrence, and finally returned to Reading again in 1890, remaining there ever since. He has given up his trade, but while living practically in retirement still maintains a hold on the world of action and business by conducting an oyster house on Locust street. He has always been interested in politics, and for some years served as constable of Exeter township, elected on the Republican ticket.

During the Civil war Mr. Noll was among those who rallied to their country's defense. He enlisted as a private in Company F, 93d Pa. V. I., and saw considerable active service, participating in the battles of the Wilderness, Fisher's Hill, Winchester, Cedar Creek, Charlestown and Sailor's Creek.

Mr. Noll married Eliza M. Newman, daughter of Adam and Catherine (Palm) Newman, and to this union children have been born as follows: Eva m. Henry M. Jackson, a machinist of Reading; Harry N.; Isaac and Adam both died in childhood; Katie m. Howard Herflicker, a slater in Reading; William m. Miss Rosa Hertline, of Reading; Mary m. Samuel Saylor, of Reading; Edward died in childhood; Walter; and two died in infancy.

Harry N. Noll was sent to the public schools in Reading and Jacksonwald, but left at an early age to help on the farm which his father occupied. When seventeen years old he took up his father's trade, but acquired it not from the latter but from Wallace Eckenroth, of Gouglersville. He worked one year for William Bachman and another on his own account at St. Lawrence. He was next with Owen Fox at the Half-Way House and after that took a position in the Blandon Rolling Mills. On April 3, 1893, he started out once more for himself, locating at Mohnsville, and has built up a patronage there, the largest in that section of the country, for people living within a radius of five miles come to him for work. Not only is his work most satisfactory, but he himself is so honest and upright in all his dealings, so manly in character, that he stands high in the public respect and is very popular personally. He has considerable influence locally in politics, and has always worked well for his party, the Republican, which has rewarded his loyalty by making him auditor of Cumru township, an office he filled most efficiently for three years.

On Oct. 19, 1889, Mr. Noll married S. Laura Bower, daughter of William and Caroline (Goodman) Bower. Mrs. Noll has borne her husband seven children, namely: Venona May; Della A., who died in 1895, aged nineteen months; Paul B., who died in 1897, aged three years, eight months; Katie V., who died in 1897, aged fifteen months; Allison L.; Erma C.; and Debbie E. Mr. Noll, as well as his wife, is a member of the Lutheran Church of Blandon. Fraternally he belongs to the K. of P., No. 485, and Knights of Friendship, No. 46, both of Mohnton; and to the P. O. S. of A., No. 230, of St. Lawrence.

HENRY ALTHOUSE, retired farmer at Reading from 1867 to 1882, was born in Bern township near Epler's Church Sept. 11, 1811. He was educated in the school connected with Epler's Church and brought up on his father's farm, working for his father at farming until he was thirty years of age. He then purchased a large farm in the township named near Bern Church, and cultivated this farm for himself in a successful manner until 1867, when he removed to Reading and lived in retirement until his decease, Sept. 27, 1882. He was recognized for his quiet, straightforward and unostentatious character.

Mr. Althouse was married to Mary Kissinger, daughter of Abraham Kissinger, of Bern township, and sister of John M. Kissinger (mentioned elsewhere), and they had ten children: Catharine A. (m. Daniel F. Dietrich); Henry F.; Morgan J. (m. Mary Moyer); Mary C. (m. Peter M. Hoffman); Emma S. (m. George Loose); John W. (m. Carrie Reeser); Rebecca S. (m. Dr. William F. Marks); and three, Wellington, Ella S. and Clara L., died young.

His father was John Althouse, a farmer of Bern township (born 1771, died 1847), who married Catharine Knabb, of Oley. His grandfather was John George Althouse, also a farmer of the same township, born 1745, and died 1811. He married Maria Barbara Herbine, of Oley township.

ISAIAH B. SEIBERT, who has been engaged for some time in the coal, grain and hay business at Third and Walnut streets, Reading, was born in Mill-creek township, near Sheridan, Lebanon county, son of John U. and Mary A. (Bennetch) Seibert.

John U. Seibert, who was first engaged in milling and farming in Lebanon county, came to Reading in 1884 and engaged in the coal, grain and flour business at Third and Cherry streets, being successor to Samuel Klopp. There he remained until his death in 1888, in his fifty-fourth year, the father of five children: George, deceased; John H., of Reading; Isaiah B.; Andrew M., and Lillian E., who married Edward F. Sterner, of Germantown, Pa. In religious belief Mr. Seibert was an Evangelical, and in politics a Democrat.

Isaiah B. Seibert received his education in the schools of Ashland, Pa., and the Eastman Business College, Poughkeepsie, N. Y. Returning to Ashland he entered the office of Frank Rentz as bookkeeper, remaining there two years, when he came to Reading and entered the employ of Seibert & Son, the firm consisting of his father and brother John H. In 1896 the business was removed to its present location, the firm name continuing the same until in 190—, when Isaiah B. Seibert purchased the interest of the estate. Mr. Seibert's yard and warehouse are situated at the southwest corner of Third and Walnut streets, and there may be found all sizes of coal, grain and hay at moderate prices. Mr. Seibert bears a good reputation for honest dealing, and as a consequence has a trade that demands the use of three delivery wagons and four employes.

In 1889 Mr. Seibert married Emma Snyder, daughter of Harry R. Snyder, and to them have been born three children: Harry F., attending Stoner's Business College, is acting as bookkeeper in his father's coal office; John U. attending school; and Leah E., deceased. The fraternal affiliation of Mr. Seibert is with the Masons, the Royal Arcanum and the Golden Eagles. He is a member of the United Evangelical Church, while Mrs. Seibert is connected with St. Paul's Reformed Church of Reading, being an active worker in the missionary society. In political matters Mr. Seibert is a Republican.

FRANCIS M. HEILIG, a farmer near Pine Iron Works, in Douglass township, Berks county, Pa., was born in Cumru township, this county, March 2, 1846.

George Heilig, grandfather of Francis M., was born in Germany and came to America in his young manhood. In his earlier life he lived at Sumneytown, Montgomery Co., Pa., and then came to Berks county to live with his son Samuel at Seibert's forge, in Upper Tulpehocken township. He died near Shartlesville, about 1841 or 1842, well advanced in the eighties, and was buried at the Blue Mountain Church. He was tall, being fully six feet in height. A grandson, George W. Heilig, of Reading, says that his grandfather was bedfast for several years before his death. George Heilig married a Miller, and their eight children were: George, John, Charles, Samuel, Francis, Reuben, Mrs. Richard O'Connor and Mary (Molly).

Francis Heilig, son of George, lived at different places. For some years he had his home in Cumru township, where he was an iron worker at the Nicholas Yocum forge. Later he lived in District township, where for a number of years he operated a forge for himself. He then moved to Pricetown, and after four years there located in East Reading where he lived retired until his death about 1898, when he was aged eighty-five years, and he is buried at the Union Meeting House in Oley. He was a member of the Croll or New Lutheran Church. He married Esther Reichard, who died about 1887. They had eight children: Nathaniel, Jairus and William (twins), Elmira (m. David Rohrbach), Mary (m. Edward Druckenmiller), Amanda (m. John Bertolet), Francis M. and Jonathan.

Francis M. Heilig was a mere lad when his parents removed to District township, and there he grew up around his father's iron forge. After the close of the Civil war he went to Reading, and worked in the railroad shops as a carpenter, continuing there until his marriage in 1873. Two years later he moved to Douglass township, and settled on the farm on which he still resides. This farm consists of eighty acres, and was known as the John Mowdy farm, and still earlier belonged to the Eagle family. The present stone house was built in 1816. When Mr. Heilig bought his land in Douglass township, his acreage included the farm of fifty-seven acres now owned by his daughter, Lillie, wife of Thomas Kurtz, and the 147-acre farm of his son Arthur Heilig. The stone house on Mrs. Kurtz's place was built in 1777 by Charles Leopold, and in the south gable is a stone with the inscription "C. L. 1777." This house is still occupied as a dwelling. Mr. Heilig and his family belong to the United Evangelical Church at Pottstown.

In 1873 Mr. Heilig married Elizabeth Bertolet, daughter of Jacob Bertolet, a foremost citizen of Oley township, and sister of Israel Bertolet, president of the First National Bank of Oley. Ten children have blessed this union, as follows: Alice m. David Garte, a baker at Pottstown; Mabel m. William B. Wisler, of Pine Iron Works; Laura m. William Brunner, of Douglass township; Lillie m. Thomas Kurtz, of Douglass township; Miss Annie is at home; Arthur is a farmer on a farm adjoining his father's; Winfield is an insurance agent at Pottstown; Miss Bessie is at home, as are also Misses Ella and Hannah.

Samuel Heilig, son of George the emigrant ancestor, died at Reading in March, 1848, aged thirty-five years, and was buried at Trinity Lutheran Church in the little cemetery. He was an iron worker and forge man, and was employed at Seibert's forge in Upper Tulpehocken township, and at the Reading Steam Forge. He married Esther Dierolf, and they had eight children: Amelia, Anna, Emma, George W., and four that died young.

George W. Heilig, son of Samuel, was born in Upper Tulpehocken township, Berks county, Dec. 13, 1835. From his boyhood until he was eighteen be was bound out to Fred Beideman for board and clothing. After he was eighteen he attended White Hall Academy, in Cumberland county, Pa. In 1854 he was licensed to teach school by Rev. William A. Good, and in that year taught his first school in the free school of Upper Bern township, where he was engaged for two consecutive terms of three months each, at a salary of twenty-eight dollars per month. The following three terms he taught in Upper Tulpehocken township, and he then became clerk in Beideman's store, Shartlesville, for three years, being considered a very able salesman. From 1856 to 1859 he clerked at Strausstown for Joseph Potteiger, in the last year becoming a partner of his employer under the firm name of Potteiger & Heilig. This lasted six years and he then came to Shartlesville, where he kept a store for one year. He then became a bookkeeper for Kline & Eppihimer, Reading. In 1869 he was appointed assistant revenue assessor, which office he filled until 1886. In 1859 he married Catharine Reber, daughter of Jonathan Reber, and their children were: Albert R., Calvin, James, Irwin, Edward, Frederick, Harry, William (died aged six years), Clara J., Annie L., and Marie K.

REUBEN L. KURTZ, a substantial business man of Reading, Pa., who since 1904 has been conducting a grocery at Greenwich and Pear streets, was born in 1856, one-half mile north of Morgantown, Pa., son of Jacob and Sarah (Zook) Kurtz, and grandson of Jacob Kurtz, of the old German Kurtz family.

Jacob Kurtz, father of Reuben L., was born Nov. 3, 1812, was reared about one mile from Morgantown on the old Col. Morgan homestead and was educated in the pay schools that existed in his youth. At the age of twenty-two years he married Sarah Zook, daughter of Jacob Zook, a neighboring farmer, and removed to a farm near Ephrata, Lancaster county, where they remained six years. Mr. Kurtz then purchased the Clymer farm which borders the village of Morgantown, and here lived for four years, when he sold out and removed to the village. His wife died in 1880, the mother of ten children: three died in infancy; Mrs. Catherine Hertzler; Mrs. Sarah Reeser; Mrs. Elizabeth Keller; Jacob H.; Reuben L.; Elmer C. and Clara. Mr. Kurtz was a member of the Caernarvon Amish congregation. He always took a deep interest in educational matters, assisting to keep going the pay schools, and when the public school question was agitated it found no warmer supporter than he. He was a school director for many years, and when eighteen years of age assisted in building a schoolhouse, hauling many stones for the structure. During the war he assisted in raising money to furnish substitutes. Mr. Kurtz often took three-day trips to Philadelphia in his large Conestoga wagon loaded with farm produce, returning with a load of merchandise, and also made a number of trips to Ohio, where he purchased horses, cattle and sheep, which he brought East on the hoof and sold to the farmers of his section. On one of these occasions he made the outgoing trip by the Erie canal and the lake. When the main line of the Pennsylvania Railroad was built, stones were used instead of sills, and Mr. Kurtz furnished from his farm and delivered by team many of these stones in the vicinity of Coatesville these being made in the form of blocks about 12x18x22 inches. He was an interesting figure in the community, and there was scarcely a person in the village who did not at one time or another sit at his side and listen with interest to his accounts of old times. At the time of his death Mr. Kurtz was ninety-one years and nine months of age.

Reuben L. Kurtz was educated in the schools of Morgantown and Millersville, and remained on the home farm until about eighteen years of age, when he began clerking in his brother's general store at Morgantown. Later he engaged in farming, at which he continued for seven years, then embarking in the meat and butchering business, as well as dealing in agricultural instruments. He then traveled for the D. M. Osborn Company, and in 1901 located in Reading, where he was appointed tax collector, a position he held for three years. In 1904 he engaged in his present business, in which he has continued with much success to the present time.

In 1881 Mr. Kurtz was married to Rosie Eyrich, and to them have been born three children: Warren, a bookkeeper of Philadelphia; Edna, in the employ of C. K. Whitner; and Edwin, who died Sept. 15, 1908. The family are Methodists in religious belief. Mr. Kurtz is fraternally connected with Howell Lodge, F. & A. M., of Honeybrook, Pa.; and Reading Lodge of Perfection, 14th degree. He is a Republican in political matters, and in Harrison's administration served as United States gauger.

BROOKE LUDWIG. The name of Ludwig is well known all through the State of Pennsylvania to horsemen, and lovers of fine stock are quite familiar with the Valley View Stock Farm, in Amity township, the property of Mr. Brooke Ludwig.

In 1733 the ship "Pennsylvania Merchant" landed at Philadelphia, and among the passengers on that trip was Michael Ludwig, a native of Germany, who came to Berks county, Pennsylvania, and settled in Amity township, on the farm later the property of William Davidheiser. He married into the Bechtel family, and among his children were two sons, Michael (m. to a Lutz) and Philip.

Philip Ludwig was born in Amity township, March 10, 1759, and became a prominent farmer in his native locality. He was a man of strong religious convictions, and was one of those early interested in the building of the Amity church. He married Anna De Hart, born Aug. 16, 1769, died Dec. 25, 1825. He died Feb. 5, 1827. They had seven children: Abraham; Thomas m. Mary A. Schaeffer; Jacob m. Sarah Spang; Benjamin; Mary m. George Moser; Ellen m. (first) a Nein and (second) Wesley Stern; and Rachel m. Daniel Deeter.

Abraham Ludwig was born in Amity township March 7, 1788, and after attending the Molatton school engaged in farming. He m. Sarah Miller, born Jan. 8, 1786, died July 26, 1878. He died Jan. 18, 1863. They had seven children: Harriet m. William Lorah; Augustus m. Carolina Pott, daughter of John; Elizabeth m. Peter Marquart; Mary Ann m. Jacob Holloway; Elam Miller; Sarah m. Jacob Schaeffer; and Lewis m. Elizabeth Rothermel, daughter of Peter.

Elam Miller Ludwig, son of Abraham, was born March 7, 1828, and his boyhood and youth were passed in attending the township schools and assisting his father on the farm. When twenty-three years of age he began for himself on one of the Brooke farms in Union township, which he later bought, selling it three years later at a good profit. He then bought the Eagle farm in Amity township, and has since then been interested in farming and the breeding of fine horses. The Berks County Agricultural Society has served to exhibit some of his finest. He has owned some of the most noted trotting stock in the country. He introduced "Ironsides" to the track, this horse trotting in 2.36, a wonderful speed for the time, and when sold at auction in Amityville brought $2,650. Mr. Ludwig was exceedingly successful in buying colts and training them for the track. He married Hannah J. Greiner, daughter of Samuel Greiner, of Amity township. Their children were: Calvin C.; Morgan died in infancy; Brooke; Bard lives on the homestead; Harriet m. Elmer Aldenderfer, of Pottstown; Mahlon is training horses at the Phoenixville Stock farm, belonging to William D. Althouse, where he has been since 1891; Millie m. Charles Breidenbach, of Pottsville; Sarah C. m. Carl Grubb, of Baltimore, Md.; Abraham died aged twenty-five years; Lewis is a horse trainer at Baltimore, Maryland.

Brooke Ludwig was born near Birdsboro, Pa., July 19, 1855, and was educated in the common schools of Amity township. He was early given charge of the stock on the home farm, and has always been a lover of horses. In 1876 he began to train for other people, and from that time until 1891 he conducted a public training stable. He had his first stable at Pottstown, then went to Birdsboro, and from there to Three Mile House. In 1890 he purchased his present place in Amity, known as the Valley View Stock Farm. He has 150 acres, and he has made many improvements on the place. In 1891 he built the present barn, which has sixteen box stalls and all modern equipment. He has from forty to fifty head of horses all the time, and breeds trotting stock. He is the owner of "Nutbelview," 2.12¼; and of "Steel Penn" (by William Penn), 2.16¼. He is known all over this State, as well as in New Jersey and other neighboring States as a thorough horseman. His residence has not been neglected, and he has a charming home, with everything there that makes life worth living. Mr. Ludwig is very proud of a grandfather's clock he owns, which he obtained from his father, who acquired it from an aunt, Catharine Kirlin.

On Dec. 24, 1884, Mr. Ludwig married Ella M. Bowers, daughter of Amos K. and Matilda (Gilbert) Bowers, the former of whom was a native of Amity township, but lived in Lancaster a number of years, returning, however to Amity, where he died. Four children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Ludwig, namely: Earl, Harold, Orrin and Roy.

WILLIAM F. BURKEY, in his lifetime one of the leading citizens of Hamburg, Berks Co., Pa., prominently connected with the business, political and fraternal circles of Berks county, was born in Hamburg April 5, 1851, and he died at his home Nov. 24, 1907.

An emigrant by the name of Burky came to America from Hesse-Cassel, and located at Bally, in the Goshenhoppen Valley, in Pennsylvania, where he helped to build the Roman Catholic Church of the Most Blessed Sacrament in 1743. He was a member of that church, and his remains are buried in the consecrated ground there. He was a relative of that Jacob Burkey who emigrated in 1733, and located in Bern township, Berks county. Tradition says they were brothers. The name is also spelled Burcky and Borcky. Children of the Bally emigrant visited the family of the same name in Bern township.

Jacob Burky of Bally, grandson of the emigrant, settled in Windsor township, Berks county, in his young manhood, and there married Barbara Harver, a Protestant woman, who died about 1873, aged seventy-nine years. He was born about 1790, and died aged eighty-four years, and is buried in the Charles Evans cemetery. He was a wheelwright and farmer. His children were: (1) Joseph was drowned. (2) Mary married a Newkirk. (3) Benjamin was a charcoal burner in Greenwich and Albany townships. He had a large family, among whom was a son, William, who is a contractor and now lives in Reading. (4) Anna married a Christ. (5) Sarah married a Stump. (6) Henry W., born 1835, was a cigar-maker and later a railroad watchman for many years, making his home in Reading. His son, E. L. Burky, lives in Philadelphia. (7) Reuben H. lived in Windsor township, where he married Lucinda Schwoyer, and then lived at Hamburg, Port Clinton and Schuylkill Haven, respectively, dying in the last named place. He had a large family, and some of his posterity live about Tamaqua. (8) Samuel lived in Windsor township until his marriage with Rebecca Richards, when he moved to Mahanoy City, where he resided some years, and he died in Reading, and is buried in Aulenbach cemetery. His children were: William, Charles, Irwin, Sallie. and Laura. Jacob Burky, father of these children and grandson of the emigrant, had brothers and sisters as follows: John, Philip, Dianah (who married first a Miller and second a Dewald), and Mrs. Swoyer. The children of the emigrant ancestor were, like their parents, Roman Catholics, but some of their children located in communities where there was no Catholic Church, and married into Protestant families, some of them becoming Protestant and some being members of no church at all. The majority of the family are farmers.

(I) Jacob Burkey, the emigrant ancestor of William F. Burkey, late of Hamburg, and of John A. Burkey, of Reading, crossed the ocean on the ship "Hope" and arrived at Philadelphia Aug. 28, 1733. In 1759, when the first tax of Bern township (part of which is now Upper Bern) was levied, he was a taxable of the township, paying a tax of £9. He was the original owner of the Burkey homestead, on which he died in January, 1764, and there he was buried, rough sandstones marking the last resting-place of this pioneer settler and his wife, and, according to tradition, of a son.

(II) Jacob Burkey (2), son of the emigrant, was born in Upper Bern township. He owned the small Burkey homestead on which he died in 1819. His wife bore the maiden name of Geissler. To them were born children as follows: John, who lived in Upper Bern, m. a Miss Faust; Heinrich, who lived at Irish Creek in Tilden township, m. a Miss Stoudt; Wilhelm, who settled in Upper Bern, m. a Miss Kettery; Jacob went west; Daniel is mentioned below; David, who lived in Bernville, m. a Miss Schlappig, and had a son Joshua whose son Joshua is now deputy sheriff of Berks county; Betsy m. Jacob Blatt.

(III) Daniel Burkey, son of Jacob (2), was born Nov. 30, 1789, in Upper Bern township, and died there in 1866. He was a shoemaker by trade, but later in life became a weaver, which occupation he followed in addition to conducting his small farm in Upper Bern township, situated one mile southwest of St. Michael's church. This tract has been in the possession of the Burkey family since it was deeded to them by the Penns. Daniel Burkey married Susanna Bautsch, daughter of Frederick Bautsch, and to them were born the following named children: Daniel m. Polly Blatt; Sallie (1812-1881) m. Jacob Kasper (1792-1868), a native of Reichenbach, Baden, Germany; Catharine m. Isaac Ketner; Hannah m. Peter Heim; William m. Mary Becker; Peter is mentioned below; Elizabeth m. John Yerger; Benjamin m. Sarah Dunkelberger; Joseph died when fourteen years of age; two died in infancy.

(IV) Peter Burkey, son of Daniel and father of William F., was born March 7, 1826, in Upper Bern township, Berks county, and he died at Hamburg, May 27, 1903. He was reared upon his father's farm, and in early youth learned the trade of carpenter and afterward that of cabinet-maker. In 1849 he started in for himself, in a small way, at the latter occupation, on the property at present occupied by the large Burkey furniture establishment. At first he worked alone, but soon the growth of the business demanded help, and he engaged workmen, whom he educated to the business, thus building up the large enterprise that passed to his sons at the time of his death. Always enterprising and progressive, it is said that in the early days of his business he walked twice a day twelve miles to look after his lumber. He was one of the founders of the Hamburg Savings Bank, and for a number of years its honored president; and a stockholder and director of the Windsor Water Company. He was a consistent member of the First Reformed Church of Hamburg, and was chairman of the building committee which erected the handsome new edifice, being also the largest contributor toward the erection fund. He was an elder of the church at the time of his death.

In 1850 Mr. Burkey married Hannah Deysher, daughter of John Deysher, who was county commissioner from 1834 to 1837. Of this union came three children, namely: William F. is mentioned below; Daniel A. m. Minerva Van Doran, and had a son who died young; Mary B. m. Dr. George W. Ziegler, of Philadelphia. The mother lived in Philadelphia until her death there May 15, 1909, at the home of her daughter, when she was aged eighty-one years. Her remains were interred in the family plot in Hamburg.

(V) William F. Burkey, son of Peter, attended the schools of Hamburg, and when but nine years of age was a student in the high school, which was then in charge of Prof. R. S. Unger and J. Howard Jacobs, Esq. At the age of seventeen he completed his education, and learned the trade of cabinet-maker with his father, with whom he continued to work until the latter's death. At that time the two sons, William F. and Daniel A., took up the business and became joint managers of the estate—relations which were sustained until the death of William F. The estate consisted of a large manufacturing plant and retail business, the store on South Fourth street—a four-story brick building, 26 x 90 feet, and the product a complete line of furniture and carpets, the firm doing a large business in the county outside of Reading, covering the trade of the entire upper part of Berks county and the coal region district. William F. Burkey was also a licensed undertaker and embalmer, and had a large business in that line. He was a director in the Hamburg Savings Bank, succeeding his father, and had been treasurer of the Board of Trade from the time of its organization. He was president of the Union Fire Company for a number of years, and was a stockholder of the Windsor Water Company. In politics he was a Republican, and had been a member of the school board and a delegate to various county conventions. In his religious connection Mr. Burkey was a member of the First Reformed Church, to which his family belong. He played the cornet in the Sunday school for a period of ten years, and in all this time missed but two Sundays. Mr. Burkey was a member of Vaux Lodge, F. & A. M., No. 406 (was twice master of his lodge, and secretary at the time of his death); of Reading Chapter, R. A. M.; De Molay Commandery, No. 9, K. T.; Reading Lodge of Perfection; Philadelphia Consistory; and Rajah Temple, Mystic Shrine. He was also a member of Ontelaunee Tribe, I. O. R. M., of which he was treasurer; and of the P. O. S. of A., being on the degree team for a number of years.

Mr. Burkey was an accomplished musician, and had been prominently identified with musical organizations in the borough from 1869. He belonged to the Hamburg Cornet Band, under M. H. Schollenberger, and the Hamburg Band, under Dr. William Harris, being the cornet solo player of these companies. He was the organizer and leader of Burkey's Band of Hamburg, which was established in 1883, and which at a recent engagement at Pottsville, on the occasion of "Old Home" week, numbered thirty-five pieces. For twelve years he was a member of the First Brigade Band of Reading. All of Mr. Burkey's sons are members of Burkey's Band, and are skilled musicians. In 1900 Mr. Burkey, Mr. Allen J. Fink, Mr. N. A. Confer and Mr. Amos S. Miller, of Hamburg, took a pleasure trip to Europe, visiting Belgium, Holland, France, Switzerland, Germany, England, Ireland and Scotland, seeing many points of interest.

On Oct. 6, 1873, Mr. Burkey married Miss Elgiva A. Derr, daughter of Benneville and Mary (Hill) Derr, and granddaughter of Israel Derr (whose wife was a Stitzel). To this union were born four sons: (1) Charles D., who was educated in the public schools, graduating from the Hamburg high school at the head of his class, is assistant cashier in the Hamburg Savings Bank. He married Bessie Confer, and resides on North Fourth street. (2) Peter H., who was also educated in the public schools and was graduated from the high school at the head of his class, learned the cabinet-maker's trade from his father, and then took a course in Eastman's Business College, Poughkeepsie, N. Y. He is now paying teller of the Seaboard National Bank of New York, a position he obtained through merit, having first served the bank as clerk. He married Laura Hopkins, and resides at his home in Brooklyn. (3) William D., who attended the public and high schools of Hamburg (graduating from the latter in the class of 1898), and Dickinson College (from which he was graduated in the class of 1902), is the proprietor of the Eagle Knitting Mills, at Leesport, Pa. He married Sally Altenderfer. (4) Edward B. was educated in the public schools and high school at Hamburg, graduating from the high school in the class of 1903, and later entered Dickinson College, graduating with the class of 1908.

Mr. William F. Burkey was a thoroughly representative citizen and successful man. His quiet demeanor, gentlemanly habits, uprightness of character, and kindness of heart, endeared him to the people of his town and vicinity and his sudden call from the stage of activity was as great a public loss as his life had been a useful one. His funeral, held in the First Reformed Church, was one of the largest ever held in the borough, and was attended by delegations from the various fraternal organizations to which he belonged. Many beautiful floral tributes gave their mute testimonial of the regard in which the deceased was held. The Rev. Mr. Gerhard said in part: "He was a man of fine temperament and noble impulses. Delicate was his sense of honor and justice. Sensitive in a high degree, reserved and yet self-assertive—but self-assertive with quiet dignity, we believe that he was thoroughly upright and reliable in his dealings with his fellow-men. . . . The sorrow and misfortune with which he came in contact moved him to deeds of kindness and charity. He could read human nature well. He could adapt himself to every class of people. He had good judgment and, above all, good sense. He was broad-minded. He had culture, refined manners and was of good address. These were not the fruit of uncommon and rare mental ability, but acquired by his sense of good judgment, keen observation and an earnest desire to improve.....a keen sense of the beautiful in nature, music and poetry. He loved to regale himself in the beautiful, and he was quick to respond to its touch." His remains were interred in St. John's cemetery, where besides the usual services the Masonic ritual was used.

(IV) William Burkey, son of Daniel, was born in Upper Bern township, and died at Leesport, at the early age of twenty-eight years; he is buried at St. Michael's church, of which he was a Reformed member. By trade he was a cabinet-maker, and he was in business at Leesport. He married Mary Becker, of Tilden township, who died Dec. 26, 1904, aged seventy-four years. They had an only son, John A.

(V) John A. Burkey, son of William, is a well-known citizen of the Fourteenth ward, Reading. He was born in Upper Bern (now Tilden) township Dec. 9, 1853. His education was acquired in the country schools and in Annville College, near Lebanon, Pa. When about fifteen years of age he learned the cabinet-maker's trade in Hamburg, from his uncle, Peter Burkey, and this he followed for five years in Hamburg, Reading and Tamaqua. He then attended the Eastman Business College, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and graduated therefrom in 1873. In 1875 he engaged in the dry-goods business at Landingville, Schuylkill county, and the next year (1876) located in Pottsville, where for three years he was engaged in a similar line. For a short time he was located in Hamburg, and then came to Reading, where he connected himself as clerk with the firm of Dives, Pomeroy & Stewart, and has continued in their employ from that time (1880) to the present, now being the buyer of the upholstery department. He resides in his own comfortable home at No. 525 Douglass street.

Mr. Burkey has been quite prominent in fraternal work. He is past worshipful master of Vaux Lodge, No. 406, F.

& A. M., of Hamburg; past high priest of Excelsior Chapter, No. 37, R. A. M., of Reading; member of Reading Commandery, No. 42, K. T., and of Rajah Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S., and also of Philadelphia Lodge of Perfection and of the Consistory. He also belongs to Camp No. 78, P. O. S. of A., of Hamburg. He has greatly endeared himself to his fellow members in the lodges by his reliable work in whatever position placed, and by his active work on the committees appointed to look after the sick.

On Dec. 1, 1875, Mr. Burkey married Clara, daughter of Henry Seibert, of Hamburg.

STRASSER. The name of Strasser has been identified with the development of Berks county, and especially with Windsor township, where for generations through one hundred and fifty years property has been handed down from father to son.

(I) The first of the name to come to Pennsylvania was Conrad Strasser, who emigrated from Germany some time prior to 1750, and located in Windsor township, Berks county. He became the owner of about 2,500 acres, and he erected some good farm buildings on his estate, traces of the first buildings still being found. These were located about 500 yards west of the present homestead, and the foundations still remain under the sod. Conrad Strasser made a will which was probated Feb. 12, 1799, soon after his death, which occurred when he was advanced in years. This will was witnessed by Jacob Schappel and Johann George Focht (also spelled Voigt). The executors of the will were Conrad Strasser (the eldest son) and Andrew Smith, a friend. Conrad Strasser and his wife Christine had a number of children, but the names of Conrad and Johannes alone are mentioned in the will. This will also says that the three youngest sons shall learn a trade when sixteen years old. Son Conrad obtained the original homestead farm, and Johannes obtained another large tract. The latter was to give his mother yearly during her lifetime the following items: "Plant one-half acre of potatoes, plant one-half acre of flax, give forty bushels of rye, give three bushels of wheat, give twenty bushels of buckwheat, give twenty bushels of Indian corn and give six sheep."

(II) Conrad Strasser, son of Conrad, was born in Windsor township Oct. 27, 1768, and passed his whole life on his farm there, his share of his father's estate being 375 acres. In 1803 he married Rosina Hummel, who was born Dec. 26, 1778, and who died Feb. 12, 1869, at the ripe old age of ninety years, one month and sixteen days. Conrad Strasser died Aug. 28, 1847, aged seventy-eight years, ten months and one day. They were the parents of eleven children, of whom there is record of nine, namely: Michael; Jacob; Isaac; Jeremiah; Rachel, who married Jacob Miller; Polly m. John Kramer; Kate m. Jesse Mengel; Sally m. Frederick Ritter; and Leah m. Simon Dreibelbis.

(III) Jeremiah Strasser was born April 22, 1815. After his father's death he became the owner of the homestead, and built thereon the house, barn and outbuildings that are in use at the present time. He was a prominent man in his day, and was a stanch believer in the principles of the Democratic party. For many years he served as school director of his township. He died March 8, 1887, near the close of his seventy-second year. His wife, whose maiden name was Elizabeth Reichelderfer, born May 23, 1818, died five years later than her husband, April 20, 1892, when nearly seventy-four years of age. Their children were: Rebecca, m. to Israel Engel; Simon, m. to Maria Stein; Alfred, m. to Sarah Trexler; Cornelius R.; Conrad, who was burned to death when about four years old; Elizabeth, who died young; and Joseph, m. to Sarah Hoch.

(IV) Cornelius R. Strasser, son of Jeremiah, was, like his ancestors, a life-long farmer on the old homestead, where he was born Aug. 15, 1850. One hundred and sixteen acres of the property was his share, and on it he was engaged mainly in potato raising, for the land, a fertile gravel, is better adapted to that crop than is any other part of the county. Mr. Strasser's life was cut short in its prime, and he passed away Jan. 13, 1895. He was a quiet, unassuming man and devoted member of Zion Lutheran Church, with which the family have always been connected, and in whose churchyard lie the remains of preceding generations of the family. Cornelius R. Strasser m. Miss Amelia Heffner, daughter of Jacob and Annie (Spohn) Heffner, and granddaughter of Jacob and Becky (Dietrich) Heffner. She bore her husband children as follows: Alvin, m. Camelia Smith; Wilson H.; Elizabeth, m. Charles Stump; Cornelius H.; Annie, died Sept. 9, 1906, aged twenty-four years; Ellen, m. Herbert Wissner; and Clara, m. Jacob Miller.

(V) Wilson H. Strasser, son of Cornelius R., was born on the old Strasser homestead in Windsor township, April 3, 1876. He was brought up on the farm, and worked for his parents until he was nineteen years old, and then for the next two years was given wages by his father. When he attained his majority he entered Brunner's Reading Academy and Business College, which he attended one year. At the close of that year he was married and then learned the trade of carpenter and millwright from Charles Reinhart, of Hamburg, and this has since engaged his attention with the exception of three years when he was employed as motorman (1902-03-04) on the trolly lines in Reading, to which city he had removed in 1899. He is an excellent mechanic, and is thorough in all that he does. He belongs to the Grand Fraternity—a social order—and is very popular with all who know him.

Mr. Strasser and his family belong to St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Reading, and are active in its work. In his political belief he is independent, and believes in looking to qualification and integrity of purpose rather than to partisanship.

On June 9, 1898, Mr. Strasser married Miss Eva B. Heinly, daughter of Jacob and Mary (Hagenbach) Heinly, of Waltham township, LaSalle Co., Ill., and granddaughter of Charles and Julia Hagenbach, farming people of Illinois. Jacob Heinly was born in Upper Berks county, son of the late David Heinly of Albany township, and in his young manhood went to Illinois, where he married and had children: Cora (m. Charles Penman), Warren (of Illinois), Eva B. (Mrs. Strasser), Irene (m. Harry Bryan), Harry and Arthur. Five children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Strasser, namely: Marian H., Irene A., Edward A., Dorothy E. (who died in the fall of 1908, in her sixth year) and Grace Olga.

(V) Cornelius H. Strasser, son of Cornelius R., was seventeen years old when his father died, and up to that time had been in the public schools. By that sad event he was compelled to leave school and under the direction of his older brother, Wilson H., carry on the farm. Young though he was he proved himself fully equal to the arduous demands upon him and he won the respect of all by the capable and successful way he assisted his brother in managing the place, and in caring for the mother. Since 1900 he has been farming for himself, beginning with only a few acres, which he planted in potatoes. He has increased his acreage gradually and now has from twelve to fifteen from which he gets from 2,500 to 3,500 bushels annually. He is a good citizen, an earnest member of Zion Church and one of the promising young men of the district.

In the year 1901 Cornelius H. Strasser married Miss Katie Seidel, daughter of Henry G. and Emma (Balthasser) Seidel, and granddaughter of William and Susanna (Dreibelbis) Seidel. Four children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Strasser, as follows: George William, March 4, 1902; Mabel Rebecca, May 16, 1903; Clarence Henry, June, 1904; and Esther Catherine, Aug. 11, 1905.

GEORGE M. SEIBERT was born in Womelsdorf, Pa., Oct. 4, 1855, and was one of the eight sons comprising the family of Henry and Maria (Reifsnyder) Seibert. His father, originally a carpenter by trade, later accepted a place with the Philadelphia & Reading R. R. Co. as foreman at the blast furnace in Reading, and the remainder of his life was occupied in that manner. He died in 1898, aged sixty-eight. One of the sons died in infancy but the others, by name John S., Jonathan, George M., Frank, Christian, David and Nathaniel, are all living. Mrs. Seibert, now eighty-two years of age, still survives. The family all hold the faith of the Reformed Church, and father and sons alike have all supported the Democratic party on political issues.

George M. Seibert was a boy of nine years of age when his father moved to Reading, and his education was acquired in the public schools of that city. His first employment was in the Reading Cotton Mill, where he worked five years. Thereafter he was engaged in boating on the canal, for the Harbster Hardware Company in their printing and bronzing room, where he remained two years, in running a stationary engine, and as a finisher in a hat factory. In this last position he continued twelve years, leaving to accept a police appointment during the administration of Captain Weidel as mayor. At the end of that term Mr. Seibert worked for a time as an engineer for the Acme Bicycle Works, and then, April 1, 1899, embarked on the enterprise which has ever since largely absorbed his attention. Choosing a location at the corner of Sixth and Bingaman streets, he remodeled the place and opened "Seibert's Hotel" and while it was an untried field of effort for him, the venture has proved profitable and more than justified his expectations.

Since 1876, when he cast his first vote, for Samuel J. Tilden, Mr. Seibert has been actively interested in politics and a loyal worker for the Democratic party, becoming a leader in local and ward politics. In that same year, May 23d, began his connection with the Liberty Fire Beneficial Association, while he also belongs to the Liberty Fire Company. He is likewise a member of the P. O. S. of A.

Mr. Seibert has been twice married, but by neither union have there been any children. His first wife Annie Tomney, daughter of John Tomney, whom he married Nov. 13, 1879, died Oct. 2, 1883. On Dec. 31, 1886, he m. (second) Miss Emma Murray, daughter of Henry and Mary (Miller) Murray.

JOHN T. DRAYER, who is now living retired at his home at No. 700 North Sixth street, Reading, Pa., was born in 1850, in Berks county, Pa., son of Samuel and Mary (Thomas) Drayer.

Samuel Drayer, who was a substantial citizen and practical agriculturist in Temple township, Berks county, died in 1881, the father of ten children, five of whom are now living: Charles; Susan, m. to Alonzo Rapp, deceased; Anna, m. to Jacob Flicker; Margaret, m. to George Shadel, deceased; Esther, deceased, m. to Clinton Margerum, also deceased; Lucy, m. to Henry Becker, both deceased; Sarah, Jeremiah and William, all deceased; and John T. In religious belief the family were Lutherans. Mr. Drayer was first a Whig and later a Republican in political matters.

John T. Drayer received his education in the schools of Muhlenberg township, and then engaged in work at the woolen mill of John Shadle, his father-in-law, with whom he continued for twelve years, his next employment being with the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad Company, as fireman, from which position he was promoted to that of engineer and served in the latter capacity for four years, being in all sixteen years in the service of the road. In 1891 Mr. Drayer resigned his position to engage in the grocery business at Sixth and Oley streets, and this he sold out in 1901, since which time he has lived retired. Mr. Drayer is independent in political matters, but takes great interest in the public affairs of the city. Fraternally he is connected with the P. O. S. of A.

Mr. Drayer was married to Edwina Shadle, daughter of John Shadle, and to this union there were born two children: Minnie, deceased; and Sally, who married Curtis C. Shoptaugh and has one child, John Drayer.

WILLIAM S. BAER, who is extensively engaged in agricultural operations in Windsor township, where he owns an excellent farm of sixty-one acres of fertile land, was born May 28, 1854, in Greenwich township, Berks county, son of Henry and Catherine (Schollenberger) Baer.

The emigrant ancestor of the Baers of Berks county, Pa., was Hans Baer, who after landing at Philadelphia spent a few years in the vicinity of Germantown, but before 1750 settled in Weisenburg township, now in Lehigh county. The old Hans Baer farm is pointed out to this day as the Kershner farm, and is located near Claussville. Hans Baer had four children, namely: John, Adam, Jacob and Barbara. Barbara married Henry Fetter; John removed to Windsor township, Berks county, his descendants residing in Hamburg and in Windsor, Perry and Bern townships; and Adam took up land near the old Hans Baer farm in 1773, this property still being in the possession of his descendants. He had a family of twelve children, seven sons and five daughters.

Jacob Baer, great-great-grandfather of William S., was the third son of the ancestor. He inherited the old farm and also acquired several other large tracts, having in all over 500 acres of land. He had twelve children, six daughters and six sons, and to each of the latter, namely Jacob, Daniel, John, Henry, John Adam and Hans Adam, he gave a farm.

John Adam Baer, son of Jacob, resided in Weisenburg township, Northampton (now Lehigh) county, until 1812, when he removed to Maxatawny township, Berks county, settling on what is known as the Hartman farm, about one mile northeast of Kutztown. His wife was Susanna Knerr, and to them were born ten children: Jonathan, John, Peter, Charles, Solomon, Eva, Lydia, Betsy, Susanna and Polly.

Jonathan Baer, grandfather of William S., was a weaver and a farmer of Greenwich township. He was born in Northampton (now Lehigh) county, Aug. 10, 1796, and died in 1878, having been a township officer for thirty-five years. He was married to Catherine Mattern, born June 19, 1798, daughter of Johannes and Maria (Levan) Mattern, and to them were born these children: Eliza, who married Levi Reppert; Henry, born Jan. 25, 1823; Charles, born Jan. 25, 1825; and Hettie, who married George Herring.

Henry Baer was born Jan. 25, 1823, in Maxatawny township, and died in 1899 in Windsor township. For many years he engaged in carpentering, but gave up that occupation to engage in farming in Greenwich township. Later he removed to Albany township, near Jerusalem Church, continuing in that locality for three years, when, in 1880, he removed to Lynn township, Lehigh county, where the next five years were spent. At the end of this time Mr. Baer purchased the sixty-one-acre farm east of Hamburg, which is now in the possession of his son, William S., and here he continued to operate until his death in 1899. Mr. Baer married Miss Catherine Schollenberger, born June 18, 1822, who died in 1888, and to them were born two children: William S.; and Hettie, born June 18, 1858, who died in the fourteenth year of her age.

William S. Baer acquired a good education in the public schools and later attended the Keystone State Normal School at Kutztown, Pa. He was reared on the farm, working for his father until twenty-two years of age, and in 1886 purchased his father's farm upon which he has resided to the present time. Excellent buildings adorn this property, the large brick residence with double porch in front presenting a fine appearance, while the old barn, which was destroyed by lightning in 1886 was replaced by Mr. Baer in the same year by a new Swiss barn, seventy feet in length. Mr. Baer is a progressive and enterprising agriculturist, taking advantage of all the latest modern machinery, and he also has an up-to-date dairy, shipping his milk to Coaldale, Schuylkill county.

Mr. William S. Baer was united in marriage with Miss Amanda Brancher, born Aug. 27, 1858, daughter of Daniel and Polly (Lutz) Brancher, and granddaughter of Christian and Catherine (Kramer) Brancher. No children have been born to this union. Mr. Baer and his wife are consistent attendants of Zion's Union Church of Perry township, being Reformed members thereof, and they contribute liberally to its support. They are one of the most highly esteemed couples in the community, and have many warm friends. In political matters Mr. Baer is a stanch adherent of the principles of the Democratic party, but has refused steadfastly to accept public office.

GEORGE S. COOK, one of the substantial business men of Reading, Pa., who is engaged in the manufacture of baskets, was born Sept. 8, 1856, in Reading, son of John Cook, and grandson of Joseph Cook.

Joseph Cook, who was born in Switzerland, came to America with his family, landing at Baltimore, Md., where he remained for several years. In 1853 he came to Reading, where he became the pioneer basket manufacturer of the city, having learned his trade in his native country. He died at the age of sixty years, the same age at which his wife, who had been Josephine Clymer, passed away. Their children were: Caroline, the wife of Edward McCoy, of Cumberland, Md.; Kate; Elizabeth; Frederick, a basket-maker of Reading; and Joseph, Jacob, John, William and Mary, all deceased.

John Cook came to America with his father when five years of age, learned the trade of basket-making and was first engaged in business on Walnut street, above Tenth. He later located at No. 219 North Tenth street, and there continued until his death, Nov. 6, 1905, aged sixty-eight years, having been engaged in business with his son for thirty-three years. He married Caroline Becker, daughter of Jacob, and she died in 1903. The children born to the union were: George S.; and John S., who is employed at the Roller Mill, m. Hannah Hoyer, and lives on Pike street, Reading.

George S. Cook received his education in the public schools of Reading, and with his father learned the business of basket making. His father took him into partnership in 1879, the firm name becoming John Cook & Son, and under the name Mr. Cook has continued the business to the present time with much success. Mr. Cook manufactures all kinds of baskets—willow, reed and rattan—and has a large local trade. He married Mary B. Stable, daughter of John B., of Reading, and to this union have been born: Gertrude m. Edward Brockaway; John, unmarried is engaged in the grocery business; George is serving in the U. S. Navy; and Carrie, Solomon, Susan, William, Harry and Irvin are at home. In politics Mr. Cook is a Democrat. He is a member of the St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church.

WESLEY H. FISHER, who is engaged in a butchering business at Fritztown, was born in Spring township, Berks county, Feb. 28, 1867, son of Absalom H. and Rachel E. (McFarland) Fisher.

Absalom H. Fisher is a native of Berks county, born at Reading, Sept. 30, 1833, son of David Fisher. His early life was passed in his native county, and at the age of seventeen he went to Adamstown, where he clerked for nine years in what was then the John Musser store. For twenty-four terms he taught school in Spring township—at Merkels, Mohns Hill and Fritztown schools. For ten years he served as justice of the peace, and in many ways made himself one of the most useful men in his vicinity. Some fifteen years ago he retired, and he still makes his home in Spring township, near Adamstown, where he has a fine tract of thirty-five acres of land. In politics he is a Democrat, and in religious belief is Reformed. On Oct. 4, 1860, he married Rachel E. McFarland, daughter of Andrew H. and Mary (Murdock) McFarland, the former of whom came to America as a young man and located in Philadelphia, but died in Spring township and was buried in the Charles Evans cemetery at Reading. He was a strict Presbyterian in faith. To Absalom H. and Rachel E. Fisher were born children as follows: Andrew H. died aged twenty-eight years; Allen; Wesley H.; Lorenzo H.; Mary C.; Daisy N.; Absalom E.; William I., and Esther E.

Wesley H. Fisher attended the township schools in Spring township, and early became familiar with the work on the farm. When eighteen years of age he learned the cigar maker's trade, and followed this at different factories for six years. In 1897 he began butchering at his present location, and has built up a fine trade in Reading and in the vicinity.

Mr. Fisher married Katie Irwin, daughter of William J. and Elmira (Rhoads) Irwin, now of Cumru township, and two children have blessed this union: Catherine and Allen. In politics Mr. Fisher is a stanch Democrat, and has served on the election board of his township, and in many ways has evinced a keen interest in his party's success. He is a member of St. John's Lutheran Church at Gouglersville. Fraternally he is a popular member of the P. O. S. of A.

JOHN H. MELLERT, foreman of the Drummond Iron Company, doing business at the old Mellert foundry, is a son of Otto and Caroline (Breneiser) Mellert, and was reared and educated at Reading.

As a boy, Mr. Mellert learned the molder's trade, which he has followed all his life. He made the first loam Y in the city of Reading, using brick and loam for the core mould, which, at the time, was considered a great undertaking and proved eminently successful. He is looked upon as an expert in his business. He served his term of apprenticeship under the Mellert Foundry Company, and was placed in charge of the pipe department of the foundry when but nineteen years of age, where he remained nine years. He then took charge of the general foundry, where all the large castings and other goods are manufactured, having fifty men under his supervision, three of whom are acknowledged experts. In 1905 the Drummond Iron Company took charge of the old plant. In public esteem the work of this company stands very high and it now is completing the second United States Government contract for heavy water pipe for the Philippine Islands. Mr. Mellert has the personal supervision of this very important job.

In 1882, Mr. Mellert married Emma V. Rhoads, daughter of Samuel L. Rhoads, an extensive hardware dealer at Reading. They have two sons, Otto, who is a clerk with the Reading Hardware Company; and Clayton, who is employed at a branch of the New York Brick Company in Reading. In politics Mr. Mellert is independent. He is a member of the Second Reformed Church, and his wife is a member of the Trinity Lutheran Church.

ABRAHAM F. LEVAN, who has been living retired since 1886, at his home, midway between Jacksonwald and Esterly, was for many years engaged in agricultural pursuits in Exeter township, where he was born Jan. 18, 1841.

Abraham F. Levan was reared on the old Levan homestead at Jacksonwald, and received his education in the public schools. On attaining his majority he began operating the old homestead, which consisted of 193 acres, and there he continued until 1885, when he built his present residence, on a one and one-half acre tract. He is also the owner of 142 acres on the old Philadelphia pike. In politics a stanch Democrat, Mr. Levan has always been active in the ranks of that party, and has served as a member of the school board.

On Sept. 26, 1871, Mr. Levan married Miss Sallie Davis, daughter of Edward and Rebecca (Lerch) Davis, natives of Maiden-creek and Bern townships, respectively, who spent their married lives in Bern and Penn townships, and their declining years in Reading. To Mr. and Mrs. Levan was born one child, Margaretta, who died in infancy. They are members of the Reformed Church.

Edward Davis was in early life a farmer, but later he followed school teaching, and died at the age of sixty-six years in 1885. His wife, Rebecca Lerch, died in August, 1906, in her eighty-fourth year, in the faith of the Reformed Church. To Mr. and Mrs. Davis were born three children: Franklin, who died in 1899; Sallie, m. to Mr. Levan; and Rebecca who died July 13, 1894, m. to Reuben Keene.

Luke Davis, grandfather of Mrs. Levan, was reared in Maiden-creek township. He learned the trade of miller, and later settled on a farm in Penn township, which he operated until reaching an advanced age.

Abraham Lucas

P. H. HILDEBRAND, proprietor of the Colonial Cigar Factory, at No. 213 North Tenth street, Reading, is one of that city's rising young business men. Mr. Hildebrand was born in Marietta, Lancaster Co., Pa., in 1875, son of the late Richard and Sarah (Getz) Hildebrand, the father being a well known cigar manufacturer at Marietta and Ephrata, in which latter place he died in 1905 at the age of seventy-two years. To Richard Hildebrand and wife were born these children: Isaac, a traveling salesman for his brother, P. H.; Leaman, a farmer of Lancaster county; Phares, also a traveling salesman; Benjamin, a cigar maker by trade; Harry, a foreman for his brother; and P. H.

P. H. Hildebrand attended the schools of Lancaster county, and when a young man learned the trade of cigar making, also selling leaf tobacco for one year. He was employed with his father for several years in the business, and engaged therein on his own account in Reading in 1899, at No. 313 North Eighth street. He was then associated with his brother, Phares, the firm being known as Hildebrand Bros. After two years of successful business dealings the firm was dissolved, P. H. purchasing his brother's interest. In 1905 Mr. Hildebrand removed to his present place, where he has a fine well-equipped three-story factory building, employing therein from fifty to sixty hands. He also has a factory in Ephrata, Lancaster county, with twenty-five cigar makers. His goods have a large sale throughout the State, although more especially in Reading where his own especial brands—"Paul Dudley" and "Don Rex"—are very popular.

Mr. Hildebrand was married to Katie M. Coldren, of Adamstown, Lancaster county, and they reside at No. 409 Spring street. Mr. Hildebrand is very popular fraternally, being a member of the Elks of Reading, Lodge No. 115, and the Odd Fellows.

ANDREW L. SCHWEIMLER, one of the prosperous business men of Reading, whose grocery is located at No. 128 East Buttonwood street, corner of Pear, was born in 1867, a son of Andrew J. and Caroline (Merget), and grandson of Joseph K. and Sarah (Angstadt) Schweimler.

Joseph K. Schweimler was born in Tioga county, Pa., but removed to Berks county, where he died in 1892, aged seventy-two years. His wife, Sarah Angstadt, died in 1893. Their children were: Elizabeth, deceased, m. William Geiger; William; Susan m. Franklin France; Joseph; Andrew J.; James W., and several died in infancy. The family belonged to the Lutheran faith.

Andrew J. Schweimler, son of Joseph K., left the public school at an early age to go to work in the Reading cotton mill. Later he became a huckster and sold produce until, at the age of twenty-one years, he entered the army for service in the Civil war, enlisting Sept. 24, 1861, in Battery D, Independent Artillery, which was attached to the Army of the Potomac. He re-enlisted Feb. 4, 1864, was promoted to Corporal May 1, 1864, and mustered out at the expiration of his term, June 13, 1865. He was taken sick at Memphis, Tenn., and after a season in the hospital he was honorably discharged at Covington, Ky., after serving faithfully through four years of the war. Upon his return home he resumed his truck business for a short time, and then opened a grocery store at Ninth and Franklin streets, which he conducted until 1878. In that year he sold out and engaged in the hotel business for about one year, afterward selling out and learning the trade of boiler maker, which he followed until 1890. In the latter year he assisted his son Andrew L., who opened up a grocery store at No. 717 North Ninth street. In 1894 the store was removed to its present location at No. 128 Buttonwood, corner of Pear street, where the business is successfully conducted by the son to this time, the father assisting the son until his death. Mr. Schweimler was a valued comrade of the local G. A. R., and also belonged to the Union Veteran Legion. He was a member of the K. of P. and of the Senior Order of American Mechanics. Politically he was a Republican. He married Caroline Merget, and their children were: Andrew L., Laura and George, both deceased; and Carrie, m. to W. O. Weidenheimer.

Andrew L. Schweimler was educated in the Reading public schools. His first work was in the shoe store of William Geiger, where he remained a year and then was employed in Willson's spectacle factory for a year. The following year was passed in the Jackson Rope Walk, and six years in the J. H. Seivard shoe factory, as an employe of the finishing department. In June 1890, he engaged in the grocery business, at No. 717 North Ninth street, continuing there until 1894, since when he has been at his present location. He carries a large and well selected stock of staple and fancy groceries and does a good business.

In 1894 Mr. Schweimler was married to Minnie A. Kistler, daughter of Wilson Kistler and Sophia (Blose) Kistler and they have one child, Stanley S. Mr. Schweimler is a member and Past Commander of Meade Camp No. 16, Sons of Veterans; of Juniata Tribe, No. 74, I. O. R. M.; of Camp No. 330, P. O. S. of A. Both he and his wife belong to the Lutheran Church.

HIRAM D. DRUMHELLER, who resides in his comfortable home at No. 424 South Fifth street, Reading, Pa., is one of the city's highly respected and useful citizens, and is at present employed as foreman of the woodworking departments of the Reading Hardware Company. Mr. Drumheller was born March 31, 1849, in Earl township, Berks Co., Pa., son of Charles and Abigail (Dierolf) Drumheller.

John Drumheller, the great-grandfather of Hiram D., died on his plantation in Earl township Aug. 17, 1815. He made his last will and testament June 13, 1814, and this document is on record in Will Book D, p. 132, and makes ample provision for his beloved wife Regina. Son Leonard and a Jacob Trout, probably a son-in-law, were executors of the estate. In the will is an item which states: "the remaining of my estate shall be equitably divided among all my children." Unfortunately their names are not given. Leonard and William Drumheller, the latter the grandfather of Hiram D., were brothers. Family tradition says there was another brother, as well as some sisters. In 1782, after the township was organized from a part of Oley township, John Drumheller was one of the taxables, as was one Nicholas Drumheller, who probably was a brother. The father of these men, probably was J. Leonard Drumheller, who crossed the ocean on the brigatine "Mary and Sarah" Capt. Thomas Brodrick, from Rotterdam, which qualified at Philadelphia, Oct. 20, 1754. Leonard Drumheller, son of John, made his will June 7, 1832, and he died in the early part of 1837, his will being probated on March 8th of that year. He was a farmer in Earl township. His wife, Susanna, bore him one daughter, Hattie, and a number of sons, one of whom was David, who was the executor of his father's estate.

William Drumheller, grandfather of Hiram D., was born May 18, 1792, in Earl township, and died there April 24, 1882, being buried at Oley Church. He was a farmer by occupation and owned the farm that descended to his son, Charles. He was a captain in a company in the War of 1812, was a well-read and intelligent man, and was as well known for his fine physique and great strength as for his many sterling traits of character. He married Elizabeth Fisher, who was born in Oley township, May 9, 1793, and died Oct. 29, 1867, and to them was born an only son; Charles.

Charles Drumheller, father of Hiram D., was born in Earl township, in 1814, and died in August, 1889, being buried at Oley Church, of which he was an official Lutheran member. He was a lifelong agriculturist, being engaged in cultivating the forty-five-acre farm which he had received from his father. Charles Drumheller was married to Abigail Dierolf, a daughter of Daniel Dierolf of Rockland township, and she died in 1897, aged eighty-five years. They had the following seven children: Amelia m. Samuel Dierolf; Emeline is deceased; Peter lost his life at the battle of Gettysburg; Henry owns the homestead in Earl township; Deborah m. George Hartline; Ezra died young; and Hiram D.

Hiram D. Drumheller was reared in his native township where he attended the public schools, and when eight years of age left his home and for four years lived with the family of John Guldin. For the following nine years he resided at the home of Abraham Guldin, John's son, in Oley township, and on reaching maturity he learned the carpenter's trade, which he followed until 1876. At this time he engaged in farming for five years, for his former employer, Abraham Guldin, in Oley township, and in 1881, located in Reading, where he has since made his home. For five years he was employed by Davis, Printz & Co., as a carpenter and pattern maker, and in 1886 he commenced working as foreman for the Reading Hardware Company. Four years later he was promoted to the position of foreman of all the wood-working departments a responsible position which he now very efficiently fills. He resides in his own residence, No. 424 South Fifth street, which he has occupied since Oct. 3, 1904. Mr. Drumheller is a member of the Reading Hardware Association, in which he has held office since 1890, having been treasurer of the association since 1901, and he is also connected with Court Progress, of the Foresters of America. He belongs to Zion's United Brethren Church of Reading, Mrs. Drumheller being connected with Faith Reformed Church.

Mr. Drumheller was married (first) to Mary E. Schaeffer, who was born in Amity township, March 1, 1849, and died June 10, 1899. The following children were born to this union: Warren, deceased; Annie, m. to Martin Wagner, of Reading; Carrie, m. to Henry Raudenbush, of Reading; Mary, who is deceased; and Walter, who lives in Reading. Mr. Drumheller m. (second) Mary J. Hatt, daughter of Daniel and Martha (Lambert) Hatt, of near Fritztown, and granddaughter of Daniel and Catherine Hatt.

Mr. Drumheller is one of the well known residents of his community in Reading, and is highly respected by all who know him. He is one of the most trusted employes of the Reading Hardware Company, and has the esteem of his employers and subordinates.

HARRY D. JESBERG, who is at present conducting the well known "Montgomery House," Nos. 938-940 North Eighth street, Reading, Pa., was born in August, 1867, in Muhlenberg township, Berks county, son of John and Elizabeth (Deal) Jesberg.

John Jesberg came to this country from Wurtemberg, Germany, and for the rest of his life was engaged in trucking and hotel keeping in Reading. He died in 1890, when seventy-four years old, and his wife in May, 1903, in her seventy-third year, both being members of the Lutheran Church. Of the eleven children of Mr. and Mrs. Jesberg, seven are now living: John; William; Maggie, m. to Charles Benzel, of the firm of Jesberg & Benzel; Rosie, m. to John Hiller; Elizabeth, who m. Peter Gift, deceased; Harry D., mentioned below; and Annie, m. to Henry Weiler. In political matters Mr. Jesberg was a Democrat.

Harry D. Jesberg was educated in the schools of Muhlenberg township, and his first work, at which he continued until eighteen years of age, was at farming by the month. In 1887 he came to Reading and engaged as clerk in the "Montgomery House," which he purchased in 1903, in company with Harry S. Weiler. Under this management the business flourished from the start.

Mr. Jesberg married (first) Ellen Miller, daughter of Susan Miller, and she died in 1902, aged 36 years, leaving three children: Edna, Ida and Catherine. Mr. Jesberg m. (second), in 1907, Mrs. Anna (Ketner) Rohrbech.

Mr. Jesberg is a member of the P. O. S. of A., the Knights of the Golden Eagle, the I. O. R. M., the F. O. E., the White Swan Camping Club, the Excelsior Beneficial Association, the Marion Fire Co., the Firemen's Relief Association and the United States Health and Accident Insurance Company. In politics he is a Democrat.

HENRY LENCKE died June 10th, 1908, aged forty-seven years, a man cut off in the very prime of life, blessed with a devoted wife and loving children, enjoying the fullest confidence of the owners of The Reading Eagle, and the esteem of his fellow workmen. Mr. Lencke was born and reared in Reading, and his untimely death, which was not entirely unexpected, coming as it did after a protracted illness, brought sorrow to many. Mr. Lencke was a son of Henry Lencke, Sr., who died Feb. 7, 1907, aged eighty-one years.

Henry Lencke Sr., was a well known cabinet maker, who was born in Germany, and when a boy learned the trade of his father and grandfather. In 1853 he married, and several years later came to America with his young wife and located at Reading. There he was employed in furniture making by Frederick Henninger. In 1869 he worked as a carpenter for the Reading railroad, and a few years later he began manufacturing picture frames and rubber stamps at No. 48 South Seventh street. He conducted this business until the death of his wife Johanna, in 1891, when he retired permanently. He was an expert in polishing all kinds of woods with shellac, and made many special cabinets, including some for music and other for sewing machines. At one time he did a large business in filling special orders of this kind. He belonged to the Seven Wise Men, Knights of Pythias, and the Red Men, and as he possessed a strong tenor voice he was a very valued member of the Harmonie Maennerchor for many years, and was an honorary member until his death. He joined it thirty years prior to his death, and was financial secretary for twenty years. In religious faith he was a member of St. John's German Lutheran Church. He is survived by these children: Mary m. Herman Petsch, of Lower Alsace township; and J. K. Lencke is engaged in the pneumatic tool manufacturing business at St. Petersburg, Russia. There are eleven grandchildren and four great-grandchildren in this family.

When Henry Lencke, Jr., was a lad he began carrying The Reading Eagle and on Jan. 31, 1874, he began what was to prove a service of thirty-four years, working first in the press room, and later learned the trade of a printer. He showed such aptitude for the work that he was advanced until he became foreman of the press room, and held that responsible position for nearly a quarter of a century.

His fraternal affiliations were with the Masonic order, he having been past master of Teutonia Lodge No. 367, F. & A. M., serving as master in 1891 and 1904; was a member of Excelsior Chapter No. 237, R. A. M.; Reading Commandery, No. 42, K. T., and Reading Lodge of Perfection. He was secretary of the Consolidated Masonic Board of Charities. Mr. Lencke was also active in the affairs of St. John's Lutheran church, for nine years having served as deacon, retiring from the vestry a short time prior to his death only to be elected trustee of the congregation. He was president of the school board for several years. Mr. Lencke was also a member of several German organizations, including the Reading Turn Verein and the Unterstuetzungsbund.

Mr. Lencke is survived by his widow and two daughters, Mary Louise and Laura Alice. Mrs. Lencke, whose maiden name was Alice German, is a daughter of the late Owen and Mary (Fry) German, of Germansville, Lehigh county.

EUGENE P. DE TURK, a well-known merchant of Kutztown, Berks Co., Pa., who is engaged in the hardware business, was born Dec. 11, 1865, in Maxatawny township, Berks county, son of William and Elizabeth (Butz) De Turk.

The progenitor of the De Turk family in Berks county was Isaac De Turk, born 1686, who originally came from northern France, where was seated a wealthy and highly honorable family of the name of De Turk. They possessed peace and happiness, vineyards and wealth. Over their bright home, however, the dark shadows of adversity soon fell. The family was Protestant, and when the Revocation of the Edict of Nantes sounded throughout France in 1685 it fell heavily upon this family. The heartless dragonades ravished their homes, while the government confiscated their property, and among those who escaped was Isaac De Turk, who with many others fled to Frankenthal, in the Palatinate. Seeing no hope of returning to his native home, he resolved to accept the gracious invitation of Queen Anne of England to the Huguenots and Palatines, to come to her dominions, and he arrived in the autumn of 1707 in New York. In this party was an accomplished young widow Maria Weimar (or Vemar) and her little daughter, Catherine, and to the former Mr. De Turk was married soon after their arrival in New York. They settled in Esopus, and were among the settlers of Quassick Creek, in Dutchess county, in 1709, soon after which time the commission of Pennsylvania (province) issued a warrant to him for 300 acres of land, out at a place called Oley, "of which locality this is the first mention." In 1721 he purchased another tract, adjoining his own, most of this land being in the possession of his descendants at the present day. Mrs. De Turk was the daughter of Jean De Harcourt, a prominent citizen of Muehlhausen, in Lower Alsace, and of the French nobility. Mr. and Mrs. De Turk had these children: Catherine, who married Abraham Levan; John, who married May 13, 1740, Deborah High; and Esther, who married Abraham Bertolet. In his will Isaac De Turk bequeathed his entire landed estate to his son John, who paid his sisters their apportioned parts according to appraisement.

John De Turk was born in 1710, and was a prominent Moravian. The visit of Count Zinzendorf and the holding of the third Moravian Synod at his place were important events. John De Turk had these children: Isaac, born Aug. 25, 1741, died young; Daniel B., born Sept. 18, 1742, married Catherine Levan and served as a captain in the Revolutionary war; Susanna, born March 27, 1745, married———Schaeffer; John, born Jan. 20, 1747, married Elizabeth Bertolet; Maria, born July 16, 1748, married D. Weiser; Samuel, born May 25, 1750, married Catherine Kerst; Abraham, born March 9, 1752 married Anna Weiser; Daughter, born Nov. 18, 1753, died young; Esther, born Feb. 9, 1755; Philip, born April 30, 1757, married (first) Esther Shenkel, and (second) Maria High; Jacob, born Nov. 24, 1759, died young; and Deborah, born June 12, 1761, married Peter Knabb.

By his marriage with Esther Shenkel, Philip De Turk had five children, namely: Philip, born May 30, 1782, m. Maria Yoder; John; Isaac, born Oct. 19, 1788, m. Lydia Wagner; Susanna, born July 15, 1790, died young; and Daniel, born Feb. 22, 1792, died young.

John De Turk, son of Philip, was born April 27, 1787, and was a farmer on the old homestead in Oley township. He was a foremost citizen and was active in the interests of the Reformed Church of his district, dying in 1865, aged seventy-eight years. By his wife, Susan Knabb, he had five children: Amos, who died single; Nathan, m. to Esther Deysher; William; Susan, m. to Henry A. F. Kohler; and Sarah, born Feb. 16, 1834, and died Sept. 15, 1889.

William De Turk, father of Eugene P., was born in Oley township, on the original De Turk homestead, March 18, 1829. His youth was spent upon the farm and he attended the pay school of his district for some years, acquiring a fair education. When a young man he located in Maxatawny township, where he purchased a good farm of 100 acres of land, living there until 1883, when he removed to Kutztown, and was there living at the time of his death, caused by a brief illness due to a cold, Dec. 24, 1898. He was a good man and an upright citizen. On June 3, 1860, Mr. De Turk married Elizabeth Butz, daughter of Egedius Butz, and to them were born three sons: Alvin J., m. to Mary Kohler; Lewis B., m. to Lizzie Rahn; and Eugene P.

Eugene P. De Turk obtained his early educational training in the public schools of his native locality, and later attended the Keystone State Normal school for a period of two years. In 1886 he began clerking in the general store at Kutztown, continuing in that capacity for seven years. On Nov. 1, 1892, Mr. De Turk embarked in the hardware business on Main street, Kutztown, and has prospered from the beginning. During the winter of 1903-04 he erected a large store on Main street, where he has been successfully engaged to the present time. He carries a more varied stock than any other hardware dealer of his district, and is a man of unquestioned integrity, enjoying the confidence and esteem of his fellow-townsmen. He and his family worship at St. Paul's Reformed Church of Kutztown. In politics Mr. De Turk is a Democrat.

On Aug. 23, 1888, Mr. De Turk married Lizzie A. Deisher, daughter of John D. and Hannah (Koehler) Deisher and to this union these children have been born; John W.; Lawrence A.; Lloyd E.; Harry C.; Olivet H. E.; Lillian M.; Grace I.; George Deisher who died aged six months; and Charles A.

WILLIAM RAPP HINNERSHITZ, son of the late Jacob and Barbara Rapp Hinnershitz, was born Sept. 2, 1840, in Cumru township, Berks Co., Pa. He was baptized by Rev. William Pauly, May 3, 1841, and confirmed in 1859 in the First Reformed Church by Rev. Aaron S. Leinbach who also officiated at his marriage. He was married to Ellen, daughter of David and Esther Levan, of Reading, April 29, 1860, and their happy married life continued until she died, July 5, 1907. Mr. Hinnershitz was the last of his family, the following brothers and sisters having preceded him in death: Amelia A., wife of Franklin A. Althouse; Henry A., John R., and Mary A. Hinnershitz.

In 1850 Mr. Hinnershitz entered the employ of Kerper & Keely, grocers, then located at the southwest corner of Eighth & Penn streets. He served them faithfully until 1865, when he formed a partnership with his father-in-law, David Levan, under the firm name of Wm. R. Hinnershitz & Co., they doing business at No. 747 Penn street. After the death of Mr. Levan, which occurred two years later, he associated with himself in the same business, the late John E. Bubp and they did business under the firm name of Hinnershitz & Bubp. They conducted the business with much success for a period of twenty-four years, when, in 1891, Mr. Hinnershitz retired from the firm.

After that he was actively engaged in the building business, both individually and in partnership with several prominent builders, the foremost of whom was a Mr. Rehr. In all, he was instrumental in the erection of several hundred first-class dwellings erected in different parts of this city. He served the Provident Building and Savings Associations Nos. 1 and 2 as president for five years, during which time he superintended the erection of a large number of substantial buildings for them in the northeast section of Reading. He was superintendent of the erection of the annex building of St. Paul's Reformed Church, also superintendent of the erection of St. Andrew's Reformed Church; at the same time acting as treasurer of the building funds. He was one of the organizers of the Penn, Schuylkill Valley and Reading National Banks and served as a director of the Schuylkill Valley Bank until the organization of the Reading National, which occurred in 1893, when he resigned and became a director and vice-president of that institution, which office he has held ever since.

Mr. Hinnershitz was a member of St. John's Lodge, No. 435, F. and A. M.; Excelsior Chapter, No. 237, R. A. M.; Reading Commandery, No. 42, K. T.; a charter member of Rajah Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S.; and formerly a member of Lu Lu Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S., of Philadelphia, Pa.; Mt. Penn Lodge, No. 65, K. of P.; and Brotherhood of the Union, H. F. No. 7. He was a lifelong Republican, but refused all public offices tendered him.

JOHN W. MOORE, who is extensively engaged in truck farming in Muhlenberg township, Berks county, where he is known as a practical agriculturist and public-spirited citizen, was born Feb. 15, 1853, at Hampden Furnaces, in Robeson township, this county, son of John and Hannah (Wagner) Moore.

George Moore, the grandfather of John W., was a farmer of Robeson township, where he died in 1860 at an advanced age, in the faith of the Lutheran Church. The name of his wife is not known, but his children were as follows: Jesse, Nicholas, Daniel, George, Levi, John and Annie (who married Jonas Slouch).

John Moore, born and educated in Robeson township, there engaged in work for the E. & G. Brooke Co., at Hampden, later removing to Birdsboro, Pa., where he was accidentally killed when but twenty-nine years old. His children were: Angeline, who married George Bell, had eight children, Agnes, Sally, Reuben, Minnie (deceased), Alice, William, John and Levi; Albina, who married Harrison Ziegler had six children, Abram (deceased), John, Harrison, Reuben, Nora and Walter; Wilhelmina, who married Howerd Seifert, had six children, Reuben, Wilbert, Harvey, Heber, Minnie, and Rudie; and John W. The father was a Lutheran, and the mother died in the faith of the Reformed Church in 1881, at the age of sixty-three years.

John W. Moore was educated in the schools of Robeson township, and at the age of fifteen years he apprenticed himself to the blacksmith's trade with Isaac R. Sands, at the Scarlett scythe factory, where he remained five years, subsequently following his trade for four years at Beckersville. In 1875 he removed to the country in Robeson township and for two years engaged in trucking, in 1877 locating on a property owned by Joseph McKently, which consisted of fourteen acres, about ten acres of which were purchased by the Reading water board. The balance of this land, as well as much land which he rents, Mr. Moore devotes to truck farming, giving special attention to the raising of radishes, beets and cabbages.

Mr. Moore married (first) Ellen J. Duchman, and to this union ten children were born, namely: Minnie M., who married Howard Noll and has one child, Ethel N.; William E., who married Susan Ulrich; Carrie E., who married William Fulmer and has one child, Leroy; Rosa E., who married Walter Klopp, and has two children, Ruth M. and Grace M.; Jennie E.; Oliver C., who is connected with the shoe manufacturing firm of Curtis & Jones; Estella F., Mabel E.; and two who died in infancy. Mr. Moore's second marriage was to Kate Heckman, who had a son by a former marriage, Jacob. Mr. Moore is a member of the Alsace Reformed Church, and his wife is a Lutheran. In politics he is a Democrat, and has served as school director. Fraternally he is connected with Muhlenberg Castle, No. 372, of which he was high priest for five sessions; and Washington Camp No. 168, P. O. S. of A.

ADAM YODER. Prominent among the agriculturists of Berks county, Pa., who deserve mention in this publication, is Adam Yoder, a substantial farmer and self-made man of Lower Heidelberg township. Mr. Yoder was born April 10, 1847, in Lower Heidelberg township, son of Amos and Elizabeth (Ruth) Yoder.

Jacob Yoder, grandfather of Adam, was born in Oley township, June 27, 1792, and when a young man learned the shoemaking trade, which he followed in Oley township until past thirty years of age. At this time he came to Lower Heidelberg township, where he became the owner of thirteen acres of land, on which he died Sept. 23, 1861, being buried at Hain's Church, of which he was a Reformed member. He was married (first) to Lydia Brown, of Rockland township, by whom he had children: Polly, m. to a Mr. Kelchner; Amos; William, who lives in the vicinity of Lower Heidelberg; John, who lived at Wernersville, where he followed the trade of wheelwright (he was the father of Frank and grandfather of Leonard G. Yoder, both of Wernersville); and James, of Adamstown, a soldier in the Civil war, who was killed while in action. Mr. Yoder m. (second) Catharine Ernst, born Dec. 8, 1800, and died Jan. 11, 1875, and to this union there were also born five children: Sarah, Kate, Daniel, Hettie and Benneville.

Amos Yoder, father of Adam, was born in Oley township, March 23, 1816, and died at his own home in Wernersville, May 22, 1892, and was buried in the east cemetery at Hain's Church, of which he was a deacon and elder. He was a hard-working, industrious man, and followed agricultural pursuits all of his life. Mr. Yoder married Elizabeth Ruth born Oct. 31, 1810, who died Nov. 21, 1878, daughter of Philip Ruth, and they had two children, namely: Adam and David (who died aged twelve years).

Adam Yoder was reared to agricultural pursuits, and he has followed this occupation all of his life with much success. For many years after his maturity he worked for his father, but later he purchased for himself a fine farm of twenty acres at Hain's Church, on which he has resided since 1901, and on which are located good buildings. In addition to this property, which is in excellent condition, Mr. Yoder owns a house in Wernersville, which was formerly his father's. Mr. Yoder is a good and substantial citizen, and is highly respected in his district for his many sterling traits of character, and for the fact that he has acquired his possessions through thrift and economy. In politics he is a Democrat, and his religious affiliations are with Hain's Church, of which he was a deacon and elder for a number of years.

In May, 1869, Mr. Yoder married Margaret Ruth, daughter of Joseph and Susan (Fisher) Ruth, and to this union there have been born eight children: Ella m. Reuben Wenrich, of Grand View; David is of Wernersville; James died aged seven years; William is of Wernersville; Amos died aged four years; Harvey is of Wernersville; Lizzie died aged eighteen years, being buried on her birthday; and Freddy died in infancy.

AMOS YODER, manager of the Lauer farms in Spring township, and one of the most thoroughly practical and successful farmers in the county, was born at the Wool factory, near Wernersville, June 1, 1857, son of Daniel and Susanna (Gerhart) Yoder.

Daniel Yoder, son of Jacob (born June 27, 1792) and Catharine (Ernst) Yoder, was a lifelong farmer. He began work for himself on the old Reily Fisher farm in Lower Heidelberg, at the woolen mills, where he made his home many years. He then moved to the Van Reed farm, which he tenanted four years, and then moved to Womelsdorf, to a farm belonging to Dr. Horace F. Livingood, where he resided for thirty years. He was an excellent farmer, and ranked as one of the best in his district. He owned a tract of twenty-eight acres in Marion township, and at his death was possessed of much personal property. He died June 10, 1901, and was buried at Hain's Church. He married Susanna Gerhart, of Wernersville, and they were the parents of four children: Henry and John, of Wernersville; Amos; and George, of Womelsdorf. All are engaged in farming, the first two having now practically retired, while the last named is still at work and in very comfortable circumstances.

Amos Yoder was reared under his father's care, and he worked for him until he was twenty-four years old. He then began for himself on the Joseph Leiss farm of 120 acres in Lower Heidelberg township, and there he lived for two years. He then moved to the Henry Hain farm, where is now located the State Insane Asylum. He remained there and farmed for himself four years, then sold out, and when in 1891 the Asylum was established there he was made superintendent of the farm connected therewith, overseeing the cultivation of some five hundred acres. He had a most responsible position, which he filled with credit for thirteen years. He possesses good executive ability and was able to produce good crops on the State lands. It was his intention to retire to Wernersville, but Mr. Frank Lauer persuaded him to take his present place in Spring township, where he has charge of two hundred acres of the best land in the county. In politics he is a Democrat. With his family he attends Hain's Reformed Church. His fraternal connection is with the I. O. O. F., of Wernersville.

On Sept. 25, 1885, Mr. Yoder married Candace Keim, born Feb. 19, 1869, and died Oct. 27, 1899, daughter of Abraham Keim, of Strausstown. Five children blessed this union: Minnie, born Sept. 26, 1886, was educated in the Reading Classical School; Mabel, born March 15, 1890, graduated from the Spring township high school; and Hattie, born June 9, 1893, Daniel, born Dec. 27, 1896, and Helen, born April 10, 1898, are still in school.

EVAN P. CHRIST, a well known and successful educator residing in Reading, now in the railway mail service, is a representative of one of Berks county's old and honored families.

John Christ, Sr., great-grandfather of Evan P., was a farmer in Tulpehocken township, this county. He was the father of the following children: John; Daniel had children—Mrs. William Burkey, Mrs. William Rishel and Mrs. Ritter; Jacob had children—William, Adam, Charles, Frank, Mrs. Joel Stump, Mrs. Henry Potteiger, Mrs. Frank Mengel, Mrs. William Himmelreich, Mrs. George Wann and Mrs. Henry Haag; Benjamin had—Mrs. Lizzie Himmelberger-Gerhart, Mrs. Catharine Burkey-Feich-White and Mrs. Sarah Feich; David had—John, Wellington, Thomas, Mrs. Lizzie Schaeffer, Mrs. Kate Becker and Mary; Elizabeth m. Jacob S. Haag, and had three children, Israel, Gerean and Kate (m. Aaron Kline); Mary (Polly) m. John Stoudt, and had a son, John, now living in Reading; and Margaret m. John Seaman, whose children were—John (of near Hamburg), Mrs. Mary Shock and Mrs. John Dunkel.

John Christ, son of John, Sr., was born March 9, 1809, and died Jan. 19, 1887, on the old Christ homestead, a tract of land that had been in the Christ name more than one hundred years. He was a farmer all his life. By his wife whose maiden name was Dundore, he had ten children: Lousia m. Levi Staley; Levi died aged five years; Jonathan D. had Thomas, Mrs. Joseph Leinbach and Clara; Harrison D. had children—Mary, Alice and Howard; Kate; Aaron D. has Monroe, Minerva and Oscar; Sarah; Henry D. has Helen and Rosa; James D.; and Levi D. has Verna, Willard and Norma.

James D. Christ, son of John and father of Evan P., was born in Penn township Nov. 18, 1848, and was reared upon the farm, following that vocation until 1896, when he moved to Reading, now residing at No. 200 West Greenwich street, that city. He is a builder ad contractor and has a high reputation for doing thorough and substantial work. In politics he is a Democrat and for some years he was assessor of Penn township. With his family he belongs to St. Mark's Reformed Church, Reading. Mr. Christ has been twice married. His first wife, Mary A. E. Obold, was born April 26, 1847, in Penn township, daughter of Joseph and Caroline (Billman) Obold. She died March 1, 1897, the mother of Evan P. and Samuel J. (born Oct. 30, 1886). Mr. Christ married (second) Ellen Albert, of Bern township, and they have one daughter, Anna.

Evan P. Christ, the subject of this sketch, was born in Penn township Jan. 27, 1873. His early education was obtained in the public schools of his district, and later he attended a subscription school taught by Prof. Michael A. Gruber, at Bernville. In the spring of 1890 he was licensed to teach by Prof. W. M. Zechman, superintendent of public schools. He taught his first term at Snyder's school in Penn township. In the spring of 1891 he attended the Schuylkill Seminary, at Fredericksburg, Lebanon county. In the fall of that same year he entered the Keystone State Normal School at Kutztown, and continued there until his graduation in the class of 1893. He then taught in Muhlenberg and Penn townships at an advanced salary for three years. In 1896 he came to Reading, and this city has since been his home. For four terms he taught the same school at Oakbrook, in Cumru township, and from 1904 to 1908 was one of the teachers in the Reading night school. In politics he is a Democrat, and he has always been an active worker for his party's welfare. He served a clerkship in the Engineering Department at the city hall. His fraternal connections are with Wyomissing Council, Royal Arcanum, and Railway Mail Association. On April 7, 1908, he was appointed a railway postal clerk by the Post Office Department of the U. S. Government.

In February, 1897, Mr. Christ was married to Mary C. Bickel, daughter of the late Isaac and Angeline F. (Werner) Bickel, and granddaughter of Jonathan and Magdalene (Wenrich) Bickel, of North Heidelberg. Four sons have blessed this union: Harold J., E. Isaac, George B. and Richard U. Mr. and Mrs. Christ are members of the Second Reformed Church of Reading.

JONAS F. HILL, a well-to-do resident of Richmond township, Berks county, is engaged in cultivating the soil on his 156-acre farm in the northeastern end, upon which he was born, and where he has spent all his life.

John Jacob Hill, the ancestor of the numerous Hill family in eastern Pennsylvania, especially in Berks county, located in Windsor township in 1741, where he became the owner of a plantation. To him and his wife, Elizabeth, were born the following children: Anna Mary m. George Nicholas Hildebrand; Caterina m. Adam Myer; Mrs. John Heffley; John; Peter; Frederick; Casper and Jacob. The father made his last will and testament Nov. 21, 1775, and it was probated Jan. 17, 1776. As executors were named George Merckel, Michael Lesher and John Daniel Hill. In the will Frederick and Casper received special bequests of fifty pounds each.

Frederick Hill, son of John Jacob, lived in Richmond township, where he owned a farm and where he died. His wife, Maria, and Casper Merckel, an old neighbor, were the executors of the will. In this will he bequeathed all his lands in Richmond and Ruscombmanor townships to his two sons, Jacob and Frederick. He made ample provision for his wife, she to have 100 pounds before any distribution of the estate was made, besides receiving annually 15 pounds in gold and silver, and to have two cows, beef, pork, linens, iron pots, beds, stoves and all of the household furniture which might add to her comfort. He died in July, 1794.

Frederick Hill (2), son of Frederick, and the grandfather of Jonas F. Hill, was a most prosperous farmer and business man, owning a gristmill and sawmill on a tract of fifty-three acres owned by him, and adjoining lands of David Kutz, Isaac Levan and Isaac De Turk. He was the owner also of two tracts in Clinton township, Crawford Co., Pa., one containing 426 acres and the other 407 acres. Mr. Hill married Sarah Hill, a remote relative, and they became the parents of seven children as follows: Frederick, the father of Jonas F.; Philipina, m. to Jacob Stout; Mary; Catharine; Lucy; Sarah Ann; and Judith. The father of this family died in December, 1848, and in his will, which was made July 31, 1848, he disposes of a large estate. He gave his son Frederick a farm of 150 acres in Richmond township, for which the son was to pay $5,000 in payments of $400 a year to his six sisters until the whole amount was paid. He also ordered his executor, his "true and trusty friend, Henry Heffner," to sell the two tracts he owned in Crawford county, Pa., to the highest bidder, and to divide the proceeds among his six daughters.

Frederick Hill (3), son of Frederick (2), and father of Jonas F., was born July 21, 1831, and died in 1901. He followed agricultural pursuits throughout his long and active life, at one time owning and operating the Hill homestead in Richmond township. In religious faith the Hills are Lutherans and members of the Moselem Church of that denomination. Mr. Hill married Emeline Yerger, daughter of Fred Yerger, of Montgomery county, Pa., and they became the parents of the following children: Elizabeth, m. to Cyranus Weidenheimer; Clara, m. to Frank Weidenheimer; Jonas F.; Benjamin F.; Aquilla, m. to Frank Merkel; Rachel, Wilson and Emeline, who died unmarried; and Ella, Eda, David and Alice, all of whom died young. All the children of this family are deceased with the exception of Jonas F. and Mrs. Aquilla Merkel.

Jonas F. Hill was educated in the common schools of his native township, and subsequently took a course at the Keystone State Normal School at Kutztown. On Jan. 4, 1879, he was married to Mary Schwoyer, daughter of Benneville Schwoyer, a well-to-do farmer of Richmond township, and this union was blessed with these children: Elda G., a graduate of the Keystone State Normal School, is connected with a leading firm in Kutztown, Pa., as bookkeeper and stenographer; Frederick S. (m. and has a son Paul); Irene B., m. to Irwin Schaeffer, a carpenter of Richmond township (they have two children, Arthur and Oliver); Annie E., m. to Edwin Sell; Laura E.; Warren S.; Sallie A.; Ida L.; and Stella M.

In politics Mr. Hill is a Jeffersonian Democrat, and has served his township as school director for three years. He has taken quite an interest in the education of his children. He and his wife are members of Becker's St. Peter's Church, of the Lutheran denomination. Mr. Hill is a practical farmer, and his tract of land is one of the best cultivated in his locality. He has always maintained a good reputation in his district, and he is highly esteemed by all who know him.

RUDOLPH ENSSLEN, who died Nov. 25, 1906, at his home No. 306 Elm street, Reading, was engaged in an extensive delicatessen business. He was a native of Germany, born in Kirchheim, Wurtemberg, Jan. 25, 1859, son of Ferdinand Ensslen, and was educated in that country, where at the age of eighteen years he was traveling salesman for a wholesale cheese house.

In 1880 Mr. Ensslen came to America, landing at New York, from which city he came directly to Reading, being first employed by the Lauer Brewery Company, where he remained until Jan. 1, 1900. At this time Mr. Ensslen embarked in the cheese and delicatessen business, for which he was so well qualified. He always carried the best quality of goods and his customers realized this fact. He catered to hotels, stores, etc., as well as to private residences, and his delivery wagons were to be seen at any time on the streets of Reading. Mr. Ensslen carried the best lines of cheese, both domestic and foreign, sausages, meats, canned goods and condiments. His cheese and meats were imported principally from Switzerland and Germany.

Mr. Ensslen was married in 1881 to Mary Kirschmann, and they had two children: Carl F. and Augustus Rudolph. The family are members of St. John's Lutheran Church, to which Mr. Ensslen also belonged. He was a member of Mt. Penn Lodge, I. O. O. F.; Aerie No. 66, F. O. E.; Reading Turn Verein; Maennerchor; and Bavarians. He was recognized as a man of much business ability. Besides his wife and children he was survived by a brother Albert and three sisters, Emma, Louisa and Pauline, all in Germany.

ABRAHAM R. SCHANNAUER, of Wernersville, formerly postmaster at Reinholds Station, was born at Gouglersville, in Berks county, Aug. 8, 1864. He pursued his education in the public schools at that place, until he was ten years old, when he accompanied his widowed mother to her home at Reinholds Station, in Lancaster county, and there continued going to school, afterward attending the Keystone State Normal School until he was nineteen years old. He was first employed in the creamery at Reinholds Station for over a year, when he entered the store of E. S. Hassler at that place as clerk, continuing with him there and at Spring Grove for over a year, and serving as assistant postmaster at the latter place. Returning to Reinholdsville he bought the general store of Samuel Binkley, which he carried on for six years, serving as postmaster during the Harrison administration. Then selling out he removed with his family to Wernersville. He was employed as a salesman in the Rosenbaum clothing house at Reading for several months, afterward entering the general store of Henry Shappell, at Wernersville, where he continued for nine years. Mr. Shappell selling out to Isaac M. Rothenberger, he has remained with the latter until the present time.

Mr. Schannauer was married in 1886 to Rebecca Hain, a daughter of George G. Hain, of Wernersville, and by her has two children, Irwin and Eva.

Joseph Schannauer, father of Abraham R., was a farmer residing at Gouglersville, a progressive citizen of that community, and a devoted, generous member of the Lutheran denomination of the Wyomissing Church, having donated the land for the purpose of that church in 1850. He was born at Gouglersville in 1800, and died there in 1874. He was married three times. His first wife was a Miss Armel, the second Catharine Reinhold, and the third Eva Reinhold, a sister of the second. By the third union he had eight children: Elizabeth married Harvey Stricker; Miss Kate; Maria m. Eugene Mayer; Matilda m. Lewis Keller; Abraham R.; Jesse, unmarried; and two died young. Eva Reinhold was a daughter of John Reinhold, a farmer of Reinholds Station, was born in 1822, and attained an age of nearly ninety years.

WILLIAM B. HELDER, senior member of the plumbing firm of Helder & Burkhard, whose place of business is situated at No. 1021 North Ninth street, Reading, was born in this city in 1873, son of Elias and Sarah (Lorah) Helder, the former of whom died in 1900, while the latter still survives.

Mr. Helder secured his education in the public schools of his native city, after leaving which he worked at box making and in a hat factory for some time. At the age of seventeen years he was apprenticed to John Dexal, to learn the plumbing trade, and he continued with this gentleman until starting work as a journeyman. Mr. Helder first engaged in business alone at No. 1037 North Ninth street in 1901, but four months later he admitted Daniel Burkhard as a member, and together they have built the trade up until it is one of the largest of its kind in the city. They employ on an average eight men and keep a full and up-to-date supply of plumbers' supplies and heating apparatus. Mr. Helder is a member of Reading Lodge, No. 549, F. & A. M.; Lodge of Perfection; Vigilance Lodge No. 518, I. O. O. F.; and Progressive Americans. In religious belief he is a Lutheran, while in political matters he is independent, voting rather for the man than the party.

In 1898 Mr. Helder was married to Miss Laura Kline, and to this union there has been born one child: Rhea M.

JOHN VAN REED EVANS was a lifelong farmer in Spring township, where he died July 5, 1864. He was born Jan. 29, 1804, son of Philip Thomas Evans, and a descendant of a Welsh emigrant who came to America in 1720.

The Evans family, so long represented in Berks county, has an enviable reputation for honesty and right living. Three brothers named Evans emigrated from Wales about the year 1720, and landed at Philadelphia, whence all went prospecting through Pennsylvania, with the result that Daniel settled in Chester county, Philip (the ancestor of John Van Reed Evans) in Berks county, and the third in Montgomery county.

Joshua Evans, grandfather of John Van Reed Evans, was born in 1733, and died in March, 1778, when he was aged forty-five years. His wife, who bore the maiden name of Mary Thomas, was born July 1, 1746, and died in 1813, at the age of sixty-seven, after a widowhood of almost thirty-six years. They were the parents of the following children: Thomas, Peninnah, Philip Thomas, Mordecai, Sarah and Joshua. Mrs. Evans' parents, Philip Thomas and his wife, Esther, lived in East Vincent township, Chester Co., Pa., but they owned outlying land near Reading, upon which their daughter Mary and her husband, Joshua Evans, settled. By the will proved in Philadelphia, Oct. 4, 1774, Philip Thomas willed this farm to Joshua Evans' son Philip Thomas Evans. As previously stated, Mr. Evans and his mother continued to live on the farm, improved it, and built the stone farm house.

Philip Thomas Evans, father of John Van Reed Evans, was born on the old Evans homestead just mentioned, July 13, 1770, and he passed all his life on that place, dying there Sept. 26, 1835. On Feb. 1, 1801, he married Anna Elizabeth Van Reed, daughter of John and Eve (Yost) Van Reed, who was born Sept. 29, 1778, and died July 18, 1853, aged seventy-four years. They became the parents of children as follows: (1) Thomas, born Jan. 7, 1803, died July 30, 1844, aged forty-one years. He m. Sarah Bechtel, and lived eleven miles up Maiden Creek. (2) John Van Reed was born Jan. 29, 1804. (3) Joshua, born Dec. 25, 1805, died Dec. 12, 1826. (4) Mary T., born Sept. 11, 1807, m. Peter Bright, and moved to Danville, Montour Co., Pa. (5) Charles Van Reed, born March 4, 1810, died April 13, 1891. He m. Maria Spohn, and was the father of thirteen children. (6) Abner, born Dec. 25, 1811, died May 21, 1816. (7) Hannah was born Feb. 10, 1814. (8) Henry Van Reed, born Jan. 8, 1818, inherited the mill property, and died Oct. 29, 1838. (9) Anna Elizabeth, born May 10, 1821, m. Thomas H. Jones, who died in 1850; she makes her home in Reading.

John Van Reed Evans engaged in farming upon the old homestead, where he lived for a number of years. About seven years before his death he retired, and erected a residence along the pike. There his last days were spent. He was a Republican in politics, and was much thought of in the community. He served as school director in his district.

On Dec. 16, 1832, Mr. Evans married Anna Miller, born Dec. 14, 1814, daughter of Henry and Catharine (Ruth) Miller. She died aged sixty-five, the mother of fourteen children: Lewis, who lived at Sinking Spring; a son that died in infancy; Catharine, who died unmarried in 1864, at the age of twenty-seven; Emeline m. to Abraham Gernand, and living in Rossville, Ill.; Rebecca m. to Gernand Maurey, of Rossville, Ill.; Miss Hannah; Henry, who died young; Sarah, m. to James Baum, and living at Carlisle, Ill.; Philip Thomas, a retired farmer at Hoopeston, Ill.; Elizabeth, deceased wife of John Obold, of Reading; George, a retired farmer at Rossville, Ill.; Dennis, who died young; Mary, m. to E. E. Kohler, of Reading (killed in the wreck of the excursion train at Honda, Cal., May 11, 1907); and Miller, who is foreman in a hat factory and resides with his sister, Miss Hannah, in Reading.

Miss Hannah Evans and her brother Miller have their home at No. 141 Elm street. The Spring township farm is owned by Miss Hannah, who has it rented. The Evans burial plot is in the old Baptist Cemetery in Cumru township, Berks county.

CHARLES A. HAWK, who has been connected with that great industry, the Reading Iron Company, for the past thirty-seven years and enjoys the distinction of being the third oldest employe in his department, is a self-made man who has acquired property and gained the respect and esteem of his fellow citizens entirely through his own efforts.

Mr. Hawk was born Sept. 9, 1848, in the Third ward of Reading, son of Charles and Alice Sabrina (Keller) Hawk, the former of whom was born at Nazareth. By trade he was a machinist, and he came to Reading after marriage, working in the Philadelphia & Reading shops until he enlisted in 1864 for service in the Civil war. He was a member of Company G, 88th Pa. V. I., and died in the army at Alexandria, Va. He is one of the great army of dead that sleep at Arlington. To him and his wife, Alice Sabrina Keller, were born six children: Albert, who served in the Civil war, and died after being taken prisoner; Rebecca, m. to Edwin Ball, both deceased; William, who served through the Civil war, and is now employed as an engineer at the Cramp shipyards, Philadelphia; Julius, who served during the Civil war, and died in 1900; Charles A.; Alice, m. to Absalom Whitman, and living at No. 1129 Spring street, Reading. The father was a well known citizen, a prominent member of the Lutheran Church, and in his political views he was a Republican.

Charles A. Hawk attended the public schools of Reading, and began when but a boy to provide for his own needs. He worked first on the construction of the Lebanon Valley Railroad, then for a short time was employed by the Reading Iron Company, in their pipe mill, and then began to learn the molder's trade in the Philadelphia & Reading shops where he remained five years. From there he went to Cumberland, Md., for about a year, and then returned to Reading and worked at the Scott foundry, but since Feb. 4, 1872, he has been connected with the Reading Iron Company, and as mentioned above is the third oldest in his department, in this immense plant. He began work under Mr. Lewis Miller.

In 1872 Mr. Hawk married Susan Rink, daughter of David and Esther (Landis) Rink, and their children are: Mary E., m. to Harry T. Fick, a cigar maker; Alice, m. to Dr. Milton Lichtenwalner; Estella N., a graduate of the Girls' high school, Reading; and Florence R., also a graduate of the Reading High school, class of 1908. The parents of Mrs. Hawk were both born in Longswamp township, Berks county, where they were among the prominent people.

Mr. Hawk is a member of Trinity Lutheran Church. In politics he is a Republican, and is now serving as school controller of the Eleventh ward, his term expiring in 1912, a period of sixteen years service. Fraternally he belongs to Chandler Lodge, F. & A. M., No. 227, and Camp No. 89, P. O. S. of A. As long as it was in existence he was a member of Montgomery Lodge, No. 59, I. O. O. F. He is also a member and president of the Scott Foundry Beneficial Association, which has a membership of 146 men, and of the N. E. Republican Association. In 1883 he erected his attractive residence at No. 513 Cedar street, Reading, and he is one of the well known and universally respected citizens of that city.

ELMER DAVIDHEISER, a successful farmer residing on the Davidheiser homestead at Monocacy, in Amity township, Berks county, was born Dec. 21, 1865, son of George and Elizabeth (Shirey) and great-grandson of Jacob Davidheiser, of Montgomery county, Pennsylvania.

Jacob Davidheiser was born in Falkner Swamp, Montgomery county, and lived one and one-half miles east of Sassamansville, where he owned and cultivated a good farm. Among his children were: Henry, George, Jacob, William, Mrs. John Fegley, Mrs. Henry Hoffman, Mrs. Washington Smith and Mrs. Benjamin Smith, the last two marrying brothers.

George Davidheiser, son of Jacob, was born March 10, 1798, and died Sept. 9, 1863. In 1836 he settled in Douglass township, Berks county, not far from Pottstown, along the Iron Stone creek. Here he built a brick mill in 1840 or 1841, which he sold some twelve years later to a man by the name of Wampole, and which is now the property of Mahlon Weidner. After he sold his property in Douglass township, Mr. Davidheiser moved his family to Amity township, locating about 1848 on the Philadelphia turn-pike, between Douglassville and Monocacy, where he had a large and fertile tract of land. He was a millwright by trade, and in earlier life followed that occupation in connection with farming. He and his family were Lutheran members of the Amityville church. On Aug. 25, 1822, he married Salome Fegley, born Feb. 8, 1804, daughter of Conrad and Catharine Fegley. She died Nov. 20, 1857, and both she and her husband are buried at Amityville. Fourteen children blessed their union: John, born Aug. 23, 1823; Catharine, 1825-1832; Sophia, born March 9, 1826; a son, Dec. 12, 1828; Sarah Ann, 1829-1833; George, Sept. 14, 1831; Rebecca, 1833-1835; Jacob, Jan. 14, 1835; Caroline, 1836-1858; Mary Ann, Nov. 25, 1838; Lovina, April 26, 1840; one, July 1, 1842; Engeline, 1844-1854; and Lizzie, Jan. 19, 1847.

George Davidheiser, son of George and Salome, was born Sept 14, 1831. After his marriage in 1855 he began farming the old Davidheiser homestead, and remained there for ten years, and then bought the adjoining farm of nearly 100 acres on which he lived for three years. In 1868 he bought a farm near Monocacy where he lived until his death Feb. 3, 1870. After that time the widow and her children operated it, until the spring of 1908, when the son Elmer assumed charge of it. The father was a Lutheran, belonging to the church at Amityville, and there he was buried. On June 17, 1855, he married Elizabeth Shirey, born Sept. 23, 1833, daughter of William and Sallie (Harner) Shirey, the latter of whom, born Sept. 16, 1812, is still living and is the oldest lady in Lower Berks county. The children born of this union were: Amanda m. Samuel Shirey, and lives in Reading; Annie m. Wellington Shirey (brother of Samuel), and lives in Monocacy; Ammon died young; a daughter died in infancy; Elmer; and George, who worked five years as a wheelwright and fourteen years in the Reading Car Shops, went to Ashland, Ala., in April, 1909, to engage in the graphite business (he m. Ellen Griesemer, daughter of Irwin Griesemer, formerly of Oley township, now of Alabama, where he, too, is in the graphite business). In 1868 the father built the present stone residence on the farm.

Elmer Davidheiser received his education in the public schools near his home, and as he was but four years old when his father died, it was necessary that he early take his place as one of the workers on the home farm. He was but seventeen when he began work for his mother, conducting the fifty-two acre farm with great success. In the spring of 1908 he began for himself. The Davidheiser tract is located on the Old State Road just above Monocacy, and its general appearance proves it one of the best managed places in that locality. The land is highly productive and Mr. Davidheiser is scientific in his care of the soil.

Mr. Davidheiser is popular in fraternal organizations, belonging to Monocacy Lodge, No. 441, I. O. O. F.; Washington Camp, No. 240, P. O. S. of A., of Douglassville; and Neversink Camp No. 7634, M. W. A. of Reading. He and his family are Lutherans. In politics he is active in the ranks of the Democratic party, and has been delegate to a number of county conventions, and for six years, 1894 to 1900, was a member of the school board, of which time he served four years as secretary and one year as president.

Mr. Davidheiser married Katie Wallace, daughter of Dr. James Wallace, and they have had four children: George Ammon, Annie Laura, a daughter that died in infancy, and William Elmer.

AUGUSTUS BULLES, one of the well-known hotel men of Reading, who is conducting the popular "Hampden Park Hotel," situated at the corner of Thirteenth and Spring streets, was born Aug. 18, 1858, at Philadelphia, Pa., son of Tabold and Catherine (Noah) Bulles.

Tabold Bulles, who emigrated from Germany as a young man, settled at Philadelphia, and there engaged in the shoe business until 1861, at which time he came with his family to Reading, being for many years employed in the Scott foundry at the latter place. He died in 1871, and was buried at Alsace Church, his wife being interred in the Charles Evans cemetery. They had these children: Katie, Beulah, Theodore, Augustus, Julius, Edward, Ida and Albert.

Augustus Bulles attended the public schools of Reading, and as a boy worked in the brick yard near his home for twelve years, after which he learned the shoemaking trade, an occupation which he followed for about fifteen years at Milwaukee, Wis. In 1886 he returned to Reading, and for seven years was employed by the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad, also serving on the Reading police force during 1896-1897-1898, under Mayor Weidel. In 1906 he became the proprietor of the "Hampden Park Hotel," which he has conducted to the present time with success, having a large and steady patronage. Mr. Bulles is a charter member of Camp No. 329, P. O. S. of A., and also belongs to the K. G. E. No. 53, the F. O. E. No. 66, and the Philadelphia & Reading Relief Association. He and his family are members of St. Thomas Reformed Church.

Mr. Bulles was married to Elizabeth Koehle, and to this union the following children were born: Albert, William, Joseph, Raymond, Frank, Arthur and Caroline.

Mrs. Bulles is a daughter of Alvis and Elizabeth (Reis) Koehle, of Milwaukee, Wis., who were the parents of these children: Elizabeth; Josephine, m. to Charles Mack; and Albert and Joseph of Milwaukee, Wis. Carl Reis, grandfather of Mrs. Bulles, was born along the Rhine in the Fatherland, and came to America many years ago, being buried at Milwaukee. He was a ship-builder by trade, but later became a liquor dealer and left an estate of forty acres. By his first wife, who died three months after coming to this country, he had two children: Elizabeth and Josephine.

ANDERSON. Robert Anderson is the first of the Anderson family of whom there is definite record. He was born in Chester county and was an early resident of Reading where he worked as a shoemaker. He died there and is buried in the Charles Evans cemetery. His wife was Maria Hamilton, of Chester county. Their children were: John, a shoe merchant of Mahanoy City, where he died; Frederick H.; David, now deceased, a shoe merchant at Reading.

Frederick H. Anderson, son of Robert and father of John P., was born near Pottstown in Chester county, in 1829, and died at Reading in April, 1897, aged sixty-eight years. He, too, was a shoemaker by trade, although early in life he was a bricklayer,—a trade he had learned upon coming to Reading in young manhood. Later he learned to be a shoemaker and finally became a shoe merchant. So excellent was his work that his customers sent to him for shoes of his own make as far off as New York City and even Texas. His religious affiliations were with St. Matthew's Lutheran Church. Mr. Anderson was married in 1855, at Reading to Lavinia Hetrick, a daughter of John and Hannah (Bower) Hetrick, of Heidelberg township, Berks county. Their children were: John P.; Ida Olivia, m. to Irwin Maurer of Reading, by whom she has these children—Frederick T. and Lillian May.

JOHN P. ANDERSON was born Nov. 8, 1861, at Reading where he now resides making his home in the Fifteenth ward. His education was obtained in the schools of Reading, but when he was a mere lad he commenced clerking in his father's shoe store, and remained with him until 1895. As his father's business included making shoes, Mr. Anderson learned the shoe cutting trade, and he worked at the bench. When his father closed his business at Reading and opened a retail store at Pottstown, carrying on the manufacture of infants' shoes, of which he had made a specialty, Mr. Anderson went with him. After four years he returned to Reading and became a cutter for Curtis, Jones & Co., remaining in this position for three years. Then for five years he had charge of the cutting room for the Birdsboro Shoe Co., and in connection with this employment, he acted as an extra man for the United Traction Company. In 1899 he became connected with the firm of George M. Britton & Co., now located at Fourth and Penn streets, where he has since remained, having charge of the shoe, comfort and blanket departments, and he is one of the most valued men of this large establishment.

Mr. Anderson is a member of St. Stephen's Reformed Church. Fraternally he is a member of Court Progress, No. 116, Foresters of America; Washington Camp No. 178, P. O. S. of A., of Reading; K. of P., No. 65; and has been connected with the Liberty Fire Company since 1885, and is a member of the Beneficial Association.

On Oct. 16, 1884, Mr. Anderson was married to Lizzie M. Bechtel, a daughter of Franklin and Mary (Sallada) Bechtel, of Reading. Their children are: Corita M. and Helen. They reside in their own pleasant home at No. 138 West Greenwich street.

WILLIAM HOYER, line foreman for the United Traction Company at Reading, was born April 26, 1862, in Cumru township, son of Reuben and grandson of Benjamin Hoyer.

Benjamin Hoyer made his home in Robeson township, Berks county. For many years he taught school, chiefly in Exeter township, but his death occurred at his home in Robeson. His wife was a Ruffner, and they had children as follows: Samuel, Henry, Edward, Reuben, Harriet, Hannah and Rebecca.

Reuben Hoyer, son of Benjamin, was born in Robeson township, and for twenty-five years he was engaged in boating on the Schuylkill canal for Charles Bickley. For a while he was in the employ of the Reading Hardware Company, and for sixteen years was in charge of the stables of the South Reading Market, his long term of service being convincing proof of his fidelity to duty. He died in November, 1904, aged sixty-seven years and was buried at Yocom's Church in Cumru township. He married Mary Westley, daughter of Daniel Westley, and their children were: William, Catharine, Samuel, Ida, Milton, Tillie, Edith, Annie, Sarah and Charles.

William Hoyer attended the public schools in Cumru township. His first work after completing his education was the care of horses for private parties, and this he continued for four years. He then entered the employ of J. O. Thomas in the grocery business, and with him continued for three years. On March 4, 1888, he became an employe of the Reading City Passenger Railway Company, driving a horse car for one year, and acting as conductor five years. Then for one year he drove the trolley repair wagon, after which he was made assistant lineman, and at the end of four years chief lineman. He has charge of 127 miles of wire, and has proved a most efficient workman.

On Dec. 25, 1881, Mr. Hoyer married Catharine Seidel, daughter of Frederick Seidel, and of their eight children, three are living, namely: Lawrence, Harry and Mamie. William, a promising young man, died May 16, 1909, aged twenty-three years, and is buried at Yocom's Church. Mr. and Mrs. Hoyer are Lutheran members of Christ's (Yocom's) Union Church in Cumru township. Mr. Hoyer is a Republican in politics. He and his family reside in their own home at No. 1623 North Tenth street, Reading.

JESSE SHIREY, now living retired, was for many years an employe of the Philadelphia & Reading Ry. Co. He was born in Robeson township, Berks county, July 17, 1833, son of Samuel and Sarah (Yocum) Shirey.

The family, as far as is known, is of German origin, the great-grandfather of Jesse Shirey emigrating to America in the latter part of the seventeenth century, and settling in Berks county. His name is not known.

Samuel Shirey, the father of Jesse, was educated in the common schools of Robeson township, and learned the trade of stone mason when a boy. This he followed, and he also carried on farming, owning a tract of 100 acres of finely improved land which he later sold, removing to Reading. Here Mr. Shirey worked at his trade until he died, in the faith of the Methodist Church. Politically Mr. Shirey was a Republican. He and his wife were the parents of: Jeremiah, David, John, Samuel, Levi, Jesse, Joseph, Elias, Charles (died aged ten years), Catherine (m. Charles Rogers), Mary (m. George Pierce), Sarah (m. Aaron Houck) and Hannah (died single).

Jesse Shirey was educated in Robeson township and later removed to Chester county, locating in Coatesville, where he learned the trade of harness-making. This Mr. Shirey followed for some years, and continued it for four years after locating in Reading. At the outbreak of the war he was employed by the Government in the making of cavalry saddles, and in 1862 he enlisted in Company I, 128th Pa. V. I., under Capt. Richard R. Jones, serving nine months, and participating in the battles of Antietam, South Mountain and Chancellorsville. He was taken prisoner at the latter and was taken to Libby Prison, but twelve days later was paroled. His term of enlistment having expired, Mr. Shirey rejoined his regiment at Annapolis, Md., and was sent to Harrisburg, Pa., where the regiment was mustered out of service. He re-enlisted in 1864 with the 100-day men in Company B, 195th Pa. V. I., Eighth Army Corps, which was held as a reserve when General Early invaded Maryland. The regiment was doing police and patrol duty along the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, being stationed for a time at Monocacy Junction, and later at Tabb's Station, being mustered out in December, 1864. After the war Mr. Shirey worked at his trade for a time, and was then for thirty-seven years employed by the Philadelphia and Reading Company, as superintendent of the leather department. Mr. Shirey was placed on the retired list March 12, 1903.

Mr. Jesse Shirey married in 1859 Mary M. Burt, daughter of William Burt, and five children were born to this union: Charles and Burt, deceased; Ralph, at home; Lizzie, deceased; and Hattie, deceased wife of Adam Heffelfinger. In religious belief Mr. Shirey is liberal. He is fraternally connected with Emblematic Lodge No. 169, I. O. O. F. and was formerly a member of the Encampment. In politics he is a Republican.

JOHN S. FRITZ, engaged in the photographing business at No. 852 Penn street, Reading, was born on his father's farm in Lehigh county, Pa., in 1861, and there remained until fifteen years of age. At this time he went to Philadelphia, and was there employed two years, when he began to learn photography, starting with his brother-in-law in a car, traveling through the country. Mr. Fritz remained with his brother-in-law for six months, and then bought him out, following the business for the next nine months in the surrounding counties. Not finding business very profitable he decided to give up photographing for the time being, and went to Atlantic City, where he was employed for some time, and later at Philadelphia, remaining at the latter place two years.

Being a skilled mechanic, Mr. Fritz had no trouble in getting positions, and he worked at Philadelphia, Pa., Orange, N. J., and at Lailor's in Reading. In June, 1883, Mr. Fritz again went out with a car, and traveled through Ohio, Virginia, Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky and Michigan, and from Cold Water, in the last named State, he shipped his goods back to Reading, Feb. 28, 1886. In August, 1886, he engaged in business at No. 418 North Sixth street, Reading, where he remained in business for ten years, being very successful. He came to his present place in 1896, and here he has a fine studio. His business is growing daily, his work being of the highest standard, and he also does a large business in framing and crayons, water colors and pastels.

Mr. Fritz was married in Reading to Miss Elizabeth Apffel, daughter of the late Francis Apffel, of Reading, and they reside at No. 346 North Sixth street. Their children are: Lillian, aged seventeen years, a graduate of a musical institute; Raymond, aged fifteen years, attending Stoner's College; and Elsie, aged thirteen years, attending the city schools. The family are members of Grace Methodist Church.

STAUDT. The Staudt family have lived for several generations in Berks county, and at the present time in Lower Heidelberg township are found the brothers Henry L. Staudt and Aaron L. Staudt, both successful and highly esteemed farmers.

Matthias Staudt, their grandfather, lived in Penn (formerly Bern) township, near Bernville, having his home at Staudt's gristmill, on the Tulpehocken creek. He married Catharine Geiss, daughter of John Geiss, of the same township, and she died in 1848. He died in 1847. They had nine children, as follows: William m. Mary Wenrich; John m. Mary Christ; Samuel m. Catharine Leiss; Elias m. Catharine Brecht; Elizabeth m. Samuel Rentschaler; Mary m. Jacob Potteiger; Leah m. Jared Faust; Sarah m. Isaac Stupp; Hettie m. John Reber.

Samuel Staudt, son of Matthias, grew to manhood and engaged in farming. He died in 1900, when aged eighty-five years. He m. Catharine Leiss, daughter of Henry Leiss, and she died in 1877, aged fifty-six years. Of their sixteen children, twelve died young, those reaching maturity being: Henry L., Aaron L., Violanda (m. Henry Keroch), and James (unmarried).

Henry Leiss, father of Mrs. Catharine (Leiss) Staudt, was a farmer in Tulpehocken township. He m. Catharine Vogel, daughter of Melchior Vogel, of Bern township, and they had ten children: David m. Anna Bright; John m. Kate Filbert; Adam m. Catharine Miller; Jonathan m. Justina Moyer; Joseph m. Eliza Stupp; Judith m. John Kline; Rebecca m. Thomas Kilmer; Mary m. Benneville Dundore; Catharine m. Samuel Staudt; Elizabeth m. John Moore.

Henry L. Staudt, son of Samuel and Catharine (Leiss) Staudt, was born in North Heidelberg township Nov. 23, 1848. He was brought up on his father's farm, giving his assistance at home until he was twenty-five years old. In 1867, however, he began farming for himself on his father's farm. For twenty-five years he tenanted all in Lower Heidelberg with the exception of five years he lived on the farm of David Klopp (an uncle of Mrs. Staudt) in North Heidelberg. In 1898 he purchased his present farm of 158 acres, improved with good buildings. He erected the present barn, 40 x 95 feet, in 1900. He also owns another tract, containing eighty-four acres, adjoining his large farm. Mr. Staudt is a believer in modern methods, and he has a complete stock of up-to-date farm implements. He keeps nine horses and twenty-two head of cattle. His product is disposed of at the Reading market, which he attends once a week, having stands Nos. 172-173 at the West Buttonwood street market. Beside the farms just mentioned Mr. Staudt owns a one-half interest in the old Staudt homestead in Lower Heidelberg, consisting of 133 acres. His son Charles K. cultivates this place, which is very valuable, the buildings being exceptional. The house was built in 1847, and the barn, 40 x 101 feet, was erected by Samuel Staudt in 1858.

In his political affiliations Mr. Staudt is a Republican, and he is one of the foremost men of his township. He has served as deacon and elder of Hain's Church, of which he and his family are Reformed members. He is a man of sound judgment, and has encouraged his children to avail themselves of the best educational advantages, and to fit themselves for places of usefulness and honor in the world.

On Nov. 14, 1874, Mr. Staudt m. Emma R. Klopp, daughter of Jonathan and Elizabeth (Allspach) Klopp, farming people of Marion township. Six children were born of this union, namely: (1) Rev. Calvin K., born Feb. 29, 1876, graduated from Palatinate College, Myerstown, and from Franklin and Marshall College, Lancaster, winning high honors, and is a minister. He preached in Iowa and in Dakota, Ill., and for some time conducted the Interior Academy at the latter place. At the present time he is connected with the University of Chicago. He m. Ida Dunges. (2) John S. received his education in the public schools, the Wernersville high school, Lancaster Academy, and Franklin and Marshall College. He taught first at Parkville, Mo., then two years at Shreveport, La., after which he was made a member of the faculty of the University at Ithaca, N. Y. (3) Charles K. is a farmer on his father's place in Lower Heidelberg. He m. Eve Bender. (4) Paul K. assists his father at farming. He owns a tract of twenty-six acres in Lower Heidelberg, which he purchased from the Schaeffer estate (the previous owner being James Wahl), this tract being located along the Tulpehocken creek, and having considerable fruit and good water. (5) Irwin H., a bright and promising youth, died in 1906, at the age of fifteen years. (6) Levin K. died aged seven months.

Aaron L. Staudt, son of Samuel and brother of Henry L., was born in Lower Heidelberg township, on the old Staudt homestead, Dec. 22, 1849. He received his education in the township schools and was brought up by his father to a thorough knowledge of farming. At the age of twenty-four he began farming for himself on the farm whereon he now lives, and he has continued there uninterruptedly from that time. From the beginning until 1907 he attended the Reading market, covering a continuous period of over thirty years. He served the township as a school director for one term, and he officiated as a deacon and elder at Hain's Church for several terms.

In 1872 Mr. Staudt m. Catharine Spatz, daughter of John Spatz, of Lower Heidelberg, and they have five children: William m. Cora Hain; Eva m. Adam Kintzer; Carrie m. Harry Reber; Gertrude m. George Teter; Florence is attending the township school.

John Spatz, Sr., grandfather of Mrs. Catharine (Spatz) Staudt, was a farmer in Centre township. He m. Mollie Runkel, and became the father of ten children: Samuel m. (first) Kate Wagner and (second) Catharine Bernhard; Benneville m. Sarah Reich; William m. Lizzie Kurtz; Daniel m. Leah Kurtz; Peter m. Kate Lindenmuth; Jared m. Sarah Becker; Abraham m. Matilda Hollenbach; Mary m. Daniel Faust; Sarah m. Joseph Hix; and John.

John Spatz, son of John, Sr., and father of Mrs. Staudt, was engaged in farming in Lower Heidelberg. He died in 1886, aged seventy-five years. His wife, Sarah Faust, daughter of John Faust, of Centre township, died in 1902, aged eighty-two years. They had eleven children, namely: Amelia m. Darius Leininger; Matilda m. Jacob Moyer; Daniel m. (first) Rebecca Blankenbiller, and (second) Elizabeth Ruth; Catharine m. Aaron L. Staudt; Caroline m. Henry Stitzel; Anna m. Charles Noll; John m. Catharine Hiester; Elizabeth m. Edwin Tobias; and Sarah, William and Joseph died young.

WILLIAM D. FILBERT, representative of Fairbanks, Morse & Co., New York City, was born at Womelsdorf, Pa., May 13, 1868, son of William S. Filbert, and a representative in the sixth generation of the family in America. From (I) Samuel Filbert, the emigrant ancestor who took the oath of allegiance Aug. 30, 1737, and his wife, Susanna, Mr. Filbert is descended through (II) Philip and his wife, Anna Maria (Myers), (III) John Filbert and his wife, Anna Maria (Leisse), (IV) Samuel Filbert and his wife, Catherine (Kalbach), (V) William S. and his wife Charlotte H. (Dewald). The history of each generation in detail appears elsewhere in this volume under the caption "Filbert Family."

(V) William S. Filbert was born Jan. 20, 1834, in Marion township, son of Samuel and Catharine (Kalbach) Filbert, and for many years he was a successful merchant at Womelsdorf, for a long time being in partnership with his brother George. He retired from business in 1908, and now resides at Womelsdorf. On Dec. 20, 1857, he married Charlotte H. Dewald, and to this union were born four children: John E., superintendent of the Nagle Boiler Works at Erie, Pa.; Kate, who married C. M. Petree, of Womelsdorf; William D.; and Harry S., who died at the age of twenty-one years.

(VI) William D. Filbert attended the public schools at Womelsdorf, and in 1884 he graduated from Eastman's Business College, at Poughkeepsie, N. Y. He then clerked in his father's store, acquiring a good practical knowledge of the commercial world. He continued here for fourteen years, being a partner for eight years. He then spent six years in the manufacture of cigars at Womelsdorf, and at the end of that time he became connected with Fairbanks, Morse & Co., a firm handling gas, gasoline and oil engines, Eclipse and Fairbanks-Morse windmills, steam and power pumps, railway specialties, dynamos and motors, mining supplies, gas producers and producer gas plants. In this position he has given great satisfaction. He is a man of pleasing personality, winning friends for himself and for the company he represents, and withal he is strictly a business man. He resides at No. 143 West Greenwich street, Reading.

Mr. Filbert has taken an active interest in public affairs. He is a believer in the principles of the Democratic party, and he served as president of the council at Womelsdorf when the town hall was built. Socially he belongs to Williamson Lodge, No. 307, F. & A. M., of Womelsdorf; Excelsior Chapter, No. 237, R. A. M.; Reading Commandery, No. 42, K. T.; and Rajah Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S. Mart S. Filbert and he are the owners of the Womelsdorf Consolidated Water Company.

Mr. Filbert married Miss Sadie Ermentrout, daughter of Joseph C. Ermentrout, and they have two children: Joseph W. and John H. The family are members of the Reformed Church.

AMANDA G. JONES, for many years principal of the Bingaman and Orange street school, in Reading, was one of a family in which many members have distinguished themselves by their intellectual attainments, either as teachers or ministers, a distinct scholarly trait appearing through several generations. Miss Jones, herself, was particularly successful in her work, in which she was engaged from the time of her graduation from the Reading high school in 1863, until her death March 16, 1908. She was a member of Berks County Chapter, D. A. R., by virtue of her descent from Lieut. Josiah Philips, her great-grandfather. Miss Jones was the daughter of Jonathan and Joanna (Philips) Jones, the latter of whom moved to Reading in the spring of 1860, after the death of her husband.

Jonathan Jones, a resident of Chester county, was the son of Samuel and Rachel (Davis) Jones, and grandson of Joseph and Lydia Jones, of Pikeland township, Chester county. His mother, as Rachel Davis, taught in the township long before the days of public schools, and was a very learned woman for her day. In religious faith she was a Baptist, and for fifty-nine years was a devoted member of the Great Valley Church.

On the maternal side Miss Jones traced her descent from Joseph and Mary Philips, who came from Wales to Chester county in 1755, and whose remains are interred there in the Vincent Burying Ground. One of their sons, Lieut. Josiah Philips, was a personal friend of George Washington, and served in the Revolution, three of his brothers being in the same company. One of Lieut. Philips's sons, Rev. Josiah, at one time pastor of the Windsor Baptist Church, in Chester county, was the father of Joanna Philips, who married Jonathan Jones.

Jonathan and Joanna Jones were the parents of eight children, four sons and four daughters: Samuel, Josiah, Ann Jane, Rachel D., Mary S., A. Judson, Amanda G. and Jonathan. Both parents are now deceased, and are interred in the Great Valley Baptist burying ground. Of the children there are two living: Miss Rachel D. lives in Reading; and A. Judson, of Minneapolis, was in early life a teacher, teaching his first term in Cumru township, Berks county. During the Civil war he served in the army, for more than three years, in Company B, 24th Wis. V. I., and afterward settled permanently in Minnesota. Samuel was a soldier in the Civil War. Ann Jane died aged six years. Jonathan, the youngest, was graduated from the Reading high school in 1863, served some time in the army and then entered Bucknell College, receiving a degree therefrom, and became principal of the Young Ladies' Seminary connected with his Alma Mater, a position he was ably filling when he died in Lewisburg, in 1882. Mary S. graduated from Bucknell College, and was a teacher in the Reading schools.

MELCHER. The Melcher (or Melchior) family was early settled in Bucks county, Pa. In the Goshenhoppen church records one Nicholas Melcher had a son George, born Feb. 13, 1743, and this George is said to have been the father of John, mentioned below.

John Melcher moved from Bucks county to Washington township, Berks county, where he owned the farm that is now the property of his grandson, James K. Melcher. He was born Dec. 12, 1791, and the greater part of his life was devoted to blacksmithing and farming being very successful in all that he undertook. He was prominent in public affairs as an ardent Democrat, and he held the offices of school director, auditor, and was frequently delegate to county conventions. His tract of one hundred acres was always in first class condition, and the stone building still on the land was formerly used by him for a blacksmith shop. He died Aug. 16, 1872, and is buried at Bally Catholic Church cemetery. He married Salome Buck, born Oct. 11, 1798, in Bucks county, and died Nov. 6, 1883. Their children were: Eliza m. (first) John Siegfried, and (second) Charles Kehs; Reuben; Jacob inherited the homestead, and his children were—John, Sarah, Edwin, Agnes, James and Kate; Mary m. Samuel Kohl, of Bally, and both are deceased; John m. Mary Schutt; Bennett, of Bally, had children—Lucy, George, Mary, Rosa and Howard; Lena m. John K. Adam, and lived at Bally; William, of Bally, m. Mary Linsenbigler, deceased, and has no children: Agnes died young; Sarah m. Jacob Giebel, deceased, and lived at Bally; Catharine was an invalid, and died aged sixty-five; and Joseph M., of Bally, had children—Katie (deceased), Clara (of Kansas) and Leo (at Clayton).

Reuben Melcher, son of John, was born in Washington township Feb. 1, 1818. He learned the blacksmith's trade under his father, and followed it for many years, but later in life he owned and cultivated the farm now the property of his son, Nicholas. He was very industrious, and his good farm was acquired by hard labor and thrift, and he was highly respected. He was a Jeffersonian Democrat, and never missed an election. He died Jan. 12, 1901, and was buried in the Roman Catholic cemetery at Bally. He married Catharine Quigley, born Feb. 9, 1820, daughter of John and Mary Quigley, of Washington township. She died June 15, 1864, the mother of two children: Nicholas; and Salome, m. to Aaron Eddinger, of Washington township, who is engaged as a cement layer.

NICHOLAS MELCHER, son of Reuben, and now a well known citizen of Bally, was born on the old Melcher homestead in Washington township, July 21, 1853. He was educated in the township schools which he attended until he was seventeen years of age. He remained at home working on the farm until he attained his majority, and then went to Reading, where he learned plastering. In the spring of 1875 he went to St. Louis, Mo., where he worked at his trade until January, 1880, when he returned to Berks county, and worked for his father on the farm for two years. He then married and began farming on his present place in Bally, formerly Churchville. He has a farm of sixty-five acres, which was once the property of his father, who erected the residence in 1853, and the barn the following year. The house has been remodeled by Mr. Melcher. He is an expert cement layer, and was the pioneer in the cement business in the village in which he lives and in the surrounding country. He also deals in different kinds of Portland cement, and has always been interested in this line.

Mr. Melcher is very much interested in the success of the Democratic party, and takes an active part in its work. He is a friend of the public schools, and has held a number of local offices. He and his family are active members of the Roman Catholic Church, belonging to the parish of the Most Blessed Sacrament.

On Feb. 3, 1883, Mr. Melcher married Mary Mutter, daughter of George and Mary (Stoudt) Mutter, of Washington township. Their children were: Pauline; Lillie, who took the white veil and is at the Immaculate Heart Convent at Westchester, Pa.; Stella; Victor; Mary; Herman; Reuben; Helen; Raymond; Mabel; Marion; George; Leonard; Cyril; Regis, who died aged two years; and Grace.

Bennett Melcher, son of John and Salome (Buck) Melcher, was born April 30, 1828. He attended the parochial schools at Bally, and then learned the shoemaker's trade in 1842, following it until 1866, when he began farming at the farm connected with the church of the Most Blessed Sacrament. Here he continued until 1885, and he is now living retired from active work. He married Hannah Quigley, daughter of John Quigley, of Durham, Bucks county. Their children were: Lucy, m. to William Eddinger; Rosa m. to Solomon Brensinger; George W.; Mary, m. to John Chelius; and Howard, m. to Anna Adam.

GEORGE W. MELCHER, son of Bennett, was born July 4, [illegible] ory course. He then began teaching in Washington [illegible] railroading, and f[illegible] gage master or cond[illegible] facture of men's t[illegible] 1905 in connection [illegible] began the manufacturing of silk ribbon. Since 1907 [illegible] has handled the ribbon exclusively, having disposed of the rest of the business. He carries on business under the name of The Orino Silk Mills, and operates eighteen looms. The product of the mills runs to about $100,000 per year, and is shipped all over the United States. Everything about the factory is strictly up-to-date. The building is 54 x 78 feet and two stories high. He has considerable ground not yet occupied by the building, thus being able to expand as the business increases. The factory is heated by steam, and its own dynamo furnishes the lighting. In March, 1908, was organized the First National Bank of Bally, Mr. Melcher being chairman of the organizing committee. He was elected its president, and the bank was opened for business July 1, 1909.

Mr. Melcher is a member of the Most Blessed Sacrament Church, and fraternally is connected with Reading Council No. 793, Knights of Columbus; Lodge, No. 814, B. P. O. E., of Pottstown; and St. Joseph's Beneficial Society at Bally. In politics he is a Democrat, and he is now serving as deputy coroner of his district.

Mr. Melcher married Rosa Clemmer, daughter of David B. Clemmer, of Bally. She died June 11, 1904, aged thirty-nine years, nine months. Their children were: Bertha, born July 27, 1886; Charles C., March 23, 1888; William C., March 27, 1890; Mary C., June 24, 1893; John C., Nov. 22, 1895; Paul C., Aug. 20, 1898; Cecilia C., Dec. 18, 1900; and Bennett C., March 15, 1903.

IRWIN WILLIAM L. HUYETT, late a farmer of Cumru township, Berks Co., Pa., was born there June 14, 1860, and died Oct. 27, 1894, aged thirty-four years, four months, thirteen days.

Isaac Huyett, his grandfather, born in Cumru township April 5, 1805, died Aug. 17, 1871, aged sixty-six years, four months, twelve days. He was a farmer and cattle dealer in Cumru township, carrying on extensive operations for many years. He married Sarah Gaul, born Feb. 14, 1804, daughter of Peter and Elizabeth Gaul, died July 19, 1871, aged sixty-seven years, five months, five days. They had children as follows: Isaac G., father of Irwin William L. Huyett; Joseph G., who died in 1900; Mary Ann, m. to (first) Christian Gaul and (second) Henry Hettinger; Kate, m. to James Pennypacker; Elizabeth, m. to Samuel Reifsnyder; and Sarah G., born Jan. 24, 1837, died Jan. 9, 1872, m. to Henry Close. In religious belief this family were Lutherans.

Isaac G. Huyett, born June 9, 1833, died Sept. 11, 1872, aged thirty-nine years, three months, two days. He was a farmer in Cumru township, where he lived and died. On Oct. 23, 1855, he m. Hannah S. Lauer, born July 29, 1837, died Aug. 22, 1887, aged fifty years, twenty-three days. They had children as follows: Sarah (m. Howard Potteiger), Irwin William L., Tyson (m. Kate Mohn), Kate (m. (first) Douglass Hornberger and (second) a Haak) and John.

Irwin William L. Huyett was reared on the old Huyett homestead in Cumru township, living there with his parents until they died, and after his mother's death obtaining the farm for his own. He remained there until his death, engaged in general farming. The place is near the "Five Mile House." Mr. Huyett was a successful farmer, and though he died when comparatively a young man, left his family in comfortable circumstances.

On Jan. 17, 1888, Mr. Huyett was married to Matilda V. Reber, born Feb. 26, 1862, daughter of Benneville and Mary Ellen (Dechert) Reber, who had a family of five children, namely: Conrad, of Sinking Spring; Sarah, m. to Frank Hartman; Mary, m. to Peter Leinbach; Matilda [illegible] of J. William L. Huyett, and Thomas D., [illegible] proprietor of the Rockford Lumber [illegible] Mr. and Mrs. Huyett had four children: infant, born Feb. 7, 1889, died Feb. 12, 1889; Luke R., born June 28, 1890; Irwin W., born Oct. 27, 1892; and Mary Ellen, born Nov. 29, 1894.

Since her husband's death Mrs. Huyett has resided in her own comfortable residence on Main street, Sinking Spring, where she lived prior to her marriage. Mr. Huyett was a member of St. John's Lutheran Church at Sinking Spring, and served as deacon. He is buried in the family lot at that church.

PETER D. WANNER, a member of the Berks county Bar and one of the prominent men of Reading, is descended from French-German ancestry, whose first American representative, Martin Wanner, lived in the Palatinate, Germany, and came to America in August, 1732, landing in Philadelphia, and after remaining at Germantown for several years, removed to Colebrookdale Township, in this county.

In the Old World, however, the line is carried back for centuries. From an old manuscript it is learned that the name Wanner is recorded in the genealogical table book of the German noblemen, at Vienna, Austria, among the nobles that resided in Wangen, Upper Swabia. The ancestral line is traced back to the year A. D. 790. At this period Charles the Great, King of France, enlarged the city and surrounded it by high walls; this being completed, he appointed Bertrande de Vanneres, a distinguished and experienced warrior, as chief counsellor of the city. Bertrande de Vanneres was born in France, and afterwards went to Germany, and when he became a resident of the town Wangen, he changed his name into Bertrand Wanner. His wife was Julia Kurtz, from Ricordia.

The Escutcheon.—Two lilies were engraved upon his shield, and one on the helmet; these composed the escutcheon of his family in France. Besides two lilies he had engraved on each side of the one a horn, as a sign that he was empowered to counsel and to protect the City. He died A. D. 832, and left two sons, named Winfred and Herbert, who bore the same escutcheon.

The family soon became very large, and a number still remain residents of Wangen, where they are held in high estimation among the nobility. In the reign of King Ludwig their nobility was re-established and ratified, by order of the King. The escutcheon was improved and distributed among those that resided in Upper Swabia. By order of Charles V., of Germany, the biographies of those most distinguished were written and placed in the archives at Vienna, where they can be seen at the present day.

The two above mentioned were officers under the King, the one stationed at Augsburg and the other at Constance. On account of the unremitting war which raged at that time throughout nearly all Germany, only two of the Wanner family remained in Germany in the year 1539. Those were named Godfried and Henry Wanner. They were both Counsellors at Wangen, and from thence the Wanner lineage became divided into two families:

(1) Godfried became the father of those that remained in the Swabian line, but soon some settled in Baiern and Switzerland. Godfried became chief burgess of Wangen. The name of his wife was Lucia Dollinger. He died A. D. 1592, and left three sons, named William, Anthony and Friedrich. Of these William remained in Wangen, Anthony resided in Augsburg, and Friedrich went to Switzerland.

(2) Henry went to Frankfort-on-the-Main and became a trader in gold and silver. The name of his wife was Bertha Jannetka. He died in 1580, and left a son named Rudolf Wanner, who died in 1580, and left a son who became a goldsmith in Frankfort, and obtained great wealth; but during the Thirty Years' war he was plundered by the Spaniards and left but a small patrimony to his sons at his death. The foregoing is taken from the Europe Escutcheon Book and the family record in the library at Vienna.

Martin Wanner, previously mentioned as the first Wanner to come to America, was Peter D. Wanner's great-great-grandfather. He came to Colebrookdale township, where he followed farming and became the father of three sons, Christian, Jacob and Peter, the last named our subject's great-grandfather.

Peter Wanner, who came to Fleetwood, then called Coxtown, where he became noted for his activity and influence, built and was for a time "mine host" of the famous old stone hotel at that point, which has housed many important personages in its time. He was also proprietor of the old stone grist mill there, and of an abandoned woolen mill higher up on the stream. He died at the home of his son John about 1831, when he was aged ninety-two years.

John Wanner, son of Peter, was born at Coxtown, and was a very talented man and highly esteemed by the people, who elected him Justice of the Peace for a number of years, also county commissioner, and member of the Legislature. He established and lived on a farm near Kutztown on the Reading road, where he died in November, 1842, in the prime of life.

Peter D. Wanner, the immediate subject of this review, was born near Kutztown, Berks county, Pa., Dec. 1, 1840, son of William Wanner, son of John Wanner. He passed the formative period of his life with his parents on the Wanner Homestead, in hard work—the lot of the average farmer's boy—in the winters picking up the rudiments of an education at the local school. Although his opportunities were poor, he manifested such aptness and was so eager to advance, that he finally prepared himself to enter the schoolroom as a teacher. Whatever else can be said of this time-honored occupation, it is true that it has been the stepping-stone by which many a poor boy has been enabled to get a start in life. After teaching during the winters of 1857, 1858 and 1859, Mr. Wanner, in the Spring of 1859, entered Union Seminary, New Berlin, Pa., where he made rapid progress, and in 1860 became a student of Fairview Seminary, at Kutztown, and later on one of the assistant teachers, pursuing his studies at the same time. At the close of two years he was far enough advanced to enter Franklin and Marshall College, Lancaster, Pa., where he graduated in 1865. Two months later he was admitted to the Bar at Lancaster, which means that he crowded a college and legal course into three years, an unusual accomplishment.

Mr. Wanner commenced to practice his profession at Reading in the fall of 1865, and soon acquired prominence at the Bar. He ran for district attorney in 1868 as a Democrat, but was not elected to the office until 1871. In 1875 he was appointed county solicitor. In 1878 he ran for Congress against the Hon. Hiester Clymer, and came very near defeating him at the Primary. Prior to this defeat, Mr. Wanner had given all his time and attention to law and politics.

In 1879 he became interested in the works of The Mellert Foundry & Machine Company, Limited, and later on also in the Reading Foundry Company, Limited, both large concerns, in which he succeeded remarkably well up to the panic of 1893, having become almost sole owner of both, and he had amassed a handsome fortune; but during the prolonged depression between 1893 and 1900, he lost the greater portion of it, but by no fault of his, and he claims for himself that no man could have managed better, or would have stood more heroically by the works than he did; and that with but slight support from some friend, with money and influence, he could easily have bridged over the crisis, and would now be one of the richest men in Reading. Fate, however, decided against him on this line, and he again returned to his first love, the practice of law, and occupies fine offices on the third floor of the building known by his name, corner of Court and Reed streets, which he built in 1895. While in the iron business, Mr. Wanner also became interested in the construction and management of a large number of water works, in which he made considerable money, and he is still interested in some four or five companies. He has been an active member of the Reading Board of Trade since its organization many years ago, and served as its third President.

In 1904 Mr. Wanner, in his anxiety to get back into practice more quickly, became a candidate for district attorney; and again in 1907, but his candidacy was not well received owing to a custom in Berks county politics, against giving a candidate a second term in certain offices that he held once before. However, Mr. Wanner does not propose to lie down either in law or politics, and is determined to succeed in both before making his final exit.

Mr. Wanner is of a literary turn of mind, and has read and written a great deal in his time. Many of his papers have been published in newspapers, etc. He has also been very fond of speaking even from his boyhood, and has, without doubt, made more public speeches than any other man in his County.

Mr. Wanner was married to Miss Kate Mellert, daughter of Arnold Mellert, Sept. 5, 1872. There were born to them two daughters, Mary E. and Elsie F. and three sons, William A., John P., and Clarence M.; three other children died in infancy.

The possibilities of the American boy have had a fair demonstration in the career under consideration. By sheer will power and determination, securing an education in the face of great obstacles, battling his way unaided to the front in his chosen profession, succeeding in a line foreign to his preparation, only to have the coveted prize slip from his grasp, but through no fault of his own, and again to achieve success in law and politics,—great is the American boy! But he must be great in spirit, must "hitch his wagon to a star" and keep his eye on the main chance. For such men of Peter D. Wanner's stamp are examples for earnest study, for the qualities which lifted them may be cultivated, and achieved by the youth who has the strength and force of character to attempt it.

Mr. Wanner resides at the head of Walnut street, in one of the most beautiful homes of his adopted city.

MORRIS B. MELOT, former landlord and restaurant proprietor at Fleetwood, was born in Oley township, Berks county, Feb. 25, 1855, and comes of French Huguenot stock, being descended from Pierre Melot, who came from France to Philadelphia, Oct. 22, 1773, and soon afterward settled in Oley township.

George S. Melot, son of Pierre and grandfather of Morris B., was born in 1782 in Oley township, and spent his life there, residing half a mile south of Friedensburg. His occupation was that of farmer and drover. By his union with Susanna Seyer he had twelve children, Rosanna, Elizabeth, Johannes, Levi, Johan George, Susanna, Maria, Amos, Daniel, Jacob, Seyer and Catherine.

Amos S. Melot was born Sept. 27, 1824, in Oley township. He became a man of considerable influence in the locality and when the borough of Fleetwood was established in 1872, he was chosen one of its first councilmen. His wife, whom he married Oct. 15, 1848, was Miss Malinda Boyer, daughter of Samuel Boyer. Born Dec. 20, 1827, she survives her husband, and although in the eighty-third year of her age, is still remarkably well-preserved. Amos S. Melot reached only his fifty-seventh year, passing away June 19, 1881. Their children were: William B., who died in April, 1900, unmarried; Chester B., who married Lizzie Zern, daughter of Rev. Zern, deceased, of Fleetwood, and has children—Bessie, Chester and Helen; Augustus B., who married Emma Delp, and died in August, 1895, leaving two children—Jeanette (a teacher in the public schools at Fleetwood) and Charles; and Morris B.

Morris B. Melot removed with his parents from Oley township to Fleetwood in 1863, and he has ever since made his home there. As a young man he was first employed for nine years as a clerk in the general store of Melot, Madeira & Co., in Fleetwood, and after that was in a mercantile business there for himself for two years. During twenty years he was engaged in the hotel and restaurant business, and was located at the corner of Main and Richmond streets, when he retired April 1, 1909, and was succeeded by his son Warren. Mr. Melot is active in politics, supporting the Republican party, was county committeeman for more than eight years, and was postmaster of Fleetwood for four years, appointed by President McKinley. While a loyal party man, he is above all a good citizen and is held in general esteem.

On July 15, 1881, Mr. Melot married Miss Clara K. Kemp, daughter of Alfred C. and Susanna (Weaver) Kemp, of Lehigh county, Pa. She has borne her husband four children, namely: Maud married Irwin Leibensperger, of Fleetwood; Warren, twin to Maud, and present proprietor of the "Grand Central Hotel and Restaurant," married Miss Ida Heiter, and has four children, Harold, Milford, Clara and Roger; Gussie; and Morris, Jr. The family reside on the old Melot homestead and the aged grandmother, Mrs. Amos S. Melot, makes her home with them.

FRANK KLINE, an enterprising young business man of Reading, Pa., who is conducting a first-class drug store on Schuylkill avenue, is a native of Reading, born June 6, 1875, son of Jacob and Terrenta (Fisher) Kline, and grandson of Daniel Kline, one of Berks county's early settlers.

Jacob Kline received his education in Bern township, Berks county, and early in life took up contracting, which he followed all his active period. He is now deceased, but his widow makes her home with her son, our subject. In religious belief Jacob Kline is connected with the German Lutheran Church. His politics are Democratic.

Frank Kline secured his early education in the schools of Reading, and when a youth entered the drug store of John B. Raser, where he secured a good, practical knowledge of the business. In 1894 he entered the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy, graduating therefrom in 1896, at which time he entered the employ of Charles H. Raudenbush, and Anthony Schaich, with whom he remained three and one-half years. He then accepted a position with the well known Philadelphia drug firm of John Wyeth & Brother, whom he represented until 1901, and in this year he returned to Reading, opening a business of his own at No. 408 Schuylkill avenue, but requiring larger quarters, he purchased and built at No. 432 Schuylkill avenue. Mr. Kline handles a full and complete line of drugs, candies, toilet articles and proprietary medicines, and manufactures several well-known remedies, among them "Mrs. King's Celebrated Child Ease," and "Jumper Kidney Pills," these medicines having gained for him an enviable reputation, being sold throughout the country. His laboratory is at No. 439 Miltinore street. Mr. Kline commands some of the best trade in Reading, and is well deserving of the success which he has attained.

In 1901 Mr. Kline married Miss Bessie M. Schultz, daughter of John B. Schultz, and to this union there have been born three children: J. Denton, Margaret Eleanor and Frank, Jr. Mr. Kline is a member of Lodge No. 62, F. & A. M., Reading Chapter, DeMolay Commandery, and Rajah Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S., Philadelphia Consistory, thirty-second degree; of Vigilance Lodge, I. O. O. F., Reading; of the K. G. E.; the Schuylkill Fire Company; Knights of Malta; the Pennsylvania State Pharmaceutical Association, and the Berks County Pharmaceutical Association. He and his wife attend First Presbyterian Church. In politics Mr. Kline is a Republican.

THOMAS C. BRICKER, floorman in the large department store of Lord & Gage, Reading, was born near Womelsdorf, in Heidelberg township, and received his education in the common schools and at the Palatinate College. He then taught public school for three terms, assisting the railway station agent at Wernersville during the summer season. From 1877 to 1879, he acted as the assistant agent and operator at Boyertown, and from 1879 to 1884, as station agent at Langhorne, on the New York Division of the Philadelphia & Reading railroad. He was then transferred to Wernersville, where he continued until 1890, excepting a brief service as agent on the Bulson Street Wharf, at Camden, New Jersey.

In 1890 Mr. Bricker formed a partnership with his brother for carrying on the hardware business in Reading. They purchased the store of Jackson & Obold, and carried it on for four years under the name of Bricker Bros. The Wernersville State Asylum having been completed about this time, the position of steward's clerk was offered him, and he accepting it, the firm sold their stock and discontinued the business. Mr. Bricker filled this position in a satisfactory manner for two years, when the board of managers advanced him to storekeeper. After serving for a year as store-keeper, his services and efficiency were so highly appreciated by the board that he was promoted to the responsible position of steward, Dec. 1, 1896, and this he filled up to Aug. 15, 1908, when, on account of ill health, he resigned. His residence is at Wernersville, where he erected a very attractive home for himself and his wife. He assisted in organizing and building the Trinity Lutheran Church at Wernersville, in 1896, and officiated as secretary of the congregation and superintendent of the Sunday-school from its organization. He also assisted in organizing the public library, and the water company of the village, becoming the president of the former, and one of the directors of the latter. Soon after his resignation as steward of the Asylum, Mr. Bricker came to Reading, where he is employed as floorman in the large department store of Lord & Gage. He travels to and from Wernersville.

David Bricker, father of Thomas C., lived retired for some years in Wernersville, after having been a farmer for some thirty years in Heidelberg township. He was born in 1836 and died in 1904. His wife was Caroline Moyer, a daughter of William and Hannah (Hoyer) Moyer, of Womelsdorf, and they had five children: Martin, who died when a young man; Daniel M., now deceased, m. to Lizzie Potts; Thomas C.; Ella C., m. to John Bosler; and Emma C., m. to Eugene Hetrich.

Mr. Bricker's grandfather was Christian Bricker, a farmer of Heidelberg. He m. Hannah Gruber, and they had five children: Jonathan, m. to Mary Herb; Jacob, m. to Annie Gruber; John, m. to Elmeda Brockway; Daniel, m. to Rebecca Hettinger; and Kate, m. to David Cox. Christian Bricker's antecedents came from Cocalico township, Lancaster county, in the vicinity of Brickerville.

Thomas C. Bricker m. Luneta E. Reber, daughter of Levi F. Reber, of Wernersville. Her father, a native of Penn township, m. Mary A. Rumble, of Ringtown, Schuylkill county, by whom he had five children: Luneta; Theresa, m. to Elijah H. Miller; Sarah; John H.; and Robert, who died young. Mrs. Bricker's grandfather, John B. Reber, was of Penn township, where he carried on a large gristmill and farm, and he also became interested in coal operations in Schuylkill county. He was born in 1818, and died in 1894. He was married three times. His first wife was Sarah Fisher, of Heidelberg township, by whom he had two children: Mary A., m. to Dr. James Deppen; and Levi F. His second wife was Mary Gernant, daughter of John Gernant. His third wife was Montana Dunbar. Her great-grandfather was Conrad Reber, born in 1788, and died in 1854. He was married to Susanna Bright of Bernville, and by her had ten children. His father, Thomas Reber, born in 1746 died in 1821; and his grandfather, Johann Bernhard Reber, emigrated from Langenselbold, Germany, in 1738, landing at Philadelphia; naturalized in 1768; m. Johanna Magdalena Hahn, by whom he had five children, John, Ludwig, Thomas (above named), Valentine and Peter.

Mrs. Bricker's grandfather on the mother's side was Henry Rumble, whose wife was Salome, and they had six children besides Mrs. Reber, mother of Mrs. Bricker, namely: Henry m. Elizabeth Seenley; Rebecca m. William Kaudig; Daniel m. Sarah Seltzer; Joshua m. three times, (first) Lucy Seenley, (second) Hannah Derr, and (third) Jennie Aldrich; John P.; and Jacob.

JOHN J. SPOTTS, a good, practical farmer of Caernarvon township, Berks county, whose fertile farm of ninety acres is situated near Morgantown, was born in Lancaster county, Pa., in 1859, son of George and Mary Ann (Grube) Spotts, the former of whom was born in 1837 and died in 1882, and the latter of whom makes her home in Morgantown, being about seventy years of age. George Spotts, Mr. Spotts' grandfather, died in 1861, and was buried at Churchtown, as was also his wife, who had been a Miss Ax.

John J. Spotts has always been engaged in agricultural pursuits and his present farm is in a high state of cultivation. He is a Republican in politics, but has always refused to allow his name to be connected in the way of political preferment. He and his family are members of the Morgantown Methodist Church. He married Sept. 2, 1885, Emma Byler, born on the farm on which the Spotts family now reside, it formerly having belonged to her father. Three children have been born to this union: Dora, born in 1886; Mamie, born in 1889; and Ralph, born July 13, 1895.

Jacob Byler, Mrs. Spotts' great-grandfather, came to this township from Germany and settled on the old Byler homestead in Lancaster county, and of whom the following story is told: After a heavy snow storm had subsided, Mr. Byler went to the woods, to gather fire-wood. Noting several snow-covered mounds his curiosity was aroused and he brushed away the snow, only to find that the mounds were Indians, who had wrapped themselves in blankets and gone to sleep! Mr. Byler's curiosity nearly cost him his life.

Jacob Byler's son, also named Jacob, was born July 3, 1776, and died June 23, 1845. He married Magdalene Byler, born Dec. 11, 1775, and among their children was a son David, the father of Mrs. Spotts, born July 20, 1821, who died Jan. 4, 1885. He married Phoebe Bean, who survives him and lives in Morgantown, being in her eighty-third year.

GEORGE C. DILLON, an energetic and enterprising business man of Reading, Pa., and one who has made his own way in the world, is conducting a first-class grocery in that city. He was born Oct. 3, 1867, in Reading, son of George W. Dillon, a shoemaker by occupation, who in the summer months followed boating along the Schuylkill river. George W. Dillon married Mary A. Mohr, born in Schuylkill county, and they became the parents of these children: Moses, employed by the Reading Iron Company, at Reading; William H., employed by the Reading Hardware Company; Mrs. E. R. Knowles, of Port Carbon, Pa.; and George C.

George C. Dillon received his literary training in the public schools of his native city, and his first employment was with the Penn Hardware Company. Leaving this firm, he engaged with the Reading Iron Company, and remained eleven years in their employ, after which he drove the country team of the Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company, for three years. Being then employed by George E. Lesher, in the grocery business, he continued with that gentleman for one year, the next year being spent with J. E. Clouser. Mr. Dillon was employed by the National Biscuit Company, as salesman, for eleven months, at the end of which time he engaged with Kurtz & Mayers, selling coffee, spices, etc., and at this latter he continued for three years or until engaging in business on his own account, Oct. 23, 1902, being located at No. 725 Washington street. Here Mr. Dillon has built up a very lucrative business. His straightforward manner of doing business, his genial courtesy and cordiality, and his native honesty and integrity have won him not only a large and steady patronage, but a host of warm friends as well, and he is very popular in his community.

On Dec. 24, 1890, Mr. Dillon married Mary E. Eckenrode, daughter of James Eckenrode, and to this union has been born one daughter, Ruth Viola. In political affiliations Mr. Dillon is connected with the Republican party, and he was elected a member of the school board in February, 1909. He is a member of the First Baptist Church. Very popular in fraternal circles, Mr. Dillon is a Mason, joining Lodge No. 62, in January, 1898, and is also connected with the Red Men No. 186, the Modern Woodmen of America, and the Liberty Fire Company.

MAHLON D. WINTER, postmaster at Centreport, Berks county, and a man who has been in business in that vicinity from early manhood, was born Jan. 13, 1869, in Centre township, son of Christian R. Winter and grandson of Christian Winter.

Christian Winter, the grandfather, was born in Berks county and followed shoemaking in Centre township, where he is buried, at Belleman's Church. He lived to the age of ninety-seven, having been born in 1800 and died in 1897. His wife's maiden name was Rick, and they had a family of nine children: William, John, Christian R., Charles, Frank, Cyrus, Malinda, Elizabeth and Lavina.

Christian R. Winter, son of Christian, born in 1829 in Centre township, followed lime burning there. He retired in 1902, and now makes his home at Centreport. He married Susanna Dundore, and they have a family of seven children: Matilda m. Miles Royer, of Illinois; Mary m. Oliver Horning; Katie m. David Mengel; James lives in Kansas City, Mo.; William is unmarried; John, of Reading, m. Louisa Kauffman; Mahlon D. is mentioned below.

Mahlon D. Winter attended public school in Centre township, and learned the tailor's trade, which he followed for eighteen months. After that he clerked in a general store at Centreport for three years and two months, and then engaged in business for himself at West Leesport, where he remained for two years. He was next at Centreport for two years, was engaged in sawmilling for one year, and in 1898 embarked in the confectionery business at Centreport, which he has continued ever since. In 1906 he went into the lumber business again, cutting down timber. He has one mill in operation, and has cut many feet of timber in Berks county. In 1907 Mr. Winter built a shirt factory at Centreport, a frame building two stories high, where from twenty-five to fifty hands are employed.

Mr. Winter has been quite active in the public affairs of Centreport, has served six years as councilman of the borough, as surveyor, as school director (acting as secretary of the school board), and as Republican committeeman of Centreport for eleven years. In 1897 he was appointed postmaster by the late President McKinley. He is connected with Odd Fellows Lodge No. 141, at Leesport, and with Camp No. 446, P. O. S. of A., of Centreport. He is a member of the Lutheran Church.

Mr. Winter married Lizzie E. Ernst, of Centre township, daughter of Emanuel and Priscilla (Klopp) Ernst, and six children have been born to them, five surviving: Oscar (who died when eight years old), Lloyd, Frank, Raymond, Armand and Alberta.

GEORGE S. STIRL, a well-known business man of Reading, who is engaged as dealer in local stocks, bonds and investments, and also having a general steamship agency, located at No. 37 North Sixth street, Reading, Pa., was born in Maxatawny township, Sept. 29, 1864, son of Ernest A. and Isabella C. (Wink) Stirl.

Ernest A. Stirl was a native of Chemnitz, Saxony, Germany, and while in his native country learned the trade of coppersmith. He later took up the study of music, graduating from the conservatory of music at Leipzig. On coming to America he located at Hamburg, Pa., and was living with his family at Shippensburg, Pa., at the time of the outbreak of the Civil war, when he enlisted as chief bugler in Company L, 22d Pa. Cav., a position he held throughout his service. He was honorably discharged at the close of the war, and returned to Hamburg, Pa., where he lived until his death May 10, 1866. He and his wife were the parents of four children, of whom George S. is the only survivor.

Mr. Stirl married Helen M. Shearer, daughter of Joseph Shearer, and to them have been born three children: Joseph S., George S. and Miriam L.

JOSEPH S. SNYDER, a representative agriculturalist of Lower Heidelberg township, Berks county, whose fine farm of 118 acres is situated along the Berks and Dauphin turnpike, was born April 13, 1851, in South Lebanon township, Lebanon county, son of John and Elizabeth (Stohler) Snyder.

Samuel Snyder, grandfather of Joseph S., resided at Iona, Lebanon county, where he owned several farms, and was a man of considerable means. He married Martha Gingrich, and they had six children: John, Elizabeth, Mary, Joseph, Kate and Sarah.

John Snyder, father of Joseph S., was born in South Lebanon township, Lebanon county, in 1820, and died near Lebanon in 1900, being buried at Iona. He was a farmer by occupation, owning a nice property, and was a member of the meeting-house in his community. Mr. Snyder married Elizabeth Stohler, who died in 1883, daughter of Johannes Stohler, of Heidelberg township, Lebanon county, and they had children as follows: John, Samuel, Monroe, Malinda, Joseph S., Martha, Sarah, Kate and Lizzie.

Joseph S. Snyder was reared on his father's farm, and when twenty-four years old he began farming on an eighty-eight acre tract in his native township, where he resided for four years. He then sold his farm stock and removed with his father-in-law to Millcreek township, where he resided one year, at the end of that time purchasing a seventy-acre farm, which he operated for a period of eighteen years, this farm being located in the southwest corner of the township. Mr. Snyder also owned an eighty-acre property in South Lebanon township, but on moving to Berks county in 1891, he sold both of these tracts and purchased the well-known Michael Kintzer farm in Lower Heidelberg township, which consists of 118 acres of some of the best land to be found in this part of the State. On this property are located a Swiss barn 106x45 feet, and a large brick house, which is beautifully located and surrounded by a large, well-kept lawn. Mr. Snyder has fine farm stock, and cultivates his property with the latest and most highly improved machinery, and his operations in the agricultural line were attended with much success. In the fall of 1908 he gathered 3500 bushels of corn from twenty-two acres. He still owns this farm but in the spring of 1908 moved into Reading. He attends the Reading market once or twice a week, having stand No. 106 at the Kissinger market-house. In politics Mr. Snyder is a Democrat, but he has never been desirous of holding public office. He and his family are Lutheran members of the Schaefferstown Church.

On Oct. 5, 1876, Mr. Snyder was married to Maggie Person, born in Millcreek township, Lebanon county, June 19, 1856, daughter of David and Adaline (Moore) Person, and she died May 14, 1904, being buried at Schaefferstown. Thirteen children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Snyder, namely: Clayton died aged three years; Emma m. John Bennetch, of Spring township; David lives in Ohio; Milton is ticket agent at Gladwyne, Pa.; Lizzie; Addie lives at Gladwyne; Alice m. Feb. 6, 1909, William H. Noll, and lives in Reading; Irwin is the dairyman of the Griscolm Company, at Gladwyne, Pa.; Ella; Mary died when nearly six years old; John; Hiram; and Laura died in infancy.

H. J. CROESSANT, proprietor of the Empire Bottling Works, No. 215 Moss street, and sole agent for Sheboygan Mineral Water, is a native of the city of Reading, born in 1856, son of Henry Croessant and wife, whose maiden name was Miller.

Mr. Croessant's parents died when he was but two and one-half years old, and he was reared and cared for by Herman Floto. His education was secured in the schools of Reading, and he was first employed by Mr. Floto, with whom he continued until eighteen years of age. At this time he learned the house painting trade at which he continued for four years, when he went to work for Daniel Wentzel, and continued bottling beer until 1882. At this time with a Mr. Freis, he purchased the concern, from James Wentzel, and in 1897 he bought Mr. Freis' interest, and since that time has been running the business alone. The plant at No. 215 Moss street is equipped with the latest modern machinery, and he manufactures a high grade of carbonated drinks, bottling Lauer's, Barbey's, Reading, Deppen's, Ballentine's and Piel's beers of New York. He employs on an average ten men, and five teams, furnishing all the leading hotels and cafes in the city. Mr. Croessant is a member of the K. G. E., the P. O. S. of A., the Bavarians, the Phœnix, Maennerchor, Liederkranz, Americus and Commercial Clubs, the Rainbow Fire Company, and several other societies.

Mr. Croessant was married to Sophia Bower, and to them were born four sons: Henry, who died aged thirteen years; William, who is employed by his father, and m. to Agnes Wielands; Herman, employed by his father, and m. to Mary Stehman; and Frederick.

JOHN GEORGE SCHUMACHER, late a retired business man of Reading, Pa., who was formerly largely interested in the coffee roasting line, was born May 4, 1838, in Wurtemberg, Germany, son of John and Margaret (Koenig) Schumacher, and died Sept. 4, 1909.

The parents of Mr. Schumacher were natives of Germany, and the mother died there aged sixty years. In 1851 the father came to America. Prior to this he had been a farmer but in this country he was a laborer. He died at the age of fifty-eight years. There were twelve children in the family, evenly divided, and four of them are still living, John George and two sisters in Schuylkill county, and one yet in Germany.

John G. Schumacher attended school in his native land and also learned the weaving trade there. In 1861 he came to America, landing at New York city, going thence to Philadelphia and from there to Schuylkill Haven, where he found employment at different jobs. In 1874 he came to Reading and later went to railroading, working for thirteen years for the Pennsylvania Company, between Pottsville and Philadelphia. He then bought a coffee roaster which he operated with ample success up to 1892, when he retired from active business. He lived in his pleasant home at No. 1046 Elm street and owned considerable city property, mostly in the Ninth ward, where he had twenty-four houses. He was also in the wall paper business for a time, and had a practical knowledge of many lines. His last years were fully occupied in looking after his real estate investments.

Mr. Schumacher was married (first) to Mary Rolland, and they had one daughter, Annie M., who died in 1895, the wife of George Becker. Mr. Schumacher m. (second) Annie Rote, and they had one daughter, Mary, wife of Daniel Parker, a resident of Exeter township. Mr. Schumacker m. (third) Margaret Schmidt, widow of Benjamin Herbst.

In politics Mr. Schumacher was a Democrat. He had belonged to the Lutheran Church from boyhood, and had filled almost all of the church offices. He was a well known and very highly esteemed citizen. In 1892 he made an enjoyable visit of three months in Germany, visiting the scenes of his early life.

CONRAD G. BOWER (deceased) was born in Switzerland, March 22, 1846. His father came to America with his family of six children in 1851, landing at New York, whence he came direct to Reading. Here he followed his trade of wheelwright, but lived a retired life for twenty years prior to his death, on Jan. 22, 1897. His wife died Aug. 5, 1895, and both are buried in the Catholic cemetery at Reading. On the voyage to America two of the children died and were buried at sea. The children born in Switzerland were: William, Francis, Victor, Mary, Joseph and Conrad G.; while three born after the emigration to America were: John, Louis (deceased) and George.

Conrad G. Bower came to America with his parents when five years of age, and attended the public schools of Reading. His first employment was in a brick yard, and he later learned the hatting trade, which he followed for fifteen years in the factory of Kutz & Arnold. He then embarked in the hotel business at Locust and Elm streets, where he remained twenty-six years, retiring from business in April, 1903. On Jan. 22, 1904, Mr. Bower passed away, aged fifty-seven years, ten months. He was a veteran of the Civil war, having enlisted Feb. 10, 1865, in Company F, 192d Pa. V. I., Col. William Stewart, and was honorably discharged Aug. 24, 1865. For twenty years he was a member of Post 16, G. A. R., and of the Ivy Leaf Association, in which he was very popular. Both he and his wife belonged to St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church.

On June 4, 1868, Mr. Bower married Sarah A. Hauck, who was born in Lancaster county, daughter of the late John and Mary A. (Getz) Hauck, the former of whom came from Bavaria, Germany, in 1846, locating in the city of Lancaster, Pa., where he was the owner of the land on which St. Joseph's Catholic Church now stands. Mr. and Mrs. Bower had no children, but adopted and reared Mary A. Gantz, who survives. Mrs. Bower resided at No. 343 North Twelfth street, where one of her most precious possessions was an old spinning-wheel, which was secured from a farmer, whom Mr. Bower, while on one of his numerous fishing trips, had seen throw it on an ash pile. In the death of Conrad G. Bower the city of Reading lost one of its good citizens. Honest and straightforward in his dealings with his fellow men, he was respected and esteemed by all, and his loss is felt not only by his immediate friends, but by the community at large. Mrs. Bower survived until Aug. 23, 1907, when she, too, entered into rest, beloved by all who knew her.

WELLINGTON L. WISE, whose fine farm lies three-quarters of a mile southeast of Amityville, Berks county, is a member of a family whose early home was in the Palatinate, Germany, his great-grandfather, Ehrhart Weiss, emigrating from that locality to America during the latter half of the eighteenth century. When he first came to the New World, in company with others he traveled through the Oley Valley with a view to settling there, but they found there only wood of small growth, and this caused them to question the fertility of the soil. They drifted along in the direction of what is now known as Koch's Tavern in Pike township, where they found heavy timber and good water, and accordingly chose that place for their new homes. Ehrhart Weiss had a number of children, and many of his descendants are in Lower Berks county at the present time.

John Weiss, son of Ehrhart, was born above Gabelsville, in Colebrookdale, and there grew to manhood and learned the tailor's trade. This he followed some years, and then came to Douglass township, and bought the 163-acre farm now owned by Wilson Schmale, and this he cultivated for forty years. At the end of that time he moved to Earl township, and for a number of years conducted the "Worman Hotel." When he retired his son-in-law, Jeremiah Wentzel, took charge of the same place. Mrs. Weiss died at this hotel from a stroke of apoplexy, while sitting in her chair, Oct. 15, 1852. She was Anna Hartranft, born Nov. 17, 1786, daughter of William and Anna Barbara Hartranft. Mr. Weiss made his home with his son-in-law at the hotel until his own death April 6, 1879. To him and his wife were born children as follows: Sarah m. Samuel Fisher; Samuel (born Aug. 2, 1809, died Feb. 9, 1883) m. Catharine (born Nov. 24, 1815, died July 22, 1895); Polly; Rebecca; Sophia; Ephraim (born Oct. 16, 1816, died March 4, 1864); Catharine; William H.; Henry and Caroline.

William H. Wise, son of John, was born in Douglass township, near Pine schoolhouse, Jan. 31, 1822, and died in the same township Jan. 18, 1898, and he and his wife are buried in the cemetery at Amityville. William H. Wise was a farmer, owning a ninety-two acre farm in Douglass, which is now the property of his son Warren. He was a Lutheran member of Amityville church, and served as deacon and elder many years. In politics he was a Democrat, and long served as school director. He was public-spirited and progressive, and was sincerely interested in furthering the cause of public education. He married Rebecca Levengood, born March 17, 1826, daughter of Samuel and Rebecca (Weiler) Levengood, and she died May 5, 1875, the mother of ten children, as follows: Philip, Leah, Rebecca, Wellington L., Amanda, Delilah (born Sept. 4, 1857, died Aug. 22, 1877), Irwin, Harvey L., Warren and Annie.

Wellington L. Wise, son of William H., was born in Douglass township, adjoining Amity on the south, Dec. 16, 1852. He was reared to farm work and educated in the public schools, completing his literary training by twenty weeks in Kallynean Academy under Prof. I. B. Hankey. In 1873 he was licensed to teach by the late Prof. D. B. Brunner, and he taught his first term at what was then known as "Goosetown school," now School No. 4. In all he taught seven terms, three in Earl township and four in Douglass, and he became well known for his "spelling bees," which were most enjoyable affairs and were always well attended. In the spring of 1882 he began farming in Douglass township on the farm whereon he was born and reared. At the end of three years he sold out his stock and moved to the Jeremiah Van Reed residence and in partnership with his father and brother Philip bought a steam threshing outfit for $1,500, and for one year followed threshing. In 1884 he bought what is known as the Henry Eagle farm in Amity, of 146 acres, 146 perches. The present house was built many years ago, but in 1895 Mr. Wise remodeled it, and built an addition. He has his farm in a high state of cultivation, and has a full line of the best modern farm implements.

In politics Mr. Wise is a Democrat, and he has been a man of influence in his party. He was elected a member of the school board in 1903, and later re-elected, and since 1907 has been secretary of the board. He and his family are Lutheran members of St. Paul's Church, in which he is a member of the vestry. From 1885 to 1903 he served as deacon, and he was then elected elder and a member of the church council.

On Feb. 7, 1880, Mr. Wise married Rosa E. Rhoads, daughter of Maberry and Mary Ann (Schaeffer) Rhoads, of Amity, and they have eleven children, namely: Mary; Wayne; Delilah; Nora, a graduate of the Interstate Commercial College, Reading, is head bookkeeper for Penn Troy Laundry, Reading; Howard is a teacher in Douglass township; Carrie is an expert penman and is a student at the Pottstown Business College; Annie is a member of the choir at Amityville, as is also her sister Carrie; Eva attended Reading high school; Ella and Le Verne are twins; and William J. In 1878 Mr. Wellington L. Wise and his brother Philip went to Sterling, Rice Co., Kans., where they bought a 160-acre farm at a place called Lyons, paying $12.60 an acre. Shortly afterward they sold it for double the purchase money to a man who later sold half of it for $40,000, and cut the other half up into building lots which he sold at good prices. The village of Lyons became the county seat of Rice county, and real estate prices soared high.

Harvey L. Wise, son of William H. and brother of of Wellington L., was born in Douglass township Jan. 17, 1863, and was educated in the public schools in Douglass and trained to farm work. In 1891 he began farming in Amity on rented land, and so continued for seven years—two years on the Levi Heist farm, and five on his father's farm. In 1898 he bought the farm upon which he now resides, located one-quarter mile southeast of Amityville. It consists of fifty-three acres, and Mr. Wise pays particular attention to his dairy. This farm at one time belonged to John Wentzel, and later to Milton Reiff, from whose assignee Mr. Wise purchased it. He and his family are Lutheran members of Amityville church, in which he has been a deacon for eight years. In politics he is a Democrat. On Oct. 27, 1888, he married Mary Rhoads, daughter of Maberry and Mary the parents of these children: Kate; Samuel E.; J. Howard; Mamie, deceased; Lottie; and Noami and Esther, deceased.

Samuel E. Fritz was educated in the common schools of Cumru township, and was reared principally with his maternal grandfather, Samuel Kurtz. He learned the business of plumbing, spending three years with E. S. Summons and three years with the Daniel Adam Steam Heating & Radiating Co., and then started in business on his own account at No. 305 Elm street, Oct. 24, 1898, remaining there for seven years. At this time he successfully passed the examination, registering No. 26, Thomas Weber, Inspector. Mr. Fritz has done some of the largest jobs in his line in Reading, although his operations are not confined to this city, he also having done work in Philadelphia, Harrisburg, and other cities. He is considered an expert in the line of steam and hot water heating, and has the reputation of doing his work promptly and well. His offices in Reading are among the best appointed in the city, and he employs from twelve to fifteen men the year around.

On June 28, 1894, Mr. Fritz married Alice Lewis, daughter of Samuel, a native of Lancaster county, and one child has been born to this union, Edith M., who is attending school. Mr. Fritz is a member of the Knights of Malta and the Red Men. With his wife he attends the Reformed Church.

J. HOWARD ESCHELMAN, merchant and postmaster at White Bear station on the Wilmington & Northern Railroad for twenty years, was born May 18, 1853, in Caernarvon township, Berks county, near Morgantown, and when a year old his parents moved to Robeson township at Plowville, where his father had purchased a plantation. He attended the schools of the township, the Keystone State Normal School, and Ursinus College, until 1874, assisting his father on the farm while school was closed. In 1871 he became a teacher and taught public school in the township for eight terms. He served as a school director for three terms, officiating as treasurer of the board for two terms. In 1887 he purchased the general store at White Bear station along the Wilmington & Northern Railroad, and located there with his family; and since then he has been carrying on business at that place. He has also been serving as postmaster at Scarlets Mill, a post office established in 1869. In 1890, he was elected as a justice of the peace of the township, and he filled the office for one term of five years. In 1898, Mr. Eschelman purchased the Scarlet farm, situated a short distance from the store on the road to Birdsboro, and he has since been cultivating this farm in connection with the store business. In 1897 he officiated as mercantile appraiser of the county. In politics he has been a Democrat from the time he became of age.

In 1875, Mr. Eschelman married Elizabeth Ann Kurtz, daughter of Jacob Kurtz. She was educated in the local schools and the Keystone State Normal School, and taught public school in Robeson township for six terms. Mr. and Mrs. Eschelman have seven children: Annie Minerva (m. to William S. Westley); Laura Susan (educated at Keystone State Normal School, taught public school in the township seven terms, and m. to Harvey H. Riegner); Nora Priscilla (m. to Allen H. Schmehl); Jacob Howard (educated in local schools and Stoner's Business College); Mary Florence (educated in Reading Collegiate Institute, taught public school in township two terms, and m. to George A. Cosgrave); Lizzie Kurtz, (educated in Reading Collegiate Institute); and Harvey Hiester (attending the Keystone State Normal School, in class of 1909). The family are members of the Reformed Church at the Plow.

Mr. Eschelman's father was Moses Eschelman. He was born in Brecknock township, Berks county, in 1828, and brought up to farming which he followed until 1856, when he moved to the "Green Tree Hotel," in Cumru township, several miles south of Reading, and he carried on the hotel business at this place about ten years. In the settlement of his father's estate in 1866, he took the farm, store and hotel at the "Plow", in Robeson township and cultivated the farm until his decease in 1885, having sold the store and hotel. He was married in 1851 to Priscilla Steffey, daughter of Jacob Steffey, farmer of Brecknock; by whom he had six children: Jacob Howard (above); Annie Elizabeth (m. to William R. Freese); John Jefferson (m. to Annie Wolf); Moses Hiester (m. to Alice Messner); and two died in infancy.

His grandfather was Absalom Eschelman, born in 1803 in Brecknock township, Lancaster county, where he carried on farming, and droving until 1852, when he removed to the "Plow Hotel" in Robeson township, Berks county, and becoming the owner of the hotel, store, and farm of 128 acres in 1854, he carried on the business there combined until his decease in 1865. He married Sarah Burkhart (born 1813, died 1846), and they had seven children: Moses (above); Augustus (m. to Catharine Bitler); Christina (m. to William S. Duchman); Elizabeth (m. to Benjamin F. Becker); Justina (m. to John Fry); Sarah (m. to Jacob Fry); and Rose (m. to Wilson Sweitzer). They were members of the Reformed Church.

Mr. Eschelman's great-grand-father was Christian Eschelman, who settled in Brecknock township some years after the erection of Berks county, where he secured a farm and carried on farming. He died in 1851, aged eighty-four years. He had the following children: Samuel, John, Joel, Absalom, Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Foreman.

Mrs. Eschelman's father, Jacob Kurtz, was born in Robeson township in 1824, and besides being brought up on his father's farm learned the trade of miller which he followed until his decease in 1901, aged seventy-six years. He took much interest in local politics as a Democrat for many years, and exerted great influence at county conventions in behalf of candidates for office. He served as school director of the township for several terms. He married Susanna Bitler, daughter of Michael Bitler (died in 1876, aged seventy-four years), and Elizabeth Kachel, his wife (died in 1863, aged seventy-five years). Jacob Kurtz and wife had three children: Elizabeth Ann (above); Mary Etta (m. to Israel Fry); and Henry Kauffman (m. to Susan Westley, and upon her decease to Harriet Fritz). Jacob Kurtz's father was also named Jacob, and he was married to Ann Shingle.

JORIAS K. SNYDER, an enterprising and public-spirited citizen of Reading, Pa., engaged in the livery business at No. 942 Bingaman street, was born in 1862, in Dauphin county, son of Jacob Snyder.

Jacob Snyder formerly followed farming in Dauphin and Snyder counties, and is now located in Middlesex township, Cumberland county, where he still continues an agriculturist. He married Elizabeth Kissinger, and they became the parents of these children: John, Elmer, Jacob, Harry, Mary, Ida, Lily, Emma and Jorias K.

Jorias K. Snyder obtained his education in the public schools of his native locality, assisting his father at farm work during the summer months until his eighteenth year, when he went West to Dakota and later to Nebraska, being employed at different kinds of labor. He remained three years, two years being spent on a large cattle ranch owned by Jesse Dinslow in Upper Nebraska. Returning to the East, Mr. Snyder located for a short time with his parents in Cumberland county, after which he spent a short time in Lykens, Dauphin county, thence going to Philadelphia, and located in Reading in 1891, engaging in the grocery business at Seventh and Bingaman streets. He remained in this capacity for two years, at the end of which time he engaged in the livery business in partnership with Mr. Ed. Noll, at No. 136 Peach street, under the style of Snyder & Noll, later purchasing Mr. Noll's interest, continuing to operate on his own account. Mr. Snyder later sold his livery to Mr. David Mosteller, and engaged in the same business at No. 942 Bingaman street, where he has since been located. Mr. Snyder also engaged in the hotel business for three years, running the "Spring Garden House," at the same time conducting his stables.

Mr. Snyder married Mary N. Lyons, of Perry county, Pa., and two children were born to this union: Annie E. and Nina M. In political matters Mr. Snyder is a Republican, but he has neither sought nor cared for public office. The family are Lutherans. He is very popular in fraternal circles, in which he takes an active part, being a member of the P. O. S. of A., and of the Eagles. Mr. Snyder's home is situated at No. 925 Chestnut street.

SAMUEL G. SCHWOYER, a prominent resident and well to do agriculturist of Richmond township, Berks Co., Pa., who is engaged in cultivating his 103-acre farm, was born on the place where he now resides, and where he has spent his entire life, Sept. 13, 1863.

John Schwoyer, grandfather of Samuel G., was the owner of the homestead above mentioned, and followed agricultural pursuits throughout a long and useful life. He married Polly (Maria) Mercklen, daughter of Casper Mercklen, an early settler and large property owner of Richmond township, and to this union were born these children: Elizabeth, Benneville, Anna, Kate, Maria, Florenda, John, Jacob, Stanley, Solomon and Daniel (twins) and Cosmus, who still resides in Fleetwood, who was born Sept. 27, 1825.

Benneville Schwoyer (1809-1877) was a wealthy farmer of Richmond township, owning considerable property, including that now owned by his son, Samuel G. He married Sophia Adam, daughter of William and Kate (Gift) Adam, of Richmond township. To them were born the following children: Maria, Emma, Catherine, Daniel, Samuel G., Tella, Allen, William and Edwin. Of these children Emma, Catherine, Daniel, Tella, and Allen all died young.

Samuel G. Schwoyer has spent his entire life on the farm on which he now resides. He is energetic and industrious, and his farm, which is very well cultivated, shows the effect of his labors.

Mr. Schwoyer was married, Dec. 25, 1886, to Emma Stetzler, daughter of Jacob and Hettie (Schappel) Stetzler, of Perry township, and to this union were born three sons and two daughters: Jennie C., a graduate of the Keystone State Normal School of Kutztown, is teaching in Richmond township; Spaydt R. died aged one year; Solon P. and Esther F. are attending the State Normal School; and Paul S.

J. E. CLOUSER, who is conducting a successful grocery enterprise at Reading, Pa., is one of the most prominent men in fraternal circles in this section of Berks county. He was born Jan. 24, 1865, in Reading, son of William and Margaret (Tyson) Clouser.

William Clouser, who was a highly esteemed citizen of Reading, followed hatting all of his life, and died in 1890, aged fifty-six years, his wife passing away in 1892, at the same age. Their children were: William H.; Emma m. Omer Francis; J. E. lives at Reading; and Sarah E. m. George Reed. In religious belief the family were connected with the M. E. Church, while in political matters Mr. Clouser was a Republican.

J. E. Clouser received his education in the schools of Reading, after leaving which he secured employment in the pipe mills of the Reading Iron Works, where he remained three years. He then learned hat finishing with his father, and this occupation he followed until 1892, in which year he embarked in the grocery business, continuing to the present time, and meeting with much success. Mr. Clouser, as noted before, is very prominent in fraternal circles. He is past master of Lodge No. 62, F. & A. M.; past high priest, Reading Chapter No. 152, R. A. M., eminent commander of De Molay Commandery, K. T.; member of Rajah Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S.; Philadelphia Consistory, 32d degree; and a member of Allen Council No. 23, R. & S. M. He is also a member of Neversink Tribe, No. 351, I. O. R. M., past district deputy of the Thirty-fifth District of Pennsylvania; member of the Knights of Malta; of Mt. Penn Council, Royal Arcanum; of Neversink Council, Loyal Association, and Immediate Relief. He represented the Grand Lodge of the State during the Washington Anniversary. He is president of the Union Fire Company, of which he is also captain, and president of the Uniformed Rank. In political matters Mr. Clouser is a Republican, and is now serving as school controller of the Sixteenth ward.

In 1884 Mr. Clouser was married to Della A. Sharp, daughter of John M. Sharp. They have no children.

CHARLES LEITHEISER, a well known citizen of Fleetwood borough, Berks county, who conducts a restaurant, cigar store and pool room on Main street, was born Oct. 5, 1861, in Muhlenberg township, son of Francis Leitheiser.

The great-grandfather of Charles Leitheiser was Jacob, who bought a piece of ground in the borough of Reading (then Alsace township) in 1795, and court records show that he purchased land in this township as early as 1777. He had three sons: James, William and George.

George Leitheiser, son of Jacob, was born Feb. 22, 1792, and died April 13, 1881, aged eighty-nine years, one month, twenty-one days. He was a shoemaker by trade, an occupation which he followed where Hyde Park is now located for many years. He married Mary Cake, born Nov. 10, 1795, died Nov. 22, 1872, aged seventy-seven years, twelve days, daughter of Jacob and Hannah Cake, English people. They had issue, namely: Henry; John, 1814-1875; Jacob; Sarah; Reuben; Alexander; Rebecca; Francis; and Mary, 1829-1903.

Francis Leitheiser was born July 25, 1827, in Alsace (now Muhlenberg) township, and was baptized by the Rev. Dr. Muhlenberg. There were no public schools in the locality at that time, but he attended a pay school for several months of two years, at Alsace Church. On June 29, 1850, he married Mary Ann Adams, daughter of William Adams of Alsace township. She was born April 15, 1829, and died Feb. 3, 1903. They had children: Ellen, who died in infancy; Susan, m. to William Yeager; Emma, m. to Jacob Wessner; Catherine, m. to the late Morris Harner; Hannah, m. to Lawrence Wessner; Mary Ann, who died in childhood; John Jacob, a merchant at Hyde Park, Pa., m. to Lizzie Gring; Charles; George, m. to Sallie Leinbach; and Annie, born Feb. 5, 1869, m. to William H. Dietrich, Jr., of Reading, Pa., and died April 11, 1906.

Charles Leitheiser received his education in the local schools, and when a young man worked in a foundry in Reading for some time. He then accepted a position in a paper bag factory, in the same city, and there remained until he engaged in the baking and huckstering business. In 1887 he removed to Fleetwood, Pa., and engaged in the manufacture of cigars, but later added a cigar store, restaurant and pool room. Mr. Leitheiser is a successful business man and through thrift and economy has been enabled to buy a nice brick residence on Main street, as well as several well-located building lots.

On Feb. 5, 1885, Mr. Leitheiser married Martha Dengler, daughter of Jacob and Sallie (Diehl) Dengler, of Oley township, Berks county. They have had no children. Socially Mr. Leitheiser is a member of Aerie No. 66, F. O. E., Reading; and the K. G. E., at Fleetwood. He is a Lutheran in religious belief, and a Democrat in politics; and served in 1904 as councilman of the borough of Fleetwood.

HARRY T. BECK, a well-known resident of Reading, Pa., and ex-constable of the Ninth ward of the city, was born in 1861, son of Theophilus Beck, and grandson of Theophilus Beck, Sr., the latter of whom, a resident and well-known business man of Reading, was the first stocking manufacturer in the city, and was located on Penn street, between Seventh and Eighth. He died aged sixty-two years, after a long and very successful business career.

Theophilus Beck, father of Harry T., was born in Reading and received his education in the public schools. He was employed with his father throughout life, and died at the early age of twenty-seven years. He married Barbara Snyder, daughter of Joseph Snyder, the well known bridgebuilder of Reading, Harry T. being the only child born to the union.

Harry T. Beck was educated in the schools of Reading, and learned the barber's trade, following this for a period of eighteen years, his place of business being for fifteen years at No. 143 North Ninth street. He later removed to his present residence, Nos. 202-204 North Ninth street. He was for seven years proprietor of the well known "Ninth Avenue hotel," located at the corner of Ninth and Walnut streets. In 1890 Mr. Beck was elected constable of the Ninth ward, and he served in that office four terms or a period of twelve years. From 1902 until 1906 he conducted a restaurant at No. 202 North Ninth street. Mr. Beck is a Democrat in politics, and besides being constable, has served as assistant county detective under two district attorneys, Adam Reaser and George Wagner. He is connected with St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church, and is a member of the Knights of St. John and the Heptasophs.

Mr. Beck married Rosa Steinel, daughter of Peter and Margaret Steinel, and to this union there have been born these children: Howard, Adelia, Lucy, and one that died in infancy.

THEODORE R. LACEY, of Birdsboro, whose enterprise, industry and good business ability have won him a substantial position and comfortable competence, was born in Robeson township, Berks county, in March, 1866.

His education was limited to that he acquired in the district schools in the vicinity of his home, but his mind was quick to grasp details, and he gained a good foundation for what later knowledge was won in the hard school of experience. At the early age of eleven years, he hired out as a farm hand, and he continued at that work until he was seventeen. Coming then to Birdsboro, he clerked in a hotel for two and one-half years. At the end of that time he learned the barber's trade, and at it spent nine months, when he saw a good opening in the butcher business, and with his usual sagacity determined to engage in that line. This he did for several years with E. Dengler as a partner. After selling out his interest in the butchering business, he engaged in the livery business until 1899, when he sold out, and entered the wholesale liquor and bottling business. A natural born love for horses, however, induced him to add a livery stable, and he now has one of the best in this section of the State, with ten horses and vehicles, thoroughly up-to-date in every respect. He manufactures all kinds of carbonated beverages, employs three men, and keeps a wagon constantly on the road. His business is increasing, and success has attended all his efforts.

Mr. Lacey has ever had the confidence of the people of Birdsboro. When but twenty-three years of age he was made burgess, and fulfilled the duties of that office to the satisfaction of all. In politics he is a Republican. His social connections are with the K. G. E.; P. O. S. of A.; F. O. E., of Reading; and Independent Americans. He is chief of the Birdsboro Fire Department.

In 1888 Mr. Lacey married Clara Manmiller, daughter of Samuel Manmiller, and they have had two children, Claude, and one that died in infancy. Mr. and Mrs. Lacey attend the Reformed Church, and are active in its work.

GEORGE LAURENCE STECKLINE, a lifelong resident of the city of Reading, Pa., where for many years he was engaged in an extensive baking business, died at his home, No. 419 Maple street, Oct. 9, 1896. He was born in Reading, Dec. 22, 1859, son of John C. and Catherine (Ziegler) Steckline.

John C. Steckline was born in 1837, in Germany, and died Nov. 28, 1891, in Philadelphia, being buried in the Fernwood cemetery of the latter place, while his wife was interred in the German Lutheran cemetery, Reading. In his native country he had learned the shoemaker's trade, and this he followed in Philadelphia during all of his residence there. In 1858 he married Catherine Ziegler, daughter of George and Catherine Ziegler, and she died in 1872, aged thirty-six years. Six children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Steckline, as follows: George L.; Charles m. Alice Machmer; Julia m. Allen Body; John m. Ida Billman; Kate m. James Eisenhart; William m. Alice Goodman, deceased.

George L. Steckline attended the public schools of Reading, and in 1883 engaged in the baking business at No. 1041 Cotton street, where he lived for some years, then removing to No. 417 Maple street, where he made his home until his death, at which time he was in comfortable circumstances, owning the residence at No. 417 Maple street, and the building at No. 419, corner of Culvert street, in the latter of which Mrs. Steckline now resides. He was a good business man, and his bakery goods were well known for their excellence and purity, finding a ready sale throughout Reading and the surrounding country. In politics he was a Democrat, and his fraternal connections were with Germania Lodge, I. O. O. F.; Charity Lodge No. 34, Jr. A. P. A.; Knights of Honor, and Friendship Fire Company. He was a member of St. John's Lutheran Church.

In 1883, Mr. Steckline married Miss Mary Catharine Grund, born —— 15, 1867, and to them were born six children, as follows: Annie C., born Oct. 7, 1883, m. Herbert Lichty, and has one son, Charles G.; Laura M., born Feb. 21, 1885; Gertrude E., born Dec. 11, 1887; George L., born April 12, 1889, died Feb. 20, 1890; Helen M., born July 9, 1893; and Emily C., born July 29, 1896.

Johann Christian Frederick Grund, father of Mrs. Steckline, was born Sept. 17, 1836, in Wittenburg, Germany, son of Johann and Barbara Grund. In 1857 Mr. Grund came to America, and from that time until his death followed moulding in Reading. He m. Catharine Koch, born Dec. 31, 1840, in Wittenburg, and to them were born seven children: Johannes, born March 27, 1861, m. Mary Hadley, deceased; Heinrich, born Feb. 13, 1865, m. Amelia Libka; Mary Catharine, born —— 15, 1867; Barbara, born April 17, 1872, m. John Pfantz, a baker of Reading; Frederick W., born June 19, 1874, m. Emma Shoemaker; Annie C., born Nov. 23, 1876, m. John Lonsberger, of Reading; and Karl C., born March 18, 1879, died at the age of eleven years.

DR. ULYSSES S. G. BIEBER, veterinary surgeon of Kutztown, Pa., was born April 12, 1865, in Maxatawny township, on the old Bieber farm, son of Jonathan and Brigitta (Schwoyer) Bieber, and a member of an old and honored family of this section.

Dewalt Bieber, the great-great-great grandfather of the Doctor, emigrated from Germany in 1742, with his son and two brothers, John and George, and settled near Valley Forge, Chester county, his farm being still known. Ex-Governor Beaver of Bellefonte, Pa., is one of his descendants. John died in the American army at Valley Forge during the winter of 1777-78. One of his sons, John by name, moved to Maxatawny township about 1770, becoming the progenitor of a numerous posterity, of whom the late Captain Bieber and Walter B. Bieber are descendants. Dewalt Bieber, the emigrant, settled on the old Bieber farm about 1770 or before, and here he died, being buried in the private burial ground on the farm.

Dewalt Bieber (2), son of the emigrant Dewalt, was born in Germany, Oct. 26, 1729, and died Jan. 26, 1808. On Jan. 24, 1750, he married Sybilla Steinbunner, and they had ten sons and two daughters. He was known as the "Barra Bieber," because he successfully fought with a bear one evening on his farm. He was a very powerful man, being able to lift a barrel of cider to his lips and drink from the bung-hole. After the battle of Germantown a part of Washington's baggage-train had retired to the country north of Reading and several battalions rested on the Bieber farm. The women baked bread and cakes for the soldiers, and later the giant, Dewalt Bieber, regaled them with hard cider. After they had emptied several barrels they became troublesome, and undertook to help themselves, and when they refused to listen to Mr. Bieber's request, he took a single-tree and drove them from the premises. The soldiers retaliated by injuring some of his cattle.

John Bieber, son of Dewalt (2), was born in December, 1766, and died Aug. 15, 1845. He was twice married, his first wife being a Miss Wentz, by whom he had children: Elizabeth, m. to Solomon Christ; Sallie, m. to Peter Neff; Dewalt, m. to a Miss Yeager: John, m. (first) to a Miss Siegfried and (second) to a Miss Fetherolf. John Bieber m. (second) a Miss Siegfried, and to them were born: Jonathan S.; George, who lived in Ohio, m. Polly Rahn; Susanna m. Jonathan Christ; and Mary m. John H. Siegfried.

Jonathan S. Bieber, grandfather of the Doctor, was born in 1808. He was reared on the old homestead, became a well known farmer and was a highly esteemed citizen. For twelve years he was postmaster of Kutztown. He was an active Republican, and was frequently delegate to the conventions of his party. He was married to Katherine Schlouch, daughter of Christian Schlouch, and their children were: Daniel, m. to Caroline Lichtenwahn; Jonathan; and William, m. (first) to Caroline Frey and (second) to Clara Bailey.

Jonathan Bieber, son of Jonathan S. and father of Dr. Bieber, was a well known farmer of Maxatawny township and owned the old Bieber farm, which has been in the possession of the family for 130 years. He was an influential citizen, was interested in many enterprises, and was successful in all of his undertakings. He was a stockholder of the Keystone State Normal school, of the Kutztown Agricultural Fair and of the Kutztown Furnace. He established one of the first milk routes in Kutztown, conducting it for twenty-six years, and was known as the "Milk Bieber." He was a consistent member of St. John's Lutheran Church, filling many offices of importance therein. In politics a stanch Republican, he was an active worker in the ranks of his party, attending every Republican county convention in Reading in his time, and being frequently delegate to both county and State conventions. Jonathan Bieber married Brigitta Schwoyer, daughter of Samuel Schwoyer, a prominent citizen of Maxatawny township, and children as follows were born to this union: (1) Clara m. Allen Butz, of Allentown, Pa. (2) Rev. Milton, a graduate of the Keystone State Normal school, of Muhlenberg College, and of the Lutheran Theological Seminary at Mt. Airy, Philadelphia, taught the Bernville high school and the Kutztown high school, and has been a minister of the Gospel for a number of years, serving with great success charges at Mt. Joy, Pa., and Binghamton, N. Y., at present serving his church as field missionary for New England, being located at Worcester, Mass. (3) Ulysses S. G. (4) Robert S., who is a scientist and has charge of electrical machines in Brooklyn, is deaf and dumb, and is a graduate of the school for the Deaf and Dumb in Philadelphia. (5) Anna m. Peter Schwoyer, and lives in Richmond township. (6) Jonathan E., single, who is a graduate of the Allentown Business College, is in business in Cleveland, Ohio.

Dr. Ulysses S. G. Bieber spent his boyhood days on the farm and attended the schools of his district, later going to the Keystone State Normal school. In 1888 he graduated from Eastman's Business College, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and in 1892 from the American Veterinary College of New York. He then located at Kutztown, where he soon established a large and lucrative practice. His services are constantly in demand, and he is busy at all hours. The Doctor is a Republican, and a regular member of the Lutheran Church. Along with his extensive practice he finds time to attend to many business interests. He is known as an extensive builder, being one of the owners of the ten new houses recently erected on Park avenue by Bieber, Heffner & Co. In all he has built twenty-five houses. He is a stockholder in and treasurer of the Kutztown Agricultural Fair Company; secretary of the Schuylkill Valley Veterinary Association; and has for a number of years been secretary of the Pennsylvania State Veterinary Association. Since 1898 the Doctor has been the Berks County Veterinarian. He is a stockholder in the Blue Mountain Telephone Company, a stockholder and director of the Saucony Shoe Factory and a stockholder of the Kutztown Park Association.

Dr. Bieber was married Oct. 18, 1888, to Maria E. Sharadin, only child of Henry and Abbie (Deisher) Sharadin, of Maxatawny township. To this union have been born two children: John Henry, born Aug. 9, 1889, a graduate of the Keystone State Normal School, class 1908, and now a student at Muhlenberg College, is also an expert motor cyclist, and has won several prizes; Edgar William, born April 10, 1894, a student at the Keystone State Normal School, does all the wiring for his father in his new buildings.

Mrs. Sharadin, mother of Mrs. Bieber, is the owner of the well known John Deisher farm of 150 acres, located North West of the borough of Kutztown, and adjoining the Kutztown fair ground.

MORGAN W. KLINE, who was for some years engaged at the machinist's business, at Reading, Pa., and later at painting and wall papering, is the son of Alexander S. Kline, a native of Berks county.

Alexander S. Kline was educated in the subscription schools of the county, and when a young man was employed on the Schuylkill Canal, later engaging in the distilling of liquors, a business which he carried on for several years, and then, disposing of this industry, removed to Pottsville, where he carried on a successful produce business for several years, an occupation which he followed in Reading, to which city he later removed. He was still carrying on this business in Reading at the time of his death in 1888. He was a very prominent man, and was held in high esteem in the city. Mr. Kline married Lovina DeWald, a native of Berks county, and a member of an old established family of this section. They had three children, namely: Henry and Lewis (deceased), and Morgan W.

Morgan W. Kline received his education in the common schools of Berks county, and also attended the schools of Pottsville, and while a young man worked at the machinist's trade, later learning the house painting business, as well as paper hanging, which he followed for some years. In 1869 he married Esther Fernsler, daughter of Frederick Fernsler, and six children were born to this union, namely: Frederick, who is employed by Curtis, Jones & Co., shoe manufacturers, as shipping clerk; Alexander, a barber of Reading; Sophia, at home; Wayne and Harriet, at school; and Morris, who died at the age of one and one-half years. In religious belief the family are members of the Evangelical Church.

Frederick Fernsler was born in Schuylkill Co., Pa., and early in life learned the cabinet maker's trade, which he followed until 1850, in which year he engaged in the hardware business at Pottsville. This occupation he carried on until the close of the Civil war, when he retired, and died in 1878, aged fifty-eight years. He married Harriet O'Neill, also a native of Schuylkill county, and they became the parents of six children: Hannah, m. to Augustus Doerflinger; Henry, m. to Catherine Schoener; Esther, m. to Morgan W. Kline; Frederick, who died in infancy; Frank, and Anna. Mrs. Fernsler died in June, 1905, at the age of eighty-five years. The family were members of the Evangelical Church.

DAVID KEINARD, a well-to-do citizen and landowner of Robeson township, Berks county, who is now devoting his attention to truck farming, was born in 1859, in Robeson township, son of Peter and Christiana (Eames) Keinard.

Peter Keinard, who was a farmer and collier by occupation, was of German extraction, and lived and died in Robeson township. He and his wife were members of the Lutheran and Reformed Churches, respectively, and had three children: Mahlon, m. to Ella Wagner; Mary, m. to Joseph Kerper; and David. Mr. Keinard was a Democrat all of his life, but never held public office.

David Keinard was educated in the schools of Robeson township, and after completing his studies engaged in farming, at which he has been occupied ever since. He purchased his present farm in 1879, a tract of fifty-six acres known as the Jacob Bitler property, and here he has made many improvements. He also owns twenty-four acres of timber land, known as the Swavely tract, formerly owned by the Scarletts.

In 1879 Mr. Keinard married Margaret E. Kennedy, daughter of Edwin Kennedy, and to them there have been born nine children, namely: George, Milton, Edwin, Bertha, Laura, Frederick, Elmer, Heber and Howard. The family attend the Lutheran Church. Politically Mr. Keinard is a Democrat.

HARRY J. LUKEN, one of the best known acrobats to be found on either the American or European stage, was born at Chester, Ill., Feb. 20, 1874, son of Ernest A. and Lena (Hickman) Luken.

Ernest A. Luken was a native of Germany, from which country he came to America when he was twenty-one years of age. In his early life he taught school, and then entered the grocery business in Illinois, his last location in that State being Kaskaskia. There his wife, Lena Hickman, died, and he moved to Reading, Pa., with his family. Here he was engaged in the furniture business until his death which occurred in 1901. To him and his wife were born the following children: Edward, of Chicago; Gerhart, a hatter at Reading; Harry J.; Augustus, born in 1877, who as a boy of eleven years began his professional training as an acrobat (his wife is of English birth); Mary, who married Charles Dougherty, of Reading; and Clara, of Reading.

Harry J. Luken, who is the head of the quartette known as the "Four Lukens," is a self-made man. He attended the public schools, and for two years was employed by the Sternbergh Bolt & Nut Works, at Reading. He began to practice gymnastics as a small boy in the old Boas Building, on Penn street, and he was only a youth when he determined to make it his life work. With his brother, Augustus, he started out with the Sun Brothers Circus, of Toledo, Ohio, in April, 1894, and they stayed with this circus exactly four days. Before that season closed they were with five different shows. This was their start, but nothing daunted they kept it up until they reached the top of their profession, having played in the greates circuses in the world, and all over the world, their last circuit engagement being with Forepaugh & Sells Bros.' circus. In 1901 they went into vaudeville on Keith's circuit. On Oct. 31, 1903, they started for their first European trip, showing at the Empire Theater, London, for ten weeks, and since then they spend the fall and winter of each year in Europe, and the summer in America. On Sept. 20, 1908, they began a six-weeks engagement at the Winter Garden, Berlin, Germany.

On May 20, 1908, Mr. Luken married Evelyn Armstrong, of Orange, N. J. Socially he belongs to the White Rats of America. Mr. Luken built a fine gymnasium at No. 121 Thorn street, Reading. The building is 26 x 70 feet, and 26 feet high, and it is fitted up with pool and billiard parlors and bowling alleys. Here the "Four Lukens" do their practising when not on the road.

CALVIN A. LEINBACH, a leading business man of Spring township, Berks county, whose grocery and notions store is situated at No. 624 Penn avenue, West Reading, was born May 23, 1870, in Bern township, son of James T. and Catharine (Ahrens) Leinbach.

Jacob Leinbach, grandfather of Calvin A., was born in Oley township, and when a young man went to Bern township, where the rest of his life was spent in agricultural pursuits. He died at the age of eighty-six years, and was buried at Epler's Church, of which he was a member. Mr. Leinbach married Catherine Shill, daughter of Henry Shill, of Bern township, and she died at the age of sixty-five years, the mother of the following children: Harriet m. Calvin A. Leinbach attended the schools of Bern and Maiden-creek townships, and spent his boyhood days on the farm until seventeen years of age, when he began to clerk in the grocery store of Isaac From, with whom he continued for three years. He then returned home for a period of five years, and in 1894 he embarked in business in Reading, locating at Second and Walnut streets. There he continued until 1902, in which year he located at No. 540 Penn avenue, West Reading, this being his location until April, 1906, when he secured his present place of business, No. 624 Penn avenue. Mr. Leinbach has a fine store room, 38 x 28, where he carries a full line of fancy and staple groceries, as well as a large and varied stock of notions.

Mr. Leinbach married Katie Gruber, daughter of William and Catherine (Matz) Gruber, and to this union there have been born four children: Catherine M.; Gruber C. died aged two months, twenty-two days; Mildred A.; and Fern A. born July 29, 1908. Mr. Leinbach is a member of St. James Reformed Church of West Reading, where he is a deacon, a member of the financial board and a teacher in the Sunday-school. Fraternally he belongs to the Royal Arcanum.

JAMES STRAUSS, a popular citizen of Reading, Pa., who is proprietor of the well known "Berkshire Hotel," was born in Bethel township, Berks county, in 1865, son of Percival L. Strauss, and was but four years of age when he went to Lebanon county with his father, there receiving his education.

After leaving school Mr. Strauss assisted his father in the hotel business until 1889, in which year he moved to Reading, and was employed for a period of fifteen years at the "Penn Hotel," his services being efficient and faithful. At the end of this time, May 9, 1904, Mr. Strauss took charge of the well known "Lafayette Hotel," Nos. 721-727 Franklin street, Reading, making many improvements and changing the name to that it now bears—the "Berkshire Hotel." Mr. Strauss has spared no pains to make this one of the finest hotels of its size in Reading. It has thirty-three fine, light, airy rooms, all nicely furnished, with steam heat, and all modern conveniences. He commands a very lucrative patronage in Reading, and many out-of-town visitors make the "Berkshire" their headquarters while in the city. Mr. Strauss is a genial and jovial host, and he has made many friends since coming to this city.

In 1894 Mr. James Strauss married Miss Catherine E. Franks, daughter of Alfred Franks, a sketch of whom will be found elsewhere. Mr. and Mrs. Strauss are connected with the Reformed Church. He takes much interest in political matters, and casts his vote with the Democratic party.

RICHARD A. WOLFERSBERGER, manufacturer at Wernersville, was born in Lower Heidelberg township, near Wernersville, Jan. 31, 1852, on the Wolfersberger premises adjoining the planing-mill, son of George and Hannah (Whitman) Wolfersberger.

George Wolfersberger, father of Richard A., was a cabinetmaker and undertaker near Wernersville for forty years. George was a small boy when his father died, and after quitting school at an early age, entered the cabinet-making shop of Anthony Derr, and there learned the business until he became of age when he started for himself. He continued in active business, with a successful career and the high respect of the community, from 1852 until his decease. He died in 1896, at the age of sixty-five years. He married Hannah, daughter of David and Catharine (Seitzinger) Whitman, and they had five children, namely: Richard A.; Elkana, who died aged thirty-eight years; George, m. to Rosa Yoh; Mary, m. to William C. Feather; and Sallie, who died young.

Mr. Wolfersberger's grandfather was also named George, and he also followed the undertaking business at the same place for a short time, having died while a young man. He married Hannah Fisher, daughter of Peter and Polly (Weber) Fisher, and they had three children: George; Elizabeth, who died single at the age of seventy-nine years; and Mary, who died young.

Richard A. Wolfersberger was educated in the township schools, and when fourteen years of age entered the cabinet-making shop of his father, learning the business, and remained until he became of age. He was then admitted into partnership with his father and brothers, Elkana and George, trading under the name of Wolfersberger & Sons. His father had also established the undertaking business, and the son Richard attended entirely to this branch, continuing to do so from 1861 until his father's decease in 1896, a period of thirty-five years. The planing mill department was added in 1882.

Upon the decease of his father, the firm was re-organized by the surviving son Richard, and the son-in-law William C. Feather, and they have since traded under the name of Wolfersberger & Feather, the former superintending the manufacturing department in the mill and the latter attending to the undertaking department besides assisting in filling the mill orders. They have developed a large and profitable trade, directing the funerals in the community for a considerable distance round about, and supplying the mill work for numerous building operations, not only in their immediate vicinity, but extending to Womelsdorf, Myerstown, Bernville, Sinking Spring, Wyomissing, West Reading and Reading.

Richard A. Wolfersberger married Magdalena Sharman, daughter of Aaron Sharman and Sarah (Grime), and they have five children: George, William, Mary, Alice and Richard.

MISS SARAH EVE LEHMAN, one of the old and highly esteemed residents of Kutztown, Berks county, who is a business woman of exceptional ability, is a native of the borough of Kutztown, born July 2, 1845, daughter of Jacob and Eve (Copp) Lehman.

Rev. Daniel Lehman, grandfather of Miss Lehman, was a pioneer in American church work and a prominent Lutheran minister of his time. He came to America from Germany on the Pennsylvania packet "Peter Osborn," landing at Philadelphia April 30, 1773, and no doubt would have met the fate of a redemptioner, had not the Rev. Dr. Kunze interested himself in his behalf and paid his passage. Dr. Kunze, having ascertained that he was well grounded in the rudiments of knowledge, employed him as an instructor in his seminary and also gave him instruction in theology. He was licensed to preach the Gospel in 1775, and was ordained a minister of the Lutheran Church in 1778. The Rev. Mr. Lehman for a time lived in Reading, and up to 1780 was the regular pastor of Trinity Lutheran Church. In 1780 he removed to Moselem, Richmond township, where he resided for about thirty years, serving at different times many congregations, including Moselem, Kutztown, Hamburg, Rockland, Trexlertown and Grimville. He died Oct. 2, 1810, and was buried under the altar of Moselem Church.

Jacob Lehman, father of Miss Sarah E., was born in Richmond township, April 7, 1790. He was a tinsmith by occupation and an esteemed citizen of Kutztown. He was a soldier of the war of 1812 and a member of Capt. Gabriel Oldt's company. On April 9, 1815, he married Eve Copp, daughter of Conrad and Eve (Knoedler) Copp. He died April 7, 1865. His children were: Daniel, a cooper by trade, died at the age of seventy-seven years; William; Elizabeth died single; Jacob died in infancy; Henrietta died in early womanhood; Catherine m. John Wylie, and her descendants still reside in Kutztown; Jacob, who entered the Civil war as a first lieutenant and rose to the rank of captain, died in Philadelphia about 1886, leaving a widow, Sarah (Thompson) Lehman; Nathan was twice married; Mary m. Edward Andrews, and lives in Pottsville, Schuylkill county; and Sarah Eve is of Kutztown.

Sarah Eve Lehman received her education in the public and private schools of her native locality, and at an early age decided upon a business career. She entered mercantile life as a hat and shoe merchant on Main street, Kutztown, and there she has continued with much success to the present time, her stand having been well and favorably known for over a generation. Miss Lehman has been very prosperous in her business ventures, and is also well-known in Kutztown for her activity in Church and Sunday-school work.

HARRY S. CRAUMER, a well-known stenographer and court reporter, was born in Lebanon, Pa., July 2, 1879. His parents were Rev. L. W. and Mariah (Smith) Craumer.

Rev. L. W. Craumer, after spending the early part of his life in the service of the United Brethren denomination, came to Reading in the early nineties as pastor of the Salem Church, where he remained until he retired from the ministry, in 1892. He died Nov. 8, 1900, at the age of seventy-three. His wife, Mariah, was a daughter of George S. Smith, a farmer of Union county. They became the parents of a large family, as follows: Minnie and George, both of whom died in early childhood; Millizena, who lived to be but twenty-four; Albert S., a merchant of Lebanon; Elmer E., an attorney-at-law, of Pittsburg; Clara, wife of H. B. Leavens, of Kansas City, Mo.; Elizabeth, in the service of the Baptist Church, at Kodiak, Alaska; and Harry S.

Harry S. Craumer attended the public schools of Lebanon. At an early age, however, he was obliged to discontinue his studies, and go to work to contribute towards the support of his parents. Soon after the opening of the Spanish-American war, he enlisted in the United States Army, being enrolled in Company B, 12th U. S. Infantry. During his three years' continuous service, he did military duty in both the United States and the Philippines, receiving honorable mention for meritorious service at one of the ten or twelve engagements in which his company participated. After the war, Mr. Craumer returned to Reading, and took up the study of shorthand. Soon afterward, he established himself as a public stenographer, and by dint of hard work rose to be stenographer of the Orphans' Court, to which position he was appointed by the Hon. H. Willis Bland, president judge of said court, in January, 1909. In politics he is a Democrat. He is an active member of the Spanish-American War Veterans, and is also connected with the I. O. O. F.

MILTON W. SMITH, junior member of the mercantile firm of Seidel & Smith, of Virginville, Pa., is an enterprising business man of Berks county. He was born April 5, 1876, in Windsor township, son of S. Paul Smith.

Andrew Schmidt, a native of Germany, was the emigrant ancestor of this family in America, and his son, Michael, had eleven sons and two daughters. One of them was Joseph, a prominent farmer of Windsor township, who owned several farms near Windsor Castle. He was the father of George, John, Jacob, Maria, Daniel, Joseph, S. Paul, William and David.

S. Paul Smith, who has lived retired in Virginville for the past few years, was for a long time an agriculturist, his fertile farm of 116 acres being located near Windsor Castle. He married Ella L. Seidel, daughter of William and Susanna (Dreibelbis) Seidel, and had children—Mary, Sally, Milton W., George, Joseph and Annie.

Milton W. Smith was reared on his father's farm, receiving his education in the schools of his native township, and later attending the Keystone State Normal School at Kutztown. He was still in his teens when he started to teach school in Greenwich township, and afterward taught two terms in his native township. In 1896 he began clerking in the general store of Saniel Reeser, at Hamburg, Pa., with whom he was employed until John Wagner purchased the store. He continued with Mr. Wagner until 1901, when he formed a partnership with William F. Seidel, and he has since carried on business with Mr. Seidel. Being a thorough business man, Mr. Smith has appreciated the needs of the people of this section and has accordingly carried a large and complete stock. The success of the firm is largely due to his ability, straightforward dealings and uniform courtesy to all patrons.

In 1895 Mr. Smith was united in marriage with Miss Catharine Ida Balthaser, daughter of Joel and Esther (Sunday) Balthaser, and the children born to this union are: Paul Luther, Grace Emily and May Esther. Mr. Smith and family are connected with the Zion's Church in Perry township, of which they are Reformed members. Mr. Smith is identified with the Masonic fraternity; he is a member of Vaux Lodge, No. 406, Hamburg; Reading Lodge of Perfection; and Philadelphia Consistory.

OTTO J. STAHL, who is a well-known business man of Reading, Pa., conducting the Eclipse Supply Company at No. 106 South Fifth street, was born Jan. 22, 1871, in Brooklyn, N. Y., son of Otto and Mary (Neville) Stahl.

Otto Stahl, father of Otto J., was a native of Germany, who emigrated to America in about 1860, and settled first in Brooklyn, N. Y., there following the trade of machinist all of his active period. He married Mary Neville, who emigrated from Limerick, Ireland, about 1855. They became the parents of three children: Bertha, m. to Otto Huhn, and living in New York; Amelia, deceased; and Otto J.

Otto J. Stahl was educated in the public schools of Brooklyn, N. Y., and when a boy was employed by Journeay & Burnham of that city as a cash boy, with which firm he continued for some time. His attention to business and his inherent ability soon gained him promotion, and when he left this well known firm some years later he had worked his way up to the head of a department. He then accepted the position of collector with the American Wringer Company, No. 99 Chambers street, New York City, with which company he continued six years, when he was made manager of the Reading office, a position in which he continued two years. At the end of this time Mr. Stahl purchased the firm's interest, and since then he has conducted the business under the firm style of Eclipse Supply Company. The business was first located in the Stauffer building, at the corner of Sixth and Franklin streets, but in 1906 it was removed to its present location, where Mr. Stahl has by fair methods, and honestly represented goods, gained his share of public patronage. He employs on an average from fifteen to twenty-five persons in his establishment, where are sold furniture, carpets, and household specialties of all kinds.

Mr. Stahl is a member of Reading Lodge, No. 115, B. P. O. E.; Friendship Lodge No. 5, Knights of Pythias; and the Knights of Khorassan. He is independent in politics. Mr. Stahl has made many acquaintances since coming to Reading in 1899, and each acquaintance has become a warm friend.

JACOB H. MAYS, a prosperous young business man and influential citizen of the borough of Womelsdorf, Berks county, which he has been serving since 1904 as justice of the peace, was born Feb. 16, 1879, in Heidelberg township, son of Henry J. and Susan M. (Deppen) Mays.

Nicholas Mays (Mace), great-great-grandfather of Jacob H., was a native of Germany, whither his parents had emigrated from Switzerland, and in 1715 he came to America and located in Lebanon (formerly Lancaster) county, coming from New York via Harris Ferry, where Harrisburg is now located. His children were: Nicholas, Philip, George, John, Jacob, Valentine, Henry, Benjamin, and Marguerite Elizabeth.

Jacob Mays (Mace), son of Nicholas, and great-grandfather of Jacob H., was a native of Schaefferstown, Lebanon county, and was a tailor by trade. He married Susan Baseor, daughter of George Baseor, who was massacred by the Indians at what was known as the "Baseor Hotel" in the Blue Mountains. These children were born to Jacob Mays and his wife: John; William, who died at Manheim; Henry, who died at Anderson, Ind.; Jacob, who died at Pottsville; Marguerite E., who died unmarried; and Daniel, who died at Schaefferstown.

John Mays, son of Jacob, and grandfather of Jacob H., was born at Schaefferstown, Lebanon county, in 1813, and died May 26, 1898, aged eighty-five years, having followed the trade of hatter practically all of his life. He married Susan Missimer, born in 1816, who died in September, 1900, aged eighty-four years, daughter of Jacob and Susan (Homan) Missimer, of Pottstown, Pa. Five children were born to this union: George died young; Miss Anna lives in Lebanon county; Kate died young; Jacob Henry married Catherine Eberling, and resides at Denver, Pa.; and Henry Jacob, twin of Jacob Henry.

Henry Jacob Mays was born Aug. 5, 1838, at Schaefferstown, Lebanon county, and at the age of fourteen years engaged in the tanning business there, working for William Miller. In 1859 he went to Baltimore, where he learned the currier's trade from F. Ache & Son, in the frame building where the great fire broke out in 1904. At that place he remained until 1865, in which year he came to Womelsdorf and engaged in tanning until 1888, when he formed a partnership with his son, Jacob, as a partner, in the hide business, of which the son took entire charge in 1902. Mr. Mays is now enjoying the comforts of a well-earned rest. His home is on the very ground where General George Washington spent the night of Nov. 13, 1793, in the then "Seltzer Hotel." Mr. Mays is a stanch Democrat, and he has always been active in party affairs. He is a member of Williamson Lodge, No. 307, F. & A. M., and the Jr. O. U. A. M., of Womelsdorf, and the Knights of Pythias, of Robesonia. He was also an Odd Fellow, and helped to bury a Mr. Wilty, the first Odd Fellow in the United States. Mr. Mays is a member of the Reformed denomination of Zion's Union Church.

On Feb. 8, 1866, Mr. Mays was married to Susan M. Deppen, born Dec. 4, 1841, daughter of Isaac P. and Susan (Wenrich) Deppen, of Heidelberg township. The following children have been born to this union: Annie m. Franklin Reifsnyder; Jacob H.; Esther m. J. W. Herst, of Denver, Pa.; H. Robert E and John Deppen.

Jacob H. Mays spent his boyhood days with his parents, and acquired his education in the township schools, the borough high school, Stoner's Business College at Reading, and Albright College, at Myerstown. In the spring of 1902 he engaged in the leather, hide and tallow business at Womelsdorf, which he has successfully continued to the present time. He buys hides in large quantities all over Eastern Pennsylvania, and these he prepares for the market, selling them through his New York broker. He has been very successful in this line, and his business is rapidly growing to mammoth proportions. In 1904 Mr. Mays was elected a justice of the peace, since which time he has settled a number of estates, has a nice clientage, and has also the support of his brother, H. Robert Mays, a promising young attorney of No. 541 Court street, Reading, Pennsylvania, and now county solicitor of Berks county.

Mr. Mays is an active Democrat, and has been delegate to a number of county and State conventions. Socially he is connected with Williamson Lodge, No. 307, F. & A. M.; Excelsior Chapter, No. 237, R. A. M.; Reading Commandery, No. 42, K. T.; Rajah Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S.; K. G. E., Womelsdorf Castle; I. O. O. F., of Womelsdorf; and the Womelsdorf Volunteer Fire Company. He and his family are Reformed members of Zion's Union Church, of which he is a trustee.

On Nov. 15, 1903, Mr. Mays was married to Minnie M. Bickel, daughter of George and Lizzie (Schaffner) Bickel, of Rehrersburg, Pa. Two daughters, Margaret E. and Jeanette L., have been born to this union. In 1906 Mr. Mays erected a beautiful residence on High street, Womelsdorf, a Colonial mansion of three stories, which is considered one of the finest homes in the borough.

JOSEPH W. HOLMES, a coal dealer of Reading, and a lifelong resident of that city, was born there Nov. 27, 1859, son of James W. and Hannah Miller (Swartzwelder) Holmes.

James W. Holmes was a native of England, but came to this country in 1828, when he was six years of age. A machinist by trade, he secured a position in that line of work with the Philadelphia and Reading Railway Company, and remained there a long time, largely during the period when Mr. Mulholland was superintendent. Mr. Holmes belonged to the Liberty Fire Company and was its first president, while along fraternal lines he was identified with the Odd Fellows. He had the reputation of being the best rifle shot in Reading, and displayed great enthusiasm over the rifle practices. He was a member of one of the earliest gun clubs formed in the city. In politics he was an adherent of the Democratic party. Mr. Holmes died in 1895, aged seventy-three years, and his wife in 1862. Her maiden name was Hannah Miller Swartzwelder, and she was a native of Pennsylvania, born in 1828. Children were born to them as follows: Allen, deceased; Winfield; Catherine, m. to F. H. Gartlan; William; Joseph W.; and another that died in infancy. The family were members of the Episcopal Church.

Joseph W. Holmes attended the public schools of Reading, and on completing his studies there, applied himself to mastering telegraphy. His first position was with the Philadelphia & Reading system, and he was employed at various points all along their line. In 1880 he left the railroad work to become telegraph operator at the tube works of the Reading Iron Company, and was in the service of that corporation for the unusual period of twenty-six years and one month, to the mutual satisfaction of both parties. In April, 1906, Mr. Holmes resigned and accepted a position with the Philadelphia Light and Equipment Company, but this association was of very brief duration, and Aug. 20, of the same year, he went into business for himself. He is established on Thorn street, between Washington and Walnut, and deals in flour, feed and all grades of anthracite coal. He bought the good will of R. W. Lance, and from the very first of his assuming control of the business he has been markedly successful. He has many friends in Reading, and enjoys the highest reputation for integrity and ability.

Mr. Holmes was married in 1887 to Miss Ida M. Dietrich, daughter of Daniel F. Dietrich. The only child born to this union died in infancy. Mr. Holmes is a member of St. Barnabas Episcopal Church, in which he is a vestryman. While his life has always been a busy one, Mr. Holmes has found time for considerable activity in political life and has invariably given his support to the Democratic party. Fraternally he is a member of Washington Camp, No. 303, P. O. S. of A., and is a trustee of the organization.

J. ADAM KOLB, who is engaged in tin roofing, spouting, roof painting and heater and range repairing at No. 225 North Ninth street, Reading, Pa., was born Feb. 6, 1855, in that city, son of Christian Kolb.

Christian Kolb was born in Menzingen, Baden, Germany, and when thirty years of age came to America, locating for a short time in New York City, whence he came to Reading. For several years he had charge of the tank department at the Philadelphia & Reading shops, and he later engaged in lighter work in the shop, the last two years of his life being spent in retirement. During the Civil war Mr. Kolb enlisted in the Union army, but on account of his advanced age was never called upon to serve. He died Nov. 5, 1900. Mr. Kolb married Rosanna W. Knertzer, who died in 1861. Eight children were born to this union, only two of whom lived to maturity, Catherine, deceased, wife of Asher Smith, by whom she had one son, Percy; and J. Adam.

J. Adam Kolb, the only living representative of the family, attended the public schools of Reading and the high school. When fifteen years of age he was first employed at Hendel's hat factory, where he remained three years, and then went to learn the trimming trade with William Rapp in Reading, remaining with him six years, afterward being employed at the Pennsylvania & Reading shops. In 1879 he went to Council Bluffs, Iowa, where he was employed six months, at the end of this time returning to Reading. For twenty-five years he was employed with the well-known firm of Snader & Nagle, tinners of Reading, and on April 9, 1906, he engaged in tinning at his father's old home, No. 225 North Ninth street. He does a general line of roofing, spouting, roof painting and heater and range repairing, and employs two skilled workmen. He is also engaged in the sale of the well-known boat pump.

Mr. Kolb was married (first) to Annie Weaver, of New Ringgold, Schuylkill county, and to this union there were born: Ida E. m. Ira Conklin, of Ohio; Eva m. Charles Miller, of Wyomissing, Berks county; Carrie m. Charles Sheaffer; Margaret, and John. Mr. Kolb m. (second) Miss Sarah Redcay, of Reading.

In politics Mr. Kolb is a Republican, but he has never been active. He is connected with the First United Evangelical Church. Fraternally he is a member of the P. O. S. of A.

FRANK E. MEITZLER, proprietor of the "Hotel Biery," at Mertztown, and the owner of an excellent farm, was born Dec. 30, 1873, on the old homestead farm in Lower Macungie township, Lehigh Co., Pa., son of Peter B. and Amanda (Rishel) Meitzler.

It is possible to trace the Meitzler family back to the great-grandfather, Henry Meitzler, but very little is known of him except that he served in the Revolutionary war, and was the father of a large family.

Daniel Meitzler, son of Henry and grandfather of Frank E., was born in Lower Macungie township, Lehigh county. He followed the trade of shoemaker until he was fifty years old, in the meantime acquiring two farms and conducting one until his death, which took place at the age of eighty-three years, three months and nine days. He was interred at St. Peter's Church in Lehigh county. He married Susanna Bleiber, born near the Berks county line in Lehigh county, and they had two sons, Peter B. and Joseph, the latter of whom died unmarried when aged thirty-six years.

Peter B. Meitzler was born on the old homestead in Lehigh county, and he also engaged in shoemaking and farming. He died March 4, 1884, aged thirty-eight years. He married Amanda Rishel, daughter of Nathan and Sallie Annie (Brensinger) Rishel, who died Aug. 3, 1884, five months after the death of her husband. They had three children, namely: Frank E.; Louis N. m. Lizzie Liebensperger, and has three children, Nevin, Florence and John; and Alice S. (born Oct 11, 1877, and died at the Allentown Hospital, May 16, 1906, where she was a trained nurse).

Frank E. Meitzler was eleven years old when his parents died and the three orphan children were taken in charge by Jonas Rishel, an uncle, by whom Frank E. was reared and taught all kinds of farm work. Although his uncle was very strict, Mr. Meitzler now realizes that much of his success in life may be attributed to the compulsory industry of his youth. For the past ten years he has been operating the "Hotel Biery," which is the leading hotel at Mertztown.

On Sept. 5, 1896, Mr. Meitzler married Myra T. Schmoyer, daughter of James H. and Eliza (Lichtenwallner) Schmoyer. She was born at Jonestown, Lebanon county, Jan. 19, 1872. They have had two children, George Franklin (born in 1897, who died April 28, 1899) and Marjorie Mary Eliza; she was born at Mertztown, Dec. 5, 1901, baptized by Rev. Mr. Brensinger, and now attends the public school. Mr. Meitzler belongs to the Reformed Church, in which he was baptized and confirmed by Rev. William K. Helfrich; and Mrs. Meitzler is a Lutheran.

HARRY A. HECKMAN, who was the building inspector of the city of Reading from 1902 to 1908, is of German-English ancestry. He was born in Reading Jan. 12, 1857, son of Henry and Rebecca (Albright) Heckman.

(I) Johann George Heckman, the pioneer ancestor of the Heckman family, was born Jan. 6, 1748, in Hessen-Cassel, Germany, and came to America during the Revolution as a soldier in King George's army. After the close of the war, with others of his countrymen, he settled in the Alsatian hills in Alsace township, Berks Co., Pa. He became a farmer, his property lying three miles from Temple; it is now owned by his grandson Abraham. In 1780 he was assessed with 100 acres of land. He married a woman of foreign birth, Maria Magdalena Hamm, born Aug. 16, 1755, died July 6, 1832, who had accompanied her parents to America when quite young. For many years she lived in a Quaker family, and when she was grown to womanhood she adopted the Quaker style of dress. In 1790 the Federal census reports Johann George Heckman the head of a family of thirteen children: George; Peter, 1777-1857, is buried at Zion's Church in Perry township; Samuel, born Oct. 6, 1783, died Aug. 19, 1851; John; Adam; Daniel; Jacob; William; Magdalena m. Henry Schmeck; Susanna m. John Schmeck; Catharine m. John Shade; Elizabeth m. Peter Betz; and Mrs. Nicholas Wagner. The father of these children died March 22, 1835.

(II) Adam Heckman, son of Johann George, born July 29, 1789, married, July 30, 1815, Catharine Heffner, and they lived on their farm above Temple. Their children were: William m. Angelina Huey; Adam, born May 15, 1823, died March 31, 1863, m. Isabella Rothenberger (1830-1904); Jacob m. Abbie Deysher; John m. Susan Seidel; George m. Kittie Seidel; Elizabeth (Schmehl); Catharine (Fies); Hannah (Schmeck); and Lena (Rothermel). Adam Heckman died Dec. 16, 1863. At the time of his death he had forty-five grandchildren.

(II) George Heckman, son of Johann George, was a tanner. He is buried in the Dunkards' graveyard at Pricetown, Pa. His wife was Esther Wanner, and they were the parents of children as follows: (1) Peter moved to Ohio. He had a son who became colonel in the Union army during the Civil war, and was killed at the battle of Gettysburg, where a monument was erected to his memory. (2) George (1803-1891) located in Minersville, Schuylkill county, where both he and his wife died. He married Sophia Hoch, daughter of Daniel Hoch, of Berks county, and she died in 1894, aged eighty-six years, after a married life of sixty-two years. They had six children: Daniel H., born at Pricetown, Feb. 12, 1831, who accompanied his parents in 1846 to Minersville, where he has become a wealthy tobacconist (he m. Magdalena Miller, of Berks county, and has two children, Willard T. and Susan E.); Susanna, who died in infancy; Amelia (Osman); George W., a merchant at Minersville; Sally Ann and Elizabeth Catherine, who both died young. (3) Aaron died in Pricetown. (4) Esther married Daniel Miller.

(II) John (Johannes) Heckman, son of George, was born on the homestead in Alsace township, March 21, 1787, and died at the old homestead in Frush Valley, April 23, 1859, aged seventy-two years, one month, two days. By trade he was a carpenter, and this he followed in connection with farming in Alsace township. He owned a forty-acre farm in Frush Valley. He married Magdalena Noll, who was born Sept. 17, 1795, and died Dec. 15, 1886, aged ninety-one years, two months, twenty-eight days, and was buried in the Heckman lot in the cemetery at Alsace Church. Mr. Heckman was first buried in the old Alsace graveyard, and later removed to the lot of Henry Heckman at Alsace church, of which the family were Lutheran members. Of the fourteen children born to John and Magdalena Heckman, four died young. The others were: Henry is mentioned below; Nicholas died in infancy; Nicholas (2) m. Hannah Bernhart, and died at Pricetown March 11, 1904, in his eighty-second year, (was born in 1822). Magdalena m. Samuel Rothenberger; Samuel m. Elizabeth Deisher, died at Philadelphia, and is buried at Allentown; Francis m. Lucy Bush, of Pricetown, and is now (1909) seventy-eight years old, living at Pricetown; Lewis m. Susan Lutz, and died in Frush Valley; Amelia m. Amos Schmeck; Sarah m. Francis Hartman; and Catharine died young. All, including the respective husbands and wives, are deceased, with the exception of Francis and Amelia.

(II) Daniel Heckman, son of Johann George, was born Jan. 23, 1790, and lived on a farm in Alsace (now Muhlenberg) township, adjoining that of his brother Adam. He married Hettie (Esther) Noll (sister to Magdalena, wife of his brother Johannes), and they had twelve children: Catharine, or Kate, m. to George Wessner; Abraham, deceased; Joseph; Adam, 1830-1846; Charles; Sophia, m. to Levi Reber; Sarah, m. to Solomon Dunkel; Mary, m. to Paris Althouse; Lucetta and Rebecca, who died small; and two who died in infancy.

(II) Jacob Heckman, son of Johann George, was born in Alsace township, and prior to 1808 settled in Windsor township, Berks county. He died during the Civil war, at the age of eighty-four years. He was a stone mason and farmer, and left a large estate to his family. He married a Miss Stricker, and their children were: Samuel, Daniel, Benjamin, Adam S., John, Isaac, Jared, Elias, Charles, Polly (m. Charles Oldt), Kate (m. Charles Wessner), Susanna (m. Aaron Miller), Sarah (m. John Lilly, of Union county). All are deceased.

(II) William Heckman, son of Johann George, lived in Bern township, and is now deceased. He married a Miss Shoemaker, of Shoemakersville, and they reared a large family.

(III) Henry Heckman, son of John and Magdalena (Noll), was born Aug. 16, 1820. He was one of the leading and active contractors and builders for a period of over thirty-five years, having erected some of the best buildings in the city, whose architecture differed not widely from that of the present day, more particularly in the construction of high-class residences. He ranked among the best builders in the city. He led a retired life for over thirty years, and died Sept. 26, 1905, aged eighty-five years, one month, ten days. He married Rebecca Albright, who was born Jan. 26, 1824, daughter of George and Catharine (Burns) Albright. The father was born in Germany July 14, 1795, and died in his fifty-ninth year. Mrs. Catharine (Burns) Albright, born Dec. 30, 1798, daughter of Richard Burns, a native of Scotland, died in her thirty-third year. To Henry and Rebecca (Albright) Heckman were born eight children: Daniel A., born April 29, 1844, is a foreman in the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company's service; George A., born Aug. 22, 1845, is a real estate dealer; Rebecca A., born June 7, 1847, died July 6, 1850, aged three years and twenty-nine days; Amanda A. was born Dec. 28, 1850; Susan A., born Oct. 21, 1852, died Dec. 28, 1856, aged four years, two months; Harry A. was born Jan. 12, 1857; Catharine A., born March 8, 1860, died Oct. 19, 1861; Alice A. was born May 16, 1865.

(IV) Harry A. Heckman was educated in the high schools of Reading. At the age of seventeen he entered his father's employ, and served a four years' apprenticeship at the carpenter's and builder's trade. In those days much of the work was done by hand, and the young man received the old-time thorough training in every detail, thus perfecting himself for a most successful career. When the father retired, Mr. Heckman entered the employ of the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company, and spent seven years, working in every department, in both the building of rolling stock and the erection of different buildings, for the company. At the end of that time he engaged in house carpentering, his original occupation, and then for twelve years carried on the contracting and building business, winning a high reputation for honest and efficient work in the hundreds of buildings he erected in Reading.

At the February election in 1891 Mr. Heckman was elected a member of the Reading school board from the Ninth ward, and during his term of office there were two schoolhouses built in the upper section of the ward, where persistent efforts had been made to get school facilities for almost twenty years. This was due largely to the untiring work and interest of Mr. Heckman, who served on some of the most important committees, and was chairman of the building committee for a number of years. In May, 1899, he resigned, moving into the Eighth ward, where he spent five years, and then moved into the Sixteenth ward, where with Cyrus Q. Guldin he erected their beautiful homes at Sixteenth and Mineral Spring Road, Mr. Heckman now living at No. 1604.

In 1902, when the Hon. Edward Yeager, mayor of Reading, wished to appoint a building inspector whose knowledge of the builder's art would lend weight to his inspections and insure the elevation of the office to the useful plane it was intended to occupy, he chose Mr. Heckman, and that his choice was justified by results was shown at the end of the three years' term, when the Hon. Edward R. Gerber, succeeding to the office of mayor, re-appointed Mr. Heckman, to the very great satisfaction of the public. Mr. Heckman as building inspector introduced a number of reforms and advanced the dignity of the office. During his career, one of great importance, came the investigating of the different opera houses and public buildings and halls after the destruction of the Iroquois Theatre in Chicago, and the revising of the building ordinance. All this was additional work entailed upon the office. In the year 1905 there were 1,094 buildings erected—the highest record ever made in the history of Reading for one year's building operations. Mr. Heckman after his induction into office brought such a standard of excellence into this department that it is not only one of the most important, but one of the most systematic. It has become a bureau of general information, and is, indeed, now able to bear the burden of being directly responsible for the safety of the people so far as the construction of buildings is concerned.

Since attaining his majority Mr. Heckman has been prominently identified with the order of Odd Fellowship, of which he has made a deep study. He is also connected with a number of other secret institutions. He was one of the founders of the Philomathean Literary Society, a prominent organization in its day. He is also a member of the Board of Trade and is active in Sunday-school and church work, having served as a vestryman of Trinity Lutheran Church for a number of years, for a long time was a teacher in the Sunday-school, and at present is one of the librarians.

Mr. Heckman has been very prominently identified in the adjusting and appraising of fire losses for the last twenty-five years and has settled the bulk of losses on the most important buildings in the city damaged by fire in years gone by, up to the present time, his ripe experience having made his services to be felt with the middle department of the underwriters association and the assured throughout the whole State of Pennsylvania.

On Dec. 30, 1879, Mr. Heckman was united in marriage with Hannah E. Hafer, daughter of the late Daniel H. Hafer, who formerly was a hat manufacturer in this city. Mrs. Heckman is a graduate of Reading high school, class of 1878. Seven sons have blessed this union: William Burns died in infancy; Daniel Warren was born July 4, 1882; Edwin Walter died in infancy; Harry Raymond was born Dec. 11, 1886; Herbert Russell, born Nov. 5, 1889, a graduate of the high school, class of 1909, is preparing himself for the profession of civil engineer; George Albright was born Aug. 19, 1893, and Stewart Dale on May 3, 1896.

(V) Daniel Warren Heckman, son of Harry A., attended the Reading schools until he was sixteen years of age, when he accepted a position with the Reading Cycle Company, with whom he remained nearly a year. He then spent nearly five years as a salesman for Dives, Pomeroy & Stewart, and three years more as a clerk for the Maurice E. Roeder Transfer Company. He took a course in bookkeeping at Stoner's Interstate Commercial College and for three years studied in the night high school. Having always been fond of music, for five years, 1894 to 1899, he was a member of the Christ Episcopal Church choir, and at present is a member of Trinity Lutheran Church choir. In 1906-07 he took a course in pianoforte and pipe organ tuning with the New England Conservatory of Music, Boston, Mass., and graduated therefrom June 26, 1907. He is at present engaged in the pianoforte and organ tuning business, with his office at No. 1604 Mineral Spring Road, Reading. He is also chorister of the Hinnershitz Union Church choir, Tuckerton, Pa. On April 8, 1900, he became a communicant member of Trinity Lutheran Church, and is active in its work, is president of the Luther League, and teacher in the Sunday-school; and he is treasurer of Trinity Lutheran Beneficial Brotherhood.

(V) Harry Raymond Heckman, son of Harry A., graduated from the Reading high school in the class of 1905, and then entered the office of Scholl & Maurer, architects. He conducted his father's business when the latter was engaged in his duties as building inspector, and the business is now carried on under the name of H. Raymond Heckman & Co., architects and builders, the father again connecting himself with the business. The office is at room 508, Baer building. H. Raymond Heckman designed and superintended the work of the beautiful homes at the southeast corner of Sixteenth street and Mineral Spring Road erected by Messrs. Heckman and Guldin, the design being so different from others erected in Reading.

JESSE M. SPRECHER, painter and paper-hanger, with place of business at No. 102 North Eighth street, Reading, is one of the city's thorough and representative business men. He was born at Reading, Pa., Jan. 10, 1852, son of Solomon and Radosa (Michael) Sprecher.

Like many other old families, the Sprechers have a tradition that the name was brought to this country by three brothers who were born in Germany. After reaching America they separated, one settling in Lebanon county, and one in Lancaster county, Pa., while the third located in Western Maryland. The Pennsylvania archives show the following facts in this connection: Hans Georg Sprecher, on ship "Pink," landed at Philadelphia, Oct. 17, 1732. His wife Cathrina was also a passenger on the same ship.

Johan Christoph Sprecher, on ship "Patience," landed at Philadelphia, Sept. 16, 1748, and was then twenty-five years old. A second Hans Georg Sprecher came over the Atlantic on the ship "Janet," landing at Philadelphia, Oct. 7, 1751. Jacob Andreas Sprecher emigrated on the ship "Peggy," landing at Philadelphia, Oct. 16, 1754. Solomon Sprecher, father of Jesse M., had a half brother named George and it is claimed that the head of the Lebanon county Sprechers was named Georg, and in all probability one of the above mentioned Hans Georg Sprechers was the great-grandfather of Jesse M. The subject of ancestry is a very interesting one, and there are many who can claim a much less clear line than Mr. Sprecher.

Frederick F. Sprecher, grandfather of Jesse, was born in Lebanon county, Pa., and is buried at Hill Church, above Lebanon. In that vicinity he owned a large farm and conducted it throughout his active years. His three children were: Frederick, who lived on the homestead farm; Solomon; and Mrs. Jacob Stoever, who lived on an adjoining farm.

Solomon Sprecher was born in Lebanon county, Pa., Feb. 8, 1814, and died in November, 1885, and was buried in the Charles Evans cemetery. He came to Reading in the spring of 1846, and followed the carpenter's trade, doing a large amount of work of a most substantial character, much of which stands practically unimpaired to the present day. He built a row of houses on Pine street above Fourth; a row on Fourth below Pine street, the Boas mansion at Fourth and Pine, the Kerper Building at Eighth and Penn streets, and many others in all parts of the city as it was in his day. In politics he was a Democrat, and for twelve years served as a member of the school board of the First ward, then refusing re-election. He and family were members of the First Reformed Church, and he was on the building committee when the church was remodeled in the early eighties. Solomon Sprecher married Radosa Michael, who was born in the neighborhood of Rehrersberg, Berks Co., Pa., Feb. 12, 1812, and died Jan. 9, 1889, and is buried at the side of her husband in the Charles Evans cemetery. They had five children, namely: Mary, born Jan. 13, 1838, m. David Paulsgrove, and lives with her daughter in Reading; Darius M., born Jan. 13, 1846, who is a well-known and skillful carpenter at Reading, and has a son, Harry F., who is foreman of a large machine shop in Chicago; Jesse M.; and two others died in infancy.

Jesse M. Sprecher attended the public schools of Reading until he was sixteen, and then for two years he was salesman in a grocery business. At the age of eighteen he entered the shops of Leymaster, Leiling & Co., at Reading, where he remained six years, and became a thoroughly informed workman in the trade of paper-hanging and painting. On April 1, 1876, he formed a partnership with Jacob E. Babb, under the firm name of Sprecher & Babb. This lasted until Aug. 1, 1883, when Mr. Sprecher began business alone at his present location. He carries a full line of wall papers, paints, glass, etc., and gives employment to twelve experienced men. There is no doubt of the fact that Mr. Sprecher enjoys the best trade in his line at Reading, and when contracts are to be given out for particular and artistic work, he is pretty sure to receive them. He has twice painted the First Reformed and the Trinity Lutheran Church.

On April 9, 1874, Mr. Sprecher was married to Rosa C. Coleman, a daughter of Owen and Catherine (Phillippi) Coleman, and they have had five children: Ida M. and Elmer M., surviving; while Charles O., Edwin J. and Willard S. died young. With his family he belongs to the First Reformed Church, of which he was both treasurer and deacon for three years. He has many social and fraternal connections. He belongs to Lodge No. 62, F. & A. M.; Excelsior Chapter, No. 237, R. A. M.; Reading Lodge of Perfection, 14th degree; Reading Commandery No. 42, K. T.; and Rajah Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S. He is a member also of Perseverance Council, No. 19, Order of Independent Americans, of which he was secretary for the unusual period of thirty-nine consecutive years and then voluntarily retired, but he is still chairman of the board of trustees of the lodge and manages their finances. He belongs to Reading Council No. 46, O. U. A. M., of which he has been financial secretary for a quarter of a century. He was the organizer of Fidelia Chamber, No. 5, Knights of Friendship, passed all its chairs and also the chairs of the Grand Body of the United States. He was a personal friend of the founder of the order, Dr. Mark G. Kerr, of Philadelphia.

JACOB P. HUNSICKER, blacksmith and coachmaker at Stouchsburg, Berks county, and one of the substantial citizens at that place, is a native of Lebanon county, born at Myerstown, March 14, 1874, son of Elias and Elizabeth (Failor) Hunsicker.

The early home of the Hunsickers was in Switzerland. Christian Hunsicker, great grandfather of Jacob P., was born near Fredericksburg, in Bethel township, Lebanon county, and it is thought he served in the war of the Revolution. He made his home at Hamlin, Lebanon county. Among his children were: Elizabeth, who married Michael Hoffman, and had ten children; Philip; and Jacob, born in 1804, who died in 1864.

Philip Hunsicker, son of Christian, was born in Bethel township, Lebanon county, in 1787, and died there in 1871; he was buried at Klopp's Church, of which he was a member. By trade he was a carpenter, and he owned a tract of sixty acres. He married Mary Ann Noll, who died in middle age, and they had eleven children, namely: Polly, Jonathan, Catharine, Betsy, Daniel, William, John, Caroline, Sybilla, Elias and Henry.

Elias Hunsicker, son of Philip, was born in Bethel township, Berks county, Dec. 4, 1836. He grew to maturity there, and in his young manhood learned tanning from Elias Frantz, who had opened a tannery. From 1841 to 1848 he followed that business, and then went to Indiana, where for a short time he worked at carpentering. Returning to Pennsylvania he engaged at coachmaking in Berks county, and then returned to Myerstown once more to follow the tanner's trade. In 1864 he married Elizabeth Failor, born Sept. 22, 1842, daughter of Godlieb and Mary (Long) Failor, of Lebanon county. She died Oct. 28, 1898. Their children were: Mary Ann, who married Joseph Swanger, of Myerstown; Franey, wife of Milton Yeager, of Millardsville; Frank, of Womelsdorf; Jacob P.; Harry, of Millardsville; Sallie, who married William Swanger, of Myerstown; Adam, of Harrisburg; and Samuel W., a horseshoer who is employed by his brother Jacob at Stouchsburg.

Jacob P. Hunsicker, son of Elias, attended the common school at West Myerstown until fourteen years of age, and then for about three years worked at Loos' tannery, in his home town. He next went to Stouchsburg, and learned blacksmithing and coachmaking with John B. Hacker. At the end of three years he went to Boyertown, where he worked in Hartman & Strunk's coach works for a short time. The following year he spent at Lititz, Lancaster county, and at its close he returned to Myerstown and assisted in the establishment of the water company. He and his brother Harry formed a partnership, and conducted a blacksmith shop at Prescott, but after one year Jacob P. went to Millardsville, where he conducted a smithy for five years. In 1900 he located at Stouchsburg, having the preceding year purchased the property where he now lives. There is about an acre of ground, and he has a good business, employing two to four people all the while. He carries on a general blacksmith business, and does all kinds of wheelwright work.

In 1898 Mr. Hunsicker married Lillie Rauch, daughter of William and Sophia (Zeller) Rauch, of Jackson township, Lebanon county. To Mr. and Mrs. Hunsicker have been born three children, namely: Edna S., Jacob W. and May E. They attend the Reformed Church at Myerstown. Mr. Hunsicker is a member of Washington Camp, No. 137, P. O. S. of A. He was elected and served as judge of election in Marion township in 1908.

ROBERT A. RANKIN, an enterprising business man of Reading, Pa., who deals in roofing, spouting, cellar furnaces, etc., at No. 700 North Ninth street, was born Aug. 17, 1870, in Reading, son of John H. Rankin.

Henry Rankin, grandfather of Robert A., was a native of Scotland, and he died in Reading, burial being made at the Charles Evans cemetery. By occupation a contractor, Mr. Rankin was always an industrious, hard-working man, and he became a man of affairs, dying in comfortable circumstances. Among the work done by him may be mentioned the building of all the locks on the Schuylkill Canal between Port Clinton and Norristown. To him and his wife were born these children: Peter; John H.; William, who went to Oakland, Cal., during the gold rush in 1849, and died there; and Margaret, who died in Illinois.

John H. Rankin, father of Robert A., was born in a log cabin in the Blue Mountains of Upper Berks county, Dec. 20, 1837, and in 1861 entered the employ of the Reading Company. By strict attention to business, he won the respect of his employers, and for a number of years he was general foreman at the company's car shop, later becoming master car builder. In 1896 he was promoted to general store keeper, in which office he had general supervision of the supplies used by the company on the various divisions. The business transacted at the big storehouse is the same as any well regulated mercantile establishment. On Jan. 1, 1907, Mr. Rankin reached the age limit, but his services were regarded as so valuable to the company that the management decided to waive the limit in his case, and he assumed the title of superintendent of supplies, now having charge of twenty-eight storehouses, located at principal points on the Reading system. Few officials are better known on the Reading, and more universally respected. He was chairman of the Philadelphia & Reading Y. M. C. A. from its organization in Reading until 1905, when he retired. He is, however, deeply interested in the work, and is a frequent visitor to the rooms of the association. Mr. Rankin married Mary E. Boas, and to this union there have been born eight children: William, Henry, Catherine, Robert A., Anna, Sarah, Edward and Marguerite.

Robert A. Rankin attended the public schools, and at the age of sixteen years learned the trade of tinsmith from William B. Laucks, of Ninth and Washington streets. In 1893 he engaged in business on his own account at his present stand, where he has since been engaged. Mr. Rankin is an independent Republican. With his family he attends the Baptist Church, of which he is a deacon. Fraternally he is connected with Washington Camp, No. 329, P. O. S. of A., Reading.

On June 11, 1896, Mr. Rankin married Carrie Castor, daughter of Edward and Mary (Martin) Castor, and they have had two children: Bryant L. and Stewart L.

WILLIAM AULENBACH, a prosperous farmer of Oley township, resides upon his fine farm one-half mile west of Friedensburg. He was born in Reading Aug. 13, 1874, son of James Aulenbach and grandson of Charles Aulenbach.

James Aulenbach, son of Charles, was born in Reading Aug. 8, 1845, and is now a farmer in Alsace township. He learned the hatter's trade which he followed for some years, then learned boiler making from J. Obert, of Reading. This latter trade he followed until he feared he would lose his hearing, and he then resumed work at his first learned trade. In 1882 he began farming, purchasing a farm of fifty-eight acres, to which he has since added, and on it he has carried on farming ever since. He is a member of Spies's Church. He married Mary Linsaman, and they had two children: William and a daughter that died in infancy. Later he married Annie Linsaman, daughter of William and Margaret Linsaman, of Reading, natives of Wittenburg, Germany, and sister of his first wife. By his second marriage he had these children: Harry; James; Emma; Carrie and Charles.

William Aulenbach was reared upon the farm and attended the schools of Alsace township. When old enough he learned the carpenter trade from Jonas Dautrich, and for four years followed it. Later he worked in the Reading car shops and then for four years was a trolley car conductor for the United Traction company of Reading. He next became a conductor on the Oley Valley Railway Company's lines. Mr. Aulenbach had the honor of conducting the first trolley car over the road, and was in the employ of the company for some four years. In 1905 he began farming on the Levi Merkel farm in Oley, as a tenant, and continued thus for two years, when in 1907 he purchased the tract, which consists of 106 acres of very fertile land. The death of the owner occurred in 1905, and Mr. Aulenbach bought the property from the estate. The house was built by Jared Hoch in 1858, as the Hoch homestead. Mr. Aulenbach is a member of Emblematic Lodge No. 169, I. O. O. F., Reading, and is on the staff. He and his family are members of Spies's church.

On June 16, 1894, Mr. Aulenbach was married to Mary Wanner, daughter of Martin Wanner, of Alsace township. These children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Aulenbach: William, George, Elmer, Raymond, Mabel, Bessie, Charles and Leon.

JOHN F. WITMAN, a popular and very well-known resident of Reading, who is serving in the capacity of ticket agent at the main station of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad, is a native of this city, born Dec. 22, 1841, son of Edward and Elizabeth (Lutz) Witman.

Edward Witman was for many years well known as a leading business man of Reading, having for a time a tailoring establishment on Penn street, where the Y. M. C. A. building now stands, and a hotel at Fifth and Franklin streets. Edward Witman died in 1876, aged seventy-five years, after having retired from active business in 1857, the same year that his wife passed away.

John F. Witman received his education in the public schools of Reading and was a member of the third class to be graduated from the Reading high school, only two of the class of seven now living. Soon after leaving school Mr. Witman secured a position as clerk with the Reading Hardware Company, Harbster Brothers, later going to Robesonia, Berks county, as a clerk with a Mr. S. Shearer, Returning to Reading, Mr. Witman was employed as a newsboy, running on the Daily Times, his next position being in the book store of Mr. H. A. Lantz on Penn street. In August, 1861, John F. Witman entered the employ of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad, as a brakeman, then as baggageman, and later as a conductor of passenger train, continuing in the latter capacity until May, 1874, when he was made assistant ticket agent at the old frame outer depot, moving into the new depot in September of the same year. On April 1, 1887, Mr. Witman was appointed ticket agent, and has been in charge of the office since that time. His kindly, genial and courteous manner has made him very popular with the patrons of the railroad. This is one of the best posts on the company's lines, and as it is also one of the busiest it is necessary that a man of ability be in charge. Mr. Witman has always proved himself worthy of the charge and of the confidence placed in him by his employers.

Mr. Witman married Miss Helen Beaver, daughter of the late D. L. Beaver, M. D., of Reading, Pa., and to this union have been born: Prof. Harry L., the well known music teacher of No. 719 Penn street; Mrs. C. B. Rhoads, of Reading; and J. Fred, Jr., a civil engineer of Reading.

Mr. Witman is a veteran of the Civil war, at the outbreak of which he enlisted for three months service in Company G, 1st P. V. I., Captain George W. Alexander, and after the expiration of his term of enlistment, veteranized in Co. B, 128th Pa. V. I., Captain William McNall, with the nine months men, becoming sergeant, and being promoted to sergeant major. He is a member of Camp No. 61, P. O. S. of A., and past master of Lodge No. 62 F. & A. M., of Reading. In politics he is a Republican, in religious belief a Lutheran. Mr. Witman resides with his family at No. 536 Buttonwood street.

WILLIAM R. FREES, who is engaged in truck farming near Textile, Pa., is one of Spring township's enterprising agriculturists, and was born June 4, 1845, in Robeson township, Berks county, son of Henry and Sarah (Reeser) Frees.

The Frees family came from Friesland, Holland, and the progenitor in this country is supposed to have been Johannes Frees, the great-grandfather of William R., the latter of whom has in his possession an old Bible, in which the ancestor's name appears in German script.

Samuel Frees, son of Johannes and grandfather of William R., was born in Robeson township, where he became a successful farmer and the owner of upwards of 200 acres of land, much of which was timbered. He is buried at Plow Church, of which he was an official member. He married Mary Moore, and they had ten children, as follows: John, born Sept. 18, 1815, was a farmer of Brecknock township, and died July 9, 1897; Sallie m. Christian Jacobs, of Robeson township; Henry; Leah m. Thomas Jacobs, brother of Christian; Katie m. John Schaeffer of Robeson township; Mary m. John Westley; Hannah m. Ephraim Dickinson; Marguerite m. Michael Westley, all of Robeson township; Samuel spent his life in Robeson and Cumru townships; and Daniel, born March 8, 1835, died Feb. 17, 1876, m. Mary Westley, and left a family of six children.

Henry Frees, father of William R., was born in Robeson township, April 2, 1821, and died May 12, 1901, at the home of his son, William R., being buried at Robeson (Plow) Church, of which he was deacon and elder. He spent his life in agricultural pursuits, owning a small farm in Caernarvon township, and was well known and highly esteemed in his community. Mr. Frees married Sarah Reeser, born Aug. 13, 1822, died May 27, 1894, daughter of William Reeser of Robeson township. Five children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Frees, namely: Mary, m. to David Goodman, of Reading; William R.; Lizzie, m. to Elhannon Frees, of Robeson township; Amanda, m. to Heber Moore, of Caernarvon township; and Samuel F., who died of small-pox in his youth.

William R. Frees was reared to agricultural pursuits on his father's farm, and in 1868 took a trip West, visiting Roseville and Freeport, Ill., and Hastings, Minn. In 1870 he returned home and until 1877 worked for his parents, at which time he removed to Robeson township where he remained for three years. He spent four years in Union township in tenant farming, and from 1886 until 1902 operated the John Haas farm in Cumru township, during eight years of which time he drove a daily milk route to Reading. In the spring of 1905, Mr. Frees purchased the Joshua Eyrich farm of thirty-seven acres, in Spring township, a valuable and well located tract, on which are a new set of buildings, and from which can be had a fine view to Reading, two miles distant. Mr. Frees and his family are members of Christ (Yocom) Church in Cumru township, Mr. Frees being a Lutheran, while his wife adheres to the faith of the Reformed denomination.

On Jan. 8, 1876, Mr. Frees was married to Annie E. Eshelman, daughter of Moses and Priscilla (Steffy) Eshelman, of Plowville, Robeson township, and to this union there has been born one son: Harvey Luther.

Harvey Luther Frees was born Feb. 3, 1877, graduated from the Keystone State Normal School, and taught school for some years. He is now in the employ of the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company, at Reading. He married Mamie S. Babb, daughter of Daniel Babb, and they have two children: Alma Loriane and Harold W. D.

JOHN W. BORST, machinist, at Reading, Pa., and a well-known and respected citizen, was born in the house in which he still resides at No. 112 North Ninth street, Reading, Feb. 25, 1854, son of Jacob and Catherine (Felix) Borst.

Jacob Borst was born in Bavaria, Germany, Aug. 20, 1820, and came to America in childhood. He learned the trade of machinist in the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad shops at Reading, and continued in the employ of this corporation until his death Dec. 12, 1890, at the age of seventy years. He married Catherine Felix, who died March 13, 1878, aged fifty-five years. Both were buried in the Catholic cemetery at Reading. They have three surviving children: Emma C., who resides with her brother, J. W.; John W.; and Jacob A. The last named is also a machinist, and is employed in the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad shops. He married Mary Fleer, and they have these children: Nellie, Francis, Charles, Joseph and John.

John W. Borst attended the public schools of Reading until the age of fifteen years. In 1870 he entered upon an apprenticeship in the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad shops and worked until it was completed, and continued with the company for twenty-five years. In 1902 he accepted his present position with the Birdsboro Foundry and Machine Company, and is considered one of the most expert machinists in their employ.

Mr. Borst married Mary Scheck, daughter of Andrew and Mary Scheck, of Leesport, Pa. Mrs. Borst died March 5, 1888, at the age of thirty-three years, leaving a family, viz.: Charles J., a graduate of Brunner's Business College, who is now employed as bookkeeper at W. W. Essick's Optical Factory, at Reading, m. Thanksgiving, Nov. 26, 1908, Mayme E. Herbst; George A., a salesman in the Home Store, at Reading, m. June 25, 1908, Elizabeth Nevin, and lives at his wife's home No. 922 North Eighth street; and two children are deceased. Mr. Borst is a member of the St. Paul Catholic Church at Reading.

CHARLES F. HILL, proprietor of the Fleetwood Marble and Granite Works, is a representative of a family settled in Berks county since early times. The first ones of the name to come to that part of the State were Johan and Frederick Hill, and while the exact date of their arrival from Europe is not known, their names were on the list of tax-payers of Oley township in 1757, when the first tax was collected there. Johan, a farmer, was the progenitor of Charles F. Hill.

Peter Hill, son of Johan, was a blacksmith by trade and followed that calling all his active life. His last years were spent in Coxtown, now Fleetwood, where his descendants still live. His wife was Susanna Koller, who was born in 1791, and died in 1883. Their children were as follows: Abraham, who left Berks county when a young man and was never heard from again; Peter, born in 1825, who moved to Iowa in 1855, became a very successful business man and died in 1896, leaving a large family; Jacob; Conrad; Hannah; Hettie; and Susan.

Conrad Hill was born in Oley township in 1822. He settled in Richmond township, and there followed the calling of a blacksmith for forty-seven years, residing both in Walnuttown and Fleetwood. He married Susanna, daughter of Jacob and Sally (Price) Fox. The Price family were a prominent one in Berks county, Pricetown being named for Jacob Price. The children born to Conrad and Susanna Hill were: Jacob; Sarah, m. to Frederick Schenk: Peter; James; Charles F.; Susan, m. to Morris B. High; and Conrad, Jr., unmarried. The father of this family died in Fleetwood in 1899, in his seventy-eighth year.

Charles F. Hill was born Oct. 13, 1857, at Walnuttown, a mile east of Fleetwood. His parents, though most honest and industrious, were poor, and the boy was able to secure only a limited education in the township schools. Later, however, he resumed his studies by himself, and became a man of very creditable attainments. At the age of twenty he went into the wholesale and retail marble and granite business. His establishment is equipped with the most modern machinery operated by steam. There are upwards of forty men employed and his trade extends over the entire State of Pennsylvania and in New Jersey. Monuments attesting his skill and real artistic ability may be seen in many places, notably, perhaps, the De Long and Stocker monuments in the Charles Evans cemetery at Reading; the Koch, Schoene, Loros and Ritter, at Allentown; and the Isaac Kutz monument in the Fleetwood cemetery.

The political principles espoused by Mr. Hill are those of the Republican party, and he has always been active in the service of his party and his locality. He has been a delegate to numerous party conventions, was a school director for six years, has been a member of the board of health for the past ten years, and a member of the borough council for more than twenty years. He was elected chief burgess of Fleetwood over and over till he finally refused to serve longer, on the plea that his own business claimed all of his time. In addition to carrying all these responsibilities Mr. Hill acted for fifteen years as treasurer of the cemetery board of Fleetwood, while he has also always been actively concerned with church matters. A regular attendant and consistent member of the Mennonite Church at Fleetwood, he has long been a trustee, and is now class leader.

On April 29, 1877, Mr. Hill married Miss Mary A. Rahn, daughter of Jacob and Esther (Merkel) Rahn, and granddaughter of John Rahn. To this union have been born: Charles R., m. to Bertha Fink; Katie R., m. to Adam R. Leibensperger, of Reading; and Frederick R., Lewis R. and Clara R., at home. Mr. Hill is a man of unusually fine character. He is devoted to his home and family, and is a loyal citizen and consistent Christian.

JOSEPH S. BACHMAN, proprietor of Bachman's Steam Pretzel Bakery, No. 836 North Eighth street, Reading, was born in Austria in 1863, and came to America with his parents, Francis and Margaret (Settler) Bachman, in 1868.

In his native country Francis Bachman had learned carpentering and cabinet-making, and these occupations he followed on settling in Reading. He is now living retired at No. 351 North Eleventh street, at the age of sixty-eight years, his wife also surviving at the same age. They have had a family of five children: Joseph S., the only child born in Europe; John, a stone cutter of Reading; Annie, m. to Adam Heister; Margaret, m. to John High; and Charles, who is employed by his brother in the Bachman Steam Pretzel Bakery plant. In religious belief the family are Catholics.

Joseph S. Bachman was educated in the public and parochial schools of Reading, and his first work was at Koenig's Marble Yard, which position he left to engage in carrying the Daily Post for Wilhelm Rosenthal. His next employment was with the Penn Hardware Company, where he remained about one year, and he then apprenticed himself with Anthony Vogelman. After several years spent as a journeyman, Mr. Bachman in 1886 engaged in business at No. 450 North Eleventh street, where he spent three years, was for one year at No. 232 Mifflin street, and then engaged in model baking on Fifth street. Later he removed to No. 609 Moss street, but in 1897 he engaged in the pretzel baking business, at his present place, selling out his general baking establishment. Mr. Bachman had three years experience as a journeyman pretzel baker, which gave him a complete and comprehensive knowledge of the business, and from a humble beginning he has established the largest enterprise in this line in the State of Pennsylvania. He employs a force of thirty people, having a night shift, has two wagons on the streets of Reading constantly, and his trade reaches all over the United States.

Mr. Bachman m. Mary Mercer, and they have two children: Francis, m. to Florence Folk; and Margaret. Mr. and Mrs. Bachman are Catholics in religious belief. He is a Democrat in politics, is captain of the Marion Fire Company, a member of the Knights of St. John, and major of the Second District of Pennsylvania. He also served as captain for five years of this order, and was chairman of the convention committee for June, 1908.

JAMES H. S. GRIESS, of Pottstown, Pa., is a native of District township, Berks county, born March 28, 1860. He belongs to a family which has long been identified with Hereford township, where his great-grandfather, Jacob Greiss, lived.

Jacob Greiss was a charcoal burner and laborer in Hereford township, living between Perryville (now Harlem) and the Devel's Hole. In his later years he moved to District township, where he died during the fifties. He and his wife are buried in unmarked graves at Huff's Church. Her maiden name was Rauch, and they were the parents of ten children, namely: Peter lived in Hereford; his wife was a Fry, and they had children—David, Henry, Adam, Elizabeth (m. John Gangler), and Lucinda (m. Samuel Kehs). George, grandfather of James H. S. Griess, is mentioned later. Philip, m. to a Yeakel, was a laborer in Upper Milford township, Lehigh Co., Pa. David lived in the Blue Mountains, where he was engaged as a charcoal burner. John (1817-1902) lived in District township, where he had his own home and worked as a laborer; he m. Sallie Moyer (1820-1905) and they are buried at Huff's Church. Polly m. a Mr. Fenstermacher, and lived in Longswamp township, where he kept a hotel known as "Ginders Hotel," near Topton. Peggy never married. Catharine m. Abraham Gehris, and they lived in Hereford, where he was a laborer; they are buried at Huff's Church. Barbara (Bevvy) m. Benjamin Sell, and lived in Longswamp township. Elizabeth (Betzy) completed the family.

George Greiss, son of Jacob, was a weaver and wove all kinds of linens. He owned his own home and eight acres of land, on which property his shop was located. He married Sarah Gehris, and they lived in Longswamp township, but they are buried at Huff's Church, in Hereford township. They were the parents of children, as follows: Jacob, who married Mary Rothenberger; Philip, who was a tailor at Womelsdorf, Berks county; George, who lived at Alburtis, Pa.; Peter, a blacksmith in Hereford, who is mentioned below; David, who settled out West and died there; Daniel was a cobbler and died unmarried at Albertis; Sarah, m. to Henry Wendling and John, who lived in the State of Delaware and who m. Mary Jane, daughter of Capt. J. and Sarah Evans (she is buried at Huff's Church).

Peter Griess, father of James H. S. Griess, was born in 1835 in Hereford township, and died Nov. 18, 1891, aged fifty-six. He is buried at Bally Catholic Church. Mr. Griess was a blacksmith, and followed his trade in Salisbury township, Lehigh county, until 1874, when he took up farming in the same township, continuing there for three years more. In 1877 he moved to Maxatawny and burned lime for one year. In 1878 he moved to Hereford township, Berks county, where he engaged in farming until his death. He married Mary Schoch, daughter of Jacob and Susanna (Kehs) Schoch, born Jan. 25, 1838, and as she was a member of the Catholic Church he too adopted that faith. Mrs. Griess now makes her home with her son Jermanus, near Clayton, in Hereford township. She was the mother of nine children, viz.: Amelia (m. Henry Hering), James H. S., Jermanus (unmarried), Jane (m. Henry Kehs, of Pottstown), Maggie (died aged seven years), and four who died in infancy.

James H. S. Griess received his education in the schools of Salisbury township, Lehigh county, and in the city of Allentown. He was reared upon the farm, but when quite young began working in the ore mines around Siesholtzville, doing such work for four years. In 1882 he settled in Pottstown, where he learned the milling business from Bertolet & Miller, in 1885 succeeding Mr. Bertolet in the firm, which has since been Miller & Griess. They have the most extensive business in their line in the upper part of Montgomery county, manufacturing from seventy-five to one hundred barrels of flour daily, and their leading brand is the "Favorite," which finds a ready market all over the eastern part of the United States. This firm also buys and sells feed, doing a general business in that line, and enjoys in a large measure the good-will and confidence of the people of the town and surrounding district. They do besides a large coal and wood business, having gained considerable patronage in that line. Six men are employed regularly, and the firm has prospered throughout its existence.

In addition to his business, Mr. Griess owns a valuable farm of 103 acres in Hereford township, near Clayton, which he rents; this was formerly the Samuel D. Heil property.

On April 26, 1885, Mr. Griess married Matilda G. Covely, daughter of David and Mary (Gery) Covely, of Hereford township, and they have had three children: J. Allen (deceased), Norman R. and Raymond P. This family are members of St. Aloysius Catholic Church of Pottstown. Mr. Griess holds membership in the St. Joseph Society at Bally, and the St. Aloysius Society and Knights of Columbus at Pottstown. He is a Charter member of Father Bally Council, K. of C., of Pottstown, and also a fourth degree member.

FRANCIS A. ULLE was born in Reading in 1862, of German parentage, son of Zachariah and Elizabeth J. (Thieme) Ulle, natives of Erfuhrt, Saxony.

Zachariah Ulle was born in 1811. He served the required period in the German army, then learned the barber's trade, and came to America to follow it under the freer auspices offered in this country. He and his wife landed in New York City in October, 1853, and proceeded thence to Reading, where they settled. Mr. Ulle was first located at the corner of Fifth and Washington streets, in the old jail building, for four years, and then moved to Seventh and Penn streets, on the present site of the Rosenbaum building, where he remained twelve years. The next five years he was on Eighth street, and then for seven more at No. 44 South Sixth street. He was very skillful in his work, and enjoyed a large and regular patronage. He departed this life at the home of his son, Francis A., Feb. 28, 1885, aged seventy-three years. His wife is still living, and resides in her son's home. Their children were: Gustave, a barber in New York City; Albert H., a hotel keeper in Brooklyn, N. Y.; Francis A.; and Emma C. married Wilson O. Knabe, a barber located in Brooklyn, N. Y.

Francis A. Ulle was sent to the public schools of Reading, and after finishing his studies he learned cigar making with his brother. He worked at that trade for two years, but then felt that the compensation was unsatisfactory, and so decided to learn the barber's trade. He went to Philadelphia to learn it and at different periods spent five years there in the work. He also lived in Chicago for some nine months. In 1883 Mr. Ulle established himself in business in Reading, at No. 619 Chestnut street, but after three years there he moved to his present location No. 129 South Ninth street. He does a large business, with four chairs in his shop, and he gives the best of service to every patron.

Mr. Ulle was married in 1886 to Miss Wilhelmina Schumacher, daughter of August Schumacher, of Reading, and five children have been born to them, Augustus H., Elizabeth W., Frederick F., Paul T. and Marie A. Mr. Ulle is a member of St. John's Lutheran Church, and is an active worker in its various departments.

WILLIAM F. FORRY, one of the extensive farmers of Berks county, was born there Jan. 9, 1865. He owns the old Governor Hiester homestead in Bern township, one of the landmarks of the county. It is located on the road leading from Hiester's Mill to Reber's Mill, seven miles from Reading, and the farm contains 400 acres of valuable land. The post office address is Roseglen Farms, West Leesport, Pa., R. F. D. No. 1.

Through boyhood Mr. Forry attended the schools of Womelsdorf, after which he went into the knitting mill which his father operated from 1872 to 1903. Later he became a member of the firm conducting the business, and lived at Myerstown, Duncannon and Shamokin, residing in the latter city for ten years. Failing health finally caused both him and his father to retire from that industry. Then Mr. Forry returned to Berks county, and invested in land as above mentioned. He takes a deep interest in his agricultural operations, and as he has the finest water in the county in abundance, and makes use of the best and latest improved machinery, he meets with success. He makes a specialty of hay and potatoes, and breeds thoroughbred Jersey cattle, large English Berkshire swine and pure bred poultry, shipping to cities in Pennsylvania and elsewhere.

Mr. Forry was married in 1889, to Miss Amelia Adams, daughter of Richard Adams, of Bern township, and they have three sons: John W. and W. Frank, twins, and Richard. In politics he is a Democrat but not active. He is a leading member of Epler's Reformed Church.

EDWIN KERSHNER, a member of the firm of Ammon & Kershner, proprietors of the "American House," Reading, Pa. (one of the best known hotels in the State), was born Aug. 19, 1873, at Bernville, Berks County, son of Henry J. and Sarah A. (Faust) Kershner.

The heads of the Kershner families in Berks county emigrated from Amsterdam, and arrived at New York during the winter of 1722-23. In 1759 Conrad Kershner's name appears as a land-owner in Bern township. One of his sons was Philip. One of Philip's sons, Peter Kershner, was a farmer in Bern township all his life, and died in that portion now within the limits of Penn township, the farm upon which he lived and which he owned being still in the possession of the family. Peter Kershner married a Miss Bodey, and ten children were born to them, five sons and five daughters. The sons were: Peter, Henry J., Lewis, George and James. Peter Kershner, the grandfather of Edwin, was a Democrat in politics, and wielded considerable influence in his community, having held a number of local offices.

Henry J. Kershner, second son of Peter Kershner above mentioned, and father of Edwin, was for many years a cattle dealer and farmer in Berks county, but retired in 1899. He and his wife had twelve children, ten of whom are now living: George, Edwin, Palmer, Louis, Jared, Charles, Sarah H., Katie L., Walter W. and Warren W., twins; the two who died in infancy were Franklin and William.

Mr. Edwin Kershner married Fannie A., daughter of George M. Ammon, the former proprietor of the "American House." They have one child, George Ammon Kershner, born Oct. 26, 1907.

Aberlin Oh

HOWARD WIEGNER KRIEBEL, son of Henry Kriebel (Israel and Sarah, nee Schultz, Kriebel) and Mary Ann Wiegner (Jacob and Rosina, nee Yeakel, Wiegner), was born in Hereford township, Berks Co., Pa., 1859, educated in the public schools of his native township, at the Keystone State Normal School, Kutztown, Pa. (graduated, 1876), and at Oberlin, Ohio. He was married to Thamar K. Schultz, daughter of Thomas Schultz (Rev. Christopher and Susanna, nee Yeakle, Schultz) and Hannah Kriebel (Jacob and Anna, nee Yeakel, Kriebel), in 1884. He taught in the public schools of his native township and at Perkiomen Seminary, Pennsburg, Pa., where he served also as bookkeeper, secretary and trustee. He resigned from this position to write "The Schwenkfelders in Pennsylvania, A Historical Sketch," published in 1904 by the Pennsylvania German Society, of which he is a member. Since 1906 he is publisher of The Pennsylvania-German, an illustrated monthly magazine devoted to the biography, genealogy, history, folklore, literature and general interests of German and Swiss settlers in Pennsylvania and other States and their descendants.

JOHN K. FAUST, a representative citizen and well-known business man of Reading, engaged extensively in paving contracting, was born in Lower Heidelberg township, Berks Co., Pa., Jan. 16, 1859, son of Jacob and Lydia (Kline) Faust.

Philip Faust, grandfather of J. K., settled in Upper Bern township, where he was engaged in agricultural pursuits all of his active period. He died about 1850, aged about sixty-five years, while his wife, who bore the maiden name of Christiana Lehr, died in 1870, aged eighty-three years. They had these children: Daniel, deceased; Mary, m. to William Hinckel; and Jacob, father of J. K. Philip Faust was a Jeffersonian Democrat, and he and his wife were attendants of the Reformed Church.

Jacob Faust, son of Philip, was a carpenter by trade, also owning and operating a farm, first in Lower Heidelberg township, and later in Jefferson township, and being a very thrifty man was considered very well-to-do at the time of his death, in 1892, when in his seventy-fourth year. His wife, Lydia Kline, died in 1888, aged sixty-five years, in the faith of the Lutheran Church, while he was connected with the Reformed denomination. In politics he was a Democrat. Eleven children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Faust, ten of whom lived to maturity: Samuel, of Penn township; Sarah, m. to Daniel Shade; Amelia, m. to Levi Reber; Daniel; Kate; Catherine, m. to Frank Hollenbach; John K.; Franklin; Matilda, m. to Alvin Rehn; and Allen K., a missionary of the Reformed Church in Japan. In religious belief Mr. Faust was Reformed.

John K. Faust was educated in the district schools of Lower Heidelberg township, and followed farming until his twenty-ninth year, when he came to Reading and engaged in the paving and cement business. He enlarged his operations from time to time, and is now one of the largest contractors in cement and flag stone paving in the city of Reading. Since 1902 he has done considerable building in he northwestern section of the city of Reading, these houses being for sale, and like in his other business he has been very successful in this new venture.

Mr. Faust was married in 1882 to Harriet Hassler, daughter of John and Anna (Moyer) Hassler, and two children were born to this union: Charles Floyd (deceased) and Howard Calvin, a graduate of Franklin and Marshall College, Lancaster; the latter married Elenora Brossman, daughter of James Brossman and wife (nee Kissling, of Reading). Mr. Faust is a member of the P. O. S. of A., and the Knights of Malta. In politics he is a Democrat, and has served as a member of the school committee of the Sixth ward. Mr. Faust owns a beautiful residence at the corner of West Greenwich and McKnight streets.

CYRUS DECHERT ALTHOUSE, retired farmer living at Shillington, was born in Bern township, Sept. 21, 1866. He was educated in the township schools and brought up to farming until he became of age, when he began to conduct farming operations for himself and has continued to do so until the present time. In 1897, he moved to Shillington, and has since resided there. In 1887, he was married to Sarah H. Fritz, daughter of Henry Fritz, retired farmer, and Susan Hinnershitz his wife, of Shillington. The latter died Feb. 14, 1909, aged sixty-six years.

His father was Adam Althouse, who cultivated a large farm in Bern township for thirty years until his decease in 1877, aged sixty-three years. He was married twice. His first wife was Susan Shepp, daughter of Daniel, of Alsace township (now Muhlenberg), by whom he had four children: Milton, Nathan S., Ellen (m. Augustus G. Christman), and Emma (m. Isaac W. Steininger). After his wife's decease in 1855, Mr. Althouse in 1859 m. (second) Angeline Dechert, daughter of Daniel, of Spring, by whom he had three sons: Monroe B. (m. Mary Tobias), Cyrus D. (above), and one died young. In the settlement of his estate, his farm of two hundred acres was divided into two equal parts, the part adjoining the Schuylkill having been adjudged to his son Monroe, and the other part adjoining the Tulpehocken to his son Cyrus, which parts they still own and cultivate.

His grandfather was John Althouse, farmer of Bern, who died March 24, 1847, aged seventy-six years. He was married to Catharine Knabb, of Oley, who died in 1858, aged seventy-eight years. They had eight children: John (m. Sarah Seidel); Daniel (m. Catharine Dunkel); Henry (m. Mary Kissinger); Adam (above); William (m. Elizabeth Guldin); Mary (m. Isaac Graeff); Catharine (m. Adam Kalbach); and Elizabeth (m. Solomon Dunkel). John Althouse devised to his son Adam a large farm in said township, about three miles from Reading, which extended from the Schuylkill River to the Tulpehocken creek and contained over two hundred acres.

His great-grandfather was John George Althouse, farmer of Bern, where he carried on farming for many years until his decease in 1811, aged sixty-six years. He was married to Maria Barbara Herbine, of Oley, by whom he had four children: Peter (m. Catharine Schaeffer); John (above); Maria (m. a Kershner); and Catharine (m. a Rieser). His wife died in 1822, aged eighty-one years.

As to antecedents of Mr. Althouse's mother, see biographical sketches of her brother Adam Dechert, and of her cousin Henry M. Dechert, which appear in this publication.

Mr. Althouse's wife's parents had four children: Cyrus (m. Ida Trexler); Martin (m. Ada Eberle); Rebecca (m. Daniel Krick); and Sarah (Mrs. Althouse). Her father Henry Fritz is a retired farmer at Shillington and has served as the tax collector of Cumru township for many years. His father Martin Fritz carried on farming for many years along the Schuylkill in Cumru township, at the "Little Dam," and died at Shillington July 22, 1891, aged eighty-three years. He was married to Margaret Gring, who died Oct. 12, 1880, aged seventy-five years. They had six children: Lewis (m. Sarah Focht); John (m. Catharine Epler); Henry (above); Susan (m. Jeremiah Garet); Sarah (m. John Grill); and one died young.

JOHN T. ADAMS, member of the pretzel baking firm of J. T. Adams & Co., of Reading, is a native of Alsace township, Berks county, born March 29, 1856, son of William Adams, a farmer of that township who died Dec. 24, 1904, and Fernie (Tobias) Adams, whose death occurred in 1870.

John T. Adams spent his early school days in his home township, and the latter part in the schools of Reading. At the age of fourteen years he began to learn the trade of pretzel making, with a Mr. Muntz, with whom he remained eight years, the next thirteen years being spent with the late Benjamin Lichtenthaeler. In May, 1893, Mr. Adams engaged in business with Mr. J. S. Hendricks, and they are located under the firm name of Hendricks & Adams, at Nos. 333-335 Cherry street, the entrance to the factory being at No. 332 Penn street. Mr. Hendricks retired from business in October, 1907, and Mr. Adams continued the business, taking his son Paul as a partner. They manufacture what is known as the "Original Pretzel." When they first started in business they employed but two hands; now they have fourteen. Their first year's business was 1,060,273 pretzels, and the year of 1905, 3,712,644. Their trade is very large, and they ship to all parts of the United States, from Boston to San Francisco, as well as abroad. They have two large ovens, and four wagons are continually busy in the city, where the firm's goods are in great demand.

In 1877 Mr. Adams married Miss Mary Knabb, daughter of the late David G. Knabb, of Reading, and these children have been born to the union: Paul, member of the firm of J. T. Adams & Co.; Martha, wife of William Estey. Mr. and Mrs. Adams reside in the house in which she was born, No. 1035 Franklin street. Fraternally a Mason, he is very active in the work of that society, and is also connected with the Odd Fellows. He served on the council of the Lutheran Church, and has been very prominent in educational work in Reading. He is one of the city's representative citizens.

GEORGE W. S. DELLECKER, an industrious and useful citizen residing in Colebrookdale township, Berks county, near the Montgomery county line, was born at Englesville, Feb. 15, 1850.

The Dellecker family is of French origin, the early spelling of the name being De la Cour. Rev. Frederick

De la Cour was born in France Feb. 2, 1738, and he died in Falkner Swamp, Montgomery Co., Pa., Jan. 15, 1799, and was buried at Swamp Church. He came to America in 1757, and from that time to 1770, he preached at East Amwell, N. J., then went to Rockaway, N. J., and stayed there until 1782. The following two years were spent at Goshenhoppen, Pa., and from there he went to Falkner Swamp. For forty-two years he preached the doctrines of the Reformed Church. In 1900 a memorial window was placed in Swamp Church by his descendants. His wife, Barbara, was born Nov. 18, 1745, and died May 7, 1784.

Frederick Dellecker (De la Cour), son of Rev. Frederick and Barbara, was born Dec. 30, 1776, and he died Feb. 15, 1853. He married Catharine Beitman, and they became the parents of fourteen children, namely: Sarah, m. to Jacob Yerger; Lucy, m. to George Fisher; Sophia, m. to a Mr. Mock; Frederick, who lived and died at Gilbertsville, Pa.; Elizabeth, m. to a Griesemer; Hannah, m. to a Scholl; William, who lived and died at Gilbertsville; Henry B., who lived and died in Milwaukee, Wis.; Rebecca, m. to William Weiant; George, who lived and died in Muhlenberg township, Berks county; Samuel B., mentioned below; Catharine, m. to a Wittman; Susan, m. to David Shaner; and Polly, m. to a Romich.

Samuel B. Dellecker, son of Frederick, was born Oct. 26, 1814, in Douglass township, Montgomery county. He was a carpenter by trade all his life, and he died Dec. 28, 1879, at Boyertown. He married Susan Sassaman, born Jan. 16, 1821, in Washington township, Berks county; she died Oct. 25, 1860, in Colebrookdale township, and was buried at Boyertown. Four children were born to them, namely: Henry S.; Catharine, who died in childhood; Mary, who married Frank Rhodes, of Boyertown; and George W. S.

George W. S. Dellecker attended the common schools, and later Boyertown Academy. In 1871 he was licensed to teach by the late Prof. D. B. Brunner, and taught his first term in Washington township, teaching in all four terms. He was trained to farm work by his grandfather, Henry Sassaman, near New Berlinville. He learned the trade of painter and grainer, and followed that occupation for about twenty-five years. He also has a thorough understanding of the butcher's trade, and followed it during the winter for a number of years, and regularly for two years at Barto. For three years he was engaged in the hotel business. In 1898 he began farming in Douglass township, and in 1900 he moved to near Englesville, where he owns the thirty-two acre tract formerly known as the Abraham Yoder tract. This he devotes to truck farming, and is meeting with deserved success.

Mr. Dellecker has been twice married. He wedded (first) Andora Smith, daughter of Richard F. Smith, of Barto. She died two years after her marriage. Mr. Delecker m. (second) Annie Harner, daughter of Samuel Harner, and ten children have blessed this union, as follows: Bertha, m. to Charles Sands; Warren, of Colebrookdale township; Harvey, who died aged twenty-four years; Susie, m. to William Schoch; Alice, m. to Edward Grim; Mabel, who died aged sixteen years; Henry, of New Berlinville; Annie, m. to Clinton Kane; and Miss Laura and Walter, at home. Mr. Dellecker is a Republican in politics, and a Lutheran in religion.

JOHN RUDY, a resident of Mount Penn, Pa., who is engaged in the express, drayage and ice business, was born Feb. 10, 1862, in Hesse Darmstadt, Germany, son of George and Maggie (Stahl) Rudy.

George Rudy, who was the foreman of large stables in his native country, died there in 1872, when thirty-eight years old, and his wife met her death by asphyxiation at Hoboken, while on her way to visit her son. Mr. and Mrs. Rudy had seven children: Andrew, of Reading; John; William, of Lancaster county; Lizzie, wife of Henry Kissel, of Hesse Darmstadt, Germany; Charles, of Lancaster county; Maria, who died at the age of eight years; and Helena, who died when fourteen years old.

John Rudy was reared in his native country, and was educated in the common schools. At the age of eighteen years he entered the German army as a member of the 118th Regiment, 4th Company, Infantry, "Gross Herzog Prince Carl," and served three months. In 1885, he married Maggie Seilheimer, born in Hesse Darmstadt Dec. 17, 1864, daughter of Henry and Maggie (Deximer) Seilheimer, and for three years thereafter they remained in that country, Mr. Rudy being engaged in grape growing. In 1888 Mr. and Mrs. Rudy came to America, and, locating in Reading, he secured employment with the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad Company. He then purchased a thirty-five acre farm in Lower Heidelberg township, on which he resided for two years, when he sold out and removed to Exeter township, where for four years he managed the vineyard of George Romich. Mr. Rudy next located at Dengler's P. O., now Mount Penn, where he purchased a home, and since that time has been engaged in the express and ice business. In politics he is a Democrat. He is an ardent member of Union Fire Company, of Reading, uniform rank, the Firemen's Relief Association, Mount Penn Fire Company (of which he was one of the organizers), and Union Fire Company and Veteran Firemen's Associations. He is a member of the I. O. O. F., Mt. Penn Lodge, having transferred from Germania Lodge, Reading; the I. O. O. F. Accident Association; the Fraternal Order of Eagles, No. 66; the Eagles Mountain Home Association; and the Exeter Live Stock Association.

To Mr. and Mrs. Rudy eleven children have been born: John, born Dec. 17, 1886; Charles, Sept. 9, 1888; Katie, Oct. 18, 1891; Clara (died when eight years old); William (died when fourteen months old); George, April 5, 1896 (was drowned on Sept. 8, 1908, and his body was recovered three days later by Earl Dease); Annie, May 5, 1897; Harry, Jan. 20, 1900; Samuel, Jan. 20, 1901; Ellen, Jan. 30, 1904; and Elmer, Aug. 27, 1905, (died in infancy).

SEIDEL. The Seidel family is an old and honored one in Berks county, and the grandfather of Franklin H. Seidel and Oliver H. Seidel was a farmer by occupation who resided on a fine farm northeast of Fleetwood, near Pricetown, in Berks county, upon which he died. His wife was Rebecca Miller, and they had these children: Benneville, Frederick and Eliza (m. Henry Gauger, who lived at Fleetwood). All are now deceased.

Benneville Seidel was born in Ruscombmanor township on July 29, 1826, and he died at Moselem, Sept. 20, 1896. During his younger days he was a farmer, but later during the Civil war he operated a hotel at Pricetown. Still later he was employed for sixteen years at the Moselem furnace, and at the expiration of that time he returned to farming and was thus engaged when he died. He is buried at St. Peter's church at Moselem, to which he belonged. His wife, Caroline Heffly, daughter of George Heffly, died Nov. 16, 1900, aged seventy-two years. Their children were: Sarah, born Jan. 22, 1853; James, Oct. 13, 1855; Elizabeth, Sept. 1, 1854; Catherine (m. Ephraim Folk); Samuel, April 6, 1858; George, Frederick and another son all died in infancy; Phoenes, May 20, 1862; Franklin H., Dec. 2, 1865; Oscar, Oct. 11, 1867; Milton, April 8, 1869; Alvin, Feb. 2, 1873, and Oliver H., July 15, 1874.

FRANKLIN H. SEIDEL, son of Benneville Seidel, and a resident of the Tenth ward, Reading, was born Dec. 2, 1865, at Moselem, in Richmond township, where he resided until he was sixteen years of age, when he left the ore mines in which he had been working, and engaged to work for John Sell, a farmer of Richmond township. After three years he left Mr. Sell and went to Freeport, Ill., being then but twenty years of age. After a short residence there, he returned home, and settling in Reading worked for the Reading Iron Company at the pipe mill for three years. He then went to Howard, S. Dak., and for three years worked on a farm, but as that part of the State was visited by a drought, everything was destroyed, and once more he returned to Berks county, and found employment at the Reading Cotton Mills, April 4, 1890. He has remained with this company ever since and is now fireman of the large plant.

Mr. Seidel resides in his new house at No. 533 South Eleventh street, and has since 1892. He also owns a residence at No. 535 South Eleventh street, and one at No. 430 South Ninth street. A self-made man, Mr. Seidel naturally feels a pride in what he has accomplished, and he has not only gained success materially, but he has retained the confidence and respect of his employers and fellow workers. In politics he is a Democrat. Fraternally Mr. Seidel is a member of Vigilance Lodge No. 194, I. O. O. F., and the Foresters of America. He and his family are consistent members of St. Luke's Lutheran church of Reading, of which he is a deacon, having held that office since 1904 under the Rev. F. K. Huntzinger.

In April, 1891, Mr. Seidel married Ellen Weidenhammer, daughter of Reuben Weidenhammer, of Richmond township. They have had these children: Lizzie, born Feb. 15, 1892; Arthur, Dec. 10, 1894; and twin sons and Amy F., all three of whom died in infancy.

Oliver H. Seidel, a resident of Reading, and a son of Benneville Seidel, was born at Moselem, Richmond township, Berks county, July 15, 1874, and was reared on a farm until he was twenty-one. For a year he worked at Windsor Castle, and then he went to Newark, N. J., and was a waiter in a restaurant for a short time, gaining valuable experience. In 1897 he came to Reading, and has lived here for the past eleven years, being engaged in various ways. For some time he had been agent for the Prudential Life Insurance Company when he entered the employ of the Reading Traction Company, but in 1902 he entered the Reading Cotton Mills and is now assistant foreman of the weaving department, although he commenced there as a loom fixer, and worked his way up through his own ability. Like his brother, Franklin H. Seidel, Mr. Oliver H. Seidel owns his own home, a very pleasant brick house at No. 550 South Eleventh street, which he purchased April 1, 1907. In politics he is a Democrat, and is very active in the work of the party, although he has never held office aside from giving his services to the tax collector's office during 1907.

Fraternally Mr. Seidel is a member of Vigilance Lodge No. 194, I. O. O. F., of which he is past grand, and he is also a member of Reading Aerie No. 66, F. O. E., and the United Traction Company Employes Beneficial Association. He and his family are members of Huntzinger's Lutheran church of Reading.

On Nov. 14, 1901, Mr. Seidel married Annie Schlageter, daughter of Stephen and Agnes (Buck) Schlageter, a native of Germany who came to the United States in 1890.

WILLIAM J. LEVAN, an energetic and enterprising young business man of Reading, Pa., engaged in the manufacture of glue, is a native of the city, born in December, 1871, son of Joseph Levan.

Daniel Levan, grandfather of William J., was a resident of Berks county, and the pioneer glue manufacturer thereof, a business in which, with his brother, he continued until his death at the age of fifty-one years. His children were: Daniel, in the fertilizer business in Lebanon, Pa.; Catherine; Sallie; George; Samuel; Edward and Joseph.

Joseph Levan was born in Reading in 1839, and was well known and highly esteemed. He engaged in the manufacture of hats on Penn street, near Eleventh, and continued in the business for five years, when he engaged in the glue business, his first plant being in the rear of his hat factory, and he later took the old plant in Exeter township, where he continued until his death, Dec. 21, 1904, aged sixty-five years. He was buried in the Charles Evans cemetery. He married Elizabeth Gahres, who now resides with her son, William J. They had two children, our subject, and Catherine (deceased).

William J. Levan attended the public schools and one term at Stewart's Academy, and then began assisting his father in the glue business, and at the latter's death took up the management of the business in which he has continued to the present time, being very successful. The plant, which was started in Exeter township in 1875, is five stories high, the main building being 40 x 75 ft., and the wing 30 x 70 ft. It is fitted with an eighty horsepower boiler in a 20 x 40 ft. boiler house, and a twenty horse-power engine. Mr. Levan manufactures the finest grade of glues, and his goods are in demand all over the United States. He employs from ten to fifteen skilled workmen.

Mr. Levan married Clara R. Hartman, daughter of Daniel Hartman, of Reading, and they reside at No. 1114 Perkiomen avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Levan have these children: Estella May, Ruth Adell, Lee DeWitt, Elsie Margaret, Russell Joseph, Mary Elizabeth and William H. Mr. Levan is a Republican. He is a member of Zion's U. B. Church, and takes an active part in its work, having been organist and chorister for fifteen years, and superintendent of the Sunday school for twelve years. He is a member of the Knights of Malta, the Knights of Friendship Camp No. 212, P. O. S. of A., the Maccabees, and the Jr. O. U. A. M.

FRANKLIN HAAS, farmer and shoemaker above Monocacy, in Amity township, Berks county, was born where he now lives Oct. 5, 1845. The name Haas is also spelled Haws, but Haas is the more common spelling. The early home of the family was in Germany.

George Haas, according to the Federal census report of 1790, was a resident of Ruscombmanor township, Berks county, and was the head of a family consisting of five persons, including himself and wife, Catharine, and three sons under sixteen years of age. George Haas was a farmer, and is probably buried at Lobachsville. His three sons were: (1) Abraham is mentioned in full below. (2) George made his home in Ruscombmanor township, and there died in 1859, his will on record in Will Book 10, page 583, making ample provision for his second wife, Susanna, and children—Reuben, William, George, Joel, James, Elizabeth, Louisa and Susanna. (3) Johannes, born May 15, 1791, was a peddler, and died Jan. 7, 1862, and was buried at Friedensburg, as were also his wife Catharine Eshbach (1794-1853) and daughter Maria (1817-1853). Joel Haas, son of George and Susanna, and grandson of George the founder, had a son who now operates the Bertolet mill near Friedensburg, in Oley township; his wife, Elizabeth Minner, has borne him six children—Allen, Howard, Edwin, Eli, Lizzie and Grace.

Abraham Haas, son of George, was born Sept. 13, 1788, and died March 13, 1855. He was a stone mason by trade, and owned a small tract of land in Oley township, near Friedensburg. He married Maria Laucks, born Feb. 5, 1792, and died on her birthday Feb. 5, 1847. They are both buried at Friedensburg. They had thirteen children, namely: David; Henrietta, born 1814, died 1851, unmarried; Daniel, born 1815, died 1851; Maria, born 1819, m. Daniel Nine, and died 1851; Willi never married; Emma m. Levi Youse; Jemima, born 1827, died 1851; Catharine m. Wister Tallie; Joel L., born 1831, died 1901; Anna Rebecca, born 1833, m. Aaron M. Rhoads, and died 1903; Amelia m. Daniel Hoppes; Jeremiah, born 1826, died unmarried 1851; and Charles died aged two years.

David Haas, son of Abraham, was born in Oley township, Oct. 6, 1811, and died Sept. 26, 1887. By trade he was a stone mason, and this he followed the greater part of his time around Amity township. He bought the farm which is now the property of his son Franklin in 1840, but it then consisted of but fifteen acres, to which, however, he in time added twenty-six acres more, the son having since added the remainder. He was a self-made man, and he died respected by all who knew him. He and his wife are buried at Amityville, where they were Lutheran members of the church, and he a member of the vestry. He married Catharine Francis, born Jan. 20, 1814, daughter of Jacob Francis, of Amity township, and she died Nov. 5, 1877. They had three children: Mary m. Jacob Guldin; Matilda, born 1843, died unmarried 1899; and Franklin.

Franklin Haas received his education in the public schools which he attended until he was sixteen years of age. He learned the shoemaking trade from his uncle William Francis, with whom he served eight months, when Mr. Francis gave up his work. Mr. Haas then went to Boyertown, and served a year as apprentice, after which he worked as journeyman at Douglassville for three years. In 1869 he began business for himself at his present home. He did a great deal of custom work for many years. He made his home with his parents as long as they lived, and after their deaths the farm became his, and he has divided his time between farming and his trade. He taught one man the trade, and while he himself has given up the making of new shoes, he still does cobbling for the neighbors. His farm is delightfully situated on the road from Monocacy to Yellowhouse, and it consists of ninety-three acres of good land, all brought to a high state of cultivation. Two streams of fresh water and plenty of wood are attractive features of the place. In politics Mr. Haas is a Democrat, and for six years he served as a member of the school board, and he has been delegate to a number of county conventions. With his family he attends Amityville Church, of which they are Lutheran members. He served as deacon and elder for a number of years.

On May 28, 1873, Mr. Haas married Margaret Rhoads, daughter of David S. and Rebecca (Beideman) Rhoads, of Amity. Their children are: David, a carpenter of Amity, m. Miani Matthias; Mary m. Henry Hartman, a carpenter, of Amity; Oscar, who lives near his father, m. Mame Beck; Walter, a farmer in Amity, m. Lizzie McLear; and James, who assists his father on the farm, is unmarried.

HARRY S. ESTERLY, a leading citizen of Reading, Pa., engaged in the manufacture of cakes, crackers and biscuit, with his brother, Romanus Esterly, under the firm name of the Reading Biscuit Company, also following the occupation of railway mail clerk, was born in Exeter township, in 1866, son of Henry and Sarah (Snyder) Esterly.

Harry S. Esterly attended the public schools and graded schools of Reading, and in 1882 and 1883 took a course at the Kutztown State Normal School. He began teaching school at the age of fifteen years, in Exeter township, continuing at this profession in all ten years. Mr. Esterly then took a civil service examination for the position of railway postal clerk, passing very high in rank, at Philadelphia, in 1894. In October, 1895, Mr. Esterly began running between Philadelphia and Pottsville, and was considered one of the most faithful and efficient clerks in the mail service. He resigned in May, 1907, to give his entire attention to his business. In April, 1903, Mr. Esterly formed a partnership with his brother, Romanus, and since this time they have been engaged in the manufacture of crackers, cakes and biscuit, the firm style being The Reading Biscuit Company. In this venture the Messrs. Esterly have been very successful, and their patronage extends throughout the State.

Mr. Harry S. Esterly was married in April, 1905, to Miss Sallie E. Kantner, daughter of W. C. and Sarah (Epler) Kantner, of No. 103 South Sixth street, Reading, and they have one son, Franklin Kantner. They have their home at No. 143 South Eighth street. Mr. Esterly is a Mason, being connected with Blue Lodge No. 62, Consistory, and Rajah Temple, Mystic Shrine. He is also a member of the Sons of America and the Knights of the Golden Eagle. In politics he is a Democrat, and his religious connection is with Schwartzwald Lutheran Church.

THOMAS LONG, proprietor of "Treichlersville Hotel," in Hereford township, Berks county, comes of one of the early settled families of Longswamp township, this county.

Prior to 1759 Jacob Long owned property in Longswamp township. He died in 1807, old in years, and his will is on record in Will Book A., page 530, executors: Abraham Long, his son, and John Wisler, his trusty friend. His wife's Christian name was Anna Catharine. The following nine children were mentioned in Jacob Long's will: Michael, deceased; Elizabeth, m. to John Groh; Maria Catharine, m. to Jost Miller; Maria Juliana, m. to George Geist, and mother of Jacob; Jacob; Henry; Frederick; Abraham; and Daniel.

Jacob Long had a brother John Nicholas Long, who settled in Rockland township at an early date, and died there in 1782, survived by his widow Elizabeth, and children: Mary Appolonia, m. to John Kercher; Jacob; Nicholas; John; and Henry. The three last named were under age at the time of their father's death. His will was witnessed by his brother Jacob, and Paul Grosscup, the ancestor of the Chicago jurist, Peter Grosscup.

Frederick Long, seventh child of Jacob, was born in Longswamp township, and lived in the "Long Valley" near Longswamp Church, where he is buried. He owned a seventy-acre farm on which he erected a set of buildings, among which is a small stone house still standing. He was a Reformed member of Longswamp Church. He married Rachel Wolp, and their children were: Peter, who never married; Samuel; Andrew, who lived on the homestead, had two children, William and Rosa, and was succeeded by his son, William.

Samuel Long, son of Frederick, was born on his father's farm in 1807 and died in 1895 at Klines Corner. He was a shoemaker in Longswamp in the vicinity of Longswamp Church. He owned Howerter's tannery in Long Valley, which adjoined the old stand. He was a Reformed member of Longswamp church. He married Eliza Fegley, daughter of Philip Fegley, of Longswamp township. She was born in 1813, and died in 1888. They had five sons and five daughters: Mary m. Nathan Poh; Henry lives near Trexler's charcoal furnace in Longswamp; Judith, deceased, m. Harry Schell; Frank died unmarried; Hettie died unmarried; Thomas; Eliza m. Allen Swoyer; Lewis; and one son and one daughter died small.

Thomas Long, son of Samuel, was born in Longswamp township July 20, 1850, and was reared upon his father's farm. He attended school for a short time only, usually three weeks in the winter. He worked for his parents until of age. For some years he butchered, and then for three years he hauled ore for the mines in Longswamp. In 1884 he began farming and followed it for twelve years in Richmond township, nine years in Rockland, where he owned a farm. In 1896 he entered the hotel business, conducting the "Longswamp Hotel" for six and one-half years, "Huff's Church Hotel" for one and one-half years. Since the spring of 1905 he has been proprietor of the "Treichlersville Hotel," an old stand, which before the Civil war was known as the "Sand Spring Hotel," so named because of a big strong spring 400 yards northeast of the present hotel, where the settlers used to get their silver sand to clean their tin ware. Mr. Long owns a farm at Huff's Church of sixty-five acres. This was originally a Fox homestead, later belonged to the Clemmers, and since 1902 has been Mr. Long's. He has it rented. He keeps a good hotel, and his table has won praise from many a weary traveler.

On Aug. 20, 1874, Mr. Long married Sarah Agnes Acker, daughter of Thomas Acker and his wife, Mary Fritch, of near Alburtis, Pa., and granddaughter of Nathan and Abbey (Dunkel) Acker. To this union there have been born six children: Lillie, widow of Edwin Ruppert, who was killed in a trolley car accident near Catasauqua, Pa., Dec. 15, 1904, in the thirty-third year of his age (she has two sons, George and Leroy); Rosa, who married William Gery, of Alburtis, and has one son Harvey and one daughter Helen; Jennie, who married George D. Shelly, of Philadelphia, and has a son, De Witt; Oliver and Thomas, who died, aged respectively six and three years, of croup, just one week apart; and George A., a student in school. Mr. Long is a member of Mertztown Lodge, K. P. He and his family are Reformed members of Longswamp church, where he has served faithfully four years as deacon.

GEORGE WASHINGTON LERCH, butcher and successful business man of Reading, Pa., was born in Bern township, May 1, 1863, son of John S. and Eliza (Tobias) Lerch, and grandson of John and Margaret (Steffy) Lerch.

(I) Johannes (John) Lerch was born Oct. 21, 1773, and died May 8, 1861, aged eighty-seven years, six months, seventeen days. He was a farmer in Bern township, where he owned a tract of land which later became the property of his son, John. Mr. Lerch was active in church affairs and was instrumental in the establishment of Epler's Church, of which he was a member and officer, and where both he and his wife are buried. He married Margaret Steffy, born Dec. 11, 1774, died Sept. 23, 1844, aged sixty-nine years, nine months, twelve days. Their children were: Rebecca, m. to Jared Yarnell; Hannah, m. to Peter McKinney; Harriet, m. to John Wissner; Polly, m. to William Hafer; Catherine, m. to William Hafer, as his second wife; John S.

(II) John S. Lerch, father of George W., was born Aug. 23, 1808, in Bern township, and died there Feb. 9, 1876, aged sixty-seven years, five months and sixteen days. He was a farmer and owned a small tract of land, where he lived and died. He was married in Bern township, in the church of which he was an official member. His wife, Eliza Tobias, born Dec. 9, 1828, daughter of Jacob and Henrietta (Schmaltz) Tobias, died March 11, 1869, aged forty years, three months, two days. Their children were: Hannah, m. to Joseph Barr, of State Hill; Emma, deceased; Lizzie, deceased; Catherine, m. to Reuben Albright, deceased; John, deceased; Deborah, m. to Henry S. Riegel, of Cumru township; Clara, m. to Frank Krick, of Sinking Spring; George W.; Margaret, of Reading; Annie L., m. to Ernest Bechtel, son of John R. Bechtel, of Reading; Charles W., who was adopted by Jared Yarnell, when quite young, and is known as Charles W. (Lerch) Yarnell, and is now alderman of Reading.

(III) George Washington Lerch was reared upon his father's farm, until he was sixteen years of age, attending public school. When he was sixteen he removed to Reading and entered the employ of John Adams, a butcher, remaining with him two years learning his trade. He was then three years at Leitheiser's butchering establishment on Penn street, and on Oct. 20, 1884, he commenced in business for himself at No. 408 North Ninth street, where he has since continued, building up a large trade. In 1887 he purchased the building which has a frontage of twenty feet on North Ninth street. In addition he also owns his residence at No. 410 North Ninth street. Mr. Lerch kills three beeves, six calves and five hogs each week, to meet the demands of his trade. In addition to his Ninth street store, he has one at Ninth and Buttonwood streets which he operates as a market house. His trade, which is a large one, is constantly growing, and he has been successful from the very beginning.

In politics Mr. Lerch is a Democrat, and in religious matters he and his family are members of the First Reformed Church of Reading.

In 1892 Mr. Lerch married Jennie Ann Greisimer, born in Reading, who died July 24, 1904, aged thirty-one years, daughter of William Greisimer, and they had three children: Eremenie, Palmer and Bruce. Mr. Lerch m. (second) Theresa Bachman, daughter of John Bachman of Reading. No children have been born of the second marriage. Mr. Lerch is among the progressive, public-spirited business men of Reading, and the success which has come to him is but the just reward of his years of hard work, intelligently directed. Both Mr. and Mrs. Lerch are widely known and very highly respected in church and social circles.

JACOB W. HENNE, a business man of Strausstown, Berks county, was born there Feb. 11, 1858, son of Moses and Leah (Feick) Henne. The family has long been settled in upper Berks county, his great-grandfather, John Henne, having lived in that section.

George Henne, son of John, lived in what was then Bern township, near Shartlesville, died there, and is buried at St. Michael's Church. He was a farmer and carpenter by occupation. He married Mary Grasy, and to them were born six children; Elias died at Shartlesville; Levi died in Schuylkill county; Joel died at Shartlesville; Moses is mentioned below; James died in the West; Rachel married Solomon Seyfert.

Moses Henne, father of Jacob W., was born June 7, 1828, in Upper Bern township, died Sept. 3, 1901, and is buried at the Blue Mountain Church, Strausstown. When a young man he followed farming, but later he engaged in the hotel business at Strausstown, continuing in that line for a period of thirty-seven years, and he was very well known and much respected. He married Leah Feick, daughter of Christian and Elizabeth (Shade) Feick, born Oct. 10, 1828; Mrs. Henne is still living at Strausstown. To this union were born children as follows: Sarah m. Wilson Keener, a carpenter; Emma m. Howard F. Henne, a shoemaker; Cassie and Kate are unmarried; Dianna m. C. V. Reber, an undertaker, of Strausstown; Mary is unmarried; William died in 1899; Jacob W. is in business at Strausstown.

Jacob W. Henne attended the public schools of his home locality, and after leaving school was first employed with his father. He then learned cigar-making, which trade he followed for a period of twenty-five years, during twenty of which he was engaged as a manufacturer at Strausstown. In 1899, Mr. Henne embarked in the carriage business, which he has since continued, dealing largely in buggies, carriages and harness, at Strausstown, and since 1901 he has also conducted a general store there, having a large and well selected stock.

Mr. Henne married Rebecca Schaeffer, daughter of Mr. Jacob Schaeffer and wife (whose maiden name was Potteiger), of Jefferson township. He is a Lutheran member of Zion's Blue Mountain Church, Strausstown, Pa., and is a Republican in political sentiment.

RHEIN. The emigrant ancestor of the well-known Rhein family in Berks county was David Rhein, who came to America from the Palatinate of Germany in 1752, settling in Reading, Pa. Here he married, and to him were born two sons: Daniel and Henry. David Rhein was a cabinetmaker by occupation, and also conducted the first undertaking establishment in the town of Reading, manufacturing himself the coffins used in his business. He was a prominent figure of his day, and was a man of powerful build. A good citizen and upright man, he held the respect and esteem of all with whom he came into contact.

Henry Rhein, his son, married a Miss Ebling, and they became the parents of these children: Elizabeth, m. to a Mr. Granger; Polly, m. to a Mr. Shadle; Peter; Daniel; and Henry (2). Henry Rhein was also a cabinetmaker, following in the foot-steps of his father throughout life, and being as well equipped both mentally and physically. He was a member of the German Reformed Church. Henry Rhein (2), son of Henry, followed the same business as his father and grandfather before him, continuing the occupation of cabinet-maker in Reading all of his life. He was noted for his honest business methods and many other sterling qualities, and was respected by all. Mr. Rhein married Margaret Shearer, daughter of John Shearer, and to this union were born children as follows: Henry, m. to Emma Stauffer; Amelia, m. to John Duth, a cabinet-maker, who died in Philadelphia, and had one son, James R. Duth, who is now living retired in the city of Reading; and Rebecca S. In religious belief Mr. and Mrs. Rhein were members of the German Reformed Church.

Mrs. Rebecca S. Miller, youngest daughter of Henry Rhein, was educated in the schools of the city, and all of her life was greatly interested in the science of Phrenology. She was also well known as a floriculturist. She died May 4, 1907.

CLAYTON C. LUDWIG, an energetic young business man of the city of Reading, Pa., formerly of the Franklin Specialty Company, was born at Tower City, Schuylkill county, in 1875, son of John B. and Katie (Loose) Ludwig, the former of whom died Jan. 30, 1907. The children in their family were as follows: Eliza, John, Peter, Sallie, Harry, Rose, Clayton C., Charles, Mary, Emma and Olive.

Clayton C. Ludwig attended the public schools in the coal regions, and for a time was employed in the coal mines. When thirteen years of age he came to Reading with his parents, and learned the cigar-making trade, at which he worked until 1901, in which year he engaged in business with Luther A. Rhode, at No. 343 North Eighth street, this being the origin of the Franklin Specialty Company. These partners remained together for a year, at the end of which time Mr. Ludwig bought Mr. Rhode's interest, taking Mr. H. E. Fahrbach into partnership. They located at Nos. 807-809 Cherry street, in April, 1903, and here they continued until Jan. 25, 1909, when they sold out to parties from Newark.

The Franklin Specialty Company as conducted by Messrs. Clayton & Fahrbach manufactured hammers, hardware and household specialties, and for workmanship, style, quality and durability had one of the finest lines of goods on the market. Among the company's products were found the "Cracker Jack" hammer and claw hammer, the "Korker" hammer, the "Winner ½ lb." hammer, the "Franklin" hammer and the "Hub" shoe hammer; the "Royal" iron stand and the "Acme" pot stand; the "Rambler" fishing-rod holder; the "Imperial" roller towel rack; the "Dandy" ice pick; the "Full Weight" 1lb. hammer; the "Marvel" rotary nutmeg grater, and many other specialties so necessary to the house-wife. They made a specialty of job, nickel, brass and copper plating, oxidizing, bronzing and electroplating; and their work was of the highest grade. The company employed from fifteen to twenty skilled hands at all times.

Mr. Ludwig is a member of the Aerie No. 66, Fraternal Order of Eagles, and the Red Men, and is president of the Electric Wheelmen. He makes his home with his mother at No. 304 North Ninth street.

PHAON LOY, a farmer along the Ontelaunee, above Trexler, in Albany township, Berks county, was born at New Bethel Church, in Albany township, July 6, 1852, son of Michael and Polly (Behler) Loy.

The name Loy was originally spelled Ley. From the records in the Berks county courthouse is gleaned the following: Mathias Loy, of Greenwich township, died in 1783, and his will is recorded in Book B, page 74, his wife Anna Maria and son George being the executors of his large estate. The following children are mentioned —George, to whom was given 150 acres of land; Matthias, who had a wife Mary, and to them was given a tract of 150 acres; Adam; Margaret; Catharine and Mary. The widow Anna Maria made her will in 1786, and died in 1787.

Adam Loy, grandfather of Phaon, lived in Albany township and there owned the farm that is now the property of Levi Sechler, near the New Bethel (Corner) Church. He was an officer in the church, overseer of the poor for Albany township in 1817, and was a prominent and highly esteemed man. He died in Albany township in 1844, and his will was probated April 22, 1844, its witnesses being Benjamin Lenhart and Heinrich Schmit. He married Susanna Focht, and their children were: Jeremias, Joseph, Michael, Adam, William, Samuel, Jacob, Elizabeth (m. Michael Hendricks), Polly (m. Samuel Unger), and Susanna.

Michael Loy, son of Adam, was born on his father's farm in Albany township. He began farming on the home farm, and after some years sold it and purchased what is now the Wallace E. Bailey farm, where he lived three years. He then purchased the farm on which he died, and which is now the property of his son, Phaon. In politics he was a Democrat, and for many years served as supervisor and as tax collector. He was a Lutheran in religious belief, belonging to New Bethel Church, in which he served as deacon, elder, trustee and member of the building committee. He married Polly Behler, and their children were: Louisa lives with her brother Phaon; William, deceased, m. Mary Graver, and had children—James, Clara, Annie, Mary and Herbert; Phaon; and Ellen m. Lenius Reinhard, a carpenter at Trexlertown.

Phaon Loy grew to manhood after the manner of farmer boys, working on the home farm and attending the district school. In the spring of 1878 he began farming for himself in Jackson county, Iowa, where he lived for five years. In 1883 he returned to Berks county, and began the cultivation of his father's farm, where he now lives. Until 1901 he rented the farm, and in that year bought it from the estate. It consists of 141 acres, located along the road from Kempton via Trexler to Wanamakers. The present set of buildings were built by a former owner, Samuel Brobst. Mr. Loy plants from fifteen to eighteen acres in potatoes.

In politics Mr. Loy is a Democrat, and for four years served as school director, during which time he was president and treasurer of the board. Fraternally he belongs to Lodge No. 544, Independent Americans, at Kempton. He and his family are Lutheran members of New Bethel (Corner) Church, in which for a number of years he was deacon and elder.

On March 1, 1879, Mr. Loy married Louisa Miller, daughter of Moses and Sibylla (Miller) Miller, granddaughter of Major William Miller, of Hamburg. To this union have been born: Albert L., m. to Mary Bauscher, of Kempton; Sallie, m. to William Kunkel, of Albany township; William M., a graduate of the Keystone State Normal School, Kutztown, class of 1908, and now teaching in Albany township; Mahlon O.; Verna E., a student in the Normal School; and Arline M.

CURTIS E. KRAUSS, local superintendent of the Otto Eisenlohr & Bros. cigar factory, Reading, was born in Lehigh county, Pa., Dec. 13, 1872.

Balthaser Krauss, the ancestor of the American family of the name, was a son of Widow Anna Krauss, who came to Pennsylvania in 1733. On Jan. 16, 1736, he married Susanna Hoffman, and their children were: Rosina, born April 10, 1737; Susanna, Aug. 29, 1738; Barbara, July 22, 1742; Balthaser, Nov. 28, 1743; and Maria, July 17, 1750. Balthaser Krauss died Feb. 25, 1774, and his wife April 14, 1791.

Balthaser Krauss, son of Balthaser the emigrant, was born Nov. 28, 1743. On June 14, 1769, he married Susanna, daughter of H. Heinrich Yeakel, and their children were: John, born March 1, 1770; Andrew, June 21, 1771; Balthaser, Nov. 10, 1772 (died Aug. 26, 1779); Regina, 1775 (died 1807); Helena, 1776; Rosanna, 1780; George, Feb. 23, 1783; and Lydia, July 3, 1786.

John Krauss, son of Balthaser and Susanna (Yeakel), was born March 1, 1770. On May 11, 1795, he married Rosina Yeakel, daughter of Michael Yeakel, and their children were: Sarah, born 1795 (died 1798); Maria, Jan. 7, 1798; a daughter, 1800 (died unnamed); Anthony, May 23, 1803; Daniel, Oct. 16, 1805 (died April 3, 1808); a daughter, 1811 (died 1811); a son, 1813 (died 1813); Joseph, Nov. 14, 1814; and Lydia.

Andrew Krauss, son of Balthaser and Susanna (Yeakel), born June 21, 1771, married Nov. 30, 1797, Susanna, daughter of Andrew Schultz. Their children were: Regina, born 1798; Leah, 1799; Joel, Oct. 11, 1801; George, Dec. 14, 1803; Samuel; Rebecca, Nov. 20, 1805; John; and David, Jan. 12, 1821.

George Krauss, son of Balthaser and Susanna (Yeakel) and the next in direct line to Curtis E. Krauss, of Reading, was born Feb. 23, 1783, in Upper Montgomery county.

Jacob Krauss, son of George, was born May 9, 1807, in Kraussdale, Montgomery county, where he engaged in farming all his life. Like his ancestors he belonged to the Schwenkfelder religious society. He married Lydia Krieble, and they had these children: Amos, born March 21, 1833; Amanda, June 19, 1834; Selina, June 1, 1837; Samuel, Aug. 23, 1839; Jacob, Feb. 1, 1842; Catharine,

March 21, 1844; and Mary, Oct. 23, 1846. Jacob Krauss died in 1879.

Amos Krauss, son of Jacob and Lydia (Krieble), was born in Lehigh county, March 21, 1833. His early years were spent on his father's farm, and in 1883 he moved to Quakertown, where he followed farming. For some years he taught school in Upper Milford township, Lehigh county. He is now living retired in his own home. He is a man of high repute, and has been a good and useful citizen. His wife, Sophia Edelman, is a daughter of John Edelman, of Montgomery county. They had nine children: Amanda, m. to Frank Ackerman; Ambrose, who died in infancy; Preston, of Philadelphia; Morris, of Quakertown; Percifur, of Philadelphia; Puella, m. to L. H. Bartholomew, and died in August, 1906; Virginia, m. to Francis C. Detweiler, of Philadelphia; Curtis E.; and Sylvia, m. to Jeremiah Wissler, of Souderton, Pennsylvania.

Curtis E. Krauss was educated in the public schools of Quakertown, whither his parents had removed when he was eleven years of age. At the age of seventeen he learned the cigar maker's trade from Henry Sommer & Son, with whom he remained about two years. He then worked at different factories in Quakertown, and the surrounding district, after which he connected himself with the H. Smeal Cigar Manufacturing Company, of Philadelphia, as general manager, remaining there four years. The following two years he was in the preparation department of Graham & Ernst, cigar manufacturers at Quakertown, acquiring a varied and valuable experience. He then, June 1, 1904, became foreman of Otto Eisenlohr & Bros'. factory at Richlandtown, Bucks county, remaining there until March 1st of the following year, when he became the general manager and superintendent of the Otto Eisenlohr & Bros'. factory at Reading, the second largest of its kind in that city. The plant is located at Seventh and Washington streets, the main building is 55x100 feet, and the annex is 30x45 feet, all four stories high. The interior is finished in hard wood, and everything is arranged on a strictly sanitary basis. There are about 400 persons employed, and over all Mr. Krauss has entire charge.

In 1895 Mr. Krauss married Miss Lizzie Heist, daughter of Henry C. and Leanna Heist, of Quakertown. Two children have been born to them: Herman Lloyd and Christine Leome. Socially Mr. Krauss belongs to St Bernard Commandery, No. 49, Knights of Malta, of Quakertown; and Chandler Lodge, No. 227, F. & A. M., of Reading. He and his family are members of Trinity Lutheran Church. The family home is at No. 723 North Fourth street, Reading.

ADAM A. KURTZ, who has been a lifelong resident of Cumru township, Berks county, was born on the old Kurtz homestead in this township, Aug. 31, 1862, son of Samuel and Catherine (Hains) Kurtz, and grandson of John Kurtz.

Samuel Kurtz was born May 14, 1814, in Cumru township, and died Dec. 17, 1884, and was buried at Yocom's Church. He was a lifelong farmer in his native township, where for many years he owned the old homestead. Mr. Kurtz married Catherine Hains, who died Dec. 4, 1884, aged sixty-seven years, seven days, daughter of Samuel Hains, of near Shoemakersville, Pa. To this union were born these children: Elizabeth, unmarried; Annie, m. to John Fritz, of Shillington; David, who lives at No. 317 South Fifth street, Reading; Samuel, of Spring Mount, Pa.; Catherine, m. to Rufus Yost, of Spring township; Mary, m. (first) to George Fisher (deceased) and (second) to Henry Fenstermacher, of Reading; Lydia, m. to Evan Spohn, of Sinking Spring; Rosa, m. to Morris Moser, of Wilkes Barre, Pa.; and Adam Amos.

Adam Amos Kurtz obtained his education in the township schools, and until eighteen years of age worked on the home farm. He then learned the blacksmith's trade, which he followed for four years. In 1887 he commenced work at the Reading Pipe Mill, where he has continued as a pipe cutter to the present time. In political matters Mr. Kurtz is a Republican, and fraternally he is connected with Chamber No. 28, Knights of Friendship, and Reading Tent of the Maccabees. Mr. Kurtz and his family are members of Yocom's Union Church, he being of the Lutheran denomination. In 1891 he erected a brick residence on Fern street in Oakbrook, and in 1897 he purchased another large brick residence located next to the one in which he lives.

On Sept. 19, 1886, Mr. Kurtz was married to Emily Tyack, daughter of James Tyack, a foreman in the Radenbush mines in Cumru township, who was born in London, England, Jan. 18, 1822, and died in 1874. He was married in St. Tillery, England, in 1843, to Grace Laity, born Nov. 24, 1827, daughter of Richard Laity, of England, and she now resides with her son-in-law, Mr. Kurtz. Mr. and Mrs. Tyack had thirteen children, Mrs. Kurtz being the twelfth. To Mr. and Mrs. Adam A. Kurtz were born five children: Florence E., who died in infancy; Robert H., who died aged four years, two months; Ernest J., who died aged fourteen months; and Harry A., born March 20, 1896, and Annie G., born Feb. 21, 1899, who are now attending school.

WILLIAM DEAL JESBERG, a prominent and influential citizen of Reading, Pa., who is engaged in the wholesale liquor business at No. 1062 North Tenth street, was born in 1860, in Reading, son of John and Elizabeth (Deal) Jesberg, natives of Wurtemberg, Germany.

John Jesberg, who came to this country when a young man, followed trucking for the greater part of his life, also conducting a hotel in Reading. He died in 1890, aged seventy-four years, and his wife in April, 1903, when seventy-three years old, both in the faith of the Lutheran Church. Mr. and Mrs. Jesberg had eleven children, of whom seven are now living: John; William D.; Maggie, m. to Charles Benzel; Rosie, m. to John Hiller; Elizabeth, m. to Peter Gift, deceased; Harry, m. to Ellen Miller, deceased; and Annie, m. to Harry Weiler. In political matters Mr. Jesberg was a Democrat.

William D. Jesberg was educated in the public schools of Reading. In 1891 he opened the "Montgomery House," at No. 938 North Eighth street, where he continued for twelve years, and spent one year at No. 815 Penn street. In 1894 he engaged in the wholesale liquor business at his present stand, No. 1062 North Tenth street, Reading, where he carries a full and complete stock of imported and domestic wines and liquors. Since 1907 the firm has been W. D. Jesberg & Son.

Mr. Jesberg married Miss Delilah Crum, and two children were born to this union: Edward, with the firm of W. D. Jesberg & Son; and Elsie, who died at the age of eight months. Mr. Jesberg is a member of St. Mark's Lutheran Church. He is very prominent in fraternal circles, and is a popular member of the Fraternal Order of Eagles; Friendship Chamber, No. 284, Knights of Friendship; Washington Camp, No. 163, P. O. S. of A.; Manangy Tribe, No. 316, I. O. R. M., of which he is treasurer; Columbia Accident Association; Twentieth Century Quakers, No. 2; Phœnix Accident Company; Saginaw, Mich., Accident Insurance Company; Marion Fire Company, of which he is treasurer; Independent Gun Club; Excelsior Beneficial Association, in which he serves as treasurer; White Swan Camping Club; Public Registry Company of Philadelphia; Red Men's Fraternal Insurance Association; Knights of Friendship Funeral Benefit Fund; and Eagles' Mountain Home Association.

HENRY D. FORTNA, one of the best known hotel men of Heidelberg township, Berks county, who is successfully conducting the popular "Eagle Hotel," at Robesonia, was born April 28, 1849, in Cornwall township, Lebanon Co., Pa., son of Henry and Elisa (Kleiser) Fortna.

Henry Fortna was born about 1813, son of David Fortna, the latter a resident of Lebanon county, who was of French extraction. Henry Fortna, the father, engaged in farming and milling all his life, and in the latter business was especially successful, selling his property for $18,000; most of this, however, he lost through unwise loans. He was one of the influential Democrats of his section. Mr. Fortna died aged sixty-nine years, ten months and ten days, and was buried at Lebanon. He married Elisa Kleiser, and to this union there were born the following children: Catherine m. Henry Yeager, of Lebanon; Louisa m. Henry Yocum; Rose, deceased, m. David Hoffman; Cyrus died unmarried; Eliza, deceased, m. Elias Humma; Henry D.; and George is deceased.

Henry D. Fortna was reared to farming and milling pursuits, and continued to work for his parents until twenty-three years old, when he commenced driving a bottling team, which work he continued for some time, and in 1873 he engaged in the bottling business on his own account. In this he was engaged for some sixteen years. He had a large business and generally had four or five men working for him. In 1882 he first engaged in the hotel business at Lebanon, where he conducted the "Farmers Hotel" for one year, when he sold out. In 1886 he came to Berks county and located at Womelsdorf, where for three years he was proprietor of the "American House." Then after seven years spent in conducting the "Monocacy Hotel" he returned to Lebanon county and for four years resided at the old home. In September, 1903, he purchased the "Eagle Hotel" from Harry Buch, at Robesonia, where he has built up a large and lucrative trade. This hotel is a modern structure with all the latest improvements, has thirty-two rooms and accommodates many boarders. During the summer months Mr. Fortna's hotel is especially well patronized. Mr. Fortna sets one of the finest tables in the township, keeps his rooms scrupulously clean, and as he himself is genial, whole-souled and courteous it is easy to see why his hotel is so well liked.

In 1871 Mr. Fortna was married to Emma Gebhart, daughter of Edward and Mary (Louser) Gebhart, of Lebanon, and to this union there have been born children as follows: Annie m. Peter Shurr, of Stowe, Pa.; Mamie m. Daniel Shirey, of Douglassville; Carrie m. Albert Keinard, of Stowe, Pa.; Emma m. John Richard, of Stowe; Jennie is unmarried at home; Harry D. assists his father; and Edward W., a cigar maker by trade, is at home.

AMBROSE L. RHOADS, a representative business man of Reading, Pa., dealing in butter, eggs, cheese, lard and smoked meats at No. 333 Penn street, was born in 1857, in Earl township, Berks county, son of Enos and Elizabeth (Long) Rhoads.

Mr. Rhoads was educated in the schools of his native township, after leaving which he engaged in the huckstering business, handling butter, eggs, etc., and continued thus employed until 1882, when he came to Reading. Here from 1883 to 1892 he worked with his brother, Jonathan L. Rhoads, and then purchased the latter's interest, since which time he has continued alone under the style of A. L. Rhoads & Co. Although he deals in produce of all kinds, Mr. Rhoads makes a specialty of butter and eggs. He is well and favorably known throughout Reading and the surrounding country, and has a large and increasing business, which he conducts with excellent judgment. He has always taken an interest in the welfare of the city and county, and is a leading Democrat. His business acumen and integrity would well fit him for any office, and in 1907 he was nominated and elected to the office of county controller. He has been a heavy tax payer in Reading for the past thirteen years, owning several properties. Mr. Rhoads attends St. Paul's Reformed Church, Reading. He is fraternally connected with Oley Lodge, No. 218, I. O. O. F.

Mr. Rhoads married Mrs. Kate (Kelchner) Rhoads, widow of his brother Jonathan L., by whom she had two children: Luther K., a druggist in Reading; and Ada, m. to John R. Melcher.

GEORGE WASHINGTON BEAR, a well-known and highly esteemed citizen of Hamburg, Berks county, who is successfully engaged in the hotel and restaurant business, was born Feb. 22, 1860, in the borough of Hamburg.

Hans Bear came to this country Sept. 20, 1743, on the ship "Phœnix" from Germany, and soon after landing settled in Weisenburg, Lehigh Co., Pa.

Jacob Bear, son of Hans and great-great-grandfather of George W., was a farmer of Weisenburg. He had six sons and six daughters, and to each of the former he was able to give a farm.

Johan Adam Bear, one of the six sons of Jacob, was born in Weisenburg in 1770, and in 1812 removed north of Kutztown, in Maxatawny township, Berks county. He married a Miss Knerr, and they had children as follows: Jonathan, Eva, John, Peter, Solomon, Lydia, Betsy, Charles, Susanna and Polly.

John Bear, son of Johan Adam, was an early resident of Albany township, Berks county, and was a carpenter by trade. He married Catherine Adam, daughter of Henry Adam. Their children were: Solomon, Sarah, Peter, Henry, Catherine, Joel, John, Nathan, Lucy, and Dr. Samuel A.

Nathan Bear, son of John and Catherine (Adam), was born in 1832, in Albany township, Berks county, and received his education in his native place. When about twenty-two years of age he located in Hamburg, and clerked in Major Beideman's store, where he remained until becoming engaged in the mercantile business for himself, in which he continued until 1884. At this time he removed to Wilmington, Del., to engage in the life insurance business, in which he successfully continued until a few years prior to his death, in 1903. Nathan Bear was an energetic, enterprising business man, honest and upright in his dealings, and a good citizen. He married Elvina Keller, daughter of Daniel and Catherine Keller, and nine children were born to this union: Catherine died in infancy; Lizzie m. James Yeager, of Wilmington, Del.; Miss Annie resides in Wilmington; Lovina m. James Kelchner (deceased), of Hamburg; Phoebe m. George Bowman, of Hamburg; John A. m. Lillie Hains, of Johnstown; George Washington; Calvin D. m. Lizzie Francis; and Thomas J.

George Washington Bear was educated in the public schools of Hamburg, and later attended Oley Academy at Friedensburg, Berks county, leaving school at the age of seventeen years, to work in his father's dry goods and grocery store. Here he remained for a period of six years, and at the end of this time engaged in the hotel and restaurant business for himself, in which he has continued successfully to the present time. Mr. Bear is a good business man and an upright citizen. Personally he is a man of commanding appearance, standing six feet, one and one-half inches, and being proportioned accordingly, weighing 215 pounds. He has a kindly, genial, courteous manner and has many friends in the community.

On Jan. 23, 1883, Mr. Bear was married to Annie C. Trexler, daughter of Nelson and Cordelia (Fister) Trexler, and to this union have been born: Hattie W., Ralph J., Harold T., and Nelson W. Nelson Trexler and his wife were the parents of these children: Ella, m. to Dr. J. A. Hatzfield, of Pueblo, Colo.; Annie, m. to Mr. Bear; Lizzie, m. to A. P. Westley, of Hamburg; James G., m. to Millie Rumbel; and Franklin J., m. to Laura Hollenbach.

THOMAS J. FESSLER, of the well known Excelsior Bottling Company, Nos. 37 and 39 Maple street, Reading, Pa., was born in Sheridan, Berks county, in 1864, and came to Reading with his father in 1872. He attended the public schools and received a fair education, and his first employment was with the Cunningham Bottling Company, of Philadelphia. He was employed at different establishments until 1884, when he engaged in business at his present place. He owns the latest and most improved machinery for bottling beer, porter, brown stout, ale and all carbonated drinks. He employs ten skilled workmen in his fine two-story brick building, and the volume of work requires six wagons for delivery.

Mr. Fessler was married in 1886, in Reading, to Miss Carrie Saul, of this city, and they have these children.

Mabel, Candas and William. In politics Mr. Fessler is a Democrat. He is fraternally connected with the Eagles, the Red Men, the Odd Fellows, the American Order of Owls, and the Elks. His residence is at No. 137 South Ninth street, Reading, and he is well known and highly esteemed in the city. He has been successful financially, and as a good citizen is greatly respected. He is one of Reading's representative men.

FRANKLIN S. STUMP, a highly esteemed citizen and representative farmer of Albany township, Berks Co., Pa., where he operates an excellent farm of 148 acres, was born Sept. 26, 1862, in Albany township, Berks county, son of Nathan and Mary (Miller) Stump.

John and Elizabeth (Bausher) Stump, the great-grandparents of Franklin S. Stump, are buried at Dunkel's Church, where many of the family name are now at rest. Their son Samuel, born Oct. 16, 1794, died March 5, 1864, married Rachel Leiby, born April 15, 1801, died May 22, 1875, daughter of Daniel and Elizabeth Leiby. Although the three wives all bore the same name they were no relation.

Franklin S. Stump was educated in the public schools of his native township and the Keystone State Normal School, and for ten terms thereafter, nine in Berks and one in Schuylkill county, he was engaged in school teaching. Subsequently, however, he embarked in agricultural pursuits, and he is now engaged therein, being a modern, practical farmer. With his family he attends the Lutheran Church at Lenhartsville.

In 1885 Mr. Stump married Mary Ann Bausher, born in 1865, daughter of Simon and Anna (Dietrich) Bausher, granddaughter of Peter and Elizabeth (Foos) Bausher and great-granddaughter of Philip Bausher on the paternal side, and granddaughter of Michael and Hannah (Will) Dietrich, great granddaughter of Johan Michael and Sophia (Brunner) Dietrich, and great-great-granddaughter of Adam and Maria Barbara (Steinbruck) Dietrich on the maternal side. Mrs. Stump's father was born Nov. 2, 1841, and her mother March 9, 1841.

Mr. and Mrs. Stump are the parents of ten children, as follows: Gertie, born Dec. 10, 1885; Robert, May 9, 1887; Mamie, Dec. 9, 1888; George, Aug. 21, 1890 (died April 17, 1892): Annie April 3, 1892; Cora, March 26, 1894; Edna, Nov. 8, 1897; Helen, Aug. 25, 1899; William, July 15, 1901; and Harvey, July 2, 1903.

LEONARDO VERRENDO, an Italian merchant of the city of Reading, Pa., whose place of business is situated at No. 153 Penn street, was born not far from Naples, in Southern Italy, Oct. 11, 1867, son of Nicoli and Mariantonia (Diiassia) Verrendo, the former of whom, who resides in the old country, owns much land in Castelfranco, in Miscano, Province of Benevento, Italy.

Leonardo Verrendo was educated in the schools of his native country, and in his youth worked for about five years at butchering with his maternal uncle. He then returned to his home to work with his father until 1888 when he came to this country. His father had come to this country previously, but prior to his son's landing in New York had returned to his native country again. Mr. Verrendo went from New York to Michigan City, where he was employed as a railroad laborer, following this line of work for two years, and at the end of this time made his way to the anthracite coal district. Here he engaged in coal mining at Hazleton until one year later, when during the riots he engaged in the mercantile business. One year later he came to Reading, engaging in business near the Berks County Court House on North Sixth street, continuing there for five and one-half years. In 1902 Mr. Verrendo located on his present property, which he purchased of Joseph Shearer. Mr. Verrendo stocked his place with a fine and complete line of domestic and imported fruits, and he has been very successfully engaged in business here to the present time.

Mr. Verrendo was married Nov. 15, 1892, to Anna Gindilesca, a native of the province of Potenza, Italy, and they have had four children, one of whom survives, Nicoli, aged eight years. Mr. Verrendo was naturalized a citizen of the United States Sept. 28, 1896, and is a Republican in politics. He is very popular in his community, and is considered a substantial business man.

CALVIN OSCAR BERNDT, a substantial citizen of Maiden-creek township, Berks county, who is carrying on operations on the old Berndt homestead, near Calcium P. O., was born on his present property, son of Herman and Lydia (Gruber) Berndt.

Samuel Berndt, grandfather of Calvin O., was the owner and operator of the Berndt home, where his life was spent in agricultural pursuits, as have been those of his son and grandson. He was married to a Miss Dunkel, and they had the following children: Anna and Joel died single; Kate, deceased, m. Abraham Heckman; Elizabeth, deceased, m. Daniel Reiff; Herman; and Stephen m. (first) Hannah Kohler, (second) Mary Kohler (sister to his first wife), and (third) a Miss Bush.

Herman Berndt was born and reared on the old home place, and after many years spent in farming, now resides near the home property which his son is engaged in operating. He married Lydia Gruber, daughter of William Gruber, and they had two children: Miss Katie; and Calvin Oscar.

Calvin Oscar Berndt was married Sept. 28, 1895, to Sarah Wanner, daughter of John and Hannah (Dreibelbis) Wanner, and a descendant of some of the oldest families of Berks county. Eight children have been born to this union: Herbert, born Sept. 14, 1897; Hettie Victoria; Samuel; Sarah Anna; Ellen Lydia; Calvin Herman; William John; and ————. The family are members of Blandon Reformed Church. Mr. Berndt is a Democrat in politics, but has never aspired to office.

PENTA & RADNAZZO. Among the flourishing business concerns of Reading, Pa., is that of Penta & Radnazzo, of No. 44 North Fifth street, dealers in foreign and domestic fruits, nuts, canned goods, etc.

Mr. Radnazzo was born Sept. 4, 1863, near Naples, Italy, and came to this country in 1884, settling in Reading. He married in his native country, Carmella Repucci, and they have three children—Maria Madalena, Maria Giuseppa and Francesco. In their religious belief they are Roman Catholics. Mr. Radnazzo received his naturalization papers in 1890, and is a Republican in politics.

Mr. Penta, who was born Nov. 1, 1860, in Italy, came to America in 1884, and after a short time engaged in business with Mr. Radnazzo. He was married in 1894 to Rosina Runo, and to them have been born three children: Lorenzo A., Michael G. and Giovanni. In religious belief they are Roman Catholics. In 1896 Mr. Penta received his naturalization papers, and like his partner is a Republican.

Messrs. Penta and Radnazzo are among the enterprising business men of Reading. Their place of business is fully stocked with a fine line of foreign and domestic fruits and nuts, canned salmon and other delicacies, and they deal both wholesale and retail. They have an excellent reputation for fair business dealings, and their business in the city is constantly increasing. In addition to the lines above mentioned, they are agents for the Fabie Line and Folly Steamship Company, the Cunard Line, the White Star Line, the Italian Royal Mail Steamship Company, the Anchor Line, the Austrian & American Steamship Company, the Hamburg-American Line, and the La Veloce (Italian Line). They transact a large amount of business for the Italian colony, especially in financial transactions, they being the medium through which much of the money goes to Italy from this city.

JOHN CALVIN HOFFEDITZ, one of the victims of the wreck of the Mystic Shriners excursion train at Honda, Cal., May 11, 1907, had long been collector for the Barbey Brewing Company, of Reading. He was born in Reading Feb. 24, 1854, and was the last survivor of the four children born to Capt. John C. A. and Emma (Reifsnyder) Hoffeditz.

Theodore Ludwig Hoffeditz, grandfather of John Calvin, was born in Germany, and came to America when eighteen years of age. He had learned the trade of piano maker in his native land, and he followed it in this country for a few years. Being a man of scholarly attainments he turned his attention to teaching school in the northern part of Berks county, after which he took up the study of theology in Philadelphia under a minister of the Reformed Church. He was engaged in Biblical instruction the remainder of his life, a period of forty-six years, and was one of the most active ministers of the Reformed Church at that time, being president of the Synod a number of times. He was one of of a committee, composed of Rev. Benjamin Schneck and himself, sent abroad to secure a German professor for the Mercersburg College, which resulted in their returning home with Rev. Dr. Philip Schaff, who later won distinction as a writer in America. The Rev. Mr. Hoffeditz was an earnest and eloquent advocate of the church, and while residing in Upper Mount Bethel township, Northampton county, he traveled as far as sixty miles to and from his charges, always making the journey on horseback. He was united in the holy bonds of wedlock with Julia Roth, who was born in Saucon township, Northampton county, in 1793. They had children as follows: Louisa, who is unmarried; Theodore C. W., a minister of the Reformed Church, now deceased; Matilda, deceased, who married and moved West; Maria W., deceased; Charles W. L., now living retired in Philadelphia; Pauline C., unmarried; Capt. John C. A., mentioned below; William B., deceased, a printer, who lived in Anaconda, Mont.; and Emma Julia, who resides in Lehigh county, Pa. The Rev. Mr. Hoffeditz died in 1858, and his wife survived him one year, passing away at the age of sixty-six years.

Capt. John C. A. Hoffeditz was born in Upper Mount Bethel township, Northampton county, April 5, 1829. His education was acquired in Nazareth Hall Academy, in Northampton county, and when he started out for himself he began to learn the trade of tanner and currier, which he followed for a few years. He came to the city of Reading in May, 1852, and embarked in the dry-goods business, at which he continued for three years, when he went into the wholesale liquor business, continuing at that for a period of twenty years. During that time he was also connected with oil development, and in 1865 was engaged in boring two wells in Canada, from which he realized handsome profits. In 1867 he became superintendent of the construction of the Grand Boulevard west of Central Park in New York City, being thus employed for about one year. In 1868 he became connected with the East Penn railroad, continuing until it came under the management of the Philadelphia & Reading Company, one year later. After closing out the liquor business, he, in partnership with his son, built a large factory in Reading, where they engaged in the manufacture of carriages for three or four years, since which he has lived a retired life. Prior to the Civil war he was connected with a cavalry company, and when the war broke out he organized in 1861 a company of cavalrymen, of which he was captain, and it was the first to be accepted by General Cameron, then Secretary of War, after the first battle of Bull Run. The organization left Reading as an independent company Aug. 3, 1861, but was soon attached to the 1st Pennsylvania Cavalry, and it served throughout the war. Captain Hoffeditz served faithfully eleven months, when he was incapacitated for further service by a disease of the throat. He was obliged to leave camp much against his will, and returned to his home. About half of this brave and patriotic company who left happy homes, and sacrificed the business in which they were engaged, gave up their lives in the defense of their country.

Captain Hoffeditz married Emma Reifsnyder, a native of Reading, and they became the parents of four children, of whom John Calvin was the last survivor. In politics Captain Hoffeditz was originally a Whig, but upon the organization of the Republican party he became a follower of Fremont and Lincoln. He has always taken an active part in the affairs of his party, and is at present assessor of the Seventh ward of Reading, the wealthiest ward in the city, and he has performed his duties in a manner satisfactory to all concerned. He also served twelve years as a member of the school board from the Seventh ward. Socially he is very prominent in the work of the Masonic fraternity, belonging to Chandler Lodge No. 227, F. & A. M. (of which he is the third oldest past officer living); Reading Chapter, No. 152, R. A. M.; and DeMolay Commandery, No. 9, K. T. He is a consistent member of the Reformed Church, to which his ancestors belonged.

John Calvin Hoffeditz received his education in the public schools of Reading, graduating from the high school in the class of 1873. His earlier education had been obtained in the Moravian school at Nazareth, in Northampton county, but on the removal of his parents to Reading he entered the public schools. He began life as a clerk and later became teller in the Farmers National Bank of Reading. Later he and Frank Godshall formed a partnership under the firm name of Hoffeditz & Godshall, for the manufacture of carriages, their place of business being located at the corner of Eighth and Cherry streets, Reading, for a number of years. In April, 1883, Mr. Hoffeditz became collector for the Barbey Brewing Company, and this position he filled until the time of his tragic death. He survived the terrible wreck some few days, and passed away May 23, 1907. He was a man highly respected by all, and his untimely death brought great sorrow to his many friends.

Mr. Hoffeditz became a member of Reading Lodge, No. 549, F. & A. M., of which he was master and treasurer; Reading Chapter, R. A. M., No. 152, of which he was high priest; De Molay Commandery, No. 9, K. T., in which he served as eminent commander and as trustee; and Rajah Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S. He was also a member of Progressive Lodge, I. O. O. F.; Meade Camp, Sons of Veterans; Royal Arcanum; Loyal Association; and Reading Lodge, B. P. O. E. He was a member of St. Paul's Memorial Church of Reading, and was an official in the church. In his earlier years he had been superintendent of the Sunday-school.

On Sept. 28, 1886, Mr. Hoffeditz married Miss Clara C. Boyer, daughter of Frank and Elizabeth (Clouser) Boyer, the former born in Bernville, son of Michael K. Boyer, and the latter a daughter of William and Elizabeth (Yerger) Clouser, of Reading. They resided at No. 106 North Eleventh street, where they had made their home after October, 1898.

DANIEL A. MOSSER, a contractor and builder, and former hotel proprietor, now living retired in West Reading, was born in Cumru township, July 7, 1842, son of John Mosser.

Nicholas Mosser, great-grandfather of Daniel A., came from Germany and settled in Brecknock township, Berks county. Tradition says he was a brother of that Mosser around whom centered the coal land litigation in Schuylkill county (mentioned in full in Mosser family sketch). Besides several daughters, he had two sons: Samuel, who died a bachelor; and John.

J. Calvin Hopkins

John Mosser, son of Nicholas, was born in Brecknock township, and was buried at Wyomissing Church. He married Maria Hornberger, daughter of Conrad, and their children were: Polly m. Abel Major; John; Rebecca m. Reuben Messinger, and had three children—John and Samuel, living, and Mary, deceased young; Benjamin m. Polly Kissinger, and had two children—William and Mary; Nicholas, Jr., m. Sarah Grill, and had children—Franklin, Adam, John, Ben, Charles, Henry, Kate, Mary, Sallie and Amanda; Daniel m. Catharine Stafford, and had children—James, Henry, Augustus, Lydia, Catharine and Sarah; and Catharine (Kate) m. Jacob Schabel, deceased.

John Mosser, son of John and father of Daniel A., engaged in blacksmithing and farming near Mohnton, Pa., where he owned a tract of thirty-eight acres. As chosen representative of the Republican party he served as supervisor of Cumru township for eight years. He is a Reformed member of Gouglersville Church, in which he served as deacon and elder, and in many other ways. He died May 12, 1895. He married Elizabeth Adams, daughter of Isaac Adams, of Cumru, and their children were: Daniel A.; and Catharine A. (m. Charles Beidler, of Cumru).

Daniel A. Mosser, son of John, was reared upon the home farm, remaining there until he was twenty-two. Then, in 1864, he began the butchering business which he followed for twenty-two years. He began at the Five Mile House, then went to the Green Tree, and later to Reading, attending the Reading markets and having a large trade. For four years he farmed a small tract of thirty-eight acres on the line between Cumru and Spring townships. In 1890 he became the proprietor of the "Farmers and Mechanics Hotel" of West Reading, conducting it successfully for three years. He then (1893) assumed the same relation to the "West Reading Hotel," which he bought and improved, practically rebuilding it. He built up a large trade, the public finding in him the accommodating, courteous host that insures a hotel's success. In 1903 he sold this to the Lauer Brewing Company. Mr. Mosser has engaged to a considerable extent in contracting and building, and has erected a number of dwellings in West Reading, among them four for himself. This includes his charming home at No. 539 Penn avenue, and three at Cumru and Sixth streets. He also has building lots and other real estate. Mr. Mosser is a stanch Republican, and efficiently served as a representative of the Fifth ward in the common council of Reading, in 1880 and 1881. He and his family are Reformed members of the Gouglersville Union Church, of which he was deacon four years.

On March 5, 1870, Mr. Mosser was married to Amelia Barto, born Oct. 15, 1850, daughter of Benjamin and Anna (Bloch) Barto (the former a shoemaker in Rockland township) and granddaughter of John Barto. To Mr. and Mrs. Mosser have been born twelve children, five of whom are still living: Emma, a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, m. Fred Wertz; Maggie died young; John lived to the age of nineteen; Harrison and Allen both died young; Edward is a machinist and lives with his parents; Elizabeth is a stenographer with the Reading Hardware Company; Howard died young; Wilson is a machinist and lives at home; Alice died young; Daniel, Jr., and a daughter, twins, were born Jan. 18, 1896, but the latter was still born. Mr. Mosser is a man of strong personality. He is five feet, eleven inches tall, and weighs 250 pounds. He has decided opinions, which he is capable of defending intelligently, and he is a debater of no mean ability. Tenacious as he is of his own opinion, he is always good-natured to those who disagree with him, and he is a very companionable man, with many warm friends.

JOEL A. ARNOLD, proprietor of one of the leading bakeries of Reading, Pa., was born at Bally, Berks county, in 1869, son of Joel Arnold.

Joel Arnold, the father, was a wheelwright by trade, following his business in Lebanon county and later in Berks county, where he died aged twenty-nine years. Joel Arnold married Elizabeth Wallbach, and they had the following children: Malinda; George, a printer by trade, and a foreman on Long Island; Katie, wife of Henry Kohl, mentioned elsewhere; Augustus, of Reading, a bookbinder by occupation, and foreman at Wonnberger's; Joel A., and John and Mary, deceased. After the death of Mr. Arnold, his wife married Benedict Seisz, and to them were born: John, Mary and Annie. Mrs. Seisz died at the age of fifty-three years.

Joel A. Arnold attended the parochial school at Reading, after leaving which he learned the baker's trade, but worked instead at cigar making, an occupation which he followed for twelve years. In 1898 Mr. Arnold engaged in baking, starting in business at No. 1025 Oley street, where he remained two years, then locating at his present place of business No. 935 Walnut street. Here he erected a bakery 20x75 feet, of brick, and fitted it out with the most modern machinery, and he is doing a flourishing business, employing from twelve to fifteen hands, and four wagons daily. Mr. Arnold is well known as the maker of the famous Arnold's Milk Bread, which has an enormous sale all over Reading.

Mr. Arnold married Miss Katie Koenig, daughter of Andrew and Mary A. (Delsch) Koenig, and to this union have been born these children: Joel, Raymond, Florence, George, Herman and William. Mr. Arnold is a member of St. Paul's Catholic Church. He is fraternally connected with the Knights of Columbus.

OLIVER S. GETTIS, who has been a moulder in the employ of the Reading Hardware Company for a period of twenty-three years, resides in Oakbrook, Cumru township. He was born April 26, 1866, in Perry township, Berks county, son of James B. and Lydia (Gehret) Gettis.

Jacob Gettis, grandfather of Oliver S., came to Virginville, Richmond township, according to his own statement from Morgantown, Berks county. He followed tailoring until his death in 1870, in his sixty-ninth year. His wife, Catherine Brown, born in 1819, died in 1856. Their children were: Eli was proprietor of the Virginville Hotel; William, a shoemaker of Reading, m. Susan Gehman, daughter of Jacob Gehman, of Lehigh county, and had four children, Howard, Wayne (deceased), William and Walter; James B. was the father of Oliver S.; Edwin, a well-known shoe merchant of Reading, has a son, Byron, of Philadelphia; and Alfred died young.

James B. Gettis was born in Upper Berks county, and early in life learned the stone mason's trade. He became one of the old-time schoolmasters of the upper section of Berks county, teaching for some years in Richmond township, where he now resides near Moselem Church. He married Lydia Gehret, daughter of Samuel Gehret, of Richmond township, and to this union there have been born five children, namely: Amanda, m. to James Dautrich, a contractor of Reading; Oliver S.; James G., a carpenter of Palo Alto, Schuylkill county; Edwin, who died unmarried in 1889; and Mary, m. to Edward Schwoyer, of Moselem.

Oliver S. Gettis spent his boyhood days in Richmond township, where he received his education, and he was reared upon a farm, on which he worked until his twentieth year. He then learned the moulding trade with the Reading Hardware Company, and with this company he has continued to the present time. Mr. Gettis is a skilled workman, and has earned the respect of his employers and the esteem of his fellow employes. He is a member of Perseverance Council No. 19, Jr. O. U. A. M., Reading; Knights of Malta No. 47, Reading; and the Iron Moulders Union of North America, No 348. In politics he is a stanch Democrat. In 1904 Mr. Gettis erected his fine home on Lancaster avenue, Oakbrook, being his own architect, and here he and his family have resided happily ever since.

On Jan. 1, 1889, Mr. Gettis married Bertha Trait, born in Caernarvon township, and to this union there have been born two daughters: Stella May, and Sallie Susanna, attending the Cumru township High School.

Philip Trait, father of Mrs. Oliver S. Gettis, was a lifelong blacksmith, living for many years in Cumru township, where he died in March, 1884. He is buried at the Plow Church, of which he was a Lutheran member, as was his wife, Susan (Glass) Trait, who died in May, 1904. Their children were as follows: Aaron, of Reading; William, of Cumru township; Samuel, of Phoenix, Ariz.; Ellen, m. to Morris Hoffman, of Cumru township; and Bertha, Mrs. Gettis.

SAMUEL G. DUNKELBERGER, until the fall of 1908 junior member of the firm of Fessler & Dunkelberger, bottlers of Reading, is a native of that city, born April 11, 1869, son of Samuel E. Dunkelberger, a prominent contractor who operated extensively in Reading. He died when forty-nine years old, while his widow, Matilda Bady, survives him and resides in Reading, the mother of three children: John, deceased; Eleanora, wife of Charles Yeager of Reading; and Samuel G.

Samuel G. Dunkelberger attended the public schools of his native city, and on Jan. 26, 1885, engaged in the hotel business at the Academy of Music building, remaining there nearly ten years, engaging in the bottling business on Jan. 1, 1895. Mr. Dunkelberger attended to all of the outside work of the firm, while Mr. Fessler looked after the details of the work in the office. Our subject retired in 1908, and now lives at No. 614 Chestnut street.

Mr. Dunkelberger married Miss Ella Wint, daughter of William Wint, of Easton, Pa. They have three children: Gertrude, Harry and Herbert, all attending school. Mr. Dunkelberger is a Mason, belonging to Teutonia Lodge No. 367, F. & A. M. He is also a member of the Elks, the Eagles, Knights of the Golden Eagle, and the Odd Fellows.

SAMUEL H. KOCHEL, a well-known Berks county hotel keeper, who is conducting the popular "Gibraltar Hotel," at Gibraltar, Pa., was born in Robeson township, April 3, 1861, son of John and Amelia (Harner) Kochel.

Samuel Kochel, grandfather of Samuel H., was a stone mason by trade, and followed that calling in Exeter township, where many stone mansions and Swiss barns testify to his skill and workmanship. He died in 1868, at the age of sixty-eight years. Mr. Kochel was a Lutheran in religious belief, and a Democrat in politics. He married (first) Elizabeth Quinter, by whom he had these children: Samuel, John, Lucetta, Reuben, Joseph, Jeremiah and Solomon. He married (second) Anna Steiger, and to this union were born: Leah, Cordelia, Allison, Caroline and Amanda.

John Kochel was born in Exeter township, but later removed to Robeson township, where he lived for forty-four years, he following the trade of a stone mason all of his life, some of his work being the building of all the abutments for the Wilmington & Northern Railroad. He died in 1902, and his wife in 1901, both in the faith of the Lutheran Church. Twelve children were born to them: Daniel; Margaret m. Edward Beard; Elizabeth m. Frank Riley; Mary m. William Richards; Isabella m. Joseph Eades; Samuel H.; Emma m. Al Koch; Solomon is deceased; Kate m. Al Potteiger; Ella; John; and Susan died young.

Samuel H. Kochel was educated in the schools of Robeson township, and early in life learned the stone mason's trade, which, however, he did not follow for long, his next occupation being that of pipe welder and heater at the Seyfert McManus pipe foundry. Later he went to Pittsburg, in the employ of the Pittsburg Tube Works, and thence to Warren, Ohio, for the Page Tube Company, and subsequently for the Wheeling Tube Company. After six years in Warren, Ohio, Mr. Kochel returned to Berks county, and engaged in a hotel business at Second and Buttonwood streets, Reading, where he continued for three and one-half years. He then leased the Michael Hawk sand quarry, where he remained about seven months, and in the fall of 1897, he purchased the "Gibraltar Hotel" which he is now conducting with much success. Mr. Kochel understands the wants of the traveler, and his hostelry is becoming very popular with the traveling public, who appreciate his clean service, excellent fare and moderate rates.

In 1880 Mr. Kochel married Anna M. Kuhlman, and to them two children have been born: John J. and Anna C. (m. Elmer Clauser, a machinist). In religious belief the family are Lutherans. Mr. Kochel is a member of Reading Lodge, No. 549, F. & A. M.; Excelsior Chapter, No. 237, R. A. M.; Reading Commandery, No. 42, K. T.; Rajah Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S.; and Washington Camp, P. O. S. of A. In politics he is a Democrat, but he has never been an office seeker.

NATHANIEL S. DIPPERY, who for nearly twenty years held the position of janitor of the Girls' high school, Reading, died at his late residence, No. 232 Washington street, May 6, 1906. Mr. Dippery was born in Spring township, Berks county, in 1842, son of Frederick and Catherine (Steinment) Dippery.

Jacob Dippery, grandfather of Nathaniel S., was a resident of Berks county, and was a farmer by occupation. He died on the old Seitzinger farm in Berks county, at the age of seventy-six years, while his wife, whose maiden name was Catherine Gross, survived him, living until eighty-two years old. Mr. and Mrs. Dippery were Lutherans. Their children were: Jeremiah, Edward, Aaron, Frederick, Catherine (m. John Seidel) and Mary (m. John Boyer). Jacob Dippery was a Democrat until President Buchanan's administration, after which he was a Republican.

Frederick Dippery succeeded to the old Seitzinger farm, later occupied by the State Constabulary, and was well known in his day as a skilled veterinary surgeon. He died December, 1867, and his widow died at the home of her daughter Kathrine Hemmig Aug. 5, 1907, aged ninety-three years. The children born to Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Dippery were: Nathaniel S.; Harrison; Gideon; Frank; James; Kathrine (Hemmig) and Elmira.

Nathaniel S. Dippery received his education in the schools of his native township, after leaving which he assisted his father at farming. In September, 1861, he enlisted as a private in Company H, 104th Pa. V. I., serving honorably therewith until Oct. 4, 1863, when he received his discharge. Returning again to his native place, Mr. Dippery was employed for a few years at milling in Spring township, and then came to Reading in 1877. Here he was appointed janitor of the Girls' high school in December, 1887, and he took up the duties of that position in January, 1888, serving continuously therein until his death. He was a member of the First United Evangelical Church of Reading.

Mr. Dippery was married to Miss Salesa M. Ziebach, daughter of Jonathan and Sarah (Weber) Ziebach, and to this union there were born children as follows: Mary died at the age of three years, two months, ten days; George Adam, born Sept. 16, 1871, m. Annie M. Palm, and they have two children, Nathan Henry and Emma Salesa; Annie L. m. Mark Davis Holl, and has two children, Ruth Lugorah and Naomi Margaret. Mrs. Dippery resides at the old home on Washington street. She is well known in her community, and is greatly esteemed for her many lovable traits of character.

PERCIVAL F. GEISEWITE, a grocery merchant at Reading, whose place of business is conveniently located at West Buttonwood street and Schuylkill avenue, was born June 15, 1858, in Bern township, Berks county, son of Daniel and Margaretta (Faust) Geisewite, and grandson of John Geisewite, an early settler.

The great-grandparents of our subject both died on the ocean while on their voyage from Germany to America. At that time, John Geisewite, grandfather of P. F., was an infant and when it was discovered that his parents were dead, a passenger by the name of Stitzel, took the orphan babe as his own. John Geisewite married Elizabeth Sheetz, and they had the following children: John m. Mary Breinich, and had eleven children: Charles lived in Schuylkill county; Sally m. Harry Hartman; Amelia m. Jacob Frederick; Elizabeth m. Christopher Jacobs; Caroline m. William Knoll; Amanda m. James Seidel; Emma m. Solomon Rheinhart; Louisa died young; Ellen m. John Putt; Adeline died young; Ellinda m. William Hoffman; Daniel (father of our subject); Jacob lived in Ohio; Betsey m. Reuben Dobson; and Benjamin died at Temple, Pennsylvania.

Daniel Geisewite, father of P. F., was born in Berks county. He grew to manhood with but meager educational opportunities and learned the trade of paper making, which he followed up to the time of his death, in 1863, when he was fifty-two years old. He married Margaretta Faust, and their children were: Priscilla m. Adam R. Heister, of Penn township; Elizabeth m. Joel Yoe; John; Daniel F.; Henry; Amanda, deceased, m. Isaac Hollenbach; Otilda m. Howard Weber; and Percival F. The father took only a voting interest in politics, casting his ballot in support of the Democratic party. As far back as the family can be traced it has been connected with the Reformed Church.

Percival F. Geisewite obtained his education in the schools of Bern township. His first work was as a day laborer when he was thirteen years of age. He then found employment with H. C. Van Reed, who operated a paper mill, with whom he remained until Mr. Van Reed's death, and then continued with his successor, Charles L. Van Reed, until 1884, when he came to Reading. In April of that year he was engaged by his brother to operate a grocery store on the corner of Hamilton and Jefferson streets and soon after he purchased the business and continued at that stand until 1897, when he moved to his present location. He does a thriving grocery and notion business here, carrying a large stock. He also operates a huckster wagon which visits the outlying districts, buying eggs and country produce. By his straightforward business methods, Mr. Geisewite has gained many firm friends in this city to which he came as a stranger.

In 1879 Mr. Geisewite was married to Kate Reber, daughter of Harrison M. Reber, a member of one of the old representative families of this section. They have four children: Emily A.; Mary died in 1901; Edwin, who assists his father in his business, m. Florence Goodwin; and Anna died aged one year and nine months. Like other members of his family Mr. Geisewite belongs to the Reformed Church.

JEREMIAH M. CONRAD, of Pottstown, a conductor on the Colebrookdale branch of the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company, is a member of a family which has been settled in Berks county, Pa., since his great-grandfather Conrad came to this county from Germany, and settled at a place called Stone Hill, in Pike township, Berks county, and followed farming.

George Conrad, son of the emigrant and grandfather of Jeremiah M., was also a farmer by occupation, and died on his farm in Pike township, at the advanced age of ninety-six years. He is buried at Hill Church. His children were: Benjamin, Benneville, Gabriel, Sarah and Harriet, the last named still living, in Oley township, this county.

Benjamin Conrad, son of George, was born Dec. 10, 1802, and died in November, 1861. During the fall and winter seasons he followed butchering, but he was a mason and engaged principally at that trade, being a well known contractor in his section of the county. He employed about fifteen men, and many of the barns still standing in Oley township were of his construction. Mr. Conrad was twice married, first to Sarah Moyer, daughter of George Moyer, born Aug. 21, 1811. Eight children were born to this marriage, of whom Isaac, Katie, Amanda and Gabriel died unmarried; George is a resident of Bechtelsville, Berks county; Malinda m. Jacob Rhoades, and lives in Oley township; Jeremiah M. is mentioned below; Sarah m. John Sweinhart, who was with the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company for fifty-two years, and is now on the retired list, and living at Pottstown, Pa. For his second wife Mr. Conrad m. Mrs. Maria Moser, daughter of Fritz Moser, of Pike township, and they had three children namely: Augustus, a painter, who resides in Boyertown, Pa.; Ella, m. to Jacob Davidheiser, and living at Pottstown; and Kate, m. to Henry Trout, and living at Pottstown. Benjamin Conrad was a member of the Hill Reformed Church, where he and his wife are buried. He was a Democrat in politics, and quite active in the public affairs of his locality, serving as constable and supervisor of Pike township.

Jeremiah M. Conrad was born Nov. 17, 1848, in Pike township, Berks county, son of Benjamin and Sarah (Moyer) Conrad. He has made his own way in the world since he was eleven years old, and he had few early advantages. He received his early education in the township schools, and was employed at farm work until he was nineteen, when he went to work in an ore mine near Barto, continuing there for eighteen months. On May 6, 1872, he went to work for the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company, starting as front brakeman on a mixed train. He was engaged as brakeman for three years, and then took charge of a baggage car for a time. For the past twenty-eight years he has been a regular conductor on the Colebrookdale branch on both freight and passenger trains, and during that long period of service has been singularly fortunate, having never had an accident. He is a careful and conscientious worker, and has proved trustworthy and reliable.

Mr. Conrad married Miss Emma Frey, daughter of George Frey, of Forgedale, Washington township, Berks county. She died June 30, 1908, aged fifty-seven years, two months, seventeen days, and is buried at Pottstown. Mr. and Mrs. Conrad became the parents of eleven children, namely: Mary m. Elam Schultz, of Pottstown, and they have three children, William, Emma and Florence; Katie is the wife of Joseph Guinter, of Pottstown, and has four children, Harry, Paul, William and Florence; Henry F., assistant yardmaster at Pottstown, m. Pauline Weinger; Miss Alice is at home with her father; George is engaged in teaching, giving private lessons in Latin, Greek, German and geometry, at Pottstown; John lives at home; Emma died young; William Jeremiah died young; James died young; Florence and Cecelia, twins, died in infancy.

On Aug. 4, 1909, Mr. Conrad married Mrs. Vesta L. Dankel, daughter of Charles and Sarah S. (Fegley) Reese. Mrs. Conrad had three children by her first marriage, born as follows: Elsie C., Feb. 24, 1894; Pearl S., May 2, 1896; and Edith M., July 11, 1898.

Mr. Conrad's home is at the corner of Fourth and Johnson streets, Pottstown, Montgomery county, Pa. He is a member of the Philadelphia & Reading Relief and Conductors' societies. In religion he is a Catholic.

FREDERICK W. COONLEY, who died Jan. 29, 1900, at the early age of forty-one years, was a very active business man and good citizen of Reading. He was born in the city of Lancaster, Pa., in 1858, son of Frederick and Johanna (Oxford) Coonley. After the death of his mother he was reared by his stepmother Susan Emore Coonley.

The name of Coonley is a well known one in Pennsylvania and many of the name have the Christian name of Frederick.

Frederick Coonley, grandfather of Frederick W., was born in Germany, and came to America when seventeen years of age. He located at Lancaster, and lived there to the age of eighty-two years. By trade he was a brickmaker, and in time became a man of capital. He married Mary Keech, who lived to be sixty-seven years old. They had children as follows: Elizabeth, deceased, m. Samuel Kissinger; Margaret, deceased, m. Jacob Shadell; George was a resident of Chambersburg; Frederick (2); Rosanna, widow of John Goodman, lives at Chambersburg; Sarah died unmarried; Jacob died in the Civil war; and Louisa m. John Kendig, and they live at Philadelphia.

Frederick Coonley (2), father of the late Frederick W., was born in 1835, at Lancaster, and there became a prominent brick manufacturer. Later he sold his plant to a Mr. Poutz, who continues in the business his predecessor founded. For some years Mr. Coonley engaged extensively in contracting and building and at the time of his death he owned a large amount of real estate. He was twice married. After the death of his first wife, Johanna Oxford, he married Susan Emore, of Reading. He died in 1880, at the age of forty-five years. In politics he was a Democrat, and in fraternal connection a Mason.

Frederick W. Coonley attended the public schools of Lancaster, and after his mother's death was under his stepmother's care. He worked with his father, but later learned the baking business, and followed it for some years. In 1888 he came to Reading, and in 1896 established a smoked meat business and had a stall in the Kissinger market. He was a successful business man. His burial was in Gethsemane Catholic cemetery.

Mr. Coonley was married, July 17, 1894, to Emma C. Specht, of Cincinnati, Ohio, daughter of Kilian and Elizabeth (Smith) Specht, and they had one daughter, Susan Elizabeth, who is a student at St. Peter's parochial school.

Kilian Specht, father of Mrs. Coonley, was born in Bavaria, Germany, in 1843, and came to America when eight years of age. He lived for a short time in Philadelphia and then went to Jennings county, Indiana, where he lived until the war broke out when he enlisted. After the war he returned to Seymour, Ind., where he was manager of the Rader house. From there he went to Cincinnati, Ohio, and then spent two years at Covington, Ky. In January, 1900, he came to Reading and retired from business, and his death occurred Feb. 17, 1904, and he was buried in Gethsemane Catholic cemetery. In 1871 he married Elizabeth Smith, daughter of John and Anna Smith, and she resides with Mrs. Coonley. The children of Mr. and Mrs. Specht were: Emma C., Charles, Edward, Mamie, Elizabeth, Adelaide, and Samuel. Mamie is the widow of Henry Kortekamp, who died April 11, 1905, at Reading, Pa., leaving two children, H. Elmer and Ada (who died Oct. 28, 1907, aged three years).

Mrs. Coonley is a very capable business woman, and she continues to conduct the business in smoked meats at the Kissinger market, having a well established trade. She resides at No. 1115 Walnut street, with her young daughter and her aged mother. She is a devoted member of St. Peter's Catholic Church.

KARL AUGUST SCHAICH, proprietor of "Kuechler's Roost," one of the best known and most popular summer resorts of Berks county, situated in Lower Alsace township, was born Aug. 12, 1863, in Nurtingen, Wurtemberg, Germany, son of Christian Wilhelm and Louisa Ernstina (Lindenschmidt) Schaich.

Christian Schaich, the grandfather of Karl A., was a native of Wurtemberg, Germany, where he was a weaver by trade, an occupation which he followed for some time, being later appointed by city ordinance as auctioneer of his district. He then lived retired until his death, which occurred in his sixty-fifth year. He had the following children: Karl; Henry; Christian W.; Louisa, who was married; and Margaretta, single. With the exception of one child, Christian Wilhelm, this family all remained in Germany.

Christian Wilhelm Schaich, father of Karl A., was born Aug. 14, 1839, and was reared in Wurtemberg, where he learned the trade of weaver from his father and later engaged in farming. He emigrated to this country in 1857, and on Sept. 30, 1861, he was married at Williamsburg, N. J., to Louisa Ernstina Lindenschmidt. In 1862 they returned to the Fatherland, where Mr. Schaich died April 7, 1892, aged fifty-two years. Mrs. Schaich, who was born Nov. 18, 1840, died May 14, 1898, the mother of these children: Christian, born in 1862, the only child of his parents to be born in America, is a retired butcher and lives at the old home; Karl A.; Gottlob, a gardener by trade, is married and resides in the old country; Frederick, a brewer at Baltimore, is married; Miss Ernstina makes her home in Germany; Louisa married Frederick Glasser, a butcher of Philadelphia; Henry, who is married, owns and conducts a steam sawmill in Germany; William is a factory worker in Germany; Mary married George Gantner, a brewer at Philadelphia; Albert, a cooper, resides at the old home; August, who is a brewer of Philadelphia, is married and has a family; Miss Paulina resides in Reading; and Gottlieb, who is married, is superintendent of a railroad in his old home.

Karl A. Schaich was educated in the home schools until fourteen years of age, after which he served a three-year apprenticeship to the tanning trade, and subsequently engaged therein as a journeyman, traveling to Bavaria and Hamburg, Germany, and to Switzerland and France. On his return home he served from 1883 to 1886 as a member of the standing army, as is the custom, and for a short time thereafter worked at his trade. On Aug. 3, 1889, he arrived at New York City, whence he traveled to Philadelphia, and thence after two years to Reading, where he worked for William Getz, or the firm of Winter & Getz, until 1905. He then purchased what is known as "Kuechler's Roost," from the Goetz estate, and here he has since resided. Since taking possession of this property Mr. Schaich has remodeled the house into a large stone summer resort, and has furnished it throughout with the best hard wood furniture of the latest improved type. This makes the place one of the handsomest of our mountain resorts.

On Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 30, 1905, Mr. Schaich was married to Catherine Seabold, of Philadelphia, daughter of David and Catherine (Burkhertmeyer) Seabold, natives of Germany. One child, Carl Frederick, was born to this union, Sept. 28, 1906. Mr. and Mrs. Schaich are members of St. John's German Lutheran Church, of Reading. On Nov. 6, 1896, Mr. Schaich left for his native land to pay a visit to his aged mother and brothers and sisters, returning to Reading the following April.

CHARLES G. BOYER, one of Reading's representative young business men, and the popular proprietor of the "Madison Hotel," corner of Third and Franklin streets, is a native of Reading, born June 29, 1869, son of Alvin N. and Mary Ann (Getz) Boyer, grandson of Jacob and Susan (Nagle) Boyer, and great-grandson of Henry and Rebecca (Rudy) Boyer.

Henry Boyer was a butcher by trade, and he followed this occupation for many years in Reading, on South Sixth street, just beyond Franklin. He accumulated a considerable property for his children, who were: Henry; John; Betsy, m. to Abraham Kesper; Jacob, grandfather of Charles G.; George; Rachel, m. to a Rightmyer; and Charles. In religious belief the family were Lutherans. Politically he was a Democrat.

Jacob Boyer, son of Henry, was also a butcher by trade, and followed this practically all of his life, retiring in 1862. He was a man well known for his sterling traits of character, honest and upright in all of his dealings. He and his wife, Susan Nagle, were the parents of: Harriet, m. to John Shanneman; Peter; Mary, m. to Joseph O'Brien; Alvin N., father of Charles G.; Sarah Louisa, m. to John Strohacker; Henry; Esther, single; and Jacob. The father was a member of the Lutheran Church, and the mother of the Reformed. He died in November, 1871, aged seventy years, two months, and his wife at the age of ninety years, in 1890. Mr. Boyer was formerly a Democrat, but before his death joined the ranks of the Republican party.

Alvin N. Boyer was born in Reading, Pa., July 23, 1843, and was educated in a school conducted by Joshua Davis, an old Quaker. The school was located on Washington street, and was known as the Quaker school house. Later he attended a school at the corner of Sixth and Walnut streets, under Jesse Steiner, and still later a school under the tutorship of Benjamin Hoge. After completing his education he went into the butchering business, in which he continued until 1903, in which year he retired. He conducted a meat market on Penn street, between Second and Third streets, having located there in 1868. Mr. Boyer was married in 1861 to Mary Ann Getz, daughter of Aaron Getz, and a second cousin to Ex-Mayor Getz's father. The children born to Mr. and Mrs. Boyer were: Clara, m. to George Henchen; Emma, m. to Edward Pengerly; Charles G., and Miss Martha. Politically Alvin N. Boyer is a Republican, and was a member of the board of school directors for several years.

Charles G. Boyer was educated in the public schools of Reading, and the Chester Farr Business College. After completing his schooling he engaged at the butchering business until 1901, when he embarked in the hotel business, at the corner of Franklin and Third streets. Mr. Boyer is well adapted to the work of a hotel manager and proprietor, and his hotel—the "Madison"—is one of the nicest little family hotels in Reading. Its rooms are well furnished with modern conveniences. Mr. Boyer is well and favorably known in Reading and commands the public respect.

Mr. Boyer was married Oct. 5, 1895, to Catherine Lauther, daughter of Gerhardt Lauther, a prominent hotel man of Reading, who formerly owned and conducted the "Madison Hotel." Mr. Boyer is a member of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, and the Foresters of America, and he belongs to Trinity Lutheran Church. He is a Republican in politics but has never been an office seeker, taking only a good citizen's interest therein.

JOHN B. STUMP. Among the old and honored families of Berks county, Pa., who have been identified with the agricultural interests of this section for many years, may be mentioned that of Stump, of which John B. Stump, a highly respected citizen and retired agriculturist of North Heidelberg township, is a worthy representative. He was born in North Heidelberg township, Dec. 5, 1833, son of Daniel and Maria Magdalena (Bennetsch) Stump.

Christopher Stump, one of the pioneers of Heidelberg township, Berks county, was a man of remarkable physical strength, and over six feet in stature. He accompanied Conrad Weiser to the midwinter Indian conference of the Six Nations in northern New York. He was twice married, and had sixteen children, in all, among them being two Susannas, two Margarets, two Catharines and two Christophers. He owned several slaves, according to his will, which was made Feb. 28, 1769, and in which he is mentioned as Christopher Stump, von Heidelberg township, Lancaster (now Lebanon) county. He left the eldest son one shilling as his birthright. The second son, Frederick, is doubtless the celebrated founder of Fredericksburg, Lebanon county, formerly Stumpstown, founded in 1758, whose questionable escapades there made him flee his native heath, to appear later in the wilds of Tennessee as a pioneer. It is said he left his neighborhood because he had despatched an Indian. In 1780 we find him at Nashville, Tenn., where that backwoods Commonwealth was formed. Several German names appear among the signatures to the Compact of government, among them Jacob Stump, afterward "killed by Indians in his field while father, 'Old Fred Stump,' just escaped with his life by running." "By sure, I did run dat time," the old German was wont to say, looking back upon his experience! He was a miller here later, but by this episode it would seem that the vengeance of the Red men followed him, if indeed this is our Stumpstown Stump, as is very plausible.

The children of Christopher Stump were: George Adam (who received £100 as well as the shilling mentioned as his birthright),Frederick, Christopher, Maria (m. Johannes Scheuer), Susanna (m. John Leineweber), Margaret (m. Ludwig Maris), Catharina (m. Georg Adam Bush), Henry, Magdalene (m. William Frymer), Susanna, Catharina (m. Leonhart Strickler), Juliana, Margaret, Leonhart and Christopher (who received the homestead in Heidelberg township of 270 acres), and Michael (who received 250 acres of land over the Blue Mountain, on the Mahanoy creek, which was patented land, so the deed says).

The estate of Christopher Stump was very large, most of the sons receiving £100 each, while the daughters received but £50. This incident, bequesting the daughters only one-half the sum given the sons, would seem to confirm the impression that female members in the pioneer families were regarded as less valuable than the male members.

Johannes Stump, the great-grandfather of John B., was born in 1746. He was a farmer, and took up land along the Tulpehocken creek, in North Heidelberg township, where he died in 1822. He is buried on the homestead, in a private burial-ground, where many of the family name sleep their last sleep. His children included Samuel, Benjamin, John and another son, the latter two of whom settled in Ohio. Samuel Stump and John Merkey, the latter possibly a son-in-law of Johannes, settled up Mr. Stump's estate. The family were Dunkards in their religious faith.

Johannes Stump had a brother Casper, who had settled across the Tulpehocken, in what is now Jefferson township, where in 1759 he paid £20 tax, being a large landowner. There is no record that Casper Stump left any descendants, and if he did they left this section as young men.

Benjamin Stump, the grandfather of John B., was born Dec. 5, 1779, and died on his large farm near North Heidelberg post-office Jan. 10, 1841, aged sixty-one years, one month, five days. He married Magdalena Boyer, daughter of Abraham Boyer, and their children were: William, born in 1807, who died in 1825; Daniel; Molly, who married Joseph Richardson; Sally, who married Matthias Miller; and Eliza, who married Joseph Kalbach.

Daniel Stump, father of John B., was born on the old homestead near the line of Jefferson, in North Heidelberg township, April 21, 1805, and died April 24, 1875, aged seventy years, three days; he was buried at the Corner Church, of which he was a Lutheran member. He was a lifelong farmer, owning a tract of 200 acres, and for many years was supervisor of his district. Mr. Stump married Maria Magdalena Bennetsch, daughter of Heinrich Bennetsch, and they had these children: William, who had Jonathan (the father of Milton L. and William B.), Henry and James; a daughter who died in infancy; Adam, who was the father of Levi; John B.; Amanda, who married Adam Stoudt; Isaac, who was the father of Charles, who went West; Henry, who died young; Benjamin, born in 1840, who died in infancy; and Daniel, of Robesonia, who is the father of Adam of Bernville.

John B. Stump was reared upon the home farm, and when twenty-four years of age began operating a tract of seventy acres, to which he added ten acres. On that property he spent nineteen years. In 1877 he removed to the old Werheim farm, later known as the Dundore and still later as the Miller farm, Mr. Stump purchasing it from a Miller, and here he resided until the spring of 1908, when he moved to his fine residence in Robesonia, purchased by him in the fall of 1907. The farm on which Mr. Stump spent thirty-one years consists of ninety-six acres; he also owned another, of 112 acres, in North Heidelberg township. All three of his farms are tenanted, two of them by his sons.

In politics Mr. Stump is a Democrat. He and his family are members of St. Daniel's Lutheran Church, of which he was deacon and trustee, and he helped to purchase the cemetery. He is greatly respected in his district, where he has lived a clean, upright and honorable life. He and his wife are in comfortable circumstances, and the sunset of their lives is a happy one.

Mr. Stump married Amelia Gruber, daughter of Emanuel Gruber, and to them have been born ten children:

(1) Adam G. Stump is mentioned at length below.

(2) Isabella married John Filbert, of near Robesonia.

(3) Ida married James Lengel, of Reading.

(4) Henry G. Stump, born July 14, 1865, has been a lifelong farmer. He operated one of his father's farms for several years and then bought the farm known as Arthur Himmelberger's farm, in Heidelberg township, containing sixty acres, where he now resides.

He and his family are members of St. Daniel's (Corner) Church, of which he was deacon for two years. In political matters he is a Democrat. On Dec. 5, 1885, he was married to Emma V. Fisher, daughter of John W. and Ellen (Lamm) Fisher, and to them has been born a family of four children, Charles L., E. Mabel, Claire A. and Le Roy U. (who died in June, 1906). Charles L., son of Henry, married April 6, 1907, Lizzie I. Gelsinger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Gelsinger, and to them has been born one son, Le Roy H.

(5) John S. Stump, born July 26, 1870, in North Heidelberg township, was engaged in farming for several years on one of his father's farms, and now farms the J. Balsley place, near Womelsdorf, Pa. On Dec. 25, 1890, he married Amelia Fromm, daughter of Nathan and Lovina (Fahr) Fromm, and there have been born to them two sons, John C. and Harry F. He and his family are also members of St. Daniel's (Corner) Lutheran Church, of which he was serving as deacon for two years. He is a Democrat in political matters and was a school director for three years in his district, and its treasurer for one year.

(6) George D. Stump was born Feb. 10, 1873, in North Heidelberg township. In 1896 he engaged on his own account in farming on one of his father's farms.

He is a Democrat in political matters, served as committeeman for two years in his district, and was several times a delegate to the county convention.

He and his family are members of St. Daniel's Lutheran Church, of which he was a deacon two years. On June 1, 1895, he was married to Katie Brossman, daughter of Jared and Catherine (Kalbach) Brossman, and to them three children have been born, Raymond, Varia and Eugene.

(7) Cora married Harry Kalbach, of Reading.

(8) Katie died when three years old.

(9) Maggie married John Lengel, of Reading.

(10) Wallace Stump was born March 21, 1882, in North Heidelberg township, and was reared on his father's farm, where he remained until of age, when he left for Reading and secured employment in Van Reed's Paper Mill. On May 17, 1902, he was married to Mary E. Texter, and to them have been born three children, Elizabeth May, Sadie Amelia Ellen, and one son, who died in infancy. Mr. Stump was a member of St. Daniel's (Corner) Church, until a year ago, when he joined the Hain's Church, near Wernersville, Pa. In political matters he is a Democrat.

Adam G. Stump, one of the prominent agriculturists of North Heidelberg township, was born July 2, 1858, son of John B. Stump. He attended the common schools of his district, which he left at the age of sixteen years, when he commenced working for his parents. In 1880 he engaged in farming on his own account on his father's farm in North Heidelberg township, residing there eight years, at the end of which time he purchased twenty-five acres of good land, on which he built a new barn, 30x56 feet, in 1903. Here he has carried on operations to the present time, and has met with much success, being ranked with the substantial men of his township. He is a Democrat in political matters, and in addition to being a member of the school board served as treasurer of that body for three years. He and his family are members of St. Daniel's (Corner) Church, of which he was deacon two years, elder for four years, trustee three years, and president two years. Among Mr. Stump's valued possessions is an old "grandfather" clock, made in 1829, which belonged to Jonathan Haak. Michael Gruber, grandfather of Mrs. Stump, bought it at the Jonathan Haak sale, and it then came into the possession of Mrs. Stump in 1888.

On Aug. 30, 1879, Mr. Stump was married to Clara M. Althouse, daughter of Reuben and Henrietta (Gruber) Althouse. To Mr. and Mrs. Adam G. Stump have been born four children, three sons and one daughter: Warren A., who died in infancy; Claud C., who taught school for one term and then took up the study of pharmacy at the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy, but was obliged to leave that institution on account of ill health (he entered the White Haven Sanatorium and after a stay of three months left for Mt. Alto, Pa., where he now resides); Miles, a student at school; and Verna May.

William B. Stump, an energetic and progressive young agriculturist of North Heidelberg township, where he is serving as school director and assessor, was born Jan. 19, 1876, in that township, son of Jonathan E. and Anna (Graeff) Stump. As shown above he is a grandson of William, great-grandson of Daniel, and great-great-grandson of Benjamin (son of Johannes).

Jonathan E. Stump was born March 23, 1849, in North Heidelberg township, on the farm of his father, William Stump. He followed farming the major portion of his life, but retired from agricultural pursuits in 1886, and since 1889 he has lived in his frame house near Klopp's store. He retains his father's and grandfather's farms in that district, two fine tracts of 110 acres each, one of which is tenanted and the other operated by his son William B. Mr. Stump is the heaviest tax-payer of North Heidelberg township, a most influential man of his district, and highly respected by all who know him. He has served seven times as delegate to county conventions; six years as school director, and eight years as tax collector. He is a botanist of note, and has collected and mounted many specimens of plant life. He is also a well-known antiquarian, and has a large collection of muskets and other interesting relics of the wars since Revolutionary days, and his comfortable home contains many valuable paintings. He is a Lutheran member of St. Daniel's Church, of which he has been treasurer for more than thirty years. He has also been treasurer of the cemetery board since its organization, in 1880. His wife was a member of the Reformed congregation of the same church.

Mr. Stump married Anna Graeff, born April 23, 1848, who died in October, 1903, daughter of Benjamin Graeff, a record of whom appears elsewhere in this work. Two children were born to this union, Milton L. and William B.

Milton L. Stump, son of Jonathan E. and Anna (Graeff) Stump, was born Oct. 19, 1870, in North Heidelberg township. He attended the local schools of his district and the Bernville high school, taught by Prof. Milton J. Beiber, and Michael A. Gruber. In the spring of 1890 he entered the store of Klopp & Kalbach, dealers in general merchandise and farming implements, as clerk, and there he has been engaged ever since. He is a Democrat in political matters and is at present an auditor in his district. He is a member of St. Daniel's (Corner) Lutheran Church, serving two years as deacon, four as elder, and now as secretary, which office he has held since 1904.

On April 13, 1895, Mr. Stump was married to Alice E. Collins, daughter of Dr. Owen E. and Joanna (Fahrenbach) Collins, of Obold, Pa. They live with his father. Mrs. Stump was a school teacher for four consecutive terms and one spring term—two terms in Geigertown (Robeson township), one term in North Heidelberg township, and one term at Obold, in Penn township.

William B. Stump attended the local schools and Bernville high school, which was then taught by Profs. M. A. Gruber and Theodore Kulp, and worked for his parents until he was of age. In the spring of 1898, he commenced operations on his grandfather's farm, a tract of 110 acres, on which a barn was erected in 1843 by Daniel Stump. The house, one part of which is constructed of logs, stands over a strong, excellent spring of water, this having been a custom of the pioneer settlers, as a precaution in case of siege by the Indians, as well as for convenience. He is an energetic and industrious farmer, operates his property by the most up-to-date methods, and has eight horses, four mules and twenty head of cattle.

Mr. Stump is one of the stanch Democrats of his district, and has always been active in the ranks of his party. He has held various local elective offices, and in the spring of 1907 he was elected a school director of North Heidelberg township, now serving in the capacity of president of the board; in the spring of 1908 he was elected to the office of assessor. With his family he attends St. Daniel's (Corner) Church, of which he has been a deacon.

In 1896 William B. Stump was married to Laura F. Brown, the estimable daughter of the late Samuel L. and Catherine (Fisher) Brown, prominent agricultural people of Heidelberg township, and to this union have been born two daughters: Anna Catherine, born March 11, 1897, and Dorothy Hannah, born Christmas Day, Dec. 25, 1907, and baptized Easter Sunday, 1908. Mr. and Mrs. Stump are well known in North Heidelberg township, where they are held in the highest esteem and have many warm friends.

FRANKLIN W. HOFFMAN, a highly esteemed citizen of Perry township, who for some years has been engaged in agricultural pursuits, was born in Upper Bern township, Berks Co., Pa., April 9, 1850, son of Michael and Esther (Wartzenluft) Hoffman.

Michael Hoffman, grandfather of Franklin W., was a well-known and highly esteemed citizen of this section, and served in the State Assembly. His children were: Samuel, m. to Hannah Dunkel, had three children, David, Jacob and Hannah; George, m. to Abbie Fisher, had three children, Henry, William and Samuel; Michael, father of Franklin W.; and Benjamin, m. (first) to a Miss Fisher, had, Samuel, Mary and Cornelius, and (second) to Elizabeth Bailey, and had one daughter, Catherine.

Michael Hoffman, son of Michael, born in 1813, died in 1875. For ten years he was a farmer in Upper Bern township, where he owned an 144-acre farm. In the latter 'fifties he purchased the farm now owned by his son, Franklin W., and in 1868 built the barn which is still standing. He was a prominent man in his time, and when the public school system was inaugurated became a teacher. He was assessor of his district for many years, also serving as school director, and for many terms was an official member of Zion's Union Church. Michael Hoffman married Esther Wartzenluft, and to them were born these children: Catherine (1839-1865); Joel (1841-1872); Franklin W.; Caroline and Michael W.

Franklin W. Hoffman attended the public schools in his native district for one term, and later in Perry township until his twentieth year, being reared to the labor on his father's farm. After leaving school he worked for farmers in the locality for a number of years, and in 1874 purchased a tract of fourteen acres. After marriage in the same year he located on this farm, continuing there for about one and one-half years, when he purchased his father's farm, which then consisted of 111 acres of fertile land. Here Mr. Hoffman has resided ever since, improving the property, and building a summer-house and other outbuildings. Mr. Hoffman is a skilled butcher, and in this line his services are much in demand throughout the district in the fall and winter seasons. Politically Mr. Hoffman is a Democrat, and although he has never cared for public office, has been Assemblyman on several occasions. He is a Lutheran and attends Zion's Church, where he has served as deacon, elder and trustee for a period of twelve years.

On Aug. 30, 1873, Mr. Hoffman married Mary Schappell, daughter of Samuel and Catherine (Adam) Schappell, and granddaughter of Jeremiah Schappell, and to this union there have been born three children, as follows: (1) Washington L., born Feb. 22, 1874, m. Amelia Andora Adam, born Oct. 20, 1871, and their children are: Morris L., born May 7, 1893; Henry S., Aug. 26, 1895; Charles W., Dec. 5, 1897; James F., June 29, 1899; Jacob N., Sept. 27, 1900; Elmer L., Oct. 20, 1901; Neven S., Dec. 12, 1902; Annie A., July 28, 1904; Mary A., March 12, 1906; and William M., July 26, 1908. (2) Mahlon S., born July 9, 1884, m. Dec. 22, 1906, Lillie E. Rothermel. (3) Annie S. was born June 29, 1892.

MICHAEL W. HOFFMAN, brother of Franklin W., is a farmer of Perry township, and a prominent member of the Shoemakersville Band. He was born in Upper Bern township, Berks county, Pa., in the last hour, on the last day in December, 1854. In 1858 his parents moved into Perry township, where Mr. Hoffman obtained a limited education in the local schools. He was reared a farmer, which vocation he followed all his life.

Mr. Hoffman is a musician of talent, all his children having inherited their father's musical traits, and being great lovers of music. For many years Mr. Hoffman played the trombone in the church choir of Zion's Union Church of Perry township. In 1887 he joined the famous Althouse Band of Shoemakersville, Pa., which furnished music for hundreds of celebrations, concerts, and other public functions. His band played at Niagara Falls, Buffalo and Elmira, in New York; and in Scranton, Wilkes Barre, Bethlehem and other cities and towns in his own State—Pennsylvania. Three of his sons belong to the band of which their father is the trombone player.

Mr. Hoffman is a man of honor and integrity. The imprint of honesty is upon his countenance, and he is a true son of a good family. Thrifty and industrious he owns three tracts of good land, comprising all told fifty-five acres. In politics he is a Democrat. He and his family worship in the historic Zion's Church in his township, of which church they are Lutheran members.

On Jan. 19, 1878, Mr. Hoffman married Cadance A., daughter of William and Mary (Gardner) Reber. Mrs. Hoffman was born March 15, 1859, and died Sept. 6, 1900, in her forty-second year. To this marriage were born children as follows: Milton R., born Dec. 12, 1878, m. Mary Ellen Kerschner, and they have two children, Pearl and Charles Milton; William M., born May 3, 1880, m. Alice Weber, and has a daughter, Florence May; James M., born Nov. 21, 1882, died Nov. 3, 1906, his death due to shooting himself accidentally in the arm when crossing a fence about a quarter of a mile from home while hunting on November 1st on his father's farm; Samuel A., born Jan. 19, 1884, died Dec. 2, 1885; Hettie Ann, born June 25, 1885, died Dec. 10, 1896; Thomas J., born Feb. 7, 1887; Ida M., born April 14, 1889; Robert E., born Oct. 16, 1890; Ellen R., born Feb. 24, 1893; Lizzie C., born Jan. 5, 1895; Elsie V., born Feb. 22, 1897; Nora E., born April 7, 1898. Since the death of the mother of these children the father has kept the family together and has watched over his children with tender care and affection.

WILLIAM A. WEYMAN, foreman of the brick laying departments of the Reading Iron Company's Scott Foundry and Steam Forges, has been thoroughly trained in his particular line of work. He comes of a family that long had their home in Hanover, Germany, his great-great-grandfather and great-grandfather, Herman H. Weyman and Herman H. Weyman II, respectively, both living at Nein Kirchen Am Milan, in that Kingdom. The latter was the father of three children: Dr. Herman H. III, Catharine (Kirzick) and Frederick.

Dr. Herman H. Weyman III, son of Herman H. II, was born Jan. 16, 1808, in Nein Kirchen Am Milan, and there he received his elementary education. He graduated from the University at Siegel, April 15, 1833, and then spent one year in the University at Berlin. In the fall of 1834 he emigrated to America, and made an extensive trip through the United States. Tradition says he settled near Baumstown, in Berks county, and that he was called into consultation at Geigertown, where he became acquainted with Miss Sarah Geiger (daughter of State Senator Paul J. Geiger of Geigertown, now deceased), who became his wife Oct. 1, 1843. Their children were: (1) Annie m. Allen J. Covington, who served in the Confederate army under Gen. Lee as a sharpshooter, and who after the close of the war moved to Reading, Pa., and became an honored and useful citizen. (2) Margaret m. William C. Coleman, an extensive contractor at Los Angeles, Cal. (3) Katurah m. Benneville D. Angstadt, of Oley township. (4) Paul J. died in infancy. (5) Herman H. IV is deceased. (4) Horace C. lives at Redlands, California.

Herman H. Weyman IV, son of Dr. Herman H. III, was born August 3, 1853. By occupation he was a brick layer, and he was foreman of the Brick Laying Departments of the Reading Iron Company's Scott Foundry until his death, which occurred suddenly Dec. 29, 1907. He married Rosy E. Eaches, and they became the parents of children as follows: Herman H. V, born Oct. 12, 1873, m. Annie, daughter of Prof. P. J. Kuhn, of Reading; Rosie E. died in infancy; Elmer G. m. Hattie M. Brown, daughter of Charles Brown, of Reading; Lillian May died in infancy; William A.; and Florence L., born Aug. 20, 1885, is at home.

William A. Weyman was born in the city of Reading Oct. 20, 1882, and was educated in the public schools of his native city, spending about two years in the high school under Prof. M. E. Scheibner, principal. On Jan. 20, 1899, he accepted a position as a clerk in the drug store of W. W. Troop, but on April 17th following he became an employe of the Reading Iron Company's Steam Forge Department, under the superintendence of Gerald F. Dale, and July 1, 1900, he became an apprentice brick layer under his father. After serving a full apprenticeship of three years he became a full-fledged journeyman, and continued with his father until March, 1905, when he was appointed assistant foreman under his father, a position he held until the latter's sudden death, and on Jan. 6, 1908, he was promoted to his father's position, and this he has since ably filled.

In politics Mr. Weyman is a Democrat. He is a member and has been active in Christ's Evangelical Church, taking particular interest in the Sunday-school. Fraternally he is quite prominent, being a member of Lodge No. 62, F. & A. M.; Progressive Lodge, No. 470, I. O. O. F.; Wyanet Tribe, No. 301, I. O. R. M.; Court Conrad Weiser, No. 199, Foresters of America; Neversink Camp, No. 7634, M. W. A. Mr. Weyman has taken great pains to memorize the unwritten and staff work of the I. O. O. F., and has proved himself a thorough and efficient student of this work.

On July 25, 1903, Mr. Weyman married Mary Riegel, daughter of Lewis and Emma E. Riegel, of Reading, and they have two children: Levira E., born Nov. 19, 1904; and William A., Jr., Dec. 3, 1906.

JEROME PEARSON REESER, dealer in coal, lumber and grain at Sinking Spring, was born at the Reeser Mill, near West Leesport, Bern township, June 19, 1869, son of Cyrus and Catharine (Shalter) Reeser. When two years old his parents moved to Sinking Spring, and he received his education in the local schools, at the West Chester Normal school, and at Stoner's Business College in Reading. In 1891 he associated with Samuel B. Keppel as a partner, in carrying on the coal, lumber, grain, flour and feed business, on premises adjoining the railroad station at Sinking Spring, and he continued as a partner until 1900, when he purchased the interest of Mr. Keppel in the business, and he has been carrying it on in a successful manner to the present time.

Mr. Reeser served as a township auditor for a term of three years; and he has officiated as treasurer of the Reformed Church at Sinking Spring since 1902. He is public-spirited, and believes in encouraging industrial enterprises, and co-operated with other enterprising citizens in the establishment of the Sinking Spring Foundry Company, in 1902, and held an interest in the plant for several years.

Mr. Reeser married Jennie Van Reed, daughter of Joshua Van Reed, a farmer of Lower Heidelberg, along the Cacoosing creek, and they have two sons, Harvey and Herbert. Joshua Van Reed married Elizabeth Cochran, of Philadelphia, and by her had these children, Joshua (m. to Jennie Schrack), Jacob, James, Jennie, Ella and one who died young.

Cyrus Reeser was a native of Bern township, near West Leesport, where he carried on the coal, lumber and grain business for many years until 1871, when he purchased the hotel stand along the railroad adjoining the Sinking Spring station, and removed to that place. He married Catharine Shalter, daughter of Benjamin Shalter, a farmer in the northern section of Alsace township, and they had four children: Jerome Pearson, George, Cora (m. to Thomas Huyett) and one who died in infancy.

Daniel Reeser, father of Cyrus, was a farmer of Bern township. He married Catharine Stoudt, and by her had two sons: William, m. to Elizabeth Rickenbach; and Cyrus.

Abraham Reeser was the father of Daniel and great-grandfather of Jerome Pearson Reeser.

WILLIAM H. ROLLMAN is successfully engaged in the butchering business at Edison, Cumru township, and has long been a familiar figure at the Reading markets, attending Reading street market daily, Fourth and Penn street market twice a week (stands Nos. 25 and 26), and Crystal Palace market (stands Nos. 114 and 115). He was born July 11, 1869, son of Joshua S. and Amelia (Mengel) Rollman.

The Rollmans have long lived in Cumru township. Johan George Rollman, great-grandfather of William H., was born Nov. 16, 1756. In 1785 he married Magdalena Bright, who was born Nov. 5, 1765, and who died Oct. 1, 1821, aged fifty-seven years, ten months, twenty-eight days. Seven sons and five daughters were born to them. Johan George Rollman died June 20, 1814, aged fifty-seven years, seven months, four days.

William Rollman, son of Johan George, was born March 17, 1797, and died Nov. 14, 1847, aged fifty years, seven months, twenty-seven days. He was a farmer and land owner in Cumru township, his son Henry inheriting the farm. On Dec. 11, 1816, he married Elizabeth Spohn, who was born Nov. 20, 1798. She died Nov. 21, 1864, aged sixty-six years, one day. Their children were: Joshua S.; Henry, born Jan. 21, 1819, was a merchant in Reading, and died Sept. 3, 1890; William, born March 8, 1822, died Dec. 21, 1840, aged eighteen years, nine months, thirteen days; Sallie died unmarried; Molly married William Matz, of Reading.

Joshua S. Rollman, son of William and father of William H., was born in Spring township in 1825. For a number of years he kept the "Central Hotel," at Sinking Spring, and became well known to the traveling public. His hostelry was well patronized, and its proprietor won great popularity for his courtesy and his first class entertainment. Before the Civil war he engaged in butchering, but abandoned it to devote some years to carpentering in Reading. He later resumed the butcher's business, and continued it until his death, April 17, 1885, when he was aged sixty-one years. His remains were interred at the Sinking Spring Lutheran Church, of which he was a member. He married Amelia Mengel, born in April, 1835, daughter of Daniel Mengel, and they became the parents of four children: Sarah, m. to Ephraim Stitzel, of Reading; Rosa, who died young; Miss Amelia; and William H.

William H. Rollman, son of Joshua, passed his boyhood days under the parental roof. When he was fifteen his father died, and this placed responsibility early upon the lad's shoulders. He took hold of the butchering business left by his father, and with an ability and judgment far beyond his years carried it on for his mother. He killed from eight to ten hogs a week, at that time. He has followed this line of work ever since, with the exception of seven years, 1892-1898, when he worked at hatting for his father-in-law, Jacob Kessler, of Mohnton. Since he has returned to butchering he has enlarged his business, and besides hogs, calves and sheep, he kills two or three steers a week, and he is considered a first class man at his trade. For three years he lived at the "Five Mile House," but since 1901 he has made his home at Edison.

On Feb. 21, 1891, Mr. Rollman married Julia A. Kessler, born April 17, 1869, daughter of Jacob Kessler, of Mohnton. They are Lutheran members of St. John's Church at Mohnton. In his political views Mr. Rollman is an independent Democrat. He is one of the enterprising men of his township, and he is looked upon as a worthy and substantial citizen.

WILLIAM E. SHEIDY, of Wyomissing, Spring township, Berks Co., Pa., was born in Bern township, April 10, 1862, son of Joseph and Margaret (Hafer) Sheidy.

Joseph Sheidy was born in Bern township in 1840, where he followed farming until his retirement from active life. During the Civil war he served in the volunteer infantry, but was wounded during the first year in the right arm, the bullet passing through it. The homestead in Heidelberg township at Blue Marsh consists of a very comfortable house surrounded by three acres of land, which Mr. Sheidy purchased from Adam Cress. His wife, Margaret Hafer, was born in Bern township, daughter of William Hafer, of that township, and died in July, 1881, and is buried at Epler's church. Joseph Sheidy died in the fall of 1908. The children born to him and his wife were: William E.; Joseph, of Heidelberg township; Benjamin, of Centre township; Jacob, of Penn township; Charles, of Cumru township; Adam, of Brownsville, where he is in the hotel business; Irwin, of Heidelberg township; Margaret, m. to Charles Dechler. Joseph Sheidy had two brothers, Jacob, who lived in Bern township; and Frederick, who lived in Lower Heidelberg township.

William E. Sheidy attended the local schools of Heidelberg and Spring townships, and worked upon his father's farm. At the age of twenty years he commenced to work for himself, hiring out to the farmers in his vicinity until 1885, when he began farming in Heidelberg township on the Henry Ahrens farm. There he lived as a tenant for four years, and in the spring of 1890 came to Wyomissing where he cultivated the Thomas G. Yaeger farm until it was sold to the Wyomissing land company. He then turned his attention to his farm of twenty-four acres in Lower Heidelberg township, on which he planted 500 peach trees and raises considerable fruit. For four years he conducted the Wyomissing coal yards, but in 1902 he sold that property to Calvin Rutt.

In 1903 Mr. Sheidy built a double brick house in Wyomissing borough, on Wyomissing boulevard, three stories in height and supplied with all modern improvements. He and his family live in one of the houses and rent the other. Since locating in Wyomissing, he has been engaged in hauling, and has built up a big business, keeping four horses always busy. In connection with this business, he erected a lare brick stable in 1907, 20 x 30 feet in dimensions. In all his enterprises Mr. Sheidy has met with success, and is now one of the prosperous business men of Wyomissing. In politics he is a Democrat, and has been delegate to various county conventions. He and his family are members of Hain's Reformed church. Fraternally he is a member of West Reading Castle, K. G. E., No. 487, of West Reading.

On July 16, 1881, Mr. Sheidy married Isabella Brown, daughter of Jacob and Catherine (Keeney) Brown, and granddaughter of Philip and Catherine (Besbaur) Brown. Six children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Sheidy: Florence, m. to Edward Gaugler, of the Blue Marsh; William B., unmarried, of Wyomissing; Jacob B., m. to Sallie Suttsman, and in his brother's employ; Thomas B., unmarried, living with his father; Charles B. and Henry, both at home.

JAMES M. ENDY, who is conducting a flourishing grocery business at No. 501 South Twelfth street, Reading, and is also engaged in other business enterprises, was born in 1862, near Colebrookdale, Berks county, son of Daniel H. and Sarah (Muthard) Endy.

Mr. Endy received his education in the schools of Earl township, his first work being on a farm, on which he lived until nineteen years of age. At this time he came to Reading, and for nine years was employed at the Reading Iron Works as a heater. In 1887, in company with his brother-in-law, he engaged in the grocery business at the corner of Twelfth and Cotton streets, still remaining in the iron company's employ, while his partner conducted the business under the style of Endy & Brown. In 1896 Mr. Endy gave up work at the mill and turned his attention to the grocery business. He has a finely equipped store, well stocked with fancy and staple groceries, fruits, canned goods, smoked meats, etc. In addition to this business Mr. Endy is engaged in building, as a member of the firm of Diener, Endy & Fisher. They have improved the southeastern section of Reading, building residences therein, and these are quickly being occupied. Mr. Endy bears an enviable reputation for honesty and integrity, and as a self-made man has earned the respect and esteem of his fellow-townsmen.

In 1886 Mr. Endy was married to Miss Amelia Wentzel, daughter of John and Maria Wentzel. Mr. Endy is a member of the I. O. R. M., the Knights of Malta and the Pennsylvania Immediate Relief Association. He is a Democrat in his political belief, but he has never sought office. He connected himself with Grace Lutheran Church about 1881, and has been a faithful member of that religious organization to the present time, having served on the consistory of that body for about three years.

WILLIAM WILSON WEBBER, a prominent coal dealer at Sinking Spring for twenty years, was born at Wernersville, Berks county, June 24, 1869, son of George M. and Valeria Ruth (Gaul) Webber. While he was a boy his father removed to Sinking Spring, and he received his education in the public schools, and also in After engaging in teaching public schools for two terms Prof. Oberlin's Charter Oak Academy of that place. in Spring township, 1885 and 1886, he assisted his father in the coal business for two years, and then, when but eighteen years old, took a county license to carry on the general business of dealing in coal, lumber, flour and feed for himself, his father directing his attention to the wholesale lumber trade. He continued alone in the business until 1892, when he formed a co-partnership with David G. Miller, and they carried it on until 1894 under the name of Webber & Miller. He then purchased Mr. Miller's interest, and has since carried it on by himself in a very successful manner.

In 1906 Mr. Webber assisted in establishing a national bank at Wernersville, becoming one of its directors and serving since as secretary of the board. In social matters he assisted in organizing lodges of the Sons of America, Knights of the Golden Eagle and Odd Fellows, at Sinking Spring; and he is affiliated with the Free Masons, Knights Templars and Mystic Shrine at Reading.

Mr. Webber married Catharine Hoffman, daughter of Dr. C. N. Hoffman, of Sinking Spring, and by her he has two boys, Harold and Christian.

George M. Webber was born at Rehrersburg, Berks county, in 1837, and there received his early education in the public schools. While studying for the ministry at the Pennsylvania College he became ill and this prevented his graduating. Upon his return home he directed his attention to teaching public school, and he taught several terms in the Northeastern section of Berks county. While teaching he was married to Miss Haas. He then located at Wernersville, and carried on the business of dealing in coal, lumber, grain, flour and feed. His wife dying, he married Miss Valeria Ruth Gaul, daughter of Benjamin and Anna (Ruth) Gaul, of Heidelberg township. After remaining at Wernersville for several years, he located at Sinking Spring in 1877, and established himself in the same business which he carried on until 1887, when he was succeeded by his son. He died in 1891, leaving his wife and three children, William W., Jennie, and Bessie (m. to Elmer W. Deck).

Samuel Webber, father of George M., was a farmer of Tulpehocken township. He married a Miss Miller, and they had nine children: Frank; Willoughby; Paul, unmarried; Albert, m. to Elleanora Gerhart; George M.; Lewis; Samuel; Kate, m. to Daniel Emrich; and Elizabeth, unmarried.

GEORGE FLECKNER, a well-known resident of Reading, Pa., who is at present working at the Reading Hardware Company, was born in that city in July, 1860, son of George Fleckner, a native of Germany.

George Fleckner, Sr., came to America in the spring of 1850, landing at New York City, whence he immediately made his way to Reading. A blacksmith by trade, Mr. Fleckner followed this occupation for a number of years, and for several years was also employed at the ore mines. He was a skilled nail-maker, nails in his time being made by hand, and the last years of his life were spent at the Scott Works. He died in 1873, at the age of fifty-six years. George Fleckner married Justina Michael, born in Germany, who died on Nov. 20, 1907. Mr. and Mrs. Fleckner were the parents of these children: John, who died in 1895, aged forty-five years; twins, who died in infancy; a daughter who died in infancy; August, who died young; George; Adam, who died when five years old; Tracy, who m. George Grant, had two children—Lillie and Harry—and died in 1890; Catherine, who m. William Lerch, now residing in Reading, had children—Annie, Minnie, Jennie, Florence, Daniel, Mary, Arthur and Paul—and died Feb. 19, 1906; and William, George and Ralph, all deceased.

George Fleckner, son of George, attended the Tenth and Green streets school, and when a lad of twelve years was employed as a water-boy in the Pipe Mill, later securing employment in the hardware shops of Reading. He has been in the employ of the lock-fitting department at the Reading Hardware Company for twenty-five years.

Mr. Fleckner married Miss Mary Seigfreid, daughter of William and Mary (Benssing) Seigfreid, and they reside in their own home at No. 1014 Washington street, Reading. Mr. Fleckner is a Socialist in politics. He is connected with the Liberty Fire Company, which he joined June 2, 1881, with Thaddeus Stevens Council No. 252, and Knights of Friendship. He is a musician of some note, and has played in the best bands and orchestras in the city. Personally is very popular, and is considered one of the good, reliable citizens of Reading.

GEORGE C. DENGLER, one of the younger men of Birdsboro to win success, is the proprietor of the excellent "St. Elmo Hotel." He was born Jan. 12, 1881, son of William and Savannah (Cramp) Dengler.

George Dengler, great-grandfather of George C., settled in what is now Mt. Penn borough, and established a hotel there which is still known as "Denglers." He also owned and operated a lime kiln and carried on a farm. His death occurred in 1866, when he was aged about eighty years. His wife died in 1878. They had a number of children, of whom Charles of Klapperthal is the only survivor. The others were: Effenger, grandfather of George C.; Frank; Madison; Ann, m. to Dr. Greissemer; Sarah, m. to Samuel Missemer, and Wilhelmina, m. to a Mr. Kretz, and lived in Indiana. In religious belief they were all Lutherans.

Effenger Dengler, son of George, learned the trade of butcher, which he followed many years. After locating in Birdsboro he engaged in the hotel business, where the "St. Elmo" now stands. He finally sold this property to his son William and retired. He was one of the best known men in the county. His death occurred when he was aged seventy-three years. His wife, whose maiden name was Elmira Ludwig, bore him twelve children, as follows: George, William, Frank, Charles, Effenger, Irvin, Harry, Clara (m. Joseph Hook), Ida (m. William Marshall), Annie (m. William Marquet), Sally (m. Samuel S. Spotts) and Charles (died in infancy). They were reared in the faith of Luther. In his political belief Mr. Dengler was a Republican, and for several terms held the office of councilman. He also served as tax collector, and was ever to the fore in the work of his party. His fraternal connections were with the I. O. O. F., of Reading.

William Dengler was the son of Effenger and father of George C. As stated above he purchased the old hotel property from his father, and conducted a hostelry for some years. He was connected with the Masons; the P. O. S. of A.; and the K. G. E., and was a member of Friendship Fire Company of Birdsboro. He served as councilman for a good many years. He married Savannah Cramp, daughter of Jacob and Kathryn Cramp, and their children were: George C., Jennie C., Raymond C., Harry C., Claude E. and Kathryn C., the last three deceased.

George C. Dengler was educated in the schools of Birdsboro, and then clerked in the hotel for his father. He has literally been trained all his life to the hotel business, and has adopted it as a calling quite naturally. On April 1, 1902, he engaged in the restaurant business, and continued until Nov. 14, 1905, when he assumed the management of the "St. Elmo." He is a typical hotel proprietor, friendly, courteous and accommodating, and he enjoys a large trade. His hotel contains fifteen rooms, and is conveniently located.

In 1901 Mr. Dengler married Lulu Miller, daughter of I. W. Miller, and three children have come to brighten their home: Jennie, Rufus and Adaline. Both Mr. and Mrs. Dengler attend the Episcopal Church. He belongs to the P. O. S. of A.; I. O. R. M.; and Aerie No. 66, F. O. E., of Reading; and Friendship Fire Company, of Birdsboro. He is progressive and energetic, and is looked upon as one of Birdsboro's rising young men.

WALTER PRUTZMAN, engaged in business at No. 304 Penn street, Reading, Pa., as a dealer in stoves, heaters and ranges, and as a tin and sheet-iron worker, was born in Reading in 1854, son of Asaph and Margaret (Mengel) Prutzman.

Walter Prutzman was educated in the schools of Reading, and as a boy learned the trade of tin and sheet-iron worker at his father's place of business. Later he connected himself with W. H. Bitting, under the firm style of Bitting & Prutzman, this partnership continuing for twelve years. Since this time Mr. Prutzman has conducted the business alone. The stand, which is at No. 304 Penn street, a 21 x 90 foot building, is one of the oldest in the city, the business having been founded by Asaph Prutzman in 1860, his son now employing on an average six clerks, selling stoves and furnaces from catalogue, and repairing the same. He has a well-managed, flourishing business which is increasing daily, his fair dealings having won the confidence of the people of the community. In 1880 Mr. Prutzman was married to Miss Rosie High, daughter of Joseph High, and to this union there were born two children: Maude M., who died aged five years; and Paul B., engineer at the Reading Heat & Power Company. Mrs. Prutzman died in 1898, and Mr. Prutzman was married (second) to Miss Rebecca Lembach, daughter of Lewis Lembach. There have been born no children to this union.

Mr. Prutzman served eight consecutive years (1891-1899) as school controller of the Sixth ward, and again in 1904, and 1908. He was a delegate to the city convention that nominated William H. Rowe for mayor. He and his wife are members of St. Paul's Reformed Church and have been active workers in the church for years.

JOHN A. RUTH, who died in Reading April 17, 1901, belonged to a family long resident in Berks county, and was born there in Spring township, Sept. 17, 1839, son of John and Rebecca (Allspach) Ruth.

John Ruth owned two very valuable farms in Spring township, and was also extensively engaged in buying and selling cattle. He was a prominent man in that region during his day, and was also well known in Reading, where many of the older citizens still remember him. He died during the early sixties, aged eighty-five years. He and his wife had seven children, namely: Cyrus, of Sinking Spring; Eliza, m. to William Potteiger; John A.; Henry Y.; Sarah, m. to Samuel Deppen; and two that died in infancy. The family were members of the Reformed Church, and in politics Mr. Ruth was a Democrat.

John A. Ruth was educated in the common schools of Spring township, and remained at home until he was eighteen years old. He then began working in the iron mines in that township, and spent several years in that employment, but later he came to Reading, and was thereafter identified with that city. At first he was in the hotel business on South Sixth street, and later was with the Harbster Iron Company. From there he went to a position with John Bowman, a wholesale liquor dealer, located on Penn street, between Third and Fourth, and was still employed by him at the time of his death in 1901. Mr. Ruth always supported the Democratic party in politics, and in religion he was a Lutheran. At one time he was a member of the P. O. S. of A., but later took his name from its rolls.

During the Civil war Mr. Ruth enlisted in the Union army, but in a short time was discharged on account of disability, as he had contracted a chronic intestinal trouble.

On Sept. 21, 1872, John A. Ruth married Ellen, daughter of Patrick and Mary (Becher) Feeney, of Chester county, the former a native of Ireland. Mrs. Ruth was born in this country in Leesport, Pa. Five children were the issue of this union, namely: Lillie, m. to Joseph Lewis; Nora, m. to Luther Yeager; Mary; Grace; and Minnie, deceased. Luther Yeager, who is now employed by the Philadelphia & Reading railroad, enlisted during the Spanish-American war in Company A, 4th Pa. V. I., under Capt. Willets, and served in Porto Rico, being honorably discharged in November, 1898.

DAVID RENNINGER, deceased, who throughout life was engaged in the milling business in Berks county, was born in Colebrookdale township, this county, son of Abraham Renninger.

Abraham Renninger was engaged in milling in Berks county all of his life, and his son, David, after receiving his education in the common schools of his community, learned the business with him. David Renninger died at the age of thirty-one years, while his wife, Mary Moyer, daughter of Henry and Mary (Koller) Moyer, of Blandon, Pa., passed away aged sixty-eight years. They had three children: James, who died young; Mary A., and John, who also died young.

Mary A. Renninger was married (first) to Daniel Behm, and to them were born two children: William D. is deceased; and Edgar R., a printer by trade, who for several years was employed on the Reading Eagle, married Annie Moyer, now deecased, and they had three children: William L., Leon R., and Mary A. Mrs. Behm married (second) Lucian Roland, who was a plumber by occupation. They had no children. Her third marriage was to LeVan M. Krick, whose death occurred July 3, 1904. He was employed for many years as baggagemaster for the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company, and was also engaged in the cigar, tobacco and fishing tackle business at the corner of Eighth and Elm streets, Reading. He was a member of the Reformed Church. In political matters he was a Democrat, and was connected with the P. & R. Relief Association. Mrs. Krick resides at No. 810 Elm street, her son, Edgar R., and his children residing with her.

JOHN SCHREINER, who for a number of years has been a trusted employe at the Scott foundry, Reading, Pa., is a native of Eidesheim, Rheinpfalz, Germany, born in that country Sept. 15, 1849, son of Frederick and Mary (Glasser) Schreiner, farming people of the Fatherland, who are both dead.

In May, 1882, John Schreiner came to America, landing at New York City, whence he came to Reading, Pa. He became at once employed at the Scott foundry, where he has continued to the present time. Mr. Schreiner has been a faithful, steady employe, and has earned the respect of his employers and of his fellow workmen. He married Catherine Koenig, also born in Germany, eight miles from her husband's birthplace, and she died July 7, 1887, aged twenty-seven years. Their three children were: Miss Minnie, a seamstress, resides at home; George is a machinist by trade and is employed at Wyomissing, Pa., at the textile works; and John died in infancy. Mr. Schreiner resides at No. 329 North Mulberry street, Reading. In his political opinions he is a Democrat, but he has never taken an active interest in public matters, preferring to give his time and attention to his work. He is a member of St. Paul's Catholic Church of Reading. Mr. Schreiner is also connected with the relief association of the company with which he has been so long identified.

WILLIAM O. HERBSTER, who has been employed by the United Traction Company for some time as conductor, is a member of a well-known family of this section. He was born in Montgomery county, Dec. 18, 1872, son of Daniel G. and Henrietta (Dries) Herbster.

Benjamin Herbster, grandfather of William O., was a resident of Albany township, Berks county, but his death occurred in Reading, when about fifty years of age, as did that of his wife, Lydia (Zimmerman) Herbster. They had these children: John, who died at Allentown, Pa., in 1905; Isaac, who died young; Daniel G.; Benjamin, who resides in Ohio; William, who died young; Catherine A., who m. Monroe Newhard, of Allentown, Pa., and died there in 1897, leaving three children, Ella, Lillie and Estella (the latter a teacher in the schools of Allentown); Rev. Samuel, a minister in the Lutheran Church; Lydia, who died when nineteen years of age; and Nathaniel, who died in 1904.

Daniel G. Herbster and his wife resided at Schuylkill Haven, Pa., where he was retired. He died April 10, 1909, aged sixty-seven years, and he is buried at Schuylkill Haven. They had children as follows: Sylvester D. m. Caroline Brown, and resides at Schuylkill Haven; Rose m. David Frey, and also resides at that place; Elizabeth m. Morris Oswalt; William O.; Nora m. George Zimmerman; and Thomas m. Annie Zimmerman, of Schuylkill Haven.

William O. Herbster attended the public schools of Schuylkill county, and when a young man learned the monument business, which he followed for about seven years in Reading. He then accepted a position with the traction company as motorman, continuing in that capacity for four years, when he was transferred to the position of conductor. He is now on the Perkiomen run. Mr. Herbster married Miss Emma E. Babst, daughter of John and Lovina (Meitzler) Babst (mentioned elsewhere), and two children have come to this union: Florence, who died aged seven months; and Helen I., born March 28, 1900, attending school. The Herbsters reside at No. 1258 Buttonwood street, Reading, and are well known and highly esteemed in their community. In his political belief Mr. Herbster is a Democrat, but he has never taken an active interest in public affairs. He is a member of the I. O. O. F.; Camp No. 330, P. O. S. of A., and is also connected with the Relief Association of the United Traction Company.

WILLIAM D. A. BORKERT, for many years well known as a bricklaying contractor of Reading, Pa., who has been recently appointed to the position of City Park policeman, was born April 20, 1860, at No. 1024 Penn street, Reading, son of the late William G. Borkert.

Daniel Borkert, grandfather of William D. A., was one of the earliest contractors in Reading. He married Mary Gantz, and their children were: William G., Daniel, Mary, Albert, Augustus, Amanda, Richard, John, Frank and Susan.

William G. Borkert, son of Daniel, was a brick-layer by trade. He married Catharine Miller, daughter of John and Catharine (Kutz) Miller, and their children were: John J., Emma, Katie A., William D. A., Susan A., Mary E. and Cora R., of whom Susan A. and Cora R. died young.

William D. A. Borkert received his education in the public schools and at high school. After leaving school he learned the hatting trade, which he followed for a few years, and at the age of nineteen engaged with his father to learn brick-laying, continuing with him until the latter's death, July 29, 1901, and then for two years with his uncle, Albert Borkert. Mr. Borkert continued brick-laying for twenty-five years, and in 1894 received an appointment as inspector of the big sewer building contract. After its completion he was employed in 1899, as the first inspector on the asphalt paving contract in Reading. Mr. Borkert spent three years in work at City Park, and when William High was elected park superintendent, Mr. Borkert was put on the police force to succeed Ammon Griesemer. Mr. Borkert is active in Eighth ward Democratic politics and has acted as judge, inspector and clerk, and was a delegate to city conventions. He is a member of the Bricklayers' Union No. 21; Knights of Friendship, and Grace Lutheran Church. Mr. Borkert has held the offices of president, vice-president and secretary of the Union.

Mr. Borkert married Ellen S., daughter of Peter L. Stout, the only left-handed violin player in the county. Mr. and Mrs. Borkert have had children, as follows: William is deceased; Katie m. Robert I. Oswald, and has two children, Stanley C. and Harold W.; Mabel m. David Stout, and has one daughter, Dorothy; Esther m. Oscar A. High, and has one daughter, Edna E.; and Mary, Cora, Lery, Elwood, Marguerite, Ruth, Charles D., Joice L., Edna, Warren R., George L., Miriam W., Dorothy L. and Hazel E., the last six named being deceased. The family live at No. 113 North Tenth street.

ARUS RHODE. One of the oldest and most honored families of Berks county, Pa., is that of Rhode, which has a worthy representative in the borough of West Reading in Arus Rhode, a well-known carpenter and highly esteemed citizen. Mr. Rhode was born March 25, 1850, in Bern township, son of Samuel and Sarah (Noecker) Rhode.

The Rhode (Roth) family had its origin in the personage of Christian Rhode (or Roth), who was a native of Switzerland, from which country he came to America in 1751, settling in Bern township, Berks county. Here he accumulated considerable land, paying twenty-eight pounds tax in 1759. Among others Christian Rhode had two children, Jacob and Frederick, who, tradition says, were very young at the time of emigration.

Frederick Rhode, son of Christian and grandfather of Arus, spent his life at "Snokastettel," "Nattown," Bern township, where his death occurred. He was a laborer by occupation, but succeeded in becoming the owner of much valuable property. He married Elizabeth Sassaman, a native of Europe, and they were buried at Epler's Church in Bern township. Six children were born to Frederick and Elizabeth (Sassaman) Rhode, as follows: Christian, of Bern township; John, a farmer of the same township; Samuel; Jacob, also a farmer of Bern township; Daniel, who settled in Cleveland, Ohio; and Elizabeth, who died unmarried.

Samuel Rhode, father of Arus, was born in August, 1813, in Bern township, where he spent his life in farm laboring, and died in 1874. He married Sarah Noecker, born Oct. 20, 1819, who died Aug. 11, 1859, daughter of Jacob and Christina Noecker, and the eleven children born to this union were named from the calendar, the name taken being that opposite the date of the child's birth. The children were as follows: Amelia m. Franklin Neider, of Reading, and has had two children, Sarah and Franklin (deceased); Catherine m. John Johnson, of Pottsville, and had five children, one daughter and four sons; Malinda m. Reuben Roeder, of Reading, and has eight living children; Hillarius, a painter of Fremont, O., and a veteran of the Civil war, has the distinction of being the possessor of the longest beard in the State, it having reached the unusual length of thirty-two inches (he has an only daughter); Hilderbertus also a soldier in the Civil war, died of typhoid fever while serving in the army (he had no issue); William, a painter and substantial citizen of Dyersburg, Dyer county, Tenn., was twice married and by his first wife had two sons; Arus; Sarah m. Henry Wagner, of Bern township, and has an only daughter; Emma m. Joseph Werner, of Bern township, and has two sons and two daughters; Valeria m. Jacob Houck, of Reading, and has one son and two daughters; and Edwin died at the age of sixteen years.

Arus Rhode worked on the farm until sixteen years of age, when he learned the carpenter's trade with Benjamin Matz, of Spring township, in whose employ he continued for nine years. At the end of this time he married his employer's daughter. Mr. Rhode then worked for different boss carpenters for some years, part of which time he was superintendent of a gang of twelve men for Harry Cheedam. Since 1887 Mr. Rhode has been in business for himself, doing contract work and building houses, and during the last twenty years he has erected 604 residences, in addition to many factories and business houses, stables, etc., also engaging in job work on the side. He has employed at times as many as twenty-two skilled mechanics, but during the last few years he has only had from four to eight men in his employ. He erected the large Edward W. Alexander hat factory twice, the first having been destroyed by fire. In 1871 Mr. Rhode came to West Reading and purchased the first building lot sold here, on which he erected the first house. He also owns two other dwellings in the borough, and is considered one of West Reading's substantial men. Honest in all his dealings with his fellow men, a master of his trade, and a true Christian gentlemtn, Mr. Rhode has won the respect and esteem of all with whom he has come in contact. In the spring of 1909 he was elected second chief burgess of West Reading. Although not a candidate for the nomination the citizens put his name on the ticket and elected him by 118 majority. He and his family are Lutheran members of Kissinger's Union Church of Spring township, of which Mr. Rhode has been an elder since 1904.

On May 17, 1871, Mr. Rhode was married to Mary Ann Matz, born March 25, 1843, daughter of Benjamin and Mary (Fisher) Matz. No children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Rhode, but they have adopted three children, whom they are rearing to man and womanhood with the care they would give their own: Samuel Werner, a nephew of Mr. Rhode, and Katie M. and Eva M. Stamm, daughters of Jared and Elizabeth (Matz) Stamm, of Bern township, the latter of whom is a sister of Mrs. Rhode. Jared Stamm was a son of Jared, and grandson of Jared, who was a son of a pioneer.

PATRICK J. McCAULEY, proprietor of the "Rising Sun Hotel," at Reading, has been connected with various other business enterprises and is well known in building and contracting circles. Mr. McCauley was born in 1866, in County Mayo, Ireland, son of Peter and Ellen (Clark) McCauley.

Peter McCauley, who was a farmer all of his life, lived and died in County Mayo, Ireland, his death occurring in 1874, in his fifty-fourth year. He was twice married, and by his first wife had a son, Robert, who still lives in the old country. Five children were born to his second marriage: Margaret, of Reading, m. Edward Coney; Peter is in Ireland; Patrick J.; John also resides in Ireland; and Catherine is deceased. In religious belief the family are members of the Roman Catholic Church. Mrs. McCauley died in 1900, aged fifty-four years.

Patrick J. McCauley came to America in 1884, on the steamship "British Princess," which landed at Philadelphia. From that city Mr. McCauley came to Reading, where he arrived May 26, 1884, and he at once found employment with the Reading Iron Company, in whose tube mill he worked until 1886. In this year he went to Hartford, Conn., where he clerked in a hotel for two years, then returning to Reading, where he engaged as a clerk in the hotel of Jacob Etzel, Tenth and Greenwich streets for two years. After one year at Ninth and Greenwich streets, Mr. McCauley, in 1893, returned to his native country, but remained only seven months, again coming to Reading. He engaged in the insurance business for a short time, and then associated himself with the "Harugari Hotel" on South Sixth street for five years, at the end of which time he purchased his present property, the "Rising Sun Hotel," which caters to first class trade. Mr. McCauley is a genial, courteous host, and makes an earnest effort to furnish his patrons with all conveniences.

On May 5, 1897, Mr. McCauley was married to Catherine Cullen, daughter of John Cullen, and to them have been born: John, Paul, Jared, Thomas, Margaret (died at the age of four months), and James. The family are members of St. Joseph's Catholic Church, Mr. McCauley being a member of the building committee on St. Joseph's parochial school. He has also engaged extensively in the building business in Reading, erecting a number of properties in the northwestern section of the city. Politically he is a Democrat, but takes only a good citizen's part in public matters. Fraternally he is connected with the Junior Fire Company.

JOHN F. LUTZ, a well known business man of Esterly P. O., in Exeter township, Berks county, engaged as furniture dealer and funeral director, was born Nov. 22, 1863, in Alsace township, now Mt. Penn borough, son of John and Mary Ann (Freyberger) Lutz.

John Lutz, father of John F., was born in Wittenberg, Germany, and came to America as a small child, being reared among the farmers of Berks county. He learned the trade of blacksmith, and became a skilled mechanic, and with his brother, David Lutz, carried on that business in Alsace township, now Mt. Penn borough, for a number of years. Deciding to give up blacksmithing, Mr. Lutz purchased a farm, but death called him before he had settled thereon. His family, however, located on the property, whence they removed later to St. Lawrence, Exeter township. John Lutz was one of the best marksmen in this section of Berks county, and was a popular member of Capt. Gechter's company of light horse guards. He was a stanch Democrat. Five children were born to John Lutz and his wife, Mary Ann Freyberger, namely: George, who died April 27, 1907; Sarah, m. to Jacob R. Bingaman, of Exeter township; Annie, m. to Jackson Snyder, of Oley township; Clara, m. to Daniel A. Rathenberger, of Friedensburg; and John F.

John F. Lutz was educated in the public schools of his native locality, and in Prof. D. B. Brunner's Scientific Academy at Reading, after leaving which he spent a few years in A. J. Brumbach's woolen mills. He then went to Friedensburg, where he learned the undertaking and cabinet-making trade with Uriah H. Schlegel, serving two and one-half years to the trade. He then entered the employ of Schrader & Kline, after leaving whom he worked for Samuel Bohler, a pipe organ manufacturer, and having accumulated the means erected his present place of business in 1885. From a modest beginning Mr. Lutz has built up a large, first-class trade, extending not only throughout Exeter township, but into the city of Reading. In December, 1895, he graduated from the Massachusetts College of Embalming. Mr. Lutz is fraternally connected with Camp No. 230, P. O. S. of A., Esterly; is a charter member of St. Lawrence Castle, No. 463, K. G. E.; and Neversink Camp No. 7,634, M. W. A.; Bohemond Commandery No. 277, A. I. O. Knights of Malta; and was a member of the building committee of the present P. O. S. of A. hall. He and his family are members of the Lutheran Church.

On Jan. 28, 1888, Mr. Lutz was married to Miss Lena H. Schmeck, daughter of Amos and Amelia (Heckman) Schmeck, and four children have been born to this union, namely: Katie E., Minnie M., Esther E. and John E.

FREDERICK A. LATTEMANN, of Reading, Pa., is one of the many valuable citizens which Germany has given to this country, men who have become valuable to their communities and have served as substantial patriots their adopted country.

Born in Hanover, Germany, in the year 1833, Frederick A. Lattemann is the son of Henry and Sophia (Coleman) Lattemann. He learned the trade of molder in his native country, and followed that trade there until 1867, when he came to America on the steamer "America." He settled first in Norristown, but later removed to Conshohocken, Montgomery county. In 1869 he came to Reading, and began work at the Mellert Foundry. Eighteen months later he secured employment at the shops of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad, and there continued to work for eighteen years, at the end of this period returning to the Mellert Foundry, where he remained until his retirement in the year 1898. Since that time Mr. Lattemann has been engaged in looking after his various real estate properties in the city of Reading.

Mr. Lattemann was married, in Germany, in 1857, to Miss Johanna Haunschild, and to them were born two children, viz.: Fred, born in Germany, is employed at the City Hall, at Reading; and Matilda m. George H. Titlow, and has two children, Edwin and Paul. In political faith Mr. Lattemann and his son are Democrats. The religious connection of the family is with the Lutheran church. The family residence is at No. 419 South Tenth street, Reading.

MRS. MARY ELIZABETH SMITH, one of the best known and most highly esteemed ladies of Lower Alsace township, Berks county, who is now making her home with her children at "Pleasant View Hotel," near Carsonia Park, is the widow of the late Albert Smith, and daughter of John George and Wilhelmina (Holtzinger) Smith.

John George Smith was born Feb. 22, 1820, at Flahingen amt Bretten, Grofherzogthum Baden, Germany, emigrated to America from his native land with his brother, Conrad, nearly sixty years ago and settled first at Philadelphia, whence he removed to Reading, and there became foreman for F. J. Obert, with whom he was employed at the time of his death, Dec. 7, 1897. He was married to Wilhelmina Holtzinger, who was born April 2, 1822, at Altlofzheim, Baden, and died Aug. 25, 1883. To this union were born the following children: John George, a master boiler maker of Roxboro, Manayunk, Pa.; Frederick, deceased, who was also a boiler maker; Wilhelmina, m. to Henry Sotters, a boiler manufacturer of Pottstown; Catherine, m. to George Beyerle, a hotel proprietor of Reading; Emma, m. to Albert Barto, a retired hotel keeper of Reading; and Mary Elizabeth.

Mary Elizabeth Smith was reared under the parental roof, and educated in the public schools of Reading. She was married to Mr. Albert Smith, also of Reading, and this union was blessed with these children: Mary Elizabeth, m. to John George Goll, a carriage builder of near Stony Creek, Alsace township; John George, who died young; Wilhelmina and Albert, who also died young; Charles Frederick, who conducts his father's business and resides with his mother; and Misses Anna E., and Cora Mabel, at home.

The death of Mr. Albert Smith occurred at "Pleasant View Hotel," the present home of the family, Feb. 23, 1903.

WILLIAM A. MANNERBACK, a member of the firm of Henry R. Miller & Co., hat manufacturers, at Reading, Pa., was born in 1873, in that city, son of George W. and Rosa A. (Humbert) Mannerback.

For many years George W. Mannerback was a prominent citizen of Reading, largely interested in real estate and at one time a member of the city council. In his earlier years he was connected with the Seyfert, McManus Iron Company, and later was elected constable, and then alderman, an office which he held for a protracted period. He died May 19, 1899, at the age of fifty-five years. He married Rosa A. Humbert, who still survives, and they had five children, namely: Kate and Harry, who died young; Lucy, who died at the age of twenty years; William A.; and Anna W. George W.

Mannerback and wife were worthy members of the Lutheran Church.

William A. Mannerback attended the public schools of Reading, and was quite young when he started out to make his own way in the world. After a short period as office boy for W. H. Reinoehl & Co., he commenced at the bottom of the ladder in the hat manufacturing business, determined to master every branch of that industry. Through close application to business and strict honesty, he attracted the attention and gained the approbation of his employers, John R. Miller & Co., and March 20, 1905, when the company was reorganized, as Henry R. Miller & Co., John R. Miller retiring, Mr. Mannerback was invited to become a member of the firm. This is one of the old and reliable business houses of the State and in its line is second to none in Pennsylvania. The output of the firm include high grade wool and felt (women's) hats, trimmed and untrimmed, and sales are made all over the United States and Canada, shipping being made direct from the factory to the trade.

In 1897 Mr. Mannerback was married to Carrie E. Simon, a native of Berks county. Fraternally he belongs to Reading Lodge, No. 115, B. P. O. E.; Neversink Tribe, I. O. R. M.; Washington Camp, P. O. S. of A., and is also a member of Liberty Fire Company, of which organization he was secretary for three years.

HENRY P. ANTHONY (deceased) was for many years a valued employe of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad Company and one of the most trusted locomotive engineers on that line. He was born in 1825, at Morgantown, Pa., and until the age of twenty-one years remained on the home farm. He then went to Reading, and for a time was employed on the Philadelphia & Reading line as a laborer, later worked for the road as fireman, and after six years experience was promoted to engineer. For many years Mr. Anthony followed this dangerous and responsible duty, during which period he had many experiences and very few accidents. In 1890 he retired from the service, followed by the respect and esteem of his employers. He died Sept. 7, 1904.

In 1856 Mr. Anthony was married to Mary Nyce, and they had thirteen children, as follows: Andora, deceased; Amelia; Frank; Ella, deceased; Catharine; Alonza; Anna, deceased; Henrietta, deceased; Mary, deceased; Charles; Alice; Edward, deceased; and Harry. Mr. Anthony was a worthy member of the Baptist Church. He belonged both to the Masonic and Odd Fellow fraternites, and also to the Philadelphia & Reading Relief Association. His widow still survives, and resides at No. 148 West Douglass street.

MAHLON E. GEHRIS, an enterprising young business man of Muhlenberg township, Berks county, who is engaged in butchering and the manufacture of smoked meats and sausages, was born in Muhlenberg township, Oct. 4, 1878, son of Mahlon and Emma (Yerger) Gehris.

Mahlon Gehris, Sr., who is also a native of Muhlenberg township, is a laborer and is employed at the Carpenter Steel Co., Inc. He is a Democrat in politics, and is fraternally connected with the P. O. S. of A. His religious belief is that of the Reformed Church. Mr. Gehris married (first) Emma Yerger, by whom he had seven children: John m. Katie Hill; Charles m. Jennie Yoder; William m. Ellen Lando; Mahlon E.; Edwin; Lizzie m. Irvin Hinnershitz; and George. He m. (second) Laura Nixon, and one child, Lillie (m. to Morris Kline), was born to this union.

Mahlon E. Gehris was educated in the schools of Muhlenberg township, and until twenty-three years of age worked on a farm. He then learned the butchering business with Rothermel & Mercinger, with whom he remained three years, and in 1904 he purchased the H. F. Kramer stand, where he has since successfully continued to the present time, manufacturing bologna, summer and fresh sausages, hams, etc. He kills on an average four steers, eight hogs and nine calves per week. Since engaging in the business he has attended the Tenth and Windsor market, occupying stalls Nos. 144 and 145.

In 1903 Mr. Gehris was married to Mary Weber, daughter of Henry Weber, and two children, Clarence N. and Harry Mahlon have been born to this union. Mr. Gehris is fraternally connected with the K. G. E., and in political matters is a Democrat. He and Mrs. Gehris attend the Reformed Church.

WILLIAM H. WAGNER, the proprietor of the "Hotel Wagner," a first-class hostelry situated on the northwest corner of Eighth and Walnut streets, Reading, was born at Reading, Pa., Nov. 8, 1867, son of Henry D. and Helena (Feisner) Wagner.

Henry D. Wagner was born at Wassenbach, Kurhessen, Germany, Oct. 14, 1818, and died at Reading, in March, 1889, aged sixty-nine years. He came to America when a young man and located at Reading, and for many years was employed by the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company, working for that corporation until his death. He owned his home at No. 427 Moss street. He was a member of St. John's Lutheran Church and was a man of Christian life and sterling character. He married Helena Feisner, born March 6, 1834, in Kilba, Kurhessen, Germany, whose death preceded his by eleven months, when she was aged fifty-two years. They had the following children: Henry, who died Nov. 8, 1902; Anna, m. to Henry Trumbore, of Reading; John, residing at Reading; Mary, who died in October, 1906; William H.; Conrad; and Adam, of Reading.

William H. Wagner was educated in the public schools of his native city, and after his boyhood was over he went to work in the Reinhold hat factory, at Tenth and Spruce streets, Reading, and remained there about two years. His brother Henry was then made city highway commissioner, and he drove a city team for four years. He was about eighteen years of age when he went to work in the Philadelphia & Reading railroad shops, where he continued until the spring of 1905, when he became the proprietor of the "Hotel Wagner," its first owner. Mr. Wagner is a man of standing in the community, and his house is first-class in every particular. He does a fine business.

On March 23, 1896, Mr. Wagner married Anna Nagle, daughter of George G. and Priscilla (Geiger) Nagle, of Reading. They have had six children, namely: Paul, Raymond, Esther, May, James F. (died Oct. 15, 1907) and Harry. Mr. and Mrs. Wagner belong to St. John's Lutheran Church. He is a member of Aerie No. 66, F. O. E.; of the Independent Americans, No. 27; of Teutonia Lodge, No. 367, F. & A. M., of Reading; and formerly of Resolute Council, Jr. O. U. A. M. He is also a member of the Philadelphia & Reading Relief Association, and of a number of social organizations.

OSCAR L. LESHER, a young business man of Shartlesville, Upper Bern township, Berks county, was born in Jefferson township, near Schaefferstown, this county, July 8, 1880. He is a son of Solomon W. Lesher and a grandson of William Lesher.

William Lesher was engaged in farming for some time in Windsor township, Berks county, later moving to Tulpehocken township, where he died and is buried at the Union Church at Rehrersburg. He and his wife had the following children: Solomon W., William (living at Saginaw, Mich.), Israel, Emma and Nicholas.

Solomon W. Lesher, born in 1840, died Sept. 29, 1905, and is buried at the Union Church at Rehrersburg. For many years he was a well-known merchant of upper Berks county, doing business at Schaefferstown (Tulpehocken post-office) in Jefferson township. He removed thence to Lincoln, Lancaster county, and eventually to Shartlesville, where he was located for a period of twenty years, meeting with success as a merchant. He also served as postmaster at Shartlesville, and he had a high reputation as a citizen.

Mr. Lesher married Ellen Moll, daughter of George and Susanna Moll, and they became the parents of six children, namely: Lizzie, who married Reily Kline; Cassie C.; George F., a resident of New York City, manager of the Morrisdale Coal Company; Charles R., of Wigton, Pa., superintendent of the Phillisburg Fire Brick Works; Norton M., who is in business with his brother Oscar at Shartlesville; and Oscar L.

Oscar L. Lesher attended the public schools during his boyhood and later took a business course, becoming a stenographer. He was engaged in that capacity at Newark, N. J., for one year, and then went to Philadelphia, where he followed the same line of work for three years, returning to Berks county in 1902. He assisted his father until the latter's death, after which he ran the store in the interest of the estate until 1908, when he and his brother Norton M. Lesher formed their present partnership and bought out the business, which they conduct under the firm name of Lesher Brothers. They enjoy a large trade and the high standing won by the upright methods their father practised so many years. They have a fine store, 20x80 feet, well stocked, and conducted in the most enterprising manner.

Oscar L. Lesher married Laura Maneback, daughter of Edward Maneback, of Rehrersburg. Mr. Lesher is a member of Vaux Lodge, No. 406, F. & A. M.; Reading Lodge of Perfection, fourteenth degree; Philadelphia Consistory, thirty-second degree; and Rajah Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S. He belongs to Frieden's Lutheran Church. He is a Republican in politics, and was appointed postmaster at Shartlesville Oct. 30, 1905.

JAMES M. KRICK, a well known resident of the Twelfth ward of Reading, who is one of the old and trusted engineers on the Philadelphia & Reading railroad, was born Jan. 24, 1850, in Reading, Pa., son of Abraham and Mary (Moyer) Krick, and grandson of Adam Krick.

Adam Krick, who was a native of Berks county, was a prominent man of his day, and kept a hotel near the city of Reading. He and his wife had these children: William, John, Peter, Abraham, Maria, Ellen and Hannah.

Abraham Krick, son of Adam, was born in Berks county, and for many years followed the milling business near Bernville, his property being known as Krick's Mill. Mr. Krick died in Reading at the age of sixty-three years, and his wife, whose maiden name was Mary Moyer, died in her sixty-first year. Their children were: Henry, Franklin, Levan, James M., Abraham, Jr., Adam, Mary (m. Harry Levan) and Ellen.

James M. Krick attended the schools of Jefferson township, Berks county, and came to Reading in 1865, spending the first eighteen months of his stay here in a mill. For two years he was a bar clerk, and on May 3, 1871, he entered the employ of the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company, as brakeman, a capacity in which he served for nine years. He was then promoted to fireman, and after six years to the position of engineer, in which he has continued to the present time, having the full confidence of his employers.

In 1874 Mr. Krick was married to Hannah Weldy, daughter of John C. and Maria (Finefrock) Weldy, and to them were born: Charles, a railway postal clerk on the Pennsylvania Railroad; Emma, m. to Winfield Edmund Snyder, a clerk in the Keystone National Bank, Reading; and John, a railway mail clerk, who resides at home.

In political matters Mr. Krick is independent. He is a member and liberal supporter of the Lutheran Church, and is also connected with the Philadelphia & Reading Relief Association. Mr. Krick's residence is at No. 615 North Ninth street, Reading.

WILLIAM B. LUTZ, proprietor of the "Spring Valley Hotel," at Spring Valley, Pa., where he also operates a coal yard, was born Feb. 18, 1865, in Muhlenberg township, Berks county, son of William and Caroline (Borrell) Lutz.

Jacob Lutz, grandfather of William B., was a blacksmith of Alsace township, at what was known as Seidel's shops. There he spent his entire life, and died well advanced in years. Among his children were: Godfried; Samuel; Jacob; William; Fredericka, whose first husband was John Weaver; Amanda, m. to Peter Laas; and Maria, m. to John Hinnershitz. In religious belief the family adhered to the Lutheran faith.

William Lutz, father of William B., learned the blacksmith's trade with his father, and this he made his life work, being engaged in this occupation at the time of his death, which occurred in Muhlenberg township. He married Caroline Borrell, born in Muhlenberg township, daughter of Jacob Borrell, and their children were: John; William B.; Charles; Jacob; Samuel; George; Catherine, m. to Percival Hunsberger; Susan, m. to James Hartman; Emma, m. to James Clay; Annie, m. to Adam Wanner; and two who died in infancy. In religious belief William Lutz was a Lutheran, while his wife belonged to the Reformed Church. He was a Democrat in politics, and served as delegate to various county and State conventions.

William B. Lutz received his education in the schools of Muhlenberg township, and early in life learned blacksmithing and horse shoeing with his father, which he followed for twenty years. He also engaged in driving a horse and cart while the Pennsylvania Railroad was being built from Philadelphia to Pottsville, but in 1901 disposed of his business interests to engage in the hotel business, first renting the "Spring Valley Hotel" for two years. In 1903 he purchased this property, where he made a number of substantial improvements, and in the following year bought Spring Park, which is located directly across the street from the hotel, and is one of the best appointed places for Sunday-school picnics, camp meetings and family re-unions in this section of Berks county. Here he has also made a number of improvements, including the erection of a fine dancing pavillion, and has made the park one of the most popular in Muhlenberg township. In addition to the foregoing, Mr. Lutz purchased the Spring Valley Shooting Grounds, where the Spring Valley Gunning Club has held several contests, and here a number of records have been lowered. One of the longest live bird shoots ever held was celebrated here in 1907, 1,200 live birds being shot, and gunners from all parts of Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey participating.

On May 31, 1890, Mr. Lutz was married to Annie Schmehl, daughter of Lewis Schmehl, and to this union there has been born one child: Pearl Amelia, who is attending St. Michael's Seminary, where she has carried away several prizes in musical contests. Fraternally Mr. Lutz is connected with the K. G. E.; Muhlenberg Lodge, No. 1085, I. O. O. F.; Reading Aerie, No. 66, F. O. E.; Washington Camp, No. 168, P. O. S. of A., and the Independent Gun Club, of Reading.

JOHN HENRY MAST, who has been an employe of the car building and repairing department of the Philadelphia & Reading railroad for some years, has also been prominent in public affairs in the Fourteenth ward of Reading, Pa. Mr. Mast was born Feb. 1, 1858, in Reading, son of John and Catherine Dorothea (Braun) Mast.

Bernhardt Mast, grandfather of John Henry, was a native of the Fatherland, where he and his wife, Eva, spent all of their lives, engaged in agricultural pursuits. They had these children: Frederick, who came to Reading, m. Mary Bauer, and had five children, Fred, John, Christina, Elizabeth and Annie; John; and a son and daughter remained in Germany. In religious belief the family were Lutherans.

John Mast was born Feb. 21, 1821, in Germany, and in his native country learned the trade of carpenter. He came to America about 1847, landing at New York, whence he journeyed to Niagara county, N. Y., and from there returned to New York City. Later he removed to Philadelphia, and from that city walked to Reading, thence to Port Clinton, where he followed his trade of carpenter with the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company, in whose employ he continued until the superintendency of William Good, when he retired. From that time until his death, which was caused by a stroke of paralysis, he was engaged in improving his property. He and his wife, Catherine Dorothea Braun, had ten children, six boys and four girls: Kate F. m. Morris Arnold, and has four children, Emma (m. William Schick), Annie (m. Harvey Litch), Harry and J. Edward (single); John Henry; Rose E. is unmarried; Anna D. m. Charles Hoffmaster; Charles E. m. Annie Neiman; Mary B. is unmarried; and four sons are deceased. In religious belief the family are Lutherans. Mr. Mast was a member of the I. O. O. F.

John Henry Mast was educated in the schools of Reading, Pa., after which he learned the trade of carpenter under the instruction of Aaron Steinbach. Since that time he has been engaged in the car building and repairing department of the Philadelphia & Reading railroad. Mr. Mast is a member of the P. O. S. of A.; Mt. Penn Council, Royal Arcanum; Reading Relief Association; Philadelphia & Reading Veteran Association; and Marion Fire Company. A Democrat in politics, he has always been active in the ranks of his party, and for three terms served as a member of the common council from the Fourteenth ward. He is a Lutheran in religious belief, while his wife attends Calvary Reformed Church.

Mr. Mast was married to Miss Annie E. Furman, a native of Reading, and to this union there have been born two children: Ellen L. m. George E. Reinhard, and has one child, Gertrude; and Bessie R. m. Warren Romig.

REV. CHARLES E. KISTLER. On the records of the Jerusalem church, known in the 18th Century as the Allemangel church, there are recorded hundreds of baptisms of Kistler children, while in the cemetery under the shadow of the church are many graves marked with the same name. Near the center of the oldest part of the cemetery lies a slate stone (which is now being replaced by the descendants with a marble slab) bearing the inscription "I. G. K. 1767." This is supposed to be the stone that marked the burial place of the progenitor of the American Kistlers, who was legally known as Johannes, but was called Joerg or George by Pastor Schumacher in his record, and Hanjoerg or John George, by his neighbors.

(I) Johannes Kistler was a native of the Palatinate, in Germany. On Oct. 5, 1737, he came in the ship "Townshead" from Amsterdam to Philadelphia, and soon after to Falkner Swamp, or Goshenhoppen, in what is now Montgomery county, Pa. It is supposed he was accompanied by his wife, Anna Dorothea, and his oldest children. In 1747 he took out a warrant for land and moved to Albany township, Berks county, then wild and barren, where he made his permanent residence. The vicinity was named "Allemangel" or "All Wants." Johannes Kistler was taxed in Albany in 1756, and was naturalized in 1761, on Sept. 10th of which year he and his neighbor, Michael Brobst, appeared before the Supreme Court in Philadelphia, and there received the papers that made them citizens of Pennsylvania. He was a Lutheran and served as elder of the Allemangel church for a number of years, where his children were baptized and confirmed. His children were: (1) Jacob, who left seven children—Philip, Jacob, Michael, Solomon, Daniel, Catharine and Magdalene. Samuel Kistler Brobst, a teacher of James A. Garfield, was a grandson of Philip; and so was Michael Kistler, the tanner, whose son Stephen was at one time the most extensive tanner in eastern Pensylvania. (2) John remained on the homestead after his father's death. The name John runs through at least five generations, and the trade of blacksmith follows it. John's children were: John William, born May 29, 1757; and Abraham, born Dec. 20, 1761, who is the ancestor of the Perry county Kistlers for whom Kistler post-office has been named. A descendant, Rev. Dr. John Kistler, has for many years been professor at the oldest Lutheran Theological Seminary in America, located at Hartwick, N. Y. (3) George remained in Berks county. In 1779 he was the owner of 248 acres of land and a grist mill. In 1778 he was elected elder of the Allemangel Church, and as he was referred to as George Kistler, Sr., he doubtless had a son George. The archives of Pennsylvania show that a George Kistler served in the Continental army during the Revolution. (4) Philip, born Oct. 19, 1745, died Aug. 28, 1809. He had nine children: Jacob, John, Ferdinand, Philip, Jonathan, Barbara, Maria, Catharine, and Elizabeth. Of these Jacob was a lieutenant in the War of 1812. (5) Michael moved to Ohio, and is the ancestor of the large Kistler settlements in Indiana. His family consisted of John, Michael, Joseph, Nathan, Monroe, Salome and Judith. (6) Samuel was the youngest son of his father. (7) Barbara m. (first) a Brobst, and (second) Michael Mosser of Lowhill. (8) Dorothea m. Michael Reinhart. (9) Elizabeth m. a Mr. Keller, near Hamburg, Pennsylvania.

(II) Samuel Kistler, son of John George, was born Sept. 20, 1754, and died April 24, 1822. He was an extensive land owner. In 1803 he built a very substantial stone mansion in Kistler's Valley, which remained his home to the time of his death, and which has until recently been the property of his descendants. He built the Kistler mill near Tripoli. For many years he has been an elder of the Jerusalem church, and it was while he held that office that the present house of worship was erected, 1812-14. All these buildings erected about a century ago, stand as firmly today as though they had been built in recent years. Samuel Kistler was twice married. His first wife, Elizabeth Ladich, bore him three children, and his second, Catharine Brobst, twelve. These were: Barbara m. Henry Sunday, and is buried at Dunkel's church; Jacob S., father of Samuel J. (who was a delegate to the National Convention which nominated Abraham Lincoln for the Presidency), is buried at the Jerusalem church; Samuel is buried at Tripoli church; John S. is buried at Jerusalem church; Michael died in Ohio; Christian is buried at Tripoli; Daniel and David both died in West Penn, Schuylkill county; Jesse died in Ohio; Levi is buried at Jacob's church, Jacksonville, Pa.; Charles is buried at Newton Falls, Trumbull county, Ohio; Maria Elizabeth m. Jacob Snyder, and died in Ohio; Catharine m. George Weida, and died in Lowhill; Salome m. Jacob Mosser, the tanner, and died in Allentown; and Magdalene m. Solomon Mosser, and is probably buried at Lynnville. The descendants of Samuel Kistler are scattered all over the United States. Many of them have become successful business and professional men. An unusually large number are physicians and ministers of the Gospel.

(III) Jacob S. Kistler, son of Samuel and grandson of John George, was born Oct. 5, 1781, was justice of the peace, and held other offices, and died Oct. 7, 1845. He married Anna Barbara Bausch, who died Nov. 19, 1867. He left sixteen children: John, Jacob, Nathan, Stephen S., David, Jonas, Charles and Catherine (m. to Reuben Buck) are all buried at the Jerusalem church; Reuben died in Louisville, Ky.; Salome, m. to John Hermany, is buried at Jacksonville, Pa.; Mary, m. to Elias Wertman, died at Peoria, Ill.; Lydia, m. to Daniel Long, is buried at New Ringgold, Pa.; Elizabeth lives at Saegersville, Pa.; Anna Fena, m. to Charles Lenhart, is buried at Bethel church in Albany township; Helena, second wife of Daniel Long, died in Atchinson, Kans.; and Samuel J., Associate Judge of Lehigh county, member of the State Legislature, justice of the peace for many years, and family historian, is buried at the Heidelberg church, Lehigh county, Pennsylvania.

(IV) Stephen S. Kistler, son of Jacob S., was born in Kistler's Valley, Dec. 16, 1817, and died March 13, 1874. He was married to Abigail Brobst. They had eight children: Philip, William S., Mary, Albert and Jacob are buried at the Jerusalem church; Sarah, m. to Harry Stine, lives at Fogelsville; Fianna, m. to Emanuel Seidel, is buried at Hamburg; and Samuel died at Seipstown.

(V) William S. Kistler, son of Stephen S. and great-great-grandson of the emigrant John George, was born Nov. 15, 1840, and died Sept. 19, 1887. He served nine months in the Civil War. He was married to Maria Grim, daughter of Reuben Grim and his wife Sarah Wanner. They bought the old Kistler homestead where their eight children were brought up. These are: Jesse, a physician at Allentown; Elmer, who was for many years a school teacher of Lynn Township, and is now a justice of the peace; William U., pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran Church, Pennsburg, and St. John's, Spinnertown, Pa.; Charles E., pastor of Alsace Lutheran Church, Reading, Pa.; Stephen O., who remained on the old homestead; Mary, married to Dr. A. F. Baver, Stony Run, Pa.; and Sallie and Kathryn, who live with the mother at Muhlenberg College, Allentown, Pa. It may seem remarkable that so many out of the family have entered professions. This is, however, nothing unusual with the Kistlers. Four sons of William B. Kistler have entered the medical profession, and three sons of Jacob Kistler have done the same.

(VI) Charles Edward Kistler, son of William S. and Maria (Grim) Kistler, was born in Kistler's Valley, near Lynnville, Pa., Aug. 23, 1870. He is the fifth of a family of eight children, all of whom are still living and enjoying good health. His father had resolved to educate all his sons to become school teachers, which he realized in the three oldest. Before Charles' turn came, the well-meaning father died, leaving the mother with the large family. With rare tact the mother took upon herself the care of the family to whom was left a large farm and much hard work, but very little opportunity for intellectual improvement. Charles E. was, however, not dismayed. Every evening, no matter how hard the work of the day, he could be found at his books, sometimes long after the rest of the family had retired. Within a year after his father's death he had charge of a public school in his home district. The next three years of his life were spent working on the farm during the summer, and teaching school during the winter months. He had mastered the common branches so thoroughly that during the course of a teacher's examination the county superintendent asked him what school he had attended that he was able to answer all the questions more accurately than any of the other applicants he had examined up to that time. He was afraid to say that for more than two years he had not attended any school. So successful was he as a teacher that he earned a State Teacher's Permanent Certificate. When quite young he felt a strong desire to become a minister of the Gospel. He was convinced that the ministry would afford him the greatest opportunity of doing good. In view of this he took private lessons during the last winter he taught school, and with the additional instruction of a few weeks in a select school, he prepared for Muhlenberg College, to which he was admitted without conditions in the fall of 1891. With very little means, and with no prospect of receiving adequate support from any source, he began his career as a student. Although often pressed by want, he was never discouraged. In the spring of 1895 he was granted a leave of absence by his professors to open a summer normal at Lynnville. Here he met with remarkable success. In spite of strong opposition he was so richly patronized that the succeeding part of his course became pleasant and agreeable. In June, 1895, he graduated from Muhlenberg College with credit; and in May, 1898, from the Lutheran Theological Seminary, Mt. Airy, Philadelphia, Pa. His class at the seminary was the largest that was ever graduated from that institution, and a number of his classmates expressed their fears that there might be no place for them. To such Mr. Kistler would say: "If the Lord wants us to work in His kingdom, He will have a field of labor ready for us at the proper time." Mr. Kistler does not believe that the man should hunt the place: if he is worth having, the place will seek him. Without any effort on his part he received a unanimous call to become the Lutheran pastor of the Alsace Lutheran congregation, then worshiping with the Reformed in the union building erected in 1850 and removed in 1908. After his ordination, June 6, 1898, he accepted the call to Alsace church, and was installed as pastor in July, 1898, His pastor, Rev. H. S. Fegley, who had baptized and confirmed him, was one of the officiating clergymen.

When the Rev. Mr. Kistler came to Alsace the Lutheran congregation had been without a pastor for some time, services were conducted only once a month, and the prospects were so discouraging that a number of the members united with neighboring churches. With Rev. Kistler came new life. The congregation, although 160 years old, at once began to grow rapidly. The advisability of separating from the Reformed congregation, worshiping on alternate Sundays in the old building, soon became evident to him. The sentiment on both sides seemed almost unanimous against separation. With no one willing to help take a prominent part in the movement, Rev. Mr. Kistler started it single-handed. With such courage and fairness did he handle the matter that many firm supporters were soon won, and in three years the separation was effected. That it was peaceable and heartily received on both sides, is proved by the twin churches now standing on Alsace hill, costing nearly $100,000.

Under the Rev. Mr. Kistler's pastorate of eleven years 700 members have been added to the Alsace Lutheran congregation now numbering 826 communicants; the evening services have been introduced, so that there are two services on every Lord's Day, or eight times as many services, as there were when he came and all of them more than twice as well attended; the liturgy has been introduced at all the services; the Sunday-school has quadrupled its membership; a very active Mite Society and a Luther League have been organized; and the activity and income of the congregation have increased fully tenfold. Rev. Mr. Kistler preaches English and German with equal fluency. For the last two years he has served as secretary and treasurer of the Reading Conference of the Lutheran Ministerium of Pennsylvania. He has for many years been chairman and historian of the large Kistler family reunions held annually in Lehigh county. He supplied the pulpit of Friedens church, Bernville, 1901-02, and was pastor of the Blandon Lutheran congregation, 1903-08. He had a number of offers which would have made his work easier and more lucrative, but he prefers to remain where his work will count most. He resides at No. 344 North Ninth street, Reading.

On Aug. 23, 1899, the Rev. Mr. Kistler was united in marriage with Effie Fisher, daughter of the late Henry D. Fisher, and his wife Elizabeth (Rothenberger) Fisher.

A brief but interesting history of the Alsace Lutheran Church has been prepared by the Rev. Mr. Kistler, and is here appended in full:

"ALSACE LUTHERAN CHURCH. Encouraged by Penn to come to his Province, the people who left Alsace, Germany, in 1681, pushed their way up the Schuylkill Valley until they reached a place surrounded by hills like their home in the Fatherland. So many of these Alsatians settled here after 1735 that when the township was erected in 1744 it was named Alsace in their honor. Scarcely had they erected their rude homes when they began to build a little log church for a place of worship. This was the first Alsace Church. It was built in 1737, eleven years before the city of Reading was laid out, and fifteen before Berks county was erected. It was a union church from the beginning. Since a number of the people were Huguenots, there was occasional French preaching. Muhlenberg in his report to Halle, wrote: 'As both Lutherans and Reformed, because of poverty and want of regular pastors, took up with tramp preachers, they were continually involved in strife with one another, until the Reformed left the church and their share of the cost of the building was paid back to them.' The little log church was replaced by a stone edifice erected by the Lutherans about 1752. In 1796 the Lutherans and Reformed united again, and built a two-story brick building which stood where Grace Reformed church now stands. The school-room and home of the organist and teacher took up the first floor, while the church auditorium was on the second floor. The last services in this building were held, March 30, 1850, when it was torn down so that the material could be used in the construction of the new edifice, which was dedicated on Sunday, Oct 20, 1850. It stood till the summer of 1908, when the Lutherans and Reformed after a peaceable separation built and dedicated the twin, granite edifices which now stand there.

"From the beginning of Trinity, Reading, in 1752, Alsace became a part of Trinity charge and remained so for an hundred years. On account of this it numbers among its former pastors some of the best educated and most prominent Lutheran ministers in the early history of the Church in America. The following have been the pastors of the Alsace church: Rev. Mr. Wagner, previous to 1754; Rev. Mr. Schumacher, 1754-58; Rev. John C. Hartwick, founder of Hartwick Seminary, 1758; Rev. Bernhard Haushil, graduate of the University of Strassburg, pastor in Philadelphia and New York, 1758-63; Rev. John Krug, 1764-71; Rev. F. Niemeyer and Rev. P J. Krotz, 1771-74; Henry Moller, 1774-76; Rev. F. A. Muhlenberg, who afterward became the first speaker of the Congress of the United States, 1776-78; Rev. Daniel Lehman and Rev. Charles F. Wildbahn, 1778-96; Rev. Mr. Marcard, 1796-97; Rev. Daniel Lehman, 1797-1801; supplies, 1801-03; Rev. H. A. Muhlenberg, D. D., 1803-29; Rev. Jacob Miller, D. D., 1829-50 (the last two both served as president of the Ministerium of Pennsylvania; and Rev. Dr. Muhlenberg was a member of Congress, declined a seat in Van Buren's cabinet, and in 1838 became United States minister to Austria); Rev. A. T. Geisenheiner, 1851-52; Rev. R. S. Wagner, 1852-57; Rev. T. T. Iaeger, 1857-65; Rev. Mr. Wicklein, 1865-73; Rev. F. K. Huntzinger, 1873-97; Rev. Charles E. Kistler, 1898 to the present time.

"The cemetery near the church was laid out and used soon after the first Alsace church was built. Many of the inscriptions on the sandstone tombstones are no longer legible. The dates on the tombstones of John Theodore Baum, who died in 1762, and John Fisher, who died in 1763, can still be read. Subsequently the cemetery was enlarged and incorporated. It remains under the control of the Alsace Lutheran and Reformed congregations.

The Alsace Union Sunday-school was organized about 1887. With the exception of brief intervals, Mr. D. D. Becker has been the superintendent during its existence. Although the Lutheran Sunday-school is only a little over a year old it is much stronger than the Union School has ever been. Mr. Becker is still superintending it.

" For more than a century the growth of the Alsace Lutheran congregation was very slow. With the approach of the city of Reading and the rapid development of Muhlenberg township, very remarkable progress has been made during the last decade. With its present equipments, its willing workers and its splendid field, the prospects of the congregation could hardly be brighter.

"The following are the members of the vestry: Howard E. Ahrens, president; Joseph C. Frederick, vice-president; Garson M. Huyett, treasurer; Daniel D. Becker, secretary; deacons: Fred Leas, Paul Leas, Jacob Wertz, Charles Hirleman, Clayton Rissmiller and Robert Cunnius."

JACOB ECK (deceased), who was for many years engaged in carpentering in Reading, Pa., although the last five years of his business life were spent in conducting a grocery business, was born in 1842, near Fleetwood, Richmond township, Berks county, son of John and Kate (Rothermel) Eck.

Peter Eck, grandfather of Jacob, was a native of France, and on coming to this country settled in Longswamp township, Berks county, where he engaged in farming all of his life. He and his wife, a Miss Kase, were devout Catholics, and were buried at Bally. Their children were: Jacob, Peter, John, Nancy, Magdalene, Lydia, Savilla, Sarah, Rachel and Leah.

John Eck, son of Peter and father of Jacob, engaged in farming in Richmond township, where he was considered a very prosperous man. He married Kate Rothermel, and to them were born a family of whom seven grew to maturity, as follows: Jacob, Charles, Peter, Catherine, Sarah, Mary and Savilla.

Jacob Eck was reared in the home of his father, and attended the schools of his native locality, after leaving which he learned the carpenter's trade, being employed by the Philadelphia & Reading railroad for over thirty years. About five years prior to his death he retired from active business life, and opened up a grocery store, which his widow has conducted since his death in 1895. Mr. Eck was a man of sterling qualities of character, and a faithful member of the Baptist Church. In political matters he was a Republican, and fraternally he was connected with the K. G. E.

In 1876 Mr. Eck was married to Miss Susan Yorgy, daughter of Henry and Mary (Hiester) Yorgy, and to them were born three children: William, who represents the Hooven Mercantile Company, of New York, m. Magdalen Whitman, and has one child, Lance; Catherine, and Mary.

Henry Yorgy, father of Mrs. Eck, was a well known citizen and proprietor of a hotel near Amityville, Berks county, being also by trade a tailor and clockmaker. He died in the faith of the Lutheran Church in his seventy-sixth year, while his wife, Mary Hiester, a member of the Reformed denomination, died when seventy years old. Their children were: Sarah, Harriet and Catherine, deceased; Mary; John; Amelia; Susan and Henry.

FRANK P. STEINER, proprietor of the Reading Commission Company, located at the southeast corner of Sixth and Franklin streets, Reading, was born at Myerstown, Lebanon Co., Pa., Aug. 4, 1879, son of Frank Steiner and grandson of Michael Steiner.

The Steiner family is of German origin, and was located in Pennsylvania prior to the war of the Revolution. It has had a reputation for honesty and industry. Michael Steiner was born in Lebanon county, and he became the owner of land in Jackson township, that county. He died on his farm there and is buried at Myerstown. In political principle he was a Democrat, while his religious connection was with the Reformed Church. He and his wife had three children, namely: Moses died in Lebanon county; Rebecca married Daniel Robeson; and Frank is mentioned below.

Frank Steiner, son of Michael, was born in Jackson township, Lebanon county, and he followed farming on the old homestead which he bought from his father. He died there in 1890, and is buried at Myerstown. He was a very well known man, and was long active in the Democratic party. He was a member of the Reformed Church. He married Susanna Wolever, daughter of Peter Wolever, of Millersburg, Berks county, and she now resides on Railroad street, in Myerstown. The five children born of this union were: Selma m. Francis Reber, and lives in West Myerstown; John M. m. Mary Smith, and is a farmer at Myerstown; Rebecca m. Jonathan Miller, a farmer at Myerstown; Frank P.; and Emma m. Lloyd Laysher, a cigar maker at Richland, Pennsylvania.

Frank P. Steiner attended the local schools in the vicinity of his home and the Myerstown high school, graduating from the latter in 1896. He then assisted his mother on the home farm until he was nineteen years of age, when he engaged in the milk business along the Lebanon Valley Railroad at Myerstown, Womelsdorf and Sheradin. He shipped the first milk to the Reading Pure Milk Company, Reading, but later shipped mostly to Philadelphia. This business he followed with great success for five years, and then, Feb. 11, 1904, he came to Reading and became a salesman for E. B. Slichter, then located at No. 25 South Sixth street, in the commission business. At the end of one year and seven months, in company with Warren F. Linderman and Seidel Handwork, Mr. Steiner bought out Mr. Slichter and formed the Reading Commission Company. Shortly afterward Mr. Linderman sold out his interest to his partners, and the two carried on the business for a year. Mr. Steiner then purchased Mr. Handwork's interest, Dec. 24, 1907, and since that time has been the sole owner of this large and growing business. He deals in fish, clams, oysters, produce, oranges, bananas, peanuts, doing both a wholesale and retail business, and making a specialty of fish, oysters and peanuts, being the largest dealer in these products in the State, outside of Philadelphia. He has trade in five counties and keeps four teams constantly busy, and employs six men. He is located at the old place at Sixth and Franklin streets.

On Sept. 17, 1898, Mr. Steiner married Ida M. Leininger, daughter of Cyrus and Malinda (Zerbe) Leininger, and they have one son, Ralph C., who is in school. In politics Mr. Steiner is a Democrat, but in local affairs is not bound by party ties. Fraternally he belongs to Aerie No. 66, F. O. E.; the Reading Hose Company; Ogalala Tribe, No. 186, I. O. R. M., in all of which he is very popular. He bears an untarnished reputation in the business world, and the success he has attained is well merited.

WILLIAM B. HAFER, one of the prominent agriculturists and dairymen of Muhlenberg township, Berks county, who is conducting an excellent farm of seventy-one acres, was born July 31, 1858, in Muhlenberg township, son of Abraham and Fietta (Berstler) Hafer.

Abraham Hafer was a blacksmith by trade, but spent the major portion of his life as a farmer, dying on a tenant farm in 1891, when fifty-six years of age. His wife still survives and makes her home in Reading. Of their children there is the following record: Catherine, deceased, m. Adam Keller, and had one child, Deborah (m. to Thomas Rismiller); William B. is mentioned below; Francis was killed by a fall in which he was impaled on the handle of a garden rake; Isabella, deceased, m. Daniel Glass, and had two sons, William and Elmer; Rebecca m. James Berstler, and had five children, Gertrude, Robert, Alva, Elsie and Warren; and Laura m. William Gass, and had one child, Leroy (died in infancy). In religious belief the family were Reformed. Mr. Hafer was a Democrat in politics, and for some years served as school director.

William B. Hafer received his primary education in the public schools of Muhlenberg township, but his subsequent training was in the school of experience. For several years he was engaged in farm work for his father, and he then learned the butcher's trade with William K. Leitheiser, of Reading, an occupation which he followed for about three years, and later went to Louisville, Ky., where he also engaged in butchering. Mr. Hafer then enlisted in Company D, 8th U. S. Regulars, in which he served five years, being promoted to first sergeant. His enlistment occurred in 1882, in Cincinnati, Ohio, whence he was transferred to Columbus, where he was stationed about six months, and then to Angel Island, San Francisco, Cal., where about fourteen months were spent. At the end of this time Mr. Hafer's company was transferred to San Diego, Cal., where they were stationed for fifteen months, and then sent to the frontier in Arizona to quell the Apache raids, instigated by the Indian warriors under the wily Chief Geronimo. After eleven months of frontier fighting the regiment was transferred to Fort Bridger, Wyo., and after eight months to Fort Robinson, Nebr., where the balance of Mr. Hafer's term of enlistment was spent. After his discharge he returned East, and accepted a position in the tube works of the Reading Iron Company, where he remained eight years, and in 1896 he located on the old Fisher homestead, owned at that time by Edward Medler. This he purchased in 1902, and since that time he has made many improvements on this fertile, seventy-one acre tract. In addition to carrying on experimental work in agricultural lines, in which he has been very successful, he is conducting a dairy and keeps from seventeen to twenty head of Holsteins to furnish the people of his vicinity with milk, his product also finding a ready market in Reading.

Mr. Hafer was married to Kate Medler, daughter of Edward and Mary Ann (Gaul) Medler, and three children have been born to this union: Guy, Ray and Fay, who attend the high school at Leesport. In religious belief Mr. Hafer is Reformed and he has been active in Sunday-school work. He is a member of Washington Camp, No. 68, P. O. S. of A., and in politics is independent, having held the office of supervisor under the new road law passed by the Legislature in 1905.

RICHARD G. LINCOLN, a retired citizen of Reading, Pa., and the owner of the old Lincoln homestead in Exeter township, one of the most historic spots in Berks county, was born in Exeter township, Dec. 5, 1844, son of John D. and Sarah (Gilbert) Lincoln, and grandson of Thomas.

Thomas Lincoln was a lifelong farmer in Exeter township, and there died at the age of eighty-six years. He had three children, John D.; Anna, m. to John Koub; and one daughter who died young.

John D. Lincoln was born Dec. 1, 1814, in Exeter township, and was engaged in farming there all of his life, he owning a small tract of land. He died at the age of eighty years, in Reading, his wife being eighty-four years old at the time of her death. They were the parents of the following children: Amelia, who died single; Alfred, of Exeter township; Harrison, of No. 935 Franklin street, Reading; Elizabeth, m. to Samuel Hafer; John, who died in 1876; Richard G.; Martha, m. to David Focht; Anna; Sarah, m. to Lewis Ruth, of Reading; Mary, m. to Daniel Biehl, of Reading; and Oscar, who died at the age of two and a half years.

Richard G. Lincoln attended the public schools of Exeter township and the Buttertown school. His first business venture was the opening of the "Red Lion Hotel" at Baumstown, where he remained for a period of thirteen years, after which he went to Birdsboro, being there engaged in a company store for three years, as clerk. Mr. Lincoln's next employment was with the E. & G. Brooke Iron Company, in the same borough for a period of three years, and in 1886 he came to Reading, where he was employed with the Philadelphia & Reading Company, at the freight depot as clerk. After seven years at the latter place, Mr Lincoln went to the lumber yard of Reuben Hoffa, of which he had charge.

On May 17, 1866, Mr. Lincoln married Hannah Y. Stoner, daughter of George and Catherine (Young) Stoner, and to this union there have been born children as follows: Roswell, a graduate of the Reading high school and Stoner's Business College, is now employed at the freight department of the Philadelphia & Reading Company, and resides at home; Virginia, single, resides at home. Mr. Lincoln is a Democrat, and has served as tax collector of the Ninth ward. In religion he is a member of St. Stephen's Reformed Church. He is an Odd Fellow, belonging to Lodge No. 314, of Birdsboro, and a member of Castle No. 302, Knights of the Golden Eagle, at Reading. Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln reside at No. 220 North Ninth street, and are much esteemed in their community.

FRANK R. WENDLING, a successful young business man of Robeson township, Berks county, who is proprietor of the Gibraltar Flour Mills, Gibraltar, Pa., was born Nov. 10, 1876, in Mertztown, Pa., son of Edward and Catherine (Zeigler) Wendling.

David Wendling, grandfather of Frank R., was a native of Clarion county, Pa., and was a millwright by trade, also engaging for some years in agricultural pursuits. He died in Mertztown, Pa., in 1889, in his eighty-fifth year, and his wife, at the same place in 1880 at the age of seventy-five years. They were consistent members of the Lutheran Church. Their children were: Joseph, Tillman, Mary, Carrie, Matilda and Edward. Mr. Wendling was a Democrat in politics.

After receiving a good common school education, Edward Wendling took up the trade of his father, that of millwright, and this he has followed all of his life, having, since 1889, operated a mill at Bower's Station. He is a Lutheran in religious belief, in politics is a Democrat, and is fraternally connected with the Knights of Pythias and the I. O. O. F. He and his wife, Catherine Zeigler, had these children: Ida, m. to A. F. DeLong; Olivia, m. to John A. Fenstmacher; Catherine, single; Emma, m. to Bennewell Miller; and Frank R.

Frank R. Wendling secured his education in the schools of Mertztown, and as a young man engaged in buttermaking at the Mertztown creamery, continuing there until his father removed to Bower's Station, when he entered the Keystone State Normal School, at Kutztown, Pa., from which institution he was graduated in 1896. He then taught school for five years, when he removed to his present location, and has here been very successful. Mr. Wendling is enterprising and energetic, and has built up a large and lucrative business, the capacity of his mill being twenty-five barrels, in addition to which he does a great deal of custom grinding. He also does all kinds of sawing, making a specialty of shingles. Politically he is a Democrat, and he has been a member of the Gibraltar school board since 1904, now serving in the capacity of secretary of that body. Fraternally he is connected with the K. G. E., and the P. O. S. of A.

Mr. Wendling was married in 1899 to Mary Bieber, of Lyons, Pa., and two children, Homer and Catharine, have been born to them. Mr. and Mrs. Wendling attend the Lutheran Church.

FRANK K. REIFSNYDER, a prosperous business man of Reading, Pa., who is engaged in roof painting, was born Nov. 12, 1873, in that city, son of Owen E. and Caroline (Kesser) Reifsnyder, natives of Berks county.

Owen E. Reifsnyder was for many years employed at the tin shops of the Philadelphia & Reading Company, and died in Reading in 1900, aged seventy-seven years. Although he was a member of no church, his religious belief was that of the Lutheran Church. He and his wife had seven children, five of whom still survive: Sally, m. to Peter Oswald; Emma, deceased, m. to Charles M. Ludwig; Amanda, deceased, m. to George Mayberry; Anna, single; Irvin; James, and Frank K.

Frank K. Reifsnyder received his education in the schools of Reading, after leaving which he worked in a cigar factory as errand boy, later learning the trade of cigar making, which he followed until 1900. In this year he engaged as a contractor in roof painting, and he has continued in this line to the present time, being very successful. He owns a residence property at No. 140 South Twelfth street, and there he and his wife reside. Mr. Reifsnyder was married in 1904 to Anna Mays, daughter of Henry J. and Susan (Deppen) Mays. Two children, Henry O., and Anna Mays, have been born to this union. Besides Mrs. Reifsnyder, Mr. Henry J. Mays was the father of H. Robert; Esther M., wife of William J. Horst, of Denver, Colo.; and Jacob H., of Womelsdorf.

Mr. Reifsnyder is a member of the Modern Woodmen of America, and Progressive Lodge and Brotherhood, Independent Order Odd Fellows. He is a member of the Reformed Church, belonging to the choir thereof, while Mrs. Reifsnyder belongs to the United Evangelical faith.

JONAS B. REIDENOUER, a successful citizen of Boyertown, where he is employed by the Colebrookdale Iron Company, is a member of a family which traces its American origin to a German from the Palatinate, who fled to the New World to escape religious persecution in the Old. This emigrant was Johannes Reidenour, who was born in 1690, son of Nicholas and Susanna Reidenour, of Rothenhal. He crossed the Atlantic on the ship "Lydia," which qualified at Philadelphia Dec. 11, 1739, and on the same vessel came his son, Johannes, Jr., then sixteen years of age. In 1759 one John Reidenour was a taxable resident in District township, Berks county, and this must have been the son, as the father died in 1755. Both are buried at Hill Church. The father was married in 1716, and he and his wife, Maria Catharine, had children as follows: John, born in 1717, died in 1721. George, born in 1718, married Elizabeth Kippinger, and removed to western Maryland, where many of his descendants are found. George Nicholas, born in 1720, did not come to America until 1764. Margaret, born in 1722, married John Nicholas Philips. Johannes, born in 1723, married Elizabeth Herbein. John Jacob, born in 1725, died young. Catharine Barbara, born in 1728, married Peter Kohn. Christina, born in 1729, married John Adam Forch. Christopher was born in 1731. Maria Ellis, born in 1733, married Conrad Smith. Maria Albertina, born in 1735, died young. Elizabeth, born in 1737, died young. Anna Ursula was born in 1740.

In the hill country contiguous to the Maxatawny and Oley Valleys were seated the Oley, Hills, and the district now comprised in the townships of District, Pike, Rockland and Ruscombmanor townships. This territory has an abundance of fine water. In these districts were located a large number of Alsatians and Lorrainese at an early date, among them being the Reitenouers, Mosers, Gerbers, De la Camps, Beavers, John Ruhlin, Matthieu Morrett, Nicholas Guerin, John George Riehl, Henry Linville and John Michael Grauel.

Johannes Reidenouer, the younger, was born in Germany Dec. 26, 1723, and at his death June 14, 1805, was buried at Hill Church. He made his will Aug. 28, 1801, and it is on record in Will Book 4, page 294. To him and his wife, Elizabeth Herbein, born 1732, died Jan. 20, 1808, were born the following children: Johannes, 1759-1828; Frederick, 1762-1837; Jacob, 1764-1831; Abraham; Mary Elizabeth, who married George Seibert; Susanna, who married John Stauffer, and had a son Jacob to whom her father bequeathed a sheep; Barbara, who married Michael Hoffman; and Catharine, who never married.

Johannes Reidenouer, born Dec. 3, 1759, son of Johannes, lived in District township, Berks county, where he owned a small tract of land which he cultivated in addition to working among the farmers. He died July 22, 1828, and is buried at Hill Church. He married Elizabeth Herb, born in 1752, and died Jan. 20, 1808, a tall, strong woman of decided character. Their children were: Abraham, who lives at New Berlinville; Jacob, of Maxatawny township; John, who died in Washington township; Daniel; Susan, m. to Abraham Herbst, of District township; Catharine, m. to a Mr. Lehr, and they lived in Philadelphia; and Peggy, m. to Peter Case, of Hereford township.

Daniel Reidenouer, son of Johannes and Elizabeth, was born Jan. 5, 1814. He devoted himself to the cultivation of his tract of twelve acres and to day labor, and at his death May 2, 1892, was buried at Hill Church. He married Maria Polly Becker, who was born Feb. 11, 1817, and who died May 18, 1900. Their children were: Sarah, m. to William Mutter, of New Berlinville; Jonas B.; Reuben, of Lock Haven, Pa.; George, who died aged fifty years; David, twin to George, who died in the Civil war; Mary, m. to Andrew Kemmerer, of Washington township; Lizzie, m. to Jonathan Hoffman, of Washington township; Ellen, widow of Jacob Gildberg; Emma, widow of James Herbst.

Jonas B. Reidenouer, son of Daniel, was born in District township, Berks county, Nov. 10, 1839, and now lives in a fine brick home in Boyertown, which he erected in 1902. This is a double house, the one-half being occupied by Mr. Reidenouer, and the other by his married daughter, Ella. Mr. Reidenouer learned the blacksmith's trade at the age of seventeen with John Deysher, of Boyertown, and this he followed two years, when he became the blacksmith for the Phoenix Iron Company at Boyertown, sharpening tools, and later he became the engineer of the Company, continuing in this employ for thirty-five years, and becoming one of their most valuable men. Since 1895 he has been employed by the Colebrookdale Iron Company. In politics he is a Democrat, and while actively interested in his party's welfare has never held any office except that of school director. He and his family are Lutheran members of St. John's Church, in which he has been a deacon.

In 1863 Mr. Reidenouer married Emma Stetler, daughter of Christian and Mary (Fry) Stetler, of Gilbertsville, and their children are: Henry, of Boyertown; Thomas and Horace, of Pottstown; Ella, m. to Ray Hartlein, of Boyertown; and Charles, of Chicago. Besides his home Mr. Reidenouer owns a good house on Philadelphia avenue. He is one of the substantial citizens of the borough.

JOHN L. BERNET, an enterprising young business man of Ontelaunee township, Berks Co., Pa., who is engaged in a successful butchering business at Leesport, was born Nov. 27, 1875, at Kutztown, this county, son of Llewellyn and Salome (Rickenbach) Bernet.

Moses and Mary(Reeser) Bernet, grandparents of John L., were highly esteemed residents of Berks county, where they carried on agricultural operations. Their children were: Llewellyn; Magdalena, m. to Daniel Bernet; William, who died single; Eber, who went West and there married; and Louis, who is still unmarried.

Llewellyn Bernet, father of John L., was born in Berks county, and engaged in an extensive lime and iron ore business. He married Salome Rickenbach, and to them were born children as follows: Cyrus, who died young; John L.; Mary, who died in about 1880; and Howard, who married Maggie Hunsberger. The mother of this family is now conducting a general store at Leesport, near the depot of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

John L. Bernet was brought up partly in Kutztown, but after his father died, in 1880, he was brought by his mother to Ontelaunee township, where he completed his education and learned the trade of butcher. This occupation he has engaged in to the present time, in all eighteen years. In politics he is a strong Democrat, and has held various township offices, including those of school director and supervisor. He has the respect and esteem of his fellow townsmen to a high degree. He is a member of Camp No. 165, P. O. S. of A.; Lodge No. 503, K. G. E.; Independent Americans, No. 985; and Modern Woodmen, No. 9284, in all of which he is very active. He and his wife are active members of the Reformed Society at Gernand's Church, and he holds the position of deacon.

On Dec. 18, 1897, Mr. Bernet was married to Minnie E. Schappell, daughter of P. Sassaman and Sarah (Dreibelbis) Schappell, and they have children, as follows: Florence; Lewis Howard and Dorothy Mabel.

FRANKLIN AULENBACH, a retired blacksmith and boiler-maker of Reading, Pa., was born in a house which stood at the present site of the junction of Perkiomen avenue and Mineral Spring road, Reading, April 15, 1843, son of Charles and Katie (Likens) Aulenbach, the former of whom founded Aulenbach cemetery.

Andrew Aulenbach, grandfather of Frank, was a hatter by trade, and one of the pioneers of this business in Reading. He was a substantial citizen for his day, and reached an advanced age, he being the first to occupy a grave in Aulenbach cemetery. Among his children were: Jacob, Charles and Kate.

Charles Aulenbach, son of Andrew, was also born in Reading, and learned from his father the hatter's trade, which he followed in connection with agricultural pursuits all of his life. He died aged sixty-three years and his wife, Katie Likens, March 23, 1880, aged sixty-six years. Their children were: Henry; John, who died in Andersonville prison; William; Kate; Franklin; Charles; James; Joseph and Louis, all of these children being deceased except Franklin and James.

Franklin Aulenbach received his education in the schools of Reading, and when a young man worked at the hatter's trade, later apprenticing himself to the blacksmith and boiler-maker's trade, which he followed in Reading until the outbreak of the Civil war. For the next three years he was employed by the Government as a blacksmith and boiler maker, and on his return to Reading was given a position by F. J. Obert, with whom he continued for fourteen years, acting as superintendent of from thirty to forty men. He then became proprietor of the "Perkiomen Hotel," which he conducted for sixteen years, but since 1896 has been engaged in making ornamental fences, etc. He is a Democrat in politics, and has been prominent in public matters, having been councilman from the Eighth ward, water assessor, ward assessor, register assessor for ten years, and assistant market commissioner. His religious belief is that of the Reformed Church. Mr. Aulenbach is fraternally connected with Emblematic Lodge, I. O. O. F., of which he is a past grand, and is also chief patriarch of the Patriarchs Militant, and of Esther Degree Lodge, Daughters of Rebekah.

Mr. Aulenbach married Anna M. Reinoehl, and to this union there have been born six children: Katie; Carrie, deceased; Alice, m. to Silas Ermentrout; George, deceased; Charles, an electrician; and F. Keim, a clerk.

MONROE C. KILLIAN, a well-known resident of Mohnton, where he is employed in the Wyomissing Hosiery factory, was born in Muddy Creek, Lancaster county, Sept. 8, 1869, son of Rudolph and Catherine (Coldren) Killian.

Rudolph Killian, Sr., grandfather of Monroe C., was a farmer of Lancaster county, being a large land owner in East End township, where he died. He married Millie Lessley, and their children were: Samuel, Sophia, Henry, Rudolph, Emanuel and Maggie.

Rudolph Killian, son of Rudolph, Sr., and father of Monroe C., was born in Lancaster county, near Terre Hill, and for several years manufactured cigars, also having the stage route between Lancaster and Terre Hill and Reading for eight years, or two terms. He also carried on farming, but is now engaged in a livery and general hauling business, and owns a tract of land at Terre Hill. Mr. Killian married Catherine Coldren, daughter of Peter and Catherine (Steffey) Coldren, and to them were born children as follows: Wayne, of Montgomery, Ill.; Diller, of Brownstown, Pa.; Kinser, deceased; Monroe C.; Mary, m. to Jacob Winehold, resides at Bowmanville, Pa.

Monroe C. Killian spent his school days in Lancaster county, and learned the cigar making trade with his father, which he followed for two years, then driving an express train at Terre Hill, during this time attending school in the winter months. At the age of sixteen years he began driving a stage between Terre Hill and Lancaster, Pa., and this he followed for seven years—three years to Lancaster, and four years between Terre Hill and Reading. He then did hauling for three years for his father, and in 1897 came to Mohnton, where he was engaged in J. H. Spatz & Co.'s straw hat factory, remaining there three years. The next two years were spent in farming in Spring township, where he purchased land, after which he engaged in a draying business at Mohnton, which he followed for three years. After one year spent in the Spatz planing mill, in 1906 he was employed by the Wyomissing Hosiery mills, where he has continued to the present time as general utility man.

On July 21, 1897, Mr. Killian was united in marriage with Miss Sue E. Spatz, daughter of John H. and Mary (Snader) Spatz, a complete history of this family being found in another part of this volume. To this union there were born these children: M. Phamia and John Randolph. In politics Mr. Killian is an independent voter, casting his ballot for the man he thinks best fitted for the office. He is a member of the Woodmen of America. Mrs. Killian is connected with the Evangelical Association of Mohnton, and is a teacher in the Sunday-school, and for several years was teacher of the infant class.

The pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. Killian was erected on Wyomissing avenue in 1897, and is one of the most modern and substantial residences of the section. Mr. and Mrs. Killian are very popular in their community, where they have a wide social circle.

GEORGE W. BROSSMAN, a gardener at Reading, residing at No. 533 Gordon street, was born in Lower Heidelberg township, Berks county, Aug. 23, 1856, son of Benjamin Brossman. He was reared on his father's farm, where he lived until he was twenty-three years of age. He then went to Montgomery county, where he worked on a farm at Yerkes, also called Collegeville, for a period of four years. In 1877 he came to Reading, and for a number of years engaged in huckstering, being a very successful produce dealer. For two years he followed the carpenter's trade, and built four houses on Gordon street and one on Tulpehocken, and he owns considerable real estate. Since 1904 he has been in the employ of Charles W. Hendel, hat manufacturer, as gardener.

Mr. Brossman served as a policeman under the administration of Mayor Weibel. In his political faith he is a Democrat. He and his family attend St. Daniel's Lutheran Church near Robesonia. His fraternal connections are with the Knights of Friendship, No. 28, Reading; Reading Consultory, No. 3, K. C. O. K. of F.; and the Foresters of America.

On Feb. 4, 1892, Mr. Brossman married Ellen R. Richards, daughter of Adam Richards, of Bernville, and they have two children, Ella R. and George A.

JOHN P. STAPLETON, a well-known school teacher of Berks county, was born in Oley township Nov. 14, 1881, son of Samuel B. and Catharine (Pyle) Stapleton.

"The Stapleton family is of English nobility. Becoming a Quaker, Robert P. Stapleton was ostracized by his kindred and came to Pennsylvania. He 'settled' a plantation known as the Stapleton Place. The date of his coming to Oley township is not known. His plantation of over four hundred acres lay on the Manatawny Creek in Oley, immediately south of the Oley Churches. The small brick house built by the emigrant sometime prior to 1745 may still be seen, just across the field to the east where the pike turns at right angle toward Reading, at the toll gate near Stapleton. In 1734 he had surveyed a tract of land 'adjoining his own.' This land was on the east side of the creek. In 1736 he had a warrant granted him for two hundred acres, originally surveyed for Thomas Miller, millwright, March 20, 1719, who sold his right to said Robert (Pa. Arch. III, Series, Vol. 2). But this was after he warranted land 'adjoining his own' and does not settle the date of his coming.

"The Stapleton family history was difficult to trace. The foresight of Rev. A. Stapleton, a foremost minister of the United Evangelical Church, stationed now (1909) at York, Pa., preserves to posterity the following data. Rev. Stapleton writes: 'In 1861-63, when I was a mere boy and lived with my grandmother, Elizabeth Stapleton, of Oley (1795-1874), the widow of William Stapleton, of Oley (1781-1849), she told me of my ancestor. This stimulated me to know my full history, and with determination I began to unravel it. It took me over twenty-five years of most recondite and seemingly hopeless research before I was able to give a satisfactory account of Robert P. Stapleton and his family. He seems to have been a younger scion of the Carlton branch of the family, the baronial name of which was 'Beaumont.' A full history going back to A. D. 1308, is found in 'Burke's British Peerage' and 'Burke's County Families of the United Kingdom.'

"Robert and Catharine Stapleton had children as follows: (1) Tobias patented land in Albany township, 1747, and where he died at a very advanced age in 1805, leaving descendants. (2) John died, 1754, on the old home, leaving an only son, John 2d, born 1751, died 1820, buried at Amityville. He was the great-grandfather of Rev. A. Stapleton. (3) William, born 1720, died 1785, on the lower half of the lower plantation. Left no issue. (4) Charles emigrated with his father to the Shenandoah Valley, Va., and became a great land owner there. (5) Elizabeth m. Mich. Keltner, emigrated to Virginia. (6) Catharine m. Samuel Dark, emigrated to Virginia. (7) Mary m. Fred Painter; emigrated to Virginia. (8) Sarah m. Conrad Arnold; emigrated to Virginia. (9) Margaret m. (first) Jacob Reich, (second) Fred Cutley, Virginia.

"In 1750 a considerable emigration took place from Oley to the newly surveyed lands of Lord Fairfax in Virginia. The wife of Lord Fairfax being a Stapleton, it is probable that there was some connection with that fact and the emigration of Robert P. Stapleton, of Oley, to that region, as he seems to have been the promoter of the movement from Oley. Stapleton left his son John in charge of the Oley plantation, while he started anew on a plantation of 428 acres on Holman's Creek, seventeen miles southwest of Woodstock, Va. Here he died near the beginning of 1755, at which time his will, which is at Winchester, Va., was probated. Unfortunately his son John died in Oley, near the same time (December, 1754).

"The family Stapleton, descendants of Robert, is very small. The descendants of Charles in Virginia cannot now be differentiated from those of Sir John Stapleton of Virginia, who seems to have been a close connection of Lady Fairfax. The descendants of Tobias are few and scattered in the hilly district of Albany township, Berks county, and Penn township in Schuylkill county. They spell the name Steveldon, and are thoroughly Germanized. William, as said, had no issue. John had an only son, John Jr. He was a first lieutenant in the Revolutionary war. This John, Jr., in 1780 married Rosina Miller, daughter of John Wilhelm Miller who in 1751 came from Ittligen, near Carlsruhe, Baden, to Pennsylvania, and settled at now Pleasantville, in Oley, on the Manatawny. He was the first potter and tiler in the valley.

"John Stapleton, Jr., a grandson of the emigrant, had two sons and five daughters. Sons: William, 1781-1849; John, 1790-1861. William only was married of the sons. He had a large family, but only two sons who had issue, viz.: William, b. 1815, father of Rev. A., died 1899; and John D., 1817-1897, the grandfather of John P. Stapleton."

John D. Stapleton, grandfather of John P., was born in Oley township March 21, 1817, and died Aug. 27, 1897, and is buried at Oley Churches. He was a carpenter and undertaker, and lived below Griesemersville. He built many barns and houses in his locality, and buried many people. He was a Lutheran member of Oley Churches, and was treasurer of the church many years, and was highly esteemed by all. He married Catharine Biehl, born Oct. 21, 1822, died Jan. 31, 1890. Their children were: Albert, a carpenter and undertaker, who lived in Earl township; Samuel B.; John B., 1852-1898, unmarried; and Rebecca, m. to John Kupp.

Samuel B. Stapleton, son of John D., was born in Oley township May 23, 1846, and died Oct. 30, 1906, having passed his entire life in his native township. By occupation he was a carpenter, and he also cultivated an eleven-acre tract of land he owned. He was a Lutheran and is buried at Amityville, of which church he was a member. He was tax collector of Oley township at the time of his death. He married Catharine Pyle, daughter of Henry Pyle, a school master. She was born May 10, 1849, and died Dec. 10, 1904. Their ten children were: Sallie, who died in infancy; Harry, a railway mail clerk; Annie, m. to Eli B. Griesemer; Katie, m. to Henry Conrad; Rebecca, deceased, m. to Jonas Snyder; Samuel, of Oley; John P.; Frank, a line man; a daughter that died in infancy; and Martin L., of Oley.

John P. Stapleton received early home training on his father's farm. He attended the public schools of Oley, Oley Academy, and the Keystone State Normal School at Kutztown, which he attended three terms. For four seasons he was hired out on the farm with Ammon S. Hartman, and also on the farm in Oley, working in all eight seasons at farm work by the month. During vacation he works on the farm for relatives and friends in the neighborhood. On June 23, 1902, he was licensed by Prof. E. M. Rapp to teach in the public schools, and four years later was granted a professional certificate, and at the end of another year a permanent certificate. He taught two terms in Earl township, and five terms in Pleasantville, the latter being the only independent school district in Berks county, and in the fall of 1909 he will be in Earl township. He is very successful in his work, and is a thoroughly conscientious worker for the good of his pupils. Upon the death of his father the court of Berks county appointed him tax collector of Oley township, which position he filled very creditably for two and one half years. Mr. Stapleton is a member of the Lutheran Church at Amityville, and his wife is a member of the same faith, at Oley.

On May 18, 1907, Mr. Stapleton married Clara S. Drumheller, daughter of Mahlon B. Drumheller, of Earl township. To this union has been born one daughter, Agnes C., June 5, 1908.

WILMER H. SLATER, one of the energetic and enterprising young business men of Reading, who as W. H. Slater & Co., is engaged in the printing business at No. 500 North Tenth street, was born July 11, 1879, at Terrehill, Lancaster county, son of John and Sarah (Lesher) Slater, who resides at that place.

Wilmer H. Slater attended the schools of his native county, and when a young man learned the printing trade at the office of the "Times" at Terrehill. He remained in this capacity for six years, and in July, 1895, came to Reading, where he secured employment with Henry Bieber, continuing with this gentleman a period of five years. He later engaged in the restaurant business for a short time, but sold this and bought the printing business of William Turner, known as the Christian Life Printing Company, at No. 991 Walnut street. This he operated for a short time, but sold it back to Mr. Turner, establishing his present business Aug. 1, 1905. He enjoys a good and growing trade, doing all kinds of job and book work, also manufacturing postal cards and advertising novelties. His office is fully equipped with the best and most modern machinery. Until October, 1908, he was located at No. 806 Walnut street, but the increased volume of business necessitated larger quarters, and he removed to his present location on North Tenth street, where he has five times the space. He occupies the entire three stories. He has added books, stationery and novelties to his stock, and under the name of "Slater's Novelty Shop" carries on a mail-order business. He is the sole owner of the business, and directs it all himself.

Mr. Slater married Esther E. Weber, and four children have been born to this union: Warren F., Mary H. (deceased), and Ruth I. and Naomi A., twins. Mr. Slater is a member of St. Paul's United Evangelical Church of Reading, in which he is class leader and a teacher in the Sunday-school. He is very popular in his community, as is his wife, and their many friends always find a cheery welcome at their home at No. 810 Walnut street.

SCHMICK. Casper Schmick (also spelled Smeck) in the old tax list in 1758, was the ancestor of this old and honored family, and the father of Christian Schmick. As early as 1757 Casper Schmick was taxed in Maxatawny township. In 1775 he paid ten pounds in the same district.

Tradition states that Johannes Schmeck, of Alsace township, Berks county, was a brother of Casper, and he died in 1762, his last will having been made Oct. 24, 1762, and probated Nov. 2nd of the same year. His wife Elizabeth and son Henry were the executors. He left a large estate. His wife was to have among other items of value, 300 pounds of lawful money. Son Henry obtained one plantation, while son Valentine another. The two daughters, Anna Clara and Anna Margaret both obtained large legacies.

(II) Christian Schmick, son of Casper Schmick and great-grandfather of Henry J. Schmick, was born Nov. 7, 1761, and was the first of that name to settle in Maxatawny township. He built a stone house in 1816, which is still standing, and in excellent condition. It is occupied by Henry J. Schmick and family. His wife was Elizabeth Mattern, born Dec. 2, 1768, died Aug. 22, 1848. Christian Schmick died Dec. 30, 1844. He, his son Heinrich, and grandson William and their wives are all buried in Hope cemetery at Kutztown Pa. Among the children of Christian Schmick are: Heinrich; Casper, Jonathan and Christian.

Some very interesting information is gleaned from old records regarding the purchase of certain lands by Christian Schmick, as follows: On March 20, 1795 Christian Schmick bought from Godleib Becker forty acres, 117 perches, in Maxatawny. On April 12, 1802, Christian Schmick bought thirty-four acres, sixteen perches, from Jacob and Maria Brobst. On May 1, 1810, Christian Schmick bought of Peter Mattern and wife, thirty-four and one-half acres for 379 pounds and ten shillings. On May 1, 1810, Christian Schmick bought of Peter Mattern sixteen acres, fifty perches, for 196 pounds and ten shillings, this latter piece of land being woodland.

(III) Heinrich Schmick, son of Christian Schmick and grandfather of Henry J., was born April 26, 1807, on the homestead in Maxatawny, and died July 24, 1897. He was a farmer, and in 1880, built the barn on the homestead property, the former barn having been destroyed by fire in the fall of 1879. He was a well known man of Upper Berks county, and an elder of St. John's Reformed church, at Kutztown, and very active in the work of that organization. On May 29, 1836, he was married by the Rev. A. S. Herman to Anna Hager, born March 10, 1813, died March 18, 1878, and they had one son, William.

(IV) William Schmick, son of Heinrich Schmick and father of Henry J. Schmick, was born on the homestead Dec. 18, 1837, and died April 29, 1888, and is buried in Hope cemetery at Kutztown. He was a farmer. He married Elizabeth Zimmer, born May 1, 1841, and they had two children: Annie, m. to J. Richmond Merkel, of Bridgeton, N. J., principal of public schools of that city; and Henry J. Mrs. Elizabeth (Zimmer) Schmick resides with her son, Henry J.

The history of the Zimmer family is also very interesting. Mrs. Schmick is a daughter of Daniel and Caroline (Reit) Zimmer, granddaughter of Johannes Zimmer and great-granddaughter of Heinrich Rudolph Zimmer.

Heinrich Rudolph Zimmer was a native of Holland, but came to America, settling in Greenwich township, Berks Co., Pa., where he became a farmer. His farm was later owned by William Roth. Mr. Zimmer is buried at Grimville church, and his last resting place is marked by a blue slatestone slab. He had four children: a son whom tradition says disappeared, probably having been killed by the Indians; Johannes; Margaret (Kohler) and Catharine.

Johannes Zimmer, son of Heinrich Rudolph Zimmer and grandfather of Mrs. William Schmick, was a native of Greenwich township as was his wife, Rosina Witt, and they had children as follows: Sally, John, Gideon, Rudolph, Solomon, Henry, Daniel and Penrose.

Daniel Zimmer, son of Johannes Zimmer and father of Mrs. William Schmick, was a shoemaker by trade. He was born July 22, 1809, and died at age of eighty-seven years. He married Caroline Reit, born Aug. 1, 1811, daughter of George Reit. They had children as follows: Anna Maria, born May 29, 1832; Johann Daniel, Sept. 6, 1833; Hannah, Dec. 13, 1834; Amandus, July 13, 1836; Amelia, Jan. 13, 1838; Catharine, Dec. 19, 1839; Elizabeth, May 1, 1841; Henrietta, Feb. 23, 1844 (died Feb. 8, 1853); Judianna, Aug. 9, 1846, and Charlotte R., Aug. 27, 1849.

(V) HENRY J. SCHMICK, son of William Schmick, is a prosperous farmer at Schmick's Hill, in Maxatawny township, Berks Co., Pa., and was born Sept. 12, 1875, on the farm originally owned by Christian and Elizabeth Schmick, his great-grandparents. Mr. Schmick was brought up on the farm. When only twelve years of age he had the misfortune to lose his father, and two years later he began practical farming. After several years, however, he sold his stock and removed to Chicago, where for two years he was in the employ of the Union Stock Yards. His next change was made when he came back to Berks county in December, 1896, and here he remained until April of the following year when he again went West, and traveled through Kansas and adjoining States. In 1898 he returned to Berks county once more to make it his home, and in 1902 he resumed his farming operations. His valuable property is the old homestead which was willed him by his grandfather Heinrich Schmick. This tract consists of 143 acres of good agricultural land, and about sixteen acres of woodland. Mr. Schmick has a well-stocked, well-improved farm and owns some very valuable machinery.

On May 29, 1900, he was married to Hettie K. Ely, daughter of Clinton and Sarah (Kleine) Ely of Richmond, and granddaughter of David and Clarissa (Breyfogel) Ely. One son has been born to Mr. and Mrs.

Schmick, Harlon Ely. In politics Mr. Schmick is a Republican, and he has always taken a deep interest in local affairs. He and his family are members of St. Paul's Reformed church at Kutztown.

EDWARD A. GICKER, one of Reading's enterprising young business men, who is manager of the well-known O. F. Kauffman Music House, was born Feb. 16, 1873, at Pine Grove, Schuylkill Co., Pa., son of Absalom and Sarah (Werntz) Gicker.

John Gieker, great-grandfather of Edward A., was a joiner of Bern township, Berks county, and died at the old Hain's Church, when nearly ninety years of age, and was buried at Bern Church. He married a Miss Freymoyer, and they had two children: Jonathan and Catherine.

Jonathan Gicker, grandfather of Edward A., was born in Bern township, where he followed butchering, also operating a small farm in connection therewith. Later in life he removed to Pine Grove, Schuylkill county, where he engaged in the hotel business until his death. Mr. Gicker married Rebecca Kissinger, daughter of Abraham Kissinger, of Bern township, and to this union there were born the following children: Jonathan, Washington, Absalom, George, Louisa, Abraham, Aaron and Amelia.

Absalom Gicker, father of Edward A., attended the schools of Bern township, after leaving which he learned the butchering business with his father, with whom he remained until twenty-two years of age. He then went to Schuylkill county, and there engaged in the hotel business for one year. He carried on a like business at Jonestown, Lebanon county, for one year, when he returned to Pine Grove, and in 1880 located in Reading, where he was employed at different occupations, finally engaging in the hotel business for six years. He then sold out to engage in hauling, which he followed for a short time, did butchering for one year, re-engaged in the hotel business for another year, and in 1893 embarked in the fish business, in which he has continued to the present time with much success. At his stand at the Fourth street market house, Cherry street, he handles all kinds of fish in season, and is handling his share of the large business done there.

Absalom Gicker married Miss Sarah Werntz, of Pine Grove, daughter of Frederick and Sarah L. Werntz, and to this union the following children have been born: Edward A.; Frank, a molder employed by the government and residing at Washington, D. C., m. Catharine Heck; Irene m. William Mee, proprietor of the old "Corner Hotel" at Williamsport, Pa.; Catherine m. Frederick Wise, of Reading, Pa.; Florence R. is at home; Ralph resides with his parents; and three children died in infancy.

Edward A. Gicker came to Reading as a boy and attended the public schools and Stoner's Business College, from which he was graduated in 1896. He then accepted a position as foreman in a bicycle factory, having charge of the frame department, where he remained three years. During the Spanish-American war Mr. Gicker enlisted in Company A, 4th Pennsylvania, National Guard, and left Mt. Gretna, May 11, 1898, for camp. He then went to Porto Rico, where his regiment remained three months, he acting as sergeant major. After returning home, Mr. Gicker engaged with Mr. Goodhart, the well known tobacconist of Penn street, Reading, as manager, and remained with this gentleman for two and one-half years. In 1900 he purchased the phonograph department of C. H. Lichty of Reading, which he successfully conducted until Nov. 28, 1905, with Edward L. Woomer, at which time he sold out to O. F. Kauffman, now deceased, and since that time has been manager of the Kauffman Music House.

On Dec. 29, 1899, Mr. Gicker was married to Florence C. Mack, daughter of George and Catherine (Hoernle) Mack, and to this union one son has been born: E. Douglas, born in 1905. Socially, Mr. Gicker is connected with the Masons, belonging to Reading Lodge, No. 549, F. & A. M.; Reading Chapter No. 152, R. A. M.; Reading Lodge of Perfection, 14th degree; DeMolay Commandery No. 9, K. T.; and Rajah Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S. He is also a member of the Modern Woodmen of Reading, the Penn Wheelmen, the Philharmonic Band, and director of the Apollo Orchestra. Mr. Gicker is a member of the Second Reformed Church. He and Mrs. Gicker reside in their own home at No. 1023 North Eleventh street, Reading, and are well known in social and musical circles.

SAMUEL W. LADD, who died in Reading, Pa., in 1864, was for some years engaged in a mercantile business in that city. He was born in November, 1840, in Connecticut, son of Stephen A. and Hannah (Kingsbury) Ladd, and a descendant of the English progenitor, who came from the mother country at an early day and settled in New England.

Stephen A. Ladd, father of Samuel W., was a farmer in Connecticut all of his life, and in that State he and his wife died. They were the parents of six children, as follows: Annie, m. to Giles Meacham; Sarah; Sabrina, m. to a Stacey; Mary, who died single; John; and Samuel W. In religious belief the family were Congregationalists. Politically they were a family of Abolitionists, and were strongly allied with the Whig party, and later, on the organization of the Republican party, they were prominent in that organization's ranks.

Samuel W. Ladd was educated in Connecticut, and came to Reading, Pa., as the representative of an old and substantial Massachusetts insurance company. He was later engaged in the mercantile business, which he followed until 1864, when his death occurred. Mr. Ladd married Amanda Shalter, daughter of Francis B. and Hannah (Seidel) Shalter, and to them were born six children: Lillie m. to John B. Otto, of Williamsport; Charles R., deceased; Hannah E., m. to Rev. F. F. Buermeyer; Evelyn E., m. to Dr. Milton H. Valentine; Annie E., deceased; Lura, m. to Dr. John W. Lowe. In religious belief Mr. Ladd was a Lutheran, to which faith Mrs. Ladd, who survived him until Jan. 29, 1909, also adhered. In politics he was a stanch Republican.

EDWARD A. HARTGEN, proprietor of the "Eagles' Inn," located at the northwest corner of Tenth and Washington streets, Reading, was born Oct. 1, 1877, at Norristown, Montgomery Co., Pa., and came to Reading with his parents in his infancy. He attended St. Paul's parochial school and later learned the trade of confectioner, which he followed for a period of twelve years. He then, in 1902, entered the hotel business, and has since been successfully engaged in that line, conducting the "Eagles' Inn" in a perfectly up-to-date manner.

Mr. Hartgen has numerous social connections, belonging to Aerie No. 66, Fraternal Order of Eagles; to B. I. L. of A., No. 155, of which he was one of the organizers and charter members; to Columbus Commandery No. 271, Knights of St. John; to the Knights of St. George; to the Catholic Literary and Social Union, and to the Bavarian Beneficial Association. He also holds membership in the German Alliance of America. He is a member of St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church, and in politics he is actively identified with the Democratic party; and is a member of the Northeastern Democratic League.

On June 2, 1887, Mr. Hartgen was married to Miss Annie C. Kemp, daughter of John and Margaret (Rafter) Kemp, and they have a family of three children; William E., F. Anthony and Charles A.

Jacob Hartgen, father of Edward A., was born in 1843, in the Province of Nassau, Kingdom of Prussia. In his youth he learned the trade of baker, but gave it up to enlist for the Austro-Prussian war, which lasted four months, being concluded in 1866. After the war he went to Antwerp, Germany, where he worked at his trade for nine months. The next four months he spent at sea as cook and baker, after which he came to America. He went to Mineral Point, Wis., where he met his future wife, and from there to Galena, Ill., where he met President Grant just after his nomination. He was married a year later to Mary Fritz, and the young couple went to Grand Rapids, Mich., where Mr. Hartgen worked in Sears & Co.'s cracker factory. The oldest son, J. Fred was born here. Their next location was Bellevue, Iowa, where the second son, Joseph was born. On coming to Pennsylvania, Mr. Hartgen first located in Mahanoy City, but stayed there only one week, when he went to Philadelphia. For about three years in the seventies he was located in Norristown. After the birth of his son Edward A., he located in Reading, where he has remained.

ROBERT T. HAMILTON, a well-known resident of Reading, Pa., who was employed in the planing mill department of the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company until his death Feb. 15, 1909, was a veteran of the Civil war. Mr. Hamilton was born in Johnstown, Pa., July 18, 1837, son of John and Margaret (Dougherty) Hamilton.

John Hamilton was born in 1813, in Huntingdon county, Pa., and when a young man located at Johnstown, where he followed the trade of patternmaker, being one of the earliest employes of the old Cambria Iron Company. He died in 1885, in Lower Yoder township. His wife, Margaret Dougherty, was born Feb. 20, 1815, at Loretto, Cambria county, daughter of John Dougherty, who was among the earliest settlers of Cambria county and one of the first citizens of Johnstown. He removed from Johnstown to a small farm near Loretto about the year 1812, and it was on this place that Mrs. Hamilton was born. She had the distinction of being christened by Father Gallitzen, the famous prince priest, whose life is so romantically interwoven with the early history of Cambria county. She grew to young womanhood in Loretto, and when about twenty years of age came to Johnstown and shortly afterward was married to John Hamilton. At the time of her death, which took place Dec. 24, 1905, at No. 749 Franklin street, Johnstown, Mrs. Franklin was the oldest woman in the city, being nearly ninety-one years of age, and she had spent practically all of the many years of her residence there in the place in which she died. She was well known in the city, particularly among the older residents. The funeral took place from St. John's Catholic Church, of which she was one of the earliest members, and following a mass of requiem interment was made in the cemetery in Lower Yoder township. Nine children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton, only four of whom survive their mother: Robert T., of Reading; and John H., Charles and Frank, all of Johnstown. One son, William, died in infancy, and four daughters, Mrs. Mary Devine, Mrs. Elizabeth Amy, Mrs. Tillie Baird and Ida Hamilton are deceased.

Robert T. Hamilton was educated in the schools of Cambria county, also receiving instruction under the Rev. Mr. Sembower, of Reading, after which he learned the carpenter's trade, which he followed until 1863. In this year he accepted a position with the Philadelphia & Reading Railway, with which he was ever afterward connected. In August, 1862, Mr. Hamilton enlisted in Company K, 136th Pa. V. I., First Army Corps, Second Brigade, serving out his full term of nine months. He was a faithful and efficient soldier, and during his services was in a number of serious engagements, including Antietam, Fredericksburg and Chancellorsville.

In 1860 Mr. Hamilton married (first) Mary Fix, a native of Reading, by whom he had five children, three of whom still survive: Howard M. m. Della Murdoch; Warren L. m. Hannah Drunkenmiller; and Emma H. m. Joseph Tyon. Mr. Hamilton m. (second) Louisa Hessley, a native of Lehigh county, who survives him, and resides at No. 935 North Third street, Reading.

In religious belief Mr. Hamilton was a Roman Catholic, but later he joined the Lutheran Church, of which his widow is also a member. He was a member of McLean Post, No. 16, G. A. R., which he joined over thirty years ago; Reading Council, No. 46, O. U. A. M.; and the Philadelphia & Reading Relief Association; and he was formerly a member of the I. O. O. F., the Knights of Pythias and the Jr. O. U. A. M. In politics he was a stanch Republican.

ROBERT B. CHURCH, one of the best known passenger locomotive engineers on the Schuylkill Valley branch of the Pennsylvania Railroad, was born in August, 1851, across the river from Harrisburg, in the vicinity of Wormleysburg, Cumberland county, son of Robert R. and Louisa (Phillips) Church.

Mr. Church received his education at White Hill Seminary and in Wormleysburg, and came to Reading in 1868, apprenticing himself to the carpenter's trade with George W. Garst, a well known contractor and builder, with whom he remained until 1871. In the following year he removed to Reynoldsville, Pa., and after a short period there went to Harrisburg and thence to Baltimore, Md., engaging in work for the Northern Central Railroad, as firemen, Aug. 20, 1872. In 1875 he resigned his position and resumed carpentering, returning to Reading, where he worked for his former employer, Mr. Garst. Mr. Church followed carpentering until 1879, and in this year re-engaged in firing, and continued in the service of the Northern Central Railroad until Oct. 27, 1886, when he was transferred to the Schuylkill division of the Pennsylvania Railroad and in October, 1889, was given a passenger run, which he has continued to hold to the present time.

In 1872 Mr. Church was married to Sophia A. Artz. He joined King David Lodge, F. & A. M., of Baltimore, Md., and was transferred therefrom, in 1895, to Reading Lodge No. 549, F. & A. M. He also belongs to the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, being a delegate to the conventions held in Chicago in 1887 and at Atlanta, Ga., in 1892, representing divisions No. 90 of Pottsville, and No. 75 of Reading. Mr. Church has hosts of friends in Reading, where he is well and favorably known.

HENRY L. SARTORIUS was born in Reading Oct. 13, 1861, son of Jacob and Mary (Lenhart) Sartorius. His father was a German by birth but came to this country as a young man, and establishing himself in Reading, was in the tobacco business there for many years. In 1869 he moved from his former quarters at No. 719 Penn street to No. 600 Bingaman street, and was still in business there when he died in 1872, aged forty-three years. His wife died in July, 1895, at the age of fifty-two years. They had two children, Henry L. and Emma. Jacob Sartorius was a Democrat in his political views, while in religious belief he and his wife were Reformed.

The school days of Henry L. Sartorius were passed in Reading and during this same period he worked more or less around his father's cigar store and became familiar with the business, an experience which was of use to him later. His first regular position was with the Philadelphia & Reading Express Company, while afterward he spent twelve years working for the Adams and the United States Express Companies. In 1897 he went into business for himself, and at his father's old stand on Bingaman street opened a book store, together with a stock of tobacco, cigars, smokers' supplies, etc. He has built up a regular patronage, which is steadily increasing and has done well financially.

In 1904 Henry L. Sartorius married Miss Tillie Davenport, and they have a daughter, Mary L., born in October, 1906. Mrs. Sartorius is a member of St. Barnabas Episcopal Church, while Mr. Sartorius belongs to the First Reformed Church. In his political attitude he is independent favoring which ever party puts forward the best candidate. He is much concerned with lodge work and specially interested in Masonry. He is J. W. of Isaac Hiester Lodge No. 660, F. & A. M.; P. H. P. of Excelsior Chapter No. 237, R. A. M.; P. C. of Reading Commandery, No. 42, K. T.; also a member of Rajah Temple, of A. A. O. N. M. S.; of Philadelphia Consistory, 32d degree, while he is also a charter member and S. W. of Reading Lodge of Perfection. As a loyal citizen of Reading, his name appears too on the rolls of the Liberty Fire Company. Mr. Sartorius is an able, wide awake and enterprising man, and is very well thought of in the city where his life has thus far been spent.

FRANK ANTHONY KURFESS, who has been connected with the Philadelphia & Reading railroad shop since coming to Reading, is a highly esteemed citizen of the Tenth ward, residing at No. 1136 Spruce street. He was born Oct. 22, 1840, in Neuhausen, Kreis Esslingen, Wurtemberg, Germany, son of Ernst Johan and Francisco (Harrer) Kurfess.

Ernst Johan Kurfess was born Dec. 25, 1806, in Neuhausen, and died April 4, 1871. He was a tanner all of his life, and owned an establishment and twenty-five acres of land. He was widely known, becoming very prosperous in his latter years, although for three years prior to his death he was an invalid. He married Francisco Harrer, born in 1806, daughter of Lorentz Harrer, and their children were: August; Albert, who came to America in 1855, settling at Schuylkill Haven, his latter years being spent in Philadelphia, where he died; Gustav; Frank A.; Mary, and Joseph.

Frank Anthony Kurfess attended the schools of his native country until fourteen years of age, and then learned the machinists's trade, which he followed successfully in the Fatherland until May 15, 1881, on which date he left Esslingen and twelve days later landed at Castle Garden, N. Y. He then visited his brother Christian of Schuylkill county for a time, after which he came to Reading and settled at No. 1019 Cotton street. In 1891 Mr. Kurfess purchased the property at No. 1136 Spruce street, where he has lived ever since. Mr. Kurfess has been employed as a machinist in the Philadelphia & Reading Locomotive shop ever since coming to Reading. In politics he is a Democrat, while he and his family are religiously connected with St. Paul's Catholic Church.

On July 12, 1868, Mr. Kurfess was married to Matilda Kambeitz, born March 1, 1846, daughter of Heinrich and Louisa (Schaeffer) Kambeitz, the former a master shoemaker at Hesse Darmstadt, and to this union three children have been born: Marguerite, born Dec. 29, 1869, m. Joseph Impink, of Reading, and they have five children—Marguerite, Joseph, Catherine, Carl, and Alberta; Ernst, born Dec. 16, 1872, died Aug. 10, 1873; and Mary C., born Feb. 2, 1880, is at home.

CHARLES W. SHAFFER, who was for many years a mail carrier in the city of Reading, and an honored veteran of the great Civil war, was born in 1841, in Reading, son of Henry and Betsy (Leader) Shaffer, and died in 1902.

Henry Shaffer was born near Kutztown, Berks county, in 1800, but early in life removed to near Tuckerton, Muhlenberg township, and in 1838 to Reading. He had learned the carpenter's trade in his youth, and this he followed with Adam Wade until 1850, in which year Mr. Wade's property was destroyed by the great floods. Mr. Shaffer then secured employment at Deisher's box factory and lumber mill, and here he continued to work until his death in 1869. His wife survived until 1891, and was eighty-four years old at the time of her death. They were the parents of nine children, as follows: George, m. Sadie Walters, and had three children—Walter, Alvin and Charles; Mary m. Cyrus Runyon, lives in Altoona, and has fourteen children; Eliza m. John L. Fisher, and had fourteen children; Frank m. Caroline Eyrich, and had three children; John H., m. Rose Ann Egge, and had five children, three of whom are living; Lovina is single; Sophia m. Clinton Morris, and had three children; Charles W.; and Susan died young. In their religious belief Henry Shaffer and wife were Reformed, and they were buried at Alsace Reformed cemetery. Mr. Shaffer was a Democrat in politics, and held the office of constable. He was a member of the Jr. O. U. A. M.

Charles W. Shaffer was educated in the schools of Reading, Pa., after leaving which he took up the trade of carpenter, and worked at Deisher's planing mill. While thus employed the Civil war broke out, and, fired with patriotism, young Shaffer enlisted in Capt. Groff's Infantry, in which he served three years and nine months, participating in some of the hardest fought battles of the great war. He was a man of spirit and bravery, and had a record of which any man might well feel proud. After the end of his services to his country, Mr. Shaffer returned to Deisher's factory, where he remained until the administration of James Cannon as mayor, when Mr. Shaffer was appointed lamp repairer at the City Hall lock-up, and later he passed the civil service examination for letter carrier, a position which he held for about eight years. This was practically his last work, as injuries received during the war compelled his retirement in later years. He died in 1902, the city of Reading losing one of its most highly esteemed citizens.

Mr. Shaffer married Elizabeth Rhoads, who was born in Reading, and they became the parents of three children: Charles, Annie and Daniel. Although allied with no religious body, Mr. Shaffer was one of Reading's truly good men. He was a member of Liberty Fire Company. He was always a Republican, casting his first Presidential vote during the Rebellion.

SAMUEL M. HARTMAN, who is engaged in the harness business in the city of Reading, was born in Oley township, Berks county, in 1850, son of Gideon and Sarah D. (Maurer) Hartman. His grandfather, Samuel Hartman, was a native of Alsace township, this county, where he conducted a small farm and followed the trade of millwright. He married Elizabeth Wrightmoyer, and they had ten children, Lewis, Gideon, Absalom, Valentine, Augustus, Israel, Samuel, Jessie, Eliza and Emma. In religion this family was connected with the Reformed Church.

Gideon Hartman was born in Alsace township, near Spies's Church, and received his education in the local schools. He learned the trade of miller, but followed it only a short time, when he turned his attention to huckstering, raising and selling farm produce for twenty years. He retired in the spring of 1876, after which he removed to Lyons, along the East Penn railroad, where he lived for nineteen years. In 1898 he located at Reading, and died there in January, 1903, at the age of seventy-nine years. He was a temperate man in all things, and never used tobacco or spirituous liquors himself. He was a Democrat in political belief, and in religion was allied with the United Evangelical Church. In August, 1845, he married Sarah D. Maurer, a daughter of Henry H. and Sarah (Dotterer) Maurer, and to them were born sixteen children, eleven sons and five daughters, namely: Mary, Gideon (deceased), Nathaniel, Samuel M., Henry (deceased), Albert (deceased), James (deceased), Ammon (deceased), Sarah, Edward (deceased), Susan, Elizabeth, Violetta, John, Harvey and Warren. Mrs. Hartman, who is now in her eighty-third year, still resides in Reading.

Samuel M. Hartman spent all his school days in Oley township, but his advantages were rather limited, for he began work in a brick-yard when only twelve years old. He worked thus for one year, at the end of which time he was hired out to Dr. Herbst, who at that time was county treasurer. This was in Pike township, and there he remained one year in the Doctor's employ. He then went to learn the trade of harness maker in his native township, with J. Cleaver. At this time he was fourteen years old. After two years Mr. Hartman came to Reading, where he remained about six months, and then went to Birdsboro, where the next three years of his life were spent. He again returned to Reading, but was engaged at carpenter work for one year, working the next three years at Pottstown, and six months at Philadelphia. Again returning to Reading, Mr. Hartman in 1875 engaged in his present business, first locating where the Penn National Bank now stands, on Penn street. There he remained five years, and in 1880 located at his present place, No. 806 Penn street, where he has remained ever since. He has an extensive trade, all over Berks county, and his stock is of the highest standard. Mr. Hartman employs two skilled workmen.

In 1876 Mr. Hartman married Clara Bridegam, daughter of William Bridegam, a tinsmith of Reading, and one child has been born to this union, Helen, who is attending school. In politics Mr. Hartman is a Democrat. He served as councilman of the Third ward for two terms, and was a delegate to the county convention several times. He is a member of Grace Lutheran Church. Fraternally he is connected with the Royal Arcanum; the Freemasons, Royal Arch Chapter, Commandery and Shrine. Mr. Hartman is a public-spirited citizen and good business man, greatly esteemed by all who know him. He and his family reside at No. 15 South Eleventh street.

Henry H. Maurer, grandfather of Samuel M. Hartman, on his mother's side, was born in Colebrookdale township, near Boyertown, Pa. In boyhood he learned the trade of tailoring. He was a self-made man, very studious, and taught school in the eastern section of the county. He was a very successful business man and also served as justice of the peace, and came to be known in the neighborhood as the country lawyer. He held the office of recorder of deeds of the county from 1842 to 1845. He was a noted auctioneer, and also conducted a hotel near Friedensburg, in Oley township, for many years. In politics he was a Democrat. He died May 15, 1834, at the age of seventy-nine years. A grandson, Dr. E. M. Herbst, is at present serving his third term in the Senate of Pennsylvania as the Senator from Berks county.

A. MONROE MOSER, a highly esteemed resident of Reading, Pa., who is engaged in work at the Philadelphia Mint, was born in the latter city, Dec. 5, 1854, son of David and Sarah (Harbold) Moser, both deceased. David Moser was the well known contractor and builder, who has for many years done all of the carpentering and repair work for Dives, Pomeroy & Stewart. Three children were born to David and Sarah (Harbold) Moser: George; Rosa, wife of Jonathan Wise, of Lebanon, Pa.; and A. Monroe.

A. Monroe Moser received his education in schools of Reading, Pa., having come to this city from Philadelphia with his parents when one year old, and then entered the high school, from which he was graduated with the class of 1871. He then started to learn the carpenter's trade, and remained with his father, off and on, until 1896, having at different times from 1886 to 1891 served as letter carrier, and under Mayor T. P. Merritt served as building inspector of Reading. Since May 6, 1896, he has been employed at his trade at the Philadelphia Mint, although he makes daily trips from that city to Reading, his home being at No. 1011 Washington street.

Mr. Moser married (first) Alice Defenbach, who died in 1891, one child being born to the union, Sarah Irene m. to Charles Quinter. Mr. Moser's second marriage was to Miss Bertha Kepner. In politics a Democrat, Mr. Moser has served as president and secretary of his (the Eighth) ward, and has been a delegate to numerous county conventions. Since 1876 he has been a member of the Rainbow Fire Company, having filled all the offices in that company, and in 1884 was called to the president's chair, a position he has held to the present time, with the exception of three years that he resided in Philadelphia. In his religious belief Mr. Moser is a Lutheran. He is connected with two Mint associations.

DANIEL H. HARTMAN, one of the esteemed retired residents of Reading, is a surviving veteran of the Civil war, and took an important part in that great struggle. Mr. Hartman is a native of Berks county, Pa., and was born in Alsace township, in 1846, son of Samuel H. and a grandson of John Hartman.

Grandfather John Hartman was a very prominent farmer of Alsace township and owned a large amount of valuable land in that township. There he died aged sixty-eight years, and his remains rest in the Spies's cemetery. He had a large family.

Samuel H. Hartman, father of Daniel H., followed closely in his father's footsteps. He became a man of substance, and a leader in public matters in his township, and he also passed away at the age of sixty-eight years, and was laid to rest by the side of his parents. He married Judith L. Hartman, daughter of Daniel Hartman, and she lived to the age of sixty-six years. Politically he was a Democrat. The children of Samuel H. Hartman and wife were: John H.; Daniel H.; Mary and Catherine. John H., the eldest son, enlisted in Company D, 198th Pa. V. I., Aug. 25, 1864, and was mortally wounded at the battle of White Oak Swamp, from which he died five hours later, aged thirty-four years.

Daniel H. Hartman attended the public schools of his native township utnil sixteen years of age, and then began to learn the carpenter's trade. He worked also one year as a millwright, and one year as a carpenter at Logansport, Ind. In 1865 he was again at home, but prior to this he had served his country in her hour of peril, faithfully and well.

Daniel H. Hartman enlisted from Berks county, Pa., July 3, 1863, to serve three months or during the emergency and was mustered into service at Harrisburg, Pa., in Ermentrout's Independent Battery A, Pennsylvania Light Artillery, Capt. William C. Ermentrout commanding. The battery was recruited in response to Gov. Curtin's call for emergency troops to assist in protecting the Keystone State from the threatened invasion by the Confederates. Daniel H. Hartman received his honorable discharge at Harrisburg, Aug. 26, 1863, by reason of expiration of term of service. Mr. Hartman had done his full duty during his first term of service, but he realized that the war was not over, and the help of brave and loyal men was still needed. On Aug. 25, 1864, he re-enlisted, at Reading, Pa., to serve one year or during the war, and was mustered into the service at Philadelphia as a private in Capt. Isaac Schroeder's company, this being Company D, 198th Reg. Pa. V. I., commanded by Col. Horatio G. Sickles. Early in the morning of Sept. 19, 1864, the regiment moved to join the Army of the Potomac, in front of Petersburg, Va. Upon its arrival it was assigned to the First Brigade, First Division, Fifth Corps, at a point on the Weldon railroad, which had just been captured from the enemy. Soon after, Col. Sickles was placed in command of the brigade, Lt. Col. John B. Murray succeeding him in command of the regiment. The first engagement with the enemy was at Preble's Farm, Va., Sept. 30th and Oct. 1st, 1864. Later engagements were Hatcher's Run, Dabney's Mills and Vaughn Road, the Appomattox campaign, including Quaker Road or Gravelly Run, Boydton, White Oak Road, Five Forks, Petersburg, Sutherland Station, Sailor's Creek, High Bridge, Farmerville and Appomattox, all in Virginia. During the Appomattox campaign alone, the regiment lost between 500 and 600 officers and men in killed, wounded and missing. After General Lee's surrender at Appomattox, April 9, 1865, the regiment went into camp at Arlington Heights, Va., and remained there until June 3, 1865. Mr. Hartman did not escape injuries during this long exposure to danger. He received a gun shot wound in the left ankle, at Gravelly Run, Va., March 29, 1865, and was confined one day in the field hospital and then rejoined his regiment, determined not to be left behind. By reason of the close of the war, Mr. Hartman received his final honorable discharge near Washington, D. C., June 3, 1865.

In 1871 Mr. Hartman came to Reading and was in the employ of the Philadelphia & Reading railroad shops for a period that covered thirty-six years, during which time this great system was extended hundreds of miles. Mr. Hartman retired May, 29, 1901, retaining the cordial good-will of the corporation which he had served so devotedly for a decade over a quarter of a century.

On Oct. 20, 1866, Mr. Hartman was married to Mary M. Hinnershitz, daughter of Conrad and Mary (Gibson) Hinnershitz. To this marriage twelve children were born: Mary Alice, m. to Charles W. Richard, had one child, Carrie (m. to Daniel Burkey, and has a son, Daniel); Clara, m. to William J. Levan, of Reading (mentioned in full elsewhere); Carrie Agnes, m. to Jacob H. Holder, has two children, Ira and Dorothy; Lottie, m. to Joel M. Strunk, has two children, Alice and Paul; Bertie, m. to Albert F. Mast, has one son, Daniel H.; and Gertrude, m. to Milton Seidel, of Reading, has two children, William M. and Mary Magdalena; and Samuel H., Daniel H., Ida F., Hattie M., Katie and Judith, all of whom are deceased.

In 1897 Mr. Hartman built his present home at No. 123 South Ninth street, Reading, and later built the modern residence in the rear for his daughter. For three years Mr. Hartman was constable of Alsace township. He is a member of Star of Nativity Lodge, Shepherds of Bethlehem, of which he is a trustee. Mr. Hartman also belongs to Keim Post, No. 76, G. A. R., of which he has been senior vice-commander.

ADAM MILLER FISHER, foreman of the coremaking department of Orr & Sembower's plant, and a citizen of Oakbrook, Berks Co., Pa., was born Nov. 9, 1870, in Marion township, son of Abraham and Catherine (Miller) Fisher. He is a descendant of Wilhelm Fischer, a native of Germany, who was the founder of a very large and prolific Berks county family. He settled in a section of the country now embracing Spring (formerly Cumru) and Lower Heidelberg (then a part of Heidelberg) townships and owned about one thousand acres of land. He was a farmer by occupation, exceedingly industrious, and was known as a man of sterling qualities. During his lifetime there was little clear land in Lower Heidelberg and Spring townships, and he often heard the howl of wolves in the forest around his primitive home, a typical log cabin dwelling. Frequently he stood in fear of the Indians who still roamed the forests after the date of his settlement and whose attacks endangered the lives and property of the hardy settlers. He adhered to the German Reformed Church, and Hain's Church in Lower Heidelberg township was his spiritual home. His mortal remains were laid to rest in the graveyard of that old established house of worship, and there, too, sleep scores of descendants of this noble pioneer. Among his children were: Frederick, Wilhelm, George, Michael and Daniel.

Michael Fischer, son of Wilhelm the emigrant, was born on the old homestead Nov. 19, 1769, and died on his farm near Wernersville, Pa., Dec. 16, 1845, aged seventy-six years, twenty-seven days. He owned a farm of 127 acres located one and a half miles south of Wernersville, which his family cultivated. He was a weaver, and made all kinds of cloth and linen goods in demand in his day. He was a man of prominence in local affairs, serving as overseer of the poor in his district for many years; this office was abolished by Act of Assembly on March 29, 1824, after which directors of the poor were elected. Michael Fischer was much esteemed, and he was widely known for his uncompromising honesty. Like his father, he is buried in the graveyard at Hain's Church of which he is a member. He married Elizabeth Hemmig (born Aug. 29, 1774, died July 22, 1845, aged seventy years, ten months, twenty-three days). The children born to them were as follows: Christian, born July 1, 1793; Michael, Jan. 4, 1795; Daniel, Sept. 27, 1796; Catharine, Aug. 15, 1798; Philip, Jan. 25, 1800; Wilhelm, Jan. 15, 1803; Sarah (m. John Stump); Elizabeth (m. (first) Daniel Fisher and (second) Isaac Boyer).

Wilhelm Fisher, son of Michael Fischer, and grandfather of Adam M., was born Jan. 15, 1803. He was a well known man in his community, having passed all his life in the district where he was born, and furthermore he was enterprising and thrifty. Under his father he learned plain weaving, but he also acquired the art of fine weaving, and did well at his trade. He lived upon a tract adjacent to his father's farm, consisting originally of 6 A. 131 rd., to which he later added thirty-one acres. Here in 1837 he built a log house which is still standing. He married Ellenora Boyer, and to them were born children as follows: Peter, born May 13, 1826, who was a soldier in the Civil war; Abraham, born Nov. 17, 1831, a carpenter by trade; Jeremiah B., born May 20, 1837; Polly, wife of Emanuel Eberly, residing near Fritztown, where he followed carriage-making for many years, but is now living retired upon his farm; and Lavina, born Jan. 21, 1842, who married John H. Steffy, and died May 17, 1898, aged fifty-seven years (they had no children). Mr. and Mrs. Fisher worshipped at Hain's Church, and there they are buried.

Abraham Fisher, father of Adam M., was born Nov. 17, 1831, in Berks county, and in early life learned the trades of blacksmith, wheelwright and carpenter, which he followed until his retirement, since which time he has resided at Bernville. He married Catherine Miller, daughter of Jacob Miller, of Montgomery county, and she died March 12, 1896. Their children were: Emma, m. to Elmer H. Kline; Jacob, m. to Alva Long; Katie, who died when eighteen years of age; Mary, m. to Frank White; John; Sallie, who died at the age of nineteen years; Caroline, m. to Charles Klopp; Adam M.; Clara, who died at the age of fifteen years; and Amelia, m. to Jeremiah Huffort.

Adam M. Fisher spent his school days at Womelsdorf, and at an early age secured employment in a brick yard at that place. At the age of eighteen years he began to learn the trade of blacksmith at Shillington, with John W. Wertz, with whom he continued for nine years. He then engaged at coremaking, entering Orr & Sembower's plant in 1898, and he is still employed with that company, being foreman of his department. Mr. Fisher is a skilled mechanic, and his services are highly valued by his employers.

In 1893, Mr. Fisher was married to Catherine H. Shearer, daughter of Aaron and Emma (Heister) Shearer, a sketch of which family appears elsewhere in these annals, being one of the oldest of the county. Three children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Fisher: Earle S., born Oct. 6, 1893; Ralph S., born July 4, 1896; and Norman, born Aug. 26, 1902. Politically Mr. Fisher is a Republican, and he and his wife are Lutherans in their religious belief. He is connected with the Iron Molder's Union.

HENRY KOHL, one of the enterprising business men of Reading, who is engaged in the restaurant business at No. 209 North Ninth street, was born in Cumru township, Berks county, in 1865, son of Richard and Sarah (Keffer) Kohl.

Henry Kohl attended the schools of Cumru township, and came to Reading with his father in 1879. He was first employed in the Reading Fire Brick works and was later in the nickel plating department at the Philadelphia & Reading shops. Here he remained for eight years, and then, being eager to enter business on his own account, opened a restaurant, in 1901, at No. 207 North Ninth street, where he was located for a period of nine months. At the end of this time Mr. Kohl located at his present site, No. 201 North Ninth street, and here he has continued to the present time with much success. He has two large dining rooms and a large front room, and his trade includes some of the best in Reading.

Mr. Kohl was married to Miss Katie Arnold, daughter of Anthony and Sarah Arnold, and to this union have been born children as follows: Vincent, who is assisting his father; Arnold, at school; and Anetta. In politics Mr. Kohl is a Democrat, but he has never taken an active part in public affairs, his business claiming all of his attention. He and his wife attend St. Paul's Catholic Church. Mr. Kohl is a member of the Eagles.

CHRISTIAN BIXENSTINE, who has been employed as a roller at the Reading Iron Company's Oley street mill since its opening in 1896, has lived in Reading all of his life. Mr. Bixenstine was born in this city, Sept. 24, 1845, son of Gottleib and Elizabeth (Stricker) Bixenstine.

Gottleib Bixenstine, a native of Wurtemberg, Germany, came to America about 1830, and for a short time thereafter worked at his trade of potter in Reading. Later he engaged in hod carrying, and at this occupation and common laboring he was employed for the remainder of his life, dying in 1885. His wife died in 1887, the mother of children as follows: Amelia, Charles, Sophia, Caroline, William, Louisa and Christian. In religious belief Mr. and Mrs. Bixenstine were Lutherans, while politically he was a Democrat.

Christian Bixenstine received a common school education in Reading, and as a young man engaged at the old Seyfert & McManus rolling mill, where he remained until twenty-six years of age. At this time he engaged with the Philadelphia & Reading iron mill, known as the old rail mill, and remained there until the mill suspended operations, when he returned to his former employers, and there continued until 1895. At this time the Reading Iron Company opened its Oley street mill, and he secured employment there as a roller, a position he has held to the present time.

In 1871 Mr. Bixenstine married Barbara Ney, and to this union there were born four children, one of whom, Albert, survives. He is employed at the Acme Motor Car Company. Mr. Bixenstine is a member of Alsace Reformed Church, while his wife and son are Lutherans. He is fraternally connected with the Ironworker's Union and the Workmen's Society.

ED. C. GANSTER, proprietor of the "Hotel Ganster," No. 200 Schuylkill avenue, Reading, Pa., was born in this city, Oct. 30, 1867, son of Jacob and Catherine (Rebholtz) Ganster.

Peter Ganster, the emigrant ancestor of the family in this country, came from Bavaria, Germany, to Reading in the early part of the eighteenth century. He was a forgeman and expert iron-worker and owned and operated an iron foundry in his native country. On coming to the United States he lived retired until his death, which occurred about the year 1860. He and his wife, who bore the maiden name of Christina Libbert, were the parents of: Joseph, of Reading, m. to Margaret Klos; Margaret, m. to Anthony Seubert, of Lebanon, Pa.; George P., deceased; Christopher, deceased; Catherine, deceased, m. to Anthony Kronise; Jacob; and John, deceased. In religious belief the family were devout members of the Catholic Church. Politically Mr. Ganster was a Democrat.

Early in life Jacob Ganster learned the machinist's trade, and followed that occupation for several years. During the Civil war he enlisted in Company A, 3d Pa. V. I., June 4, 1861, and was honorably discharged Feb. 13, 1863, on account of disability, having been wounded in battle in Virginia. After returning home he resumed his trade, and subsequently engaged in the flour and feed business at Franklin and Orange streets, Reading. On Dec. 30, 1870, he was accidentally killed, while making a heroic effort to stop a run-away horse, which was drawing a wagon containing a man, woman and child. The occupants of the vehicle were saved, but Mr. Ganster died of his injuries. He left his widow with three children: Ed. C.; Charles, and August. Mrs. Ganster died July 5, 1894, aged sixty-three years, in the faith of the Roman Catholic Church, of which her husband had also been a member.

Ed. C. Ganster received his education in the schools of Reading, as well as the parochial schools, and later business college. His first employment was for the Harbsters of Reading, in the hardware store, and at the Johnston foundry. At the age of thirteen years he began clerking for Conrad Kaltenbach, remaining with that gentleman for ten years, when he purchased the stock of his employer and carried on a general store until 1905, in this year closing out his business to engage as a hotel keeper. Locating at No. 200 Schuylkill avenue, Mr. Ganster proceeded to improve the property, and has now one of the most modern little hotels in the city. It has fifteen finely-furnished rooms, supplied with electric lights, steam heat, and other modern conveniences, and he always carries on hand a full line of the choicest cigars, liquors, etc. Mr. Ganster has been very successful in this venture, his hotel proving one of the most popular of its size in the city.

In 1890 in Reading, Mr. Ganster married Miss Mary Schlegmilch, a native of Lancaster county, and to this union one child has been born, Leo, a stenographer in the employ of the Reading Hardware Company. Mr. Ganster is a member of the Knights of St. John, being first vice supreme president of the Order, and is also connected with the Bonifacius Brotherhood. In political matters he is a Democrat. He is religiously connected with St. Paul's Catholic Church.

PENROSE L. REICHWINE, train despatcher for the Pennsylvania Railroad at Reading, was born at Mohnton, in Cumru township, Berks county, Jan. 31, 1877, son of Henry J. Reichwine. The family originated in Baden-Baden, Germany, and the name has been spelled Reichwine, Richwine, Richwein, Reichwein, etc.

Cornelius Reichwine, grandfather of Penrose L., was born in Berks county, and for many years was engaged in the manufacture of gun barrels for the government, having his factory in Cumru township, where is now the borough of Mohnton. In 1838 he opened a shop which later became Ruth's gristmill. He died in Cumru township at the age of eighty-two years. His wife's maiden name was Holtry. Their children were: Richard lives in Reading; Joseph died in Reading; Isaac lives in Florid, Putnam Co., Ill.; John died aged three years; Daniel is deceased; Henry J.; Louisa died young; Mary married Cyrus Hoffert; Tillie married John Regar; Amanda married James O'Neill; and Catharine married a Lambert.

Henry J. Reichwine, son of Cornelius, was born March 25, 1846, and was a skilled hatter, following that trade with George Hendel for many years. He is at present in the employ of the Neversink Dye Works at Reading. He married Sarah Amanda Lutz, daughter of Daniel and Catharine (Hemminger) Lutz, and they have three children: Penrose L.; Bertha m. Walter Amman; and Kate is at home.

Penrose L. Reichwine attended the public schools and high school at Ephrata, Lancaster Co., Pa., and when sixteen years of age he learned the art of telegraphing, entering the employ of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. He spent five years as an operator, and in 1906 he was made train despatcher at Reading, the position he still holds.

Mr. Reichwine has been twice married. He m. (first) Josephine Weaver, daughter of Aaron Weaver, and she died at Lynnport, Lehigh county, in January, 1895, leaving a son, Harry L., now in school. Mr. Reichwine m. (second) Miss Marion Pearl Elliott, daughter of Horace Elliott, of Pottsown. She was a well known school teacher in that city. Mr. Reichwine is a member of Reading Lodge, No. 66, F. O. E.; P. R. R. Relief Association; Royal Arcanum. He and his wife attend the United Evangelical Church. Their home is at No. 635 North Front street, Reading.

HARRY L. BRIGHT, assistant foreman of the job department of the Reading Eagle, was born July 13, 1863, at Philadelphia, Pa., son of John R. and Elizabeth (Scull) Bright.

Tracing the Bright or Brecht family to its founding in Berks county, Pa., it is found that Michael Brecht, 1706-1794, was married in 1728, to Margareta Simone, 1708-1778. They had the following children: Jacob, born April 13, 1729; George, Feb. 9, 1731; Michael, March 24, 1732; Katherine, April 6, 1734; John, Feb. 20, 1736; Peter, May 13, 1738; David, Aug. 9, 1740; Maria, Aug 1, 1742; Sarah, Jan. 19, 1745, and Christina, Aug. 12, 1747. The late A. G. Green, Esq., prepared a genealogical sketch of this Bright family, which, in pamphlet form, may be found among the archives of the Berks County Historical Society.

John Bright, great-grandson of Michael and grandfather of Harry L., was a native of Berks county and a descendant of one of its pioneer families. He was engaged in a hat business at Reading, where he died after the close of the Civil War, and his remains were interred in the Charles Evans cemetery. He married a member of the Rehr family and they had four children, namely: Henry lived and died at Reading; Catherine m. James Thompson; Sarah m. George Graul; and John R.

John R. Bright, son of John, was born March 2, 1829, at Reading, and died Nov. 2, 1867, in the thirty-ninth year of his age. By trade he was a hatter. He lived at Reading until 1859, when he moved to Philadelphia, and there lived until his death, when his remains were brought to Reading and interred in the Charles Evans cemetery. On Dec. 26, 1859, he married Elizabeth Scull, born June 7, 1836, daughter of Marks B. and Barbara (Breiner) Scull, of Reading. They had two sons: Edward S. and Harry L., both of Reading.

Harry L. Bright was educated in the public schools of Reading. He became a clerk in a grocery store, where he remained for one and one-half years, and then served a four years apprenticeship to the printer's trade in the office of the News, at that time located on the corner of Sixth and Court streets. In August, 1882, he entered the employ of the Reading Eagle, and now, as assistant foreman of its job department, has under his supervision from fifteen to twenty-two men.

In 1888, Mr. Bright married Sue M. Yocum, daughter of the late Jacob A. and Joanna (Goodhart) Yocum, and they have one son, J. Herbert, who was born May 8, 1889. The latter is a graduate of the Reading high school, class of 1908. Mr. Bright and family occupy their own pleasant home which is located at No. 105 Oley street, in the Fifteenth ward. Mr. and Mrs. Bright belong to St. Matthew's Lutheran Church, while their son, J. Herbert, sings in the choir of the Memorial Church of the Holy Cross, of which he is a member. Mr. Bright is a member of the following organizations: Camp No. 89, P. O. S. of A.; Emblematic Order of Odd Fellows, No. 163; Juniata Tribe, No. 74, I. O. R. M., of which he has been treasurer since 1892; Jr., O. U. A. M., No. 163; and Printers' Union, No. 86.

HARRISON T. KERN, proprietor of the restaurant at the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad outer station, Reading, Pa., was born at Tamaqua, Schuylkill Co., Pa., son of Charles S. and Elizabeth (Lenhart) Kern.

Charles S. Kern in early life was a bookkeeper in Reading, but later removed to Tamaqua, where for fourteen years he was engaged in a successful mercantile business. This he sold out and returned to Reading, where he followed bookkeeping until his death in 1903, at the age of sixty-six years. He married Elizabeth Lenhart, who died in 1882, when forty-two years old. Of their children three are now living: Edwin C., a clerk in his brother's employ; Miss Catherine, who resides in Reading; and Harrison T. Charles S. Kern m. (second) Mrs. James Kern, his brother's widow, and there were two children born to this union: Anna Bell and Helen, of Reading. Mr. Kern was a soldier during the Civil war, being in the three months service. In religious belief he was Methodist.

Harrison T. Kern was educated in the schools of Tamaqua, after leaving which he became a clerk in a hardware store, where he continued eight years. On June 15, 1891, he came to Reading, where he was employed by his brother, J. J. Kern, until the latter's death, three years later, when he assumed charge of the Philadelphia & Reading dining room. Under his able management this restaurant has become one of the leading dining rooms along the Philadelphia & Reading system, and here are employed fourteen people. The service is excellent and prices moderate, and everything possible is done to make patrons comfortable.

Mr. Kern married Anna M. Alt, born in Berks county, daughter of John M. and Lena (Schrifle) Alt, and to them there have been born two children, Catherine E. and a son deceased. Mr. Kern is a member of Reading Lodge No. 549, F. & A. M., Reading Chapter, De Molay Commandery, Reading Lodge of Perfection, Philadelphia Consistory (thirty-second degree), and Rajah Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S.; and of the Temple Club. Politically he is independent, while he and his wife are members of the Lutheran Church.

PETER CONNOLLY at the time of his death was employed at the Reading Sheet Iron Mill. He was a native of Ireland, born in County Tyrone in 1841. The voyage to America was made when he was sixteen years old, and while still hardly more than a boy he secured a place with the iron company and remained with them steadily until his death. He was faithful and efficient and was promoted from time to time until he became a foreman in the sheet iron department. For this position Mr. Connolly was admirably fitted, for he commanded the respect both of those under him and of his superior officers, had exceptionally good ability and was well known as a first class iron man generally.

In 1871 Mr. Connolly married Mary, daughter of Patrick Casgrove, and like her husband she was of Irish birth. She came to America with her parents when only six years old, and hence was educated entirely in the Reading schools. To Mr. and Mrs. Connolly were born five children, namely: Cecilia and James died young; Mary E., a graduate of the Girls' high school in Reading, and for several years one of Reading's successful teachers, died July 19, 1904; Nellie died July 5, 1901, aged twenty-two; and Edward, clerk and formerly timekeeper in the Reading Tube Works, of the Reading Iron Company, married Miss Carrie Aulenbach, and has four bright children, Edgar, Estella, Florence and Harold. The family were all devout Catholics. In politics Mr. Connolly was a stanch Democrat. At the time of his death he was still actively at work with the promise of many more years before him, for he passed away when in his fifty-third year, Jan. 31, 1894.

FRANK H. ROTHERMEL, who is conducting a successful business at the corner of Green and North Front streets, Reading, where he carries a full line of meats and canned goods, was born in 1875, in Bern township, Berks county, son of Adam B. and Rebecca (Hartman) Rothermel.

Leonard Rothermel, great-grandfather of Frank H., was born in Maiden-creek township, where he engaged in farming all of his life. He was the father of nine children: Jeremiah, John, Leonard, David, Mary, Catherine, and three who are recorded as named Harvey, died young.

Jeremiah Rothermel, like his father Leonard, was born on the old Rothermel homestead in Maiden-creek township, May 17, 1822, and was a general merchant at Blandon, where the upper hotel is now situated. He also engaged in farming for some time, but had been living retired for some years prior to his death Feb. 16, 1890. He married Lydia Brown, born Sept. 26, 1824, and to them were born nine children, as follows; Calvin died aged three years; Amelia, m. William Gernant; Maria and Eva died young; Catherine m. David L. Rottenberger; two children whose names are not recorded; and Jeremiah m. Emma Brockway. Mrs. Lydia Rothermel died April 16, 1902, in the faith of the Dunkard Church, in which her husband was a preacher.

Adam B. Rothermel was born in Maiden-creek township, May 21, 1854, and died June 9, 1907. He married (first) Mary Hartman, daughter of Amos and Rebecca Hartman, and to this union there were born nine children, as follows: Wilson, Mary, Amelia, Susan, Frank, Adam, Harry, Edward (deceased), and Oliver. He m. (second) Elizabeth McKentley, daughter of Joseph and Susan (Snyder) McKentley, and one child was born to this union, Herbert, at school.

Frank H. Rothermel was educated in the schools of Bern and Muhlenberg townships, and until twenty years of age was engaged in farming. At this time he learned the butchering business with H. F. Kramer, with whom he remained for seven years, and in 1903 embarked in business for himself at the old H. F. Kramer stand in Reading, three years later locating at his present place of business. Here Mr. Rothermel has introduced many modern improvements, his large refrigerator, holding one and one-half tons of ice, keeping all his fresh and house dressed meats in the best of condition. He also carries a full line of canned goods and smoked meats, and the excellence of his goods as well as his moderate prices have won for him a large and steady trade.

Mr. Rothermel was married to Miss Bertha Kramer, daughter of H. F. Kramer, and to this union there has been born one child, Harold. In religious belief Mr. and Mrs. Rothermel are Lutherans. He is a Republican in politics.

PETER F. BRICKEL, a highly esteemed resident of Reading, Pa., who lives in his own home at No. 1037 Washington street, has been an employe of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad Company for nearly thirty years. Mr. Brickel was born Sept. 24, 1862, in Reading, son of Francis and Mary (Falter) Brickel.

Francis Brickel was born in Bavaria, Germany, Oct. 9, 1809, and came to America in 1849, locating at Eleventh and Penn streets, Reading, where he died May 1, 1890. By occupation he was a laborer. He was a member of St. Paul's Church, and was buried at the Catholic cemetery. Mr. Brickel married Mary Falter, who was born in 1826, and died Jan. 5, 1890, four months prior to the death of her husband. They had a family of seven children: Kate, m. (first) William Schultz and (second) Andrew Gravy; Helen m. Marks Heilman, of Pottstown; Mary m. Cyrus Schultz, who is a teller in the National Union Bank, of Reading; Rose m. Calvin Fry, deceased; Frank lives at Reading; Peter F.; and Thresa m. Harry Ball, of Reading.

Peter F. Brickel was educated in St. Paul's parochial school, Reading, and when sixteen years of age learned the trade of machinist in the shops of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad, for which company he has worked ever since 1879, having never been employed by any other firm. He is a skilled machinist, and one of the company's most trusted employes. Mr. Brickel is connected with the St. Boniface and Holy Cross Beneficial Associations, and with Reading Aerie No. 66, F. O. E. He is religiously identified with St. Paul's Catholic Church, of Reading.

In 1892, Mr. Brickel married Mary Elizabeth Seidel, daughter of Philip and Mary Elizabeth (Reich) Seidel, of Stony Creek, and granddaughter of Jacob and Lydia (Deisher) Seidel. To Mr. and Mrs. Brickel there have been born these children: Francis, who died aged fourteen months, fourteen days; Mary E., who died in infancy; Leon Philip, and Paul Peter.

MARK DAVIS HOLL, of Reading, Pa., was born near Wernersville, Berks Co., Pa., Nov. 16, 1876, son of Benjamin and Mary (Hain) Holl, of No. 303 Chestnut street, West Reading, and grandson of Peter and Catherine (Spatz) Holl.

Peter Holl, great-grandfather of Mark D. Holl, was born in Cumru township, Berks county, and was a farmer by occupation. He and his wife, whose name is not known, were the parents of these children: Samuel, Jacob, Benjamin, Peter, Mary, and Julia Ann.

Peter Holl, son of Peter, was born in Cumru township, and when a boy learned the blacksmith's trade, which he followed for about twenty years, his latter years being given to agricultural pursuits. He was a very powerfully built man, and was noted for his great strength. Mr. Holl died at the age of sixty-six years, and he and his wife had children as follows: Sarah m. Isaac Hassler; Mary m. Isaac Ruth; Elizabeth died young; Lovina also died young; Emma m. Louis Frederick; Annie m. William Moyer; Matilda m. William Frederick; John; and Benjamin. In religious belief the family were Reformers.

Benjamin Holl was educated in the schools of Heidelberg, and as a boy worked on a farm. Until 1891 he was engaged as a laborer, and in this year removed to West Reading, where he engaged in the hotel business for one year, then engaging in work at George Trexler's brick yard. After ten seasons here he engaged in teaming for Abram Hains, who conducted a coal yard, but two years later began driving a bakery wagon for Oscar Holl. In 1905 Mr. Holl became an employe of the Montello Brick Company.

Mr. Holl was married in 1867 to Miss Mary Hain, daughter of Bennewell and Susan Hain, and to this union there were born eight children: Oscar, a baker of West Reading, m. to Ida Glass; Lillian, an expert spectacle operator; Mark D., m. to Annie L. Dippery; James, m. to Estella Keener; Cora, m. to Rev. Paul Dundore, pastor of Trinity Reformed Church of Palmyra; Emma, and Herbert. Mr. Holl is a member of the Reformed Church of West Reading. He is a Democrat in politics, and is fraternally connected with the Knights of the Golden Eagle, of Reading.

Mark Davis Holl attended the district schools of the place of his nativity, and in 1888 came to Reading, where he was first employed at the Alexander Stocking Company's factory. He later entered the hat factory of the same firm, and is now employed in the starting department.

Mr. Holl was married in 1900 to Miss Annie L. Dippery, daughter of the late Nathaniel S. and Salesa (Ziebach) Dippery, and they have had two children: Ruth Lugorah, who died May 5, 1907, aged eighteen months; and Naomi Margaret. Mr. Holl is a member of the Reformed Church of West Reading. Fraternally he belongs to the Knights of the Golden Eagle, serving as District Grand Chief of Berks county; to the Grand Fraternity of the Golden Eagles; to the Patriotic Order Sons of America; and to the Knights of Malta.

ROBERT F. WALTER, a carpenter at Reading, was born in that city Nov. 4, 1871, and there he spent his boyhood days. In 1879 his parents moved to Gettysburg, Adams county, and there, too, he attended school, completing his education at the age of eighteen years. He then learned the carpenter's trade, and followed it for six years. On June 2, 1898, he enlisted in the Second United States Cavalry, and was sent to Fort McPherson, Ga., remaining there until June 28th, when he was sent to Tampa, Fla., and assigned to Troop A, going then to Fernandina, Fla. From that point the regiment was sent to Montauk Point, L. I., where Mr. Walter was taken sick, and was sent home on furlough, being discharged while home Nov. 7, 1898. He re-enlisted Jan. 24, 1899, and was sent to Huntsville, Ala., being returned to Troop A, Second United States Cavalry. He served until Jan. 23, 1902, and in that time he went to Cuba, and remained three years and three months at Matanzas. On Jan. 23, 1900, he was promoted to corporal, and on March 6, 1901, to sergeant, and he was discharged at Matanzas, Jan. 23, 1902. The next day he re-enlisted in the same troop, and served in Cuba until April 24, 1902, when the troop was sent to Fort Ethan Allen, Vt., remaining there until Dec. 18, 1903, when they were ordered to the Philippine Islands, embarking from New York Dec. 20, 1903, and arriving at Manila Feb. 18, 1904. They served in the Islands until Dec. 15, 1904, when they embarked for San Francisco, where they arrived Jan. 15, 1905, and on Jan. 31, 1905, they were discharged at Angel Island, California. Since that date Mr. Walter has been in Berks county, and has been engaged in carpenter work at Wyomissing. His brother, William A. Walter, also lives in Wyomissing.

AUGUSTUS BELZ, a representative citizen of Reading, Berks Co., Pa., who holds the responsible position of foreman of the braiding machine department of the Textile Machine Co., located at Wyomissing, was born Nov. 2, 1874, at Neihoff, Hessen-Cassel, Germany, son of Primus and Pauline (Schmitt) Belz.

Primus Belz was born in 1841, at Neihoff, Hessen-Cassel, Germany, and was a blacksmith by trade. He was married to Pauline Schmitt, who was born at Neihoff in 1843, and they had a family of seven children, namely: Franceska, Robert, Libba, Augustus, Martha,

Joseph and Carl (who is in the African army), Augustus being the only one of the family to come to America to this date.

Augustus Belz was educated in the schools of his native country, and when fourteen years of age commenced to learn the trade of machinist, which he completed when seventeen years of age. This he followed in Germany until 1892, when he came to America, landing at New York on May 1st of that year. He went immediately to Philadelphia, where he remained until July 8th, and at that time came to Reading, being employed at Remppis Ornamental Iron Works for a short period. Since 1894 he has been in the service of the Textile Machine Company at Wyomissing, and he has held his present position since 1902. He is a very efficient mechanic, and has twenty-two skilled laborers in his charge. Since April, 1903, he has occupied his own home. He is a member of the Holy Cross and Bonifacius Beneficial Association, and his religious connection is with St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church. In politics he is a Democrat.

Mr. Belz was married in 1900 to Mary T. Kohler, daughter of Bernhard and Theresa (Maurer) Kohler, natives of Germany. Mrs. Belz was born April 5, 1882, and died July 20, 1906, survived by her husband and one son: Joseph B., born at Reading, Feb. 15, 1903. In 1908 Mr. Belz married (second) Maria Dihl, a native of France.

JOSEPH YETZER, a successful tin and sheet iron worker at Hyde Park, Pa., was born near Landis Store, Berks county, son of Joseph, Sr., and Catherine (Kemp) Yetzer, the former a native of Switzerland, the latter of Berks county.

Joseph Yetzer, Sr., came to America and settled in the vicinity of Landis Store, working at his trade of tinsmithing. Later he purchased a small farm which he cultivated while still continuing at his trade. In 1866, however, he sold his property, and, removing to Reading, bought a residence on Walnut street, where he lived until 1870. He then disposed of it and bought the property at 105 South Ninth street. There he lived until 1885 when he died, aged sixty. His wife survived him until 1905, and was about eighty at the time of her demise. They had these children: Mary, now a sister of charity at Danville, Pa.; Emma, unmarried; John, who married Minerva Pauleus, and has three children—Frank, Clara and William; and Joseph. In religious belief the entire family are Catholics. In politics Joseph Yetzer, Sr., was a Democrat.

Joseph Yetzer, son of Joseph, Sr., was educated in the schools of Reading, and learned his trade under his father. Mr. Yetzer has always been a tinsmith, and came to Hyde Park in 1898, where he has built up a flourishing business by the thoroughness of his work and his honorable business methods.

In 1886 Mr. Yetzer married Ella Boas, and their children are: Charles, Gertrude, Mary, Helen, Esther, Raymond, Arthur and Harold. Like the other members of the family, Mr. and Mrs. Yetzer are Catholics. In politics Mr. Yetzer is a Democrat.

FRANCIS L. LEVAN, who, for the past thirty years has efficiently held the responsible position of car inspector for the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company, at Reading, is a well-known citizen whose pleasant home is located at No. 625 North Ninth street. He was born near Lobachsville, Berks Co., Pa., in 1851, son of Jacob K. and Mary (Schappel) Levan.

Jacob K. Levan came to Reading in 1854, and worked at his trade of dyer for a short time, and then engaged with the Keystone Iron Works at the foot of Pine street, where he remained until he died in 1877, aged sixty-six years. His widow lived to the age of seventy-three years, dying June 6, 1905. They had four children: Francis L.; Malinda, m. to Samuel Legalhoff; Anna, m. to William Ritter; and Ellen, m. to John Zimmerman. In politics, Jacob K. Levan was affiliated with the Democratic party. Both he and wife were members of the Methodist Church.

Francis L. Levan was educated in the Reading public schools. While still young he went to work, entering the employ of the old West Reading rolling mill at the foot of Penn street, where the Pennsylvania depot now stands. Upon resigning this position he entered the employ of the Keystone Iron Company, with which he continued for seven years. In 1877 he accepted his present responsible position, one which carries with it much danger, but he has never met with a serious accident.

Mr. Levan married Elmira Henry, daughter of Jacob Henry, of Reading, and they had three children: Charles and Alice are both deceased; and Rosie m. William Carroll, and has three children, Stanley, Miriam and Catherine. Mrs. Levan is a member of the Lutheran Church. Mr. Levan belongs to the Knights of Malta, is a charter member of Mt. Penn Castle, No. 51, K. G. E., and belongs to the Philadelphia & Reading Relief Association.

DEISHER. Some time between the years 1765 and 1775 there came to America from Germany three Deisher brothers. On the official records their names appear as Teisher, but it is not known whether this is the original way of spelling or only a clerical error. Tradition has it that the original spelling was Tysher. These three brothers were Peter, John and Stephen. According to the prevailing tradition John settled in Oley township, where he afterward lived, and where some of his descendants are now living. Stephen settled at Walnuttown, near Fleetwood, and Peter settled in Maxatawny township, near where is now the thriving borough of Kutztown.

Peter Deysher came to Pennsylvania about the middle of the eighteenth century, and located in Maxatawny township, Berks county. His wife, who preceded him in death, bore him six children: Peter; Stephen, who was a taxable in Richmond township in 1759, paying £9 tax; Jacob; Mrs. Henry Kinne, whose son John was mentioned in his grandfather Deysher's will; Barbara, who married Peter Hister; and Elizabeth Susanna, who was unmarried as late as 1761. Peter Deysher's will, recorded in Will Book 1, page 102, was made Jan. 9, 1761, probated June 27, 1761. In it he is classed as a yeoman, and as "old and infirm in years." His son Stephen was executor.

Peter Deysher, great-grandfather of Henry K. Deisher, of Kutztown, was born on the tract of land in Maxatawny township which the first Peter purchased when he settled in that locality. He married Elizabeth (Betzy) Lesher, who survived him. Of her family history nothing is known except that she had a sister married to a man named Potts, and lived in Schuylkill county near where is now Pottsville. Peter Deysher and Elizabeth, his wife, had sons Peter and John. The latter lived on the old homestead, and died there; he had two sons, Daniel (who had nine children, seven living) and John (died without issue), and three daughters, Mrs. Peter Knabe, Mrs. William Scholl and Mrs. Elizabeth Hill. Peter Deysher, the father, died at the age of thirty-five years, and was buried in a private graveyard on his farm where his parents and other members of the family are also buried. Through the advance of years this place of interment has been farmed over and there now is nothing to show it ever existed. His will, which is on record in Will Book IV, page 437, was made Sept. 7, 1807, and probated Sept. 25, 1817, his friends, Jacob Kutz and David Hottenstein, being executors. This will proves him a man of much forethought, providing for the education of his sons, and that his farm of 234 acres and all the rest of his estate be kept together until his children should become of age. This farm is now owned by Abbie Sharadin, daughter of Peter and Elizabeth (Dunkel) Deysher. On this farm were erected by Mr. Deysher a set of buildings, all since replaced except the spring house, which is still in a good state of preservation.

Peter Deysher, son of Peter and Elizabeth (Lesher), was born on his father's farm in Maxatawny township Nov. 21, 1802. His father dying when he was young, he was early thrown upon his own resources. He received such educational advantages as could be obtained in that day, and he became a man of considerable force of character and a useful citizen. He was one of the first school directors of Maxatawny township, and helped to inaugurate the free school system, superintending the erection of the first public school houses that were built in the district. He was frugal and industrious, and by good management acquired the ownership of a part of the old homestead, upon which he lived and died. The land he owned embraced the farm of his son William, 135 acres in Lower Macungie, Lehigh county; of his son Charles, 175 acres in Maxatawny; of his son John D., 128 acres; and of his son Jacob, 137 acres. Peter Deysher was twice married. He first married Elizabeth Dunkel, born in Greenwich township, Feb. 28, 1800, daughter of Jacob Dunkel and his wife Hannah Dreibelbis. To their union were born the following children: Hettie m. Isaac Christman; Elizabeth m. William Wanner; William (deceased) m. (first) Sarah Kutz, (second) Sarah Butz, and lived in Lehigh county; John Dunkel Deisher, born April 8, 1826, is mentioned below; Anna m. William Kohler, of Greenwich township; Hannah Susannah m. Stephen Leibensperger; Caroline m. George Sell, of Richmond township; Peter died when a child; Jacob m. Caroline Butz; Abbie m. Henry Sharadin, of Kutztown; Charles m. (first) Hetty Kindt, (second) Susanna Kindt, and (third) Sarah Campman, and lives in Kutztown; Maria m. Charles Rahn; Louisa m. Nicholas Kieffer. Elizabeth (Dunkel) Deysher, the mother, died Jan. 3, 1864, and Mr. Deysher married Rachael (Ryle "for short") Peters, born Oct. 23, 1811, who died Sept. 2, 1873, without issue. Peter Deysher died May 15, 1884, and he and both of his wives are buried in Fairview cemetery, at Kutztown. He was an official member of St. John's Lutheran Church. His signature, herewith given, shows that he wrote the name Deysher, though his children use the "i." John Dunkel Deisher, his son, whose signature is also shown, when questioned recently upon this subject, said: "When the public schools and the learned teachers came they spelled it with an 'i'."

Peter Deysher

John Dunkel Deisher, son of Peter and Elizabeth (Dunkel) Deysher, was born in Maxatawny township April 8, 1826, on his father's farm adjoining the old Deisher homestead, and there he grew to manhood. The only language then spoken in his neighborhood was the Pennsylvania-German. This was the language of the country school he attended and of all his schoolmates. This was a serious handicap, and he never learned to speak English. This, however, did not keep him from coping quite successfully with life's difficulties. He engaged at farming, and prospered. Through the assistance of his father he early acquired a fine farm, later liquidating his indebtedness to his father by installments. This farm, situated about one and one-half miles east of Kutztown, contains 128 acres. He bought a limestone quarry in the same locality, built five kilns and engaged extensively in burning lime. His business rapidly increased and in order to supply the demand he soon found it necessary to buy another quarry and two more kilns. He also bought both wooded and cleared lands in Greenwich township, and in another part of Maxatawny, increasing his possessions to very respectable proportions. He farmed and burned lime until in 1885, when, admonished by the steady advances of age, he relinquished the active duties of life and removed to Kutztown, where he has been residing ever since. In February, 1909, to lessen his cares he sold his farm to his son John, and another homestead to his son Charles, and divided the bulk of his possessions among his children.

Mr. Deisher is an earnest Christian man and belongs to the Lutheran Church, of which denomination his family have been adherents in the past. In politics he is an unswerving Democrat, but beyond serving as school director he has never sought or held office.

John D. Deisher married Hannah Kohler, daughter of John and Rebecca (Leiby) Kohler, and to them the following children were born: William, a carpenter by trade, died in Allentown in 1901; Sarah m. John Mertz, and lives near Kutztown; Louisa m. Jacob Swoyer, of near Kutztown; Mary died young; Hannah m. Reuben Wessner, and lives in Allentown; Caroline m. B. D. Druckenmiller, and lives in Kutztown; John m. Luella Herbine, and has farmed his father's farm since 1885, purchasing it in February, 1909; Henry K. is mentioned below; George died in infancy; Lizzie m. Eugene De Turk, of Kutztown; Charles m. Lizzie Dietrich, and lives near Kutztown, on his father's property, which he purchased in February, 1909. Mrs. Hannah (Kohler) Deisher died June 1, 1897, at the age of sixty-eight years. Mr. Deisher has since married Mrs. Flora (Ebert) Hill.

John D Deisher

HENRY K. DEISHER, son of John D. and Hannah Deisher, was born in Maxatawny township March 12, 1867. Possessing a natural aptitude for learning he was sent early to the district school, where, notwithstanding the fact he was unable to speak the English language, he made rapid progress. He excelled in memorizing, and before he was six years old was able to recite from memory all of the counties in Pennsylvania with their county-seats, all of the townships and boroughs of Berks county, and all of the school districts in Maxatawny township. It so happened that he had a teacher who could draw lessons from nature—leaves, stones and other things gathered in forest and field. This teacher upon one occasion requested his pupils to bring him specimens of all the different kinds of stones of which they had knowledge, and among the collection Henry K. Deisher brought were eight Indian arrow-heads, which he had found upon his father's farm. These exhibits did duty until the end of that term, and then there came a teacher of different views regarding nature studies. Pebbles and stones and leaves of grass did not appeal to him, and when the school-house received a renovation the entire exhibit collected by the pupils of his predecessor, unknown to Henry K. Deisher, was thrown out of doors as so much trash. Being then not yet seven years old, the disappearance of his arrow-heads was a sore loss to him, and on learning what had been done with them he went on a search, luckily finding them all. He took them home and placed them where they would be safe, and they became the nucleus of an archaeological collection which has long been meat and drink to the owner, besides winning him a proud distinction. Beginning in his early youth, it gradually grew until in time it became the curiosity and talk of the neighborhood. Encouraged by the comments it received, he when but eleven years old exhibited it at the Kutztown Fair, where it was awarded first premium, although he had a very strong competitor. It now numbers 22,000 specimens, all properly classified, and arranged in a large upper room which Mr. Deisher had expressly constructed for it in the new home he recently built. So long and intently has he been working in this special field, and so thoroughly conversant is he with its details, both from experience and from books, that it has become his art, and he revels in it and discourses upon it with the readiness and force of a master. Besides being the wonder of the community it is one of the largest and most remarkable private collections of the kind in the country, constantly attracting visitors, and it has been inspected by some of the most learned authorities in America.

On completing the course of the district schools Henry K. Deisher entered the Keystone State Normal School with the intention of taking a full course in it. After attending this institution for several terms a clerkship in the leading dry-goods store in Kutztown was offered him, which induced him to give up his project of graduating from the normal school and enter upon a mercantile career. He clerked in Kutztown for several years and then yielded to a thirst to see something of the outside world and took a trip to the West, traveling through twenty-three different States. With his curiosity concerning the Western country somewhat satisfied he returned to Kutztown and engaged as a clerk in the mercantile trade until he was ready to enter upon business for himself. In 1890 he became proprietor of the King Knitting Mills, which he enlarged and equipped with improved machinery, and other devices calculated to increase the quantity and quality of the output. Under his personal direction and management the industry has grown to large proportions, and it now affords steady employment to many hands of both sexes. The goods it turns out enjoy a high reputation and annually command large sales both at home and at a distance, his trade covering nearly every section of the country.

On Dec. 29, 1892, Mr. Deisher married R. Annie Wagonhorst, daughter of John and Louisa (Siegfreid) Wagonhorst, of Kutztown, and to this union has been born one child, Dorothy Ruth. The family home is on Noble street, and is both beautiful in appearance and admirably designed for the convenience of living. It is tastefully furnished, and the visitor sees at a glance that it is not only the seat of domestic comfort, but the abiding place of genius and art as well. Mr. Deisher is a member of Trinity Lutheran Church, of Kutztown, and his wife belongs to the Reformed Church, and through their integrity, sociability and Christian graces they enjoy the respect and friendship of the entire community. In politics Mr. Deisher is independent, voting for what he considers the best men and advocating for his municipality advanced ideas, and this course has received significant indorsement in his being elected councilman in recent years by an overwhelming majority. Since January, 1908, he has served as a director of the Kutztown National Bank. Mr. Deisher is a member of the Berks County Historical Society and the Pennsylvania German Society.

JOEL FOSTER STRAUB BIEHL was born Oct. 26, 1875, near Fleetwood, in Richmond township, Berks county, Pa., son of Daniel K. and Arlinda (Straub) Biehl.

Daniel K. Biehl, was born in Richmond township on the old homestead. He was reared on the farm and obtained his education in the local schools, at an early age learning the trade of blacksmith, which he followed first in Richmond township, then at Fleetwood, and since 1885 in Reading. He married Arlinda Straub, of Richmond township, and to this union were born: Heber S., Jacob S. and Harrison S., all of whom learned the blacksmith's trade; and Joel Foster Straub.

Joel Foster Straub Biehl was eight years of age when his parents removed to Fleetwood, and there spent two years, he attending the public school of that place. On locating in Reading in 1885 he attended school regularly, and was graduated from the high school in 1894. While attending high school he also clerked in the law office of W. Kerper Stevens, and when the firm of Stevens & Stevens was formed, he was employed by these gentlemen, whom he left Nov. 18, 1894, to connect himself with the law firm of Rourke & Heinly, later engaging with Mr. Rourke, with whom he has continued ever since, and who has offices at No. 44 North Sixth street. In 1900 Mr. Biehl was admitted to practice before the courts of Berks county.

Mr. Biehl was married Feb. 18, 1903, to Grace W. Hoover, daughter of Albert R. and Elizabeth W. (Wright) Hoover, of Reading, Pa. Mr. Biehl is a member of St. Luke's Lutheran Church. His political views make him a Democrat.

CHARLES E. DREAS, of No. 1811 Perkiomen avenue, Reading, Pa., second oldest conductor in point of service on the Reading Traction Company's lines, was born in the Sixteenth ward, Reading, Jan. 6, 1871, son of John and Elizabeth (Levan) Dreas.

John Dreas, great-grandfather of Charles E., followed farming in Maiden-creek township, Berks county, where he owned land, and there died about 1853, when past eighty years of age. He married Catherine Fink, daughter of Peter Fink, and among their children were: David, of Maiden-creek township; Daniel, of Evansville, Pa.; Jacob; Elizabeth, m. to Daniel Barndt; Catherine, m. to William Beil; and Lydia, m. to Daniel Saul.

Jacob Dreas, son of John and grandfather of Charles E., was born in 1810 in Richmond township, and was long a resident of that section, owning a small farm near Evansville. He died in 1887, and was buried at Bechtel's Church. Mr. Dreas married Anna Moll, daughter of John Moll, and she died in 1901, aged nearly ninety years, having lived in her latter years with her son, Jacob, at Pricetown. Mr. and Mrs. Dreas had these children: Eliza, who died young; John; Sally, m. to George Boyer; Lydia, m. to Amos Rauzahn; Simon, m. to Malina Wanner; Isabella, m. to Jacob Anshenbranner; Caroline, m. to F. M. Betz; Amelia, m. to James Phillips; Ephraim, m. to a Miss Keller; Katie, who died young; Jacob, m. to Henrietta Rhoads; and Mary, m. to Wilson Strasser.

John Dreas, father of Charles E., was born Dec. 9, 1835, in Richmond township, and was reared on his father's farm, working thereon until 1877, when he came to Reading and entered the employ of the Reading City Passenger Railway Company, where he worked fifteen years. For the next five years he was employed with the National Nut & Bolt Works, and since 1902 he has been stable boss for the American Iron & Steel Company. In politics Mr. Dreas is a Democrat; and he and his wife attend Blandon Lutheran Church. In 1850 Mr. Dreas was married to Elizabeth Levan, daughter of Daniel and Angelina (Breiner) Levan, of Alsace township, and to this union there were born ten children, as follows: Amelia, who died in infancy; William, who also died in infancy; John, m. to Susan Focht; Daniel, m. to Margaret Leaderer, deceased; Charles E.; Owen, m. to Jennie Brubaker; Luther, who died in childhood; Decosta, who is a salesman with Dives, Pomeroy & Stewart, Reading; Clara, m. to Harry Rapp; and Dora, who died in childhood.

Charles Elwood Dreas was educated in the Reading public schools, which he left at the age of fourteen years to become a horse-car driver for the Reading Traction Company, one year later becoming conductor. When the electric cars were installed on this line Mr. Dreas became a conductor thereon, and this position he has held to the present time, being very popular with passengers and one of the company's most trusted employes. Socially he is connected with Vigilance Lodge No. 194, I. O. O. F., of Reading, to which he has belonged since reaching his majority; the Odd Fellows Brotherhood of Boston, Mass.; and is a charter member of the United Traction Company Beneficial Association. In politics he is a Democrat. Mr. Dreas and his wife are members of St. Paul's Lutheran Church of Reading.

On May 11, 1898, Mr. Dreas married Emily A. Merz, born in Reading, Jan. 2, 1879, daughter of Albert and Catherine (Dilker) Merz, the former a butcher of Reading. To this union there have been born no children. To Mrs. Dreas' parents there were born six children, as follows: Charles; Catherine; Albert; Henry and Rosa, deceased; and Emily, m. to Mr. Dreas.

PAUL A. WENRICH, whose restaurant is located at No. 545 Penn street, Reading, is one of the well-known business men of this city. He was born at Wernersville, Berks Co., Pa., in 1884, son of Franklin J. and grandson of Jonathan Wenrich.

Franklin J. Wenrich was also a native of Berks county, and for some years of his early manhood he was a school teacher in the vicinity of his home. Subsequently he bought a small farm in Lebanon county, on which he remained a few years, and then operated farms in Berks county prior to buying a small farm near Stouchsburg, on which he resided until his death May 30, 1891. He married Sarah R. Klopp, who resided on the farm above mentioned until her death in February, 1907. Their children were: Samuel E., a farmer of Wernersville; Reuben D., superintendent of the Grand View Sanitarium farm at Wernersville; John F., a clerk at Chicago, Ill.; Bertha, m. to H. B. Troutman, and residing with her mother;

Hannah E., m. to Oliver W. Shaffer, of Wernersville; Sallie, m. to John Marks, of Wernersville; Paul A., and two sons deceased.

Paul A. Wenrich obtained his education in the township schools, and while still a lad, was employed on the farm of F. B. Reed, during the summer seasons. Later he became an employe of the Grand View Sanitarium at Wernersville, and remained there under his uncle, Dr. R. D. Wenrich, for four years, returning to school during the winter months. Mr. Wenrich then learned telegraphing, and for a number of years was in the employ of the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company, and while stationed at Pawling, Chester county, he also conducted a restaurant there. Finding this line, when well managed, a successful one, on Dec. 11, 1905, he bought his present business at Reading, where he has realized his anticipations. He understands thoroughly the conditions under which a restaurant may be made a paying concern, and the increase in his patronage shows that he meets the requirements of a discriminating public. He is also sole proprietor of the Majestic pool room, shoe shine parlors and barber shop.

Mr. Weinrich married Ella N. White, daughter of Isaac S. White, of Sheridan, Lebanon Co., Pa., and they have three children: Ethel P., Sarah R. and Edgar A. They reside at No. 513 Elm street, Reading. Mr. Wenrich is a member of the Evangelical Lutheran Church at Wernersville. He belongs to Aerie No. 66, F. O. E., Reading; Washington Camp, No. 237, P. O. S. of A., of Stouchsburg; No. 489 K. O. T. M. Reading; No. 1489, K. O. T. M., Reading; Vigilance Lodge, No. 194, I. O. O. F., Reading; Ringgold Band, and O. R. T. No. 237, Reading, the Mutual Benefit Department of same, and other social and beneficial organizations.

EDWARD A. BRINER, now in the employ of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad Company at Reading, Pa., was born April 4, 1853, son of Henry and Sarah (Frill) Briner.

Peter Briner, the founder of the Briner family in this country, was born in Germany, and came to America at an early date, settling in Reading, Pa. He was a shoemaker by trade, and he followed that occupation all of his active period. He and his wife, whose name is not known, were the parents of five sons, all of whom were shoemakers, and all born in Reading; Peter, Samuel, and three whose names are not known.

Samuel Briner, grandfather of Edward A., carried on the shoemaker's trade, operating a shop, and attended to the old Penn street toll house, across from the Pennsylvania depot. He later removed to Chestnut street, and there plied his trade until his death, some time during the Civil war. He was a soldier in the war of 1812, and was buried under the auspices of the veterans of that war. In religious faith he was a Lutheran, and in political principle a Democrat. Mr. Briner married Elizabeth Koch, a native of Berks county, and they were the parents of eight children: Mary, m. to Henry Astright; Barbara, m. to Marcus B. Scull; Esther, m. to Daniel Werner; Emma, who died single; Daniel; Henry; Lewis; and Margaret, m. to Joseph Barr.

Henry Briner received his literary training in the common schools of Reading, and learned the shoemaker's trade with his father. This occupation he followed all of his life, his death occurring in his forty-third year. He and his wife, Sarah Frill, daughter of John Frill, were the parents of seven children, as follows: Elizabeth m. Frank Fleer, had four children—Mary F. Otto, John A. and Minnie—and died in Philadelphia Feb. 13, 1907; Charles; Samuel; George; John; Edward A., and one who died in infancy. Of these, Edward A. is the only survivor. Mr. Henry Briner was a member of the Universalist Church, and in politics was a Democrat.

Edward A. Briner's education was secured in the common schools of his native city, and at the age of seventeen years he apprenticed himself to the tinsmith's trade with Daniel H. Ruth, remaining in the employ of that gentleman for four years as a journeyman. On July 3, 1873, he accepted a position with the Philadelphia & Reading Company, and has been a trusted employe of that company to the present time in the tinsmith department. He has only been late once in all these years, and that was on account of sickness.

Mr. Briner was married June 12, 1875, to Annie Gift, daughter of Peter Gift, and to this union there have been born two children: Sarah is deceased; and Claude, employed in the sheet iron department of the Philadelphia & Reading Company, m. Sallie Heist, and has one son, Edward.

Mr. Briner and his wife are members of the Universalist Church. He is fraternally connected with Vigilance Lodge No. 194, I. O. O. F.; Camp No. 89, P. O. S. of A.; the Philadelphia and Reading Relief Association; the Veteran Employes Association; Neversink Fire Company, No. 3; and the Veteran Firemen's Association. In politics he is a Republican.

WILLIAM B. LEVENGOOD, an iron worker in the employ of the Glendale Rolling Mills, was born in Douglass township, Berks county, Jan. 22, 1877, son of Samuel and Elizabeth (Brunner) Levengood and grandson of David Levengood.

Samuel Levengood, father of William B., was born in Pottstown, Montgomery Co., Pa. In his earlier life he worked in a rolling mill, and later became a repair man on the railroad. After his marriage he lived at Buckmanville, Pa., where he died Dec. 11, 1877. He married Elizabeth Brunner, daughter of William and Matilda (Lessig) Brunner. She was born in Douglass township, Dec. 15, 1849, and died April 2, 1890. They had one child, William B.

William B. Levengood grew to sturdy manhood in his father's home, and then for several years was hired out among the neighboring farmers. At the age of sixteen he began working in the Glasgow Rolling Mills, where he continued nine years, and for three years, 1900 to 1903, he again turned his attention to agriculture. At the end of that time he took his present position in the Glendale Rolling Mills. By thrift and economy he has been able to buy a twelve-acre tract in Douglass township, which he has in excellent condition. It was formerly the property of the Shoemaker family. Mr. Levengood is a man of excellent habits, and is highly respected. He belongs to the Pottstown Lutheran Church.

Levengood. The first of the Levengood family in America was Ulrich Leibengood, who was born in 1688 in Alsace Lorraine. He came to America on the "Charming Betsy," John Ball, master, sailing from Rotterdam, last from London. He settled in New Hanover township, Montgomery county, Pa. His wife Susanna was born in 1697, and their children (five in number) were all born in Germany, their ages at landing in America being given in the Pennsylvania archives as follows, 16, 13, 10, 8, and 5. The children were: Johan Peter, born 1717; Adam, 1720; Jacob, 1723; Maria, 1725; and Anna, 1728.

Adam Leibenguth, son of Ulrich, was born in Alsace Lorraine, in 1720, and made his home in Douglass township, Berks county, where he was a farmer, owning a 160-acre tract. He died in April, 1804. He married in New Hanover township, Trappe Church Records, Christine Gansertine.

Matthias Leavengood, son of Adam, was born Jan. 20, 1749, and died Nov. 10, 1835. During the war of the Revolution he served as a teamster. On Jan. 28, 1783, he married (Reformed Church Records, Falkner Swamp, New Hanover township) Catharine Shuster, born Sept. 29, 1759, died April 11, 1860. Their children were: Solomon; Polly (Mary) m. John Reinert; Katie m. a Clouser; Betsy m. a Hatfield; Matthias, Jr., m. Elizabeth Reinert.

Matthias Levengood, Jr., son of Matthias, was born Jan. 4, 1801, and died Oct. 29, 1869. He lived on the homestead farm in Douglass township, where his father and grandfather had lived and died. He married Elizabeth Reinert, born Sept. 11, 1800, died May 16, 1871. Their children were: Reuben m. Rebecca Imbody; Rachael m. Henry Buchert; Catharine m. Charles Mauger; Mary m. Aaron Yohn; Matthias R. m. Elizabeth Davidheiser; Sarah m. Isaac F. March; Elmina m. Lewis Yohn. Matthias Levengood, Jr., and his wife, and Matthias Leavengood, Sr. and his wife are buried at Amityville, where Matthias, Sr., helped to build the church.

Matthias R. Levengood, son of Matthias, Jr., was born in Douglass township, Berks county, Jan. 22, 1835. He attended the old pay schools a few short winters, and then the free schools later established. He was reared upon the farm, and when twenty-three years old he learned the milling trade from John Nagel, of Douglass township. He was engaged in the milling business three years in that township, and in 1871 located in Earl township, now living near Worman, where he has a sixty-four-acre farm which he cultivated until his retirement in 1902. His son George D. now cultivates the farm, which was the Ephraim Swavely tract, the latter obtaining it from his father John Swavely. Mr. Levengood is a Democrat, and for six years was school director in Earl township, and he was also a register assessor in his district. He and his family are members of the Lutheran church at Amityville, and for many years he was treasurer of the Sunday-school.

In 1860 Mr. Levengood was married at Pottstown, to Elizabeth Davidheiser, daughter of George Davidheiser, and this union was blessed with eleven children: Ida, deceased, m. Calvin Rhoads; Sarah m. Frank Reinert, of Stowe, Pa.; Emma m. Daniel Weidner; Rufus, formerly a school teacher, is now a farmer in Amity township; Delilah m. Morris Hoffman; George is a school teacher and also the farmer on the homestead; Annie m. Calvin Rhoads (his former wife, Ida, having been her sister); Harvey is principal of the schools at Mauch Chunk, Pa.; and Elizabeth, Mary and Clayton all died small.

Peter Levengood, born Feb. 1, 1807, died April 19, 1876. His wife Elizabeth, born July 1, 1801, died Oct. 28, 1862.

Mary Levenguth, wife Daniel H. Shirey, born Nov. 23, 1824, died Aug. 4, 1890.

John Levengood, son of Joseph and Mary, born Nov. 28, 1798, died July 24, 1863.

Hannah, wife of John and daughter of John and Cath. Yocom, born April 30, 1795, died Jan. 10, 1871.

Daniel Levengood, born Dec. 20, 1801, died Sept. 10, 1867. Mary, wife of Daniel, and daughter of William and Barbara Hartranft, born April 20, 1800, died Dec. 11, 1866.

JOHN J. KERN was born in Reading in 1874, son of Francis and Catherine (Wagner) Kern, and his life has been identified with the city of his nativity, where he is now well established in the undertaking business.

The Kern family is of German stock, and Jacob Kern, grandfather of John J., never left his native country, but spent his life there as a farmer, and died there just three days after his eightieth birthday. His children were: Joseph, Magdalena, Mary, John, Annie, Catherine, Francis, Francisco and Francis (2).

Francis Kern was born in Germany Oct. 3, 1850. He learned the miling trade in his native land, and then when twenty years of age he came to America. Landing at New York City, he came direct to Reading and first secured work at the furnaces of Mr. Eckert. He never resumed work at his original trade, but later went into the Philadelphia & Reading shops, where he has been engaged for the past thirty years in the blacksmith department, making springs. His wife, Catherine, was a daughter of Henry Wagner, a civil engineer, and was born in Hesse Darmstadt, Gemany. She came to America in 1870, and was married to Mr. Kern Sept. 15, 1873. Their family was a large one, but most of them are now deceased. John J. is the oldest. The others were: Francis W. and Catherine M., both deceased; Joseph J., a civil engineer; Henry J., Frank George, Annie M. and Edward F., all deceased; W. F., a bookkeeper; and Eva F., deceased.

John J. Kern was sent both to the public and parochial schools of Reading, but began working while still young. His first position was as cash boy, in the department store of Dives, Pomeroy & Stewart, but instead of working up in that line he went to the printing establishment of B. F. Owens & Co., where he learned that trade and followed it for a few years. Still feeling that he had not yet found the right field for himself he next went into the Philadelphia & Reading shops, and learned to work as a blacksmith. This trade also he pursued for a time, and then entered upon the business in which he is now engaged, that of undertaking and embalming. He went into the establishment of George H. Felix, and during the seven years he remained with him he became thoroughly master of the business. On July 20, 1903, he opened an office for himself at No. 107 North Ninth street, but the following April he removed to his present location, No. 117, on the same street, where he enjoys a good patronage and one which is constantly increasing. He is also president of the Harrison Mutual Burial Association, which he himself organized for the object of providing for the payment of the funeral expenses of the members thereof, the only association of its kind in existence, and having a membership, at the present time, of nearly two million.

Mr. Kern married Emma A. Tischmacher, daughter of Conrad Tischmacher, a well known barber of Reading. They have two daughters, B. Frances and Gertrude H. They are members of St. Paul's Catholic Church. Mr. Kern is connected with several social organizations, being a member of the Eagles; the M. W. A.; the Knights of St. John, No. 271; the Knights of Columbus, No. 793; Bonifacius Beneficial Brotherhood; Beneficial Brotherhood of The Holy Cross; Twentieth Century Quakers No. 2; American Order of Owls, No. 116; Harmonie Maennerchor; Bavarians; and Liederkranz.

HOWARD L. CHRIST, one of the highly esteemed young citizens of Reading, Pa., is at present occupied with the duties attendant upon the position of Common Pleas court stenographer. Mr. Christ is of German descent, his ancestors having come from Germany some generations ago, and his grandfather, John Christ, was a farmer of Penn township.

Harrison D. Christ, father, of Howard L., died in Philadelphia in 1903, aged sixty-five years, and he and his wife, who was Mary Reber (daughter of Samuel Reber, a farmer of Berks county), had four children, as follows: J. Morris, who died in Aurora, Ill., in 1886, aged twenty-five years; Alice, m. to George Albert, with the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company; Mary, m. to A. H. Dundore, residing at Bernville; and Howard L.

Howard L. Christ was born in Fredericksburg, Pa., Sept. 14, 1876, but received his education in the public schools of Reading. After graduating at the Reading high school in 1895, he became a stenographer, and worked for several prominent concerns for a short time, when he became employed by the court stenographer. In 1899 the latter gentleman was elected city clerk of Reading, and Mr. Christ succeeded him as court stenographer. Mr. Christ's work is considered the best and most accurate.

In 1906 Mr. Christ married Mary, daughter of E. A. Schenck, cigar manufacturer, of Womelsdorf. Mr. Christ is politically a Democrat, and Evangelical in his religious belief.

CHARLES L. ROLLAND, an enterprising young business man of Reading, Pa., who is engaged in the manufacture of umbrellas at No. 631 Penn street, was born in this city, July 18, 1875, son of Augustus and Mary (Heanuse) Rolland.

Augustus Rolland was born in the city of Paris, France, and from that place came to America about 1865, locating in Reading, where he became engaged successfully in the manufacture of umbrellas, a business in which he continued during the remainder of his life. Three children were born to Mr. Rolland and his wife: Charles L.; Augustus, a manufacturer of umbrellas; and Joseph, manager of the Eagle Book store.

Charles L. Rolland was educated in the public schools of Reading, and as a boy learned the trade of umbrella maker in the old Rolland establishment at No. 639 Penn street, remaining there until 1906, after death of his parents. In that year he engaged in business on his own account, conducting it in the same square where it was established for twenty-five years. He keeps a choice assortment of umbrellas and parasols, making a specialty of repair work, counting as customers some of Reading's leading people. Mr. Rolland is a very good business man, and is affable and courteous to all, thereby winning for himself unbounded popularity. He is connected with several fraternal associations, among them St. John Lodge, No. 435, F. & A. M.; Mystic Star Commandery, No. 47, Knights of Malta; Lincoln Chamber, Knights of Friendship; and Juniata Tribe No. 74, Improved Order of Red Men.

J. HEBER PARKER, assistant superintendent of the Carpenter Steel Works, was born in 1881, in Reading, son of William H. and Elizabeth (Cotterel) Parker.

Mr. Parker's educational advantages were secured in the public schools of his native city, and he was graduated from the Reading high school in 1896. His first employment was with P. M. Ziegler, the druggist, with whom he remained about sixteen months, when he took a post-graduate course at the high school. After leaving this institution, Mr. Parker engaged with J. H. Stein, at Eighth and Penn streets, remaining in this gentleman's employ for four years, and at the end of this time went to Philadelphia and entered the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy, from which he was graduated in 1902, with the degree of Doctor of Pharmacy. Mr. Parker then went to Cornell University, where he took the full course in Chemical Engineering, graduating in 1905 with the degree of Bachelor of Arts. He returned to Reading, and entered the employ of the Carpenter Steel Company and was appointed assistant superintendent in 1907.

ADAM H. SCHLEGEL, a representative citizen of Mount Penn borough, Berks county, residing in his pleasant home on Perkiomen avenue, has for some years been employed by the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company as a molder. Mr. Schlegel was born Oct. 19, 1871, in Ruscombmanor township, this county. Until his sixteenth year he attended the public schools of his native locality, and then learned the molder's trade with Schaeffer & Merkel, of Fleetwood, serving a full apprenticeship of three years. After working a few months for the Reading Hardware Company, he became a molder for the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company, and has continued in that company's employ to the present time. Mr. Schlegel is a skilled mechanic and a steady workman, and is respected by his employers and popular with his fellow workmen. In the spring of 1901 he erected a nice frame residence on Perkiomen avenue, in Mount Penn borough, and here he has a comfortable home. In political matters he is a Democrat, and he is fraternally connected with Castle No. 230, K. G. E., of St. Lawrence, Pa. He and his family worship at Spies's Union Church, he being a Lutheran member, while his wife belongs to the Reformed denomination.

On Oct. 28, 1892, Mr. Schlegel was united in marriage with Sallie H. Kinsey, daughter of Isaac and Susanna (Hartman) Kinsey, and granddaughter of Isaac and Judith (Hartman) Kinsey, and to this union have been born three children: Elsie K., born March 10, 1894; Harry K., born April 28, 1896; and Frederick Marshall, born July 27, 1908.

The grandparents of Mrs. Schlegel, who were farming people of Alsace township, had children as follows: Isaac; Benjamin, who died while fighting in defense of his country during the Civil war, when he was less than twenty years old; Sarah, who married Jacob Snyder and now resides in Reading; and Amos, also a resident of Reading. Isaac Kinsey, father of Mrs. Schlegel, who also carries on agricultural pursuits in Alsace township, had the following family: Benjamin; Sallie H., who became Mrs. Schlegel; Annie; Judith; Peter; Darius; Lucetta; Rebecca; Edward, and Hettie. All of these grew to maturity and live in Berks county at this time.

ROBERT E. RICHARDSON, secretary to the Superintendent of Public Schools and chief clerk of the Board of Education, being appointed in 1901 by Superintendent Ebenezer Mackey, and retained by Superintendent Charles S. Foos, when he came to the office, was born in Upper Bern township, Berks county, Pa., May 8, 1883.

James K. Richardson, grandfather of Robert E., lived at Shartlesville, Berks county, where he died at the age of seventy. He served in the war of the Rebellion for two years, having enlisted in Company H, 128th Pa. V. I., and Company E, 46th Pa. V. I.

Thomas M. Richardson, son of James K. and father of Robert E., is a traveling salesman, a member of the board of education, and prominent in the Democratic party of Reading. He married Sarah H. Koch, daughter of the late Daniel Koch, who was a leather manufacturer and retail merchant of Reading. Of the four children born to this marriage, Emma M. died in infancy; Mamie R. and Herbert C. still reside at home; and Robert E. is the subject of this brief review.

Robert E. Richardson received his preliminary training in the public schools at Strausstown, and private school, with which equipment he entered the Inter-State Commercial College, at Reading. Here he pursued an English and full commercial course, graduating in 1900. His connection with the school board began in the year following, as related above. Mr. Richardson's efficiency in the office is due largely to his thoughtfulness, close observation and exactness and his goodly amount of common sense.

On July 8, 1903, Mr. Richardson married Miss Flora A. Rhein, daughter of John G. Rhein, a contracting painter of the city. They have had three children: Elmer J.; Sarah C., who died in infancy; and Thomas M., born in February, 1909.

Mr. Richardson is a consistent member of the St. Stephen's Reformed Church. His interest in politics is shown by his membership in the Democratic organization known as the North-Eastern Democratic Association, in which he is an officeholder. Mr. Richardson is an expert touch typewriter operator. He is a photographer of ability, and has a well-equipped photographic studio and dark-room, in which he delights spending many of his spare moments.

CHARLES S. MADEIRA, postmaster at Fleetwood and one of the most progressive and enterprising young business men of Berks county, was born Jan. 10, 1876, son of William H. and Clara (Hoch) Madeira.

Mr. Madeira was educated in the borough schools, at Keystone Normal School at Kutztown, and at West Chester State Normal School, and at the age of nineteen years, having finished his education, he was occupied as a clerk for about six years in the York Silk Mills and with N. S. Schaeffer & Co., merchants of Fleetwood. He then started a hosiery mill at Lyons, a town several miles distant, with Charles A. Wanner, another enterprising young man of Fleetwood, as a partner, and operated this mill with upwards of thirty hands successfully for a year, when the firm were obliged to remove to larger quarters. Selecting Fleetwood they secured a convenient site along the railroad near the station and erected a large two-story frame building, equipping it with the latest machinery. The firm have operated with increasing success and employ eighty hands, producing daily 450 dozens of seamless hosiery, which are shipped to all parts of the country.

After establishing himself at Fleetwood, Mr. Madeira interested himself in the Pennsylvania Dye & Bleach

Works at New Cumberland in 1905, by becoming a half-partner with Samuel Peters of Allentown; and also in the Metal Body Company, which he assisted in bringing to Fleetwood from Reading for the manufacture of automobile bodies, the latter company employing 100 hands. Both of these enterprises are operated successfully. He is also interested in building operations at Fleetwood. In April, 1908, he was appointed postmaster by President Roosevelt, and is still serving most efficiently.

In 1905 Mr. Madeira was elected a school director and in 1906 officiated as president of the board. Having from boyhood taken an active part in athletic sports, he naturally co-operated with others in organizing the Fleetwood Athletic Association, serving as president thereof in 1905.

PROF. HOWARD H. DE LONG, who for some time has been known to the citizens of Berks county as an educator, and who has made his home at the residence of his uncle, Joel Mertz, near Virginville, Richmond township, was born in Rockland township, Berks county, Jan. 1, 1880, son of Adam B. and Caroline (Hoch) De Long.

The parents of Professor De Long removed in 1881 from Rockland to Lyons, Pa., where Mrs. De Long died of typhoid fever. She was the mother of: Irwin Hoch; Sallie, a graduate of the Hamburg high school, has been a teacher at the M. E. Orphan's Home for the past five years; Emma m. Erie F. Goss, a successful young farmer of Shindle, Mifflin county; John, a merchant at Lewistown, Mifflin county, m. a Miss Guss; and Howard H. Mrs. Caroline (Hoch) De Long, mother of the Professor, was a daughter of Jeremiah and Rebecca (Diener) Hoch, of Rockland township. She had one brother, Elias Hoch, who lost his life in the Civil war, and one sister, Lovina, who is the wife of Joel Mertz, the adopted parents of Howard H. De Long.

Prof. Howard H. De Long was but one and one-half years old when his mother died, and he was then taken into the family of his uncle, with whom he has resided ever since. His boyhood days were spent upon the farm, and his early education was obtained in the local schools of his adopted district, attending until seventeen years of age, when he entered the Keystone State Normal School at Kutztown, Pa. He graduated in 1901, and since that time has been engaged in teaching school seven months of the year, the other five months being spent on his uncle's farm. Professor DeLong began his career as an educator in his native township, Rockland, and the following year was elected to teach Schaeffer's school in Richmond township, continuing one year, when the school board, recognizing his ability, promoted him to the village school at Virginville, where he continued very successfully until 1906. At this time he again entered the Normal school to prepare for college, and entered Franklin and Marshall College in the fall of 1907, becoming a member of the class of 1910. Mr. De Long is still a young man, but he has demonstrated by his work in the schoolroom that he is a competent, painstaking teacher, and possessed of excellent qualities of mind and heart. He is loved by his pupils and esteemed by all who know him.

IRWIN HOCK DE LONG, brother of Prof. Howard H., was adopted by Isaac Ziegler, of Bowers, Pa., and was educated in the public schools of Maxatawny, Berks county, the State Normal School at Kutztown, Pa., after which he took his preparatory work at Muhlenberg Preparatory School, Allentown, and graduated at Franklin and Marshall College, Lancaster, Pa., with the class of 1898. He entered the Theological Seminary at Lancaster, Pa., in the fall of 1898, and graduated in the spring of 1901. In the summer of 1900 he entered the University of Chicago as a graduate student, and in the fall of 1902 he left Chicago for the American School of Oriental Study and Research in Palestine, Jerusalem, where he remained during 1902-03. In 1903 he entered the University of Berlin; and in 1904 the University of Strassburg, receiving his Ph. D. at Strassburg in 1905. He was elected instructor in Old Testament Science at Lancaster Seminary, and in the fall of 1908 he was elected Professor of Hebrew and Old Testament Theology in the same institution. He married Mary Meister, daughter of Rev. E. Meister, Lancaster, Pennsylvania.

WILLIS L. BRIGHT. Among the younger generation of business men of Penn township, Berks county, one who has forged his way rapidly to the front is Willis L. Bright, who is successfully conducting a general store business at Bernville. Mr. Bright was born Dec. 30, 1879, at Bernville, son of Edwin K. and Amelia (Loose) Bright, grandson of John M. Bright, great-grandson of Jacob Bright and great-great-grandson of John Bright.

John M. Bright, grandfather of Willis L., was born Sept. 28, 1824, and died July 19, 1897, at Bernville borough, whence he had moved from his farm in Penn township. His first wife was Lydia Koenig, born July 26, 1825, and died Oct. 10, 1853. To this union were born four children, namely: Henry M., born Dec. 15, 1847, m. Emma E. Geiss; Benton K., born Sept. 25, 1849, m. Deborah Epler; Edwin K.; Jacob K., born June 28, 1853, m. Lizzie Frieling. The second wife of John M. Bright was Lydia Ann Grime, born May 6, 1833, and to this marriage there were also four children: Mary A., born Dec. 7, 1856, m. Charles F. Wagner; Clara, born Oct. 27, 1864, m. Monroe Kershner; Georgie, born Feb. 13, 1867, m. Minerva Stiely; and Emma, born Jan. 17, 1869.

Edwin K. Bright, father of Willis L., was born in Penn township, Aug. 25, 1851. He attended the local public schools and the Normal school at Kutztown, and learned the butchering business at Bernville. In 1880 he removed to Reading, where for five years he worked at his trade, then engaging in business on his own account, a line which he has since followed. Mr. Bright married Amelia Loose, daughter of Jonathan and Mary (Schock) Loose, and they had two children: Willis L., and Herbert L., who attended Lehigh University and is now a draughtsman in New York City.

Willis L. Bright attended the schools of his native township and as a young man began clerking for A. F. Schock, later being put in charge of the store, which he purchased March 1, 1907. This is one of the leading business stands of Bernville, an old and well established business, and the main building, located on Main street, at the upper end of the town, is 30 x 100 feet in dimensions. Mr. Bright has proved himself an excellent business man, and the success which he has attained has been well-merited.

Mr. Bright married Dora A. Greenawalt, daughter of A. S. Greenawalt, of Bernville, and they have a daughter, Helen A. Mr. and Mrs. Bright are members of St. Thomas Reformed Church.

JOHN WELLINGTON ALTHOUSE, one of the enterprising young business men of Philadelphia, Pa., who as Director of Foreign Tours is well known to the traveling public, is a lineal descendant of one of the first families of Bern township, Berks county, and was born June 6, 1874, at Ashland, Pa., son of John Wellington, Sr., and Carrie Miriam (Reeser) Althouse.

Henry Althouse, grandfather of John Wellington, Jr., was born in Bern township, and died in 1882 in Reading. He married Mary Kissinger, daughter of John Kissinger, of Reading. John Wellington Althouse, Sr., son of Henry and Mary (Kissinger), was born at Reading in 1844, and met an accidental death in a runaway at Allentown, Pa., in 1875. He married Carrie Miriam Reeser, daughter of Reuben and Henrietta (Ryland) Reeser, and to them there were born two children: Lulu B. (m. Edward Collins); and John Wellington.

John Wellington Althouse was brought to Philadelphia by his parents when he was two years old, and there he attended the public schools until reaching his seventeenth year, at which time he became a clerk in the employ of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, in their office building on South Fourth street. After continuing thus for several years, Mr. Althouse engaged in the coal business in the Pocahontas District of West Virginia, but one year later returned to Philadelphia to embark in the business of arranging and conducting foreign tours through Europe, Asia and Africa. Since 1895 he has been engaged in this enterprise with increasing success, his tours having won the patronage of many distinguished people in all parts of the United States.

In 1900 Mr. Althouse was married to Ada P. Koch, daughter of Charles and Caroline (Teeter) Koch, of Orwigsburg, Pa., and granddaughter of Henry and Susanna (Bock) Koch.

AMBROSE B. MADEIRA, justice of the peace at Wyomissing, Pa., and one of Wyomissing borough's energetic and successful young men, was born Sept. 11, 1884, in Bern township. He enjoys the distinction of being one of the youngest justices in Berks county.

Samuel Madeira, great-grandfather of Ambrose B., was of French extraction and of a Huguenot refugee family, and tradition gives him three brothers: John S., who died in 1868, left seven children, among whom were Michael and John; Jacob, who died in 1864 in Muhlenberg township, Berks county, had children, Rebecca, Franklin, Jacob, Eliza, Angelina and Susan; and David, born July 22, 1788. Samuel Madeira married Elizabeth Shepp, daughter of Daniel and granddaughter of Conrad Shepp. He was a farmer in Windsor, now Perry township, and died there in 1832, aged forty-five years. His widow lived to be sixty-nine. Their children were: Catherine was unmarried; William, who died in 1892, had an only daughter, Emma, wife of Cyrus Rick; Mrs. Sarah Lesher; Daniel m. Catherine Becker, and had children, Prof. F. V. B. (deceased), Almira (deceased) and Rev. Charles; John S.; Mrs. Elizabeth Heckman; Mrs. Matilda Betz; Michael; Mrs. Susanna Brownmiller; Mrs. Peggy Michael; and Samuel. The latter died in 1884, in Perry township. He married Caroline Shuman, and they had issue: Louisiana, Richard, Missouri, Kansas, Robert, Minnie, Howard S., Annie, Sallie and Clara.

John S. Madeira, grandfather of Ambrose B., was born Jan. 20, 1822, near Leesport, Berks county, and was reared and educated in Reading. After his marriage he engaged in farming, which he continued until he was sixty-seven years old when he retired and moved to Reading, where he died aged seventy-three years. He was a Democrat, and was active in politics, but never desired public office for himself. He and family belonged to Reformed Church, in which he served both as deacon and elder. He married Catherine Young, born in Ruscombmanor township, Oct. 7, 1826, and died April 7, 1904, daughter of Daniel Young, of Exeter township. They had the following children: Ellen, deceased, m. Jonathan Tobias; John Y.; and Dr. James D., born Aug. 20, 1856, is a prominent physician of Reading.

John Y. Madeira, father of Ambrose B., was born Feb. 13, 1848, in Bern township, Berks county, and there during all his active life he engaged in agricultural pursuits. Since retiring he has lived at Glenside, Reading, Pa. Mr. Madeira enjoyed educational advantages in his youth, attending Brunner's business college at Reading and the State Normal School at Kutztown. In politics he is a Democrat. He married Emma E. Kredell, and they have the following children: Ambrose B.; Allene died young; J. Webster is a knitter at Wyomissing; and Florence E. resides at home.

Ambrose B. Madeira attended the local schools in his native locality, and also went to school for a time in Lower Heidelberg, attending the Blue Marsh school. Later he entered Deck's School of Shorthand, at Reading and he also went through Kerst's Business College, taking courses in bookkeeping, commercial law, etc. All his time, however, in boyhood and youth, was not given to his books, for he assisted his father on the home farm until he was seventeen years old, at which time his parents moved to Reading. Shortly afterward he became assistant shipping clerk with the American Iron & Steel Manufacturing Company and remained with that concern for a year, going then to the National Brass & Iron Works, also of Reading, where he was employed as office clerk. He continued there two years, after which he took charge for a year of the books of the American Casualty Company, of Reading, and he continued in a clerical capacity with large firms until he entered the employ of the Kaaterskill Paving Brick Company. The factory of this concern is situated at Catskill, N. Y., and their main office is in the Colonial Trust Building at Reading. This is a branch of the United States Brick Company.

Mr. Madeira continued with the above company until the spring of 1907, when he took charge of the office of the American Die & Tool Company, located at Second and Buttonwood streets, Reading. This office he has since filled with credit. In the spring of 1905 he came to make his home at Wyomissing, and his residence is on Penn avenue, in the second house above the Wyomissing Hotel. He was elected one of the first two judges or justices of the peace in this borough, receiving a very full vote. He takes an active and intelligent interest in all that concerns the community. He enjoys the distinction of being the first secretary of the school board of the new borough, and having signed the first Bond issue of the borough of $25,000 for a modern school house. He is serving on the committee on statistics in the Civic League. In politics he is a Democrat.

On Nov. 30, 1905, he was married to Miss Laura M. Becker, daughter of Monroe and Hannah (Gass) Becker, of Wernersville, Pa., and they have one son, J. Earl. Mr. Madeira and wife belong to Hain's Reformed Church of Lower Heidelberg.

CHARLES D. B. KINDT, a highly esteemed citizen of Mohnton, Pa., engaged in funeral directing, embalming and undertaking, was born Aug. 5, 1877, in Cumru township, Berks county, son of Daniel M. Kindt.

John Kindt, great-grandfather of Charles D. B., came from Maiden-creek township and located near Muddy Creek Church in Lancaster county, where he owned a fine farm of 200 acres, being a man of considerable means, worth about $50,000. He was a leading citizen and a man of considerable influence, and was an excellent mechanic, doing all of his own carpentering, blacksmithing and weaving. He married Sarah Seidel, daughter of Heinrich Seidel, and to them were born children as follows: John; Joel, who was a forty-niner; Simon, of Lancaster county, m. Mary Redcay; Nicholas, a drover living on the old stand, m. Katie Heft; Solomon, a hatter by trade, and later the proprietor of the "St. Cloud Hotel," Reading, Pa., m. (first) Lucy Bains and (second) Ellen Francis; Adam, a soldier in the Civil war, now living in Chicago, married a lady from that city; Rachel m. Samuel Sallenberger; Sally m. Solomon Lesher; Betsy m. William Geigly; Kate m. Benjamin Pennypacker; and Esther m. Peter Ludwig.

John Kindt, grandfather of Charles D. B., was born in Maiden-creek township. He was a farmer, owning a tract of seventy-five acres near Vinemont, in Spring township. During the Civil war, he was a private in Company E, 167th P. V. I. John Kindt married Mary Mohn, daughter of Daniel Mohn, and to them were born these children: Daniel M.; Sarah m. (first) Elijah Matz, and (second) Frank Fritz; Henry, living on the old homestead at Vinemont, m. Mary Weitzel; John died in childhood; and Mary is an invalid.

Daniel M. Kindt, father of Charles D. B., was born March 27, 1845, in Spring township, and is a retired hatter and laborer of Mohnton. He was reared on his father's farm, and attended pay school for a time. He was twice married, (first) Dec. 27, 1867, to Elmira Bickel, daughter of Daniel and Rebecca (Gruber) Bickel, by whom he had two children: Belle m. James White, deceased; and Charles D. B. His second marriage was July 19, 1880, to Mary Westley, daughter of John and Mary (Freese) Westley, and to this union were born three children: Howard m. Cora Schupp; Jacob and Mamie.

Charles D. B. Kindt secured his education in the public schools of Mohnton, and from boyhood has practically taken care of himself. He first carried papers, and then learned the cigar making trade with the firm of R. S. Bittler, and this he followed for four years, at the end of that time turning his attention to cabinet making, and under C. S. Knorr, at Mohnton, he became an expert cabinet maker. While with Mr. Knorr he also learned the undertaking business, and after three years' experience decided to enter into business for himself. His beginning was in a humble way, he at first utilizing an old stable, 14x15 feet, but later was able to erect several model buildings, well-equipped for the carrying on of his business. On Feb. 1, 1901, he took a course in the Massachusetts School of Embalming, where he was graduated. He is now located at Mohnton, opposite the Mosser & Westley store, where his building is equipped with all the latest improved methods demanded in these modern times. In 1904 he purchased a fine rubber tired hearse, and in January, 1907, he provided himself with a first-class embalming carriage, and he now commands the bulk of the business over a large area.

On April 23, 1903, Mr. Kindt was married to Mary A. Ruth, daughter of Henry K. and Elizabeth (Weaver) Ruth, and they have two children: Sibella Ruth and Charles Daniel, Jr. With his family Mr. Kindt belongs to St. John's Lutheran Church, of which his accomplished wife is the organist. On Nov. 19, 1899, Mr. Kindt was elected superintendent of the Sunday-school, which under his direction has increased in numbers and efficiency. The family reside in a beautiful home on Church street, which Mr. Kindt purchased in 1902, and subsequently improved. Fraternally Mr. Kindt is a member of Camp No. 211, P. O. S. of A.; the K. G. E.; Lodge No. 186, Jr. O. U. A. M.; and Tent No. 245, Knights of the Maccabees.

MILTON H. KRAMER, proprietor of a blacksmithing establishment at Brownsville, Berks Co., Pa., was born Aug. 23, 1878, in Bern township, son of Harrison and Lydia (Howe) Kramer.

John Kramer, great-grandfather of Milton H., was a stone mason by trade, an occupation which he followed for many years in Bern township, where he died at the age of ninety years. He married Catherine Ruth, and to them there were born these children: John; Daniel; Jacob; Catherine m. John Hiester; Susan m. Jacob Hiester; Sarah m. Jacob Badey; Elizabeth m. Christian Rote; and Rebecca m. Peter Harbach.

John Kramer, grandfather of Milton H., was born in 1808, in Bern township, and was a farmer by occupation, owning a tract of land near "Leinbach's Hotel." At the time of his death, Aug. 22, 1901, he was the oldest resident of Berks county. Mr. Kramer was a Lutheran member of the Bern Church. He married Catherine Bohn, and they had the following children: Harrison is the father of Milton H.; Matilda m. Henry Bowman; Catherine m. Elias Snyder; Caroline m. Daniel Lerch; Jacob B. m. Susan Reeser; Jared m. Amelia Fetter; Mary m. Milton Schrack; and Sarah m. Frank Reeser.

Harrison Kramer, father of Milton H., was born in Bern township, whence he removed to Penn township and carried on agricultural operations there for about twelve years. He was residing in Montgomery county at the time of his death, June 6, 1892, at the age of fifty-nine years, eleven months, twenty-six days. Mr. Kramer also resided in Chester county for six years prior to going to Montgomery county. He was a Democrat in his political affiliations. In religious connection he belonged to the Reformed Church, and was buried at the Mingo Meeting House, in Montgomery county. He married Lydia Howe, born Sept. 21, 1830, daughter of Joshua Howe, of near Fairview, Berks county, and she now resides with her daughter Ellen at Limerick Square, Montgomery county. To Mr. and Mrs. Kramer there were born these children: Clara, who died in infancy; Clara (2); Mary, deceased; Emma, deceased; Rosa; Isaac; James, deceased; Ellen; George, deceased; Charles; Harry, deceased; and Milton H.

Milton H. Kramer remained on the home farm until nineteen years of age, at which time he learned the blacksmith's trade with Adam W. Strause, near Bernville, in whose employ he continued for two years. He then worked at Schaefferstown for one and one-half years for Wilson J. Trautman, spent two years on Samuel Sailor's farm at Shillington, and in the fall of 1904 came to Brownsville and opened his present establishment. In October, 1905, he purchased the Adam Spatz home, and three and one-quarter acres of land joining the eastern side of his shop, and here he has continued to do business on a large scale. Mr. Kramer is a skilled mechanic and an honest workman, and his business methods have won him the respect as well as the trade of the people of his community. In politics he is a Democrat, and he and his family are Lutheran members of St. Thomas Union Church.

On July 26, 1898, Mr. Kramer married Tillie Reber, daughter of Moses and Catherine (Babb) Reber, of Jefferson township, and they have had five children: William and Paul died in infancy; Eve died aged six years; Mabel was born Dec. 6, 1901; and Annie was born May 14, 1908.

WILLIAM F. ZELLERS, of No. 1720 Centre avenue, Reading, who was employed in the smelting department of the Carpenter Steel Works, was born in Ontelaunee township, Berks Co., Pa., son of John and Catherine (Kraemer) Zellers.

John Zellers was born in Bern township, Berks county, but has spent his whole life in Ontelaunee township, where he owns a valuable farm, situated along Maiden Creek. He has been a prominent man in his day, serving as town supervisor on the Democratic ticket, and is known as a hardworking, industrious man. In religious belief he is Reformed. Mr. Zellers married Catherine Kraemer, who died in 1903, at the age of sixty-seven years. To them were born eight children, as follows: Emma, m. to Levi Haas, of Reading; John, m. to Kate Randsong; Charles, a hotel clerk, m. to Sally Martin; Catherine, m. to Abraham Fox; William F.; Ida, m. to William Kemmerer, ex-recorder of deeds of Berks county; Ellen, m. to Hiram Hottenstein, deceased; and Edward, at home, m. to Nora Burkhard.

William F. Zellers was educated in the schools of his native vicinity, and until twenty-one years of age lived on the home farm, after which he engaged at butchering with his brother. In 1890 he became engaged with Carpenter Steel Works, and for a term of fifteen years he was a smelter of crucible steel, this being one of the most expert departments of the works, as the quality of the steel for the crucibles depends entirely upon the skill of the smelter.

Mr. Zellers was married to Annie Brockway, daughter of Llewellyn Brockway, of Hyde Park, Pa., and they have one child, Herbert, who is attending high school. Mr. and Mrs. Zellers are members of the Reformed Church. Fraternally he is connected with the Knights of Malta and the I. O. R. M. In political matters Mr. Zellers is independent.

FREDERICK M. ADAM, senior member of the well-known firm of Adam Brothers, at Temple, Berks Co., Pa., where he is also serving in the capacity of postmaster, was born in 1879, in Maiden-creek township, Berks county, son of Michael S. and Mary D. (Moser) Adam.

Michael S. Adam, the father, was born in 1849 at South Evansville, Maiden-creek township. In 1883 he moved to Temple, where he purchased the store and stock of Daniel Kerling, conducting the business until his death, Jan. 21, 1905. He and his wife, Mary D. (Moser) Adam, had a family of eight children: Alice K., deceased; Charles M., of Birdsboro; Frederick M.; Howard; Robert; William; Myers, and Cyrus. In religious belief the parents were of the Reformed faith. Mr. Adam was a Democrat in politics, and served in various township offices in Maiden-creek, including those of school director and auditor. On July 11, 1893, during the administration of President Cleveland he was appointed postmaster by Wilson S. Bissell, postmaster-general.

Frederick M. Adam received his education in the schools of Muhlenberg township, after leaving which he clerked in his father's store until the latter's death, when he took charge of the business, which he has since conducted with much success. He is a man of more than ordinary ability, and his straightforward methods of doing business have won him a large and steadily increasing patronage. On Dec. 3, 1902, he was appointed postmaster by Henry C. Payne, postmaster-general, having been recommended by Senator Penrose during President McKinley's administration.

Mr. Adam was married to Cora Gass, daughter of William Gass, and to this union twins were born: Brooke, who died when one year and two months old; and Helen, who died when fifteen days old. Mr. and Mrs. Adam are members of the Reformed Church. He is a Democrat in politics, and fraternally is connected with Washington Camp, No. 107, P. O. S. of A.; Lamoriti Tribe, No. 319, I. O. R. M.; and K. G. E., Castle No. 372.

GEORGE DINKEL, an enterprising young business man of Mount Penn, Pa., who is the proprietor of a blacksmithing establishment, was born Dec. 24, 1877, in Muhlenberg township, Berks county, son of Charles and Susan (Schmeck) Dinkel.

Frederick Dinkel was born in Hesse Cassel, Germany, and was a carpenter and musician. He served two enlistments in the Civil war, being first a musician in a Kentucky regiment, and second a private in the 188th Pa. V. I. He was discharged on his first enlistment on account of deafness. He was killed in June, 1875, when about sixty-five years old, on the Pennsylvania Railroad at Anderson passenger station, near Lewistown, Mifflin Co., Pa., and was buried in the Mifflin County Almshouse Burial Ground. He married Martha Elizabeth Gimble, at Staten Island, N. Y., and they were blessed with twin daughters and one son: Mary A., born March 12, 1853, married Henry S. Keffer; Elizabeth, twin to Mary, married William B. Haag; and Charles. Mrs. Martha E. (Gimble) Dinkel is buried at Kissinger's Church.

Charles Dinkel, son of Frederick, died Dec. 8, 1897, at the age of forty-one years. He was a farmer all of his life, operating extensively in Temple and Exeter townships. He was one of the active members of the Lutheran Church. Mr. Dinkel married Susan Schmeck, daughter of Amos and Amelia (Heckman) Schmeck, and to them were born eight children, as follows: George; Harry, of St. Lawrence, an employe of John F. Lutz; Minnie married George Levan; Aminon, of St. Lawrence, a cutter in the Brumbach pants factory at Reading; John, of St. Lawrence, an undertaker in the employ of John F. Lutz; Herbert, who is employed in the woolen mills of St. Lawrence; Daniel, at home; and Walter.

George Dinkel was educated in the public schools of Muhlenberg township, which he attended until fifteen years of age, at which time he started to work out on farms in the neighborhood of his home. When nineteen years old he learned the trade of blacksmith with Frank Swoyer of Black Bear, Exeter township, and soon thereafter started in business for himself at that place. He continued there for almost six years, and then came to his present place of business, buying out Percival Leinbach in the fall of 1904, and here he has since successfully continued, doing a general line of blacksmithing. Mr. Dinkel is a skilled mechanic, and is known throughout Mount Penn as a competent workman, every job turned out of his shop being satisfactory to the patron. In 1908 he built on Perkiomen avenue in Mt. Penn borough, one of the most up-to-date blacksmith shops in Berks county. It is of brick, and is 60 x 30 feet in dimensions. He employs one man besides working himself and is always busy. In addition to his shop, Mr. Dinkel owns a good residence and one acre of land. In political matters he is a Republican, and although he has never sought, nor cared for, public office, he takes an interest in the success of his party's candidates. He and his wife attend the Lutheran Church at Schwartzwald.

On May 24, 1902, Mr. Dinkel married Annie Boyer, daughter of Daniel and Rebecca (Dilliplane) Boyer, who reside in Reading, Mr. Boyer being an employe of Mertz's storage house. Mr. and Mrs. Boyer have five children: Llewellyn, a saloon keeper of Philadelphia; Charles, also of Philadelphia; Herbert, an ironworker of Reading; Earle, an employe of a Reading stocking mill; and Annie. Mr. and Mrs. Dinkel have had two children: Charles Sterling and Martha.

CALVIN RUTH, a young business man of Wyomissing, Berks county, belongs to a family which has been represented in both Berks and Lancaster counties from the early days.

(I) Peter Ruth, the first ancestor of whom we have record, was a farmer by occupation, and operated along the Cacoosing, in Heidelberg township, Berks county. He and his wife Catherine had fourteen children: Michael, Jacob, Christian, Peter, George, John, Henry, Francis, Catherine, Mary, Barbara, Eve, Magdalena and Margaret. The father of this family died in September, 1771.

(II) Francis Ruth, son of Peter, died in 1809. He and his wife Elizabeth had eleven children: Elizabeth, John, Henry, Christian, Catherine, Magdalena, Isaac, Mary, Jacob, Peter, and Rebecca.

(III) Christian Ruth, son of Francis, was born April 20, 1781, in Berks county, and when a young man removed to Lancaster county, in the vicinity of Denver, where he carried on farming. His first wife was a Kurtz, and by her he had six children: Peter, Mary, Henry, Elizabeth, Francis and Caroline. To him and his second wife, Susanna (Ludwig), were born four children: Nathan, John, Jacob and Catherine. Christian Ruth died in 1847.

(IV) Francis Ruth was born in 1815 in East Cocalico township, Lancaster county, and was there reared to farming. About 1860 he removed to Berks county, where he died in 1899, at the age of eighty-four, his wife also being eighty-four years old at the time of her death, in 1903. He married Magdalena Gehret, and to them were born children as follows: Isaac married Mary Holl; Elizabeth married John Dundore; Harriet married John Baer; Susanna married Adam Emigh; Magdalena married Aaron Gaul; Peter married Annie Ebling; John married Anna Zerr; Amanda married John E. Moyer; Francis married Sarah Gehret; Jacob is mentioned below; Sarah married Lewis E. Spohn; Edwin C. married Emma Moyer; Carolina married James Shoup; Henry, Ezrom, and Reuben all died young.

(V) Jacob Ruth, son of Francis, was born Oct. 20, 1853, in East Cocalico, Lancaster county, and was reared to farming, which vocation he followed for many years in Heidelberg township, Berks county. He still owns a farm of 158 acres there, which he now rents, and which is considered one of the most valuable and fertile tracts in that township. Since the spring of 1903 he has resided at Wyomissing. Mr. Ruth has not only been an active man of business, but he has taken an intelligent interest in the public affairs of the communities in which he has resided, and while in Heidelberg he served as school director and as treasurer of the school board. He became the first treasurer of the borough of Wyomissing upon its organization. In religion he is a member of the Reformed Church, belonging to Hain's Church, of which he has been deacon and elder.

In 1873 Mr. Ruth married H. M. Catharine Hain, daughter of Adam L. and Hannah (Gaul) Hain, of Marion township. Mrs. Ruth was born July 20, 1854, and died May 28, 1902, the mother of four children, namely: Eva K., who lives at home; a daughter, twin to Eva, who died in infancy; Adam P., and Calvin. Of these, Adam P. Ruth graduated from the Robesonia high school, from the Keystone State Normal School at Kutztown, in 1896, and from a Reading commercial school. He taught school four terms in Heidelberg township, and is now a clerk in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing at Washington, D. C., where he resides. In 1903 he married Cadella Jarvis, and they have one daughter, Catherine R., born in 1905.

(VI) Calvin Ruth was born Oct. 19, 1877, in Lower Heidelberg township, and attended the public schools in both Heidelberg and Lower Heidelberg townships, continuing his studies until he was nineteen years old. He was reared upon the farm, upon which he worked until 1903, the year in which he established his present coal business at Wyomissing. Mr. Ruth bought out William E. Sheidy, built a new house, and greatly improved the yard, which has done a thriving business under his management. He disposes of between two thousand and three thousand tons of coal annually, and has built up this large trade himself, enjoying a good reputation for honorable dealing. He is well known throughout this territory, running two daily teams, and has patrons at Shillington, Reading, and along the Harrisburg pike.

Mr. Ruth is a member of Hain's Reformed Church. He also holds membership in Wernersville Lodge, No. 835, I. O. O. F.

HARRY B. ADAM, who is engaged in the manufacture of wagons at Leesport, Ontelaunee township, Berks Co., Pa., is one of this section's enterprising young business men, and belongs to an old and honored Berks county family. He was born April 4, 1883, in Richmond township, Berks Co., Pa., son of George G. and Emma (Berg) Adam.

George G. Adam, the father, was reared on his father, Peter Adam's farm in Richmond township, and there learned the trade of stone mason, which he has followed to a large extent throughout his life. He married Emma Berg, and to this union there were born thirteen children as follows: Sallie m. Howard Biehl; Charles B. m. Nora Grommis; Kate R. m. Cyrenius Schlegel; Oscar B. m. Hannah Altenderfer; William B. m. (first) Ella V. Schucher, and (second) Clara Forney; Mary m. Lee Troxell; Nora m. William Schmehl; Peter G. m. Annie Hoch; Edwin B. m. Emma High; Robert B.; Ella May, single; Elizabeth died at the age of five years; and Harry B.

Harry B. Adam was reared and educated in his native township and his early life was spent on the farm, but later he learned the trade of blacksmith, which he has followed to the present time. On Nov. 2, 1903, he embarked in the wagon manufacturing business at Leesport, this county, and this has grown to such proportions that in spite of employing a number of hands, Mr. Adam is unable to satisfy the demand for his product. He is a skilled mechanic and good business man, and his honest methods have made friends of all those who have had business transactions with him.

On April 9, 1903, Mr. Adam married Kate R. Williams, daughter of David and Emeline (Wanshop) Williams, of Exeter township.

MRS. MARY ANN McDONOUGH, a well known woman at Reading, Pa., whose twenty-three years' service as matron of the outer depot of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad gave her an unusually large acquaintance, was born near Friedensburg, in Berks county, April 6, 1846, daughter of Jacob and Judis (Luckens) Hassler, a complete biography of whom will be found in this volume in the sketch of Ezra S. Hassler.

In 1866 Mrs. McDonough married Israel B. Rauenzahn, born July 10, 1840, at Pricetown, who was for some years a farmer and later a railroad man. He met his death in an accident Aug. 10, 1877, at Alburtis, Lehigh county, and was buried at Pricetown. He was a son of Gideon and Elizabeth (Brown) Rauenzahn, the latter of whom was a daughter of Daniel and granddaughter of Jacob Brown, who was the ancestor of a large family of Ruscombmanor and the surrounding townships. Christian Rauenzahn, grandfather of Israel, founded the family in Berks county, and was a descendant of Herr von Rauenzahn. The ancestor brought with him to this country a large family Bible, which contains valuable records of this noble family of the German Empire, and which was sold and now is probably in some Philadelphia museum. Mr. and Mrs. Israel B. Rauenzahn had the following children: Annie E. died in infancy; Albert is a steamfitter and plumber of Reading; Hayward lives at Fleetwood; and Israel is resident of Reading.

The second marriage of Mrs. McDonough was to William A. McDonough, in February, 1905. Mr. McDonough is a son of John McDonough, of Ireland, and is an iron worker of Reading. Mrs. McDonough owns the corner residence at No. 1200 Green street, and the dwelling at No. 620 Moss street, Reading, and she and her husband reside at No. 337 South Ninth street.

WILLIAM GRIESHABER, dealer in woolen and cotton rags, metals, gum shoes and scrap rubber, old iron, shirt clips, tailor and shoe clips, doing business at No. 832 Franklin street, Reading, Pa., was born Oct. 31, 1874, at Philadelphia, Pa., son of Christopher and Caroline Grieshaber.

Mr. Grieshaber was educated in the public schools of Reading and after completing his schooling, went to work and soon established himself in his present line of business, in which he has been very successful. He thoroughly understands his business in all its details and has the confidence of the public. A number of the largest paper manufacturers in this county obtain their stock from him and he ships to Massachusetts and other Eastern States. He employs from three to six men who are busy all the time, and occupies convenient quarters. His warehouse is 20x80 ft. in dimensions, three stories, with basement, and he expects to obtain larger quarters shortly.

Mr. Grieshaber is a very active worker in St. Stephen's Reformed Church, and is a member of the Christian Endeavor Society. Fraternally he belongs to the Knights of Malta, the P. O. S. of A., and to the Grand Fraternity.

CONRAD JACOBY, a native of Europe, and the ancestor of a family of upper Berks county, Pa., was born Nov. 30, 1744, and died Aug. 6, 1823, in Windsor township, where he made his home. He was a farmer by occupation. His wife, Anna Magdalena (Kerchner), born Aug. 20, 1757, died Aug. 1, 1822, in her sixty-fifth year. Their married life covered a period of forty-seven years. They are buried in the old graveyard of Zion's Union Church in Perry township, near the stone wall along the street, and their graves are marked by brown sandstone tombstones. The number of their children is not known, but among them were Catharine and Conrad. The daughter, born in 1779, died in 1842. She was the wife of Peter Stitzel (1764-1841), of Windsor township, and they are buried at Zion's Church.

Conrad Jacoby, son of Conrad, born June 24, 1784, died Nov. 15, 1854, aged seventy years, four months, twenty-one days. He married Elizabeth Focht, born Sept. 17, 1784, died June 16, 1862, and to them were born three sons and one daughter, Johann Georg, Daniel, Jeremias (Jeremiah) and Mrs. Joseph Mengel. We have the following record of the three sons:

Johann Georg Jacoby, born in Windsor township Sept. 16, 1807, died March 11, 1850. On Dec. 25, 1832, he married Elizabeth Sonday, and they lived in Windsor township. They are buried at old Zion's Church. Their children were: Mary, who died unmarried at the age of twenty-five years, and Joseph, born June 11, 1843, died Sept. 1, 1906, who married Eliza Grow.

Daniel Jacoby was married three times, first to an Eisenhour, by whom he had two sons, Samuel and Charles (m. Lydia Adam). By his second wife, Rachel (Fegley), he had one son, William, m. to Hettie Lesher, and father of twelve children, one son and eleven daughters, of whom Clara and Alva died young.

Jeremias (Jeremiah) Jacoby was born in Windsor township Jan. 12, 1811, and died Nov. 19, 1855, aged forty-four years, ten months, seven days. He lived in his native township, but is buried with many other members of the family at Zion's Church, in Perry township. His wife, Eva (Hollenbach), born in Windsor March 25, 1811, died Nov. 19, 1871, aged sixty years, seven months, twenty-four days. Five children were born to them, namely: Joseph, John, George, Susan and Ellen.

Eisenhour

Joseph Jacoby, late of Hamburg, Berks county, was born in Windsor township, May 18, 1828, and died at Hamburg June 7, 1902, aged seventy-four years. He was a stone mason. During the Civil war he was a soldier in the Union army. He and wife, Sarah Reeser, were members of St. John's Lutheran Church, and are buried in the cemetery adjoining it in the family plot. Their children, seven in number, were: Wilson; Amanda m. Dr. Cosmus Shomo, of Ashland, Pa.; Adda m. Jacob Bausher, of Hamburg; Sarah Alvesta m. John Brison, of Reading; May Rose, late of Reading, is deceased; Myers lived in Hamburg; and Annie m. Fred Robitzer, a common councilman of the First ward, Reading.

Mrs. Sarah (Reeser) Jacoby was a daughter of John Christian Reeser, of Greenwich township, who was born Nov. 27, 1792, and died on his farm May 16, 1853, aged sixty years, five months, and nineteen days. He married Sara Unger, born Nov. 16, 1794, and died Feb. 24, 1862, aged sixty-seven years, three months, and eight days. They were farming people, and are buried at Lenhartsville. Their children were: Moses, of Allentown; Jacob, a farmer and drover, of Greenwich township; Christian, who lived in Greenwich township; Matilda, m. to Levi Dumn; Sarah, m. to Joseph Jacoby; Mrs. David Hinterleiter; and Mrs. Augustus Hinterleiter, of Allentown, the only one of her father's family still living.

PAUL A. RICK, a well-known young business man of Reading, Pa., who resides at No. 201 Douglass street, was born in 1882, in the city of Reading, son of John and Emma C. (Ammon) Rick.

Hermann Rick, the emigrant ancestor of this family, came to this country in 1712, when twelve years old, and received his education in the pay schools, after leaving which he engaged in a general store business for some time, but later took up agricultural pursuits, which he made his life work.

John George Rick, son of Hermann, was also a farmer, and became a large land owner of Bern township, where he and his wife, Catharine Weiser, were members of the Reformed Church. In politics he was a stanch Whig.

Charles Rick, son of John George, and grandfather of Paul, received his education in the primitive schools, and after completing his studies engaged in a general store business at Centreport and Peacock's Locks. In 1841 he located in Reading, where the rest of his life was spent. He died in 1878, and his wife in 1880, both in the faith of the German Reformed Church. Their children were: Cyrus, for many years cashier of the Farmers' Bank and a member of the firm of Rick Brothers, m. Emma Madeira; John is mentioned below; Charles, a retired citizen of Reading and veteran of the Civil war, who was also a member of the firm of Rick Brothers, m. Emma Pauli; Mary m. Franklin Dundore, of Philadelphia, and had three children: James, formerly a member of Rick Brothers and now proprietor of the Rick Knitting Mills of Reading, m. (first) Ellen Trate and (second) Julia O'Hara; and Ellen m. William A. Arnold.

John Rick, the father of Paul A., was for many years a member of the well-known firm of Rick Brothers, which was established in 1867. He died in 1900, aged sixty-two years. He married Emma C. Ammon, and had three sons and one daughter: George, John, Paul A. and Margaret Julia (who died in September, 1904).

Paul A. Rick attended the public schools of Reading, and was graduated from the Inter-State Commercial College in 1899. He then accepted a position as bookkeeper with the Farmers' National Bank of Reading, and in this connection he has continued to the present time.

In 1902 Mr. Rick married Pearl S. Bingaman, daughter of Thomas and Martha Bingaman, and two children have been born to them: Charlotte A. and John T. Mr. and Mrs. Rick are members of St. Matthew's Lutheran Church. In politics he is a Republican.

GEORGE E. SCHMICK, of Reading, salesman for the Hamburg Broom Works, was born on Port Clinton avenue, Hamburg, March 30, 1881. His boyhood was passed in his native town, and his education was received in the public schools. He graduated from the Hamburg high school in the class of 1901. He then accepted a position as traveling salesman for the Hamburg Broom Works, of which his elder brother, Wilson E. is the proprietor. This position he filled about one year, when he was appointed to a scholarship by Governor William A. Stone, for the Pennsylvania Museum and School of Industrial Art, at Philadelphia, where he took the illustrating course, receiving his first certificate for Industrial Drawing in 1903. He left school in the spring of 1904 to teach drawing to a private class in Reading. In the fall of 1904 he again began traveling for the Hamburg Broom Works, which position he has since filled with great ability. Mr. Schmick travels over Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware and New York City. He is very successful, and has built up a largely increased trade.

On Nov. 24, 1904, Mr. Schmick married Miss Lizzie Edna Mengel, daughter of George and Dinah (Mengel) Mengel, farming people of Port Clinton, Pa. They began housekeeping in Hamburg, where they lived until November, 1905, when they located in Reading, moving into their own comfortable home at No. 326 West Douglass street. Mr. and Mrs. Schmick are consistent and active members of the Windsor Street Methodist Episcopal Church. In politics he is independent. Socially he is a popular member of Camp No. 78, P. O. S. of A., of Hamburg, of which he is past president; of Arcadia Chamber No. 20, Order Knights of Friendship; of Symmetry Lodge, No. 103, I. O. O. F., both of Hamburg; and St. John's Lodge, No. 435, F. & A. M., of Reading, Pennsylvania.

WILLIAM R. JACOBS, proprietor of the Quaker Cafe, at No. 523 Penn street, Reading, was born Nov. 23, 1875, at Knox, Clarion Co., Pa., son of Leary R. Jacobs and grandson of Henry Jacobs.

Henry Jacobs, the grandfather, a native of Germany, came to America when fourteen years old, and for some years resided at Shirleysburg, Huntingdon Co., Pa., at present living retired. He was a farmer during his active years, and still owns a large and valuable farm. He has now (1908) reached the age of seventy-two. Among the ten children born to him and his wife, Elizabeth, were: Roy, Harry, Albert, Leary R., George, Henry, Halbert, James, and Annie (m. William Leightner, of Shirleysburg, Pennsylvania).

Leary R. Jacobs, father of William R. Jacobs, lives at Altoona, Blair Co., Pa., and is there employed by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. He married Nina Wagner, and they have had two children, William R. and Florence.

William R. Jacobs received his education in the public schools of Altoona. His first work was in a broom factory, where he learned all the details of broom-making, being employed there for about seven years. The next year he worked in a grocery store in the same city, and then entered the service of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company as a scale builder, remaining with that company for about fifteen years. In the fall of 1906 he came to Reading, where he became proprietor of the Quaker Cafe, at No. 523 Penn street, buying out William Arthur. Mr. Jacobs has built up a good trade, and is making a success of his establishment. He is well known among the local fraternities, belonging to Juniata Tribe, Improved Order of Red Men; to Mountain City Lodge, No. 824, I. O. O. F., of Altoona, and to Aerie No. 66, Fraternal Order of Eagles, of Reading.

JOSEPH A. KLEMMER, who is engaged in the plumbing business at Reading, and is located at No. 424 West Ninth street, is a native of this city, a son of Justus and Sarah A. (Richards) Klemmer, and a grandson of John Klemmer.

John Klemmer was a farmer in Berks county for a number of years and then retired to Reading where he served in the office of tax collector for a time.

Justus Klemmer, father of Joseph A., was born in 1842. His education was secured in the district schools and he learned the plasterer's trade. This, however, he did not follow long as he went into railroad work, and was in the employ of the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company, as an engineer until his death, June 11, 1893, at the age of fifty-one years. His service with that corporation covered a period of thirty-five years, and he was looked upon with trust and esteem by his superiors. He married Sarah A. Richards, daughter of John and Rebecca (Griesemer) Richards, the former was an employe of the Reading Iron Company's mills for many years. He died at the age of sixty-five, and was survived about two years by his widow. The four survivors of the family are: Samuel, of Pottstown; James of Reading; Mrs. Klemmer, and a daughter in Philadelphia. The children of Mr. and Mrs. Justus Klemmer, were as follows: John, who died aged five years: Annie, who died aged seven years; Carrie, aged two years; Henry, who was accidentally killed at the age of twenty-three years; Rebecca, m. to Edward Laimer, of Reading; George, of Reading; Millie, m. to Charles Reily, of Baltimore, Md ; Agnes, widow of William Weber; Albert, a clerk in the Home Store, Reading; Samuel, who died aged nine months; Sarah, at home; Joseph A. and Francis, twins; and Gertrude, at home.

Joseph A. Klemmer secured a good, common school education and then learned the plumbing business, remaining with E. S. Summons, for a period of four years. Going then to Philadelphia, he worked for a time at his trade in that city. On June 29, 1901, he made a trip to London, England. His visit there was with the idea of perfecting himself in his business, getting a fair idea of the various methods of work done on both sides of the Atlantic. After a stay in England of five months, he returned and subsequently was employed by a number of the largest firms in his line in Philadelphia and Baltimore. With all this experience at his command, Mr. Klemmer then decided to go into business for himself and in December returned to Reading, and Feb. 14, 1904, he opened up a plumbing shop at No. 927 Buttonwood street, removing to his present well-equipped quarters, in May, 1906.

Politically he is a Democrat. He belongs to the Knights of Columbus. He is a valued member of St. Paul's Catholic Church.

MORRIS R. BOYER, proprietor of one of the finest livery stables in Reading, of which he took charge March 1, 1901, is also serving in the position of president of the Liverymen's Protective Association.

Mr. Boyer agitated for several years the movement towards the founding of a protective association for liverymen, but until 1906 he met with many rebuffs. In the year mentioned. however, such an association was formed, Mr. Boyer being elected president. The leading livery men of the city made up the combine which was calculated to protect against cut rates and misuse of credit, and this has proved to be of more benefit than was at first anticipated. Mr. Boyer was the first man in Reading to equip his stables with rubber-tired vehicles, and he has recently added a number of new vehicles, including some of the best makes in the country. He is up-to-date in every respect, being considered the leader in his line in this section, and makes a specialty of weddings, theatre parties, receptions, funerals, etc., a ring on either old or new telephone bringing prompt and courteous attention. It has always been Mr. Boyer's aim and desire to furnish his patrons with the best to be obtained at prices reasonable with the service. He has had charge of these stables since March 1, 1901.

A. CHARLES KOHLER, a well known hotel man of Reading, and one of that city's useful and representative citizens, is now the proprietor of "The Grand," located at the northwest corner of Seventh and Franklin streets. Mr. Kohler was born at Reading, June 7, 1865, son of Bernhard and Theresa (Maurer) Kohler.

Anthony Kohler, grandfather of A. Charles, was a vine gardener in Baden, Kappelrodeck Achern, Germany. To him and his wife whose maiden name was Klump, were born five children, namely: Andrew, Magdalena, Caroline, Bernhard and Theresa.

Bernhard Kohler, father of A. Charles, was born in Baden, Germany, Nov. 11, 1835, and when about eighteen years old he came to America, and for a short time located at Philadelphia, where his maternal uncle Klump resided. He soon, however, came to Berks county, Pa., and here the remainder of his life was spent, his death occuring Dec. 18, 1896. He worked upon the farm in Oley township until his marriage in 1859 to Miss Theresa Maurer, daughter of Fortunatus and Anna (Schorr) Maurer natives of Alsace, France, who came to America in 1847 and located in Oley township, below Friedensburg. Mr. and Mrs. Maurer had nine children, of whom four survive, as follows: Theresa, Mrs. Kohler; Fortunatus and John, of Reading; and Maria, the wife of Francis Gross, of Reading. Bernhard Kohler was drafted for three-years service during the Civil war, but obtained a substitute, whom he paid $310, although at that time money was very scarce. In the fall of 1863 Mr. Kohler came to Reading, and for several years was employed as a laborer by the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad. He then worked for thirty-five years at McIlvain's rolling mill, where he was known affectionately among the employes as "Papa," on account of his many years of service. He was an intelligent, well-versed man, of a quiet, peaceful disposition, and was a dutiful Catholic and consistent attendant of St. Paul's Church. He and his wife had the following children: Franklin, who died in infancy; Anna, m. to Augustus B. Hassler; Charles F., who died in infancy; A. Charles; John, a printer of Reading; Katherine, who is single; Joseph, a printer of Reading; Edward, who died at Porto Rico, while a soldier in Company E, 4th Reg., Pa. V. I.; Augustus, who died aged twenty-three years; and Mary, deceased wife of Augustus Betz, of Reading.

A. Charles Kohler was educated in the parochial school of St. Paul's Catholic Church, and started to work for the Reading Hardware Company in the drilling room, where he continued about two years. As a lad he also worked in a rolling mill at Philadelphia, whither his parents had removed in the '70s, and on coming to Reading he clerked behind the bar for his brother-in-law, A. B. Hassler, whose history appears elsewhere in this volume. Mr. Kohler continued with his brother-in-law for nine years, and at the end of that time accepted a position with John Roth on Penn avenue, above Eighth street, the present site of Leitheiser's, where he continued one and one-half years, subsequently entering the employ of E. B. Slichter, on South Sixth street. For two seasons he rented and conducted successfully the retail oyster department, and the following seven years were spent in the employ of G. W. Lehman, at the "American Hotel," with whom Mr. Kohler was associated in business the next five years, the firm being known as Lehman & Kohler. In January, 1899, Mr. Kohler became proprietor of the "East Reading Hotel," which he conducted for four years, and on Feb. 13, 1904, he took charge of "The Grand," which he has since conducted with much success, this being one of the best hotels in Reading.

Fraternally Mr. Kohler is connected with the Knights of St. John No. 271, Uniformed Rank, and is prominently identified with this commandery. He was a subordinate commander, then became president of the Commandery for four years, was then elected first vice to the Grand Commandery, and one year later was elected to the presidency of the Grand Commandery of the Diocese of Philadelphia, his rank now being that of Brigadier General. He also is a member of the Phœnix American Catholic Union. He and his family are active members of St. Paul's Catholic Church.

In 1889, Mr. Kohler was married to Anna Hassler, daughter of Augustus Hassler, and to this union there have been born five children, as follows: Annie, Clara, George, Ruth and Edward.

EDWIN S. SUMMONS, who has been extensively engaged in the plumbing business in Reading, Pa., for nearly thirty years, is now located at No. 209 North Sixth street. Mr. Summons was born Jan. 9, 1854, in Reading, son of the late Samuel and Sarah (Henry) Summons.

Samuel Summons, who was formerly a prominent farmer of Chester county, came to Berks county in 1835, and followed the trade of carpenter. He was elected on the Democratic ticket of Berks county to the position of county commissioner, and he served the county during 1856-59 in that capacity. He also served as prison inspector for a period covering twelve years. Until its disbanding Mr. Summons was a member of Montgomery Lodge, I. O. O. F. He was a member of the Lutheran Church, in the faith of which he died in 1881, his wife passing away in 1903. Seven children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Summons, only two of whom survive: Miss Mary A., resides at No. 351 North Fifth street, Reading; and Edwin S.

Edwin S. Summons attended the schools of Reading, and when a young man went to learn the plumber's trade, at which he has since engaged. In 1877 he engaged in business for himself on North Fifth street, he coming to his present place of business in 1896. Mr. Summons married Miss Margaret A. Printz, and they have had children as follows: Samuel, Robert, William, C. Raymond, Walter (deceased), Sarah and Edwin. Mr. Summons is a member of Calvary Reformed Church of Reading. In his political views he is a Democrat, but has never sought office. Mr. Summons' residence is at No. 413 Woodward street.

JAMES D. SCHAEFFER, the well known veterinary surgeon, has been a resident of Fleetwood since 1868, and resides in a large brick residence on Main street. Mr. Schaeffer was born Sept. 7, 1835, in Richmond township, near Fleetwood.

George Schaeffer, great-grandfather of James D., was the American ancestor of this family, emigrating from Southern Germany, and in 1759 was a landowner, his tract in Richmond township still being in the possession of the family. It is evident that he made a wise selection as to his location, as the Schaeffer farms are of the best in the county. Mr. Schaeffer reared five children: Elizabeth, m. to John Bieber; Margaret, m. to Dewalt Bieber; Maria, m. to Michael Christman; Peter and Philip.

Philip Schaeffer was an extensive landowner and early settler of Richmond township, where he later presented each of his children with a farm. He married Elizabeth Fetherolf, and they were the parents of these children: George, the father of James D.; Peter; Isaac; Philip; Daniel; Jonathan; William; David; Sally, m. to Joseph DeLong; Elizabeth, m. to Solomon Yoder; Hettie, m. to Frank DeLong; and Annie, m. to Isaac Merkel.

George Schaeffer, was a prosperous farmer of Richmond township, and owned a most fertile tract, consisting of 152 acres, now owned by his grandson, Franklin M. George Schaeffer m. (first) Hettie Merkel, deceased, daughter of Daniel Merkel, and to this union were born: Nathan, Catherine, Elizabeth, Levi and Daniel. He m. (second) Hannah Donmoyer, daughter of Benjamin and Marguerite (Richstein) Donmoyer, of Longswamp township, and these children were born to them: James D.; Hettie, who died at the age of five years; and George D., who served as deputy sheriff of Berks county for fifteen years.

James D. Schaeffer resided on the farm on which he was born until thirty years of age, when he located in Fleetwood. His early education was obtained in the schools of his native place, later attending the Boyertown high school, and in 1855-56 he attended a school of advanced learning at the Trappe, Montgomery county. Upon leaving school he returned to his father's farm, where he worked until his marriage, Dec. 25, 1866, to Miss Emma Schlegel, daughter of Jacob and Esther (Angstadt) Schlegel, of Richmond township, and the children born to this union were: Milton S., a carpenter of Fleetwood; Levi S., a machinist; Katie, m. to Edwin M. Adam, a carpenter of Reading, Pa.; Harriet, m. to Howard H. Boyer, a carpenter of Fleetwood; Miss Maria S., who graduated from the Keystone State Normal School at Kutztown with the class of 1902, and is now teaching the advanced primary school at Southeast Allentown, Pa.; Sallie S., who is single and resides with her parents; and Franklin B., a machinist of Reading.

After marriage James D. Schaeffer located in Fleetwood, and engaged in a butcher business, which he followed for a number of years. Retiring from that business he formed a partnership with Adam B. Schaeffer, under the name of A. B. & J. D. Schaeffer, and for twelve years the firm engaged successfully in dealing in live stock, handling thousands of horses and cattle. The records show that in one year they bought and sold more thon 3,000 horses and cattle. Mr. James D. Schaeffer did the buying for the firm, making many trips for that purpose into Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Iowa and Wisconsin, and shipping them to Fleetwood, where his partner disposed of them. The firm had many customers in Pennsylvania, as well as a large trade in New York. After a thorough preparation, in 1889 Mr. James D. Schaeffer was licensed a Doctor of Veterinary Surgery, and this profession he has followed to the present time.

In political matters Mr. Schaeffer is a stanch Democrat. On numerous occasions he has been honored by his fellow citizens by election to public office, having served the town as school director for two terms, and councilman for a period of ten years. He is well and prominently known in business circles, having been a member and treasurer of the Board of Trade for the past ten years. He and his family attend St. Paul's Reformed Church of Fleetwood, of which Mr. Schaeffer is an official member and stanch supporter. Although past seventy-four years of age, Mr. Schaeffer is still very alert and active; time has touched him lightly. Possessed of a sufficient competency, of many friends, and of a loving family, Mr. Schaeffer, in the sunset of his life, is enjoying the fruit of his early labors. He is a representative man of Fleetwood.

EDWIN S. YOUSE, one of Reading's hustling young business men, who has won a substantial foothold in the commercial world through his own energy, foresight, acumen and fair dealing, is engaged in the automobile business at No. 46 North Fifth street. He was born in Reading in 1875, son of Obadiah Youse.

Mr. Youse was educated in the common schools and early showed a marked liking for business. He was only sixteen years old when he took charge of the Wilhelm Bicycle Company's retail store, and so evident was his ability and his upright principles that in a short time he was given full charge of the company's retail affairs, and he remained with that company until it was merged into the Packer Cycle Company, when he was given charge of the new company's sales department. This responsible position he held seven years greatly to his own credit, and to the entire satisfaction of his employers. At the end of that time he purchased the company's interest, and devoted his attention to the jobbing of bicycles for four years, when he added automobiles to his stock, a line that proved so successful that he sold the bicycle part of his business, and has since 1904 given his undivided attention to automobiles. Of the automobiles of which he is the exclusive agent for Berks, Lebanon, Schuylkill, Lancaster, Dauphin, Perry and Cumberland counties are the Chalmers Detroit and Hudson Cars manufactured by the Chalmers Detroit Motor Company, and Hudson Motor Car Company, of Detroit, Michigan. These cars are especially popular for mountain climbing and rough road use, being constructed light and graceful, yet strong and durable, with many styles, all of which, however, are remarkable for simplicity of construction and attendant economy of fuel. Mr. Youse sold the first automobile in the city, and operated the first garage.

In addition to the automobiles, Mr. Youse carries on a wholesale auto sundry supply business, and employs a salesman who covers the territory from the Atlantic to the Pacific. The specialties handled are known as "The Perfect Brand," and include an air coupling and a drag brake, both of which Mr. Youse manufactures.

Mr. Youse is known as a hustler, and when he started out he had not a dollar to help him, but he has been attentive to business, courteous to customers, and withal has never departed from the path of strict integrity. He has justly won the high place he holds today.

GEORGE KEMP, the well-known proprietor of the "Dewey," Nos. 541-543 Penn street, Reading, Pa., was born in Dukinfield, Cheshire, England, in 1850, son of Nathaniel Kemp. Mr. Kemp was brought to America by his parents, who settled at Yonkers, N. Y., in 1852.

Mr. Kemp was educated in Yonkers and there learned the hatting trade, at which his father had been employed in the old country. At the age of thirteen years, young Kemp ran away from home, and, going to New York City, attempted to enlist on the battleship "Canandaigua." He was prevented, however, on account of his youth, and during the Civil war he sold newspapers. When seventeen years of age he enlisted on the U. S. S. S. "Saratoga," serving part of his apprenticeship in the West Indies, under Lieut. Commander Dewey (now Admiral). He was later transferred to the ship "Contocook" (later changed to "Albany") and served aboard that vessel for twenty-two months, when he was transferred to the "Swatara," and was there promoted to the rank of captain of the main-top by Lieut. Commander McCook, who had been first lieutenant of the "Kearsarge," when that vessel fought its memorable battle with the "Alabama" in 1864, off Cherbourg, France. Mr. Kemp was then transferred to the "Congress" at Samana Bay, and after serving nineteen months on this vessel, he returned home, having received an honorable discharge at the Charlestown Navy Yard, Boston.

Captain Kemp came to Reading in 1881, and for ten years was employed in the Alexander hat factory, and then engaged in the saloon business at No. 229 South Ninth street, where he remained a period of four years, then removing to No. 226 Chestnut street, and after six years at that location came to his present place, No. 541-543 Penn street. Here he has since been engaged very successfully in business.

On Dec. 31, 1873, Captain Kemp was married to Catherine Hope, who died in September, 1879. He married (second), June 13, 1881, Miss Annie M. Dorgan, of Middletown, N. Y. His children are: James, who is employed at the City Hotel, Reading; George, of Reading; and Alice H. and Irene Y., attending high school. Mr. Kemp is a Democrat and a resident of the Seventh ward of the city, where he is considered one of his party's stanchest supporters. He is fraternally connected with Reading Lodge, No. 549, and is past master thereof; Rajah Temple, Mystic Shrine, in which he is captain of the Arab Patrol; and Harrisburg Consistory; is past chief of Reading Castle, No. 49, Golden Eagles; member of the Rainbow Fire Company, and Captain of Keystone Commandery No. 49. While a resident of Yonkers, N. Y., Mr. Kemp was assistant fire chief.

DANIEL MILLER, a well known business man of Reading, who is extensively engaged in stone-cutting and contracting, is a native of Germany, born in Bavaria, Feb. 7, 1857.

Mr. Miller was educated in the schools of his native country and there learned the trade of stone-cutter, which he followed in the Fatherland until 1882, in January of which year he came to the United States. In his native land Mr. Miller had served three years in the army, being a corporal at the time of his discharge. On coming to America he first settled in Newark, N. J., working at his trade there for two years, after which he removed to Stockton, in the same State, continuing there for a like period. At the end of this time he came to Reading, first engaging with Bower & Messimer, and later with Frank Evans. While with the latter gentleman he worked on the postoffice building, and it was he who carved the caps over the main entrance, a very creditable piece of handicraft, for which he received many flattering compliments. In 1889 he formed a partnership with Gottlieb Hersh and August Hess, but two years later Mr. Hersh and Mr. Miller re-formed the firm, the former continuing a partner until his death, in 1895, since which time Mr. Miller has continued alone. In 1885 he built the Girl's high school, one of the handsomest structures in this section of the State, in 1886 the Reading National Bank and the Schuylkill Valley Bank, and in 1884 the church at Ninth and Elm streets, one at Ninth and Greenwich, and one at Hamburg, Pa. He built the Lauer residence, on Third near Chetsnut street, Mercer's residence, a row for Mr. A. H. Kretz, the Baer office building, St. John's Lutheran Church, and the Nolan building. One of the finest pieces of work that Mr. Miller has done is the carving on a mantel in George F. Baer's library. He built the Auditorium in Reading, St. Peter's Catholic Church (this latter being one of the best he has done), worked on the nurses' home for St. Joseph's Hospital, and built the steeple on the church at the corner of Perkiomen avenue and Spruce street. Mr. Miller has the reputation of always living up to the word of his contracts. He is an expert stone-cutter, handling all kinds of stone, such as Hummelstown brown stone, Indiana lime stone, blue flag stone, and all kinds of marble and granite.

In 1885 Mr. Miller was married to Christina Bickley, and to this union four children have been born: Charles, a stone-cutter and machinist; Daniel, Jr.; Catherine, m. to Charles Schauffert; and Helen. Mr. Miller is a member of St. John's Lutheran Church. In politics he is a Democrat. His fraternal connections are with Teutonia Lodge No. 367, F. & A. M.; Reading Lodge No. 115, B. P. O. E.; the Harmonie Maennerchor; several beneficial associations; the Bavarian Society, and the Brotherhood of St. John's Lutheran Church.

THOMAS J. R. FEGLEY, who is successfully conducting a general hardware store at Riverside, was born in Colebrookdale township, Berks county, May 1, 1879, son of John F. Fegley, and grandson of John Fegley, both natives of Montgomery county, Pennsylvania.

John Fegley, the grandfather, was born near Gilbertsville, Montgomery county, Feb. 8, 1797, and died July 17, 1874, aged seventy-seven years, five months and nine days. He was a farmer for the greater part of his active life near Swamp, Montgomery county, and he rests in the cemetery at Sassamansville, at the Union church. He was a Lutheran member of the Swamp Church. He married Mary Fillman, who is buried in the same cemetery. Their children were: Rebecca, m. to Nathan Gilbert; Sophia m. to Frederick Emery; Annie, m. to Rudolph Stettler; Reuben; Josiah, who died in Schuylkill county; and John F.

John F. Fegley, son of John, was born in Douglass township, Montgomery county, April 3, 1834. He obtained a common school education, and in his boyhood learned the blacksmith's trade. This he followed all his life, first at Pennsburg, then at Pottstown with the Pennsylvania railroad, and later with the Pottstown Iron Company. His last employment was with the Colebrookdale Iron Company, at Colebrookdale. After that he came to Reading, and lived with his daughter Mrs. Elmira Coleman. He died March 10, 1905, and is buried in the Fairview cemetery, Boyertown. He was a member of St. John's Lutheran Church at Boyertown, and served as elder and deacon, and he was also a great worker in the Sunday-school. He married Elizabeth Royer, daughter of George and Rebecca (Dotterer). She was born April 2, 1840, and died May 20, 1879, and is buried in Fairview cemetery. The children born to John F. Fegley and wife were: Elmira m. William Coleman, a tinsmith at Reading, and has a daughter Elizabeth, now the wife of William F. Dentzer, Jr.; Benjamin F. died at the age of eighteen years; John H., a traveling salesman for the Bard Hardware Company, is unmarried and residing in Reading; Mary J. m. Fred Yoder, of Friedensburg, Pa., and Thomas J. R.

Thomas J. R. Fegley, who conducts a general hardware business and is rated as one of the successful business men of Riverside, Reading, Pa., received his education in the common schools of Colebrookdale, and in the Boyertown high school. He then became a clerk in the hardware department in J. & H. K. Boyer's general store, where he remained two years, becoming thoroughly acquainted with his particular line, and as well becoming familiar with business principles. In 1896 he went to the Bard Hardware Company, where he remained until in the fall of 1907, and on Dec. 2, 1907, he opened his present store at Riverside. He erected a fine brick building, 20 x 40 feet, two stories high, at No. 1733 Centre avenue, and there he has established a fine trade.

Mr. Fegley is a member of Bohemond Commandery, No. 277, Knights of Malta. He and his family attend Hope Lutheran Church in Reading. In 1901 Mr. Fegley was married to Miss Stella Yerger, daughter of Henry B. and Clara (Brower) Yerger, of Reading. This union has been blessed with one son, John Y. The family home is at No. 1742 North Third Street.

HIESTER ALTHOUSE, a business man and substantial citizen of the city of Reading, who is the proprietor of a restaurant and fruit and cigar store at No. 125 Penn street, is a native of Berks county, born at Mohrsville, Aug. 7, 1867, son of Emanuel and Sarah (Smith) Althouse.

John Althouse, grandfather of Hiester, lived in Centre township, Berks county, where he was engaged in farming. He is buried at Belleman's Church, of which he was an official member. His children were: Emanuel, Isaac, Jacob, Kate (m. James Kercher) and Sarah (m. Cyrus Roth and is deceased).

Emanuel Althouse, son of John, was a farmer and veterinary surgeon at Mohrsville. With the Kauffmans and Fishers of Leesport, he was prospecting in the coal lands of Snyder county, Pa., and lost considerable money. He came to Reading in 1872. He died in 1899 or 1900, and his wife, Sarah Smith, passed away in 1902, aged seventy-four years.

Hiester Althouse was the only child born to his father's last marriage and received his education in the schools of Reading. As a boy he was engaged with his father in a green grocery and dairy business, which after the father's death was carried on by his widow. The business was first located on North Ninth street, but was later removed to North Sixth street, where it was successfully carried on until shortly before her death in 1902, when Mr. Hiester Althouse established himself at No. 125 Penn street. Here he has continued to the present time with increasing success. He carries a fine line of fruits, both domestic and imported, and the most popular tobaccos and cigars.

Mr. Althouse is unmarried. He is a member of several fraternal organizations, and in his political belief is a Democrat.

BENNEWELL HAGY, resident of Reading, who for many years was engaged at the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad Company's shops as boiler-maker. He was born Sept. 21, 1833, in Lancaster Co., Pa., and died in Reading in 1900.

J. Hagy, grandfather of Bennewell, lived near Schoeneck, Lancaster county. To him and his wife Elizabeth were born children as follows: George, Jacob, Henry, David, Samuel and Elizabeth (m. to Bernhard Byerle).

Samuel Hagy, father of Bennewell, was born in 1796 in Lancaster county, and his death occurred in 1851. He married Elizabeth Wildt, and to them were born eleven children, as follows: Sarah, m. to Jacob Barr; Catherine, m. to Isaac Hiester; Harriet m. to G. W. Hantsch; Edward; Adam; Obed; Lydia, who died young; Bennewell; Abraham; Mary, m. to Joseph Masseno; and Benjamin F. In religious belief Mr. Hagy was a Lutheran, while his wife was a member of the Methodist faith.

Bennewell Hagy received his education in the schools of Lancaster county, and in his youth worked on a farm for several years. Locating in Reading, he entered the employ of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad Company, with which concern he was connected the remainder of his life. Mr. Hagy was married (first) to Sarah Eisenbise, and to them were born thirteen children, six of whom are now living; Warren m. Sarah Miller, of Reading; Sadie m. Edward Keen, of Philadelphia; Jennie m. Robert Thompson and resides at Philadelphia; Harriet is a dressmaker at Whitners; Mary m. Cyrus Kissling, of West Catasaqua; and George, of Philadelphia, m. Ella Cressman. After the death of his first wife Mr. Hagy was married (second) to Sally Ann Ebling, born in 1831 in Longswamp township, Berks county, daughter of David and Polly (Taller) Ebling, and widow of David Francis. No children were born to the second union. In religious belief Mr. Hagy was a Methodist, while his widow is a member of the Reformed Church.

CHARLES T. RAAB, the genial proprietor of the "Hotel Exeter," at Reading, was born March 30, 1871, at Tresco, Pa., son of George and Savannah (Hopf) Raab.

George Raab, father of Charles T., is a well-known resident of Reading and carries on a shoemaking business, residing at No. 1256 North Tenth street. He was born July 26, 1836, in Wittenberg, Germany, near Elwangen, and came to America when he was eighteen years of age. In September, 1854, he landed in the city of New York and subsequently traveled through a number of the States of the Union, New York, Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, and then located for a time in Carbon county, Pa. In 1873 he came to Reading and worked for a short time in the rolling mills but has mainly followed shoemaking. He owns his comfortable home. In 1862 he married Savannah Hopf, a daughter of John Hopf, of Saxeweimar, Germany. Mrs. Raab came to America in her tenth year with her widowed mother. John Raab, an older brother of George Raab, was the first of the Raab family to come to America and his son, George J. Raab is a well-known citizen of Reading. The children of George Raab and wife were the following: George, residing in Reading; John, who died aged one year; Mary, m. to John Warner, of Reading; Carrie, m. to Newton Obenheiser, of Reading; Charles T.; Minnie, m. to Edward O'Brien, of Reading; and Joseph, living in Reading.

Charles T. Raab attended school in boyhood near his home, but he was small when he became self-supporting, going to work in a cigar factory in his native place, and after completing his apprenticeship he worked at that trade for twenty years. In 1873 he accompanied his parents to Reading, where the larger part of his life has been spent although he has lived in other places, spending two years at work at his trade in Chicago and one year in New York State. For two years he conducted a restaurant at his present place of business, and started his hotel in the spring of 1908, being one of the two new licensed men in this line in the city. He is also one of the four business men to whom was granted a license in the county. These facts prove how entirely Mr. Raab enjoys the confidence of his fellow citizens. He gives a careful oversight to his hotel, residing in it himself, and continues some features of his restaurant. He is a member of the Marion Fire Company.

In 1896, Mr. Raab was married to Elizabeth Bauer, daughter of Gottleib Bauer.

MILTON S. PALM, who is carrying on an insurance business at No. 38 North Third street, Reading, Pa., was born Jan. 4, 1851, at Sinking Spring, son of Charles and Anna (Bast) Palm, and a descendant of one of this section's early settlers.

Dr. John Palm was born July 25, 1713, son of Mathias and Savilla Palm, in Heilsbronn, near Nuremberg, Germany. In 1739 he took up his residence at Backnang, near Stuttgart, and was married to Christiana Dorothy Kern. He studied medicine and was given a diploma from the Medical College of Physicians and Surgeons of Berlin in 1743. He practised medicine in Germany until 1749, and then began to turn his attention to America, making arrangements to dispose of his property. He set sail July 11, 1750, on the ship "Patience," arriving in New York Saturday morning, Aug. 11, 1750. Locating in a small town known as Springfield, now one of the wards of Elizabeth, N. J., he remained a few years, and then removed with his family to Ephrata, Pa., where he practised medicine for a few years, and in 1761 bought from Conrad Raish 1000 acres of ground, laying out a town known as Palmyra, Lebanon county, then Lancaster county. He practised his profession until May 5, 1777, when he engaged his services to the Colonial Government as surgeon. He was on General Greene's staff, and was prominent at the battle of Brandywine Creek, Sept. 11, 1777, and related quite often how Gen. George Washington came up to his army riding upon a white horse. After the battle of Brandywine he helped remove the wounded to Ephrata in ox carts to the Cloister, where he gave them every attention until December, 1777, and then resumed his practice again in Palmyra. He was married, after being a widower, to Elizabeth Williams, by whom he had no children. He died April 25, 1799, and lies buried at Binnagles Church.

Dr. William Palm, grandson of Dr. John, was a prominent practising physician and surgeon for many years in Sinking Spring and vicinity. He was born at that place Dec. 22, 1789, and there married Elizabeth Hepler. Twelve children were born to this union: Catherine, William, Elizabeth, John, Julian, Isaac, Henrietta, Charles, Franklin, Henry, Susan and Mary Ann the last named being the only member of this family now-living.

Charles Palm, father of Milton S., was born at Sinking Spring, Berks county, and was educated in the schools of the township. When a young man he engaged in the manufacture of proprietary medicine, in which business he became very successful, becoming well known throughout this section of the country. Mr. Palm was married to Anna, daughter of Samuel Bast, of Kutztown, Pa., and two children were born to this union: Susan, who died in 1863; and Milton S., of Reading. In June, 1863, Charles Palm enlisted in Company C, 42nd Pa. V. I., serving therewith until Aug. 11, 1863, and receiving his honorable discharge. He died March 8, 1886, aged sixty-three years, his wife surviving until Feb. 16, 1896, when she passed away, aged eighty years.

Milton S. Palm received his education in the schools of Reading, and when a young man read law with J. S. Richards, passing the examination successfully at the age of nineteen years, but on account of his youth could not be admitted to the Bar. He accepted a position with W. N. Coleman in the insurance business, with the intention of remaining with him until he had reached his majority, and then to gain his admission to the Bar. The insurance business proved so successful, however, that he continued therein with Mr. Coleman until Oct. 11, 1890, and since that time on his own account. He has been very successful in this line, and at the present time represents some of the leading insurance companies in the country.

In 1870 Mr. Milton S. Palm was united in marriage with Rose Engle, and one son, Myron Raymond, has been born to this union, he now being engaged with the Reading Iron Company. Mr. Palm is a member of the Lutheran Church. Mrs. Palm died July 1, 1907.

Mr. Palm is a gentleman of pleasing personality, and is a very brilliant conversationalist, having in stock an endless number of stories and reminiscences, amusing and interesting. The following was related to Mr. Palm in 1873, by Dr. Christian Ritter: "Early in the morning of Oct. 2, 1793, I left Oley township in company with a number of residents on horse-back for Reading. We all dismounted at the corner of Washington and Fifth street, known then as Callowhill and Thomas streets, at 8:30 a. m. We followed back of George Washington and escort across the Schuylkill river, and then by the King's Highway making our first stop with Dr. Peter Palm, Sinking Spring, at 9:30 a. m. The Doctor invited the party in and there in the house a toast was given to President Washington and his escort, all partaking of the 'red-eye' and lime stone water, President Washington sitting at the extreme left of the settee. At the hour of ten they pursued their way to Binckley a few miles further and under the spacious trees they dismounted to see the venerable Binckley. At 10:30 o'clock they galloped their steeds towards the Mid-Way House, now known as Womelsdorf, reaching there at high noon, and took part in a lunch, served at Stouch's Inn. At 2:00 p. m. the party and the General left for Stitestown, now Lebanon, and the Reading and Oley participants returned, after hurrahs and salutes."

EDWARD EGELMAN HAFER, engaged as a photographer at Reading for upward of thirty years, was born in 1843, near Belleman's Church, in Centre township, Berks county, and when a year old his parents removed to near Reading where they resided until 1853. And after the death of the father the family removed to Reading. Edward E. Hafer was given a common school education in the local schools and then placed in the drug store of his uncle, H. W. Bergner, at No. 834 Penn street, where he continued for sixteen years. Having become inclined towards portrait painting in this time, he engaged in painting portraits for two years, and secured a position in the photographic studio of Capt. F. M. Yeager, where he carried on the study of photography in connection with painting. After spending two years, 1872-1874, in this studio, he purchased the business, and has since conducted it in a very successful manner. During this time he has painted portraits on special orders, among the last having been the portrait of "Kuechler at his Roost," for which he was given much praise.

Mr. Hafer was married to Amanda Nagel, daughter of William Nagel, of Pottstown, and they had six children: Minerva (m. Samuel S. Finley, who is conducting a large photographic studio at Chicago, Ill.); Bess Mable; Carl Egelman; and three died in infancy.

His father, Daniel Hafer, was born in 1803 in Alsace township, and brought up on a farm. He then carried on farming in the township named, and in Centre township. He died in 1853. He was married to Charlotte Egelman, daughter of Charles F. Egelman, of Reading, who was recognized as one of the greatest astronomical calculators of the United States in his day. She died in 1886, aged seventy-six years. They had eleven children: Charles (m. Helena Heckman); Mary Etta (m. John Herflicker); John (m. Susan Armpriester); Rosetta (m. Edward Muench); Daniel (m. Susan Dusen); Wilhelmina (m. Jacob Schwalb); Edward Egelman; Anna (m. Charles Fisher); and three died young.

Mr. Hafer's grandfather was John Hafer, a stone mason and farmer who carried on business in Alsace and Exeter townships. He died in 1853. He was married to Gertrude Kline, daugther of Henry Kline, of Alsace township, and they had nine children: George, Daniel, William, Sarah (m. Abraham Wean), John, Matthias, Henry, Anna (m. Samuel Romig) and Levi.

His great-grandfather was Matthias Hafer, who emigrated in 1773, from Alsace, on the borders of the Rhine in Germany, and settled in Alsace township, Berks county, one mile east of Reading, where he carried on farming until his decease. He was married to Julia Schmid, and they had eight children, seven sons and one daughter: John, Matthias, George, Benjamin, Isaac, Daniel, Henry and Maria (m. to Jacob Hill).

CHARLES FREDERICK EGELMAN, the maternal grandfather of Mr. Hafer, was born at Osnabrück, in Hanover, May 12, 1782, and emigrated to this country in 1802, landing at Baltimore. He learned the trade of coach making, and remained there for a time, when he removed to Berks county, Pa. His last piece of work executed there was the body of a coach for Jerome Bonaparte. He was afterward engaged at teaching for a number of years, officiating in this time also as organist for several German Churches in country districts. About 1830 he settled at Reading and assisted in the publication of a German newspaper, entitled Der Readinger Democrat. He was recognized as a man of great scientific attainments, having been particularly accomplished in astronomy. His ability in this branch of learning was utilized for the period of forty-three years in furnishing astronomical calculations for the principal almanacs published in the United States. The study of perpetual motion received his earnest attention for a number of years, he having devised and constructed various machines in his efforts towards accomplishing this object, regarded as impossible. In the matter of copper-plate engraving he was a skilled artist, and executed a number of superior designs, one of them being a view of Reading. He died at Reading, Nov. 30, 1860, aged nearly seventy-nine years. His residence was at the northwest corner of Ninth and Penn streets. He left to survive him seven children: Ferdinand, Edward, Charlotte (m. Daniel Hafer), Julia (m. Henry Hafer), Wilhelmina (m. Solomon Seidel), Catharine (m. John Brissel) and Amelia (m. Dr. H. W. Bergner); and two children, Solomon and Lydia, of a deceased daughter, Henrietta, who had been married to Solomon Seidel.

E. E. Hafer

GEORGE W. WAGNER, former district attorney of Berks county, is the son of William and Catherine Ann (Hollinger) Wagner, and was born July 1, 1861. His great-grandfather, John Wagner, was one of the early residents of Maiden-creek township.

The parents of Judge Wagner having died when he was not yet five years old, he was cared for by a relative until the age of seven years, at which time he became an inmate of Bethany Orphans' Home, Womelsdorf, and continued to reside there until he was thirteen years of age. Afterward he worked on the farm, and attended the public schools during the winter months.

He attended Marion Academy, Stouchsburg, and graduated from that institution in 1879, with first honors. He then taught in the public schools of Lebanon county, and as a student entered the Keystone State Normal School, Kutztown, in March, 1880, where he continued until June, 1881, at which time he graduated with first honors. He afterward taught in the public schools of Orwigsburg, Pa., for two winter terms, at the same time continuing his studies, and preparing for college under private instruction. He entered the junior class of Franklin and Marshall College in 1883, and graduated therefrom in June, 1885. Immediately upon his graduation he was elected as assistant teacher in mathematics at the Keystone State Normal School, Kutztown, and continued to teach there until 1889. In November, 1887, he passed the preliminary examination before the board of examiners of the Berks County Bar, and was registered as a law student in the office of J. H. Marx, Esq., of Kutztown, Pennsylvania.

After leaving the Normal School in 1889 Mr. Wagner came to Reading, and entered the law office of Cyrus G. Derr, Esq., where he continued his studies, and he was admitted to the Berks County Bar in November, 1890. Two years after he was admitted to the Bar he was appointed assistant district attorney of Berks county, which position he held for three years from January, 1892. In 1901 he was elected district attorney of Berks county, and held said office from January, 1902, to January, 1905. He has been admitted to the Superior and Supreme Courts of the State, and the District, Circuit Court and Supreme Court of the United States. In 1909 he was nominated for the office of judge of the Court of Common Pleas. For six years Mr. Wagner was a member of the Reading school board, and for one year its president. He was one of the organizers of the Wernersville National Bank, and is a member of the board of managers of Bethany Orphans' Home, Womelsdorf.

Mr. Wagner is a married man, and has resided with his family in the Fifteenth ward of Reading since 1892.

WILHELM ROSENTHAL, for more than half a century engaged in the publishing business, was born Nov. 20, 1823, at Nordhausen, Prussia, in the Harz mountains. His education was acquired in the gymnasium of his native town, where he completed the course in 1840. He was then for nearly five years employed in the publishing house of Dr. Philip Phoebus, after which for a short time he carried on a similar business for himself. In December, 1846, he crossed the Atlantic on the sailing vessel "Biene," landing at New York in May, 1847. For several months he was engaged in that city in Ludwig's printing office, and then in September of that same year went to Philadelphia, where he carried on a book store. While there in 1848 the Revolution developed in Germany, and Mr. Rosenthal, with other German citizens, organized the "German Workingmen's Association," to awaken proper sympathy for the movement, and win greater freedom for the working people. He was elected the first president of the association, and was re-elected annually for five years. During this time the membership greatly increased, and the association built a large three-story structure, sand-stone front, on Third street, Mr. Rosenthal superintending the building—still known as Mechanics Hall.

In May, 1848, Mr. Rosenthal was employed by Mr. F. W. Thomas to edit a new daily paper at Philadelphia, known as the Free Press, and this position he held until 1855. He then established a German weekly, the Wochenblatt, and continued its publication for three years. He then sold it to Messrs. Hoffman & Morwitz who merged it into their paper, the New World, employing Mr. Rosenthal as the editor. Here he remained until July, 1860, acting also as assistant editor of the Philadelphia Democrat. He then came to Reading to edit the Readinger Adler for Mr. Charles Kessler.

Mr. Rosenthal was an ardent Democrat, as were all the owners of the Adler, so he launched boldly into the arena of the exciting politics of the time, urging the election of Breckenridge with all the eloquence and logic he could command. In the Civil war that followed, Mr. Rosenthal advocated the preservation of the Union while he denounced many of the extreme measures that had brought it about. The Adler was sold in 1864. In that year Mr. Rosenthal was a delegate to the National Democratic Convention, held in Chicago, that nominated Gen. George B. McClellan for the Presidency.

So long had he been in the printing and publishing business that he could not long remain away from it, and he established a German weekly, the Banner von Berks, which he published with constantly increasing success and favor. In 1867 he began the publication of a Sunday edition of this paper, which he named Die Biene (the Bee) after the sailing vessel that had brought him to American soil. In 1868 appeared the Reading Daily Post, a German daily, and this met with his usual success. Mr. Rosenthal was indefatigable in his work, and found great enjoyment in it, retiring only when well past four score years of age. He has been very prominent in the German Order of Harugari, and in 1869 founded a German paper, Die Deutsche Eiche, which has become the official organ of that society throughout the United States.

Mr. Rosenthal has been connected with several building and savings societies, and has assisted in building up and developing the city. In 1884 he erected a row of good cottages on Mineral Spring avenue. In the musical and literary societies of the city he has been an active and interested member, and in every way has proved himself a public-spirited citizen of his adopted land.

CAPT. RICHARD HALL JONES, who in his lifetime was a citizen useful to his town, his State and his country in peace and in war, came of loyal, sturdy pioneer stock, descending from the Swedes whose colony was planted at Philadelphia before William Penn was born.

In a case in the Philadelphia library, on Locust street, is an old volume, "Nya Sverige," by the Rev. John Campanius Holm. It was published at Stockholm in 1702, and contains the first printed account of the colonial settlement of Pennsylvania. The Rev. Mr. Holm was chaplain of the company of Swedish colonists who came over with Capt. John Printz in three ships in 1643, and established a permanent settlement on Tinicum Island.

The King of Sweden, Gustavus Adolphus, sent out these early settlers, and they were provided for spiritually by three missionaries, and the first church was built by the government of their mother country. This was a block house, which stood on the present site of Old Swedes' Church (erected in 1700) at Swanson and Christian streets. These first settlers were accustomed to the use of boats, and were wont to use the water instead of the paths and half-opened Indian trails along the shore. A history of any of the descendants of these pioneers would be incomplete, indeed, without a short sketch of their old house of worship, "the meeting place at Weccacoe," now Gloria Dei or Old Swedes Church. The present edifice, as stated, was erected on the site of the old block house in 1700. Originally its ministers were of the faith of the National Church of Sweden—Lutheran in faith, and Episcopal in government. To the energies of the first pastor, the Rev. Mr. Rudman (or Ruchman) was due the erection of the present building. From 1700 to 1786 ten ministers occupied the pulpit, and then as the Swedish languages and purposes had died out, the congregation elected a minister of the Church of England, and of that faith it has since continued, though of such great length have been the pastorates that the present priest is but the fourth of his faith, and his term of faithful service lacks but one year of four decades. The interior has been remodeled several times, but the quaint hint of former days is seen, and the aisle is inlaid with the tablets of the ten Swedish ministers.

"The footprints of an elder race are here,
And memories of an heroic time
And shadows of the old mysterious faith."

In Philadelphia there is yet to be seen a house that was built by one of the companions of Capt. John Printz's voyage. It stands on the desolate flats west of the Schuylkill, and was built (family tradition says in 1650) by Jonas Nielson, who for some years before building this house dwelt in a cave, the site of which is still preserved in the side of the hill which slopes from the front door of the cottage to what was originally the bank of a navigable creek. Ships from the Delaware brought up merchandise to the front door of the cottage, and the cave, the first home of Jonas Nielson and where he partly reared his eleven children, became a store house for the goods brought up for traffic with the Indians. The old house with its two rooms and garret was hardly larger than a packing box. In the ground floor room there is an immense fire place, now walled up, extending almost the entire width of the room and reaching nearly to the ceiling, which is itself scarcely more than seven feet high. In front of this fireplace George Washington once sat as guest. Sessions of court were held wherever a building was available, and the old Jonas Nielson cottage, today so lonely on the Schuylkill meadow, was one of the earliest places in America where trial by jury was held. A trail that led to the house from the direction of Tinicum Island has appeared on the maps of the city from time out of memory as Jones's Lane. Jonas Nielson is buried at the Old Swedes Church cemetery.

By the custom of the Swedes to change their names to the baptismal name of the father, the progeny of Jonas Nielson became known as Jonasson, and in the next generation that was Anglicized to Jones. This is referred to in an old deed of partition on record at the City Hall, which mentions William Jones as "a grandson of Jonas Nealson, yeoman, late of Kingsessing, the said William Jones, having, agreeable to the Swedish custom, changed his surname from Nealson to Jones."

Mounce Jones, son of Jonas Nielson, moved to Amity township, Berks county, late in the seventeenth century. He built the stone house still standing at the Douglassville bridge, on the old Schuylkill road. It bears the date "1716." Mounce Jones had a son Jonas, who had a son Nicholas, who had a son Samuel, who had a son Ezekiel, the father of the subject of this sketch.

Capt. Richard Hall Jones was born near Douglassville, Berks county, Pa., Aug. 22, 1834, and grew to manhood in his native county. From 1851 to 1870 he was engaged in the manufacture of iron tubing in Reading. He became very prominent during the Civil war. In 1862 after Gen. Banks' retreat, Mr. Jones tendered his services to Governor Curtin, but additional troops were refused by the Secretary of War at that time. When the call for nine months' men was made, Mr. Jones opened a recruiting office in the Ringgold Armory, and Aug. 1, 1862, he had succeeded in enlisting 119 men. Acting under orders, on Aug. 9, 1862, he marched his company to Harrisburg, where he remained in camp until the 17th, when they proceeded to the front in defense of Washington, camping near Hunter's Chapel, Virginia. They were organized as Company I, 128th Pa. V. I., and Mr. Jones became captain of the company. On Sept. 6, 1862, the regiment marched from near Fort Woodbury, opposite Georgetown, D. C., to Rockville, Md., where it was brigaded with the First Division of the Twelfth Army Corps. With this Corps it entered upon a severe campaign in Maryland, and was engaged in the battles of South Mountain and Antietam, after which it occupied Maryland Heights, opposite Harper's Ferry, Sept. 20, 1862, and from that time it remained there until relieved Dec. 11th following. Proceeding at once to Stafford Court House, Va., it entered upon the Rappahannock campaign. Moving from Stafford Court House by way of Kelly's Ford, it reached the line of battle on the right of Chancellor House, April 30, 1863. In the attack that followed, Captain Jones and thirty-five of his men and Companies C and K of the same regiment, were captured, and sent to Libby Prison. Here they suffered all the horrors and privations of that noted pen, and while there their regiment was mustered out by reason of the expiration of the term of service. As soon as he was released Capt. Jones returned to his home at Reading, and resumed the occupations of peace. He became clerk with the Adams Express Company, and remained with that company until he entered the employ of Mr. George W. Hughes, with whom he remained until the latter's death. Capt. Jones then took charge of the business and carried it on with great success until his own death. The firm is now known as Dietrich & Hollenbach. Capt. Jones died Jan. 15, 1899.

Captain Jones was twice married. By his first marriage to Rebecca Miles, he became the father of two children: James Miles, who married Ellen Kinsey Weidner, and has one child, Dorothy M.; and Nathaniel Wilmer, a train despatcher between Tamaqua and Williamsport, who married (first) Hannah Elizabeth Heffner, had one child, Richard A., and married (second) Ella Stryker. For his second wife Captain Jones married Ellen E. Hughes, and to this marriage three children were born: Henrietta Hughes, who married Edward Newton Wigfall, and has one child, E. Newton, Jr.; Henry Harrison, of Springfield, Ill., superintendent of the Electric Heat and Power Company, who married Ellen M. Van Duyn, and has three children, Ellen L. and Catherine E. and Gilbert A. (twins); and Miss Eleanor A. Mc., at home.

Capt. Jones was prominent in fraternal societies. He was a member of Lodge No. 62, F. & A. M., in which he was past master; Excelsior Chapter; Reading Commandery; Rajah Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S.; I. O. O. F.; K. of P.; and the Pennsylvania Commandery of the Loyal Legion of America. Capt. Jones was one of those men to whom duty is a watchword, and he was never found wanting in any relation of life. At his death he had the esteem of all who knew him.

THOMAS C. SEIDLE, of George W. Beard & Co., prominent and successful building contractors at Reading, and chairman of the Republican county committee, was born Jan. 22, 1866, in Birdsboro, Pa., son of William R. and Elizabeth (Care) Seidle.

The forerunners of the Berks county Seidles were three brothers, emigrants from Sweden prior to the war of the Revolution, one of whom became the owner of land in Longswamp township, which he sold later to purchase a tract near Stony Creek, just above the Stony Creek mills in Exeter township, where he erected an iron forge, subsequently becoming one of the pioneer iron-masters of Berks county. He had three sons: Benjamin, Philip and Nicholas, the first named of whom became associated with his father in the forge at Stony Creek, and the latter two removed to where the village of Gibraltar is located, Nicholas afterward building what are known as the Yocum forges in Cumru township, which he operated for some years. These he later sold and removed to Reading, where the remainder of his life was spent in retirement.

William R. Seidle, father of Thomas C., was a native of Robeson township, Berks county. He became an agriculturist and a rolling mill employe. He died from the effects of an accident in July, 1893, in his fifty-sixth year, and his wife Elizabeth Care survived him until 1905, when she died aged seventy-two years. They were the parents of six children, namely: Nicholas; Sarah (m. Henry Johnson); Thomas C.; Harry H.; William and Annie. In religious belief Mr. Seidle was a Lutheran, while his wife belonged to the Methodist Episcopal faith. In politics he was a Republican, and he was very patriotic, enlisting as a soldier in the Civil war in response to President Lincoln's call for 100-day men.

Thomas C. Seidle received his education in the schools of Birdsboro, Pa., and as a boy started to work in the nail factory of the E. & G. Brooke Iron Company, during the summer months and in vacations, while still attending school in the winter months. After graduating from the Birdsboro high school, he taught school for six years, and had intended becoming a lawyer, having read law and passed a preliminary examination. This, however, he gave up, and in 1888 he became assistant chief clerk for L. H. Focht, being appointed chief clerk in 1890, a position he retained until 1894, when he resigned to engage in the publishing business, putting out "Thomas C. Seidle's Photographs of the Most Eminent Modern Statesmen and Politicians of the United States of America." This he continued to do with an office in Washington, D. C., but two years later he sold out his interest to Harry Moyer, to accept a position as bookkeeper with George W. Beard, and this he retained until the incorporation of the firm under the name of George W. Beard & Co., Inc., with George W. Beard, president; Thomas C. Seidle, secretary and treasurer; and Andrew J. Fink, Jr., manager. This was unchanged until 1903, when Mr. Fink and Mr. Seidle purchased Mr. Beard's interest, and they have since carried on the business under the same firm name.

In 1892 Mr. Seidle married Ella V. Conner, a native of Birdsboro, Pa., and to this union has been born one daughter, Marion C., at school. Mr. Seidle is a member of the I. O. O. F., of Birdsboro; the K. G. E.; and the P. O. S. of A. He has been prominent in politics, and is now serving as chairman of the Republican county committee. For six years he served as school director in Birdsboro, and has been delegate to many county conventions. He was elected a delegate to the national convention which met in Chicago in June, 1908, and nominated Judge William H. Taft for President of the United States.

CHARLES DANIEL WERLEY, M. D., one of the leading members of the medical profession in Berks county, located at Topton, where he has also been prominent in public, fraternal and social circles, was born April 10, 1863, in Weisenburg township, Lehigh county, son of Levi and Louisa (Brobst) Werley, and a member of one of that county's oldest and most honored families.

Sebastian Werley, great-great-great-grandfather of Dr. Charles D., was originally of the Rhine country, but before emigrating to America, had settled in France. He made his way to the United States, and settled in the neighborhood of what is now known as Werley's Corner, in Weisenburg township, Lehigh county, and there reared his seven children, who were as follows: John Nicholas (or "Honnickle"), Michael, Catherine (m. a Billman), Dewald, Valentine, Maria (m. a Snyder) and Rosina (m. a Kressley).

John Nicholas Werley, son of Sebastian, was evidently born and reared on the old homestead in Weisenburg township. As far as is known he was a farmer, and made that occupation his life work. He was married and nine children were born to him, as follows: Michael, who died young; Andreas, great-grandfather of Dr. Charles D.; Sebastian; Dewald; Catherine; Maria; Sarah; Rosina and Leah.

Andreas Werley, son of John Nicholas, was also a farmer, and owned a property in Weisenburg township in the vicinity of his grandfather's home (possibly it was the same farm). Andreas Werley married and became the father of the following children: Jacob, Elias, Gideon, John, Jonas, Maria, Sarah and Lydia.

Jacob Werley, son of Andreas and grandfather of Dr. Charles D., was born on the old homestead in 1813, and at the age of twenty years was married to Leah Weiss, of the same neighborhood. Shortly thereafter he moved to a farm near New Smithville, Weisenburg township, where he died aged sixty-seven years. To him and his wife Leah were born: Levi; Penrose; Edwin; Feilena, m. to Benneville Smith; and Julia, m. to Samuel Fritz.

Levi Werley, son of Jacob and Leah, was born in Weisenburg township in 1831. He had learned the trade of blacksmith, and, after following this for some time, turned his attention to farming. He married Louisa Brobst, daughter of Daniel Brobst, and died in 1897, aged sixty-six years, the father of two children: Clinton, who died in infancy; and Charles Daniel.

Charles Daniel Werley was reared in his native locality, where he attended the public schools, later entering the Keystone State Normal School, at Kutztown, from which he was graduated with the class of 1883. During his attendance at the last named institution, he was for two years engaged in school teaching. After graduation he taught four terms in the public schools, and then turned his attention to the study of medicine with Dr. A. C. L. Hottenstein, of Kutztown. In the fall of 1887 he entered Jefferson Medical College, of Philadelphia, where he graduated in 1889, and then engaged in practice at Topton, where he has since been successfully located.

In 1889 Dr. Werley married Mary A. Wallace, of Atchison, Kans., and they have had two children: Raymond Wallace, who died at the age of four years; and Walter William, attending the Keystone State Normal School. Dr. Werley and his family are members of the Lutheran Church. In political matters he is a Republican, has served as State delegate and as member of the State Central Committee, and was a presidential elector in 1904 for Roosevelt and Fairbanks. He is a member of the Topton school board, of which he has been the secretary for the past nineteen years. Fraternally, the Doctor is connected with Huguenot Lodge, No. 377, F. & A. M., at Kutztown; Excelsior Chapter, No. 237, R. A. M.; Reading Commandery, K. T., No. 42; Williamsport Consistory; Rajah Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S., Reading; Washington Camp No. 172, P. O. S. of A., Topton; Orion Castle, No. 501, K. G. E., Topton; Mertztown Council, No. 444, O. of I. A.; and the Royal Arcanum, of Kutztown. Dr. Werley is a director of the Topton National Bank, and of the Topton Building and Loan Association, the Crown Knitting Company, and the T. DeLong Furniture Company, all of which he assisted in organizing. He interested himself very largely in the erection of the Lutheran Orphans' Home, of which he has been the physician, and is an active member of the Berks County Medical Society.

HENRY D. HACKMAN. In naming the representative citizens of Berks county, Pa., whose success in any one line, or a number of lines, entitles them to special attention, we come to Henry D. Hackman, who as an example of a self-made man claims a place of distinction in this record.

Mr. Hackman was born at Womelsdorf, son of Henry and Charlotte Hackman, and was educated in the borough schools. In 1871 he was licensed to teach and followed teaching for a number of years. In 1891 he saw fit to enter the cigar business for himself, made an unusual success of it, and several years afterward erected his present factory. From the start Mr. Hackman's policy has been to manufacture only high grade, hand-made, Havana-filled cigars, and throughout, this standard has been maintained. His brands of "Old Master" and "Lucy Gray" in the five-cent line, and "Bessie Kenton" in the ten-cent line, are known through the length and breadth of the country.

Mr. Hackman has served his town in a number of ways. He was a member of the school board and council for fifteen years, eight of which he was president of council. In 1906 he was instrumental in starting the Y. M. C. A. in Womelsdorf.

Mr. Hackman married Mary Agnes Kaler, daughter of Charles and Mary (Yerger) Kaler, of Lebanon, Pa. To this union five sons were born, viz.: Walter K., H. Bertram, C. Kaler, R. Wright, and W. Huber. Mr. Hackman and his family have many friends.

SAMUEL A. BAER was born Nov. 28, 1846, in Greenwich township, Berks county, in a small one-story log house, two miles west of Kutztown. The parents were poor, and when Samuel was about three years of age, they moved to Albany township, where he attended the public schools of the district. He was but ten years old when his father died, and he worked for four years on the farm of Eli Lutz for board and clothes. At the age of fourteen he was apprenticed to learn the tailor's trade, at which he made satisfactory progress, but he always felt that he ought to be educated, and so at the end of the first year of his apprenticeship he made arrangements through his sister Kittie to attend the Maxatawny Seminary. Here he at once showed marked talent, and through the kind encouragement of Prof. Henry R. Nicks, the principal of the school, he was enabled to fit himself for the teacher's profession. He taught in the public schools of Maxatawny township from 1864 to 1867, when he entered Franklin and Marshall College, from which he graduated in 1869. In 1872 his Alma Mater conferred on him the degree of A. M., and in 1884 Ursinus College conferred on him the degree of Ph. D.

From 1869 to 1872 Prof. Baer was instructor of Latin and History in the Keystone State Normal School. Later he was principal of Oley Academy, and in 1875 was elected county superintendent of the public schools of Berks county, which position he filled for six years with great ability. He was, so to say, to the manner born, and knew the wants of his people. He gave special attention to the language problem, and formulated suggestions along this line that are still followed extensively in his own and other counties of the State. He was a leader in the interests of the Pennsylvania Germans, and in 1875 organized at Womelsdorf the Conrad Weiser Memorial Association. In 1877 he read a report before the Pennsylvania State Teachers' Association on "The Educational Problem among the German Element," which was extensively published and so favorably received by the public that it secured for him membership in the Pennsylvania Historical Society. He was one of the founders of the Pennsylvania German Society, and is the historian of the Baer family in America. He was always prominent at educational meetings, particularly at the meetings of the Pennsylvania State Teachers' Association, and in 1884 was its president.

He was superintendent of the schools of Reading from 1881 to 1884, after which he was appointed assistant state librarian by Gov. Pattison. In September, 1889, he was again elected city superintendent of the schools of Reading, and served with great efficiency until 1896. He was regarded specially strong as an organizer and as an authority in practical common-sense methods. He was a hard worker, and serious, and left an impress for good in the schools that will be felt for years to come.

From 1897 to 1904 he was principal of the Harrisburg high school, and made an enviable reputation for himself and the school, especially for good order and thoroughness. This school was never in a more flourishing condition than during this period. He had the tact to inspire his students and sent annually to college and other higher institutions of learning at least fifty per cent. of its graduates.

Through sickness Prof. Baer was incapacitated for work for several years, but in 1907 he again took up regular school work by accepting the position of instructor in Pedagogics and English in Eastern College, Front Royal, Va. Here he regained his health and worked with his usual zeal, gaining great reputation as an able instructor. In 1908 he was elected President of Graham College, Va., which position he filled very acceptably to all parties. But in August, 1909, he resigned this position and accepted the chair of Psychology and Pedagogics in the State Normal School at Frostburg, Md., where he is happy in his specialty, and doing good work in helping to train the teachers of his adopted State.

In 1872 Prof. Baer was married to Clara Hartman, a graduate of Dickinson Seminary, and a lady of high culture and intelligence. She is the daughter of Joseph Hartman, son of the well-known printer Hartman, of Lebanon. Her mother was Wilhelmina Stoever, a lineal descendant of the Rev. John Casper Stoever, the distinguished Lutheran pioneer minister of Eastern Pennsylvania. Of this union there were born five children as follows: (1) Mary Pauline died in infancy. (2) Stella Margaret, a graduate of the Reading high school, and a teacher in the public schools of Harrisburg, Pa., was married to Fred G. Hamlin, in 1905, and left a widow in 1908. She resides in Harrisburg, Pa. (3) Joseph Augustus graduated from the Reading high school in 1895, and was appointed through a competitive examination to West Point Military Academy in 1896. He graduated in 1900, and was assigned to the 6th Cavalry, U. S. A. He relinquished his furlough to engage in the Boxer war in China, and entered Peking with the relief expedition. After serving two years in the Philippines he was stationed in 1903 at West Point as instructor in mathematics. In the spring of 1907 he was married to Lelia Lee, of Baltimore, and in the fall of the same year was again stationed in the Philippines, on Mindanao Island, where on July 5, 1909, he distinguished himself by shooting the Moro bandit, Jikiri, and three other Moros. (4) Jerome Jefferson died in infancy. (5) Carl Ambrose was born in Florence, S. C., during a temporary residence in that State. He graduated from the Harrisburg high school in 1904, and from Lehigh University in 1908. He is an electrical engineer and lives in Harrisburg.

John Baer, father of Prof. Samuel A., was born in 1801, in Weisenburg township, Lehigh county, but lived during the greater part of his life in Berks county. He was a carpenter by trade. He was married to Katharine Adam, daughter of Henry Adam, of Huguenot descent, and they had children as follows: Solomon, a soldier of the Civil war, who lived and died in Kansas; Sarah, who m. John Smith, and died near Kutztown, in Maxatawny township; Peter, a master mechanic and a soldier of the Civil war, who died in Mercer county, Pa.; Henry, a carpenter by trade, who died in Lawrenceville, Ind.; Nathan, a merchant in Hamburg, Pa., who had a family of ten children, and who died in Wilmington, Del.; Katharine, m. to Henry Williams, and died in Kutztown, Pa.; Joel, a carpenter and millwright by trade, and living in Hamburg, Pa.; John, a carpenter and farmer, who lives in Albany township; Lucy, m. to Harry Weil, and living in Maxatawny township; and Samuel Adam, the subject of this sketch.

John Adam Baer, grandfather of Prof. Samuel A., was born in Weisenburg township, Lehigh county, but in 1812 he sold his Lehigh county farm, and moved to Maxatawny township, Berks county, on what is now known as the Hartman's farm. He was married to Susanna Knerr, a daughter of Abraham Knerr, who was a soldier of the Revolutionary war, and had a brilliant war record. Of this union the following children were born: Jonathan, born in 1796, in Lehigh county, died in 1878, in Greenwich township, Berks county; John, mentioned above; Peter, born in Lehigh county, died near Raisin Center, Mich., leaving many descendants; Eva m. Reubin Schollenberger, of Greenwich township, where she died at a ripe old age; Lydia m. R. Beak, and died at Lockport, N. Y.; Betsy m. Solomon Stoyer, and died in Mercer county, Pa.; Charles, a stone mason and hotel keeper, died near Topton, having raised a large family; Solomon, who lived near Dayton, Ohio, died leaving valuable property; Susanna m. Samuel Smith, had eleven children, and died in Greenwich township; and Polly m. Chas. Harrington, of Lockport, N. Y., where she died leaving three children.

The great-grandfather of Prof. Baer was Jacob Baer, who was born in Weisenburg township, Lehigh county, and was a private in Captain Edelman's Company, 4th Battalion, Northampton County Militia. He had twelve children—six sons and six daughters, and gave to each of his six sons a farm. His sons were as follows: Jacob, John Adam, John, Henry, Peter, and Daniel. Of the daughters, one died young; the others were: Mrs. Jonathan Seiberling, Mrs. Holwig, Mrs. Gockenbach, Mrs. Kistler and Mrs. Hartman.

The great-great-grandfather was Hans (John) Baer, who was the immigrant. Having landed at Philadelphia on Sept. 30, 1743, he remained for several years near Germantown, after which he settled permanently in Weisenburg township, Lehigh county. The old home is now the Kerschner farm, and is located about a mile south of Knerr's store. He had these children: Barbara m. Henry Feather, and lived in Allentown; Jacob is mentioned above; Adam lived west of the old home, and was the progenitor of most of the Lehigh county Baers; and John moved to Windsor township, Berks county, and is the progenitor of Baers of the Northwestern part of Berks county.

SAMUEL K. SPATZ, who passed away at his home in Reading on the morning of March 26, 1909, was a man prominent in fraternal and social circles in the city of Reading. He was the proprietor of the Metropolitan Buffet, situated at No. 904 Penn street, that city.

Valentine Spatz, great-grandfather of Samuel K. Spatz, owned farming land in Bern township, and he was a member of the Bern Union church of the Reformed faith. Both he and his wife were buried there. They had children: Jacob, Valentine and Benjamin, sons, all of whom settled in Bern township; and Betsey and Molly, daughters, who married, respectively, William Weaver and John Schmaltz.

Valentine Spatz, grandfather of Samuel K., was born April 23, 1818, in Bern township, Berks county, and died April 1, 1879, aged sixty years, eleven months and eight days. He was a farmer during all his active years, and owned 145 acres of land in Bern township. He married Elizabeth A. Kauffman, daughter of David Kauffman of Centre township, born Nov. 17, 1815, and died Nov. 14, 1888, aged seventy-two years, eleven months and twenty-seven days. The children of Valentine and Elizabeth A. Spatz were: Cyrus, born June 17, 1841; Jonathan K., Oct. 9, 1842; Levi, Sept. 21, 1844; William, Dec. 26, 1847; Lovina, June 12, 1848; Valentine, June 7, 1849; Susanna, in October, 1850 (died young); Helen Elizabeth, Sept. 23, 1854; Amelia, April 25, 1857; and Benjamin, Aug. 7, 1859.

Jonathan K. Spatz, father of Samuel K., was born in the old family home in Bern township and grew up on his father's farm. In 1867 he began farming for himself, and for thirty-five years he continued to farm in different sections of Berks county. In 1903 he became the proprietor of the "Cacoosing Hotel" in Spring township, which he conducted for one year. For a number of years he was known as a horseman in this section and at various times he owned fine animals. Since 1905 he has resided in Reading. In politics he is a Democrat and when he lived in Maiden-creek township he was school director for three years and frequently was a delegate to county conventions. He is a member of the Castle No. 372, K. G. E., of Hyde Park. With his family he belongs to the Reformed congregation of the Bern Union church. On May 15, 1867, he was married to Sarah Kauffman, born in 1846, daughter of Jacob and Elizabeth (Shartle) Kauffman, of Centre township, and they had three children, namely: Harry, residing in Reading, m. to Mary Kline; Kate, residing in Reading, m. to Calvin Rothenberger; and Samuel K.

Samuel K. Spatz was born Aug. 1, 1879, in Penn township, Berks county, Pa., and was reared on his father's farm. His education was obtained at the schools of Muhlenberg township, Prof. D. B. Brunner's Business College, of Reading, and the Keystone State Normal School, at Kutztown, graduating from the latter institution with the class of 1898. For five subsequent years he taught school in Spring township. In 1900 he entered the Dickinson School of Law, where he was graduated in 1902, and was admitted to the Bar in the same year. He was employed for a time with the Metropolitan Insurance Company, at Temple, and also worked for W. H. Boyd & Co., directory publishers, as solicitor. In 1906 Mr. Spatz opened the Metropolitan Buffet on Penn street, and carried on a successful business there. He was a great enthusiast in athletics, having been manager of the Reading football team, and was Berks County champion of 1906.

Mr. Spatz was associated with many fraternal organizations. He was secretary of the Owls and held membership in the following: Lodge No. 62, F. & A. M., Reading; Reading Lodge of Perfection, 14th degree; Oley Lodge No. 218, I. O. O. F., of Reading; Manangy Tribe, No. 316, I. O. R. M.; Reading Aerie, No. 66, F. O. E.; Sinking Spring Camp, P. O. S. of A.; 1900 Beneficial Association; Friendship Fire Company; and the Twentieth Century Quakers, in which he was a charter member. He was a man who was very popular and he had a host of friends. He was buried at Hinnershitz Church.

BLATT. The Blatt family of Berks county has long been classed among those whose representatives are useful and substantial citizens. At the present time, the brothers, Cornelius F. Blatt, a former director of the poor of Berks county, and an extensive and successful farmer of Marion township, and Darius M. Blatt, of Reading, jury commissioner of Berks county, sons of Abraham G. and Elizabeth (Gerhart) Blatt, are worthily bearing the family name.

Frederick Blatt, the great-grandfather of Cornelius F. and Darius M., was a pioneer farmer of Bern township, owning the large farm which is now the property of Levi Rentschler, and lived in a stone house, which was situated near the present Philadelphia & Reading railroad depot, near Mohrsville. He was a soldier in the Revolutionary war, being a member of Captain Shartle's company, and was a man of adventurous spirit. In 1800, with his son Matthias, he rode on horseback to Reading to vote for Thomas Jefferson for President. On one occasion, while he and his brother were hunting in the Blue Mountains, he entered a cave to secure a number of bear cubs, but the return of the mother bear interrupted him, and the warning cry of his brother who was on the outside enabled him to squeeze past the old bear in the opening of the cave and to escape with his life. He is buried at either Belleman's or St. Michael's Church. Mr. Blatt had these children: Adam, who went to Ohio in either 1836 or 1839, his descendants living in the vicinity of Sandusky; David and John, who were residents of Centre; Matthias; and Jeremiah, of Centre, who had four children—Aaron, Reuben, Caroline (m. Adam Bohn) and Malinda (m. George Snyder).

Matthias Blatt, the grandfather of Cornelius F., was born in Bern township in 1777, and died during the winter of 1859, having been a lifelong farmer of Bern

(now Centre) township, where he owned a property of about 100 acres, now the property of his grandson, John B. Blatt. He was a member of the German Reformed Church, and is buried at Belleman's Church. He married Rosanna Gerhard, a native of Germany, who came to this country with her parents when nine years of age, and they became the parents of the following children: Adam, who had—Adam, Davilla H., Catherine Mary and Harry (who lives in Kansas); John, whose children were—Jacob, Levi (of Dauphin county), John, William (who was killed during the Civil war), Sarah, Maria and Catherine; Polly (Mary), who died unmarried; Rebecca, who m. (first) Nathan Hafer and (second) Daniel Stepp; George, who had an only daughter, Hettie, who is the widow of Adam Koch; Abraham G.; and Elizabeth, who m. Samuel Billman, a prosperous citizen of Stark county, Ohio.

Abraham G. Blatt, father of Cornelius F., was born in Centre township (then Bern) in 1815, and died on his farm in the same township, in March, 1892. He was reared to farming, and when a young man learned the milling trade, which he followed for twenty-five years in Centre and Jefferson townships, the last mill operated by him being the old Miller Mill, above Bernville, which he conducted for five years in addition to farming a 200-acre property. Mr. Blatt was a very robust man, and was never sick a day in his life, with the exception of his last illness, which was of short duration, being caused by a stroke of apoplexy, which he suffered while on a visit to his brother, George, near Robesonia. His brother passed away eight days later, aged eighty-eight years. Abraham G. Blatt was buried at Belleman's Church in Centre township, and George at the Corner Church in North Heidelberg township.

In 1839 Abraham G. Blatt was married to Elizabeth Gerhart, who was born Oct. 17, 1825, and died in December, 1893, daughter of a well-known musician and the composer of a book of hymns long used by the Lutheran and Reformed churches of Berks county. To Mr. and Mrs. Blatt there were born thirteen children, as follows: Cyrus G., of Bernville; Isabella, who married John L. Boltz; Cornelius F.; Catherine, the widow of William Hain, of Williamsport; Joanna, m. to Abner Hain, Jr., of Lower Heidelberg township; Emanuel, deceased, who is buried at St. Michael's Church, Tilden township; Sophia, m. to Samuel Keim, of Reading; Seth, a farmer of Lower Heidelberg township; Darius M.; Wellington, who met his death in a railroad accident at West Leesport; Charles, a farmer of North Heidelberg township; Benjamin, of Reading; and one child that died in infancy.

Cornelius F. Blatt was born in Centre township, Berks county, May 21, 1847, and was reared to farming. In 1882 he began operating the Madeira farm in Heidelberg township on his own account, continuing there for five years. He then became the tenant upon the Reed farm of 200 acres, located in Marion township, which he has opearted since 1887, in connection with a fifty-six acre property adjoining, which he purchased in 1901. He is a progressive, up-to-date agriculturist, and the fine condition of his property bears evidence to his ability in this line. He keeps thirty-five head of cattle and twenty-two horses. Mr. Blatt is prominently known throughout Berks county. He has been active in the ranks of the Democratic party, and on different occasions has held positions of honor and trust. He was first a school director in Heidelberg township, and later held a like position in Tulpehocken township, where, during his term of office, the board established the Rehrersburg high school and in 1889 erected a four-story building, which is a credit to the community. Mr. Blatt is an able exponent of the cause of education, and has rendered valuable services in this line to his county. In 1899 he was elected a director of the poor of Berks county, and while a member of this board displayed ability, sound judgment and honesty of principle. He and his family are members of St. Paul's Reformed Church of Robesonia.

Mr. Blatt was married to Amanda Gruber, who was born in 1848, and died Sept. 29, 1904, aged fifty-six years. To this union there were born four children: James, of Millbach, Lebanon county; Frank, who resides at home and assists his father in farming; Maggie, who also resides at home; and Charles, a farmer of Heidelberg township, who married Maggie Gaul.

Darius M. Blatt was born in Jefferson township, Nov. 4, 1858, and was reared to farming, which he followed until sixteen years of age, at which time he commenced teaching public school, and continued at that profession for fourteen consecutive years. He subsequently became associated with the Reading Eagle as collector, and continued in that capacity for sixteen years, when he took charge of the livery stable attached to the "United States Hotel," Reading, and is also engaged in school teaching. In 1909 he was elected jury commissioner of Berks county, and is a competent and pleasing official. In 1877 he was married to Sallie A. Kleinginni, and they have seven children: Julia; Maud; Dallas M., who has two children, Clara and Dallas; Anna M.; Wilhelmina; Bunting; and Darius L.

GEORGE W. ROMIG, the popular proprietor of the "Continental Hotel," who has been prominent in public matters as select councilman from the Ninth ward of Reading, was born in Bern township, Berks Co., Pa., in 1863, son of Obediah and Caroline (Schofer) Romig, and grandson of Joseph Romig.

Christian Romig, great-grandfather of George W., was a native of Montgomery county, Pa., where he followed agricultural pursuits throughout a long and active life. For about five years he was the manager of the Pine forge, above Pottstown, after that returning to farming. He died in Montgomery county, at the age of seventy-six years. He married Margaret Speidel, a native of Germany, who came to America when a child, landing at New York, and she attained the same age. They were interred in Exeter township, dying but two days apart. They had three children, namely: Joseph, John and Evans.

Joseph Romig was born in Montgomery county, and when a young man learned the blacksmith's trade with Jacob Fritz, following that occupation for a short time, and then buying a farm, in 1822, in Exeter township, a 135-acre tract near the Black Bear. There he remained until his death, a consistent member of the Lutheran Church, and a man highly respected and esteemed by all. He was a Democrat in political sentiment. Joseph Romig married Mary Linderman, daughter of Henry and Margaret (Fritz) Linderman, and she died in Exeter township, at the advanced age of ninety-two years, five months. They had children as follows: Rachel m. Benjamin Hill, and died in 1901; Leah m. Isaac Kerns, and resides in Buffalo, N. Y.; Rebecca died when four years old; Obediah was the father of George W. and Joseph; Beckie and Sallie, twins, died when six months old; Mary m. Henry Gilbert, and lives in Exeter township; Joseph, Jr., lives in West Reading; Sarah m. (first) William Quinter, and (second) Peter Shurr, and lives near the Black Bear; Israel died in 1905.

Obediah Romig was born in Exeter township, Jan. 22, 1823, attended the public schools of Exeter township and remained at home with his father until twenty-nine years of age, when he engaged as fireman on the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad, and continued in the service five years; he spent the next five years carrying on operations on his father's farm. He then removed to Bern township, Berks county, where he conducted two farms, comprising 250 acres, for Adam Althouse, remaining in that vicinity for two years. Then he went to Cumru township, remaining there one year, in 1867 returning to Exeter. He occupied the Deturk farm one year, then purchased the farm of his father Joseph, and there lived seven years. He then located in Reading, taking charge of the old "Rambo House," on Penn street. After two years at this place he removed his family to his Tenth street home, where he lived retired for one year. On Jan. 22, 1873, Mr. Romig took charge of the hotel now conducted by his son, George W., and this he conducted very successfully until April 1, 1889, when the transfer was made. From that date Mr. Romig lived retired until his death.

In 1849 Mr. Romig was married to Caroline Schofer, who was born in Germany, daughter of George Schofer, and came to America in childhood. She died in 1898, and Mr. Romig later made his home with his son George W. To Mr. and Mrs. Romig were born children as follows: Sarah Amanda is unmarried; Franklin died when he was four years old; Joseph engaged in the livery business at the "Continental Hotel," and married Ella Amanda Seidel; George W.; Harry, who married Emma Hart, is clerking for his brother George W. The father was a lifelong Democrat, and served in the council of Reading from the Ninth ward in 1885. In religious belief he was a Lutheran.

George W. Romig received his preliminary education in the common schools of his native place, and later attended school at Reading. His first business occupation was as clerk in a grocery store, a position he held for six years, and he was then employed by his father in the hotel business, at his present place. He continued in his father's employ for five years, until April 1, 1889, when he purchased the business from him, and has since conducted it. The hotel, which contains fifty-nine sleeping rooms and numerous private parlors, is located at Nos. 339-355 North Ninth street, and is one of the most popular hotels in the city.

Mr. Romig was elected a councilman of the city in 1891, on the Democratic ticket, and such is his popularity that he has been re-elected three times since. He has served as president of the council, being the youngest man who has ever served in that capacity, and has been a delegate to numerous conventions in the county. The family are Lutherans. Mr. Romig is connected with Reading Lodge No. 549, F. & A. M.; Excelsior Chapter, No. 237; Reading Commandery No. 42; the Consistory; and Rajah Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S. He is also a member of Reading Aerie, No. 66 (F. O. E.); Mt. Penn Castle, No. 51, K. G. E.; Mt. Penn Commandery, K. G. E.; Camp No. 89, P. O. S. of A.; Lexington Commandery, P. O. S. of A.; Veterans, P. O. S. of A.; Bavarians; Maennerchor; Neversink Fishing Club; Ivy Leaf Association; and 89 Social Union.

On Feb. 13, 1889, Mr. Romig married Caroline Witman, daughter of John and Mary (Kern) Witman, and they have had two children, Florence and George W., Jr.

JOSEPH ROMIG, son of Obediah, was born in Exeter township, Berks county, Sept. 26, 1854, and attended the public schools in Bern and in Cumru townships. He lived on the farm until seventeen years of age, when he came to Reading with his father. His first work was at repairing for the Philadelphia & Reading railroad, and he subsequently learned the butchering business, which he followed for two years. He then engaged in the horse and cattle business, buying and selling, having his stand at Ninth and Buttonwood streets, continuing in this line for twelve years. His next venture was the livery business and this he has carried on to the present, his establishment being the livery of the "Continental Hotel," which hotel is conducted by his brother. He owns from five to ten horses, and also carries on a boarding stable, having one of the most up-to-date establishments in the city, and enjoying a fine patronage in both branches of the business.

Mr. Romig married Ella Amanda Seidel, daughter of Benjamin and Rebecca (Hartman) Seidel, and eight children have been born to them, namely: Warren, a clerk in the Philadelphia & Reading shops, married Bessie Mast, and had a daughter Loraine; Carrie, Bessie, Nora, George W., Gertrude, Harry and Paul reside at home. The family live at No. 543 North Eighth street, Reading. Mr. Romig is a Democrat and in religion is a member of the Lutheran Church. In fraternal connection he is a member of the Knights of the Golden Eagle. He is well known in the city and highly respected.

JAMES A. KUHNS, who is engaged in farming in Hereford township, Berks county, is a native of Whitehall township, Lehigh county, Pa., born May 4, 1861, son of Elias and Hettie (Roth) Kuhns.

Jonathan Kuhns, grandfather of James A., married Judith Lichtenwalner, born April 2, 1801, died Jan. 25, 1876, and both are buried at the Jordan Lutheran cemetery. They were the parents of fourteen children: Polly (1820-1891) m. Jonas Rauch, and had thirteen children: Julian, born June 28, 1823, m., Jan. 19, 1845, Levi Fetterman, a farmer at Vera Cruz, and has nine children: Jonas (1824-1846) was a farmer at Guths Station, and m. Maria Kern, by whom he had six children; Elias; Anna m. Samuel Fegley, deceased; Leon, born April 16, 1832, m. in 1859, Julian Kuntz, and had four children; Simon, born July 11, 1837, was a farmer at Siesholtzville, and had children—Harvey, Cora, Mabel, Ida and Eva; Eliza, born 1835, m. in 1857, John H. Fryman, a merchant at Litzenberg, and has four children; Katie, born 1839, m. in 1867 Alfred Seipel a farmer at Bath, and has eight children; Pharon m. Mary Rothenberger and lives at Frankfort, Ind.; the others died in infancy.

Elias Kuhns, son of Jonathan, was born in Upper Macungie, Lehigh county, Jan. 12, 1829. He attended the old pay schools in his district, and when eighteen years old he learned the shoemaker's trade, following it for a few years. He was long engaged at farming, first in Whitehall township, Lehigh county, then for seventeen years in Hereford township, Berks county, on his father's farm, and later he located in Upper Macungie township, buying his father's farm of 112 acres, and on that he lived until his retirement. He now lives in that same township in a charming private residence. He and his family are members of Jordan Lutheran church. He married (first) Hettie Roth, who died aged thirty-four years. They had three children: Anna M. m. Jacob F. Nuss, a farmer at Vera Cruz; Jane m. Walter Schneck, a hotel keeper at Ringers, Pa.; and James A. Elias Kuhns m. (second) Lydia Taggert, who bore him two children: Orwin E., born Nov. 28, 1868, m. Anna M. Wisser; and Rosa m. Samuel Lorach, a farmer at Macungie.

James A. Kuhns was reared upon a farm, and in 1893 he began for himself in Upper Milford township, Lehigh county, on the old Rothenberger homestead. His next location was the Abraham Hiestand farm near Shimersville, where he lived four years, and then moved to his father's farm, which he cultivated for three years. In the spring of 1901 he located on the Jacob Deysher farm in Hereford township, where he has since continued. This farm consists of 120 acres, and Mr. Kuhns has equipped it with good machinery. He and his family are members of Huff's Church—he belonging to the Lutheran congregation, and his wife to the Reformed. Fraternally he belongs to Camp No. 470, P. O. S. of A., at Siesholtzville; and Vera Cruz Castle, No. 449, K. G. E.

On March 9, 1889, Mr. Kuhns m. Maria Gery, daughter of Ephraim W. and Sallie (Lauer) Gery, of Hereford township, where Mr. Gery was born June 4, 1818 (he now lives with Mrs. Kuhns). Mr. and Mrs. Gery had children as follows: Mary, deceased; twins deceased in infancy; Sarah; Henry; William; Alfred, deceased; Kate; Maria; Frank; and James deceased. Mr. and Mrs. Kuhns have four children: William H., Jennie M., Lloyd F. and Norman J.

GEORGE DE TEMPLE HAAGE, organist of St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church in Reading, Pa., pianist and instructor on the piano and organ, was born July 3, 1875, near Landis Store, Berks Co., Pa., son of George K. and Mary (De Temple) Haage.

George K. Haage, who followed agricultural pursuits until his retirement, died May 3, 1906, in Reading, aged seventy years, while his wife, Mary De Temple, is still living. They had children: Emma, Albert, Rosie, J. Augustus, Ambrose and George D. They were all reared in the faith of the Roman Catholic Church. Mr. Haage was a Democrat in political matters.

George D. Haage received his education in the public schools of Landis Store and Douglassville, his parents removing to the latter place when he was seven years old, and he was fourteen when they came to Reading. His first employment was as a clerk in the grocery store of George Mayers, after which he spent five years in Edward's music store in Reading, at the same time studying piano with Mr. Berg and Carl Moter. He then made a trip to Europe to pursue his musical studies, and remained at the Royal Conservatory of Music in Dresden for three years, then taking private instruction for one year. His instructors in Dresden were Edward Reuss and Percy Sherwood on the piano, and Felix Draescke in theory and composition. He returned to Reading in 1902, and since his return he has devoted his entire attention to teaching and concert work. Prof. Haage is a young man of considerable genius and since the spring of 1903 has been organist at St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church, being one of the first to introduce the Gregorian Chant in this country, and to instruct a male choir therein. He is also director of the Reading Liederkranz, a popular German singing society of forty-five men.

In 1906 Prof. Haage married Theresa Bettig, daughter of Eugene Bettig, of Reading, and on June 8, 1907, their union was blessed with a daughter, Angela. The Professor is a member of the Knights of Columbus, the Catholic Literary and Social Union, the Knights of St. John, the Musical Club of Reading, and the Verband Deutscher Chor-dirigenten von Amerika. His home is at No. 226 South Fifth street.

JEREMIAH R. ROTHERMEL, a representative agriculturist of Perry township, Berks county, who is engaged as rural mail carrier, was born Oct. 3, 1855, in Perry township, son of Daniel S. and Esther (Reber) Rothermel.

The ancestor of the Rothermel family in America was Johannes Rothermel, a native of Germany, who died at sea while on his way to this country. One of his sons, Lawrence, was married in 1746 to a Miss Kuhns, of Windsor township, where he had settled in 1738 as a pioneer. He had two children: Leonard; and Maria, who became the wife of John C. Romig.

Leonard Rothermel, great-grandfather of Jeremiah R., was an extensive farmer of Windsor township, owning over 400 acres of land, one tract being now in the possession of his grandson, Jackson Rothermel. He was the father of the following children: Catherine (m. John Fritz); Daniel; Jacob; John; Elizabeth (m. Henry Long); Lawrence; Maria (m. Joseph Tyson); Peter, and Hannah.

Peter Rothermel, grandfather of Jeremiah R., who lived in Windsor township, was a carpenter and farmer, and for some years made his home in Hamburg, where he followed the former occupation. He died in 1879, aged eighty years. He married Esther Saul, and to them were born children as follows: Jacob, Daniel S., Peter, William, Esther (m. Joseph Seltzer), Susan (m. John Krick), and Mary (m. Joseph Reber).

Daniel S. Rothermel, well-known in Perry township, for many years following his trade of carpenter there, was born Oct. 19, 1831, in Windsor township (now Perry), and died March 22, 1897. He owned an excellent farm of seventy-two acres near Mohrsville, where he engaged in agricultural pursuits from 1872 to 1895. In politics he first was a Democrat, and later a prohibitionist, but he never held office. In religious belief he and his family were members of the Evangelical Lutheran Church, of which he was an elder for many years, dying while in office. Mr. Rothermel married Esther Reber, and to them were born children as follows: Jeremiah R.; Albert, who was drowned at the age of three years; Amos, whose death occurred in his thirteenth year; Annie L., who married Samuel Trump; Caroline, who died in youth; Emmeline, who died at the age of six years; Miss Ella, at home; Ada, who died March 15, 1902, aged thirty-one years; Miss Lizzie, at home; Samuel, who married Lizzie Spatz; Katie, wife of Lafayette Rentschler; Howard, single; and Sallie, who died in infancy.

Jeremiah R. Rothermel was educated in the local schools of his native township, the Hamburg high school and Professor Unger's Academy at Shoemakersville, later attending the Reading Scientific Academy under Prof. D. B. Brunner and the Keystone State Normal School. He began teaching in 1877 at the Meeting-House school in Bern township, where he taught four terms, one term in Centre, fifteen terms in Perry, three terms in Ontelaunee, and had engaged a school in Perry for the twenty-fifth term, but resigned same, after his appointment as mail carrier. He obtained a permanent certificate June 4, 1887, under the superintendency of Prof. D. S. Keck, when Dr. Higbee was state superintendent. He was well and favorably known as an educator throughout Berks county, and one of the most popular teachers of his day. Mr. Rothermel made a journey in 1879 to Clinton county, Iowa, where he worked on a farm, but the following year returned to his native township, and again began teaching. For one year he clerked in the general store of H. S. Fraunfelter, at Mohrsville, Pa., and also engaged in painting during the summer months, while teaching in winter, doing work at Royersford, Montgomery county, and Reading and other towns in Berks county.

Mr. Rothermel now owns a good farm in the northern part of Mohrsville, consisting of fifty acres of excellent land, upon which stands one of the oldest stone houses in this section. While it is old, it is nevertheless in an excellent state of preservation, and may last for 100 years. It was lately repaired and remodelled, and is now a very cozy and comfortable home. The house is surrounded by a beautiful, well-kept lawn, and the barns and outbuildings are in good repair. Mr. Rothermel also owns a large double brick dwelling in Mohrsville, which is tenanted.

On Aug. 1, 1905, Mr. Rothermel was appointed a rural letter carrier on Route No. 1, from Mohrsville, he making daily trips of twenty-six and three-tenths miles through Centre, Penn and Upper Bern townships. He is a Republican in politics and has been a number of times delegate to county conventions. Mr. Rothermel and his family are members of the Evangelical Lutheran Church of Mohrsville, of which he has been a deacon since Easter, 1899, a Sunday-school teacher for many years, superintendent of the Sunday-school for a period, and a member of the Consistory since 1883. He is fraternally connected with Perry Lodge No. 1055, of Shoemakersville, a past grand master; and a member of Welcome Lodge No. 55, Shepherds of Bethlehem, of which he is past commander.

On March 4, 1888, Mr. Rothermel married Mary Kneeream, daughter of Christopher and Christina Kneeream, who emigrated to America from Germany. To this union there have been born the following children: Laura Minnie, born Dec. 27, 1888, died May 26, 1906; Daniel Luther, born July 4, 1892; and Stanley Morris, born Feb. 23, 1898, died May 1st, 1900. Daniel Luther Rothermel is a member of the class of 1909, Perry township high school at Shoemakersville. During his vacation in 1908 he attended Prof. Kerst's National Business College, at Reading, Pa., studying short-hand, book-keeping and typewriting, and intends to complete his course there also in 1909.

LEONARD ISRAEL KAPP, a substantial farmer of Marion township, Berks Co., Pa., who is cultivating an excellent tract of 140 acres of farming land, was born July 10, 1860, in Jackson township, Lebanon Co., Pa., son of Leonard and Maria (Mosser) Kapp.

Leonard Kapp, the great-grandfather of Leonard I., was a son of Michael Kapp, a native of Germany, who emigrated to Heidelberg township, now embraced in Jackson township, Lebanon county, long before 1752, in which year Berks county was organized, that section of land being taken from Lancaster county. Leonard Kapp owned much land in Jackson township, where he died. He had a brother Frederick, who had two sons—George and Andrew.

The grandfather of Leonard I. Kapp, also named Leonard, was born May 24, 1780, in Lebanon county, and died at Reistville, on the old homestead, Sept. 30, 1853, being buried at Christ Lutheran Church at Myerstown. He owned large properties in Jackson township, and was considered a very wealthy man for that day. Mr. Kapp married Anna Yundt, and they had the following children: John, born July 18, 1807; Henry, Dec. 3, 1808; George, Aug. 21, 1810; Catherine, May 10, 1813; Jacob, Nov. 11, 1814; Leah, July 16, 1817; Elizabeth, May 29, 1821; Lydia, Nov. 27, 1823; and Leonard, Feb. 24, 1826.

Leonard Kapp, father of Leonard I., was born Feb. 24, 1826, in Lebanon county, and died Sept. 10, 1882, at the age of fifty-six years, six months, sixteen days, on his farm in Marion township, being buried in the Kapp family lot at Christ Evangelical Lutheran Church. In 1872 Mr. Kapp moved to Marion township, and settled on a farm of 140 acres, four years later purchasing the farm adjoining, which was the property of Jacob Scheetz, who had obtained it from Adam Schuetz, who had originally settled on it in 1723. The southern part of this farm originally belonged to the Balthaser Anspach, as is shown on the Lindenmuth map of early settlers. The property on which Mr. Kapp first settled belonged to one Samuel Scheetz, a brother of Jacob, the latter of whom owned an ox during the latter forties or early fifties, weighing 3425 pounds, the largest animal that Berks countians ever saw. Mr. Scheetz had a special shed in which the ox was kept, and a special wagon was constructed, on which the animal was hauled to Philadelphia, where after exhibiting it for some time, Mr. Scheetz sold it. Admission was charged to view this great beast, and the country people for miles around rode in on horseback to see it. Later it was killed and mounted, and stood on exhibition in Horticultural Hall, at Fairmount Park, Philadelphia. Leonard Kapp was a prosperous farmer and well-known man in his vicinity. He was a Lutheran member of Christ Evangelical Church, in which he was a deacon and elder, and in politics was a Democrat, serving his township as school director for some years. He married Maria Mosser, daughter of John and Sarah (Schuetz) Mosser, and they had these children: Sarah; John L., of Reistville, Lebanon county; Emma, m. to Christ Bucher, of Reistville; Amanda, m. to John Krall, of Reistville; Simon C., an iron worker of No. 521 East Cumberland street, Lebanon; Leonard I.; Maria, who died in infancy; and Annie, m. to Frank Treida, of Mount Aetna, Pennsylvania.

Leonard I. Kapp was born on Israel Day, according to the Almanac, from which he received his middle name. When twelve years of age he removed with his parents to Marion township, where he worked for his father until the latter's death, at which time he was bequeathed the original farm, and his sister Sarah the second farm. Each of these properties consist of 140 acres, and are in a high state of cultivation. Four years after his father's death, Mr. Kapp's farm stock was sold at public vendue, and Mr. Kapp, his sister and mother removed to Stouchsburg, where Mrs. Kapp died Nov. 22, 1906, aged eighty-three years. In the following spring Mr. Kapp and his sister returned to Miss Kapp's farm, and on account of the scarcity of farms in this neighborhood the original homestead was rented.

In politics Mr. Kapp is a Democrat, and he has always been a leader in movements that promise to be of benefit to the community in which he resides. He is a good, practical farmer, and his sister's property, which he cultivates, is one of the fine farms of this section of Marion township. Mr. and Miss Kapp are members of Christ Lutheran (Tulpehocken) Church, where he has been a deacon since 1901. Both are greatly interested in the work of the Sunday-school, of which Mr. Kapp is an official.

GRIFFITH. The Griffiths are an early Welsh family of Pennsylvania. In 1686 and 1698 many Welsh families arrived and settled in the districts of Caernarvon, Brecknock, Robeson and Cumru, in what is now Berks county. Among these was one Hugh Griffith. He had a brother, Ellis Griffith, who was one of the very earliest settlers of what is now Amity township, being one of the signers of the petition for the organization of the township in 1744. In his will, which was probated in 1759, the year of his death, is the following provision: "I bequeath to Cousin Evan Griffith all my land. If, however, he cannot be found, my land shall become the property of brother Hugh Griffith of Robeson township." In 1759 a John Griffith lived in Robeson township, where he was a large tax-payer. By some members of the family it is believed that John was the father of Evan. Michael Griffith, a half-brother of Evan, lived in Chester county; he was a cripple, but was very strong.

Evan Griffith was a well known man in Brecknock township in its early years, coming from Chester county. By occupation he was a pump maker. He sleeps in the cemetery at Allegheny Church, in an unmarked grave. He married Catharine Weiss, and their children were: Samuel, of Robeson township; Mrs. Philip Hummel, of Brecknock; Ann, who married Daniel Brendel; Betzy, who married Henry Trostle; Bevvy, who married Peter Steffy; Sophia, who married Isaac Lewis; John; Cassie, who married John Heddens; William, who died young; Isaac; and Benjamin, who died when he was about thirty years of age, leaving one son and one daughter.

John Griffith, son of Evan, was born Jan. 25, 1792, and died March 13, 1881, in his ninetieth year. He was a farmer in Brecknock township, near Furlows Hotel. In addition to his farming he followed the trade of cooper. For about six years of his life he lived in Mifflin county. His wife was Maria (better known as Polly) Brendel. She was born Feb. 1, 1799, daughter of Abraham Brendel, and she died March 14, 1887, in the eighty-ninth year of her age. To John and Maria Griffith were born children as follows: Cyrus, mentioned below; Catharine, who married Samuel Rathman, a farmer in Brecknock township, and had one son and two daughters; and William, mentioned below.

Isaac Griffith, son of Evan, was born Feb. 5, 1799, and became a prominent man in Brecknock township, where he owned a farm of some sixty acres, now the property of Albert Kachel. For many years he served as supervisor. He died Oct. 11, 1882, in his eighty-fourth year, and was buried at Allegheny Church. He married Catharine Trostle, daughter of Henry Trostle, and became the father of thirteen children, namely: Catharine, Elizabeth, John, Sarah, Cassie, Louisa, Isaac, William, Samuel, Benjamin, Caroline, ———, and one that died in infancy.

Samuel Griffith, son of Isaac and grandson of Evan, was born Nov. 5, 1834, in Brecknock township. He owns an eighty-four acre farm, but is now living retired. He has served his township as school director and assistant assessor. He is a member of the Allegheny Church, where many of the Griffiths lie buried. Mr. Samuel Griffith has been twice married. His first wife was Lydia Eshelman (1839-1870), and his second Elizabeth Zimmerman. His children, all born to the first wife, were: Jeremiah; Sarah A.; Aaron; Jacob E., a teacher and justice of the peace in Brecknock township; and Solomon, who died in 1882, aged twelve years.

Cyrus Griffith, mentioned above as son of John and grandson of Evan, was a cooper by trade, and followed that occupation in Brecknock township many years, being one of the last to work at that trade in his community. He owned a farm of about 100 acres near Knauers, which he rented, and in earlier years this was conducted by his sons. He was born Sept. 21, 1817, in Brecknock, and died Nov. 24, 1903, aged eighty-six years. He was a Reformed member of the Allegheny Church, and was a thoroughly honorable and upright man. While he never rode on a steam car in his life, he traveled as far as the western part of the State, and worked for a time at his trade in the Kishacoquilla Valley, in Mifflin county. He married Catharine Fritz, who was born Jan. 19, 1821, daughter of John Fritz, and died Dec. 6, 1891, in her seventy-first year. Their four children were: Frank, of Mohnton; John, deceased; Sarah, who died in childhood; and Wayne F.

WAYNE F. GRIFFITH, son of Cyrus, and a foremost citizen and well known justice of the peace of Brecknock township, now engaged in dealing in farm implements and fertilizers at Knauers, was born Dec. 8, 1867. His boyhood was passed upon his father's farm, and his early education was obtained in the township schools and in a private school in charge of Henry T. Kachel. He first became engaged in the farm implement business in 1885, when but eighteen years of age, and since then has carried on the business successfully at Knauers. He has patrons within a radius of twelve miles, and he sells from eighty to one hundred tons of fertilizer every year. His honest, open dealings and genial obliging manners have won him a growing list of patrons. He deals in all kinds of farm implements, and has the largest line of farm equipment in the county, also doing a large amount of repair work.

In politics Mr. Griffith is quite influential as a Democrat, and he has been active in party work, his influence always being sought by those anxious for party preferment. When but twenty-two years of age he was elected township clerk, and he was appointed by Governor Robert E. Pattison justice of the peace, and since then has been re-elected three times. At his first election he had every vote that was polled by both parties, something that had never happened before and never has since to any candidate. He is also the committeeman of his party, representing the township on the county committee. In the organization of the new Mohnton National Bank, Mr. Griffith was unanimously elected cashier, a position he still holds. This bank is in successful operation, and the first year made a net profit to the stockholders of fourteen per cent. Mr. Griffith resides in a modern residence at Knauers, which he erected in 1896. It is surrounded by a well-kept terraced lawn, in which may be found many South Carolina poplar trees, and much beautiful shrubbery.

On Nov. 30, 1895, Mr. Griffith was married to Jennie Kachel, daughter of Samuel and Caroline (Griffith) Kachel, farming people of Brecknock. They attend the Allegheny Union Church, in which Mr. Griffith is a member of the Sunday-school and was a teacher for several years.

William Griffith, son of John and brother of Cyrus, was born in Mifflin county March 5, 1831. From his youth up he engaged in farming and after 1860 made his home in Brecknock township, where he owned 105 acres of land. This he cultivated until 1897. Since the spring of 1907 he has lived in Mohnton with his son Hiram. He sold his farm in 1903. Considering his advanced years he is well preserved, and in spite of his long years of activity is still able to take a keen interest in things around him. He married Catharine Marks, born 1836, died 1881, daughter of Joseph and Elizabeth Marks. They were the parents of eleven children, as follows: Elijah, deceased, who married Joanna Hornberger, and had children, Charles, Cora and Maggie; Amanda, who married Nelson Bixler; Maggie, who married Albert Kachel; Augustus M.; Martin, deceased, who married Sallie Gebhart; Hiram M. and Biram, twins; William, who married Emma Krick, and lives at Gouglersville, Pa.; Joseph, who died in infancy; and Dora and Alice, who both died young.

AUGUSTUS M. GRIFFITH, son of William and Catharine, was born in Brecknock township March 16, 1863. He obtained a limited education in the common schools which he left at an early age to work upon the home farm. He remained with his father until he attained his majority, and then for one year drove a team. In 1885 he moved to his father's farm, which he conducted for two years. In 1887 he purchased a sixty-acre farm in Brecknock township, where he farmed for sixteen years. In 1904 he purchased his brother Hiram's bakery at Mohnton, and this he has since successfully conducted. He bakes an excellent quality of bread and pastry, and twenty-five different kinds of cake, for all of which he has a ready market in Mohnton and surrounding districts. In the Reading markets he has stands: No. 196 at Fourth and Penn streets; at Ninth and Buttonwood streets; No. 172, Sixth and Bingaman streets; and No. 60, Tenth and Chestnut streets. He keeps two double teams to supply Mohnton and vicinity. His weekly consumption of flour is estimated at thirty barrels. He has all the latest and best improved machinery. On the evening of May 26, 1905, a fire broke out in a neighboring property, which was communicated by the wind to Mr. Griffith's, and his bakery and dwelling were consumed, entailing a loss of five thousand dollars, only partially insured. He at once rebuilt, and now has a fine home and bakery on Wood street, Mohnton. In politics, like his brothers, he is a Democrat. He and his family attend Allegheny Church, of which they are Lutheran members.

On Jan. 27, 1882, Mr. Griffith married Mary Ann Strunk, daughter of Martin and Kate (Stoner) Strunk, and their children are: Walter, unmarried; Goldie, married to Charles B. High, a school teacher of Shillington, by whom she has a son, Jean; Miss Nora, at home; Stella, married to Harvey Boone; and Tamie, at home.

BIRAM GRIFFITH, proprietor of the "Hotel Griffith," located on the site of the former Mohn's Store postoffice, at Mohnton, Pa., was born in Brecknock township, Berks county, Aug. 5, 1866, son of William and Catharine (Marks) Griffith.

He spent his school days in Brecknock township and worked with his father until eighteen years of age. On Jan. 17, 1887, he came to Mohnton and learned the hatter's trade, which he followed for eleven years, also engaging successfully in horse trading and the livery business, the latter of which he sold in 1904 to his brother Hiram. For a period of three years Mr. Griffith drove the mail between Mohnton and Adamstown, and before the advent of the trolley cars carried passengers. In his youth he had also learned the milling business with Daniel Yelk, with whom he remained one year, although he never engaged in this business on his own account. He built his present hotel in 1904 and received his license in 1905, since which time he has done a large business. His hotel, a three-story structure with twenty-nine rooms, one of the best in Berks county, is well liked by the traveling public, and Mr. Griffith makes a cordial, affable host, being very popular in his community. In his political belief he is a Democrat, and he has served a number of times as delegate to county conventions. He is a member of the Reformed Church of Allegheny, and a liberal contributor toward its support.

Mr. Griffith married Catherine Steffey, daughter of Ephraim, and Elizabeth (Gephard) Steffey, of Brecknock township, Berks county, and to this union were born four children: Katie, who married Harry Whitner, of Mohnton, and has two children; Edith M., who died in infancy; and Edna and Edgar B., attending school.

HIRAM M. GRIFFITH, a substantial business man of Berks county, who is carrying on a flourishing livery business at Mohnton, Cumru township, was born Aug. 5, 1866, in Brecknock township, Berks county.

He attended the schools of his native township, and when a young man learned cigar-making with James and Samuel Prutzman, of Adamstown, Pa., following this occupation for four years. He then learned the hatter's trade with George Hendel, and followed same for four years, after which he engaged in the baking business at which he was employed from 1893 until 1904, when he sold out to his brother Augustus. He then engaged in the livery business, having bought out his brother, Biram. The stable is located at Wood and and Wyomissing avenues, and he has from fifteen to twenty horses, enjoying a large and profitable business. He is a Democrat in politics, and is connected fraternally with the P. O. S. of A., Camp No. 211. His religious connection is with the Salem Evangelical Association of Mohnton.

Mr. Griffith was united in marriage to Mary Mosser, the estimable daughter of Nicholas and Sallie (Grill) Mosser, and to this union were born two children, both daughters, Gertrude (who died in infancy) and Marjorie E. Mr. and Mrs. Griffith are well known in Mohnton, and enjoys the friendship and esteem of a large acquaintanceship.

SAMUEL DIEHL DIBERT, who has been engaged in the manufacture of cigars at Reading since 1885, was born Feb. 21, 1855, on a farm in Bedford county, Pa., and while a small boy his parents removed to Bedford. He attended the local schools until he was sixteen years old and then became a clerk in the general store of G. R. Oster & Co., where he continued until 1875, when he went to Reading and entered the cigar factory of Hantsch & Crouse (the junior partner having been his brother-in-law) for the purpose of learning the business. After serving as a clerk for several years he filled the position of traveling salesman until 1883 when he became one of the firm of Dibert Brothers & Co., which established a factory at New York City, and carried on business for two years. The factory was then transferred to Reading and located in the Earl Building at the northwest corner of Fifth and Penn streets. In 1898 Mr. Dibert became the sole owner of the business, and he has carried on the manufacture of cigars in a most successful manner to the present time, shipping his product to all parts of the United States. Since 1893 his plant has been established at Washington and Thorn streets.

Mr. Dibert was made a Freemason in Bedford Lodge in 1880 and in 1890 his membership was transferred to Lodge No. 62, of Reading. He is also a member of Excelsior Chapter and Reading Commandery. He was advanced to the 32° in the Philadelphia Consistory in 1894. Since 1906 he has served as one of the trustees of the Masonic Temple on North Fifth street, Reading.

Mr. Dibert has been an active member of the Board of Trade since 1889. In appreciation of his active services he was placed on various important committees, and it was upon his motion that a general committee was appointed in 1897 to make the necessary arrangements for the proper celebration of the "Sesqui-Centennial of Reading" in June, 1898. When the celebration took place he was the president of the Board of Trade and much of the success of the celebration was due to his persevering energy and official courtesies. From this time he has shown much practical interest in local affairs, more especially of a financial or of an industrial character, serving as a director in the management of different corporations.

In 1891 Mr. Dibert was married to Elizabeth G., daughter of Abraham Peters and Celestia Boyer, his wife, of Jonestown, Pa., and they have two daughters, Blanche E. and Ruth C.

His father, William Dibert, was born in Bedford county in 1827, and brought up as a farmer. He followed farming for twenty years, and then removed to Bedford to engage in the hotel business which he carried on successfully for ten years, in connection with a line of stages between Bedford and Cumberland, Md. In 1900 he removed to Reading, and since then has been living in retirement. He was married to Elizabeth Diehl, daughter of Jonathan Diehl, farmer of Bedford county, by whom he had four children: Sadie (m. Daniel W. Crouse, for many years engaged in manufacturing cigars at Reading); Henry S. (m. Ella G. Newman); Samuel D.; and Jonathan (died in infancy). His wife died in 1904, aged seventy-five years.

His grandfather was Thomas Dibert, also a farmer of Bedford county. He married Elizabeth Robb.

His great-grandfather was Charles Dibert (m. to Mary Wisegarber) who migrated from Virginia to Pennsylvania and became one of the earliest settlers of Bedford county.

LEWIS F. ROHRBACH, a well known school teacher residing in Pike township, Berks county, was born in that township Feb. 2, 1875, son of Lewis Y. and Mary (Frey) Rohrbach.

The first Rohrbach of whom there is definite record in America was John George, who was twice married. By his first marriage he had a son Lawrence. To him and his second wife, Christiana Moser, were born five children: George, John, Simon, Eva and Christiana. Of these Simon is said to have moved to Catawissa; George to have gone West; Eva m. Jacob Finkbohner, and after her death he m. her sister Christiana. Those of the name now living in Berks county are descendants of Lawrence and John.

Lawrence Rohrbach owned a farm in District township, which after his death became the property of his son Daniel. Daniel's two sons, William and Samuel succeeded to the ownership, and since 1873 it has been the property of William F., son of another Daniel. The farm consists of 120 acres, and the present buildings were erected by Daniel, son of Lawrence. In 1790 Lawrence and John are recorded as heads of families in East District township.

Lawrence Rohrbach had five sons, namely: Daniel, George (who had eight children), Christopher (or Stophel) (who had eleven children), Jacob and Henry.

Daniel Rohrbach, son of Lawrence, became the father of nine children: Benjamin, Daniel, William, Ephraim, Amos, Augustus, Samuel, Hettie and Kate.

Benjamin Rohrbach, son of Daniel, lived in District township. He married and among his children was a son Lewis Y.

Lewis Y. Rohrbach, son of Benjamin, was born on the Rohrbach homestead in District township, July 6, 1835, and died March 11, 1898. Early in life he learned the blacksmith's trade, and followed it about twenty years, after which he began farming on the homestead, a tract of 155 acres, and continued there until his death. He was a Democrat in politics, and served as township auditor, and as school director, and was a highly respected citizen. He and his family were members of Hill Church, of which he was deacon and elder. He married Mary Frey, of Pike township, daughter of Jacob and Anna (Bechtel) Frey. She was born July 5, 1838, and died Feb. 24, 1906, and both she and her husband are buried at Hill Church. Their children were: James, a farmer in Pike township; Benjamin, who lives with his brother Greeley; Sarah, m. to Ellis Weidner, of Friedensburg; Jacob, a farmer in Pike township; Greeley, a farmer living on the homestead in Pike township; Lewis F.; John F., who resides in Reading; and Jairus, Caster and Mary Ann, who all three died young.

Lewis F. Rohrbach obtained his early intellectual training in the public schools of Pike township, and at the Oley Academy. Later, in the spring of 1893, he entered the Normal school at Kutztown, and from that institution he was graduated with the class of 1898. Mr. Rohrbach began teaching in Pike township in the fall of 1893, at Heilig's school, where he taught two successive terms. He taught the school terms of 1895 and 1896 at Hill Church, and the following year he remained at Kutztown, completing his term. After his graduation he taught Yoder's school in his home township two terms, and then he taught Lobachs school two and one-half months when his health failed and he has not fully recovered to this time. His two lower limbs became paralyzed, due the doctor claimed to gelsemium. Mr. Rohrbach recovered sufficiently to enable him to teach school again, beginning in the fall of 1902, and he has taught every term since. He is an esteemed and successful teacher of his district. He has a fine working library on pedagogy.

Mr. Rohrbach was married Jan. 23, 1897, to Miss Rachel R. Bechtel, daughter of James D. and Emma (Reichert) Bechtel, the former a substantial citizen of Pike township. To this union have been born three sons, namely: Jonathan B., Morris B., and Claud B. Mr. and Mrs. Rohrbach are Lutheran members of Hill Church, and since 1908 he has been Superintendent of Lobachsville Sunday-school. Mr. Rohrbach is a Democrat, and served the township as tax collector three years, and in different ways has rendered his community efficient service. The family live near Pikeville on their own fifty-five-acre farm, a tract of good land.

John Rohrbach, son of the emigrant ancestor, John George, lived on the farm of 130 acres in District township, now owned by one David Rohrbach, a farmer. The present owner David obtained it from his father John, who had it from his father George, son of John, son of the emigrant, John George. The two original Rohrbach farms have never been out of the family name. John Rohrbach, son of John George, was born July 14, 1747. He married Gertrude Gaiker, and they had six children, as follows: (1) John, born in 1776, owned the farm in District township, now owned by Peter Smith. He m. a Kieffer, and had four children: George, John, Mrs. Jacob Gerhart and Lizzie (m. to Peter Smith). (2) Samuel, born in 1778, lived in Longswamp township. He was very rich and carried his gold and silver in a bushel basket. He m. a Miss Kieffer, and had seven children: George, Judith (m. Charles Fox), Mrs. John Romich, Mrs. Benjamin De Long, Mrs. William Bush, Mrs. Ganby, Mrs. Aaron Waremkessel. (3) George, born in 1782, was a blacksmith and owned the homestead. He married Kate, daughter of Jacob Bittenbender, and they had children Catharine (m. John Huff), Polly (m. John Bechtel), Susanna (m. Israel Moyer), George and John. (4) Daniel. (5) William, born 1786, lived on a small farm in District township. He married and had one daughter Hettie (Esther), m. to John Pauli. (6) Solomon, born in 1788, was a farmer in Longswamp township. He had four children: Horatio, Sallie (died unmarried), Harriet (m. Isaiah Reichart) and Mrs. George Frederick.

Daniel Rohrbach, son of John, was born in 1784. He was a blacksmith by trade, and lived on a farm adjoining the homestead. He married Catharine (Kate) Smith, and they are both buried at Huff's Church, of which they were Lutheran members. Their children were: Daniel, Sallie, Judith, Anna, Lydia and Kate.

Daniel Rohrbach, son of Daniel, was born in District township. He was a successful farmer, and owned a 106-acre farm, which included Solomon Rohrbach's farm of some fifty acres. He was a Democrat, as are the members of the family generally. He married Matilda Fox, born in Rockland township, daughter of Ernst Fox. Both Mr. and Mrs. Rohrbach are buried at Huff's Church of which they were Lutheran members. Their children were: Benneville, who received the homestead; William F.; Daniel F.; and Susanna, m. to Joseph Schweyer.

William F. Rohrbach, son of Daniel, was born in District township, Oct. 14, 1847. He received his education in the old pay schools, his tuition being three and a half cents per day, but some of this he earned by building the fire. He attended until he was fifteen or sixteen years old. His early training had been to farming, and at the age of twenty-four he began on his grandfather Daniel's farm, remaining one year. He then bought the Lawrence Rohrbach farm of 120 acres from William and Samuel Rohrbach, paying $7,200. This he farmed six years, and still owns it. He had a tenant on it for twenty years, one Charles Meck, who cleared $7,000, and then bought his own farm. In 1876 Mr. Rohrbach moved to the farm in Forge Dale, Washington township, where he now lives, containing thirty acres, and this he cultivates for exercise. He owns a farm of seventy acres in Hereford township, which he rents. He had a fifty-acre tract in District, but this he sold in 1905. Mr. Rohrbach and Charles Y. Renninger, a brother-in-law, have a farm of 133 acres in partnership in Earl township, valued at $9,500.

Mr. Rohrbach is one of the heavy tax payers of the district. He is a Democrat, and has been school director of Washington township since 1901. He takes great interest in the cause of education. He and family are members of Huffs Church, and he has been an elder for some years. He was married in 1869 to Amanda Renninger, daughter of Charles Y. Renninger, of Montgomery county. They have two children: (1) Prof. David R., a graduate in the class of 1897, Kutztown Normal school, is also a graduate of the Scientific College and attended Lafayette College, and University of Pennsylvania. He taught public school in Berks county four years, and since 1905 has been principal of the public schools of Williamstown, N. J. He m. Alice Johnson, of Elmer, N. J., and has a daughter, Nora. (2) Miss Alice, a graduate of the Kutztown Normal school, class of 1901, has taught at Reber's school-house in Washington township for seven terms.

Daniel F. Rohrbach, son of Daniel and brother of William F., was born in District township, Jan. 20, 1858, and is a farmer in Forge Dale, Washington township. He attended the public school in District township till he was seventeen years old, and was reared upon the farm, working for his parents until he was twenty years old. He then began farming a fifty-eight acre tract in District township, which he obtained from his father, and remained there twenty-seven years. In the spring of 1907, he moved upon his 117-acre farm in Washington township, where he now lives. This was the Rush farm for ninety years, and has good buildings, all in good condition.

In politics Mr. Rohrbach is a Democrat, and was school director of District township three years. He and his family are Lutheran members of Huffs Church, of which they are regular attendants. He was married in 1880 to Massie Ann Rohrbach, daughter of Aaron and Maria (Seisholtz) Rohrbach, and granddaughter of George Rohrbach, of Longswamp township where her father now lives. Their children were Aaron H., a school teacher of Washington township; George and Samuel, who both died young; Mary Ann; Corinda Ann; Hettie; Clinton E.; Lizzie V.; Daniel L.; and Maria Anna.

EDWARD SCHULDT, only surviving son of Frederick Schuldt, was born in Reading March 18, 1860. After completing the course offered in the public schools of Reading he entered the Eastman Business College, at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and was graduated there in 1883. Returning to Reading, he took charge for a time of his father's real estate interests, but in 1885 became interested in veterinary science and entered Dr. Cleaver's office for a year's preliminary reading on that subject. He then went to Toronto, Canada, and entering Smith's Veterinary College completed the course there, after which he took another course in Detroit, Mich., in veterinary dentistry. He then came back to Reading and practised for a time with Dr. Cleaver, but later went to New York City for a few years. In 1885 he returned home to take charge of his father's affairs until the latter's death, and after that event gave up his profession, finding that his personal interests demanded his whole time and attention.

On April 22, 1885, Mr. Schuldt married Miss Christina Barth, of New York State, and four children were born to them, viz.: Frederick, who died at Poughkeepsie, N. Y.; Lula; Edna and Elizabeth. Mr. Shuldt belongs to the Lutheran Church.

Frederick Schuldt, his father, passed his earlier years in Hesse-Darmstadt, Germany, where he was born in 1816, and where he remained till he was thirty-two years of age. On arriving in America, in 1848, he located first in New York City, and took a position in a hotel, as clerk, being an expert in that line as well as in the detection of counterfeit coins. From New York he went to Philadelphia, where he was similarly engaged for several years in the employ of Mr. Fulmer. In 1858, the date of his coming to Reading, he took up an entirely new line, and began as a cooper, making barrels for the Reading distillery. He continued thus until a terrific flood swept away his entire plant, stock and tools. Mr. Schuldt was left with only five dollars as his worldly capital and even that he shared with his partner.

Thus forced to begin the world again, Mr. Schuldt entered upon the long and varied business career which was eventually to make him so well known among Reading's substantial citizens. He first sought employment with the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad Company and helped to lay the rails for a branch road at Port Clinton, after which he was for a time one of a wrecking crew under Mr. Jackson. Returning to Reading he was employed in the manufacture of iron coal cars for a time, but before long secured a place as brewmaster at the Lauer brewery. Subsequently he was similarly engaged with Mr. Flotto and with Nicholas Felix. By 1865 he had accumulated sufficient capital to start in business for himself once more, and opened a cream beer brewery on Ninth street, below Franklin. From this period his interests multiplied and his financial progress became rapid. For three years he carried on a hotel at Ninth and Penn streets, then, in association with Moses K. Graeff and Mr. Schmeck, built the first malt house in Reading. His interest in this he sold out to Mr. Graeff, and going into the real estate business he built sixteen houses, all located in the Third ward. He was also interested in the Gas Company and later put up an independent malt house, which he operated from 1876 to 1883. Selling this in the latter year to Hagey & Pott, Mr. Schuldt closed out his active interests and retired, living quietly in Reading from that time till his death, in April, 1894, at the age of seventy-eight.

According to his means Mr. Schuldt was ever ready to support any really good cause, while private benefactions were unknown and unnumbered. He was naturalized as soon as possible after settling here, and was ever after a loyal supporter of the Democratic party, but was no office seeker. In religion he was a Lutheran. He married Louisa Witman, who died in 1893. They were the parents of four children, namely: Frederick, deceased; Agnes, m. to Albert Woomer; Frederick (2), deceased; and Edward.

ADAM HARTMAN, a successful young business man of Reading, Pa., and one of the members of the firm known as the Reading Cement & Paving Company, was born in Hessen-Darmstadt, Germany, in 1871, son of Jacob Hartman, also a native of that country.

Jacob Hartman was a miller in Germany, an occupation which he had followed all of his life. In 1878 he came to America and landed at New York, whence, however, he returned to his native country with his family. In 1889 Mr. Hartman again came to America, and now resides with his son, Adam, in Reading. Mrs. Hartman, whose maiden name was Mary Ennig, also resides with her son.

Adam Hartman came to America with his parents when but seven years of age and for a time attended the public schools of this country. He returned to Germany with his father and mother, but when eighteen years old again came to America and located in Reading, being first employed in the Conrad Kessler hat factory, where he remained three years. At the end of this time Mr. Hartman connected himself with the Reading Hardware Company, and after leaving that firm he was engaged for three years at the plant of Orr & Sembower. Mr. Hartman next engaged in the cement business, working for other firms until 1899, when with Samuel Howerter, he engaged in business under the firm name of the Reading Cement & Paving Company, with offices at No. 917 Locust street, Reading. The business has been a successful one from the start, the partners being energetic, enterprising men, and they now employ, even in the dull season, from six to ten hands, while during the busy season they require as many as twenty-seven skilled laborers. The Reading Cement & Paving Company is well known for its high class of work, and the firm has been noted for living up to the terms of its contracts.

Mr. Hartman married Elvina Moser, daughter of Albert Moser, of Reading, and they have had six children: Ella, Daniel, Annie, Maria, Charles and Catharine. Mr. Hartman with his family and parents resided at No. 1103 Chestnut street, until March, 1907, when they purchased a stone-front residence at No. 917 North Twelfth street, where they now live.

FREDERICK GARTMANN (deceased) was a respected resident of Reading for many years. He was born at Marlbergen, Osnabruck, Hanover, Germany, June 10, 1828, son of John Wilhelm and Maria Margaretha (Finkle) Gartmann. The father was a paper manufacturer by trade. His children bore names as follows: Elizabeth, Emma, Frederick, Frantz, George, Heinrich and Anna.

Frederick Gartmann attended the German schools until he was fourteen years old, after which he worked in the coal mines until he was twenty-eight. He then came to America, landing at Baltimore, Oct. 29, 1856, after a voyage of five weeks and two days. The lady who was then betrothed to Mr. Gartmann and who afterward became his wife, crossed the ocean on the same steamer. The travelers went from Baltimore by railroad to Altoona, Pa., and from there to Pittsburg, where they had friends and where they remained for six weeks, in the meantime communicating with two uncles of Mrs. Gartmann. One was named Francis Minkhaus, who lived at Saint Marys, Elk county, Pa., and the other, Frank Fagler, of Reading. After some delay they came to Reading, where Mr. Gartmann followed laboring, and Mrs. Gartmann hired out to William Krauss, who lived at Fifth and Chestnut streets, Reading.

On April 21, 1857, Mr. Gartmann was married to Gertrude Lutman, by Rev. Father Kuntzer, of St. Peter's Catholic Church. She was born in Germany, Aug. 15, 1834, daughter of Frederick and Catherine (Minkhaus) Lutman. To Mr. and Mrs. Gartmann were born the following children: John L., who follows the tinsmith business at Reading; Louisa A.; Mary m. James Reedy, of Reading; Rosa S.; Frank F. is a tinsmith; George and Josephine, the latter of whom is deceased.

Mr. Gartmann was always an industrious man, and he worked at Mellert's foundry and then at Lauer's brewery for a time, and then was employed for ten years at Bushong's furnace. His last work was done at the Deppen Brewing Company's establishment. He was a member of the St. Paul's Catholic Church and the Holy Cross Society. He died April 26, 1882, and is buried in the Catholic cemetery. His widow resides at No. 764 North Sixth street, Reading, where she successfully conducts a grocery, owning her own property.

JAMES MATZ, contractor and builder, No. 1273 Cotton street, Reading, was born Sept. 26, 1855, in Cumru township, Berks county, son of Gabriel and Elizabeth (Wobensmith) Matz.

His grandfather, Jacob Matz, was also a native of Berks county. He and his wife had the following children: Jacob, John, Isaac, David, Gabriel, Reuben, and several daughters. In politics he was a Democrat. The family belonged mostly to the Reformed Church.

Gabriel Matz was a carpenter by trade, and from 1861 until his death in May, 1889, he was engaged in contracting in Reading. He was a skilled workman, as many of Reading's most substantial buildings and residences built by him will testify, and was a kind and helpful neighbor and a useful citizen. In politics he was a Democrat, but outside of casting his vote, cared little for public matters. He and his wife who died in 1906, aged seventy-eight years, were the parents of these children: Henry, Clara, James, Susan, Jacob, Sally, Samuel, and Charles. In religious belief the family were Reformed.

James Matz obtained a common school education in Reading, and as a boy learned the carpenter's trade, under his father. For several years father and son were engaged together in contracting and building, but in 1884 James branched out on his own account and since that time his operations have averaged thirty-five houses a year. During this time he has erected five public school buildings, numerous factories, the Keystone Fire Company's building, and that of the Union Fire Company. In 1906 he was engaged in erecting the tool house for the Reading Water Board, at Maiden Creek Pumping Station. He is a skilled mechanic, is honest in his dealings and lives up to the terms of his contract.

On Jan. 10, 1880, Mr. Matz married Miss Annie L. Zeigler, daughter of John and Emma Zeigler, and they had the following children: Charles E., a veteran of the Spanish-American war, is also connected with the regular army, and has seen service in the Philippines; James A., who served in Troop F, 2d U. S. Cav., from June 2, 1898, to Jan. 31, 1904, was promoted to sergeant, and saw service in Cuba, the Philippines and Fort McPherson, Ga.; William A. is a carpenter of Philadelphia; Annie L., in the Girls' high school, Reading; and George W. C., also in high school.

Mr. Matz is fraternally connected with the F. O. E. He has been prominently identified with public matters and for four years served as a member of the common council from the Tenth ward, and also inspector of elections.

EUGENE I. SANDT, ex-alderman of the Eighth ward, Reading, enjoys the distinction of having been elected to that position on the Republican ticket, in a Democratic ward, by a handsome majority.

Alderman Sandt's grandfather, John Sandt, removed from Northampton county to Berks county in 1844.

William Sandt, father of Eugene I., was a merchant tailor of Reading, but owing to failing health retired from that business to take a position with the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad, and remained with them six weeks, being instantly killed, June 11, 1855, in a rear-end collision. He died aged thirty-two years. His wife was Sabina Oberly, daughter of David Oberly, a Northampton county farmer, who died suddenly from apoplexy at the age of forty-four years. There were five children born to this union: Irwin, retired; Wallace, retired; Alice, widow of George Kline, of Cumru township; Emma, wife of Thomas Sigman, a clerk in the time-keeper's office of the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company; and Eugene I.

Eugene I. Sandt was born April 2, 1848, and was educated in the public schools, which he left at the age of nine years. He secured work in a cotton factory, next at Siegel's hat factory and then learned brush-making. At the age of twelve years he was a messenger boy for the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad, and for thirty-seven years, four months, continued in the service of that company, having been, during part of the time, superintendent of the shops of the Reading system, and for some time general foreman and master mechanic of the New York division. Mr. Sandt retired from the service, May 31, 1898, on account of failing health, and, after resting for two years, was elected alderman of the Eighth ward, on a Republican ticket, by a majority of 100, being the first Republican ever elected in that ward to the position of alderman. He was re-elected in February, 1905, with an increased majority of 406. Mr. Sandt, however, had carried his party to victory in that ward before, being elected, in 1877, registry assessor. In 1888 he was elected to the Reading school board, and served four years, eight months. In November, 1908, he was elected as the Republican county commissioner.

Alderman Sandt has twice been married. His first wife was Annie E. Mellen, daughter of the late Francis and Margaret Mellen, of Reading, the marriage having taken place, Aug. 8, 1870. Mrs. Sandt died July 9, 1893. Five children were born to this union: one child which died in infancy; Jennie, who died aged twenty-eight years; William, in the employ of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad; Eugene H., employed by the same company; and Carrie, wife of Albert De Hart. Alderman Sandt's second wife was Kate E. Harbester, of Reading, to whom he was married Jan. 1, 1903.

The Alderman served as a private in Co. C, 194th Reg. Penn. Vol. Inf., enlisting at the age of sixteen years, and served gallantly throughout the term of his enlistment. He served as a member of the Junior Steam Fire Engine Co. from Oct. 4, 1866, and is still a member of that organization, having held various positions therein. In religion Alderman Sandt is a member of St. John's Lutheran Church. He is connected with Chandler Lodge, F. & A. M.; Camp No. 61, P. O. S. of A.; Post No. 16, Grand Army of the Republic; Veteran Firemen's Association; the North Eastern Republican organization, and the 14th Ward Republican organization.

GEORGE K. LEVAN, in his lifetime a merchant of Reading who played a conspicuous part in the commercial history of his city, came of stanch Huguenot stock that left the familiar scenes of the Palatinate and vicinity, to find religious liberty and peace under the beneficent laws of the Colony of the Penns.

In the summer of 1727 Daniel LeVan embarked at Rotterdam, in the good ship "William & Sarah," Captain William Hill. The ship touched port at Dover, England, and then started on the long voyage to Philadelphia, where it arrived early in September. On the 21st of that month, all the male passengers over sixteen years of age, subscribed to the following declaration: "We, the subscribers, natives and inhabitants of the Palatinate, or the Rhine places adjacent, having transported ourselves and families into this province of Pennsylvania, a colony subject to the crown of Great Britain, in hopes and expectation of finding a retreat and peaceable settlement there, Do solemnly promise and engage, that we will be faithful, and bear true allegiance to his present Majesty King George the Second, and his successors, Kings of Great Britain, and will be faithful to the proprietors of this province, and that we will demean ourselves peaceably to all his Majesty's subjects, and strictly observe, and conform to the laws of England and of this Province, to the utmost of our power and the best of our understanding." There were upwards of 300 persons on the ship, of which 117 were males over sixteen years old, and of this number sixty-two were ill on board at the time of arrival, and four had died on the voyage. Those who were well signed the above Declaration themselves, and the names of the sixty-two, who were ill, were signed by the clerk of the Board of the Provincial Council, held at Philadelphia, Sept. 21, 1727; among the latter so signed was that of Daniel LeVan. Before leaving the Fatherland these followers of the German Reformed faith had engaged the Rev. George Michael Wise, V. D. M., to accompany them, and he was for many years pastor of German Reformed Churches in Philadelphia, Germantown, etc.

Jacob LeVan settled in Maxatawny township, Berks county, in an early day. He became one of the leading men of the county, and was judge of the Courts from 1752 to 1762. He was the father of two children—Colonel Sebastian and Jacob.

Colonel Sebastian LeVan was born about 1734, and he died in August, 1794. On Dec. 5, 1774, he was elected a member of the Berks County Committee of Observation, upon which he served as one of the fifteen members. He was a delegate to the Provincial Convention, Jan. 2, 1775, appointed lieutenant-colonel 7th Battalion, Berks county, 1775-76; delegate to the Lancaster Convention, in July, 1776; representative on the Standing Committee, serving later in the State Assembly during 1779-1780; councilor on the Supreme Executive Council from 1782-84. As a member of such executive bodies he was exempt from bearing arms. The records show an order from the Council of Safety to pay him £88-2s-6d. for arms taken from non-associates, Dec. 6, 1776. His wife was Christiana Schneider, and they had three children: Jacob, John and Margaret who married John Mattern.

John LeVan, son of Col. Sebastian, married Christine Kline, and they had a son, George K.

George K. Levan was born in Maxatawny township, Berks county. In Reading he attained a high place as a merchant, being the founder of the dry goods store now owned by John E. Bubp & Sons on Penn street. Mr. Bubp was his clerk at first, and later Mr. Levan sold out to him. He, himself, then engaged in business on Penn street, near the Farmers' National Bank Building, opening the first queensware store in the city of Reading, and he also carried a line of dry goods. He was a man of pronounced business ability, and was a buyer of great sagacity. His mercantile life ended in 1869 with his election as prothonotary of Berks county, an office he held until 1872, after which he retired, making his home at his comfortable residence on Eighth street, near Franklin. His death occurred suddenly, after he returned home from church, when he was aged sixty years.

Mr. Levan married Nov. 6, 1845, Margaret B. Yoder, daughter of David Yoder, and a representative of an early settled Berks county family. She died in 1900, and is buried beside her husband in the Charles Evans cemetery. They were active workers in, and early members of the Second Reformed Church. They had five children: Annie E., who died in 1880, married James S. White, and had a daughter, Edith, who married Prof. R. S. Birch; Morris Y. died at the age of twenty-three; Miss Martha Y.; Ida died in infancy; and Mary married D. Lorah Mauger, district passenger agent of the Philadelphia & Reading Company, with his office in Reading, and they have two children, Margaret A. and George L. They reside at No. 813 North Fourth street, Reading.

HUNTER HENNINGER, funeral director at Reading for upward of twenty years, was born at Reading April 26, 1863. After receiving his education in the local schools and Brunner's Business College, he entered the employ of his father for the purpose of learning the business of conducting funerals, and he continued in his father's employ until 1885, when he became a partner. The business was then conducted under the name of J. R. Henninger & Son until the decease of the father in December, 1890, when the son became the sole owner; and he has since carried it on in a very successful manner. In July, 1902, he enlarged his business by purchasing the undertaking establishment of Charles Henninger & Son, at No. 716 Penn street, and upon taking possession of this long established stand he tore down the factory on the rear of the premises and erected in its stead a modern undertaker's plant with the latest improvements for embalming and operating a morgue, making it one of the most complete in the eastern Pennsylvania. Being thoroughly experienced in the business, with an extended acquaintance in the community, he has a large patronage. He is frequently engaged to conduct funerals from Reading to distant places where interment is made, and also to conduct them to Reading from distant places to make interment here. His urbanity and thoughtfulness in the performance of his delicate duties in the hour of bereavement are highly appreciated.

Mr. Henninger has become prominently identified with Free Masonry at Reading, being a past master of Reading Lodge No. 549, a past high priest of Chapter No. 152, and a past commander of De Molay Commandery No. 9, Knights Templar. He is also a member of Rajah Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S., of the Royal Order of Scotland, Knights of the Golden Eagle, Knights of Friendship, Royal Arcanum and Progressive Americans.

Mr. Henninger was married in 1890 to Rebecca Boyer, a daughter of B. Frank Boyer, Esq., of Reading, and she died in 1893. In 1900 he was married to Gertrude C. Gerhart, a daughter of Dr. Erasmus and Agnes (Weber) Gerhart, of Millersburg, in Bethel township, Berks county, and by her has two children: Maryan Gerhart and John Hunter. She attended the local schools of Reading and was graduated from the Girls' High School of Reading with distinction in 1895; after which she taught school in Marion township for one term and in Reading for four terms. Since her marriage she has taken much active interest in the Daughters of the American Revolution, being a member of that distinguished society at Reading. Her lineage shows that she has six ancestors who were enlisted in the Colonial army. Mr. Henninger and his family are members of the Second Reformed Church.

Mr. Henninger's father was John Rapp Henninger, who was born at Kutztown. There he learned the trade of shoemaking, which he followed at that place; also at Milton and at Reading, locating at the last named place some time before 1860, and embarking in the shoe business at No. 715 Penn street. During 1861 and 1862, he manufactured many thousand pairs of shoes for the United States government. In 1863 he entered the employ of his brother Charles, to assist in conducting funerals. He continued with him until 1870, when he engaged in the business for himself, locating at No. 1025 Penn street; and he continued until his decease in December, 1890, dying at the age of sixty-seven years. He was married to Maryan Latimer Hunter, daughter of John Hunter of Ireland and Sarah Ramsay, his wife, of Scotland, they having immigrated to Pennsylvania. The daughter was born and brought up in the vicinity of Milton, Pa., moved to Reading, and died in 1891, aged sixty-eight years. They had twelve children, four dying early in life. The others were: Sarah, William, Mary, Nathaniel, Martha, Annie, Hunter and Clara.

His grandparents were John Henninger and Sarah Rapp, his wife; and his great-grandparents, Johannes Henninger and Maria Dorothea Kettra.

KUTZ. Tradition says that (I) Nicholas Coots and (Ia) Jacob Kutz, who settled in Maxatawny township, back of Kutztown, on what is now known as the Stock Farm, were brothers, and that they had another brother who settled in Carlisle, Pa., where many of the name live at this time. The name of this third brother was probably (Ib) Samuel Kutz.

(I) Nicholas Coots, also spelled Couts, Cutz, and Kutz, was the first of the family on record in Pennsylvania. On Nov. 18, 1729, he purchased from Casper Wistar, brass button manufacturer, and his wife Catharine, of the city of Philadelphia, a tract of 150 acres of land, situated in Maxatawny township (near Eagle Point, now owned by Isaac Kutz), Philadelphia (now Berks) county, paying for the same fifty-two pounds, ten shillings. On Sept. 4, 1734, he purchased another tract of 222 acres, located in the same township, and on Feb. 2, 1737, two other tracts of 250 3-4 acres from John and Thomas Penn, and on Jan. 6, 1741, a tract of forty-eight acres, all located in the one township. He was the father of six children: Nicholas (2), whose wife's name was Eva; Jacob, whose wife's name was Elizabeth; George, whose wife's name was Margaret; Thomas, whose wife's name was Elizabeth; Adam, whose wife's name was Catharine; and Catharine, who married Conrad Henninger.

(II) Nicholas Kutz (2), eldest son of Nicholas, obtained that part of the homestead on which were the original buildings. He was a farmer by occupation. His wife Eva bore him two sons: Nicholas (3) and Johann.

(III) Nicholas Kutz (3), son of Nicholas (2), was born on the Kutz homestead in Maxatawny township, Feb. 14, 1764, and there his death occurred May 4, 1831, when he was aged sixty-seven years, two months and twenty days. His remains are buried in the family burial ground on the farm—four generations sleeping their last sleep there. He married Maria Susanna Scharadin (1769-1847), daughter of Jacob and Margaretha (Haak) Scharadin. They had two children, Samuel S. and Eva Catharine (m. Samuel Swoyer). Nicholas Kutz became the owner of the homestead, and his whole life was devoted to farming.

(IV) Samuel S. Kutz, son of Nicholas (3), was born on the old homestead, Jan. 28, 1800, and he died there May 6, 1878. His life occupation was farming, and he was very successful in all that he undertook, becoming a very wealthy man. He gave a good farm to each of his four sons. He married Catharine Sell, born May 3, 1797, and died in 1872, daughter of Johannes and Margaret Sell. Their four sons were: John, m. to Sarah Dreibelbis; Jacob S., m. to Mary DeLong, daughter of David DeLong; Daniel, m. to Hetty Sell; and Isaac, m. to Susanna DeLong, daughter of Francis DeLong. Of these sons, John became the father of three children: Mary, m. to James Heffner; Madora Ann, m. to Isaac Kutz; and Samuel D., m. to Agnes Heffly. Jacob S. is mentioned in full farther on, as is also Isaac. Daniel (twin to Isaac) became the father of two children, Catharine (m. George Raubenbold, deceased, of Hamburg), and John (who died aged about ten years), and lived on his fine farm in Siegfried's Dale, Maxatawny township. Samuel S. Kutz, the father, was an official member of St. John's Lutheran Church at Kutztown for upwards of a quarter of a century, and was greatly esteemed in the community. In politics he was an uncompromising Democrat. He paid the largest tax in the district.

(V) Jacob S. Kutz, son of Samuel S., was born July 3, 1826, and died March 4, 1904. He was a prosperous farmer, owning a tract of 175 acres of the best land in Maxatawny township, one-half mile east of Eagle Point. He and his family were active members of St. John's Lutheran Church, Kutztown, of which he was deacon and trustee for many years. In 1855 he was married to Mary DeLong, daughter of David DeLong and wife (whose maiden name was Bieber), and to this union were born: Edwin S.; Isaac, who had a dream which foretold the day and hour of his death in 1903; Andora, who died aged ten years; and David D., who resides at Kutztown.

(VI) Edwin S. Kutz, son of Jacob S., was reared on his father's farm near Eagle Point, Maxatawny township, where he was born May 19, 1856. He obtained his early education in the local schools, and at the age of fourteen years began attending the Kutztown State Normal School, later entering a school of higher education at Kingston, Luzerne county. In 1882 he purchased the Jacob Merkel farm, consisting of 145 acres of excellent land, situated one-half mile from Moselem Springs, in the direction of Kutztown. Here he has been very successful. He uses only the most modern machinery and best approved methods on his farm, and his property is kept in fine condition. In the spring of 1910 Mr. Kutz expects to turn his farm over to the care of his son Edwin S., Jr., while he himself will move to the new home he is building on Park Avenue in Kutztown. He takes great interest in the educational affairs of his township, and for a number of years served as school director.

In 1880 Mr. Kutz was married to Marietta Deysher, daughter of Jacob and Caroline (Butz) Deysher, agriculturists of Maxatawny township, and to this union have been born four children: Daisy m., Aug. 23, 1906, William Wessner, of Kutztown, and has two children, Arlena and John; Edwin S., Jr., m. Jan. 11, 1908, Susan Heffner, daughter of Abraham Heffner (whose wife was a Stoudt), and has one child, Edna May: George and Helen. To Jacob and Caroline Deysher were born the following: Marietta, Mrs. Kutz; Frank, a farmer and horse dealer in Maxatawny; Jacob P., a wealthy farmer in Maxatawny; Ida and Caroline, both unmarried, who reside with their brother Jacob P.; and George, who is a Lutheran minister at Jonestown, Pennsylvania.

(V) Isaac Kutz, son of Samuel S., was born in the Kutz homestead, where his sons, also, were born, Nov. 19, 1830. He cultivated the home farm until his retirement in 1885, when he sold off his stock, but he continued to make his home there until 1890, when he moved to Fleetwood. In 1893 he erected the finest residence in Upper Berks county. This is located at the corner of Main and Walnut streets, in the borough of Fleetwood. It is furnished throughout with hardwood lumber—the house itself being of brick—and it is surrounded by a beautifully kept lawn. He still owns the old homestead in Maxatawny, two and one-half miles from Kutztown. This consists of 158 acres of the richest land in the county, while the comfortable brick residence on it, which Mr. Kutz built in 1872, makes it a very desirable country place. While still in active work, Mr. Kutz took great pride in his fine dairy, and owned some very valuable cows. On Jan. 17, 1860, he was married to Susanna DeLong, born July 15, 1839, died July 2, 1908, aged sixty-eight years, eleven months, seventeen days, and is buried at Fleetwood, Pa. She was a daughter of Francis and Esther (Schaeffer) DeLong, prosperous farming people at Bowers, Pa. Two sons were born to Mr. and Mrs. Kutz: Franklin S. and Charles W.

(V) Franklin S. Kutz, son of Isaac, was born in Maxatawny township, on the old Kutz homestead, Sept. 17, 1862. He received his education in the public schools and the Keystone State Normal School and later attended the Eastman Business College, at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., whence he was graduated in 1882. He then became bookkeeper for Bell, Walt & Co., wholesale shoe merchants of Philadelphia, with whom he remained two years. In 1885 he came to Fleetwood, and engaged in the general mercantile business with Lewis B. Schaeffer, Daniel S. Schaeffer and Charles A. Messersmith, under the firm name of Schaeffer, Messersmith & Kutz. This firm continued in this business until March 11, 1889, when Mr. Kutz and his brother Charles W. bought out the interests of Messrs. Daniel S. Schaeffer and Charles A. Messersmith, doing business under the firm name of Schaeffer & Kutz Bros. until March 27, 1897, at which date the brothers bought the interest of Mr. Lewis B. Schaeffer, and changed the firm to Kutz Bros. This firm continued in the same line, meeting with great success, until in 1906, when they sold out to devote their entire time to the manufacture of seamless hosiery, a business in which they had been engaged since 1895. They employ seventy-five people, and have a ready market for their entire product. In 1898 Kutz Brothers erected the three-story brick business house on the southwest corner of Main and Franklin streets, 40 x 115 feet in dimensions. The first floor is used as the store room, and is one of the finest in that section, while the second and third floors are used for manufacturing purposes. When the First National Bank of Fleetwood was organized in 1907, they erected a three-story brick building on the west side of their main building; the first floor of which is occupied by the First National Bank, and the second floor is used as the firm's office. At the organization of this bank Mr. Franklin S. Kutz became one of its directors, and was elected the vice-president. He is a member of Chandler Lodge, No. 227, F. & A. M.; Excelsior Chapter, No. 237, R. A. M.; Reading Commandery, No. 42, K. T.; Philadelphia Consistory, S. P. R. S., 32°; and Rajah Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S. He also belongs to Camp No. 103, P. O. S. of A.; and Castle No. 374, K. G. E., both of Fleetwood. He and his family are members of St. Paul's Lutheran Church of Fleetwood, to which he contributes liberally.

On Jan. 25, 1886, Mr. Kutz was married to Alice S. Schaeffer, daughter of Lewis B. and Caroline (Messersmith) Schaeffer, of Fleetwood, and they have one son, Charles Isaac, born Nov. 3, 1888, who has been given the advantage of a University education. Mr. Kutz resides on Main street, near the home of his aged father. He is progressive and enterprising, and is always interested in anything that will promote the moral and material growth of his town. In 1904 he accompanied the Knights Templars on a pleasure trip to the Pacific coast.

(VI) Charles W. Kutz, son of Isaac and brother of Franklin S., was born on the old Kutz homestead in Maxatawny, Oct. 10, 1865. His early education was secured in the public schools, and completed in the Keystone State Normal School, at Kutztown. He gained his training for the business world in the famous Eastman Business College, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., graduating therefrom in 1885. He then remained with his parents until March 11, 1889, when he engaged in the mercantile business established some years before by his brother, Franklin S., and under the firm name of Kutz Brothers, they prospered until they sold out in 1906. Since that time they have devoted themselves to the manufacture of seamless hosiery, as above stated. Both Mr. Kutz and his brother are Democrats, but neither cares for the honors and responsibilities of public office. Mr. Charles W. Kutz is a member of St. John's Lutheran Church at Kutztown.

On Sept. 17, 1895, Mr. Kutz was married to Katie W. Ressler, daughter of Reuben and Catharine (Wanner) Ressler, and they have one daughter, Katharine Susanna, born July 22, 1900. Mr. Kutz resides with his parents on Main Street, and is devoted to his home and family. He is not a member of any social or fraternal organization.

(V) John Kutz, son of Samuel S. and Catharine (Sell) Kutz, was born in Maxatawny township, on the homestead, Oct. 27, 1821, and he died July 4, 1884, and is buried at Kutztown. He was a lifelong farmer and obtained the Peter Levan homestead at Eagle Point, which his father bought for him in 1846. He was twenty-eight when he settled on the Levan farm. He married Sarah Dreibelbis, born Feb. 7, 1829, and died April 4, 1878, aged forty-nine years, one month and twenty-seven days, daughter of David Dreibelbis, of Richmond township. They had three children: Mary Malinda, born in 1848, married James Heffner, of Kutztown, and died in 1902; Madora Ann, born Nov. 8, 1858, married her cousin, Isaac Kutz; and Samuel D.

(VI) Samuel D. Kutz, son of John and Sarah (Dreibelbis), was born near Eagle Point on his father's farm Aug. 5, 1861. He was reared to farming and worked for his father until he was twenty-three years old, and then began farming on the homestead for himself, where he still lives. The farm consists of 140 acres of good land. He has erected a modern barn, 80 x 45 feet in dimensions —a strictly up-to-date building. He has seven head of horses, and twenty-four head of cattle. His milk is all shipped to the creamery. The house in which he lives was built by Peter Levan many years ago. Everything about the place bespeaks the intelligent care of the owner. All his life he has given evidence of a methodical nature, his days in the public schools and also in the Keystone State Normal School being marked by careful, systematic work. In politics Mr. Kutz is a Democrat, and his religious connection is with the Lutheran Church at Kutztown. All his life with the exception of five years passed at Kutztown three miles away has been passed on his present homestead. In 1893 he married Agnes Heffly, daughter of William Heffly, and they have one son, John W., born Dec. 24, 1894, who at the age of fourteen years graduated from the school at Eagle Point, taking his examination and receiving his diploma at Bowers, and he then entered the Keystone State Normal School, class "D"; and was promoted to the junior class the next spring. He is a boy of much ability, and while devoted to his books, does not neglect the work on the farm. Mr. Samuel D. Kutz has taken Mathias Angstadt, a bright lad of eight years, from the Home of the Friendless, Reading, and has given him a happy home.

(III) Johann Kutz, son of Nicholas (2), was born Nov. 10, 1774, and died March 20, 1846, aged seventy-one years, four months and ten days, and his remains rest in the Hope cemetery at Kutztown. He married and had a son, Daniel B.

(IV) Daniel B. Kutz, son of Johann, became a very prominent man in his community, and devoted many years of his life to public service. He was successfully engaged as a merchant for many years at Kutztown, being associated in business with ex-Judge William Heidenreich for several years until 1857, under the firm name of Heidenreich & Kutz. He was the foremost figure in Berks county politics many years, leading the Democratic party through many battles, and he befriended many men. He supported the Hon. William B. Strong for the judgeship, and after his term of office as judge of Berks county, he was appointed a justice of the Supreme Court of the United States. Col. Kutz was a strong supporter of David Kutz for the Bench as associate judge of Berks county, and he also helped to make his former business associate, William Heidenreich, associate judge of Berks county, and in 1852-55 he worked to make Benjamin Kutz county commissioner. He was assemblyman in 1840-41. He married a Miss Heffner, and they had children: Benneville; Edwin, of Allentown, whose son became alderman of that city; Daniel, who operates a large cattle ranch in the State of Washington; and Mrs. George Weaver.

(V) Benneville Kutz, son of Daniel B., died comparatively young in years. He married Sarah Fisher, daughter of Jacob Fisher, and she died July 28, 1898, at the age of sixty-six years. They were the parents of the following children: Nicholas J.; Anna E., wife of Douglas Seifert, a druggist of Potter county; Carrie E., Mrs. Wilson D. Althouse, a coal operator, at Norristown; Cora L., wife of Wellington D. Hoffman, a station agent on the Philadelphia & Reading railway at Bridgeport, Pa.; Ira George; and Pius, who died in infancy. Jacob Fisher, father of Mrs. Sarah (Fisher) Kutz, was a soldier in the war of 1812, and he died at the advanced age of ninety-nine years and three months.

(VI) Nicholas J. Kutz, son of Benneville and Sarah, was born in the borough of Kutztown Nov. 18, 1860. He received his early education in the district school, and later attended the Kutztown State Normal School, graduating therefrom in 1879. He taught school in Maxatawny township for two terms, and in the fall of 1882 accepted the position of grammar school teacher at Egypt, Lehigh county. After the completion of his first term he was unanimously elected to serve another, but was offered a more lucrative position with the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad, in Philadelphia. During President Cleveland's administration he was appointed a registry clerk in the Philadelphia post-office, and after the administration was once more in the hands of the other great political power he was again given his position in the railroad company's freight office, where he continued eight years. In the spring of 1894 Mr. Kutz and N. S. Schaeffer, of Fleetwood, formed a partnership, and commenced business under the firm name of N. S. Schaeffer & Co. They deal in general merchandise, and occupy the entire building at the southeast corner of Main and Richmond streets, Fleetwood, the firm enjoying the largest trade of this thriving town. In 1902 they admitted another partner in the person of George J. Schlegel, opening at this time in addition to the general store a hardware store on the northwest corner of Main and Richmond streets, this stand being formerly known as Kelchner's. Mr. Schlegel has entire charge of this branch of the business. Mr. Kutz is interested in other enterprises, being associated with his brother-in-law, W. D. Althouse, in coal mining in Somerset county, Pa., and Preston county, W. Va., coal operations. Politically Mr. Kutz is an influential Democrat, and a well known factor in local politics. He was a member of the Fleetwood council for six years, serving during that time as secretary of that body. He resides in his comfortable brick residence on Main street, Fleetwood, and he and his family are members of St. Paul's Union Lutheran Church.

On Oct. 29, 1891, Mr. Kutz was married to Clara S. Kline, daughter of Israel and Amelia (Schaeffer) Kline, and one daughter has been born to them, Florence M., a graduate of the Fleetwood high school.

(VI) Ira George Kutz, son of Benneville, was born at Kutztown, May 14, 1867, and is now the popular district attorney of Berks county, elected in November, 1904, by a large majority. His preliminary education was received in the public schools of his native town, and he continued his studies in the Keystone State Normal School, and was graduated in 1886, with honor. Having chosen teaching as a profession he followed it for the ensuing eight years, three years of which time he was principal of the Kutztown high school. In 1893, having been a student at La Fayette College for a period of four years, he received a diploma from that institution. He then began the study of law in the office of Stevens & Stevens in Reading, and continued there until 1897, in which year he was admitted to the Bar. He entered upon the practice of his profession at once, and remained in private practice until 1904, winning a place in the front rank in the legal lights of the county, and earning the respect and esteem of those much older than himself. He achieved a reputation that made him desirable material for the Democratic nomination for district attorney, and this choice received such a hearty endorsement from the people that he was elected by a majority of 2,500. He has a keen perception of the importance of his duty to his office and to himself, and he has won a reputation for fearlessness in the discharge of that duty that has made him the terror of law breakers and the idol of the people he serves.

On Oct. 20, 1898, Mr. Kutz was married to Clara B. Shepp, daughter of John Shepp, a retired farmer residing in Reading. They have one child, Elizabeth, born Jan. 18, 1900. Mr. Kutz is a member of the Blue Lodge, No. 435, F. & A. M.; Oley Lodge, No. 218, I. O. O. F.; K. G. E.; Americus Club; 1900 Beneficial Association; Northeastern Democratic League; and Hampden Fire Company. He is a communicant of Trinity Lutheran Church at Kutztown.

(Ia) Jacob Kutz, mentioned at the beginning of this article as a brother of Nicholas and co-founder of the Kutz family, was a native of Switzerland, who emigrated to America on the ship "Pink Plaisance," which qualified at Philadelphia in the fall of 1732. He was born in 1674, as was also his wife Christina. They were, accordingly, at the time of their coming to this country, fifty-eight years of age. Jacob Kutz settled in Maxatawny township, on the tract now known as the Stock Farm. This property is well located, fertile and with an abundance of good water. The Kutztown Fair Association now owns a part of it, and part of it has been cut into building lots. In the list of names in the Pennsylvania archives, the name of the wife of this emigrant is given as Katharina, but on a tombstone erected to the memory of their son Jacob, it is given as Christina, and this is accepted as correct. Her maiden name was Bossert, and she attained advanced years, dying in the one hundredth year of her age. Their children were: (1) John Adam, who lived in Carlisle, Pa., for some years, later went to Ohio, and there died. (2) Jacob m. Susanna Geeher (1778-1824), and they had children: David, who m. Kate Sell, and had children—Jacob, George, Dewald, Sell, Judith, Sallie, Susanna, Mary and Barbara; Samuel, who m. his cousin, Polly Kutz, daughter of Jacob and Betty, and their children were—Jacob, Aaron, Samuel, Henry, Robert, Mary Ann and Sarah; Joseph (1800-1890), who m. Elizabeth Mertz (died in 1862); and had children—Catharine, Jacob, Charles, Judith, Annie, Catharine (2), Sarah (1825-1887), Diana, Susanna, Hettie, Leah, Betzey, Caroline and Aaron; Benjamin (May 11, 1806-Feb. 9, 1874), who m. Sarah Sittler (1806-1892), and had children—Jacob, Daniel S., Helen and William S.; Betsey or Elizabeth (1804-1867), who m. Johannes Rohn; Rebecca, who m. Jacob Ann; and Ann, who m. George Graver. (3) Daniel is mentioned farther on. (4) Betty m. Jacob Kutz, and they settled at Carlisle, where many of their descendants still reside. Their children were all very strong. In those days much apple-jack was made, and was hauled by wagon to Pittsburg. The boys would lift full barrels of this liquor with comparative ease up on the Conestoga wagons. This Jacob Kutz was, presumably, a descendant of the third brother, mentioned at the beginning of the article as (Ib) Samuel, who settled at Carlisle. To Jacob and Betty Kutz were born children as follows: Polly, David, Jacob, Peter, Jesse, Daniel, Nancy and another son. (5) Catharine. (6) Peter, born April 28, 1780, died March 31, 1859, aged seventy-eight years, eleven months and three days. He was a stone mason in Kutztown. He married Susanna Biehl (1784-1867), and their children were: Charles, Abraham, Josiah and Lucy.

(IIa) Daniel Kutz, son of Jacob, was born in 1782, and he died on his farm in Maxatawny in 1875, in his ninety-third year. He was a life-long farmer, and owner of considerable property in both Maxatawny and Richmond townships. He was buried at Kutztown, where he was a member of the Reformed Church. He married Elizabeth Fister, whose parents came from Switzerland, and they became the parents of children as follows: Sally, who died unmarried; Christina; Nathan; David F.; Jacob; and Elizabeth, born 1826.

(IIIa) David F. Kutz, son of Daniel, was born in Richmond township, Oct. 23, 1819, and is at present making his home with his son, Cosmos D. He is a remarkably well preserved old gentleman, and is able to read without glasses. He was the owner of a valuable farm in Maxatawny township, to which he devoted his energies. He was a man of enterprise and intelligence, and he was an excellent penman, his education having been received in both public and private schools. He married Caroline Haas, daughter of Jonathan Haas, of Longswamp township, and they became the parents of eight children, namely: Cyrenus W.; Cosmos D.; Albert Alfred, who died young; Moses; Jarus; Elsworth; Valeria, who married Milton Schollenberger; and Evella, who married Alvin Weiser.

(IVa) Cosmos D. Kutz, son of David F., and one of the most prominent men in Berks county, was born in Maxatawny township, Sept. 27, 1850. His literary training was received in the public schools, and his business education in the commercial department of Wyoming Seminary, also taking some other branches in the latter institution. He early learned the duties connected with a farmer's life, and on leaving school he learned the carpenter's trade, which he followed until he was twenty years of age. He then engaged in a mercantile business at Bowers Station, and several years later he went to New Jerusalem, where he remained for seven years. In 1882 he came to Lyons, and with his brother Moses, formed a partnership under the firm name of Kutz Brothers, and they met with considerable success in their undertakings in the mercantile world, but in 1894 they disbanded, and for a short time devoted themselves to the produce business. Mr. Cosmos D. Kutz then sold his right, title and interest to his brother. In 1896 he was elected treasurer of Berks county, and in January, 1897, assumed the duties of that office. Here he served his three-year term, giving satisfaction to his constituents, and proving himself a man of ability and of conscientiousness in the discharge of his duty. He has long been active in Berks county politics as a stanch Democrat, and has wielded great influence in the destiny of his party in the county, assisting many a good man to an office of public trust. He was committeeman in Maxatawny township for many years, and served efficiently as a school director of Rockland township. Since 1887 he has been a justice of the peace in Maxatawny. He has settled up a number of estates, fully justifying the confidence reposed in him. In 1906 he was appointed receiver of the C. W. Landis estate, at Bowers, and later became the trustee of the stockholders—a long and tedious duty, but one which Mr. Kutz discharged with his accustomed ability. He was also the receiver for the Isaac Samuels estate of Reading. He has proved himself a man of large business capacity. He and his brother own one of the largest and most valuable farms in the township. Mr. Kutz also owns other real estate, and his home, opposite the Lyons depot, is a comfortable home, with a fine lawn and beautiful shade trees.

Mr. Kutz and his family are members of De Long's Reformed Church, in which he has held various offices. When the present church edifice was erected in 1902 he was secretary of the building committee, and he liberally contributed toward the building. He is a member of Lyons Lodge, No. 634, I. O. O. F., and Lodge No. 102, K. P., both of Lyons; Huguenot Lodge, No. 377, F. & A. M., of Kutztown, of which he was treasurer for five years.

Mr. Kutz was married in 1872 to Mary Barto, daughter of William and Catharine (Merkel) Barto. Five children have blessed their union, namely: Minnie, m. to Dr. Herbert Schollenberger, of Reading; Lizzie, m. to George Knittle, of Allentown; George W., of Lyons, m. to Annie Printzenhoff, and father of three sons, Paul, George and Floyd (he assists his father in the lumber business); Fred B., m. to Carrie Peters, by whom he has one child, Gladys, and is engaged in the manufacture of hosiery; and Luma, a graduate of the Keystone State Normal School, class of 1897, who is now an efficient and respected teacher in Maxatawny township.

Mr. Kutz is a man of versatility and in the midst of all his varied interests has never lost his complete oversight of all that concerns him. At the present time he is looking after estates, his own property interests, the lumber business, the manufacturing business —he being a senior member of the hosiery manufacturing firm of Kutz, Kieffer & Kutz, employing some fifty hands, keeps abreast of the political situation, and with it all finds time to keep well posted on the events of the world. One of the most difficult tasks ever given him, one that required both the greatest care and endless patience, was that of filing the archives of the county from the time of its organization in 1752 to date (1898). To this work he was appointed by the commissioners of the county. Owing to technicalities of the law payment for this has never been made. Few men stand as high as Mr. Kutz in the estimation of his fellowmen, and he has proved equal to every trust.

(IIIa) Benjamin Kutz, son of Jacob and Susanna (Geeher), and grandson of (Ia) Jacob, was born on what is now the Stock Farm, near Kutztown, May 11, 1806, and died Feb. 9, 1874, aged sixty-seven years, eight months, and twenty-eight days. He devoted his active life to farming, and prospered in all that he undertook. In 1829 he purchased his home, now owned by his son, William S. It then consisted of ninety-nine acres, and a part of it is now the property of the Normal School. He was a foremost citizen of Berks county, and held a number of important offices, being supervisor, school director, county commissioner (1852-1855). He was prominent in St. John's Lutheran Church, and held a number of offices therein. His remains now rest in Fairview cemetery. He married Sarah Sittler, who was born in 1806, daughter of Conrad and Susanna (Dunkel) Sittler, of Greenwich township. She died in 1892, aged eighty-six years and twenty-two days. They became the parents of four children: Jacob, who died young; Daniel S., mentioned below; Helen, m. to Jonathan Biehl, a resident of Kutztown, who is now deceased; and William S.

(IVa) Daniel S. Kutz, son of Benjamin, was born in Kutztown, July 29, 1828, and in his native town has passed all his life. In his boyhood he attended a private school, and later an academy which proved the forerunner of the great Normal school. He became the owner of property near the borough, and he devoted his time to the raising of crops until five years ago, when he retired. He has always been an ardent Democrat, and insists that he voted for but one Republican in his life, that lone occasion being when he was the candidate for inspector, and his Republican opponent asked him to exchange votes. His first vote was cast for James K. Polk for President. He served as assessor of the borough for three terms, as councilman for one term, and he is now judge of elections. In 1850 he married Louisa, daughter of Solomon Kutz. The only child of this union, a daughter, died about twenty years ago. Mr. Kutz is well preserved. He walks briskly, and has a pleasant word for everybody. He writes a good clear and steady hand, and he is able to read without glasses.

(IVa) William S. Kutz, son of Benjamin and brother of Daniel S., was born Dec. 29, 1834, and is now a prosperous farmer at the Normal School in Maxatawny township. He was born and reared on the farm where he now lives. In 1874 his father died, and he has since carried on the farm, which consists of one hundred acres of the most valuable land in the county. In 1892 he erected a comfortable brick house on the farm, but the present barn was built by his father in 1823. Mr. Kutz keeps five head of horses and seven of cattle. In politics like most of his name he is a Democrat. For six years he was school director of Maxatawny township. He is a director of the Sinking Spring Fire Insurance Company, an office he has held since 1895. He is a stock holder of the Keystone State Normal School, and has been treasurer of the Fairview Cemetery Company, for the past quarter of a century. Besides his farm he is the owner of a good residence on Noble street, Kutztown, and also of other real estate. He and his family attend St. Paul's Reformed Church, in which he was a trustee for six years.

On June 14, 1870, Mr. Kutz was married to Sarah Kemp, daughter of John and Elizabeth (Swayer) Kemp. They have had three children: Wilson B. m. Mary Deisher, daughter of Daniel Deisher, and lives with his father; Solon Howard died in infancy; and Harry W. m. Nora Berk, daughter of Cornelius Berk, of Richmond township, and has two sons, William and Frederick.

MATHIAS H. DOTTERER, who is engaged in the grocery and general merchandise business at No. 1755 Centre Avenue, Reading, Pa., was born in District township, Berks county, Dec. 26, 1861, and is descended from (I) Mathias Dotterer, the emigrant ancestor of the family, through (II) Mathias (2), (III) Daniel, (IV) Mathias and (V) David.

(I) Mathias Dotterer, whose name on the passenger list is given as Mattheus Dötter, came to America on the ship "Jacob," Captain Adolph De Grove, from Amsterdam, last from Shields, England, qualifying at Philadelphia, Oct. 2, 1749. On the same ship were Nichlaus and Martin Dötter, who may have been brothers, or sons over sixteen years of age. His son, Mathias (1744-1827) was about five years old at the time, and because of his tender years his name would not appear on the passenger list.

(II) Mathias Dotterer, son of Mathias, born Jan. 22, 1744, became a pioneer of Lower Berks county. His name is variously spelled Dotterer, Dottero and Toderrow. On the red sandstone that marks his grave just south of the Hill Church, is the following inscription: "Mathias Dotterer, son of Mathias and Catharine, Born Jan. 22, 1744, Died June 30, 1827, aged 83 years, 5 months, 8 days." His wife is buried at his side, her grave being marked by the following inscription: "Anna Maria, daughter Adam and Catharine Imbody, and wife Mathias Dotterer. She was born May 17, 1743, married 1765, and lived in holy wedlock over sixty years. She had 2 sons, 26 grandchildren, 40 great-grandchildren at her death, which occurred Feb. 24, 1825, aged 81 years, 9 months, 17 days." They had two sons: Daniel was executor of his father's will (on record in German in Will Book 6, p. 99); and Mathias.

(III) Daniel Dotterer, son of Mathias, was born July 4, 1766, and he died Sept. 13, 1844, in the seventy-ninth year of his age. He lived in Earl township, where he owned a farm, and he also owned a tract in Rockland township, bequeathing the latter to his son Henry in his will made Oct. 29, 1834. This will, probated Oct. 14, 1844, is on record in Will Book 9, p. 18; Executors, his son Mathias and Daniel. In the Will Index his name is spelled Daniel Dottero. He married Barbara Muthart (born June 28, 1763, died Dec. 3, 1843) and their children were: Mathias, John, Daniel (1792-1840), Jacob, George, Henry (who was given the tract in Rockland township), Susanna, Catharine and Margaret (whose will, made Dec. 5, 1865, was recorded Dec. 10, 1866).

(IV) Mathias Dotterer, son of Daniel, was born in 1787. He engaged in farming in Washington township, where he owned a 114-acre tract, now the property of

M. G. Gerhard. His death occurred in 1871, and he was buried at Hill Church. He was twice married. His first wife, Catharine Muthart, born Dec. 21, 1799, died Aug. 23, 1834. Mr. Dotterer married (second) Catharine Herb. He was the father of fourteen children: Isaac, David, Jonathan, Aaron, George, Joseph, Israel (had three children), John, Mathias, Abraham, Henry (1825-1856), William (1825-1903), Anna (m. Edward Anthony, of Dale, Pa.) and Catharine (m. William Schoenly, of Boyertown).

(V) David Dotterer, son of Mathias, was born in Washington township in 1823. He was early trained to farming, and followed that calling as long as he was engaged in active labor. He received his education in the pay schools taught by German teachers, and he can give interesting accounts of his early experiences. He taught school at Weikel's Hill, the school being held in a spring house. He owned two farms in Washington township, one of sixty-five acres and one of forty. He is now making his home with his son James near Heydt's schoolhouse. He married Magdalena Heydt, daughter of John and Magdalene (Weller) Heydt. She died in 1896. Their children were: James, who lives in Washington township; Mathias H.; John, on a farm near Sassamansville; and Manasses, who died in 1905, at the age of thirty-five.

(VI) Mathias H. Dotterer, son of David, was reared upon the home farm, and educated in the public schools and the Keystone State Normal School. At the age of eighteen years, he began clerking in the store at Hill Church, for John Dotterer, and later he clerked for J. P. Geschwindt, in Longswamp township, and after that he was employed in a similar capacity by William F. Seidel, at Bowers Station. In 1885 he entered the mercantile business for himself, at Bechtelsville, where he conducted a general store for twenty years. He was very successful, and the people of the town showed him high esteem. He was one of the organizers of the borough of Bechtelsville, and was its first justice of the peace. He also served as school director for three terms. He was elected treasurer of the borough many terms, and upon his removal from the borough resigned. In April, 1906, he sold out his stock, good will and fixtures to William R. Yerger, of Friedensburg (who later sold to William A. Henry), and that spring moved to Reading, where he enjoyed a rest until the following October, when he opened a grocery store at No. 400 South Fifteenth street, his present location. He carries a fine line of groceries and fresh vegetables, and his stand is justly popular.

In politics Mr. Dotterer is a Democrat. On Nov. 29, 1884, he married Torinda Gerhard, daughter of Daniel and Eliza (Angstadt) Gerhard, of Longswamp township, and they have four children: Winfield S., a bookkeeper at Reading; Raymond A., clerking for his father; and Lloyd J. and Viola M.

HAROLD OBOLD, who is known to the citizens of his section of reading as the proprietor of the popular "West End Hotel," was born Nov. 28, 1867, in Reading, Pa., son of John and Susan (Fichthorn) Obold.

Joseph Obold, the progenitor of this old and honored family, settled in Bern township, Berks county, prior to the organization of the county in 1752, and in 1759 paid a federal tax of eight pounds. His will is on record in Will Book 2, page 80, and was entered Nov. 30, 1770. From this fact and date we glean that he died probably in the early part of November, 1770. His wife, Maria Elizabeth, survived him. From items in his will we learn that he had children at the time of his death who were still under twenty-one years of age. He mentions his son Joseph, who obtained the homestead by paying seventy pounds to the other heirs, and twenty pounds annually to his mother. The will was witnessed by Hieronymus Hemmig, Matthias Stoudt and Nicholas Holler. This ancestor, Joseph Obold, was probably the same party who came to America on the ship "Robert and Alice" which qualified at Philadelphia, Sept. 3, 1739, and on this same ship was one Mathew Onbolt, who was, very likely, a brother. In 1759, in Heidelberg township, lived one Sebastian Obold, who paid a federal tax of ten pounds. We have no record of any children, or that he was related to Joseph Obold, but it is probable that there was some relationship between them.

Joseph Obold, the great-grandfather of Harold, died during the building of the Union Canal, where he contracted a fever. He was a farmer by occupation, owning upwards of 300 acres of land in Penn and North Heidelberg townships, this being subsequently divided among his children, and he was also the owner of "Obold's (later Mount Pleasant) Hotel." Among others he had these children: Rebecca, m. to Andreas Greth; Elizabeth, m. to Benjamin Haas; Mrs. Umbenhauer; Joseph, who had an only daughter m. to James Christ, of Reading; George; and Philip, who made his will March 27, 1843, it being probated June 17, 1843. The last named was a yeoman of Penn township. His wife was Susanna, and they had a number of children, among whom were: Elias, who was executor of the will; and Sophia and Philip, who were under age at the time of their father's death. Their uncle, George Obold, was their guardian.

George Obold, grandfather of Harold, was born in Penn township, in 1800, and died in 1854. He was a tanner by trade, and later became a farmer and dealer in grain, having a station along the Union Canal. He is buried in the private Catholic cemetery in Penn township, the ground for which was donated by the Obolds, Kisslings and Deppens, who were all Catholics, as were the Smiths, Greths, Balthasers, Lamberts and Eckenroths, all of these families being related by marriage. George Obold was married to Rebecca Fisher (born in 1812, died in 1897), and they had these children: William; Alfred; John; Frank; and Henry, who had three children—Hiester, Bertha and Nevin.

John Obold, father of Harold, was born in North Heidelberg township, Feb. 26, 1836, and resided in his native locality until reaching his tenth year, at which time he came to Reading, and spent two years in this city with his parents. He then removed to Lower Heidelberg township, where he worked on the farm until fifteen years of age, and at this time again came to Reading with his parents, attending school here for a short time. He was employed in a grocery store on South Fifth street, the site of the present city hall, for three years, and he then learned the machinist's trade with the Nobles at Front and Pine streets, an occupation which he followed for one and one-half years. For more than twenty years Mr. Obold was employed in George Lerch's hardware store, where the Bright & Co.'s hardware store is now located. In 1862 he enlisted and was made a lieutenant in Company K, 128th Pa. V. I., and served nine months. He was captured at Chancellorsville, May 3, 1863, and for three weeks was confined at Libby Prison, when he was paroled and exchanged. During the time of Lee's invasion of Pennsylvania he formed Company H, 42d Pa. Vol. Militia, which served six weeks and was mustered out at Reading. He was ever a brave and faithful soldier, and his war record is one of which any man might well be proud. After his services to his country were completed, Mr. Obold returned to the Lerch hardware store, but he subsequently formed a partnership in the same line, with J. T. Jackson, under the firm name of Jackson & Obold, a connection with which he was identified until his election to the office of city treasurer in 1888, which he served for four years and then resigned, since which time he has lived retired, making his home with his son, Harold.

In August, 1862, Mr. Obold was married to Susan Fichthorn, daughter of George Fichthorn, and she died in 1894, aged fifty-seven years. To Mr. and Mrs. Obold there were born these children: George C.; William and Annie, deceased; Emily; Kate; Mary; Harold and John.

Harold Obold received his education in the public schools of Reading, and when only six years of age began selling newspapers after school hours for George Frame, dealing in the Saturday Evening Review. Later he entered the employ of the Reading Eagle, as a carrier under Charles Frame, and in the morning carried the Reading Times for Thomas Frescolm. He continued selling papers from his sixth until his fifteenth year, at which time he entered the employ of the Reading Stove Works, where he remained for twelve years in different departments, and the following six years he was a bar clerk at different stands in Reading. For fourteen months he carried on a retail grocery business at the corner of Second and Spruce streets, Reading. Since 1901 he has been the proprietor of the "West End Hotel," at No. 129 Penn street.

Mr. Obold is connected with Reading Aerie No. 66, F. O. E. and Unamis Tribe No. 330, I. O. R. M. He is also a member of the West End Social Club, the Independent Gun Club and the Neversink Fire Company, with which he has been connected since 1889. Mr. Obold has represented the fire company at various State conventions, and at present is holding the office of captain of the organization.

On May 2, 1891, Mr. Obold was married to Mary C. Murphy, daughter of Charles Murphy, of Ontelaunee township, and one daughter, Susan, has been born to this union.

DANIEL E. HARING, an undertaker at Friedensburg, was born in Ruscombmanor township, May 30, 1847, a son of Philip, a resident of Earl township.

Georg Haring (Hering or Herring), the pioneer ancestor of this family, settled in Greenwich township, Berks county, prior to 1756, in which year his name first appears on the list of taxables published in Rupp's History of Berks county. This was probably the same Joh. Georg Christoph Haring, who emigrated to America on the ship "Edinburgh," which qualified at Philadelphia, Oct. 2, 1753. He was then twenty-five years of age. The tax list in Greenwich township in 1775 records both George Haring and John Haring. In 1778 appear George Haring and Widow Haring, but no John. In 1799 are recorded the names of George John Haring and Jno. George Haring. After 1803 John Haring disappears from the Greenwich tax list, as he had then located in Earl. He was probably a son of George and grandson of the pioneer ancestor.

George Haring died in Greenwich in 1885 at an advanced age. He lived below Grimville, on the upper floor of the old mill (which since his death has been unoccupied), and his reputation for psychic powers was wide spread. George Haring married Hannah Georg, and they had two sons: George, who located in Maxatawny township, and has a son, George; and Charles.

Charles Haring, son of George, lived on farm at the line of Maxatawny township, Berks county, and Weisenburg township, Lehigh county, the line passing between the house and barn, the former being in Berks county and the latter in Lehigh. Mr. Haring married Rebecca Leiby, and they had seven children: Mary, Abbie, Addison L., George (of Siegersville), Penrose M. and Henry and John (both of Topeka, Kans.).

Addison L. Haring, son of Charles, resides in Greenwich township. For five terms he taught school. In 1883 he moved to Kansas, and remained there seven years. On his return to Berks county he bought Dietrich's Mill, at Dreibelbis, on the Ontelaunee, and has since operated it. He married Susanna Dietrich, daughter of Venus Dietrich, of Greenwich, and their children are: William, George, Charles, Alice and Calvin.

Penrose M. Haring, son of Charles, was born in Greenwich township, March 2, 1858, and taught school twelve terms in Albany, Greenwich and Maxatawny townships. In 1882 he began farming in Maxatawny township, and has since continued. In 1881 he married Amelia S. Komp, daughter of Benjamin and Elizabeth (Wisser) Komp, and they have two children: Cora and Ambrose B. C.

John Haring, grandfather of Daniel E., was born in Greenwich township, and lived there until about 1800, when he went to Earl township, and there he died advanced in years. He married Christina Delp, and among their children was a son, Philip.

Philip Haring, son of John, was born Sept. 15, 1824, and died in 1909. He owned a farm in Earl township, which he cultivated. He married Matilda Eckert, born Nov. 16, 1828, and died Sept. 6, 1884. They had twelve children: Daniel E., born May 30, 1847; Isaac, Jan. 22, 1849 (died Jan. 5, 1881); Peter, 1850; William, 1853; James, 1856; John, 1859; Mary, 1862; Samuel, 1863; Joseph, Nov. 22, 1865 (died Sept. 29, 1884); Anna Matilda, 1871; Katie; and Sarah (1868-1869).

On March 20, 1865, Daniel E. Haring enlisted in Company I, 105th Pa. V. I. He participated in the battle of Petersburg, and was present at the surrender of Gen. Robert E. Lee. At the close of the war he was mustered out. Coming back home he learned cabinetmaking and undertaking at Pikeville, in Pike township, with Henry Yerger. After remaining with him twenty months, Mr. Haring embarked in business for himself in Earl township, where he had a home and twelve acres of land. There he remained for thirty-five years and then removed to Oley township, which since the spring of 1893 has been his home. His undertaking establishment is in South Friedensburg, in the old public school building. He graduated from the Massachusetts College of Embalming, Oct. 8, 1897. Mr. Haring has been called upon to prepare 450 people for their last resting place, and he is not only a skilled operator, but his sympathy and reliability have proven very comforting to the afflicted.

In politics Mr. Haring is a Democrat, and for five years served as constable of Earl township. He is an industrious, honest and highly respected man, and one who has through thoroughness of business methods built up a large patronage and firmly established himself in the confidence of the community. He and his family are members of Oley Reformed Church, of which he was deacon for three years, and elder for four years.

In 1870 Mr. Haring married Catharine Hartline, daughter of Benjamin and Anna (Bierman) Hartline, of Earl township. They have had children as follows: Amanda m. Calvin Kline, of Oley; Sallie m. Charles Weiser, of Spring Forge, Earl township; Anna m. Thomas Gift, of Jacksonwald; Daniel is in the navy; George died at the age of seventeen; and Calvin died at the age of nine months.

WILLIAM ENGLE, a representative citizen and substantial farmer of Perry township, Berks Co., Pa., was born on the farm on which he now resides, April 9, 1850, son of Heinrich and Susanna (Baer) Engle, and grandson of Jacob Engle.

Jacob Engle, great-grandfather of William and the progenitor of this family in America, was a native of Germany, from which country he came on the ship "Friendship" during the Austrian war (1741-48). After living in America for some time the French and Indian war broke out here, and he returned to his native country, whence he again came to America after the close of the latter struggle. He then settled in Windsor (now Perry) township on land now in the possession of his great-grandson, Jacob S. Engle, and here he died in the latter part of the eighteenth century from the effects of a horse kick.

Jacob Engle, son of the emigrant, was born in Perry township, March 21, 1795, and died there March 16, 1870. He was an agriculturist and owned the Engle homestead of 212 acres, and frequently drove to market in Reading. He was a very intelligent man and was well-read, owning a large library. He took a great interest in educational matters and was one of the stanchest supporters of the free school system. Mr. Engle married Catherine Rahn, who bore him these children: Rebecca, Heinrich, John, Susan, Sabilla, Israel R., Reuben, Sarah and Caroline, the latter three of whom died young.

Heinrich Engle, father of William, was born in Windsor township, Oct. 5, 1820, and died in Perry township in 1900. He was engaged in agricultural pursuits all of his life and was a very influential man in his community, serving as school director of his township, and assisting in many ways toward the welfare of his locality. He was an official member of Zion's Union Church, to which his family also belonged. In 1846 Mr. Engle married Susanna Baer, daughter of Johan Jacob Baer, and to them were born these children: William; Isabella, m. to Adam Schappell; Priscilla, m. to Charles B. Reppert, a successful farmer and dairyman of Perry township; and Jacob.

William Engle obtained a limited education in the schools of his native township and for a number of years worked for his father at farm labor. He now owns and operates the eighty-acre tract, which his son Franklin helps him cultivate. He owns a seven-horse-power gasoline engine, which he uses to thresh, saw wood, and which also furnishes power to operate a machine that grinds all of the grain used by Mr. Engle in feeding his stock. He is a good, practical agriculturist, and a representative of his community. Politically Mr. Engle is a Democrat, but he has never held public office. He is interested in church work, and with his family worships at Zion's Union Church, of which he is a Reformed member. He was an elder in the church for three years.

On Dec. 10, 1870, Mr. Engle was married to Catherine Isabella Bausher, daughter of Benneville and Christina (Stoyer) Bausher, farming people of Windsor township, and to this union have been born five children, namely: Henry R., who died when seven years old; Ellen S., m. to John Wanner; Franklin, m. to Katie, daughter of Ephriam Dries; Senora, m. to George Young; and Daniel J., who died in his third year.

ADDISON W. BORRY, an enterprising young business man of No. 826 Elm street, Reading, Pa., engaged in carpentering and contracting, was born July 24, 1877, in Clay township, Lancaster county, son of Adam and Harriet (Wolf) Borry.

Henry Borry, grandfather of Addison W., was a resident of Lancaster county, and there spent a long and useful life. To him and his wife were born the following children: Jacob, Henry, Rebecca, Adam, Samuel, Fienna, Hiram, John and Eli.

Adam Borry attended the schools of his native township and when a boy learned the shoemaker's trade, which he followed several years. He then was employed in a planing mill for a few years, after which he engaged in agricultural pursuits, in which he has continued to the present time, owning a farm in Clay township. Adam Borry was united in marriage with Harriet Wolf, and they became the parents of these children: Lillie, Rebecca, Angeline, Emily (deceased), Moses, Addison W., Samuel (of Reading), Henry, Lydia, and one child that died in infancy.

Addison W. Borry attained his education in the public schools of Clay township, and when a young man learned the carpenter's trade. He came to Reading in 1900, and was employed at the car shops for three months, was then employed by the roadway department of the Philadelphia & Reading Company, was with Beard & Co., E. Dempman and H. Hickman, and finally engaged in business on his own account, July 27, 1903, his first piece of work being done on a residence on Fourth street. Since that time Mr. Borry's work has been in demand, and he employs five skilled workmen as assistants.

Mr. Borry was married to Lillian Heck, of Reading, and to them have been born the following children: Clarence, deceased; Grace; Catherine; Mary; Nomand and Ruth. In politics Mr. Borry is a Republican, but he has never engaged actively in public matters. He is a member of the Evangelical Church. Mr. and Mrs. Borry are very popular in their community, having made many warm friends.

CALVIN W. ARTZ, a popular business man of Reading, Pa., who is enjoying well-merited success as the proprietor of the "Avondale Hotel" at Riverside, was born Dec. 27, 1864, at Kleinfeltersville, Lebanon Co., Pa., son of Daniel and Lizzie (Weaver) Artz.

Benjamin Artz, grandfather of Calvin W., spent his entire life in the vicinity of Mohn's Hill, where he was engaged as a farm laborer. He married and had eleven children, as follows: William, Biram, John, Jacob, Levi, Abraham, Samuel, James, Benneville, Daniel and Mary (m. Abraham Lutz, of Adamstown, Pa).

Daniel Artz, father of Calvin W., was born April 6, 1838, at Mohn's Hill, Spring township, Lebanon county, where he was reared to agricultural pursuits. Later he became a shoemaker, an occupation which he followed at Kleinfeltersville, Lebanon county, for five years, then removing to one mile north of Terre Hill, near Good's Mill, in Lancaster county, where he has resided for many years. Mr. Artz is a member of the Evangelical Church. He married Lizzie Weaver, daughter of Jacob Weaver, and to this union there were born children as follows: David, of Terre Hill; Calvin W.; Isaac, an agriculturist of Luzerne county, Pa.; Lemuel, who lives with his parents; and Morris, who died in infancy.

Calvin W. Artz attended the public school at White Hollow, Lancaster Co., Pa., and learned the cigar making trade of Abner Cline at Terre Hill, where he continued that occupation for six years, then becoming clerk in the general store of Samuel Wechter. Here he continued for eight and one-half years, and in 1893 he came to Reading and entered the employ of J. S. Shade & Sons, becoming a clerk in their well-known dry goods establishment. In 1899, deciding to enter into business on his own account, Mr. Artz engaged in the grocery business on South Seventh street, where he was located until 1907, on Sept. 7th of which year he became the proprietor of the well-known "Avondale Hotel," a forty-room hostelry at Riverside, which he has successfully conducted to the present time. Fraternally Mr. Artz is connected with Terre Hill Lodge, No. 454, I. O. O. F.; the P. O. S. of A., Terre Hill; the Knights of Malta, Commandery No. 47; and Wyomissing Council No. 1158, Royal Arcanum.

On Aug. 5, 1887, Mr. Artz was married to Lizzie Heller, daughter of Jeremiah and Maria (Lorah) Heller, and four children have been born to this union, namely: Mamie, who died in infancy; Grace, Maud, and Stanford, who died when young. The Misses Grace and Maud Artz are vaudeville entertainers of great ability and have won quite a reputation in this line not only in Reading, but throughout the entire county. Among their specialties may be mentioned the Fling Dance, Kildy Sword Dance, Sand Jig, Waltz Clog, Slide Trombone Playing and Duets. The family is well known in this section of the State, and has always borne the reputation of representing the highest type of citizenship.

WILLIAM L. WUNDER, a leading basket manufacturer of Reading, although a native of Broome county, N. Y., born in 1860, has spent nearly all his life in Pennsylvania, as his father moved to Reading in the sixties.

Mr. Wunder's father was a tailor by trade and during the Civil war was under contract to furnish the government with soldiers' clothing. He accumulated quite a fortune, as he was eminently successful in the management of his business, but through carelessness he lost it all again. He married Miss Elizabeth Cook, daughter of Jacob Cook, who was a noted basket maker and manufactured his goods on an extensive scale. Two children were born to this union, the elder of whom died in infancy.

During his boyhood William L. Wunder attended the Reading public schools and afterward worked in Jackson's Rope Walk for three years. Both his parents were adepts in basket making, and the boy's natural interest therein was increased by seeing the work of a band of gypsies from whom he, too, learned the art. So proficient did he become under their tutelage that he went to Philadelphia and opened a business there at Nineteenth and Market streets. He continued for two years and did very well indeed, considering the exceedingly limited capital at his disposal. In 1879 he decided to return to Reading and establish himself there instead. His beginning was humble, for at first he rented only the basement of the store he now occupies, and he spent many long, dreary months in those cramped quarters before he felt justified in renting the store proper and extending his business.

He branched out into the manufacturing of baby carriages, in which line he still has a monopoly in Reading, and later added fishing tackle and toys. Today he conducts one of the most thriving industries in the city, and is the only basket manufacturer there doing business on the ground floor. His goods are of a superior quality and make, and he has all the orders he can fill. His wife helps him in the conduct of the store and renders him most able assistance.

In 1885 Mr. Wunder married Miss Ellen Kapp, their only son, Claude, m. Miss Irene Burkhart, and has a son, William M. In politics Mr. Wunder maintains always an independent stand, seeking to vote for the best candidate regardless of party lines. Himself a great lover of the rod and gun, he was the originator of the petition now being circulated to secure the repeal of the Sunday fishing law. His efforts in this are put forth in the interests of the working man, who has no other opportunity to indulge in that healthful and pleasing recreation. Mr. Wunder has worked hard to attain his established position, and thoroughly deserves the respect which his successful efforts have won for him from Reading's business circles.

DININO. One of the largest fruit commission houses in Reading is that owned by Pietro and Elmer Dinino, who carry on both an importing and retail business. They are of Italian stock, born in the province of Lucca, where their parents, Frank and Maria (Barsotti) Dinino, spent their entire lives. The father was a farmer and fruit grower on an extensive scale, pursuing that occupation till his death in 1879, at the age of seventy-one. Of the ten children in his family, five only are living; two daughters reside in Italy, while three sons, Pietro, Charles and Elmer, are in business in Reading. The three were educated in Italy, but sought to establish themselves elsewhere early in life.

Pietro Dinino was but twelve years old when he left home. He spent three years in Germany before returning to Italy at all, and then made only a brief stay. He went back to Germany, but later removed to London and from there came to America, landing at Philadelphia. He had learned to do ornamental statuary work, and for the first three years in this country he had employment in that line, traveling through New Jersey, Pennsylvania, New York and Ohio. In 1886 he came to Reading, continued his statuary work for three months, and then for the first time took up the fruit business. Shortly after he decided to locate in Williamsport instead, but after a brief trial returned to Reading and has been successfully engaged here ever since.

Mr. Dinino's place of business is No. 701 Penn street, and he deals on an extensive scale in all kinds of imported and domestic fruits, canned goods, candies, cigars, tobacco, etc. He is ably assisted by his brother Elmer, who attends to the retail side of the business and they are among the largest dealers in their class of goods in the city. Both are young men of great ability and enterprise, and have reaped substantial financial returns.

LEWIS M. WARTMAN, who conducts a cigar and tobacco business at Boyertown, is interested in other enterprises here, and owns two valuable and productive farms. He was born March 30, 1842, in New Hanover township, Montgomery Co., Pa., son of Israel and Anna Margaret (Geiger) Wartman.

Israel Wartman was born Aug. 15, 1795, in Douglass township, Montgomery county, and died Oct. 29, 1879, in the seventy-fifth year of his age. He was a saddler by trade and also understood the carpenter trade and later in life he became a farmer and cultivated his tract of fifteen acres in New Hanover township, where his death occurred. He was buried in the Wartman family lot at Boyertown. He was a man of exemplary life, and was a member of the Lutheran Church. He married Anna Margaret Geiger, daughter of Dieter and Elizabeth (Rhoads) Geiger, of New Hanover township. They had the following children: Caroline, who died unmarried; Almon, who lives in Chester county; Abraham, who resides at Reading; Julia Ann, who lives at Boyertown; and Lewis M., who resides in his own residence on Philadelphia avenue, Boyertown.

Lewis M. Wartman attended the public schools in the district where he was born and later was a student at Frederick Institute, in Montgomery county, and was subsequently licensed to teach by Prof. Robert Cruikshank. In the fall of 1860 he taught his first term, in New Hanover township, and in all, taught twelve terms, all in the same locality except one term at Boyertown. He then accepted the position of warehouseman for the Philadelphia & Reading R. R. and after one year's service, was promoted to be station agent at Byers, on the Pickering Valley branch of the Reading system. There he remained for two and one-half years, and then had his second promotion, being sent to the more important point, Womelsdorf, where he was continued from 1874 until January, 1879, when he became agent at Boyertown, and remained in that office until he retired from railroad work, Feb. 6, 1902.

Mr. Wartman then entered the Koons cigar-box factory and continued there and was also engaged in superintending his farms, until 1908, when he bought out J. W. Bauman, dealer in cigars and tobacco, at Boyertown. He is interested also in the Union Manufacturing Company. One of his farms, a tract of forty-five acres, is situated in Colebrookdale township, Berks county, and the other, containing ninety acres, lies in Douglass township, Montgomery county. He is numbered with the substantial as well as representative citizens of this borough.

In 1870, Mr. Wartman was married to Susan B. Scheetz, daughter of David K. and Mary (Bower) Scheetz, of Amity township, Berks Co., Pa. They have one daughter, Maggie May, who married Charles H. Sassaman, who has a fine art store in Philadelphia. Mr. Sassaman is a son of Jacob H. Sassaman, formerly sheriff of Berks county.

In his political views, Mr. Wartman has always been a Democrat and a willing worker for his party. For fifteen consecutive years he served as a school director at Boyertown and rendered the borough valuable services in the interest of advanced education. For one term he served as a justice of the peace, and since the spring of 1908, has been assessor of the borough.

F. H. QUINTER, proprietor of a shoe store located at No. 950 Chestnut street, Reading, has only followed a family custom in choosing his occupation, for his father and grandfather before him had been shoemakers.

The paternal grandfather, Peter Quinter, combined farming and shoemaking. He married (first) a Miss Ulrich, by whom he had four children, viz.: Joseph; Jeremiah; Ellen, wife of David Rider; and Mary M., Mrs. William Potts. By a second union to Miss Susan Bechtel, there was an only child, William B. Peter Quinter died in 1866, in the Lutheran faith.

William B. Quinter followed his father's trade and during most of his lifetime was established at Lorane. He married Miss Sarah Himmelreich, and they had a family of seven children as follows: Mary, Mrs. Nathaniel Young; Agnes, Mrs. Henry Moser; Ella, Mrs. Joseph Flickinger; F. H.; Calvin; John; and William. The mother died in 1876, aged thirty-six, while Mr. Quinter died at Stowe, in 1896, at the age of sixty-six years. He was politically an adherent of the Republican party.

F. H. Quinter was born in Lorane in the State of Pennsylvania in January, 1860. He grew up in Berks county, receiving his education in the public schools, and learning the shoemaker's trade from his father. At the age of twenty he went to Geigertown and for three years worked there with a Mr. Hoffman. In 1883 he located in Reading and bought the property where he still carries on his business. The store building now in use was on the property at the time, and Mr. Quinter put in a good stock of shoes, boots and rubbers. He has done well from the beginning, has a thriving trade, and has won the entire esteem of the community by his honest business methods.

In the same year of his removal to Reading, Mr. Quinter was married on Jan. 25, to Miss Rebecca Myers, who died in 1891 at the age of thirty-two years. Two years later in 1893, he married Miss Alice Eisenhower, by whom he has had two daughters, Sarah Alma and Norma Marion. Mr. Quinter, with his family, belongs to Grace Lutheran Church, of Reading, while fraternally he is a member of the Royal Arcanum. While the management of his business has left him no time to mingle actively in politics, he is a loyal supporter of the Republican party.

CHARLES E. SPAYD, of West Leesport, Pa., was born there Feb. 10, 1860, son of Samuel and Susan (Gauger) Spayd, and a member of a family that was planted in this country in 1753, the date of the arrival of the emigrant ancestor on the ship "Rowand." In 1790 the Federal census records Henry, Sebastian, John and Philip as taxables of Heidelberg township, Berks county. Henry Spead had three sons under sixteen years of age, and two daughters; Sebastian Spead had one son over sixteen, three under sixteen and three daughters. John Spead was married and had one daughter.

Philip Spayd, great-grandfather of Charles E., is reported by the Federal census of 1790 as a resident of Heidelberg township, and as married and having one daughter. His son John was born two years later in 1792.

John Spayd, son of Philip, was born Feb. 16, 1792, and died Feb. 6, 1860, and is buried at Epler's Church, of which he was a Reformed member. He lived in Bern township, in the vicinity of West Leesport, where he followed the trade of carpenter. He married Elizabeth Albrecht, born April 6, 1791, daughter of Jacob and Magdalena Albrecht, and she died March 28, 1846. Their children were: John, who followed the trade of carpenter at Leesport and became the owner of considerable real estate, had children—George and Emma—by his first marriage; Daniel, a cooper by trade, lived at Reading; William, a carpenter at Leesport, m. Louisa Loose, and had children—Helen, Ella, Sallie, Minerva, Louisa, Kate, Howard, Rufus L. and William, Jr.; Samuel is mentioned below; Elizabeth died unmarried; and Mary m. Adam Gehry, of Reading.

Samuel Spayd, son of John, was born in Bern township Feb. 25, 1831, and died at West Leesport March 14, 1892, and was buried at Leesport. He was a carpenter and cabinet maker, and for many years followed the undertaking business at West Leesport. He was an active member of Trinity Reformed Church, and was a deacon for some years. For many years he was treasurer of the Leesport Lodge of Odd Fellows, and was also active in the Sr. O. U. A. M. He was the owner of three houses besides his own home, and was well known in business circles. In politics he was a Republican. He married Susan Gauger, daughter of John and Mary (Powley) Gauger. She is still living. Their children were: Charles E.; Samuel, of West Leesport; Carrie, who died aged eleven years; and John G., bookkeeper for the Reading Lumber Company.

Charles E. Spayd received his education in the public schools of Bern township, and later attended Palatinate College at Myerstown. At the age of thirteen he began clerking in the general store of S. H. Lenhart, at West Leesport, where he was employed for a period of eighteen years. From 1892 to 1895 he was in business with M. T. Schlappig, under the firm name of Spayd & Schlappig, and they carried on a general merchandise business at West Leesport. In July, 1898, Mr. Spayd became a salesman for the wholesale notion house of Sheibley, Tyler & Co., of Philadelphia, traveling all over Berks and Lancaster counties. He resides with his family at West Leesport, which is one of the boroughs of Berks county. He is a man of intelligence and enterprise, and was instrumental in securing the incorporation of the borough, becoming one of the first councilmen, serving in that body seven years, during all of which time he was the secretary. In politics he is a Republican, and he is interested in all public movements.

In church life Mr. Spayd is especially active. He belongs to Trinity Reformed Church, of Leesport, of which he was deacon, and in 1909 was elected an elder of the church. He is superintendent of the Union Sunday-school, an office he has held since 1898. He is a member of Leesport Lodge, No. 141, I. O. O. F.; Senior O. U. A. M., No. 141; Knights of the Golden Eagle; Independent Americans; and Daughters of Rebekah.

On Jan. 30, 1891, Mr. Spayd married Miss Alvesta Schearer, born June 8, 1859, daughter of Reuben and Rebecca Schearer, of Allentown. Mrs. Spayd died Dec. 22, 1904, and was buried at Leesport. Two sons were born to this union, namely: Samuel N., a stenographer; and Paul R., a student still in school.

REUBEN SINDEL, a substantial business man of Reading, Pa., who is engaged in the grocery business at the corner of Sixth and Laurel streets, was born Dec. 3, 1862, in Lancaster county, Pa., son of George and Lydia (Hagy) Sindel.

George Sindel came from Germany to the United States in 1847, being the only one of his family to come to this country. He had engaged in the milling business in the old country, and on locating in Lancaster county engaged in that occupation there and in Chester county. He died in 1894; his wife was a native of Lancaster county and a sister of William Hagy, of Reading. Fifteen children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Sindel, six of whom grew to maturity, they being: George H., deceased, a miller by trade; Edwin H., a grocer of Reading; Mary A., m. to A. S. Aston of Safe Harbor; John A., a locksmith of Reading; Reuben; and Emma L., single, of Reading, forelady of the Mt. Penn Box Factory. In religious belief the family were first Lutherans, but later became converted to the belief of the Methodist Episcopal faith. Mr. Sindel was Democrat in politics.

Reuben Sindel was educated in the schools of Lancaster county and Reading, and his first employment was as a clerk in the grocery store of William Morris, with whom he remained eight years, then engaging in stove moulding for two years with Painter & Co. Mr. Sindel then went to Chester county, where he was engaged in the grocery business for four years. After selling out Mr. Sindel returned to Reading, clerking in Bright & Co.'s hardware store for one year, and then, in 1890, engaged in his present business at the corner of Sixth and Laurel streets, where he keeps constantly on hand a full line of fancy and staple groceries, notions and dry goods. Mr. Sindel is affable and courteous, and his honest business methods have won the confidence of a large trade. He is regarded as one of the substantial and representative business men in his line in the city.

Mr. Sindel was married in 1884, to Miss Emma Pflugfelter, and to this union were born five children: Wilber G., a salesman for the National Biscuit Co., of Reading; Leroy J. E.; Ralph L.; Emma C., deceased, and an infant, deceased. Mr. Sindel is fraternally connected with the Maccabees, Reading Tent, and in political matters he is a Republican. He attends the Methodist Episcopal Church.

MATTHIAS KLUSEWITZ, a well known citizen of Reading, Pa., died at his residence No. 25 South Tenth street, July 16, 1906. He was born in the vicinity of Graudenz, Germany, a town which was originally a hamlet in Poland, but owing to the wars that frequently ensued, in a series of rebellions, was ceded to Germany. In these struggles, however, Mr. Klusewitz at no time took part.

At the age of fifteen years Mr. Klusewitz left home, going to Graudenz, where he learned the trade of blacksmithing, and found employment in Barmen, a German town. Here he remained for a few years, after which he traveled from one town to another through Europe. Thinking that possibly he might better his fortune in America, he accordingly set sail with his wife in 1848, and arrived in Philadelphia, from which city, after several years, he came to Reading. He was the pioneer Polander in this city, and was the first man to obtain employment for a fellow countryman at the Reading Pipe Mills. Upon his arrival in Reading he started in business at Seventh and Cherry streets, and then opened a shop at Canal and Bingaman streets, where he continued one year, when he accepted a position at the Scott Works. Following this he became a foreman at the forge of the Philadelphia & Reading shops, his work being the making of springs for the cars, and he also had charge over the boilermaking department. Subsequently Mr. Klusewitz engaged in the real estate business, in which he was quite successful.

Mr. Klusewitz was a man of considerable means. He was an active church worker. When he came to Reading he joined St. Peter's Catholic Church, later St. Paul's and lastly St. Mary's Polish Catholic Church, of which he was one of the founders. He was patriotic, and assisted those who came from his native land.

Mr. Klusewitz was married (first) to Catharine Katmund, born at Gaennersdorf, Rhein-Preussen, Germany, but there were no children born to this union, and he and his wife adopted and reared: Lawrence; Elizabeth; Edward; Kate and Henry Adams; Josephine Smeagy and Anna. Mr. Klusewitz m. (second) Elizabeth Klaes, daughter of John Joseph Klaes, who came to America Nov. 11, 1881, from Germany. She located in Reading, where she married Mr. Klusewitz Feb. 14, 1886, at St. Paul's Catholic Church, and they became the parents of these children: Matthew A., attending Stoner's Business College; Peter G., at the same college; Martha Elizabeth, attending boarding school; Andrew J. F., attending school; and Matthias, Margaret and Michael, deceased. Mrs. Klusewitz resides at the Tenth street home. She has in her possession, and greatly values, an old family book, brought from Germany, which is 360 years old, it having been printed by one of the first printing-presses at Strassburg, Germany.

MORRIS H. KLINE, one of the leading citizens of Earl township, Berks county, where he is a large property owner, was born in Exeter township, this county, July 19, 1855, son of Cyrus H. and Phoebe (Hoffman) Kline.

Jacob Kline, grandfather of Morris H., was a native of Amity township, Berks county, and there he died on his farm. For some years he lived in Exeter township, on a farm near the Amity township line, the farm being now the property of Alfred Dietrich. He then returned to Amity township, and was engaged in the cultivation of his sixty-acre farm at the time of his death. In 1790, the first Federal census report shows him a resident of Amity township, and the head of a family of twelve persons, as follows: himself, wife, four sons above sixteen years of age, three sons under sixteen and three daughters. His wife was a Holloway, and among their children were: George, who settled in the West; Daniel, who lived at Coplay, Lehigh Co., Pa.; Cyrus H.; Rufus, a machinist at Pottstown; and Jacob, a cooper of Amity township, who married Elizabeth Rhoads (daughter of Abraham), and had children—James, Frank, Albert, Charles, and Ada (m. Samuel Shurr, of Monocacy Station).

Cyrus H. Kline was born in Amity township Jan. 22, 1822, and died at the Spring Forge Jan. 23, 1875. He was a wheelwright and blacksmith, and is said to have been one of the best all round mechanics of his day. He owned a small tract at Weavertown, where he lived about fifteen years before the Civil war. He learned his trade with Peter Turner. In religious faith, both he and his wife, Phoebe Hoffman, were Lutherans. She was born Nov. 22, 1822, and died Feb. 15, 1905. They were the parents of seven children: Horace, 1848-1851; Sarah, 1852-1861; Mary, 1853-1862; Morris H.; Cyrus, of Pottstown; Jacob, who works for his brother Morris H.; and Annie, deceased wife of Clemson Rhoads.

Morris H. Kline obtained a limited education in the township schools in Amity and Earl townships. He learned the wheelwright's trade from his father when quite young, and this he followed until his father died. In 1875 he began for himself at the old Spring Forge in Earl township, where he now lives. He is still engaged in this business and now employs two men. He has made many new wagons in his time—making the entire wagon right out of the logs. His wagons gave good service, and many of them are still in use in the lower end of the county. Up to 1883 he had rented the Spring Forge, from Matthias Mengel, but that year he bought it. In 1884 he suffered from a disastrous fire, but undismayed he started out again, and by thrift and honesty has built up a larger and more extensive business. He built a new building, and has a planer, and all kinds of modern machinery in his planing mill. He owns and operates Kline's sawmill at the same place, and saws more lumber than any one else in this section. In his property there are fifty-four acres mostly of wood and waste land. From about 1810 this was the Shenkel Bertolet property, and after his day it became the property of the Mengels. The Spring Forge was operated by Shenkel Bertolet first, then by Jacob Snell and Marks Darrah. The forge was operated up to 1865, and stood where Mr. Kline has his wheelwright shop. The charcoal house was built in 1810 by the Bertolets, and there Mr. Kline has his chicken house. The stone dwelling was built before 1810. The old sawmill, built in 1835, by Levi Smith, is still standing but no longer operated. The old house near the sawmill was built in 1835, and was used for making the old horse-powers and the crude threshing devices of early days. Mr. Kline owns different tracts of hill land, a total of about 130 acres. He bought the old Cyrus Davidheiser tract of six acres, May 1, 1909, and this he is improving greatly.

Mr. Kline is one of the most substantial men of the township, and has made extensive investments in first mortgages and bank stock. In politics he is a Democrat, and for six years served as auditor of Earl township, and has been delegate to several county conventions. He is a member of the Knights of the Golden Eagle at Athol. He and his family are Lutheran members of Amityville Church, and he has been deacon, and is now elder, an office he has held some years.

On Oct. 28, 1876, Mr. Kline married Mary A. Moyer, daughter of Abraham Moyer, of Hereford, where he has kept the tollgate at Clayton. Mr. Moyer was a Mennonite.

CHARLES F. SANDERS, engineer to the county commissioners of Reading, is a grandson of Jacob Sanders, who was a resident of Kutztown, where his father had also resided. His son, the father of Charles F., was born and reared in Kutztown, and died at the age of seventy-four years. The mother of Charles F., whose maiden name was Sarah Henry, was a daughter of Jacob Henry, of Rockland township, Berks county.

Charles F. Sanders was born in Kutztown, April 1, 1873, and received his education in the Kutztown Normal school, from which he was graduated in 1889. He entered Lehigh University, and, after graduating therefrom, in 1897, engaged in civil engineering for the Pennsylvania Railroad at Pittsburg, and at this he continued for three years. He then came to Reading, where he has since been engaged in civil engineering.

Mr. Sanders was married Jan. 2, 1893, to Catherine Tobias, daughter of the late John Tobias, of Bern township, Berks county. Mr. Sanders is connected with the Masonic fraternity, as a member of Huguenot Lodge, No. 377, F. & A. M.; and is connected with the Fraternal Order of Eagles. He is greatly interested in the affairs of the American Society of Civil Engineers, of which he is a member. Politically he is a Democrat. He is a member of the Lutheran Church at Kutztown.

FRANKLIN B. REINERT, of Reading, has been engaged as a contractor and builder in that city since 1884. He is a natural mechanic, and though he never served an apprenticeship to any trade is a skillful worker in many lines.

Mr. Reinert is a member of an old family of Berks county, being a grandson of Peter Reinert, who was a large land holder, owning the famous Reinert Hill property. He was prosperous in business, and was considered very well-to-do for his day. He married Mary Bortz, and they had a family of thirteen children, namely: Elizabeth, George, Jacob, John, Andrew, Peter, Sarah, Charles, Daniel, Henry, Samuel, Hattie, and Mary (died small). The twelve who lived to maturity all reared large families. This family were Lutherans in religious belief.

Peter Reinert, son of Peter, was born in Berks county and was reared upon a farm. He continued to follow agricultural pursuits all his life, and lived to the advanced age of eighty-two years, dying in 1889. He married Sarah Reppert, daughter of Jacob and Mary (Sheridan) Reppert, and she survived her husband several years, passing away in 1895, at the age of eighty-five. They had children as follows: Elizabeth m. Thomas Bower; John and Jacob both died young; Aaron served as a soldier in the Civil war; Henry also served in that struggle; Charles; Daniel lives in Nebraska; Nathan lives in Lehigh county; Franklin B.; and Sarah m. Nicholas De-Temple. The father of this family was a Lutheran in church connection, the mother a Catholic.

Franklin B. Reinert was born June 8, 1849, in District township, Berks Co., Pa., and there received his education in the common schools and the Kutztown Normal, which he attended in 1870 and 1876. He continued his studies until competent to teach, following the profession for a number of years, during which he was engaged at clerking in Henningsville in the summer months. He combined teaching and clerking in 1871, 1872, 1873, 1875 and 1877. In 1878 he bought and built a home on his mother's homestead. In 1879 he came to Reading, where he has since remained. Though occupied at teaching and merchandising during his earlier manhood, he had always shown a decided predilection for mechanics, and his work has since been along that line. On his removal to Reading he became blacksmith's helper in the Philadelphia & Reading shops. In 1884 he commenced building operations, independently, and from that year until 1892 erected forty houses in all. His success in this work has been steady and noteworthy, the workmanship on every contract he undertakes being reliable and of a high grade. As previously stated, Mr. Reinert has never learned any one trade, but his aptitude is such that he can turn his hand readily to anything in the line of mechanics, from cleaning a watch to building a church. In 1887, at the corner of Tenth and Spring streets, he erected the first United Brethren church, for $800, and in 1900 he built the church at No. 1325 North Tenth street, for the American Salvation Army (this was later sold to the Primitive Methodist Conference for $2,500). In the latter church, the door sills and pavement in front and rear are of cement made from crushed rock and Portland cement. Mr. Reinert can also manufacture all kinds of cutlery, having a variety of accomplishments which he has found very useful in his work. Mr. Reinert is located at No. 1323 North Tenth street. He made the first cement flagstone pavement in Reading in 1892, in front of No. 1323 North Tenth street.

In 1879 Mr. Reinert was married to a daughter of William Border, and they have had two children: Leroy B., born July 11, 1884, who is married to Helen Fleckenstine, and had one child, William L. (died in 1908, and was buried in the first cement lined grave in Alsace cemetery); and Guy, born Sept. 26, 1892.

Mr. Reinert is a stanch Republican, and actively interested in municipal politics, though he has held no offices except that of assessor. Fraternally he is a member of Muhlenberg Lodge, I. O. O. F. On his sixtieth birthday Mr. Reinert devised to the Odd Fellows ground on the northeast corner of Fifteenth and Robeson streets, Reading, to be owned and controlled by them forever.

SOLOMON HIRSHLAND, proprietor of the Reading Pants Manufacturing Company, and one of the city's well-known and representative business men, was born in 1848, in Germany, son of Isaac and Lena (Mayer) Hirshland.

Isaac Hirshland brought his family to America when Solomon was but seven months old, and for a short time resided in New York, where he was engaged in butchering, in which business he was also engaged, in connection with huckstering, after coming to Reading in 1857. He died June 1, 1896, at the age of seventy-six years. Mr. and Mrs. Hirshland had these children: Solomon; Fannie, m. to Isaac Samuels; Lee, and Harry. Isaac Hirshland was a Whig and Republican in politics.

Solomon Hirshland received his education in the schools of Reading, after leaving which he apprenticed himself to the boilermaker's trade, and worked at that occupation until the strike in 1876, when he accepted a position with a Pottsville firm, in whose employ he continued until 1879. In this year he became traveling salesman for the A. J. Brumbach Woolen Co., continuing with that concern until 1882, when the Reading Pants Manufacturing Company was formed by him, his first location being the second floor of the Dives, Pomeroy & Stewart building. In 1896 he came to his present location, No. 533 Penn street, and here, in addition to manufacturing on an average 400 pairs of trousers weekly, makes a specialty of custom tailoring, in which he does an extensive business. Mr. Hirshland is an enterprising, up-to-date business man, of more than ordinary ability, and has always made a success of anything undertaken by him. Fraternally he is connected with Chandler Lodge No. 227, F. & A. M.; Caldwell Consistory, and Rajah Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S.

Mr. Hirshland was married to Miss Fannie P. Levy, of Lawrence, Kans., and to them have been born three children: Lawrence, of the Reading high school, class of 1907; Charles Roy; and Carrie, deceased.

GEORGE GLASS, who died in Reading, April 30, 1893, was born in Robeson township, Berks county, Oct. 25, 1830, son of Jacob and Elizabeth Glass.

Mr. Glass grew up in his native county, attending the schools of Robesonia till he was seventeen, and there he learned the trade of a blacksmith, which continued to be his vocation all his life. For a number of years he remained in Robeson township, but in 1875 he decided to move, and accepted an offer to be blacksmith at the Eckert furnaces, near which he lived for the rest of his life. His death occurred when he was aged sixty-two years, six months and five days, and his remains were interred in the Charles Evans cemetery.

Twice joined in wedlock, Mr. Glass's first wife, whom he married Feb. 7, 1856, was Miss Anna Schlecter. She died leaving four children, as follows: Ida, widow of George Bixler; Calvin, m. to Miss Ellen Krick; Mary, m. to Frank Worley; and Anna, m. to Daniel Kauffman. He m. (second) Sept. 3, 1872, Catherine Lewis, who survives him. She was a daughter of Archibald and Mary (Wesley) Lewis. To this union also four children were born, namely: Ella, wife of H. E. Niebel, a photographer; Luther, employed at the Carpenter Steel Works; Emma, a milliner; and Elsie, a teacher. The late Mr. Glass, as well as the members of his family, belonged to the M. E. Church. He was a member of the local lodge of the K. of P., and in his political affiliations was a stanch Democrat.

WILLIAM EISENBISE, now living retired in Reading, at No. 341 1-2 South Seventh street, has throughout his long life known no other home than that city, in which he was born June 27, 1834.

Peter Eisenbise, father of William, was likewise born in Reading, and made it his lifelong residence. He combined the two vocations of hatter and brick manufacturer, following the latter calling during the summer months. He married Miss Susan Schmeck and several children were born to them, but only three are living, William, James K., and Ann Barbara (wife of George Saylor, of Reading). Peter Eisenbise died a long time before his wife, at the age of fifty-three, a believer in the Lutheran faith. Mrs. Eisenbise died aged seventy-five. She belonged to the Reformed Church.

William Eisenbise was kept in school during his boyhood, and then was put to work carrying brick from a yard, an occupation in which he continued five seasons. Then began his connection with the Whittaker Rolling Mills, which plant was afterward purchased by Messrs. Seyfert & McManus. There Mr. Eisenbise worked for the greater part of his active career, there being but three brief periods when he was otherwise engaged. In 1862 he enlisted for nine months in Company B, 167th P. V. I., and was mustered out at the end of his term as first sergeant. He afterward served in the United States army. Another break occurred when he passed one year operating a hotel, and another five years was spent in the service of the Philadelphia & Reading Railway. But with these exceptions Mr. Eisenbise remained steadily with the one concern and was one of their trusted employes. He retired in 1891, and since then has given his attention to the erection of several houses, which have proved profitable investments.

On June 21, 1855, Mr. Eisenbise married Elvina, daughter of George Bechtold, and their wedded life has extended over more than half a century. Surrounded by their children they celebrated their Golden Wedding anniversary, at their home, No. 341½ South Seventh street. The house was decorated with plants and cut flowers, and red, white and blue streamers ran from the corners of the rooms. The event was made doubly interesting by the marriage of a grandson of the aged couple—Fred G. Schaeffer to Miss Amy Koch. After their wedding they proceeded to the house of the grandparents to help the latter celebrate their golden wedding. Many handsome gifts were exchanged, and a fine supper was served. Mr. and Mrs. Eisenbise were each seventy-one years of age. They were married by Rev. Joseph Young, a former United Brethren Pastor of Reading.

The children of Mr. and Mrs. William Eisenbise were twelve in number: Ada, Peter, William, Alvina, Emma, Alice, George, Harry, Lillie M., Albert, Mary and John. Mr. Eisenbise is a member of the Reformed Church, and fraternally belongs to Lodge No. 62, F. & A. M., while his name is also found on the rolls of the Liberty Fire Company. Politics was always an engrossing interest with him, and he has done much work in support of his chosen party, the Democratic. He was twice a member of the city council from the Second ward, and after his removal from the Second to the Fifth ward, was a delegate from the latter. His life has been quiet and unostentatious, but nevertheless filled with faithful service and real usefulness, and he commands the respect of all who know him.

CHALKLEY WILSON, who is well known to the citizens of Reading, Pa., as an artist in pastel, water color and crayon, resides at No. 302 North Front street. Mr. Wilson was born Oct. 11, 1857, in Newlin township, Chester Co., Pa., son of John and Maria (Speakman) Wilson.

John Wilson, grandfather of Chalkley, was a native of Ireland and came to America in the early part of the eighteenth century. He was a mill man and known as "Slitter John", to distinguish him from the other John Wilsons in the same locality. He was foreman of a forge and rolling mill on Buck and Doe Run in Newlin township, Chester county, and this, in connection with the care of a 132-acre farm was his occupation throughout his active period. He was a well-known man in his day, was a public-spirited citizen, and was highly esteemed by all who knew him. In politics he was a Whig. John Wilson married Ann Bentley, born on the northern boundary of England, and they became the parents of these children: Isaac; Ellis; John; Ann, m. to Horatio Stott; Martha, m. to Moses Ford; Phebe, m. to Martin C. Walker; and Alice. Mrs. Wilson was a Baptist in religious belief, and at the age of seventy-five years walked five miles to Coatesville, to attend divine service. She died in 1865, aged eighty-four years, having survived her husband, who died in 1833, in his fifty-eighth year.

John Wilson, son of John and father of Chalkley, was a heater in the old Joseph Bailey furnace at the Pine Iron works in Montgomery county, but the latter part of his life was spent in agricultural pursuits on the ancestral acres. He died in 1880, in his sixty-fifth year, his wife dying in 1883, when sixty-five years old. They were the parents of the following children: Edmund, deceased, m. Rebecca Maitland, and had children, Mary, Edmund, John and Ellis; Mary E. died unmarried in 1869, aged twenty-four years; Martha, who died in 1902, aged fifty-five years, m. George F. Thomas, and had children, Anna Lou, Clara Warren and Walter; Isaac, born in 1848, m. (first) Rachel Reubincan, who died, and (second) Ella Guyn, and they had children, Ray, Percy and Emma; Joseph B. m. (first) Lucretia Thomas, who died leaving one child, Bertha, and he m. (second) Mary Koch; Ellis, born in 1851, died in Harrisburg in 1907, aged fifty-five years; John S. died in the spring of 1881, aged twenty-seven years; Emma died June 19, 1864; Chalkley; Robert died March 27, 1860, in infancy; Annie M. m. William L. Price, and they have four children, Ernest, Harry, Wilfred and Chalkley; and Richard T. m. Della Bean, and has two children, Bessie and Martha. In religious belief the family were members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. In politics Mr. Wilson was first a Whig and later a Democrat, and he was fraternally connected with the I. O. O. F. for many years, passing through the chairs.

Chalkley Wilson received his early educational training in the public schools of Spruce Grove, Newlin township, Chester county, and remained on the home farm until the death of his parents. The next seven years of his life were spent in and about the iron works, but the last eighteen years have been devoted entirely to his art. Mr. Wilson is an artist of exceptional ability. His portraits in pastel, water color and crayon have attracted widespread attention and earned many words of commendation, while his landscape views find a ready sale among lovers of art in Reading.

In 1886 Mr. Wilson was married to Rebecca H. Jeffers, daughter of Ishmael Jeffers, a native of Newlin township. In his political views Mr. Wilson is a stanch Democrat. He has for a number of years been a member of the Red Men, as well as the Golden Eagles; in the latter he was through all of the chairs, serving as a delegate to Harrisburg in 1890.

J. ADAM HOLZMAN, merchant and postmaster at Tulpehocken, in Jefferson township, Berks county, was born Jan. 26, 1855, in the town where he still resides.

Henry Holzman, his grandfather, was an early settler in Bethel township, near the Blue Mountains, owned land and was one of the well-to-do farmers in his district. He married Barbara Schlassman, and they had six children: Peter, Jacob, John S., Elizabeth, Mary and Catharine.

John S. Holzman, father of J. Adam Holzman, was one of the foremost citizens and public officials of Berks county in his day, particularly well known in the upper part of the county. He was born Dec. 12, 1823, and died Aug. 21, 1893, aged sixty-nine years, eight months, nine days, and is buried at St. Paul's Union Church, at Shaefferstown, Jefferson township. When a young man he learned the carpenter's trade, which he followed for a number of years, later engaging in the butchering business, which he also followed for several years. In 1863 he engaged in the hotel business at Tulpehocken, continuing in that line until 1881, and he also carried on a general mercantile business at that place in partnership with Levi W. Himmelberger, from 1876 to 1878. Buying out Mr. Himmelberger, he took his sons, J. Adam and Henry H., into business with him, and retained an interest in the store until his death, though he took no active part in its management and conduct.

Mr. Holzman was a prominent member of the Democratic party and served many years as postmaster at Tul-pehocken; was school director of his township; and was elected by a large majority to the office of county treasurer, in which he served from 1885 to 1887. He was likewise active in church work, was a member of the Lutheran Church, and served on the building committee when St. Paul's Union Church at Shaefferstown was erected, in 1884.

Mr. Holzman married Maria Derr, daughter of Peter and Elizabeth (Bender) Derr, and she survives him, being now the oldest resident of Tulpehocken. She was born in 1824, and though past eighty is still very active both mentally and physically, relating many interesting stories of the early days in this district. Thirteen children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Holzman, viz.: James M., deceased; Thomas, deceased; Sarah, deceased; J. Adam; Henry H., a resident of Rehrersburg, Pa.; Martin, deceased; Reiley, deceased; Lovina E., wife of J. Michael Knoll, and residing at Tulpehocken; Francis S., living at Richland, Lebanon county; and four who died young.

J. Adam Holzman acquired his education in the public schools of his native township and has spent all his life at Tulpehocken. He bought out his brother's interest in the mercantile business June 21, 1894, and has since conducted it on his own account, doing a large produce business. In 1893 he was appointed postmaster, and has served as such ever since. He has also been tax collector of his township, having been elected to that office on the Democratic ticket, two terms. He is a member of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, was one of the first deacons in the new church, has also served as elder, and is at present treasurer of the Sunday-school.

On Aug. 7, 1880, Mr. Holzman married Miss Kate R. Firing, daughter of Augustus Firing, and they have two children: Sallie, m. to Herbert S. Long, and mother of one child, Florence; and Oscar, m. to Mary K. Derr, and they have one child, Paul Adam.

RICHARD D. BECHTEL, a real estate dealer of Oakbrook, Cumru township, Berks county, is of the fifth generation of a family that has lived in that immediate vicinity continuously since 1771, and that has always been found in the forefront of progressive movements for the community.

Of Dutch origin, the progenitor of the American branch, John George Freid Bechtel, came from Holland on the "Pennsylvania Packet," landing at Philadelphia June 17, 1771. He soon chose Cumru township as his location, and his descendants have remained there ever since. Four sons were born to him, namely: John; Jacob, of Cumru township; Daniel, of the same locality, father of Thomas, Lydia, Catherine, Anna and Elmira; and Christian, also of Cumru township, father of one son Fred, who is still living on some of the original Bechtel land, at Brookside.

John Bechtel was born Nov. 3, 1779, and died Jan. 17, 1847, aged sixty-seven years, two months and fourteen days. He was the owner of considerable land, most of it now covered with modern residences. He married Dec. 13, 1801, Magdalena Addams, daughter of the founder of Adamstown. She was born July 4, 1778, and lived to an advanced age. She bore her husband children as follows: Susan, born April 24, 1804, m. A. Hoch; Richard A.; Catherine, born Oct. 18, 1807, m. Jacob Krick, a Spring township farmer; Elizabeth, born March 7, 1809, m. John Heck, a farmer in Cumberland county; John, born June 29, 1810, m. Miss Amelia Siedel, of Gibraltar, Pa.; Sarah, born March 26, 1812, m. John Reeser, a farmer at Milltown, Cumberland county; and Hannah, born Feb. 22, 1814, m. David Oyster, a farmer at Whitehall, Cumberland county.

Richard A. Bechtel was one of the large landowners and prominent men of Cumru township, his life there covering the period between April 10, 1805 and July 25, 1861. A portion of his property was the section now known as Oakbrook. He was married to Miss Rachel Lorah, who lived to the age of sixty-six years. They had two children only, George L. and John L., the latter of whom was born March 1, 1841, and married Miss Catherine Trate.

George L. Bechtel was born Jan. 20, 1839, and lived only to the age of thirty-one years, dying Nov. 26, 1870. He was a man of standing in the community, much liked and esteemed, and his premature death was felt to be a general loss. A farmer by calling, he owned a place of fifty-seven acres, twenty of which was still woodland. He married in 1862 Catherine Janette, daughter of Rufus Davis, and they had four children, namely: Sallie, born July 17, 1863, died Sept. 25, 1891; Jennie, March 31, 1865, died Jan. 29, 1890; Laura, Aug. 10, 1867, died April 1, 1895; and Richard D.

Richard D. Bechtel has already made himself a place of importance among his fellow-townsmen, although still comparatively young, the date of his birth being Nov. 1, 1869. He was given a good education, attending first the public schools and then an academy in Reading conducted by Prof. D. B. Brunner. He began to work early and chose the trade of painter and paperhanger, at which he was engaged for some years, but in 1891 he gave that up in order to enter upon the real estate business. He and Henry B. Heinz formed the firm of Bechtel & Heinz, with offices at No. 518 Washington street, Reading, and for eleven years did a large amount of business in Reading real estate. But in 1902 Mr. Bechtel withdrew from the firm and gave his attention almost wholly to developing the suburb of Oakbrook, where he himself now resides. He owned a tract of thirty-seven acres there, of great value, lying along the trolley line of the Mohnton and Adamstown road. He cut this into building lots and most of them are now occupied by good residences. Mr. Bechtel is a splendid business man, progressive in his methods, and has done remarkably well.

Mr. Bechtel married, Oct. 9, 1896, Miss Catherine Fichthorn, daughter of James and Mary (Heller) Fichthorn, and a granddaughter of George and Hannah (Lutz) Fichthorn. Mr. and Mrs. Bechtel have three children, May R., Catherine M. and George R. Mr. Bechtel, with his wife, is a member of Yocom's Union Church. Politically he is a Republican, active in his district and with considerable influence. He has served his district officially as registry assessor, and in 1909 was elected tax collector of Cumru township.

WAGENHORST. The firm of Wagenhorst Brothers, formed in 1883, originally included not only the two present members, Mahlon and Llewellyn, but also their father, Franklin. Beginning as tinsmiths, their business increased in scope rapidly, and the firm now take orders for furnaces and for sanitary heating, healthful ventilaing, all kinds of roofing, spouting and air heating. The family have been tinsmiths for three generations.

John Wagenhorst, great-grandfather of the present representatives, was a resident of Greenwich township, Berks county, and was a farmer and miller by occupation. He was eighty years of age at the time of his death. The children born to him and his wife were: Nathan; Isaac; Charles; John; William, who died young; Maria; Julia; Sophia and Harriet.

Nathan Wagenhorst, son of John, spent much of his life in Montgomery county, Pa., where he was engaged successfully in business as a tinsmith. He was well known in his section, and in 1867 he served as county treasurer. When ready to retire from business life he came to Reading, and spent his last years there with his son Franklin. He lived to be eighty-seven years old. On Oct. 6, 1833, he married Rebecca, daughter of George Beitenman, and she attained the age of eighty-four. They had only two children, Franklin and William B. The latter, born April 27, 1836, m. Louise, daughter of John and Mary (Yost) Keck. He is employed as a tinsmith in the establishment of Wagenhorst Bros., and resides at No. 41 North Tenth street, Reading.

Franklin Wagenhorst was born Feb. 27, 1834. When only twelve years old he began to learn his father's trade. As a young man he established himself in business at Gilbertsville, and worked for some time as a tinsmith, but later bought the hotel at that place, and gave his attention to its management. During the war he put up a handsome new building, which is still standing. He was very successful as a hotel keeper, and after eleven years in his new hotel, he came in 1876 to Reading, and for two years had charge of the Berks County House. From 1878 to 1883, Mr. Wagenhorst withdrew from active business affairs, but in the latter year his sons, who were then ready to begin work, induced him to resume his earliest calling, and to give them the opportunity of learning the business of tinsmithing. They went into business at No. 953 Penn street, and remained there until April, 1890, when Mr. Wagenhorst bought property at No. 945 Penn street, which afforded them larger quarters. He retained his connection with the business, which was carried on in his name, until the time of his death, Dec. 15, 1905. Fraternally he was a Mason, a member of Stechler Lodge, of Pottstown. In religion he was affiliated with the First Reformed Church. Mr. Wagenhorst was very well known and was a popular musician, being a skilled player on both the cornet, which was his instrument in band playing, and on the violin. In his earlier years he played with the Boyertown Band for a long time, and was treasurer of it for many years. After coming to Reading he was connected with the old City Band for two years, and then retired from musical work.

On Nov. 3, 1855, Franklin Wagenhorst was married to Miss Emmalaree Gilbert, of Gilbertsville, daughter of George W. and great-granddaughter of the John Gilbert, for whom the town was named. Mrs. Wagenhorst died Nov. 4, 1905, and both she and her husband are buried in the Charles Evans cemetery. They were the parents of three sons, namely: Mahlon; Lucian, born Nov. 30, 1867, died Jan. 5, 1906, m. Miss Elizabeth Epler, had twin sons, Raymond F. and Ralph Leon (died at the age of five months); and Llewellyn.

Mahlon Wagenhorst was born Nov. 26, 1862. He m. Miss Louisa Heft, daughter of John Heft, and has two daughters: Maude Elizabeth, wife of Charles Suender, of Reading; and Mabel May. The family resides at No. 223 South Thirteenth street, Reading.

Llewellyn Wagenhorst was born April 14, 1869. He m. Annie E., daughter of Peter F. Nagle, of Reading, and resides at No. 326 South Seventeenth street, Reading.

The Wagenhorst brothers are both skilled mechanics and are also gifted with the executive ability to carry their business to success along the right lines. After their father's death they started in business for themselves. They are prompt, energetic and careful, employ only skilled labor, having about ten men engaged under them, and do only the best work. In February, 1906, they bought property at No. 23 North Tenth street, and April 1st, opened their business there, and are making extensive improvements there to meet the demands of their large and constantly increasing trade.

ALLISON F. HAAS, manufacturer of confectionery and ice cream, at the corner of Schuylkill avenue and Buttonwood streets, Reading, was born June 14, 1855, in Centre township, Berks Co., Pa., son of Nicholas and Elizabeth (Bergey) Haas.

The grandfather of our subject at one time was a prominent farmer in Bern township, but through endorsing a note for a friend lost all his property.

Nicholas Haas, father of Allison F., came to Reading at an early day and engaged in the quarrying of stone. By an unexpected explosion when engaged in his work, he was crippled for the rest of his life. The Philadelphia & Reading Railroad found in him a faithful watchman at Peacock's Cut, where he remained on duty until his death in 1884, when he was aged seventy-two years. He was a stanch Democrat and at one time served as constable in Bern township. Prior to railroad transportation, he carried and distributed the old Reading Adler, a weekly paper, to the different farm houses all over the township. His wife, Elizabeth Bergey, died in 1885, aged sixty-four years. They had these children: Adam; Benjamin; Levi, with the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad; Mary, m. to Edward Yoe; Caroline, m. to Mahlon Dautrich, of Reading; Frank and John, with the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad; Allison F.; and Ellen L., m. to Henry Deem. Nicholas Haas was well known and both he and wife were much esteemed.

Allison F. Haas received his education in the schools of Centre township, but came to Reading while still a boy. His first employment was driving mules on the canal for the Schuylkill Navigation Company, and after a year with them he hired in the same capacity to a Mr. Goodfellow. He became part owner of the canal boat "Memento." In the fall of 1875 he quit the canal and engaged as brakeman on the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad, where he continued until 1878, when he became fireman, and in 1883 he was recommended by Supt. E. Dale for the position of engineer on the Schuylkill & Lehigh Railroad, soon receiving this important appointment on the main line.

Mr. Haas remained in this position until 1907, and has made a fine record. On no occasion has the train which he commands either killed or severely injured a single person, testifying to his care and devotion to duty. He was held in high esteem by his employers. In 1892, with his son, under the firm name of Haas & Son, he opened up a confectionery and ice cream store at the place above mentioned and the business prospered. The partnership was dissolved in 1907, and Mr. Haas is now conducting the business alone under his own name.

In 1878 Mr. Haas married Valeria Bower, of Leesport, Pa., and they have had two children, namely: Herbert, who married Hannah E. Brown, and has had three children—Bertha M., Caroline V. and Ralph H. (deceased); and Merritt.

Mr. Haas is a member of Camp No. 689, P. O. S. of A.; also Schuylkill Fire Company, No. 12, of Reading.

HARRY E. EBERLY, who is engaged in the produce business at No. 305 South Sixth street, Reading, was born at Blainsport, Pa., in 1867, son of Henry and Anna (Ebling) Eberly.

Henry Eberly, who for twenty-three years was a storekeeper and hotel manager, is now living retired. He and his wife, Anna Ebling, had seven children: Maggie, deceased; Emmeline; Katie; Harry E.; Frank; Stephen and Amy N.

Harry E. Eberly received his education in the schools of Lancaster county, after leaving which he secured employment as a tobacco stripper, meanwhile learning the trade of cigar-maker. He later went into the butter-making business, having charge of creameries in Lancaster and Snyder counties, and in 1893 started into the creamery business in Denver, conducting it for two years. He next located in Snyder county, where he continued the same business, but five years later returned to Denver, where, with J. B. Kurtz, he again engaged in business. He purchased the Stevens, Durlach and Muddy Creek creameries, and also operated at Red Run, Bowmansville, Reinholds and Maiden Creek. In 1903 the partnership was dissolved, Mr. Eberly retaining the Maiden Creek creamery and purchasing one at Kempton, which he still retains. He also buys and handles poultry, eggs, etc., and has a large trade, operating an automobile and delivery wagons. He attends the Farmers' Market, at Reading, Pa., occupying stalls Nos. 22 and 24.

Mr. Eberly was married to Miss Alice L. Lutz, of Stevens, and to them have been born three children: Flora, Roy and Myra. They are members of the Lutheran Church. In politics he is a Socialist, while he is fraternally connected with Middleburg Lodge No. 619, F. & A. M., Snyder county; the I. O. O. F.; and the P. O. S. of A.

CHARLES G. HERBEIN, a well known citizen of the Oley Line, Exeter township, Berks county, who has for a number of years been engaged in looking after his several properties, was born Oct. 25, 1839, on the Herbein homestead in Oley township, son of John and Sarah (Gernand) Herbein.

Mr. Herbein was educated in the public schools, and reared on the old homestead, where he remained until thirty years of age. After his marriage he settled on a farm of 112 acres in Oley township, which he had inherited, and this he operated for two years, then removing to Friedensburg, at which place he lived retired for eighteen months. At the end of this time Mr. Herbein built his present place on the Oley line in Exeter township, where he has since resided, engaged in looking after the management of his farms.

On Feb. 3, 1872, Mr. Herbein was married to Sarah Merkel, born July 30, 1852, in Maxatawny township, daughter of Levi S. and Keziah (DeTurk) Merkel, and to this union there were born three children: Etta G., at home; Herbert J., who is conducting the Oley farm, and m. to Laura Eisenhart; and Annie K., at home. The family are all members of Schwartzwald Reformed Church.

ADAM H. SCHROEDER, whose place of business is at No. 1028 Spruce street, Reading, is one of the leading coal merchants of the city. He was born in Ruscombmanor township, Berks Co., Pa., May 18, 1861, a son of Benneville and Magdalina (Hill) Schroeder.

Benneville Schroeder was a millwright by trade, and also owned a farm in Ruscombmanor township, where he died in 1903, aged eighty-six years. His wife died in the year previous, aged eighty-four years. They had six children, the survivors being: Adam H.; Louisa, wife of A. H. Schmeck; and Susan, widow of Wilson Bortz. They were members of the Reformed Church. In politics the father was a Democrat. He belonged to the O. U. A. M.

Adam H. Schroeder was educated in the common schools of Berks county and also the Friedensburg Academy, where he was graduated and subsequently taught three terms of school. He then accepted a position with the Bard Hardware Company, where he remained for one year, and for nineteen years was then associated with A. L. Frame in the coal business. On Oct. 1, 1906, he purchased the old Frame coal yard, where he is prepared to fill all contracts, carrying a complete line of coal. As a business man he is well and favorably known all over this section, where he has been engaged in trade for the past twenty-five years.

In 1886 Mr. Schroeder married Catherine Bender, of Robesonia, Pa., and they have one son, Walter, a tailor by trade, who commands a good business at Reading, where he resides.

Mr. Schroeder is a member of Oley Lodge, No. 218, I. O. O. F., and Fidelia Chamber, No. 5, Knights of Friendship, of which he is treasurer. He is also a trustee of the Reading Consultory of the same order, and treasurer of the board of trustees, as well as treasurer of the Grand Consultory of Pennsylvania and New Jersey. For the past fifteen years he has been secretary of the Washington Fire Company. He owns a fine home at Wyomissing, where he is a school director, and was one of the organizers of that borough. In politics he is a Democrat.

JEROME C. LENGEL, senior member of the well-known cigar manufacturing firm of Lengel & Ernst, of Reading, Pa., was born in Jefferson township, Berks county, June 18, 1865, son of Paul M. and Emma (Riegel) Lengel.

Isaac Lengel, grandfather of J. C., was a native of Jefferson township, and was a shoemaker by trade, an occupation which he followed all of his active period. He also owned and operated a small farm. Mr. Lengel married a Miss Moyer, also a native of Berks county, and she bore her husband two children: Paul M.; and Emma m. (first) Charles Henne, and (second) Frank Wagner.

Paul M. Lengel learned the shoemaker's trade with his father, but devoted his time principally to stone masonry, which he also learned when a young man. He died in April, 1908. He married Emma Riegel, and to this union there were born seven children as follows: James, a shoemaker of Reading, m. Valeria Grimes, and they have two children, Daisy (m. Robert Hottenstein) and Murphy; Jerome C.; Sally, deceased, m. Clinton Shutter; George is deceased; Agnes m. L. J. Geiger, of Reading, and they have four sons, Paul, David, Levi and Lewis; Oscar J., deceased, m. Lydia Lengel, and has one son, Oscar; and Minnie m. George S. Frederick. In religious belief Mr. Lengel was a member of the Lutheran Church, while his wife is connected with the Reformed faith.

He was a member of the P. O. S. of A., of Reading, and in politics was a Democrat.

Jerome C. Lengel received his literary education in the common and high schools of Berks county, later receiving a commercial course at Prof. Brunner's Business College at Reading. He taught school in Tulpehocken and Spring townships for five years, and in 1887 engaged with the Reading Eagle as bookkeeper, continuing with that publication until 1892. In this year Mr. Lengel accepted a position as superintendent and bookkeeper for Frank J. Hunt, the cigar manufacturer, and continued with that gentleman until he went out of business seven years later. Mr. Lengel then formed a partnership with John A. Ernst, and under the firm name of Lengel & Ernst they operate at No. 113½ North Third street, where they have a factory of three stories, 17 x 45 feet, and manufacture the following well known brands of ten-cent goods: "Tulpehocken," "Wall St. Club," "Legal," "Floradelphia," "Point Blanck," "L. & E.," "Critic," and several private brands. The firm enjoy a constantly increasing business and are extensive shippers to all of the Eastern States.

Mr. Lengel was married in 1890 to Aurilla Hoffman, daughter of George F. Hoffman, and she died in 1903, aged thirty-three years. Their two children were: Frank and Lulu L. In religious belief Mr. Lengel is a Lutheran, while politically he is independent. He is fraternally connected with the Brotherhood of America and the Knights of Malta.

JACOB H. ROTHERMEL, a prosperous citizen of Richmond township, Berks Co., Pa., was born July 20, 1863, in the township in which he still lives, and where he has spent all of his life, son of Samuel M. and Esther (Hoch) Rothermel.

The Rothermel family was founded in this country by Johannes Rothermel, a native of Wachbach, Germany, born there in 1688. In 1708 he was married to Sybilla Zimmermann, and to them were born six children: Anna Maria, Lawrence, Paul, Peter, John and Christian. The family started for America, and Johannes Rothermel died on the voyage, his widow and children landing at Philadelphia, Aug. 29, 1730, and locating in the following year in what is now Berks county, Pennsylvania.

John Rothermel, son of Johannes, became a farmer and justice of the peace in Richmond township. It is a matter of record that one Jacob Rothermel was a captain of militia in the Revolutionary army, Second battalion, Third Company, and tradition has it that John Rothermel was a Revolutionary soldier, the probability being that there is a discrepancy in the name and that tradition is correct. John Rothermel's remains were interred in the Rothermel burying ground, one-quarter of a mile west of Fleetwood. He married Mary Siegfried, who is said to have been the first white child in Maxatawny township, Berks county, and they had these children: Abraham, Jacob, Daniel and John. He married again, and the children born of the second union were: Jacob, grandfather of Jacob H.; David; Mrs. Charles Heffner; Mrs. Fegley, of Orwigsburg, Pa.; and Elizabeth Rothermel.

Jacob Rothermel, born May 11, 1798, in Ruscombmanor township, Berks county, a part of which is now Richmond township, died April 15, 1886, aged nearly eighty-eight years. He was a miller by trade, and also engaged in the manufacture of linseed oil, pursuing this vocation until 1840, when he began farming. On Nov. 10, 1822, he married Sarah Merkel, of Richmond township, and to them were born children as follows: Jonas, Jacob (who died aged eight years), Samuel M., Aaron, Anna (died in infancy), Sarah and John.

Samuel M. Rothermel was born Feb. 26, 1831, and died April 23, 1900. He was a lifelong resident of Richmond township, where in his youth he obtained a limited education. Throughout life he was a great reader, his favorite work being the Bible, and he was possessed of a remarkable memory. When twenty-six years of age he began farming on his father's property in Richmond township, and there he continued for thirty years, in 1887 removing to a farm belonging to his brother-in-law, Daniel Hoch, there continuing until his death. On Nov. 26, 1860, Mr. Rothermel was married to Esther Hoch, daughter of Benjamin and Susannah (Kinsey) Hoch, of Richmond township. To this union were born: Susannah, who died in infancy; and Jacob H.

Jacob H. Rothermel was reared on his father's farm and obtained his education in the schools of his native township, leaving same at the age of twenty years to resume agricultural pursuits. He then purchased from his father a farm of fifty-five acres in Maiden-creek township, and a ninety acre farm near the borough of Fleetwood, which had belonged to his uncle. Since the death of his father in 1900, Mr. Rothermel has inherited additional property, and has in latter years been engaged in supervising the work. He and his wife are consistent members of St. Paul's Reformed Church at Fleetwood. In politics he is a Democrat.

On Dec. 25, 1901, Mr. Rothermel was married to Esther Rothermel, daughter of John K. and Susannah (Peters) Rothermel, of Richmond township. Mr. Rothermel and his estimable wife are greatly esteemed in this community, where he is regarded as an up-to-date, practical farmer, and good, substantial business man.

CLINTON GOTTSCHALL, proprietor of the Speedway Palace Stables, Nos. 934-936 Rose street, Reading, was born in Alsace township, five miles from the city of Reading, in 1873, son of John and Elvina (Smoyer) Gottschall, and grandson of George Gottschall.

Leonard Gottschall, great-grandfather of Clinton, was a native of Germany, and came to America when a young man, settling in Alsace township, Berks Co., Pa., where he spent his life in agricultural pursuits.

George Gottschall, son of Leonard, was born in that township, and there married Elizabeth Cummins, who died there at the age of eighty-five years. He died aged eighty-two years. They had these children: Ella Shields, Lena Delp, Sallie Sophern, Elizabeth Newkirk, Rachel Heller, Susan Becker, John, Leonard, Daniel and George.

John Gottschall, father of Clinton, was also born in Alsace township. He was at one time an engineer for the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company, running engine No. 9 on the East Penn road, which he continued for eight years, and then purchased a farm in Alsace township. He returned to Reading, however, and was elected a constable of the Fourteenth ward, being also engaged very extensively at poultry raising. Mr. Gottschall died in 1903, at the age of seventy-nine years, his widow, who survives him, residing in Reading. Their children were: John, a butcher, m. Emma Rapp, and they reside at No. 1026 North Tenth street; Ellen m. Isaac Reiter, of Oley township; and Clinton.

Clinton Gottschall attended the public schools of his native township until fourteen years of age, and then went to Chester county, and remained for a period of three years on his father's farm. At the end of this time he came to Reading and learned the coach blacksmithing trade, which he followed for twelve years, and then engaged in his present business, building, in 1904, his present modern stables, 40 x 102 feet, three stories, at Nos. 934-936 Rose street, which are among the finest in the county. He has stable room for forty horses, and the accommodations at this place are the best to be found in the city.

Mr. Gottschall married Daisy Fichthorn, daughter of Reuben and Clara (Russel) Fichthorn, and to them have been born these children: Clinton, Jr., was killed by a trolley car at Fourth and Windsor streets Oct. 30, 1905, in his sixth year; Floyd, Helen and Paul. In political matters Mr. Gottschall is a Republican. He is a member of the Reformed Church, which Mrs. Gottschall also attends.

J. GEORGE HINTZ, bookseller and stationer at Reading for twenty-six years, was born in Reading Jan. 5, 1862, and received his education in the St. John's Lutheran parochial school, going till he was eleven years old, when he started to contribute something toward making a livelihood for himself by carrying the daily newspapers of Reading, Philadelphia and New York to their patrons throughout the city, getting up very early in the morning to enable him to deliver the Reading Times before breakfast. After carrying and selling newspapers for about a year, he found employment in the book and stationery store of Levi J. Smith, on Penn square, and he continued at this place for nine years, having acted as clerk for several years and then as one of the managers of the store until the place was sold in the settlement of the Smith estate.

In 1883 he opened a small store of the same kind at No. 712 Penn street, in a little narrow room, but in one year his obliging disposition won so much patronage that he was compelled to move into larger quarters to accommodate his rapidly increasing trade. He secured a room on the adjoining premises, and he continued there for three years, when he was again compelled to get still larger quarters, and these he found at No. 734 Penn street, by buying the established stand of Keller & Brown, who were engaged in the same business. Upon taking possession of the new stand, he enlarged his varied stock and extended his trade throughout the county of Berks into the adjoining counties in furnishing schools with supplies of all kinds in competition with large dealers. In 1901 he purchased the premises at No. 756, in the same square, next to the Penn National Bank, and after making the necessary changes and enlarging all the departments of the store, moved into the new quarters, and here he has been located until the present time.

While conducting his business, he found time to devote to secret societies, more especially the Knights of the Golden Eagle, a branch of which he helped to organize at Reading, and then came to fill the different offices until he was finally promoted to District Grand Chief of this powerful organization for the district comprising Berks county. He was made a knight in 1885, and served as district grand chief for five years from 1887. He is also prominently identified with the Odd Fellows, the P. O. S. of A., the Masons, Knights Templars and Mystic Shrine. Mr. Hintz has also interested himself in municipal affairs. In this behalf he became a member of the Board of Trade in 1890, and after serving on various committees came to officiate as president in 1899 and 1900. He took a prominent part in the Sesqui-Centennial of Reading, acting as chief of staff of the school parade.

In the establishment of the large modern market house in 1895, at Tenth and Windsor streets, Mr. Hintz was very active, becoming one of the first directors, and finally president of the corporation, which position he has filled since 1900. In the dedication of the monument on Penn Common to the First Defenders from Reading in the Civil war he was chief marshal of the military and civic parade. And he also acted as chief marshal of the great labor parade in the largest labor demonstration ever witnessed at Reading. He served as deputy coroner of the county from 1902 to 1905, and as such held a number of important inquests. He is a trustee of the Homeopathic Hospital, a director of the Merchants Association, and a director in several trolley lines.

In 1883 Mr. Hintz was married to Katherine Hill, only daughter of David and Margaret (Lotz) Hill, and they had twin sons, who died in infancy, and three daughters, Lucy Margaret (m. to Dr. Roy W. Dentler), Mabel Magdalena and Maud Katherine.

Andrew Hintz, father of Mr. Hintz, emigrated from Merklingen, in Wurtemberg, Germany, in 1849, and located at Reading, where he followed tailoring for fifty years. He has lived in honored retirement since 1898, being now in the eighty-first year of his age. He married Magdalena Buyer, of Heilborn, also in Wurtemberg, and by her he had eleven children: Rosa m. J. P. Heuser; Catherine died in 1898, aged forty-five years; Lena m. P. J. Kuhn, and died in 1908; Andrew m. Anna Roether; J. George is mentioned above; Annie died in infancy; Frederick F. m. Mary Dunkel; William G. m. Lizzie Wilson; Emma m. Henry V. E. Crouse; David H.; and Clara C. The parents celebrated their golden wedding in 1903. The mother died in 1906, aged seventy-two years.

David Hill, Mrs. Hintz' father, was brought up in Alsace township, three miles north of Reading, and after learning the trade of machinist filled the position of stationary engineer in the Philadelphia and Reading railroad shops for forty years. He died in 1894 aged sixty-six years. Her mother was a lineal descendant of Col. Nicholas Lotz, of Reading, who rendered important services in the Revolutionary war.

CHRISTOPHER HENRY SCHOFER, of Reading, director of two of the banks of the city, and proprietor of one of the largest and finest bakeries in the State of Pennsylvania, has for three-quarters of a century, or since his fourth year, been a resident of Berks county, and he has been an honored citizen of Reading for thirty-nine years. He is, therefore, most emphatically an adopted son of the county and one whom the entire community is proud to claim. Mr. Schofer's father was a German veteran who fought against Napoleon the Great in the Old World.

Mr. Schofer was born in the Kingdom of Wurtemberg, Germany, Jan. 18, 1829. His paternal grandparents were Ferdinand and Elizabeth (Fryberger) Schofer. His father, John George Schofer, was a native of Loschgau, Bissigheim, Wurtemberg, born June 21, 1793, and was baptized and in due time confirmed in the Evangelical Lutheran Church. His godparents, or, more formally speaking, his sponsors in baptism, were Conrad Fryberger and wife. John George Schofer received his literary education in the local schools and received practical training in the rope-walks—that is, in the making of rope, which at that time was one of the largest of German industries. Like others of his countrymen, able-bodied and manly, he was enrolled in the army which formed a portion of the allied forces hurled against Napoleon Bonaparte. He joined the ranks Dec. 30, 1813, and saw actual service during the years 1814 and 1815. He was present at the surrender of Paris, during the engagement losing one of his earrings by a French shot which miraculously missed him altogether. He was honorably discharged from the service Dec. 30, 1820.

On March 8, 1821, John G. Schofer married Regina Dorothea Bader, with whom he lived for fifty-one years, five months, thirteen days. In 1832 he prepared to leave the Fatherland for America, passing down the Rhine to Rotterdam, where the family (consisting of the parents and five children, the oldest then but nine years of age) took passage for Baltimore. They arrived at the American port May 10, 1832, and commenced their journey overland, on foot and by wagon, into Pennsylvania. The party crossed the Susquehanna at Columbia, Lancaster county, and when they reached Reading a friend and countryman by the name of Neifert met them and conducted them into Oley township, Berks county. There they founded their first home in the New World. At the time of their arrival residences were scarce, and the family therefore moved into a school-house at Oley Church, where they resided until the following spring. Later, for a year, they occupied a house at Bloch's Hill, owned by Daniel Hilbert, and for three years rented a house and lot of Samuel Lobach. They then moved to a small lot owned by Jonathan Grim, where they lived for eight years, or until 1845, when they located in District township, Berks county. The industry and economy of Mr. Schofer and his wife had so borne fruit that they were enabled to purchase a house and lot of John Haak, about one mile east of Landis Store. The children were also maturing, leaving the parental home and supporting themselves, although the family had increased, Mr. and Mrs. Schofer having in all eleven children—six sons and five daughters. During all the years he passed in Berks county John G. Schofer was employed at his boyhood trade of ropemaking, at the occupation of brush-making, or at the various agricultural pursuits which naturally fell to his lot in the new country. He died Aug. 21, 1872, and his remains were interred at Huff's Church, District township, Berks county. His wife died while residing with her daughter Catherine, in Berks county, in 1883. The children born to Mr. and Mrs. John G. Schofer were as follows: Catherine, who died in the old country; Jacob Frederick; John Gottlieb, who settled near Siegfried's Church, then called Kuhnsville, and established a store and post-office, known as Schofers (he is now deceased); Fredericka Caroline, deceased; Christopher Henry; Catherina; Salome; a son who died in infancy unnamed; and William, James and Elizabeth.

As noted Christopher Henry Schofer came with his parents and the other four children to America in 1832, he being then in his fourth year. His entire schooling was confined to about three months' instruction in the subscription schools of his locality, but up to the age of twelve years he studied at home and made himself generally useful to his parents and their family. During the following seven years he worked upon various neighborhood farms. In 1848, after having been confirmed in the faith of his fathers, that of the Lutheran Church, by Rev. Isaac Roeller, he was apprenticed to the wood turner's trade, at which occupation he found employment for five years.

On Dec. 8, 1850, Christopher Henry Schofer married Miss Ethelinda Haak, and four years later, with their two children, they removed to Exeter township, Berks county, where Mr. Schofer had purchased a small farm and a sawmill. This double occupation, added to the cares of a growing family, absorbed his time, energies and abilities for the succeeding fourteen years, when he located at Mohrsville, in the same county, and there he conducted a hotel for one year. On selling the hotel he moved to Mount Airy, in Union township, where he farmed for a year, and on March 15, 1870, he became a permanent settler of Reading.

Mr. Schofer's first occupation at Reading was as proprietor of a hotel at No. 219 North Eighth street, after which, for about two years, he was employed in the car shops. Meeting with an accident, however, he was obliged to devote himself to less active manual work, and turned his attention to the baking business, which had already been established by his son, Calvin, with whom he formed a partnership. Subsequently they added a confectionery department to the bakery. Several sons of Mr. Schofer were taken into the business, which has grown to such large proportions, namely: George E., Franklin A., W. H., Jacob A., Charles D. and Harry L. The survivors, under the name of Henry Schofer's Sons, now actively conduct the establishment. The first bakery on North Eighth street was opened in February, 1876, with one small oven 7 x 8 feet. Father and son constituted the force, and they had no team to deliver their goods. Now the firm operate ten large ovens, night and day, and have twenty-five horses to distribute the products of their establishment, which are sold throughout the city and county. They pay especial attention to catering. They manufacture their own ice, and, in fact have the cream of the trade, whether in bakery goods, confectionery, ice cream or the catering line generally. The location of their up-to-date factory and salesrooms covers now Nos. 229-233 North Eighth street, and they have about forty regular employes.

Christopher Henry Schofer, whose valued advice in the conduct of this immense business is still in constant demand, resides at his handsome residence at No. 1238 Perkiomen avenue; his wife did not live to share his late years of prosperity, dying on Feb. 25, 1876. To their union came the following children: William Henry, born Feb. 9, 1852, m. Elinora Kolb; he was one of the firm, and died July 17, 1905. John Calvin, born Oct. 26, 1853, m. Elvesta M. Fogel, and died Jan. 25, 1884. George Emerson, born Oct. 30, 1855, m. Susan Angstadt; he is a machinist by trade, and a member of the firm. A child born June 19, 1857, died unnamed. James Albert, born Dec. 13, 1858, m. Ella C. Kline, and is engaged in business on South Fifth street, Reading. Thomas J., born Nov. 5, 1860, died March 15, 1881. Franklin A., born March 17, 1863, a member of the firm, m. Alice Barbara Cassia Hoffman. Jacob Alvin, born July 24, 1865, m. Lydia Emma Matthias; he is connected with the firm. Charles Daniel, born Dec. 7, 1866, m. Lizzie K. Bittner, and is a partner of the firm. Harry Ludwig, born March 16, 1874, m. Ellen O. Hartman, and is also an associate in the business.

Henry Schofer

Since his confirmation in 1848 Mr. Schofer has remained a steadfast member of the Lutheran Church. In politics he is a Democrat, and he has served two terms in the common council of Reading. He is also connected with the fraternity of Odd Fellows.

Besides keeping in touch with the large business actively conducted by his sons, Mr. Schofer is a director of the Neversink Bank (having occupied that position since its organization) and of the old Citizens Bank of Reading, and superintends his two farms in Berks county, one of sixty-five and the other of 120 acres near Jacksonwald. As he is interested in other enterprises, it is evident that he is a remarkably active and energetic man for one of his years. When to his activity and executive ability are added his unswerving honesty, and his justice in the conduct of all his interests, it is not strange that he should be enrolled among the foremost residents of Berks county.

On May 24, 1902, Mr. Schofer left New York for his old home in Germany, and had a most enjoyable trip. He found the house in which he was born, and many other things to interest him.

George E. Schofer, son of Christopher Henry, was born Oct. 30, 1855, in Exeter township. He accompanied his parents on their removal to Mohrsville, and later to Mount Airy, finally locating in Reading in 1869. His education was acquired in the public schools. In 1873 he learned the machinist's trade at Tenth and Spruce streets, at a place known as the Griscom Lock Works, but later known as the Jones, Oaks & Co. Foundry. In 1876 he entered the employ of the Reading Hardware Company, and in 1888 he was appointed foreman of the die and tool department, serving in that capacity until the fall of 1900, when he connected himself with the firm of Henry Schofer's Sons. On account of his mechanical ability, he has made himself especially useful in looking after all the different contrivances used in the business and he has kept in close touch with all things needed in that part of the work.

On Dec. 25, 1882, he married Susan Angstadt, who died in 1901. She was the daughter of Benneville and Sarah (Barr) Angstadt, formerly of Rockland township, now of Reading. Mr. Schofer is a member of Trinity Lutheran Church, of Reading, and also of Trinity Lutheran Brotherhood, of the same church. He is also connected with Lodge No. 65, Knights of Pythias; and Lodge No. 115, B. P. O. E., Reading. His children are: Hattie E., born Nov. 22, 1883, m. Thomas Buckwalter; Clarence H., born Jan. 12, 1885, m. Minnie Fidler; Herbert B., born July 27, 1887, is at home; and Earl W., born July 29, 1893, is at home.

Franklin A. Schofer, son of Christopher Henry, was born March 17, 1863, at Stony Creek, Alsace township. In 1868 he went with his parents to Mohrsville, and there attended the public schools until 1869, when they moved to Mount Airy, and then to Reading, where his schooling was completed. In 1880 he began to learn the baking business in all its branches under his father, and in 1898 the business was turned over to the sons, William H., George E., Franklin A., Jacob A., Charles D. and Harry L. The establishment is equipped with all the latest improved machinery, and especial attention is paid to the catering business. They have fifteen teams and deliver all over the city. Mr. Schofer is a member of Trinity Lutheran Church, and a member of the board of public works. He takes a great interest in municipal affairs.

He married Alice B. C. Hoffman, daughter of Rev. David Hoffman, late of Lebanon, Pa., whose wife was a Miss Kline, of Mt. Aetna. To this union have been born: M. Ethel, C. Harry, Mabel, Florence and Rebe, all at home. Fraternally Mr. Schofer was a member of the old Philomathean Literary, Musical and Social Union of Reading. He is a member of Chandler Lodge, No. 227, F. & A. M.; Excelsior Chapter No. 237, R. A. M.; Reading Commandery No. 42; Reading Lodge of Perfection, 14°; Philadelphia Consistory, 32°, and Rajah Temple, Mystic Shrine.

Jacob A. Schofer, son of Christopher Henry, was born in Alsace township, July 24, 1865, and was only five years old when his parents went to Reading, where he was educated in the public schools. In 1882 he became a salesman for the firm of Henry Schofer & Son, and in 1899 a member of the firm of Henry Schofer's Sons. His duties require him to keep in touch with the orders that go through the office, so that the best service may be given the general public.

In 1885 he married Lydia E. Matthias, daughter of Enoch and Elizabeth (Johnson) Matthias, and to this union two children have been born: Alvin H., born July 7, 1887, who was educated in the Reading high school and graduated from Stoner's Business College, Reading, is teller in the Neversink Bank, Reading; Howard J., born Aug. 4, 1889, was educated in the public schools and is a salesman for Henry Schofer's Sons (he m. Helen Zimmerman, daughter of Milton Zimmerman). In politics Mr. Schofer is a Democrat. He and his family are members of Grace Lutheran Church, of Reading, and he belongs to Trinity Brotherhood. Fraternally he is a member of Vigilance Lodge, No. 194, I. O. O. F., and Encampment No. 43, I. O. O. F.; Castle No. 51, K. G. E.; and Junior Fire Company No. 2, all of Reading.

Charles D. Schofer, son of Christopher Henry, was born in Reading Dec. 7, 1866, and was educated in the public schools of this city. From his youth he has worked in his father's bakery, and when the business was assumed by the sons he became a member of the firm. He resides at No. 817 Walnut street, where he has a charming home. He is a lover of curios, and has a good collection of coins, stamps, Indian relics, china, etc. He is a member of Vigilance Lodge, No. 194, I. O. O. F.; Reading Encampment; and Esther Lodge, Daughters of Rebekah. With his family he belongs to Trinity Lutheran Church. Mr. Schofer has been twice married. In October, 1890, he married Lizzie K. Bittner, daughter of Daniel and Sarah (Kehner) Bittner, of Reading. The only son of the marriage, Charles, is a student in Albright College. Mr. Schofer m. (second) Oct. 29, 1897, Rosa M. Hatt, daughter of John and Magdalena (Frederick) Hatt, of Spring township. To this union have been born: Myrtle M. and Carl H.

Harry L. Schofer, son of Christopher Henry, and youngest member of the firm of Henry Schofer's Sons, was born in Reading March 16, 1874. He attended the public and high schools of the city, and in 1888 entered the business college of Rev. H. T. Stoner, located at Sixth and Washington streets, taking a course of study in the commercial department. In 1889 he entered the employ of his father as salesman, and remained in that capacity until he became a member of the firm. He still holds his position as salesman, and also has charge of the wholesale and retail department, looking after the teams and checking the supply and the return of each. He also assists in the catering department, when necessary, for funerals, weddings, banquets and private parties, an extensive business in this line being done all over the county.

Mr. Schofer married Ellen O. Hartman, daughter of Nathaniel and Mary Hartman, of Northumberland county, the ceremony being performed by Rev. F. K. Huntzinger. Children as follows have been born of this union: Harold H., born April 12, 1896; Kehl A. and George C., twins, born Dec. 24, 1897 (died in infancy); Stanley W., born July 28, 1900; and Bertha E., born Sept. 16, 1902. Mr. Schofer is a member of the St. Luke's Lutheran Church, and was confirmed on Palm Sunday, 1889, by Rev. F. K.

Huntzinger. He has been a member of the vestry, and its secretary during the years 1903 and 1904, and is a member of Class A of the Sunday-school, which has been taught by Harvey F. Heinly, Esq., for over ten years. Fraternally he belongs to St. John's Lodge, No. 435, F. & A. M.; Lodge of Perfection, 14°; Harrisburg Consistory, 32°, of Harrisburg; Progressive Lodge, No. 470, I. O. O. F.; Reading Castle, No. 49, K. G. E., and at one time was first sergeant of Keystone Commandery, No. 49, K. G. E., under Captain George Kemp. He is an active member of the degree staff of Progressive Lodge, has made the unwritten and dramatic work a study, and is fully equipped to fill any position connected with this work of the order. Mr. Schofer is also secretary of the Progressive Association, an auxiliary connected with the lodge, the object of which is the upbuilding of the order. Mr. Schofer has made a number of lengthy trips, having visited the Bahama Islands, the city of Kingston, Port Antonio, West Indies, Cuba, and made five distinct trips to Florida in search of health—the results of which were very beneficial. He has attended two different sessions of the Master Bakers' Association, held respectively in Washington, D. C., and Chicago, Ill. On the latter trip he was accompanied by his wife, and they visited relatives whom they had never before seen, sons and daughters of Frederick Schofer, brother of Christopher Henry, who settled in Moline and Rock Island, Ill. They were royally entertained, and the happy days of that visit will never fade from memory.

CHARLES GERHARD MOYER, born Jan. 20, 1875, at Stouchsburg, Marion township, Berks Co., Pa., son of Isaac L. and Sarah R. (Gerhard) Moyer. He is at the date hereof (July 26, 1909) unmarried.

Mr. Moyer is an attorney at law, having been admitted to practice at the Berks County Bar Nov. 12, 1900. He is a member with Oliver Lentz, Esq., of the law firm of Lentz & Moyer, located at No. 534 Washington street, Reading, Pa. He is at present Solicitor to the Reading School District.

Mr. Moyer spent his youth at Stouchsburg. He is the only son among five surviving children. His father, a veteran of the War of the Rebellion, and a school teacher before and after the establishment of the public school system, was a prominent man in the village, being the proprietor of the "American House," a well-known inn on the turnpike road between Reading and Harrisburg, and also conducting a large general store.

The general education of Mr. Moyer was acquired in the public schools and at the Millersville State Normal School, from which he was graduated in 1895. He then registered as a law-student in the office of Rieser & Schaeffer, at the same time attending the Dickinson School of Law, from which he received the degree of Bachelor of Laws in the class of 1899.

The subject of this sketch takes pride in the fact that he taught the high-school of his township for two terms, and that for three years he taught in the night-schools of the city of Reading shortly after these schools were founded and at the time when their success was in doubt.

HENRY L. SMOYER, proprietor of the "Eagle Point Hotel," Eagle Point, Berks county, is one of the best known and most popular hotel men in this part of the State. He was born in Lyon Valley, Lehigh Co., Pa., son of Leon and Sarah Ann (Buchman) Smoyer.

Leon Smoyer was born in Lehigh county, and there learned the carpenter's trade. He then went to Allentown, where he worked at his trade or engaged in contracting until his death. He married Sarah Ann Buchman, born in May, 1832, daughter of Andrew and granddaughter of Peter Buchman. To this union was born one son, Henry L.

Peter Buchman was born in Germany, and on coming to America followed his trade of tailor. By his wife, whose maiden name was Shaul, he had children as follows: Andrew, Peter, Catherine, Margaret and Sarah.

Andrew Buchman, son of Peter, was born in Germany. He became a resident of Lowhill township, Lehigh county, where he engaged in farming. He is buried at Weisenburg Church. He married Sally Ann Haas, daughter of Michael and Clarinda (Cossiewic) Haas, the latter an Indian from Lyon Valley. Their children were: Annie, Hattie, Julia, Jennie, Eden, Henry, Sarah Ann, Adelia, Willoughby, Hiram and Louise.

Henry L. Smoyer grew to manhood in Lehigh county, receiving his education in the common schools. He began to learn the machinist's trade but abandoned it on account of poor eyesight. For five years he was employed as head man at the Lehigh county almshouse, and then as steward in the hospital there until 1880, when he moved to Kutztown and conducted a bakery for two and one-half years, after which he ran a stage between Kutztown and Allentown. At the end of four years he rented the hotel at Eaglepoint. After one year there he returned to Kutztown, where for three years he was proprietor of the "Eagle Hotel." He then purchased the "Eagle Point Hotel," a large brick building with a small farm adjoining. This he rented a year later, and went back to Kutztown, where until 1897 he was the proprietor of the "Washington House," that year going to the "Keystone Hotel." The latter he completely refurnished, and greatly improved, making of it a first class hostelry. He had become well known as a hotel man by this time, and his hotel became very popular, being noted for its excellent cuisine and prompt service. In 1901 Mr. Smoyer took charge of the "City Hotel" (to which he gave the name) on North Seventh street, Allentown, but this he conducted only eight months when owing to his wife's ill health, he sold out, and went to live on his farm at Eagle Point, conducting the hotel two years, and then devoting himself to his farm. In the spring of 1908 he again became proprietor of the "Eagle Point Hotel," and this he is conducting with his old time success.

Mr. Smoyer married Anna Frey, daughter of Peter Frey, and they have two sons: John Hamilton, a graduate of Pierce's Business College at Philadelphia, and now bookkeeper and stockholder of a large concern at Pottsville; and George Franklin, who studied at the Keystone State Normal School, then learned the baker's trade, at Reading, and has been bartender at the "Hotel Allan," Pottsville, for five years. The latter is a fine tenor singer, having few peers in the county. In his political belief Mr. Smoyer is a Republican, and in religious faith a Lutheran, while Mrs. Smoyer belongs to the Reformed Church. Mr. Smoyer belongs to the K. G. E., Jr. O. U. A. M., and Huguenot Lodge, No. 377, F. & A. M., at Kutztown.

LEVI W. KACHEL, a well known citizen and prominent public man of Cumru township, Berks county, who since the spring of 1906 has lived retired, in his fine residence on Lancaster avenue, Shillington, was born on the old homestead in Cumru township, Dec. 14, 1849, son of Daniel Kachel.

Among the emigrants from Switzerland who settled in Pennsylvania in 1732 was Andrew Kachel. He became the owner of 200 acres of land in Cumru township. His will, on record in the Berks county court house, probated July 16, 1777, is signed in German. He made provision for his beloved wife Ursula, and especially mentioned his son Simon. His wife Ursula and son Andrew were made executors. He mentioned that his three sons Simon, Leonard and John shall have equal shares, except as before stated.

John Kachel, son of Andrew, was a native of Cumru township, and became one of the leading agriculturists thereof, owning a farm of 192 acres on which he resided until his death. He married Catherine Eitzer, and to them were born these children: Jacob, born March 9, 1786, died Oct. 19, 1865, the father of two sons, Henry and Jacob; Andrew died unmarried; John lived near the Green Tree, in Cumru township; William died young; Elizabeth m. Michael Bittner; Samuel; Daniel; Michael was a noted marksman, and figured in shooting matches; Susan m. Eliajh Spencer; and Polly and David both died unmarried.

Daniel Kachel, father of Levi W., was born on the old home in Cumru township in April, 1797, and attained a fair education in the township schools, learning the milling trade when a young man at Tulpehocken Creek. This business he followed for a period of twelve years, and then engaged in farming on the homestead, remaining there until his death, in January, 1894. He was buried at Plow Church in Robeson township, Berks county. In 1853 he built the residence on the farm, as well as some outbuildings, and he was always a good and practical farmer and public-spirited citizen. His religious belief was that of the Lutheran Church, which he attended faithfully and supported liberally. He married Miss Catherine Wagner, daughter of Daniel Wagner, and to them were born: Solomon, m. to Elizabeth Breitenstein, is the owner of the old homestead in Cumru township; Daniel died when eighteen years old; Levi W.; John W., m. to Elizabeth Tothero, is an agriculturist of Cumru township; and Cassie m. James R. Yost.

Levi W. Kachel attended the public schools of his native township until the age of eighteen years, receiving a fair education. After leaving school he worked for his father on the farm. On Dec. 7, 1878, he married Annie Tothero, daughter of Isaac and Leah (Westley) Tothero, of Robeson township, and they at once purchased a small farm of Michael Moyer, consisting of thirty-one and one-half acres near Shillington. On this they remained only two years, after which they purchased a fertile farm of eighty-nine acres in Brecknock township, where they continued until 1889, and then returned to Cumru township, buying a two-acre tract upon which they resided until 1906. In that year they located in Shillington and Mr. Kachel built a fine residence on Lancaster avenue. He also owns two building lots, 30 x 100 feet, in Shillington, also being in possession of his farm in Brecknock township, which he has leased. He is a member of the Lutheran Church. In political matters he is a Republican, has served his township as school director for three years, 1901-02-03, the last year of which he was treasurer of the board, and is one of the foremost men in the township in educational movements. He has an enviable reputation for honesty anl integrity, and stands high in the esteem of the citizens of his community. Mr. and Mrs. Kachel were the parents of one child, Clayton L., who died when nine months old and was buried at the Plow Church.

MAHLON A. LEINBACH, now living retired in Reading, is a native of Berks county, born in Bern township April 14, 1840, son of Frederick and Maria (Guldin) Leinbach. He attended the public schools of Exeter township, and for a few years was employed on the farm. He then entered the woolen mills of William Brumbach, where he was employed for the long period of sixteen years. At the end of that time he went to his brother, J. G. Leinbach, with whom he was engaged until 1904, when he gave up active work. He was an expert mechanic, and for forty-two years was in charge of the weave room. His present home is at No. 311 North Fourth street, Reading.

Mr. Leinbach was married Jan. 13, 1861, to Miss Mary Ellen Adam, daughter of Jacob and Maria (nee Koller) Adam, and to this union were born seven children, two of whom are still living—A. Ellsworth and Charles E.—and those deceased were: Jacob A., Rosie, Irvin M., Sallie M. and Annie L.

Mr. Leinbach is a consistent member of the Reformed Church. Socially he is identified with Lodge No. 115, B. P. O. E., of Reading, and is very popular among his fellow members. In 1904 Mr. Leinbach and his wife, and his brother J. G. Leinbach and his wife, made a tour of the western States, spending some seven weeks in California.

GEORGE FEGLEY, who lived in Berks county for a number of years before his death, was born in 1806 in Douglass township, Montgomery county, where his family has long been located.

Bernhard Fegley, the first of the name in this country, came from Switzerland and settled in this section of Pennsylvania in its early days. He first located in Montgomery county, near East Greenville, but died in Longswamp township, Berks county, in 1782. Little is known of his son, Peter Fegley, the grandfather of George Fegley, except that he was born in Montgomery county and settled in Douglass township, that county, induced by the fact that his uncle (a brother of Bernhard) had made a permanent settlement there. Some members of the family write the name Bird, the English version of the original name; there are descendants of Peter Fegley living in New Jersey who use the English form.

Peter Fegley, father of George Fegley, was born in Douglass township, Montgomery county, and like his father passed all his life there, engaged in farming. He owned the Fegley homestead, containing about one hundred acres, and is buried at Sassamansville, in Douglass township. He married Elizabeth Low, and they became the parents of fifteen children, two of whom died young, the others being: Henry; George; Hattie, m. to George Hillegas; Sarah, who died unmarried; Maria, who married four times (she had no children); Hannah, who died unmarried; Peter, m. to Rebecca Gottshall (their son was Lewis P. G. Fegley, who is mentioned elsewhere); Juliann, m. to Jacob Schnell; Mary Ann (twin to Juliann), who died unmarried; Jacob, who died unmarried, in California; William, who lived at Catasauqua, Lehigh Co., Pa.; Eliza, m. to William Reinert (both are buried at Lobachsville, Berks county); and Jesse, who died on the homestead, unmarried.

George Fegley learned the trade of wheelwright, which he followed at Congo, in Douglass township, Montgomery county, in his earlier life. He operated the Douglass paper-mill for a period of twenty-six years, and upon moving to Berks county lived at Boyertown for three and a half years, in 1868 moving thence to Hereford township, where he owned a thirty-eight-acre farm and the store property. He cultivated the land himself, but rented the store to his son, E. G. Fegley, who carried it on for thirty-nine years in all. It is now owned by Frederick W. Huber, a grandson of George Fegley, who has been in possession since 1905. Mr. Fegley died at Hereford, Hereford township, in 1886, and was buried at Huber's Church, Niantic, Montgomery county; he was a member of the Reformed congregation of that church, while his wife was a Lutheran.

George Fegley married in 1839, Hannah Daub, of Frederick township, Montgomery Co., Pa., born in 1816, died in 1885. They were the parents of five children, namely: Edward G. who was the owner of the property from the time of his father's death in 1886 until his own in 1905 (He left a son, H. Winslow, of Reading); and Emma S., Mary A., Elisa M. and Hannah A. (m. Ambrose Huber, and died March 20, 1909).

Miss Emma S. Fegley, daughter of the late George Fegley, makes her home at Hereford, Hereford township, living at the homestead. She is an active, intelligent woman, interested in the life of the day, and spends much of her time in reading. She is a member of St. John's Lutheran church at Boyertown.

GEORGE L. WEIDNER, tax collector of Eshbach, Washington township, Berks county, Pa., and one of the best known residents of that place, where he has engaged in shoemaking since 1861, was born in Earl township, near the Amity township line, Aug. 17, 1836.

Jacob Weidner, his grandfather, lived in Earl township, and was the owner of a large farm, the greater part of which was in Amity township. He was buried in a private cemetery on his land. His death occurred prior to 1836. He married a Miss Boyer, and their children were: George, Peter, Daniel, Jacob, Ann and several other daughters, one of whom married Tobias Fisher.

Jacob Weidner, son of Jacob and father of George L., was born on his father's farm in Earl township in 1789, and died in 1847 on his own farm in Earl and Amity townships. There were 150 acres of fine land in this farm, and the buildings stood in Earl township. Mr. Weidner engaged in farming and was a substantial citizen. He was buried at Boyertown. His wife, Polly Landis, bore him children as follows: Martin, Elizabeth (Leaver), Catharine (Albright), Ellen (unmarried), Samuel, David, Jacob, George L., John, Mahlon and Mary (Gilbert).

George L. Weidner received his first schooling in the German pay school of his native district, near Greshville, and later he attended the free school. In 1852 he went to learn the shoe maker's trade with Abraham Fry, of Colebrookdale, a trade he has followed in Washington township since 1855. In 1861 he came to Eshbach, and here he has since been at work, having made thousands of pairs of shoes in his time. Before the days of shoe factories he did a large business, keeping three men constantly employed, and he became quite well-to-do. He is now one of the most substantial men of his vicinity, and is certainly one of the most highly respected. Since 1879 he has been tax collector of Washington township, and for ten years he was supervisor. In politics he is a Democrat.

With his family Mr. Weidner attends the Hill Church, of which he is a Lutheran member. He was a deacon, and at present is a trustee of the cemetery. He is one of the active workers in the church, and he collected much money for the church.

In 1859 Mr. George L. Weidner was united in marriage with Sarah Reitenauer, daughter of John and granddaughter of Frederick Reitenauer. She was born in 1840. The children born to them are: Susan m. Enos Culp, of Phoenixville; Elizabeth is the widow of Daniel Gruber; Mary m. John Hoppes, of Barto; Ida m. Wilson Fisher, of Allentown; Ella m. Edwin Heydt, and lives in Washington township at the Montgomery county line; and Daniel lives at Weisstown, in Colebrookdale township, Berks county.

HOWARD L. MOSER, a prosperous business man of Cumru township, who is the proprietor of a mercantile establishment at Noble and Fern streets, Oakbrook, Berks county, was born April 20, 1863, in Bern township, son of Joseph K. and Sarah (Reeser) Moser.

John Moser, the great-grandfather of Howard L., was a farmer in Bern township, having a large tract of land, about 300 acres, in the center of the township. He was born in 1782, and died there in 1847. His wife, whose maiden name was Reber, passed away in her seventy-fourth year. They are buried at Gernant's Church. Seven children were born to this couple, John being the only son.

John Moser, grandfather of Howard L., was born on the old homestead in 1803, and was a farmer all his life in Bern township, where he died at the age of seventy-two years. He married Mary Kerschner, of Virginia, daughter of Conrad Kerschner a pioneer of Bern township, and she died at the age of sixty-eight years in 1878. Mr. Moser was a Democrat in politics, and in religious belief belonged to Epler's Reformed Church, which he assisted to build, and in which for many years he was an official. His children were: Reuben, who died unmarried; Joseph K.; John K., who died in 1902, and who was twice married; Daniel, deceased, m. to Mary Long; Sarah, m. to Daniel Blatt; Mary, m. to Daniel Ulrich; Elizabeth, unmarried, who lives with her brother, Joseph K.; and Emma, m. to Abraham Richards.

Joseph K. Moser, father of Howard L., was born Dec. 30, 1833, on the old homestead, and attended the pay and public schools of his native township. He was reared to agricultural pursuits, and as a young man worked for two years on the John Troxtle farm in Gibraltar, Pa. He then located in Cumru township, and for one year worked on the John Raudenbush farm, later engaging in trucking for nine years. He then retired, and lived in his pleasant home at Oakbrook, which he erected in 1884, until his death Dec. 12, 1908. He was buried at Epler's Church. On March 27, 1857, Mr. Moser was married to Sarah Reeser, daughter of Samuel and Mary Magdalena (Phillips) Reeser, of Bern township, and to this union there were born children as follows: James R., m. to Elizabeth Bernheiser, is an engineer on the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad, and is living at Schuylkill Haven, Pa.; Morris R., a manufacturer of candy at Wilkes Barre, m. Rosie Kurtz; Howard L.; Samuel, who has been an employe of the Reading Iron Co.'s pipe mill for thirty years, m. Lillie Ammon, and resides at Oakbrook; Sarah m. Charles F. Dalton, of Oakbrook; and Katie is also of Oakbrook. Mr. Moser was a Democrat in politics, and a member of Epler's Reformed Church.

Howard L. Moser attended the public schools of his native township, after leaving which he went with his parents to Gibraltar, and in 1872 came to Cumru township, where he engaged in making fire brick, an occupation which he followed for a short time. He then became employed at the Reading Iron Company's pipe-mill, where he continued for about eight years. In 1895 he engaged in his present business at Fern and Noble streets, Oakbrook, carrying a fine line of general merchandise. He is an excellent business man, and his enterprise and fair dealing have won him much trade.

Mr. Moser was married to Emma Bernheisel, daughter of Elias Bernheisel, and to this union two children have been born: Corinne T. m. John Levan; and Floy at home. In politics Mr. Moser is a Democrat, and he has served on the election boards of his township. He is a member of St. John's Reformed Church, of Reading, where he has served as deacon since 1904. Fraternally he is connected with the Independent Americans No. 252, and the Knights of Friendship No. 128.

Elias Bernheisel, father of Mrs. Moser, was born in 1840, and died Oct. 5, 1891, having for many years been an official employe of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad, at Pawling, Chester county. His wife was Tumella Mcnard, daughter of Jacob Menard, of Leesport, and eight children were born to the union: Elizabeth, Emma, John, Lillie, Alfred C., Claude, Annie and Howard.

MOSER. There has been much confusion occasioned through two of the early settlers of this community bearing similar names, Burkhart Mosser, Jr., and Burkhard Moser. The family to which Howard L. Moser, of Cumru, belongs is that of the latter, Burkhard Moser.

In 1751 there emigrated to America Hans Michael Moser, with his wife Katharine, and four children, and settled in Amityville, Douglass township, Berks county, Pa. They came on the sailing vessel "Duke of Wurtemberg". After locating in this country, a fifth child was born to them. Their children were: (1) George, born 1740, died 1806, and was buried at St. John's, Centre Square, Montgomery county. His will was probated in 1807. He married Margaret Leber, but had no children, and she survived him forty-eight years, dying at the age of 104 years; she is buried in the Muhlenberg cemetery at Trappe. (2) Peter, born 1742, died 1829, aged eighty-seven, and was buried in the Pottstown cemetery. His will was probated in 1830. He settled in Pottstown, and became the father of twelve children, five boys and seven girls, namely: John, Henry, Peter, Jacob and George; Anna Maria m. a Geiger; Catherine m. a Pyle (their son, Henry M. Pyle, lives in Pottstown); Hannah m. a Weidner; Margaret m. a Neidig; Eliza m. a Yocum and moved to Ohio; Anna m. an Egolf; and Lydia m. a Brunner. (3) Barbara, born 1745, died in 1817. She married a Neuman, and settled in Pottstown, but her place of burial is unknown. Her will was probated in 1818. Her four children were: Mary, Peter, Philip and John. (4) Burkhard is mentioned below. (5) Christian, born 1755, died in 1838, and was buried at St. John's, Centre Square. His will was probated in 1839. He was the father of four children, two sons and two daughters, but the two sons died young. The daughters were: Mary, who married Jacob M. Hurst; and Elizabeth, who became the wife of Benjamin F. Harry. Christian Moser was the only son of his parents born in America.

Burkhard Moser, born 1748, son of Hans Michael, was three years old when the family came to America. At the time of the Revolution he and his younger brother Christian enlisted for service in the Continental army, and served through the whole of the war. They sent the pay received from the government to their brother, Peter, near Pottstown, and after the close of the war they returned to Montgomery county. Christian settled in Whitepain township, buying a farm with the money he had received from the government. Burkhard was somewhat eccentric and, it is stated, of "wild habits," and he went into the mountains perhaps a little earlier than 1800, and settled in what is now known as Tamaqua, Schuylkill county. There is evidence to show he visited his brothers on several occasions, and that Peter visited him once or twice. On Jan. 17, 1815, he purchased 416½ acres of land from James McCorckle and John Didier, paying $510 in silver for it. The deed gives the exact lines and posts, and his brother Peter, who seems to have always cared for his brother's money, gave him the necessary funds to make the payment. He built a log house on his land, began to cultivate it, and lived there for some thirteen or fourteen years, paying the taxes on it up to the year of his death. He died in full possession without debts, in 1828, but where he is buried or who performed the burial rites is not known. The land was later claimed by the company who had paid the taxes for two years after his death, then built a log house, which still stands on an elevation near Panther Creek, and claimed it as a squatter's claim. Burkhard Moser was a bachelor, and died intestate as far as is known. This old man of about eighty years at the time of his death, lived alone in the mountains, and naturally those who knew him thought he was without friends or relatives. When Peter died in 1829 he was ignorant of his brother's death, and Christian "was entirely blind eight years before his death, and being a devout Christian, thought little and cared less for all earthly estates." With these brothers was buried all true and exact knowledge of Burkhard's property.

JOHN S. BUCHER, of Seidel Hollow, Robeson township, Berks county, was born in Amity township Dec. 11, 1855, son of David and grandson of John Bucher. The family is of German origin, and has spread over Lancaster, Lebanon, Montgomery and Berks counties, in Pennsylvania.

John Bucher, grandfather of John S., was born in Pike township, Berks county, where he died. He was a forgeman. His children were: Jonathan, David, William George, Sophia, Caroline, Catharine and Elizabeth. Both John Bucher and his wife are buried at Hill Church.

David Bucher, son of John, was born in Pike township, April 12, 1832. He became a very capable blacksmith, and followed that trade all his life. For many years he lived in Amity township, where he died Jan. 3, 1883, and was buried at Amityville, as was also his wife, Mary Smith. Their children were: Hannah, Amanda, John S. and Jacob.

John S. Bucher attended the public schools of Amity township, and the Academy of Boyertown until he reached the age of eighteen years. He then learned the trade of blacksmith under his father's careful teaching. In 1888 he settled in Robeson township, and bought the farm owned by Dr. J. S. Ammon of twenty-five acres of land through which runs a beautiful stream known as Sandy Monocacy—a name which aptly describes this stream, which flows through a valley of red sandy soil. During the rainy seasons this sand is washed into the stream, and rolls on the dam to where it lodges. From there it is taken out and dried, and owing to its purity finds a ready sale. During the season of 1909 Mr. Bucher sold about 500 tons to the United Traction Company—in fact he averages that quantity to this company annually. He also ships to outside parties. The Sandy Monocacy has quite a history as a power supply. For many years it turned the wheels that operated a bloom forge and a bar iron forge on Mr. Bucher's property, originally built and operated by Jonathan Seidel, and through many years a source of good living to many employes. Newer and quicker methods forced their abandonment of late years, and the property was first sold to Dr. J. S. Ammon, who in turn sold to Mr. Bucher. The latter erected a cider mill of improved design and a circular sawmill, and these are still operated by the excellent and untiring little stream.

Mr. Bucher married Rosa Bucher, daughter of George Bucher. Their children are: Charles, living at Reading; Dora, at school; Cora, a public school teacher; Jennie, at school; Verna, at school. Mr. Bucher is a Democrat, and a member of St. John's Reformed Church in Robeson township. He is recording secretary of the church, and at the present time is serving as deacon. Fraternally he is a member of the P. O. S. of A. He is one of the energetic and active men of his community, and is a potent factor in any progressive movement.

WILLIAM D. THOMPSON was born in the city of Reading, Pa., Sept. 28, 1863, at No. 39 Hamilton street, that city, and has resided on the same premises all his life with the exception of one and one-half years. He is the son of William and Barbara (Douglass) Thompson, both of New York City.

The parents moved to Reading in 1861, and the father served in the Civil war.

William D. Thompson received his early training in the public schools of his native city, later attending school at a local business college. He was apprenticed at the Scott Works, Reading Iron Company, and learned the trade of a machinery moulder. After working at this trade for several years he entered the grocery business and followed that for fourteen years. In politics he is a Democrat and has served in his district as ward chairman. For the past seven years he has been employed as Chief clerk to the Board of City Assessors and Building Inspector. He has been a volunteer fireman since his maturity, having served as president of the Keystone Hook and Ladder Company, No. 1, for a number of years, and the Firemen's Union for two terms.

On April 25, 1886, he married, at Lebanon, Pa., Kathryn S. Rauch, of that city. Mr. Thompson is well and favorably known throughout the city and county.

DAVID W. RUBRIGHT, proprietor of the Globe Dye & Bleach Works, of Shoemakersville, Pa., and one of the leading and influential citizens of that place, was born Sept. 19, 1856, in Perry township, Berks county, son of Gabriel and Hettie (Kissinger) Rubright.

Jonas Rubright, the first of this family to settle in Berks county, came from Wurtemberg, Germany, prior to the Revolutionary war, settling in Centre township, where he owned the tract now known as the Rentschler farm, and was an extensive farmer. In later years he lived in Schuylkill county, where he died in the Lutheran faith, and was buried at the Red Church. His wife, who bore the maiden name of Catherine Wertman, was buried in the Zion Church burial ground. It is not known whether or not Jonas and Catherine Rubright had other children than George Philip.

George Philip Rubright lived in Windsor township, where he operated a small farm and worked at the trade of pump maker. He was twice married and the father of sixteen children. Three of the four born to his first wife, Sallie Winter, were as follows: Moses; Hannah, m. to John Achten; and Leah, m. to John Klopp. Mr. Rubright's second wife was Sarah Dewalt, and to this union there were born twelve children, among whom were: Sallie, m. to David Sheary; Gabriel; Joel, who settled in Ohio; Matilda, m. to Stephen Keim; Paul, m. to Sarah Bausher, and father of thirteen children, seven sons and six daughters: Katie, m. to John W. Smith, by whom she has one child: Polly, m. to Jared Noecker, and mother of seven children.

Gabriel Rubright was born Oct. 3, 1831, in Windsor township, Berks county, and in youth attended the pay schools of his district, which he left at an early age to learn the trade of carpenter with David Shearer, his brother-in-law. He learned pump making from his father, and for a number of years worked at his trade in the boat yards, residing at Hamburg. In 1868 he removed to Frackville, Schuylkill county, and there he is still residing, working daily at his trade. Mr. Rubright married Hettie Kissinger, daughter of Abraham and Eliza (Rissmiller) Kissinger, and to this union there were born children as follows: Elias died in childhood; Alfred m. Priscilla Moyer; David W.; Amos m. Jennie Jackson; Katie m. Louis Behmer; Mary m. Alex. Phillips; George died in infancy; Morris was killed in the coal mines, Christmas day, 1893, aged twenty-four years, leaving a widow, Rosa Carp, and three children; William m. Rosa Reed; Lizzie m. George Washer; Annie m. Wilson Rickenbach; Jacob; and Edward, who married Lillie Hoffman. Of the Kissinger family, to which Mrs. Rubright belonged, Mary is deceased; Isaac was killed on the railroad about twenty-seven years ago; Jacob m. a Miss Krupp, and has a son, Lee; and Ellen m. James Shade.

David W. Rubright received his education in the local schools of his township, and at Frackville, Schuylkill county. He began work as a breaker boy in the coal mines, where he picked slate for seven years during the summer months, attending school in the winter time. In 1876 he returned to his native township, and for four years worked upon the farm, but in 1880 began carpentering with Adam Heckman, of Shoemakersville, in whose employ he continued for a period of five years. He then went to Reading and for nine years worked for David Mosser, assisting in building the rear five-story structure of Dives, Pomeroy & Stewart, and a number of dwellings at Wernersville. For one season he worked at Pottsville, Shenandoah and Mahanoy City, and continued at his trade in nearly all of the villages and towns in Upper Berks county. In 1895 Mr. Rubright went to Camden, N. J., and assisted his brother-in-law, Wilson Rickenbach, in building boats and pleasure yachts. After a few years he returned to Shoemakersville, Pa., and acted as carpenter foreman for William Reeser in building the large plant of the terra cotta works, south of Shoemakersville.

In 1899 Mr. Rubright and F. V. B. Madeira formed a partnership under the name of Rubright & Madeira, and engaged in paper box manufacturing, but after the junior partner's death, Mr. Rubright sold the plant and good will to Henry Stoyer. In 1901 Mr. Rubright entered into business relations with William Grim, under the firm name of Rubright & Grim, and engaged in the bleaching business. This firm was successful from the start, and Mr. Rubright purchased his partner's interest, later admitting David S. Wolf into the firm, under the name of Globe Dye & Bleach Works, and they bleach underwear for the following well-known firms: Globe Knitting Mill, of Shoemakersville, Pa.; Reading Underwear Company, Reading; H. K. Deisher, Kutztown; George Unger, Boyertown; Macungie Knitting Mill, Macungie; Lesher-Raig Knitting Company, Reamstown; Wagner Company, Mohrsville; Moyer & Heissler, Orwigsburg; Samuel Unger Estate, Pottsville; William F. Scheerer & Sons, Pottsville; Ammon Brothers, Reading; Mohnton Knitting Mill, Mohnton; Reading Underwear Company, Mill No. 2, Ephrata; Eagle Knitting Mill, Leesport; Miller & Balthaser, West Leesport; Manheim Knitting Mill, Manheim. The capacity is 5,000 pounds per day.

Mr. Rubright is one of Berks county's self-made men. From a humble beginning in life he has worked his way up step by step, until now he ranks with the successful men of his community. He is the possessor of an enviable reputation for honesty and integrity, and enjoys the respect and esteem of his fellow citizens. In addition to being the leading stockholder in the bleach works, Mr. Rubright owns considerable property in Shoemakersville, and in 1906 erected two large brick houses on Noble street, residing in one of them himself, while one of his sons, who is in the employ of his father, resides in the other. He owned the first automobile in the town. This is a Packard touring car, which he bought in Philadelphia and rode home in it, being able to manage it himself the next day.

Mr. Rubright was married to Miss Emma Wheeler, daughter of Harry and Sarah (Unger) Wheeler, the latter of whom died Feb. 17, 1904, at the ripe age of ninety-three years, the mother of ten children. To Mr. and Mrs. Rubright the following children have been born: Mahlon W., born June 10, 1878, m. Clara Martin, daughter of Israel and Caroline Martin, and has one son, George (born Feb. 22, 1906); Jeremiah, born March 6, 1880, m. Nora Betz, daughter of Samuel and Salena Betz, and has had two children, Larue (born Nov. 21, 1906) and Helen May (born November, 1908, died in infancy); Cora Emma, born Dec. 8, 1882, died in infancy; and Edward D., born April 9, 1884, m. Sue Gerber, daughter of John and Susan Gerber.

JOSEPH F. RODGERS, an honored veteran of the Civil war, now living retired in the city of Reading, Pa., was a member of Company L, First Pennsylvania Reserve Cavalry, and served until he was obliged to give up a soldier's life on account of injuries received.

Mr. Rodgers was born Aug. 10, 1838, at Mooresburg, Montour Co., Pa., son of Joseph B. and Margaret (Fix) Rodgers, and grandson of Matthew Rodgers, formerly a prominent agriculturist of Millerstown, Pa., where he owned and operated a farm until 1832. In that year he moved to Ohio, then considered to be far West. In that State Matthew Rodgers died. His children were: Obediah, John, Joseph B., Martha and Mary. In religious belief he and his wife were Episcopalians, and he was a lay reader in that body. It is not known that he held any office, but he was a stanch Democrat in political principles.

Joseph B. Rodgers, father of Joseph F., was born in 1810, in Millersburg, Dauphin Co., Pa., and was educated in the subscription schools. He was a youth of intellect, and became better educated than many of his comrades. In 1833 he learned the cooper's trade at Duncannon and then settled in that business at Reading, where he was extensively engaged for a number of years. His factory supplied barrels for mills and breweries all over the neighborhood, and he employed a large number of hands. He died in 1861, and his wife in 1882, the latter being eighty-two years of age. Their children were: Angeline C. m. William Gay, a mining engineer; Mary R. m. William Brice, a merchant in Philadelphia; and Joseph F. The parents were members of the Universalist Church. In politics Mr. Rodgers was, like his father, a Democrat, and being a man of standing in his community, was frequently urged to accept office but invariably declined. He took much interest in the order of Odd Fellows, and was a prominent member in that organization.

Joseph F. Rodgers accompanied his parents to Reading in 1845, and was educated in the common schools of this city. After leaving school he apprenticed himself to Daniel Byerly, his half-brother, to learn the barber's trade, and after completing the same, opened a shop and continued in that business for a period of fifty-four years, this being the longest period spent by any one in one line of business in this city, and possibly in the State.

On July 30, 1861, Mr. Rodgers enlisted in Company L, First Pennsylvania Reserve Cavalry, under Capt. John C. A. Hoffeditz and Col. George D. Bayard. The latter became a brigadier general and was killed in action at the battle of Fredericksburg. He was succeeded by Gen. David Mc. M. Gregg. Mr. Rodgers continued in the service until the discharge of his regiment, and participated in all of its experiences. Upon three occasions he was slightly wounded and once his horse fell and thereby he was seriously injured, sustaining a fracture of the hip from which he never fully recovered.

After the close of his army service, Mr. Rodgers returned to Reading and resumed work at his trade, in which he continued until 1905, since which he has lived retired. He owns the Rodgers Block, one of the best business properties in Reading.

In 1880 Mr. Rodgers married Miss Maria Dunkel, daughter of Henry Dunkel. They have no children. In politics Mr. Rodgers is a Republican, casting his first presidential vote for Abraham Lincoln. He is a member of the Union Veteran League, of Pennsylvania. His long residence here has made him a very familiar figure in the city, and he can recall the day when he knew every one he met.

MORRIS R. KEEN, who for some years has been carrying on contracting and building operations in the city of Reading, was born Jan. 21, 1853, in Brownsville, Berks county, son of Charles and Henrietta (Reeser) Keen.

Jacob Keen, grandfather of Morris R., was born Feb. 7, 1781, and died Feb. 8, 1829. His wife, Sarah, born Nov. 4, 1780, survived him until Dec. 15, 1842. They were lifelong residents of Reading and members of the Lutheran Church. Their children were: Charles, William, Mrs. Sophia Eyrich, Eliza (m. Anderson Harvey), and Susan (m. James Lambert).

Charles Keen, father of Morris R., was born Dec. 28, 1816, in Reading, and died June 4, 1864, in Brownsville. He was a tailor by trade, a profession which he followed in Reading, Fritztown and Brownsville, and was a good citizen and highly respected man. He married Henrietta Reeser, who died June 16, 1897, aged eighty-one years, and to them there were born the following children: Reuben m. Rebecca Davis, and had two children, Rev. Edward (of Waynesboro) and Flora; Charles m. Nora Young, and had five children, Claude, Mamie, Nellie, Paul and Earl; Morris R.; Miss Rosie E. is in Philadelphia; Catherine m. Jacob Young, deceased, and had five children. Mr. Keen was a Democrat in politics, and was well versed in local matters, wielding some influence in his district, although never an office seeker. The family were connected with the Reformed Church.

Morris R. Keen was educated in the schools of Brownsville, and in 1864 came to Reading and attended the grammar schools and Prof. D. B. Brunner's Commercial College, after which he taught school for two terms in Cumru township. He then learned the carpenter's trade, at which he worked for one year, after which he entered Jones and Clauser's hardware store, remaining two years. In company with Reuben Keen he engaged in a general mercantile business at Third and Washington streets, where he continued for five years, after which he purchased a farm in Penn township, which was his home for nine years. Mr. Keen then returned to Reading, and in 1887 engaged in contracting with Adam Brossman, under the firm name of Brossman & Keen, but after one year each branched out in business for himself. Mr. Keen is now associated with Mr. H. G. Fisher, and they do a large business, having built many structures in the northwestern part of the city, including houses on Pear, between Washington and Walnut streets, on Elm between Schuylkill avenue and Front street, and two blocks of houses, twenty-six in all, on Buttonwood street.

On Feb. 6, 1879, Mr. Keen married (first) Susan A. Richards. On Dec. 6, 1902, he m. (second) Catherine Lesher, by whom he has had two children: John L., who died aged about ten months; and Josephine E. He is a member of Epler's Reformed Church. Mr. Keen was one of the organizers of the Schuylkill Fire Company, of which he was the first treasurer, and did much towards the maintenance of this organization.

NEFF H. RHODE, a member of the firm of Neff H. Rhode & Bro., dealers in bicycles and sundries, located at No. 636 Cherry street, Reading, is one of that city's progressive and successful business men. He was born Nov. 24, 1858, at Reading, son of William H. and Mary Ann (Neff) Rhode.

William H. Rhode was born in Dauphin county, Pa., in 1816. He was but nine years old when his father died, and early began to assist in the support of his mother and sister. In his young manhood he engaged in mercantile business in Dauphin county, and moved to Reading in the forties, where he engaged in business at Eighth and Penn streets, conducting a mercantile store on the site now occupied by Leinbach & Co., clothiers, which property he owned. In 1871 he started the jewelry business at No. 534 Penn street, buying out the interest of Solomon Weida, and in this he was associated with his son-in-law, Israel R. Waterman, and his son, Peter A. Rhode, under the firm name of Rhode & Waterman. This continued twenty years. During the early seventies there were several incendiary fires in his warehouse, the last one totally destroying the building and causing a severe loss. In the years he was engaged in the mercantile business he had different partners; the first was Adam Fasig, and the second Isaac R. Fisher—the latter now eighty-one years old. Later Mr. Rhode was in the real estate business, and the fire and life insurance business, and in this he was associated with David Neff, of Reading. They had their office at No. 12 North Eighth street, in the Rhode building, and after Mr. Neff's death, Mr. Rhode continued it until his own death. He was the owner of considerable property, and the First U. E. Church stands on ground once owned by him. He built No. 912 Penn street, in 1857, which contains sixteen rooms, and is now owned by George W. Lehr. Mr. Rhode was one of the organizers of St. James Lutheran Church, Reading, and contributed liberally towards its support and served as elder and trustee. In politics he was a Republican. He married Mary Ann Neff, daughter of William Neff, who died at Womelsdorf. Mr. Rhode died in February, 1883, and his wife in November, 1882. Both are buried in the Charles Evans cemetery. Their children were: (1) Sallie A., deceased, m. A. W. Straub, of Philadelphia, who for forty-six years has made all the hubs and dies for the United States government in the mint at Philadelphia. He has also a business of his own, being the senior member of the firm of A. W. Straub & Co., manufacturers of the Quaker City Grinding Mill (of which Mr. Straub is the patentee), which has a world-wide market. (2) Francis C. at the age of sixteen volunteered for service in the Civil war, and was taken prisoner and confined for some time at Castle Thunder. He wrote a letter to the Confederate Secretary of War, and his request for exchange was granted, and he served until the close of the war. Later he became a machinist for the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company, and he died in Reading in 1877, at which time he was in a mercantile business. He m. Eveline Bewley, and they had four children: Clarence C., Florence, Nellie and Bessie (m. Samuel Guinther). (3) Carrie E. m. the late Israel R. Waterman, at one time a partner of Mr. William H. Rhode. (4) Peter A., who died in Philadelphia in 1881, m. Emma Wildenstein, and she now lives in Reading and manages the Wildenstein estate. (5) William H., a cigar maker, m. Minnie Goodyear, and has a son Albert E. (6) Mary Emily m. John C. Shade, of Jonestown, Lebanon Co., Pa., who is now a junior partner with his brother-in-law, A. W. Straub, of Philadelphia. (7) Neff Homan is a twin to Mary Emily. (8) Luther A.

Neff H. Rhode was born in the family home then located at No. 912 Penn street, Reading. He attended the public schools and later Brunner's Business College during 1878-79. His entrance into business was in the cigar line which he followed for six years. He was in a restaurant business for one year, and in 1890 entered into the bicycle business with his brother, Luther A., at Nos. 25-27 South Seventh street. In August, 1905, they built their present building, No. 636 Cherry street, completing it in January, 1906. It is a commodious structure of three stories, 30x40 feet, which gives them 2,500 feet of floor space. When they first entered into business they made their main object the buying of second hand wheels and repairing them, but their business enlarged so rapidly that they have increased it along many lines, and now have the largest repair business in Reading. The firm of Neff H. Rhode & Bro. deal in bicycles and sundries, and do expert repairing in all its branches, enameling in all colors, and they are agents for the famous Snell bicycles, for the 20th Century, Rhode Special and Fisk Puncture Proof tires, and they buy, sell and exchange new and second hand wheels. Since starting in this business they have repaired more than 35,000 bicycles, averaging 3,500 to 4,500 a year. This firm was the first to handle the new Morrow coaster brake, taking this up about 1897. Their works are run by electricity, and they give constant employment to four skilled mechanics. Mr. Neff H. Rhode is also interested in old coins and collects and deals in same having one of the finest collections in the city. At one time he had 18,000 pieces, and in 1876 he sold to John W. Hazleton, of Philadelphia, a collection of 14,000 pieces. At one time he was also interested in stamps.

In 1898 Mr. Rhode married Florence Haak, of Pottstown, daughter of William Haak, and they have a pleasant home at No. 1117 Chestnut street. They are members of St. James Lutheran Church. Mr. Rhode has long been known as one of the city's enterprising and reliable business men. In politics he is a Republican. Fraternally he belongs to Camp No. 89, P. O. S. of A., which he joined in 1883, but he has belonged to the order since 1879, and helped to organize Camp No. 225, of Reading; is a member of the Veterans Association, P. O. S. of A., of Pennsylvania (composed of those who have belonged to the order for at least twenty-one years); of Aerie No. 66, F. O. E., of Reading; a charter member of Neversink Tribe, No. 351, I. O. R. M., and has been trustee of the Eagles Mountain Home Association since 1907; a member of the League of American Wheelmen since 1896; of Garfield Camp No. 1, Old Guards Association; a charter member and since 1897 treasurer of the Electric Wheelmen's Association; and a member of the Commercial Club, and of Philharmonic Band.

DANIEL GOODMAN, of Reading, who has spent practically all of his life as a wheelwright, was born July 27, 1841, in that city, son of John and Catherine (Allison) Goodman, and grandson of Jacob Goodman.

John Goodman, who was born at Eighth and Franklin streets, Reading, learned the wheelwright business in his father's shop, and followed that occupation for a period of fifty-two years, when he retired and purchased a farm to which his attention was given the rest of his life. He married Catherine Allison, daughter of John Allison, and to them were born nine children, as follows: Mary died in infancy; Henry; Catherine, deceased, m. Joseph Seifert; Jacob is deceased; Maria died single; Eliza; Sarah m. James Koch; Daniel; and Amanda m. Frederick Grotevent. In religious belief the family were adherents of the faith of the Reformed Church. Mr. Goodman was a Democrat in politics.

Daniel Goodman received his education in the schools of his native locality, and when a boy learned the trade of wheelwright with his father. He has worked at that occupation up to the present time with the exception of six years, three years of which were spent as a member of the water board and three years in boat-building. For fifteen years Mr. Goodman has been engaged in business on his own account and in his line is well and favorably known.

At the age of nineteen years Mr. Goodman married (first) Amanda Rhein, and they had five children: Howard L., who is engaged in baking in Reading; Kate H., m. to Milton Shirey; Annie E., a teacher in the Reading high school; Ralph A., deceased; and Paul E. Mr. Goodman m. (second) Amelia Reedy, by whom he has had one child, Daniel A., a pattern maker. Mr. Goodman is a Democrat in politics, and he resides at No. 405 Laurel street, in the First ward.

HARVEY B. UNDERCUFFLER, proprietor of the hotel which stands at Ninth and Spring streets, Reading, was born Jan. 24, 1863, at Boyertown, Pa., a son of Zephaniah and Louisa (Beiderman) Undercuffler.

The Undercuffler family is one of several generations in this section of Pennsylvania. Isaac Undercuffler, grandfather of Harvey B., was born at Pottstown, Pa., where he lived to the age of seventy-five years, dying in 1880. He followed the business of pressing hay. He married Rebecca Rhoads, and they had children, as follows: Zephaniah; Edward, residing in New York; Isaac, who died unmarried; Kate, m. to William Buck; and Mary, m. to Henry Reigner.

Zephaniah Undercuffler, father of Harvey B., was born at Pottstown, Pa., and died at Ephrata, Lancaster Co., Pa., in October, 1892, aged fifty-eight years. For thirty years he engaged in hotel-keeping but lived retired for three years before his death. He married Louisa Beiderman, who died in October, 1903, aged sixty-nine years. They had five children, namely: Catherine died unmarried; Mary m. (first) Edward Schwenk, had two children, Harry (died aged two years) and George W. (m. Emily Tea), and (second) Peter L. Reddig; Frank, residing at Reading, m. Sallie Moyer, and had four children, Harry (died aged eleven weeks), Louisa (died aged eleven years, ten months), Reuben and Elsie; Harvey B.; and Techlamiah m. Jacob Reddig (deceased), and had one child, Harry (died aged six months).

Harvey B. Undercuffler was educated in the public schools at Wernersville, in Berks county, and at Ephrata, in Lancaster county. He was practically brought up in the hotel business, his father having been engaged in the same at Boyertown, Treichlersville, Wernersville and Ephrata. In 1889, Mr. Undercuffler came to Reading, where he was employed in a livery business by Howard L. Boyer, after which he worked for three years as a teamster for Major S. E. Ancona and Joseph Kremp. In 1891, he embarked in a hotel business, locating at No. 1301 North Tenth street, where he was associated for one year with his brother, Frank B. After the partnership was dissolved, Harvey B. Undercuffler came to his present large hotel, taking charge September 15, 1892. He has here a commodious, well-appointed building, and included in it is Undercuffler's Hall, where many political and other meetings are held. He is a good business man and is numbered with the city's prosperous citizens.

In December, 1882, Mr. Undercuffler married Annie J. Jones, who died in March, 1887. They had three children, namely: Walter and Warren, twins, born Aug. 8, 1883, of whom Warren died aged eleven months; and Annie J., born Jan. 12, 1885, died Oct. 20, 1891.

On Dec. 26, 1891, Mr. Undercuffler m. (second) Rosa M. Willi, daughter of John Willi, and three children were born of this marriage—Florence May, Effie Charlotte and Leroy Z. The Willi family is of Swiss extraction. Johann Willi was born about 1720, at Siglistorf, Switzerland, and probably died in 1757. About 1745 he married Katharine Willi, and they had two children: J. Heinrich (born about 1750, m. Verona Zimmerman), and Anna Mary (born in 1755, m. Andreas Huliser). J. Heinrich Willi was a man of importance, and was mayor of his home town. He had a son, Xavier, who was the father of Hans, or John. John Willi married Mary Willi, no relative, the name apparently being a common one in Switzerland. They had the following children: Albertina; Amelia died in Switzerland; Angelbert; Katharine lies buried in Switzerland; Hans, of Reading, m. Kate Nagle, and has two children, Mary and Heinrich; Amelia is the widow of Albert Billinger; Godfried lies buried at Reading; Mary m. John Haas; Catharine m. Heber Buckwalter; Fridolin died aged three years; Heinrich died aged nineteen years; Rosa M. m. Harvey B. Undercuffler; and Annie m. Adam Brahm, of Reading.

Mr. Undercuffler is a member of Reading Aerie, No. 66, F. O. E.; and a charter member of Court Victory, No. 123, Foresters of America, and is active in both organizations. He belongs to the Marion Fire Company, and is a member of the Berks County Liquor Dealers' Association, of which he has been treasurer since September, 1907.

ALBERT B. SAUSSER, the well-known dealer in stoves, ranges, furnaces and heaters, whose place of business is located at No. 326 North Sixth street, Reading, Pa., was born in Strausstown, Berks county, Jan. 11, 1865, son of Albert Sausser.

Benjamin Sausser, grandfather of Albert B., was a farmer in Upper Tulpehocken township, Berks county, and served his township as constable for several years. He died at the age of seventy years, while his wife, who had been Susanna Reber, passed away when seventy-eight years of age. Their children were: Jonathan, Joel, John, Albert, Harry R., Mrs. D. Lengel, Mrs. Clouser and Mrs. J. Boltz.

Albert Sausser, son of Benjamin and Susanna, was born July 12, 1826, in Upper Tulpehocken township, and when a young man assisted his father at farming. He then began clerking at Shartlesville, Berks county. While there Mr. Sausser purchased the "History of Berks and Lebanon Counties," published in 1844, which is now in the possession of Albert B. Sausser, and a very valuable book, few of them being in existence. After clerking at the above place for a few years, Mr. Albert Sausser returned to his father's farm, but later went to Strausstown, engaging in the stove and tinning business, continuing therein until his death, in his sixty-ninth year. His wife, who had been Lovina Stoudt, was born Feb. 21, 1826, in Upper Tulpehocken township, and died in 1904. Their children were: Sarah E., born Dec. 31, 1850; James S., July 1, 1852; Charles M., July 21, 1853; Agnes J., Nov. 29, 1856; and Albert B.

Albert B. Sausser attended the public schools at Strausstown, and with his father learned the stove and tinning business. On Oct. 10, 1882, he went to Schuylkill Haven, where he finished his apprenticeship New Year's Day, 1884, when he returned home. In April, 1884, Mr. Sausser went to Tamaqua where he continued until May, 1885, then returning to his home, buying tools and supplies and locating at Auburn, Schuylkill Co., Pa. There he remained in business for seven years, when he came to Reading, and was here employed in the same business with H. C. Geisler for seven years. On March 2, 1901, he engaged in business at his present place, and September 1st of that year took into partnership Mr. L. H. Gehris under the firm name of A. B. Sausser & Co. They continued together until March 30, 1906, when Mr. Sausser purchased his partner's interests and has since continued alone. He makes a specialty of hot air heating, roofing and spouting in connection with his stove store.

Mr. Sausser married Gertrude, daughter of Samuel J. Radcliffe, and to them have been born: Effie B., James R., Gertrude R. and Albert F. Mr. Sausser is a member of Grace United Evangelical Church, and is a teacher of the married ladies in the Sunday-school. In politics he is a Republican, and while in Schuylkill county served as committeeman to the county convention. He is well known as a business man, and as a citizen is very public-spirited. His popularity is great.

CHARLES A. HAUEISEN, a well-to-do business man of Reading, Pa., who is the proprietor of a sandstone yard on Buttonwood street above Sixth, was born in Wurtemberg, Germany, son of William and Pauline (Werner) Haueisen, the former of whom died in 1904, the latter ten years previously.

Charles A. Haueisen received his education in the schools of his native country, and there learned the stone-cutting trade, becoming a skilled mechanic in that line. When twenty-seven years of age he came to America, landing at New York City, where he remained three months. After a short time spent in Philadelphia, Mr. Haueisen located in Reading, being engaged in working on public buildings at his trade until he established his present business in a small way, and in this he has continued to the present time, the business having grown steadily, until he is now the employer of from twenty to thirty skilled workmen. Mr. Haueisen not only finds work in Reading, but he is well known throughout the surrounding counties. Building work of all descriptions is executed in a superior manner at short notice, and Mr. Haueisen pays prompt attention to jobbing and repairs. He and his wife reside at No. 419 North Sixth street, Reading.

Mr. Harrison married Annie Holzhauser, and to them were born: Mary, Helen, Caroline, George, Carl, Charles, Harry and Emma, the latter three of whom are deceased.

In political matters Mr. Haueisen is a Republican. He is connected with St. Paul's Catholic Church. He is a member of the Knights of St. John and the Liberty Fire Company.

HENRY E. HILBERT, senior member of the well-known grocery and general merchandise firm of Hilbert & Smith, of Reading, who was formerly one of the best known educators in this section of Berks county, was born Oct. 29, 1864, in Perry township, Berks county, son of David and Mary (Eck) Hilbert, the former of whom resides on his forty-acre farm near Macungie, Lehigh county.

Henry E. Hilbert attended the public schools of his native district until nineteen years of age, the Lebanon Valley College during the spring term of 1892, and Muhlenberg College in 1898. He began teaching in the public schools at Shoemakersville in the fall of 1886, later taught in Perry township for eight terms, and finally finished his career as an educator by teaching eleven successive terms at the Oakbrook grammar school in Cumru township. On May 30, 1893, he came to Reading, and in the summer of 1900 engaged in the grocery business at the northwest corner of Moss and Perry streets, where he continued very successfully for three and one-half years. He then purchased a residence at No. 1036 North Fifth street, where he resided for three years, and at this time formed a partnership with his brother-in-law, G. Frank Smith, under the firm name of Hilbert & Smith, which has grown to be one of the largest enterprises of its kind in the city. The firm carries a complete and up-to-date line of staple and fancy groceries, notions and dry goods, and its reputation is above reproach, which probably accounts for its phenomenal success. Both partners are able business men, and are looked upon as solid, substantial representatives of the best interests of the city.

Mr. Hilbert is a Republican in his political faith. He had charge of Sub-station No. 2, Reading, for three years, at Moss and Perry streets. Mr. Hilbert and his family are Lutheran members of St. Mark's Evangelical Lutheran Church, at Tenth and Windsor streets. He was a member of the consistory while living at Shoemakersville for two terms, removing from that place before his term had expired. He has been a superintendent of Sunday-schools since his fifteenth year, being appointed at that time to the superintendency at DeTurks in Perry township, in which capacity he served ably for three years, was the incumbent of a like position at Shoemakersville for four years, and has held the office at St. Mark's, Reading, since 1901. He is a teacher at Trinity Lutheran Church, Reading, at the present time.

Mr. Hilbert was married June 13, 1891, to Miss Annie S. Smith, daughter of George and Caroline (Long) Smith, and granddaughter of Andrew and Elizabeth (Leppart) Smith, natives of Germany.

RICHARD H. PENNEBACKER, a practical farmer of Spring township, Berks Co., Pa., died at Sinking Spring, Aug. 21, 1908, aged eighty-eight years, four months, three days.

The name Pennebacker is sometimes spelled Pennypacker. Samuel Pennebacker, grandfather of Richard H., was a farmer in Schwenkville, Montgomery county, owning the farm that is now the property of ex-Governor Samuel Whitaker Pennypacker. Samuel Pennebacker was a Mennonite. He married and had a large family, among his children being a son, Abraham.

Abraham Pennebacker, son of Samuel, was born at the famous Pennypacker Mills, in Montgomery county, in 1787. He learned the millwright's trade, and this he followed until he was twenty-seven years old. He then came to Berks county, and located in Cumru (now Spring) township, where he came into possession of a good farm of 124 acres by marriage. He also owned another farm of 123 acres, and this he had rented. He was successful, and his neighbors held him in high esteem. He frequently served as juryman and appraiser, and he assisted in laying out many of the Berks county roads. He died Sept. 4, 1848. He married Hannah, daughter of John and Hannah (Pennypacker) Hill. She was a member of the Reformed Church, while her husband, Abraham, was a Mennonite. They had six children: Richard H.; John died unmarried, aged sixty-three, at the home of his brother, Richard H.; Charles is of Philadelphia; Abraham is of Reading; Mary A. m. the late Joseph G. Huyett, and is now living at Wilmington, Del.; and James H., born Sept. 10, 1837, now living retired at Edison, m. in 1863, Catharine Huyett (born 1841) and has two children—Alice H. (at home) and Cora H. (wife of H. W. Showalter, of New Holland).

Richard H. Pennebacker was born in Spring township (then Cumru) in 1820. He was reared to farming in his youth, and on starting out in life for himself, chose that vocation, and he continued actively engaged along that line until 1886, after which he lived retired. His farm consisted of 124 acres of land along the Wyomissing Creek. For a few years after he gave up work he remained on the farm, and in 1890 he moved to Sinking Spring, where he died from apoplexy. In politics he was a Republican, and in religious connection a member of the United Brethren Church. He married Mary S. Masser, daughter of Daniel and Elizabeth (Steiner) Masser. She still lives at Sinking Spring. The children of this marriage were: Adam M.; Eva A. m. Charles W. Zacharias (now deceased), and has a daughter, Mary (m. Rev. Irwin Runk, a United Brethren minister now residing at Harrisburg); and Sallie A. m. H. A. Soder, of Freeland, Luzerne county, and has two children, Alberta and Florence.

Adam M. Pennebacker, son of Richard H., was born May 14, 1858, in Spring township, and his education was acquired in the district schools and the Keystone State Normal School at Kutztown, attending the latter institution in 1872-75. He then worked for his father until the latter's retirement in 1886, when he took the farm and engaged in its cultivation on his own account. In 1890 he moved to Reading, and became a bookkeeper for Hamilton Godfrey, remaining there four years. For six years he was shipping clerk at the Mellert Foundry and then he entered the employ of the Keystone Wagon Company, where he has since continued. He resides at No. 531 Schuylkill avenue in his own home.

Mr. Pennebacker married Mary Elizabeth Luft, daughter of Benjamin B. and Catharine (Bollman) Luft, and they have two children: Mary Catharine m. Irwin A. Dautrich, of Reading, and has two children—Harold Llewellyn and Luke Donald; and Benjamin Luke L., for the last ten years has been a jeweler with the Anderson Jewelry Company. Mr. Pennebacker is a Republican in politics, and has been an active worker for his party in the Fifteenth ward. He is a member of St. Mark's Reformed Church. Socially he belongs to Mt. Penn Lodge No. 65, K. P.; and is a charter member of Camp No. 689, P. O. S. of A., Reading, of which for four years he was the secretary.

CHARLES M. SMECK, one of the well-known hotel men of Reading, Pa., who is proprietor of the "Wayside Inn," located at Nos. 257 and 259 Penn street, corner of Third, has been prominently identified with the political and fraternal interests of the city, and belongs to one of the old and honored families of Berks county. Mr. Smeck was born at Birdsboro, Pa., March 17, 1866, son of Ephraim M. and Caroline (Moser) Smeck.

Samuel Schmeck, great-grandfather of Charles M. Smeck, was born Sept. 7, 1778, and his life was spent in Reading, where he followed the trade of hatter. He was first buried at Sixth and Washington streets, Reading, but his remains were later removed to the Charles Evans cemetery. On July 6, 1800, Samuel Schmeck married Ann Eliza Ritzey, born Aug. 25, 1781, and to this union there were born the following children: Edward; Charles, who lived in Reading; William, born Jan. 21, 1812, in Reading, and died in Ohio; Henry, who died while on his way home from Brazil, and was buried at sea; Susanna, m. to Peter Eisenbise, and lived in Reading; Barbara Ann, born March 10, 1822, m. to Elmer Lewis, of Reading; and Ann Eliza, m. to Harrison Hardy, and lived in Reading.

Edward Schmeck, son of Samuel and grandfather of Charles M. Smeck, was born in Reading, Jan. 14, 1801, and died in that city aged seventy-four years, nine months, twenty-five days. He was a carpenter by occupation, and for fifteen years followed that trade in northern Ohio, but subsequently returned to Reading, where for a number of years he was engaged in building houses. He was the assessor and tax collector of the First ward (then called Spruce ward) for sixteen or seventeen years, and was a well-known and highly esteemed citizen. He is buried in Aulenbach cemetery. Edward Schmeck married Hannah Moser, daughter of George Moser, who was wounded five times during his service as a soldier in the Revolutionary war. On one occasion while on picket duty Mr. Moser had a wonderful experience: The picket line where he was put on guard on this night was a very dangerous point, as for five or six nights the picket here had been either captured or killed. According to his report he "heard something crawling and grunting like hogs," and shot and killed an Indian, but was captured. The horse on which he was spirited away, however, was shot by the other Continental picket, and falling, crushed Moser's leg, thus disabling him from further service. It is said he was a brother of Burkhard Moser, around whose estate centers a litigation that has assumed large proportions. He is said to have died a bachelor and left extensive coal lands in Schuylkill county. Edward Schmeck and his wife had the following children: a son, born Dec. 27, 1827, died in infancy; Angeline M., born March 28, 1828, m. James Jones; Ephraim M., born July 26, 1831; James M., born Jan. 25, 1834, died on Penn street, Reading; George M., born Nov. 13, 1835, died in Reading; Elizabeth, born May 11, 1838, in Ohio, m. Thomas Rusk, and now resides in Philadelphia, Pa.; Susan, born Jan. 3, 1840, m. (first) Charles Snyder and (second) Ephraim Renninger; Mary Ann, born Feb. 3, 1844, m. Tobias Bartlett; Ann Eliza, born Oct. 9, 1846, died young; Permilla, born Aug. 27, 1849, also died young; and Charles W., born Nov. 7, 1851, died in Reading.

Ephraim M. Smeck, father of Charles M., was born July 26, 1831, in Reading, and when one year old accompanied his parents to the Western Reserve, where he lived fifteen years. When sixteen years of age he returned to Reading and became a heater for Seyfert, McManus & Co., a capacity in which he served thirty years, being located at Reading, Port Clinton, Schuylkill Haven, Philadelphia and other points. After spending two years at Birdsboro he purchased a farm of 100 acres in Pike township, and there resided for three years, subsequently selling out to return to Reading, where he has lived ever since. Mr. Smeck now occupies his own residence at No. 421 Schuylkill avenue, where he has lived since 1889. In political matters he is independent. He and his family are members of St. Mark's Reformed Church. In 1852 Mr. Smeck married (first) Mary Wunder, daughter of Daniel Wunder, and to this union there were born two children, namely: Lillie, m. to Samuel Landis; and Hannah, m. to John Renninger. Mrs. Smeck died quite young, and was buried at the family plot at Aulenbach cemetery. Mr. Smeck m. (second) Caroline Moser, daughter of Frederick and Christiana (Wiend) Moser, farming people of Pike township. There were six children born to this marriage: James is a barber at Lebanon, Pa.; Ellen, m. William Miller; William lives at Reading; Charles M.; Carrie is single; and Harry lives in Philadelphia.

Ephraim M. Smeck enlisted April 2, 1861, in Company A, 14th Pa. V. I., for three months' service during the Civil war, and was honorably discharged Aug. 5, 1861. He was about to re-enlist as a soldier, when he received information that teamsters were needed in the army, and he subsequently served in that capacity on a supply wagon, from August, 1862, until in 1863, when he was again honorably discharged.

When a mere lad, Charles M. Smeck accompanied his parents to Hillchurch, in Pike township, and there spent several years on the farm, coming to Reading with his parents when five years old. He attended the German Lutheran parochial school at Reading, and as a youth commenced working in the sheet mill of the Reading Iron Company, continuing in the iron business until twenty-two years of age. For one year he operated the big twelve-inch heating furnace at the Blandon Rolling Mill, and then entered the employ of the Prudential Life Insurance Company, with which he continued for eighteen months. He was a distributing clerk in the Reading post-office during the administration of Capt. R. P. Stetson for two years and nine months, and then became proprietor of "Lauer's Park Hotel," where he remained two seasons. He next conducted the "Metropolitan Hotel" at Harrisburg for one season, but subsequently returned to Reading and for two years was the proprietor of the "East Reading Hotel." He was also for six months the proprietor of the "Hamilton House," but this he sold out to become House Sergeant under the administration of Mayor H. H. Leader, a capacity in which he served for eighteen months. Following this he purchased the hotel property at Nos. 1356 and 1358 Cotton street, corner of Fourteenth, taking possession thereof on July 31, 1900, and successfully conducted it until Sept. 9, 1907, when he sold the property to the Lauer Brewing Company, and became the proprietor of his present stand. This is one of the best hotel stands in the city, and Mr. Smeck has a large and growing patronage. He is also the owner of a number of building lots in Reading, and has been very successful in his business operations.

In politics Mr. Smeck is a Republican in national matters, while in local affairs he is independent. He has held various positions of trust and responsibility, and in the spring of 1906 was elected common councilman from the Sixteenth ward, an office which he resigned on his removal to the Sixth ward. He is a member of Aerie No. 66, F. O. E., Reading; Camp No. 330, P. O. S. of A.; Resolute Council No. 27, I. O. A.; and Court Wyomissing, F. O. A., of which he has been treasurer since 1904. He is also an active member of Schuylkill Fire Company, and a contributing member of the Union and Neversink Fire Companies, as well as of the Philharmonic Band. He is one of the members and heavy stockholders of the Eagles' Mountain Home Association, and is connected with various other Reading clubs and organizations. With his family he attends the First Reformed Church.

Mr. Smeck was married Oct. 6, 1887, to Elizabeth Houck, daughter of Charles and Susanna (Dietrich) Houck, and they have had four children: Florence, at home; William, a cornet player of wide reputation who, although but twenty-one years of age, is assistant treasurer of the Academy of Music; and Walter and James, who are attending school. All of the Smeck children are musicians of ability.

William M. Smeck, brother of Charles M. and son of Ephraim M., was born Sept. 2, 1863, in Reading, and his education was obtained in the public schools of this city. He learned the machinist's trade as a youth at the American Iron & Steel Company's plant, and continued in that company's employ for twenty-seven consecutive years. He is a skilled mechanic and a most trusted employe. In political matters he is a Republican, while socially he is connected with the I. O. R. M.; Resolute Council, American Mechanics; the Friendship Fire Company, and the Nursery Literary Association of Reading, of which he is a past official. He was chairman of the building committee in 1892, which erected the present building of the association, it now having a membership of 103 persons.

On May 28, 1891, Mr. Smeck was married to Emma Maurer, daughter of Isaac Maurer and wife (whose maiden name was Texter).

CHARLES C. MALTZBERGER, who was for many years prominently engaged in business in Reading, Pa., owning and conducting a tobacco store, was born in that city, May 9, 1835, son of John and Elizabeth (Coleman) Maltzberger.

Mr. Maltzberger was educated in the common and grammar schools of his native city and also attended a private school taught by Prof. Kelly, in the old log Quaker Meeting-house then located on Washington street. He assisted his father in his tobacco business, and while yet a young man clerked in William Coleman's dry goods establishment. He later accepted the position of accountant with Hammond, Snyder & Co., remaining with the company for several years, then entering the employ of Shortridge & Co., continuing in Philadelphia until 1861. In this year Mr. Maltzberger returned to Reading and opened a store at No. 639 Penn street, and he was here engaged in the tobacco business until his death in 1874. Mr. Maltzberger was known for his upright and honest business methods, and it has often been said of him that his word was as good as a bond.

In 1857 Mr. Maltzberger was married to Margaret C. Haas, daughter of Christian Frederick and Catherine (Greiner) Haas. The maternal grandfather of Mrs. Maltzberger, Christian Greiner, was the master stone cutter in the erection of the present Berks County Court House, this fact appearing on a tablet placed on that structure. The children born to Mr. and Mrs. Maltzberger were as follows: (1) Henry, a graduate of Yale College in the class of 1879, is a prominent attorney at law of Reading. (2) Marguerite E. m. Robert Job, a native of Boston, Mass., who is a chemist and for several years was chief chemist of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad Co., resigning this position to become a member of Booth, Garrett & Blair, leading chemists of Philadelphia. They have three children,—Gertrude, Robert and Margaret. (3) Charles J., for a number of years superintendent of the J. H. Sternbergh branch of the American Iron & Steel Manufacturing Co., Reading, is now in the sales department of the Reading Iron Company. He m. Martha Elizabeth Job, a native of Boston, Mass. (4) John died in infancy. Fraternally Mr. Maltzberger was a member of Lodge No. 62, F. & A. M., Royal Arch Chapter, and De Molay Commandery of Reading, K. T. While he never united with any church organization he was a Christian, God-fearing man, and attended and supported liberally the First Presbyterian Church, of which his wife was a faithful member.

Mrs. Maltzberger was born in Zanesville, Ohio, where her father had removed in 1833. He was a native of Germany and emigrated to America early in the nineteenth century, being a brewmaster by trade, brewing what was known in the early days as "cream" beer. While in Zanesville he purchased much valuable real estate, and owned a brewery, and hotel. He was a very prominent man, and was highly esteemed by all who knew him.

JACOB N. WILLIAMS, of Reading, one of that city's self-made men, is a representative of a family that has long been known in Berks county.

John Williams, the first of the family of whom there is definite record in Berks county, was a resident and taxable in Alsace township, before the American Revolution. He made his last will and testament March 25, 1806, and his death occurred in the latter part of September, 1807. His will is recorded in Will Book 4, p. 448. He was a Quaker, and two well known Quakers, Mordecai Wright and Samuel Lightfoot, of Maiden-creek township, were his executors. He attended Maiden-creek Meeting House, and it is probable that he is buried there. In his will he made ample provision for his "beloved" wife Ruth, and he mentions four sons: William, Isaac, Joseph and Jesse.

Joseph Williams, son of John and Ruth, died in 1808, without issue. He was a shoemaker in Maiden-creek township. His executors were Jeremiah Starr and Mordecai Wright, both English Quakers. Items in his will were: "My shoemaker tools and clothing shall be divided between my three brothers, William, Isaac and Jesse Williams." "My brothers Thomas, John and Henry Williams shall have five shillings, they having been befriended by me before." "My brother Isaac shall have 15 pounds extra because of the loss of his fingers."

Jesse Williams, son of John and Ruth, had sons, John and Samuel. Of these, Samuel had a son Samuel H., born May 23, 1837, m. to Amanda Deem, and father of Annie, John, Sallie, Lillie, Clara and Edward. Samuel and his family live in Centre township, Berks county.

Abraham Williams, son of ————(probably William), and grandson of John and Ruth of Alsace township, lived in Upper Bern township. He married a member of the Faust family, and among his children was a son, Samuel.

Samuel Williams, grandfather of Jacob N., and son of Abraham, was a cabinet maker and undertaker in Upper Bern township. He married Louisa Wagner, and their children were: Charles, of near Leesport, Pa.; Frank; Howard, deceased; Dianah, m. to Alfred K. Rentschler, former county treasurer; Sarah, m. to a Mr. Young, of Philadelphia; Ella m. to Joseph Martin, of Hamburg, Pa.; Hettie, m. to William Reinhart; and Alfred W., father of Jacob N.

Alfred W. Williams was born in Upper Bern township, Berks county, Sept. 13, 1852, and he died May 12, 1884. He followed farming in Upper Berks county until his death. His wife was Hettie A. Nies, who is now the wife of Cyrus Kauffman, and they reside at Rosedale, Berks county. The children of Alfred W. and Hettie (Neis) Williams were: Jacob N.; George N.; Katie N., m. to Charles Reeser, of Leesport, Pa. Mr. Williams is buried at St. Michael's Church.

Jacob N. Williams was born in Upper Bern township, May 30, 1875, and attended the public schools. He worked for his father and grandfather when a boy, but at the age of sixteen took a position as clerk in the general store of Howard Fraunfelder, at Mohrsville. He afterward clerked for a short time for William B. Kline at West Hamburg, and from there went to Hamburg, where he remained clerking in the store until 1897, when he came to Reading and engaged in the grocery business at Sixth and Pine streets. This business he followed until 1900, at which time he became a cigar salesman for the firm which later admitted him as a member, and June 3, 1903, as one of the firm he was given charge of the outside business of the Kline Cigar Company, located at Nos. 441-443 Cedar street, Reading. This Company did a large business, employing from forty to fifty people. Their product was a fine grade cigar, and their high business principles were well known in the business world. Mr. Williams is a good example of what honesty, integrity and perseverance will accomplish. Starting as a clerk he has worked his way up to a position of responsibility, and in the spring of 1908 he retired from this firm and started in the wholesale cigar business.

Mr. Williams was married in 1898 to Cora Grommis, daughter of Isaac and Kate (Leis) Grommis, and their children are: Paul A. and Ralph I., attending school; and Mary E. The family attend Grace Lutheran Church. In fraternal circles Mr. Williams is a member of St. John's Lodge, F. & A. M., No. 435, Reading; Bohemond Commandery No. 277, A. & I. O. K. of M.; Washington Camp No. 78, P. O. S. of A., Hamburg; Hamburg Castle, No. 477, K. G. E. He served three years as a member of Company E, Fourth regiment, National Guard of Pennsylvania.

EDWIN C. STAHL, who died Aug. 29, 1909, was one of Reading's representative business men. He was born in Union county, Pa., Oct. 18, 1860, son of Jeremiah and Harriet (Noll) Stahl, the former of whom died at the age of twenty-three years. After the death of her husband Mrs. Stahl m. (second) Aaron Reber, of Union county, and died in December, 1905, when sixty-eight years of age. The children born to Mr. and Mrs. Stahl were: Ida C. (m. to J. W. Hoch), Daniel (died in infancy) and Edwin C.

Edwin C. Stahl was educated in the common schools of his native county, and lived with his grandparents until his twenty-fifth year, as indeed he had since his father's death, this event occurring when Edwin C. was thirteen months old. He took a two years' course at Bushnell Academy at Lewisberry, and from the age of twenty-one years to twenty-five taught school. He then went to Williamsport, Pa., and entered Prof. F. E. Woods Business College, graduating therefrom Aug. 25, 1885, and immediately came to Reading, where he found employment at the Reading Hardware Works, continuing with that firm until 1893. In 1892 Mr. Stahl purchased the bakery business at No. 323 Penn street, and this was conducted by his wife and mother for one year, when he resigned his position with the hardware works in order to give his entire attention to the new enterprise. This was at first conducted on a very small scale but by excellent management and honorable business dealings Mr. Stahl built up one of the finest bakery trades in the city, his goods being second to none. He made a specialty of bread and cakes. In 1904 Mr. Stahl erected a storage warehouse, part of which he utilized for the storage of flour, etc., used in his business, the remainder of the warehouse being rented out to the public for the storing of household goods, etc. Starting out in business with little or no capital, Mr. Stahl worked his way up the ladder of success, and became one of the capable, well-to-do business men of the city.

In 1886 Mr. Stahl married Miss Nellie Millhouse, of Middleburg, Snyder Co., Pa., and one child was born to this union: Clarence D., born in 1891. Mrs. Stahl died June 18, 1909, in the faith of the Lutheran Church, to which her husband also adhered. She was a member of the Bible class at St. Matthew's Sunday-school, of the Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Society, and of the Young Women's Christian Association. Mr. Stahl was a member of the I. O. O. F., the Reading Hardware Company Relief Association and the Royal Arcanum.

JOHN WITMOYER, in whose death the city of Reading lost one of its valued citizens, was born Dec. 13, 1843, in Cumru township, Berks county, son of Daniel and Sarah (Kirchner) Witmoyer.

Daniel Witmoyer passed his earlier years in Cumru township, but later in life removed to Reading, where he died. He married Sarah Kirchner, and they had these children: John, Charles, William, Isaac and Harrison, who lived in Indiana, all being deceased except Harrison.

John Witmoyer came to Reading with his parents as a boy, and here attended the public schools. When the Civil war broke out he enlisted, at the age of eighteen years, and served in Company H, 88th Pa. V. I., his regiment being attached to the Second Brigade, Second Division, First Corps, Army of the Potomac, under General Reynolds. Mr. Witmoyer participated in over thirty engagements, including Bull Run, Antietam, Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville and Gettysburg. He was twice wounded in the leg at Gettysburg, while his company was capturing two of the Confederate flags. At the end of his three-year enlistment he re-entered the army, and was in Grant's last campaign, which saw the surrender of General Lee. Before this campaign, Private Witmoyer was promoted to lieutenant, for bravery in action. On his return from the war he secured employment on the Reading Railroad, as baggage master, running between Pottsville and Philadelphia for twenty-five years, and retired in 1893. He was a member of St. James Lutheran Church, the Masons, Castle No. 51, K. G. E., and the Union Veteran Legion. In political matters he was independent. Mr. Witmoyer owned the old home in Penn township, a tract of seventy acres. He died in his pretty, green-stone-front residence at No. 336 North Ninth street, Friday, March 15, 1907, and his widow still makes her home there.

On Nov. 16, 1872, Mr. Witmoyer was married by Rev. Thomas T. Iaager, to Elizabeth Weber, daughter of George and Magdalena (Bender) Weber, of Penn township, and granddaughter of George Weber, also of Penn township. To this union there were born six children: Louisa, Elizabeth, Sophia, Maria, George and Emma.

MORRIS J. ULRICH, a well-known business man of Reading, and a representative of one of Berks county's earliest families, was born near Leinbachs, Berks Co., Pa., Oct. 10, 1865, son of Daniel and Mary (Moser) Ulrich.

Peter Ulrich, great-great-grandfather of Morris J., was a farmer in Berks county, where he died in 1837. His will, made Jan. 9, 1836, and probated Oct. 15, 1837, is on record in Will Book No. 8, page 180. His son, John Ulrich, and his son-in-law John Croco, were the executors. His children were: Mary m. John Croco; Peter; John lived in Ohio where he became a man of prominence; Hannah; Isaac received his father's property at Danville, Pa.; Michael is said to have lived in Lancaster county; and Jacob is mentioned below. Among other relatives may be mentioned George Jacob Ulrich, who lived and died at Pinegrove, then in Schuylkill, now in Berks county. His will, made in 1786 and entered in the following year, is on record in Will Book A, page 146. He left a large estate, making ample provision for his wife Mary, who survived him and for his sister, Margaret Ulrich. Some of his children were young when he died, and he provided for their education; and his son Valentine was to pay a certain sum to his mother and sisters, Eva Barbara, Catharine, Margareta, Elizabeth and Christina. Valentine Ulrich died in Berks County in 1837. His children were named: George, Magdalena, Susanna, Rosanna, Elizabeth, Barbara and Hannah.

Jacob Ulrich, great-grandfather of Morris J., was foreman in the old paper mill in Maiden-creek township, where he also owned a valuable farm. He is buried in a private cemetery on the farm where rest many of the family. He was thrice married, and among his children were: Abraham; Jacob, who settled in the West; Peter, of Frush Valley; Joseph, who died in middle life; Eliza, a cripple, who died unmarried; Mrs. Jeremiah Weidner; and Susanna.

Abraham Ulrich, grandfather of Morris J., resided in Ontelaunee township, Berks county, where he was a laborer. His burial was in Cumru township. He married Nellie Miller, daughter of Daniel Miller, of Bern township, and they had five children, namely: Adaline m. Hiram Briner, and resides at Janesville, Iowa; Rufus died in 1905, aged sixty-eight years; Eliza, m. Henry Staudt, and died on her birthday, Jan. 13, 1907; Daniel; and Ellen m. Frank Sterner, of Lehigh county.

Daniel Ulrich, father of Morris J., was born June 30, 1838, in Maiden-creek township, Berks county. He became a lime and coal merchant in Bern township, back of Leinbachs, where he conducted a large business until 1896, when he retired, and since then has made his home with his son Morris J. He was also boss of a gang of men working for William Yeich and Samuel Blatt, contractors at Reading. He married Mary Moser, daughter of John Moser, of Bern township. She died Jan. 31, 1906, aged fifty-four years, and was buried at Epler's Church. The following children were born to Daniel Ulrich and wife: Morris J.; John, of West Reading; Daniel and William, who both died young; Lizzie, m. to Elmer Schelly, of Reading; Mary m. to Joseph Marks, of Riverside, Reading; George, of Reading; Sallie, m. to William Gundrum, of Riverside, Reading; Charles, of Spring Valley; Harry, of Reading; and Katie, who lives with her sister, Mrs. Gundrum.

Morris J. Ulrich attended the public schools until he was sixteen years of age, and then spent two spring terms at the Keystone State Normal School at Kutztown. Following this he taught one term of school in Bern township and one term at Rehrersburg, Pa. Then he engaged in a butchering business at Reading which he continued for nine years. In 1895 he began to work for the Atlantic Refining Company, selling oil on the street through Reading, and in the following four years he did a large business selling oil at Topton, Pa. In April, 1906, he became the janitor of the Buttonwood Street Market House, and he also manages the stable attached to the market house. He is a busy man and is one who enjoys the confidence of his fellow citizens on account of his faithful performance of duty.

On May 5, 1888, Mr. Ulrich married Amelia M. Ammarell, a daughter of Charles Ammarell, and they have had seven children, namely: Frank, who died in infancy; Calvin, born Jan. 20, 1890; Jeremiah, born Sept. 5, 1893; Esther; Clara; Paul, born Nov. 2, 1904; and Martha. Mr. Ulrich and family belong to St. Mark's Reformed Church of Reading. He has been very active for years in church work, and has served as deacon, elder and for four years has been church treasurer. He is also one of the efficient teachers in the Sunday-school.

CHARLES ECK. Among the well known residents and successful business men of Reading, may be mentioned Charles Eck, who is extensively engaged in contracting and building, and who resides at No. 416 North Ninth street. Mr. Eck was born April 2, 1840, in Ruscombmanor township, Berks county, son of the late George and Abelina Eck.

George Eck, who was a native of Berks county, learned the tailor's trade when a young man, but followed this only a few years, owing to ill health. He was employed at different occupations for the rest of his life, his death being caused by a blast in a stone quarry at Allentown, Pa., in his seventy-first year. His wife, Abelina, who died at the age of fifty-eight years, bore him fifteen children, as follows: Hannah, born July 10, 1836; Mary, deceased, born Aug. 23, 1837; Susanna, born Aug. 19, 1838; Charles; Catherine, born Sept. 14, 1841; Leannah, deceased, born March 9, 1843; Polly, deceased, born Sept. 10, 1844; Sarah, born Jan. 8, 1846; Caroline, born Sept. 8, 1848; George, born Aug. 11, 1849; Jonas, born July 11, 1851; Wilson, deceased, born March 23, 1853; Michael, born July 21, 1855; Rebecca A., born Aug. 6, 1858; and Martha, born Dec. 13, 1860.

Charles Eck attended the public schools of his native township, and until nineteen years of age worked on a farm. He then went to Fairfield county, Ohio, where he learned the building business in all of its details. Returning to Berks county in 1874 he located in Reading, and here followed brick-laying for a time and butchering for eight years, but finally engaged in the building business, which he has continued to the present time with much success. Among many other structures erected by Mr. Eck, his present handsome residence, built by him in 1887, is worthy of mention. He is one of the self-made men of the city, and his success in life is due entirely to his own efforts.

Mr. Eck was married to Elizabeth De Long, daughter of Daniel and Rebecca (Specht) De Long, and to this union have been born: Louisa, Celesta and Lucinda are deceased; Emma m. M. J. Hoffman, and has two children, Marion and Emily; Lillie; and Melvin m. Annie Smith, and has also two children, Erma and Carl. Mr. Eck is independent in politics. His religious belief is that of the Evangelical Church.

WILLIAM H. GERMAN, a well known and highly esteemed citizen of Reading, Pa., and a veteran of the Civil war, was born in Reading, March 5, 1847, son of John and Deborah A. (Sagee) German.

John German was born at Milton, Pa., and learned the trade of brush making in Philadelphia. He came to Reading and engaged in business on Penn street, on the present site of the opera house, under the firm name of Helms & German, for thirty years. For a few years prior to his death, Mr. German lived retired. He and his wife had seven children, four of whom still survive: Emma M., William H., Edwin F. and Elmer A.

William H. German received his education in the schools of Reading, going three years to the high school, and when thirteen years of age went to learn the machinist's trade with the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad, in the shops of which line he remained for several years. In 1868 he was appointed to a clerkship at the Reading postoffice, resigning at the end of one year to accept the position of census taker of Berks county. The next five years were spent at his trade, at the roundhouse of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad. He was then appointed a letter carrier of Reading, a position in which he continued for eight years. Mr. German next accepted a position as bookkeeper for the Deppen Brewing Company, where he remained four years, in 1891 taking his present position, as head bookkeeper, at the Jackson Rope Walk, one of the oldest business places of Reading.

Mr. German married Anna Maxton, daughter of David Maxton, a native of Chester county, but later a resident of Reading. Three children were born to Mr. and Mrs. German: Harry R., who is his father's assistant; and Charles M. and Frank W., twins. While a boy at school, Mr. German enlisted as a drummer boy in Company H, 104th Pa. V. I., but his father refused to let him serve on account of his youth. Later, in 1863, he enlisted in Company C, 42nd Regiment, was out but a short time, and again enlisted, this time in Company A, 195th Pa. V. I., serving about four months, when he was mustered out at Harrisburg. Mr. German is a member of Post No. 16, G. A. R., and for a period of thirty-five years has been adjutant of the post. In political matters he is a Republican, and when a resident of the Eighth ward, Reading, served as inspector. Mr. German is a member of St. Matthew's Lutheran Church, in the work of which he takes an active part.

FRANK C. SELAK, for some time a business man of Reading, Pa., but best known, perhaps, in connection with his work as a musician and conductor of an orchestra, was born in York county, Pa., Oct. 17, 1860.

Mr. Selak grew up in York county, attending the public schools, and while yet a mere boy showed marked promise along musical lines. During his youth and early manhood he was employed in several capacities, but through it all he kept up his musical studies and was for many years actively connected with various organizations of that nature. For a long time he was president and treasurer of the Germania Band, and in that position rendered valuable service. In 1903 he organized Selak's Band and Orchestra, and for four years was the conductor of that body. His musicians became very favorably known and besides furnishing the music for the Carsonia Park Association for several years, he and his men were called upon at many of Reading's social functions, banquets, etc., while their fine music made them equally well known and popular in Carlisle, York, Harrisburg, and other cities in the southeastern part of the State.

After settling in Reading Mr. Selak went into business and was prominently engaged in carrying on a bird store. For a number of years he was located on South Sixth street, and did a flourishing business, but finally sold the property and established himself in the Mansion House Building. His health failed, however, and he was obliged to give up his business and take up his residence on a farm of 100 acres, which he owned in Cumru township, Berks county, one of the finest farms of that section. There he devoted himself to the culture of gold fish, having twenty large ponds, and, with every facility at hand for breeding them successfully, has made his venture a profitable one. Mr. Selak owns some valuable property in Reading, including a handsome residence which he has remodeled and made into one of the most desirable places in the city. This was the well known George Frill mansion at No. 118 South Fifth street. In the fall of 1908 he built a large aquarium (30 x 65 feet), in the rear of his Fifth street residence, which he devotes to the purpose of breeding Japanese goldfish. This has been pronounced one of the most up to date and finest in the country. Entirely a self made man, Mr. Selak has won his success by strict attention to business, and has won an enviable reputation among Reading's men of affairs. He is a member of the Reading Board of Trade, and as such always used his influence to promote the city's best welfare, both commercially and financially. He is a Democrat in politics, but has never sought political preferment.

In 1889 Mr. Selak married Miss Rosie Reiner, of Reading, and their union has been blessed with four children, Edmond, Maria (deceased), Carl and Florence. The family are connected with the St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church.

HARRY W. CROOKS, who was well known to the citizens of Reading, Pa., for a number of years as a coal dealer at Fifth and Court streets, was born in St. Clair, Schuylkill Co., Pa., Dec. 2, 1866, son of Henry S. and Isabella (Wood) Crooks, natives of England.

Henry S. Crooks was a mine superintendent, and worked throughout the anthracite regions of Pennsylvania, but was residing in Reading at the time of his death, in 1904, at the age of seventy-seven years. Mrs. Isabella (Wood) Crooks died in 1906, aged seventy years. Two children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Crooks: Harry W. and Martha.

Harry W. Crooks received his education in the schools of Tremont, Pa., and in 1887 came to Reading, taking charge of the wholesale department of the well-known firm of Dives, Pomeroy & Stewart, remaining with that company until 1890, when in spite of many flattering offers by the company who wished to retain his services, he resigned to enter the coal business. In 1890 he engaged as a coal dealer, and continued in that business sucessfully until the time of his death. Kind and generous to a fault Mr. Crooks' thought was always for others. In his father's declining years he took care of him at the expense of his own health, but he was never heard to utter a word of complaint. Even in his final sickness, Mr. Crooks called his sister to his bedside and begged her to rest herself—that he was all right. In his business dealings he was honest and upright, possessing a reputation throughout the city for integrity. In his death the poor lost a friend, as he was ever ready to help those less fortunate than himself, and it is said that the extent of his charities will never be known. Mr. Crooks died Nov. 22, 1905. He was a member of the Masonic fraternity, belonging to St. John's Lodge, No. 435, F. & A. M., Reading Commandery No. 42, K. T., and Rajah Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S.

The business of which Mr. Crooks was the founder is now being carried on by his sister, the only member of the family now living, Miss Martha Crooks, who, like her brother, has many warm friends in Reading.

JOHN G. RICK, junior member of the firm of Kuersten & Rick, manufacturers of high-grade hosiery, of Reading, Pa., was born in 1865, in Philadelphia, Pa., son of John G. and Elizabeth (Well) Rick, natives of Germany.

John G. Rick, father of John G., came from Germany to America in 1861, in a sailing vessel, and settled in Philadelphia, where the remainder of his life was spent. In his native country he had carried on weaving as an occupation, but after coming to America he worked as a flange turner in Neaffe & Levy's shipyard, which afterwards became the Cramp shipyard. Mr. Rick died in 1885, aged fifty-four years, while his wife, who survives him, resides at No. 2906 Fairhill street, Philadelphia. The children born to them were: Elizabeth, who died in infancy; John G.; Emma, m. to Charles Nahm; Harry, m. to Elizabeth Conn; and Matilda, single. In religious belief Mr. and Mrs. Rick were Reformed. In politics he was a Democrat. Fraternally Mr. Rick was connected with the Red Men, the I. O. O. F., and the Seven Wise Men.

John G. Rick was educated in the schools of Philadelphia, and at the age of thirteen years entered the employ of Henry Becker & Co., for whom he worked for a period of thirteen years. He was then associated with the Oak Mills Company, for one year, and in 1892 came to Reading as superintendent for Louis Weber & Co., and after this firm dissolved he formed a partnership with Mr. Kuersten. Their first plant was located on Cedar street, above Walnut, but since that time they have removed to their present location, at the corner of Reed and Elm streets. Here they employ 180 men, manufacturing medium and high-grade hosiery, all of which is handled by jobbers.

Mr. Rick married Miss Sarah Conn, and to them there have been born two children: Sarah and John G. Mr. and Mrs. Rick attend the Reformed Church. In politics he is a Republican.

DAVID R. SHEARER, a leading contractor and builder of Reading, Pa., was born March 13, 1860, in Perry township, Berks county, son of David and Sarah (Rubright) Shearer, and grandson of John Shearer.

John Shearer was a farmer of Perry township, and was also engaged as a stone mason. He married a Miss Lesher, and to them were born these children: David; John; Hannah, who died in 1906, at the age of ninety-three years; Kate; Caroline; Anna; Sarah; Mary and Elizabeth. In religious belief the family were members of the Reformed Church.

David Shearer, son of John, was born June 24, 1819, and was a farmer and carpenter in Perry township, following the latter occupation until eighty years of age, since which time he has lived retired, he now being in his ninetieth year. His wife, Sarah Rubright, died in December, 1905, when seventy-eight years old. Their children were: Daniel, William, David R., Samuel, Frank, Catherine, all living, Joel, Sarah and Anna, deceased. In religious belief the family were Reformed, and in politics David Shearer was a Democrat.

David R. Shearer was educated in the schools of Perry township, and as a young man learned the carpenter's trade with his father, an occupation which he has followed since his eighteenth year. Until 1892 he engaged as a journeyman, but since that year he has been engaged in contracting, his present holdings being fourteen stone-front houses on North Eleventh street, the block between Robeson and Marion streets. Mr. Shearer employs an average of six men, and his buildings have been mostly confined to the northeastern section of the city, where he has erected many building blocks.

Mr. Shearer was married to Catherine Muntz, also a native of Perry township, and to them were born five children, as follows: Annie, m. to William C. Link; Charles D., who is associated with his father in business, m. to Flossie Brehan; Sallie, m. to Harry Wertz; and Katie and Elizabeth, single. Mr. Shearer is a Democrat in politics, and he and Mrs. Shearer attend the Reformed Church, of which he has been an elder since 1895.

MANDON W. SEITZINGER, junior member of the well-known plumbing firm of Fritz & Seitzinger, of Reading, Pa., was born March 1, 1869, in Wernersville, Pa., son of Josiah H. and Sarah (Wenrich) Seitzinger.

Josiah H. Seitzinger was born April 26, 1836, in Heidelberg township, Berks county, son of Joseph and Elizabeth (Hart) Seitzinger, the former of whom was born in 1806 in Berks county, and for many years engaged in blacksmithing and farming in Heidelberg township, then going to Lebanon county, where he died. Josiah H. Seitzinger attended the schools of his native township, and under his father learned the blacksmith's trade, which he followed for thirty years in Reading, for a number of years being in the Philadelphia & Reading shops. On Jan. 19, 1858, he married Sarah Wenrich, daughter of Jacob Wenrich, of Robesonia, and they had children as follows: Katie M., born April 28, 1859, m. Davilla Wenrich, and they reside in Heidelberg township; Ida L. E., born May 1, 1860, is single; Morgan W., born Oct. 25, 1861, died when twenty-four years old; Sarah A., born May 10, 1863, m. Levi Enck, and resides in Reading; Milton W., born June 9, 1866, m. Annie Graul, and they reside in Reading; Mandon W.; Clara P., born June 10, 1871, m. Warren W. Brown, and they reside in Reading; Maggie A., born Dec. 8, 1872, m. (first) James Pickens and since his death has married again; Morris J., born Sept. 10, 1874, m. Annie Stirk; Monroe W., born Oct. 21, 1876, resides with his mother in Reading; and Eva E., born June 1, 1879, died when four months and fifteen days old.

Mandon W. Seitzinger was educated in the schools of Reading, after leaving which he became a newsboy. Later he engaged at the Reading Hardware Works, his next employment being in a cigar factory. In 1888 he apprenticed himself to John Drexel at the plumbing business, and for thirteen and one-half years worked as a journeyman. In 1905 Mr. Seitzinger formed a partnership with J. Howard Fritz, and since that time they have conducted a first class business at No. 328 North Sixth street, employing on an average ten people. Their specialty is steam and hot water fitting. They carry a full line of stock connected with the business. Mr. Seitzinger is a member of the P. O. S. of A., and Juniata Tribe, No. 174, I. O. R. M. He votes independent of party ties, and his religious belief is that of the Lutheran Church.

On Nov. 27, 1895, Mr. Seitzinger married Miss Elizabeth Good, daughter of Peter and Emeline (Hoffmaster) Good. Mr. and Mrs. Seitzinger have no children. They have resided in their own home at No. 921 Windsor street, Reading, since the spring of 1902.

W. SCOTT SLEGEL, superintendent of the contracting firm of George W. Beard & Co., with main offices in the Colonial building, Reading, is a member of an old family of Berks county. He was born June 17, 1866, in Reading, son of Joel E. Slegel.

John Slegel (also spelled Schlegel), grandfather of W. Scott, was a well known tailor located at Fleetwood, Berks county, where he died at a ripe age. His wife, whose maiden name had been Estella Ely, died in her ninetieth year. They were the parents of five children. Of these

Joel E. Slegel was born in 1833, at Fleetwood, Berks county, and when a boy learned the tailor's trade, under the tuition of his father. He later traveled through the Western States following his vocation. Later giving up the tailoring trade, he commenced the study of dentistry, and subsequently received his diploma, being for some time in partnership with his brother, Levi, and later in business on his own account at No. 111 North Fifth street. He built up a large practice, which he held until his death in 1888. Dr. Joel E. Slegel married Susan J. Reber, daughter of W. W. Reber, and she died at the age of fifty-eight years. They had two children: Walter R., D. D. S., of Reading; and W. Scott.

W. Scott Slegel was educated in the public schools of Reading, subsequently graduated from Schuylkill Seminary, and later took a course in bookkeeping at Professor Brunner's Business College. After leaving the latter school he was engaged in farming for two years near Boyertown, Berks county, after which he learned the carpenter's trade and was first employed by John Kissinger. He was engaged in business for five years on his own account, during that time building fifty-two residences and several business buildings. In 1897 Mr. Slegel entered the employ of George W. Beard & Co., as a journeyman, working as such from October to April, 1898, when he was made foreman. Mr. Slegel continued in this capacity until 1901, in which year he was appointed superintendent of the company, a position which he is filling at the present time.

Mr. Slegel married Ida May King, and with their three children—W. Scott, Jr., Harry W. and Annie S. W.—they have resided near Birdsboro, Pa., since the spring of 1909. In political matters Mr. Slegel is a Republican. He is fraternally connected with Lodge No. 115, I. O. O. F.; and Commandery No. 47, Knights of Malta.

H. NATHAN KLINE, a well-known educator of Richmond township, Berks Co., Pa., was born in the township in which he now resides, and where he has spent his entire life, Nov. 13, 1869, son of Nathan R. Kline.

Philip Kline, great-grandfather of H. Nathan, was one of the early settlers of Richmond township, where he carried on agricultural pursuits, owning considerable land in the southeastern section of the township, as did his son, Benjamin, among the latter's property being the farm later owned by Nathan R. Kline.

Benjamin Kline married Hannah Ressler, of Richmond township, and they had these children: Reuben, Benjamin, Hettie, Elizabeth, Benneville, Katie and Nathan R.

Nathan R. Kline, a prosperous farmer, owning sixty acres of fertile land in Richmond township, was born in 1833, on the old Kline homestead, and died Jan. 15, 1907, and is buried at Kutztown. In 1853 he married Sallie Merkel, daughter of Peter and Dianna (Yoder) Merkel, of Richmond township, and the children born to this union were: Ellen m. Albert M. Lesher, of Moselem; Martha, single, lives with her mother; Wilson, a rural mail carrier, resides at Kutztown; Reuben is the proprietor of the "Royal Hotel," at Ninth and Green streets, Reading; Elias died aged eight years; Esther m. William Klopp, a bricklayer of Kutztown; Hannah m. Zacharias Miller, the well known hotel proprietor of Lobachsville, Berks county; George Washington died aged three years; H. Nathan; Sarah m. Heister Unger, a well known music teacher of Reading; and Katie m. Harry Bortz, a coal dealer af Allentown, Pennsylvania.

H. Nathan Kline received his preliminary education in the common schools of his native locality, and later attended the Keystone State Normal School at Kutztown, from which he was graduated with the class of 1902. During the summer months Mr. Kline is engaged in work on his father's farm, which lies about three miles west of Kutztown, on the Easton road. Mr. Kline has taught school for eleven terms, and as a teacher is well known and highly respected. He is an industrious, enterprising man, thoroughly business like, and a good citizen. He is a member of the Grace United Evangelical Church of Kutztown. He takes a great interest in political matters, and is a stanch adherent of the principles of the great Republican party.

ODEN F. THIRY, whose dyeing and cleaning establishment is situated at No. 43 North Ninth street, Reading, Pa., was born May 28, 1880, at Philadelphia, Pa., son of Francis X. and Victorine (Tomlinson) Thiry.

Francis X. Thiry was born in April, 1851, at Lorraine, France, and when eighteen years of age came to America, locating at Philadelphia, where he remaind until 1884, and in this year came to Reading, and engaged in the dyeing and cleaning business until his retirement from active life in 1899. He now lives at Stony Creek, Berks county. He is a member of St. Paul's Catholic Church, of Reading. Mr. Thiry was married at Philadelphia, to Victorine Tomlinson, born in Lorraine, France. Two children were born of this union: Oden F., and Albert M., also of Reading.

Oden F. Thiry was four years of age when he came to Reading with his parents, and his education was secured in the public schools and Prof. D. B. Brunner's Business Academy, from which he was graduated. On June 28, 1898, he enlisted in Company G, Ninth Regiment, for service in the Spanish-American war, was made company clerk, and was mustered out of service, in 1898. In 1899 he started in the cleaning and dyeing of clothing at his present stand, and here he has continued to the present time, his gratifying success testifying to his business ability. He is a member of St. Paul's Catholic Church, and fraternally he is connected with the Knights of Columbus, and Aerie No. 66, F. O. E. In politics he is an active Democrat, being a candidate for common councilman of the Eighth ward of the city. Tall and of athletic build, Mr. Thiry has a commanding presence, while in his manner he is affable and courteous, and probably there is no more popular young man in that section of the city.

On Jan. 29, 1903, Mr. Thiry was married to Hattie, daughter of James and Laura (Yeager) Cressman, of Reading. Mr. and Mrs. Thiry have had one son: Richard Francis.

JOHN M. KISSINGER (deceased), for many years president of the Schuylkill Valley Bank, had been actively engaged in Reading in business from 1847 up to his death, in 1905, and his name had become symbolic of success, in whatever field he engaged. He came from ancestors prominent in the early history of Berks county, who left names that will long survive in the affections of the people.

The paternal grandfather, Ulrich Kissinger, was a native of Alsace-Lorraine. In company with four brothers and two sisters he came to America in 1770, and located in Berks county on the Schuylkill river, at what is now known as Kissinger's Bridge. There he purchased a flour-mill and made milling his calling for the rest of his life. In 1811 he constructed at his mill the first bridge across the Schuylkill in the county, the famous Kissinger chain bridge, which was torn down in 1833 by the Schuylkill Navigation Company and replaced by a wooden bridge with roof and sides. The founder of the family died in 1826.

John Kissinger, son of Ulrich, was born at the American homestead Feb. 8, 1790. He learned his father's trade of milling and followed it until 1833, when the mill as well as the bridge was destroyed to put in the canal. Removing to Reading he opened a wood and coal office and continued in that business at the foot of Penn street for eight years—five with a partner and three by himself. In 1844 he once more took up his residence in the country and operated a farm in Spring township, for six years, but in 1850 he moved back to Reading and lived in retirement there for the remaining sixteen years of his life. He died in April, 1866, after a long life of usefulness and honor.

When the question of slavery was made a political issue, Mr. Kissinger deserted the ranks of the Democratic party and instead of voting for Douglas supported Lincoln, remaining ever afterward a loyal Republican. In matters of religious belief, he was a devout and consistent Lutheran and was one of the most earnest laborers among the members of Trinity Church.

Mr. Kissinger was twice married, first to Miss Riland, and second to Miss Margaret Madeira. His children were all born to the second marriage, and were as follows: Amelia married (first) John Maicks, and (second) William Himmilwright; John M.; Louisa married the late Jacob Kauffman, and now resides in Reading; Catherine married C. D. Geiger (both now deceased).

John M. Kissinger was born at Kissinger's Bridge, Feb. 14, 1824, and received his education in the select schools, when tuition was paid. When twenty-three years old he entered upon his business career in Reading, where, in 1847, in partnership with Samuel Freis, he opened a wood and coal office at the foot of Penn street. Eleven years later they added milling to their other lines, but two years after thus enlarging their scope, in 1860, Mr. Kissinger sold out his interest and with Jacob Kauffman as a partner established a general mercantile store at the corner of Penn and Third streets. This connection lasted but three years, and Mr. Kissinger then engaged in the scrap iron business, continuing thus until 1890. On July 21st of that year the Schuylkill Valley Bank was organized and Mr. Kissinger, who had been one of the principal promoters, was made president, a position he held until his death. That sad event occurred April 10, 1905, when he was eighty-one years old, and was felt to be a great loss to Reading.

Mr. Kissinger was twice married. His first wife was Miss Catherine Ruth, who died without issue. His second wife, who survived him, was Henrietta, daughter of George Zacharias, of Union township. She was born Aug. 17, 1827, and died July 6, 1908. Three sons were born to them, but none survived childhood, one dying when a year and a half old, another when two and a half, and the third when three and a half years old. In early life Mr. Kissinger was a Lutheran, having been confirmed in that church, but later he united with the Second Reformed Church, and was one of its most active workers and generous contributors. His life was filled with deeds of kindness and of helpfulness to others, while in business he was upright and honorable, winning the highest praise and esteem from his fellow-citizens. Every one felt confidence in his judgment and his advice was often sought. Essentially of a domestic nature, Mr. Kissinger's happiest hours were spent in his home. In politics he was a Republican.

Mrs. Henrietta Z. Kissinger came from families prominent in the early history of Berks county, whose members are to-day numbered among its best citizens. Her father, George Zacharias, was born in Muhlenberg township and was educated in the schools there. Early in life he learned the milling business and carried it on for a number of years until he purchased a farm in Union township and turned his attention to agricultural pursuits. He next built the Six Penny Creek Forge, but in 1840 again took up farming on a tract of 217 acres which his father-in-law purchased, and remained there until 1846. The following year was spent in Reading, but he then bought another farm located in Bern township, and remained there until his death. He passed away in 1862, aged sixty-three, while his wife, Mary, daughter of Nicholas Seidel, died in 1877, aged seventy-seven. They had ten children, five daughters and five sons, as follows: Daniel, George, Mahlon, Henrietta (Mrs. Kissinger), Mary A., Elizabeth (wife of Juda Davis), Samuel, John, Louisa (wife of Dr. Brobst), and Caroline. George Zacharias was a member of the Reformed Church, while his wife was a Lutheran.

John M. Kissinger

CYRUS LESSIG, who is successfully engaged in a butchering business at Topton and is a well-known citizen, was born Dec. 15, 1848, in Richmond township, Berks county, not far from Walnuttown, a son of Levi and Esther (Koller) Lessig.

The first known of the grandfather, Samuel Lessig, was that he belonged to Schuylkill county, Pa., and shortly after his marriage to Catherine Weisner, he went to serve as a soldier in the War of 1812. He was taken sick and died at Sandy Hook. His widow came to Amity township, Berks county, where her only child, Levi, was born and there she continued to live until her death at the age of eighty-eight years. She was buried at St. Peter's Reformed Church in Richmond township.

Levi Lessig was reared on the old home place on which his mother settled in Amity township and when he reached a proper age, he learned the cabinet-making trade, which he followed for some years. He died at the age of eighty-five years, six months and fifteen days. He married Esther Koller and they had the following children: William m. Catherine Foreman; Sarah m. Jonas Chappell; David m. Lydia Strunk; Levi, who married in Canada, later went to Boston, where he owned the "Webster House," and died of small pox in 1882; Cyrus; Mary m. Alfred Snyder, who served three years in the Civil War; Allen and Albert, twins, the latter of whom died aged two years, the former m. a Miss Kline and resides at Reading, where he has a family of thirteen children: Nora m. Mr. Greenawalt; and Caroline died young. William and David of the above family served three years in Capt. McKnight's Fifth Battery, U. S. Art., in the Civil War and after the expiration of David's first enlistment, he became a veteran in General Hancock's corps, in which he served until the close of the war.

When he was ten years of age, Cyrus Lessig came to North Perry, then went to Ontelaunee and then back to Richmond township, attending school as opportunity offered. When eighteen years of age he came to Topton, in Longswamp township, and in 1868 he learned the butchering business with Allen Schwoyer. He worked with him for three years, then for two years with Madties & Clader, and by that time had gained enough experience to go into business for himself. He carries a fine stock of first-class meat.

On Oct. 1, 1870, Mr. Lessig was married to Maria Knappenberger, a daughter of Henry and Maria (Miller) Knappenberger, and they have two children, namely: James, born Mar. 24, 1871, m. Alice Master, an adopted daughter of Evan Master, and has two children, Ardath and Florence; and Annie, born Feb. 8, 1873, m. Ira Disch. They have two sons, Ralph and Paul. Formerly, Mr. Lessig was a very active Democrat and served once as chief burgess of the town. He belongs to Camp No. 172, P. O. S. of A. He is a member of the Reformed Church. Mrs. Lessig and the children are Lutherans.

JONATHAN BARTO, cabinetmaker, at Topton, one of the best-known citizens, was born Dec. 31, 1854, in Longswamp township, Berks Co., Pa., a son of John and Mary (Kramlich) Barto.

The grandfather, John Barto, was of Rockland township, Berks county, and he followed farming all his life, dying in 1868. He married Diana Angstadt and they had the following children: William m. a Miss Merkel; David; Joel m. a Miss Dry; Jacob, unmarried, served in the Civil War; John; Obediah died at Louisville, Ky.; Amos resides in Berks county; Hannah m. David Kline; Helena m. Jacob Mertz; Catherine m. John Deysher; Esther m. Daniel Brown; Amanda m. Jonas Eckert; and Caroline m. Charles Heffner.

John Barto, father of Jonathan, was born on the old Barto homestead in Rockland township, in 1828. He learned the shoemaking trade and when twenty-two years of age he came to Longswamp township and worked at it for Henry Durr. He married Mary Kramlich, a daughter of George and Judith (Walbert) Kramlich, the latter of whom was a daughter of Peter Walbert, who settled in this section when the country was in a wild state. Indians were numerous and the family saw much pioneer hardship. John Barto died Jan. 5, 1901, aged seventy-two years, three months and five days. His children were the following: Calvin, born July 8, 1853, died aged nine months; Jonathan; Henry, who died in infancy; Charles, born Dec. 25, 1857, died Jan. 28, 1904, m. (first) Ella Butz, (second) Ella (Kirschner) Miller, (third) Ella Reeser; and Louisa, who died young.

Jonathan Barto attended the schools near his home through his boyhood, after which he was apprenticed to Tilghman De Long to learn the cabinet-making trade and with this object in view he came to Mr. De Long, July 26, 1875, and has continued in his employ ever since. He has seen the business develop step by step from the work done in an ordinary country shop to that turned out from the improved plant which is now operated with all kinds of modern machinery.

On Aug. 10, 1878, he was married to Cecilia Long, a daughter of David and Florenda (Fegley) Long, and they have had ten children, namely: John D., born May 25, 1879, m. Caroline Durolf and they have four children, Willard, Edgar, Mary and Ira; Catherine and Mary reside at home; Louisa, m. A. H. Barto and has two children, Clarence and Paul; Calvin, residing at Macungie, Pa., m. Ida Conrath and they have three children, Irvin, Paul and Florence; Ambrose, Wallace, Wilson and Florence O. reside at home; and Ellen m. Clarence Stauffer. Mr. Barto and his sons belong to the Lutheran Church, while Mrs. Barto and the daughters belong to the Reformed. Mr. Barto is an active member of Camp No. 172, P. O. S. of A.

AUGUSTUS K. YODER, a well known hotel man of Berks county, who is engaged in conducting a popular hostelry at Henningsville, Pa., was born Sept. 27, 1851, in Pike township, son of Solomon and Elizabeth (Keim) Yoder.

Abraham Yoder, the great-grandfather of Augustus K., was of German descent, his parents having come from Würtemberg, and was located in Catawissa, Schuylkill county, where he followed milling until his death. One son, Abraham, was born to him. Like his father this son carried on milling at Catawissa. He married Elizabeth Yerger, of Pike township, Berks county, whence he removed to his wife's home, and conducted the farm there to such advantage that he became the owner of five farms and a gristmill. He died at this place aged eighty-six years, and his wife passed away when one year older. They had nine children, namely: Nathan m. Esther Rohrbach; Benneville m. a Miss Bower; Solomon; George m. (first) Miss Weller, and (second) Miss De Franc; Abraham, ex-treasurer of Berks county, m. Mary Yergey; Eliza m. Charles Renninger; Sarah m. Jacob Reider; Catherine died unmarried, aged thirty-three; and Mary m. Benjamin Rohrbach.

Solomon Yoder was born March 9, 1818, in Catawissa, and there learned the trade of milling, but later engaged in farming, which he followed until the time of his death, May 7, 1894. He married Elizabeth Keim, born Aug. 27, 1821, daughter of George and Elizabeth (Mensch) Keim, and she died in 1904, the mother of these six children: Franklin m. Catherine Angstadt; Manias m. Mary Moyer; William m. Sarah Ruppert, deceased; Irwin m. Eliza Becker; Augustus K.; and Elmira m. Augustus Moyer.

Augustus K. Yoder was reared and educated at his native place, and learned the trade of tailoring, which he followed for nine years. Following that he entered the hotel business, and continued therein for eight years. He then worked at mounting engines for some time, but subsequently re-entered the hotel business, and is now conducting a well patronized place at Henningsville, Berks county.

On Sept. 12, 1874, Mr. Yoder married Judith Roads, born Sept. 19, 1851, daughter of Joel and Leanda (Behm) Roads, and three children were born to them: Solomon Edwin, born June 5, 1875, died Nov. 10, 1881; Kate Mantana, born April 6, 1878, died Dec. 10, 1881; Cora Estella, born in Amity township, May 13, 1883, married Elmer Kern, of Longswamp township, and they have three children—Lester Granville, Flora Minerva and Earl George Washington.

CHARLES DANIEL HERMAN, the well-known merchant tailor, clothier and dealer in gents furnishings, residing on Main street, Kutztown, Pa., was born April 11, 1855, in Greenwich township, Berks county, son of James and Catherine (Hering) Herman.

Henry Herman, grandfather of Charles D., born on Christmas Day, 1796, was a farmer and weaver of Greenwich township, where he lived for some years. He then removed to Maxatawny township for a few years, but later returned to Greenwich township, where the remainder of his life was spent, and where he died in 1875, in his seventy-ninth year. On Feb. 14, 1815, he was married to Lydia Henninger, daughter of Christian Henninger, of Stony Run, and to this union there were born children as follows: William, Oct. 5, 1819; Joseph, Dec. 9, 1829; James; Catherine, July 22, 1831; Malinda, June 22, 1834; Lizzie, Nov. 12, 1815; John, June 28, 1818, who died in his second year; Mary, April 7, 1822, who died in her sixth year; Jacob, Nov. 8, 1824, who died in infancy; and Caroline, Oct. 10, 1825, who died in her second year.

James Herman was born Feb. 28, 1829, in Maxatawny township. At the age of twenty-one years he learned the trade of a carpenter, which he followed all of his life with the exception of about ten months, when he was a soldier in the Civil war. On Aug. 24, 1851, he was married to Catherine Hering, daughter of Peter and Rebecca (Stoyer) Hering, and granddaughter of Peter and Elizabeth (Hering) Hering. The following children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Herman: Henry, who died at the age of ten years; Louisa E., who is unmarried and resides with her brothers; Charles D.; Sylvester C., who m. Henrietta Lieby, and lost his life in an accident in 1902, in his forty-sixth year; James O., m. to Maggie Ruch; Austin M., m. to Annie Hoch; Peter A., who died at the age of seven years; Walter M., m. to Clara Hoch, sister of Annie; and Eugene E., twin brother of Walter M., who died in his seventeenth year.

Charles Daniel Herman's boyhood days were spent on the farm, and he attended the local schools of his district. In 1873 he learned the tailoring trade with Henry Williams, of Kutztown, in whose employ he remained for three years, when he engaged in business for himself on the second floor of No. 253 Main street, Kutztown, having four employes. Mr. Herman at once established a reputation as an excellent cutter and fitter, and paying close attention to his business, he prospered from the start. He is now firmly established and has the largest tailoring business in this section. Mr. Herman is a prominent and substantial citizen of Kutztown. He is public-spirited and on numerous occasions has been honored by his fellow citizens, who hold him in high esteem, with positions of trust and honor. In his political views he is an uncompromising Democrat. He was twice elected school director, served as councilman for nine years, and for three years was president of that body. He was also chief burgess of his adopted town for three years and while in office the trolley line was built through the town and the Keystone Light, Heat and Power Company was installed here. He is a member of Huguenot Lodge, No. 377, F. & A. M.

On Aug. 31, 1876, Mr. Herman married Clara Gross, daughter of David Gross, and there were three sons and four daughters born to this union: (1) Gertrude. (2) Richard James, born in the year 1877, graduated from the Keystone State Normal School in 1895, and from the Pierce Business College in 1896. He then assisted his father in the store and in the fall of 1898 took a course in cutting in Mitchell's cutting school of New York. Young Herman assisted his father in cutting until he entered West Point Military Academy in June, 1900, and he graduated from that institution in June, 1904, with the rank of second lieutenant. He was assigned to the 23d U. S. Infantry, joining his regiment in October, 1904, in the Philippine Islands. In June, 1905, he returned from the Islands and was stationed at Madison Barracks, Sacket Harbor, N. Y. He is now an instructor in the Drawing Department at West Point Military Academy. He is a member of Huguenot Lodge, No. 377, F. & A. M. (3) Louisa May. (4) Quinton David was born July 28, 1881, graduated from the Keystone State Normal School in 1898, and in the fall of that year took a course in the Union Business College, Philadelphia, graduating in 1899. The following year he took a course in Mitchell's Cutting School in New York, and he then connected himself with his father in business. He is a member of Huguenot Lodge, No. 377, F. & A. M. On Aug. 31, 1905, he married Alma C. Miller, daughter of Charles W. and Louisa (Becker) Miller, of Kutztown, and they have one son, Charles Miller, born Aug. 19, 1906. (5) A daughter deceased. (6) Paul Alfred was born April 16, 1884, and obtained his early education in the local schools and the Keystone State Normal School, where he prepared for Lafayette College, Easton, Pa. He married June 3, 1907, Lillian Yoder, daughter of William and Annie (Barto) Yoder. (7) Marguerite Rebecca, born Nov. 16, 1889, was educated in the local schools and the Keystone State Normal School. She graduated from the latter institution in 1906, and then prepared for entrance to Smith College, in Massachusetts.

REV. DAVID K. HUMBERT, an aged retired minister of Bowers, Berks county, was born March 9, 1834, in Greenwich township, and lived under the parental roof until he was eight years old. At that tender age he was hired out among the farmers of Greenwich township, and thus worked until he was twenty-two years of age. He then clerked in Daniel Fetherolf's store in Albany township for a year, when he obtained employment as currier in a tannery at New Ringgold, Pa., and remained there about eighteen months. After this he spent some months in traveling for his health but as soon as he recovered he began teaching at Klinesville and Fetherolfsville in the upper part of the county, and as he accumulated a little money he continued to study, attending the Freeland seminary for three years.

Upon the outbreak of the Civil war Mr. Humbert was deeply in sympathy with the Union, and Nov. 12, 1862, he was mustered into Co. I, 167th Pa. Inf., Capt. J. M. Shollenberger and Col. C. A. Knoderer, commanding. He was first sergeant of his company and after his term of service expired, Aug. 12, 1863, he re-enlisted and was in service until the close of the war, when the regiment was mustered out at the Rappahannock river. After this he attended the Lutheran theological seminary at Philadelphia, from which he was graduated in June, 1867, and he was ordained by the Ministerium at Philadelphia, June 17, 1867. His first charge was the Robeson church (or Plow) at Geigertown, St. John's at Gibraltar, Allegheny and Wyomissing. This charge had a membership of about 700 souls, and he served them for five years, but in 1872 he removed to Bowers to take charge of the DeLong church, with these branches, DeLongs at Bowers, New Jerusalem, Huff's, Hill church, St. Paul at Lobachsville and for a time St. Peter in Lehigh county. About 1880 he gave up Hill church and St. Paul, retaining the other charges. DeLong church added many to its membership under his administration, and the other charges also flourished, being in an excellent condition when he retired in 1902, owing to his ill health. Mr. Humbert has a wonderful record. During his pastorate he married 1006 couples. He preached principally in German, although occasionally he gave a sermon in English. He has always been a man of strong convictions, is pleasant in disposition, and possesses in a marked degree the faculty of making friends. His success was marked and he is beloved not only as an eloquent and convincing preacher but also as a kind, true and faithful friend.

Soon after entering the ministry, Mr. Humbert was married to Maria DeLong, daughter of Francis and Esther (Schaefer) DeLong, and they had three children: Essie Catherine, m. to Dr. E. D. Schaeffer, of Reading; Mary Elizabeth, a school teacher of Royersford, Pa.; Anna Susanna, who resides at home.

Mr. Humbert has an old clock that is fully 130 years old. He bought it at a public sale at Bechtelsville many years ago for five dollars, but he would not sell it for many times its original price.

George Humbert, the grandfather of the Rev. David K. Humbert, settled at Kutztown at a very early date. There he followed the trade of a carpenter, and there he is buried. He had three sons: Daniel; Jacob; and George, whose son, also George, is a member of Berks county bar.

Of the above sons, Jacob Humbert became the father of the Rev. David K. Humbert, and he was born in Greenwich township, Oct. 22, 1798, and died at Topton, July 12, 1880, aged eighty-one years, nine months and twenty days. His early life was spent in Greenwich township, where he was a farmer for some years, and he was also a school teacher and chorister at the Grimville church for some time. His school was a paying one, as he had nearly 100 pupils on his books. At this time there were no public schools and the private or pay schools flourished.

After residing in the vicinity of Grimville for about nineteen years, he moved from place to place and finally settled at Topton, where he died, and he is buried at Bowers beside his wife, Catherine Kittling (also spelled Kidling) Humbert. She was born April 5, 1802, and died Dec. 21, 1890, when eighty-eight years, eight months and sixteen days old. They had the following children: William, of Carey, Ohio; Jacob; Daniel, a soldier of the Civil war, who was probably killed during the war, as nothing was heard of him after its close; Charles Henry, who was wounded in the battle of Gettysburg and died in a Philadelphia hospital; Rev. David Kidling; Catherine, m. to Anthony Wagner, of Ohio; Mary, m. to Abner Sage, of Ohio; Amelia, m. to Ephraim Wise of Topton; George Alfred, who died in infancy. Jacob Humbert and family were members of the Lutheran church.

SOLOMON S. MILLER, a representative business man of Philadelphia, Pa., where he was a prominent and successful wholesale merchant for upwards of forty years, was born March 9, 1836, in Windsor township, near Hamburg, Berks county, son of Daniel and Elizabeth (Sieger) Miller.

Daniel Miller, who was a farmer of near Lenhartsville, in Windsor township, where he died in 1867, aged sixty-nine years, was married to Elizabeth Sieger, daughter of Jacob Sieger of Shoemakersville, and they had five children, namely: Elizabeth died young; Maria m. David Baver, a farmer of near Port Clinton; William S. m. Catherine Price, and died at Reading in June, 1907, aged eighty-one years; Reuben m. Emmeline Heckman; and Solomon S.

Solomon S. Miller received his preliminary education in the local public schools until he was sixteen years of age, when he became a clerk in the general store of Reuben Weidman at Shoemakersville. Shortly afterward, Solomon S. Koller became the owner of the store and he continued with the latter until 1860. With this experience of eight years in a country store, he went to Philadelphia and secured a position as salesman in the large wholesale dry-goods house of Riegel Brothers, No. 345 North Second street, and to qualify himself to fill the position satisfactorily he took a course in Pierce's Business College, devoting his evenings to this purpose. He continued with this firm five years, and then entered the employ of Hood, Bonbright and Company, and was with them only a year when he became a partner. This was in 1866, and he continued with this old and popular firm for twenty-three years. Then he withdrew and founded the wholesale dry-goods house of Miller, Bain, Beyer and Company, at the corner of Tenth and Filbert streets, with which he continued as the senior partner until June 1, 1908, when he retired on account of illness. The firm are leading importers and jobbers of dry goods at Philadelphia and their trade extends throughout the United States. Two other young men, with similar ambition, from the same vicinity of Berks county, also proceeded to Philadelphia about that same time and engaged in the wholesale business and became equally successful, Solomon S. Koller and Mahlon N. Kline.

Mr. Miller, inheriting a religious disposition, identified himself with the Green street Methodist Episcopal Church soon after locating in Philadelphia, and his devotion to the church was so highly appreciated that he was selected to serve the congregation as one of its trustees. After having been connected with the church for some years he transferred his membership to the Methodist Episcopal Church at Twentieth and Spring Garden streets, on account of the proximity of his residence and the convenience of his family, and here he has been serving as a trustee for upwards of twenty-five years, officiating as president of the board for a term, and at the present time as vice-president. In 1899 Mr. Miller traveled extensively in Europe, visiting England, France, Switzerland, Germany, Belgium and Holland.

In 1867 Mr. Miller was married to Sallie E. Early, daughter of Edward Early of Philadelphia, and they had three children: Edward E. died in infancy; William S. m. Elizabeth Allen of Philadelphia and has one child, Gwendolyn; and Clinton H. m. Marion Colby, of Minneapolis.

CHARLES JACOB LIVINGOOD, third son of Jacob S. and Lucy (Shalter) Livingood, was born in Reading, Pa., Feb. 6, 1866. He attended public and private schools there, and after two years of preparation at Media Academy, went to Harvard College. Upon graduation in 1888, he traveled abroad, taking up his residence in Paris. He attended the Sorbonne and College de France until ill health compelled him to give up his career as a student of history, and he returned home to spend a year surveying in the Rocky Mountains and on the plains of Colorado.

In the autumn of 1890, Mr. Livingood became connected with the management of the estate of Thomas Emery's Sons, at Cincinnati, O., where he has made his home. His activities have been confined to positions of trust and other business interests. He is a member of the University, Harvard, Literary and Country Clubs of Cincinnati. For a number of years he was treasurer of the Historical Society of Ohio.

Mr. Livingood was married in 1896 to Lily B. Foster, daughter of Dr. Nathaniel Foster, of Cincinnati. They have three children: Josephine Lytle, Elizabeth Treon, and John Jacob.

In 1904 Mr. Livingood took his family abroad for an indefinite stay. Pursuing the genealogical investigations begun by his father, he visited Alsace-Lorraine and established conclusively, by examination of the parish records of Schalkendorf (a small hamlet about twenty-five miles northwest of Strassburg), that the family of Livingood (or Liebengut or Leibundgut, as it is variously spelled in the old papers), while German-speaking Lutherans, were but sojourners on the Rhine, for they resided there only from 1655 to about 1725, when they joined the Palatine emigration to Schoharie county, N. Y., and thence moved with the exodus led by Conrad Weiser, to the Tulpehocken. The Livingoods are Swiss. They migrated to Alsace, after the Thirty Years war, from Aarwangen, Canton of Berne, where the records show the family name, usually a Hans or a Jakob, back to 1550. It is spelled in Switzerland today thus, as it has been for all these centuries: Leibundgut, and is without doubt taken from the declaration made by the famous Swiss patriot, Count von Bubenberg: "Mein Leib und Gut ist euer eigen bis den Tod."

JOHN FRYMIRE, deceased, who during a long and active life spent in Reading gained a widespread reputation as a stair-builder, was one of Berks county's representative men, and a veteran of the Mexican war. Mr. Frymire was born Aug. 30, 1835, in Milton, Northumberland Co., Pa., son of John and Barbara (Rapp) Frymire.

John Frymire the elder was also a native of Northumberland county, where in early life he engaged in freighting, and later his team of six white horses became a familiar sight traveling between Milton and Philadelphia. Mr. Frymire was a powerfully built man, but died in the prime of life, his wife also having died when young. They were the parents of four children: Adam, Jackson, Sarah and John. Mr. Frymire was a Democrat in political belief, but it is not known that he took any active interest in public matters. He and his wife were members of the Lutheran church.

John Frymire, son of John, was bound out when a youth to learn the cabinet making and stair building trades, and while thus engaged enlisted in the Mexican war, which had just then broken out. Upon his return from the war, Mr. Frymire completed his apprenticeship, and for many years engaged in stair building, being considered an expert in this line. Many of Reading's finest residences bear evidence of his skill and workmanship, and he continued to work at this trade until his retirement in 1885. He had built, in 1876, a large twenty-room hotel, now in possession of his heirs, but it was left in care of his wife and children, leaving Mr. Frymire free for his regular calling.

Mr. Frymire married Hannah Adams, daughter of John and Hannah (Coller) Adams, and to this union there were born these children: (1) Amanda m. David Hinkle, and had three children, J. Elwood, who m. Carrie Seidel and had one child, Edgar; Carrie, who m. E. P. Schaeffer and had two children, Emily and Mary; and one who died in infancy. (2) Katie m. Martin Reddig and had a daughter, Bessie F., who m. Edward Deem and had two children, Robert and Catherine. (3) John F. is single. (4) George died at the age of six years.

In religious belief both parents were Lutherans, in the faith of which church Mrs. Frymire died Feb. 16, 1895, at the age of fifty-nine years. Mr. Frymire was a member of the I. O. O. F., and was a stanch Democrat in politics.

ALLEN E. FAUST, one of Muhlenberg township's enterprising citizens, who is engaged in a grain and feed business at Temple, was born Aug. 17, 1864, in Schuylkill county, Pa., son of Charles W. and Emeline (Teter) Faust.

Daniel Faust, the grandfather of Allen E., settled in Schuylkill county, where he engaged in his trade of miller for the rest of his active period, owning a mill near Orwigsburg, Pa. His son, Charles W., who was born in Schuylkill county, followed in his father's footsteps and also became a miller, owning what was known as Faust's Mill, on Maiden creek, at Berkley, Muhlenberg township, and in addition to this carried on farming. He is now living retired at Temple, with his son, his wife having died in 1886. They were members of the Reformed Church, and the parents of these children: Elizabeth; Allen E.; Ambrose; Frank, m. to Lizzie Brown; and Carrie, deceased. Mr. Faust is a member of the Washington Camp, P. O. S. of A., of Leesport. He has served efficiently in several township offices.

Allen E. Faust was educated in the schools of Berks county, after which he worked in his father's flouring mill, and for one term taught school. The next sixteen years he operated the mill on his own account, and in 1904 he located in Temple, where he established its first feed and grain store, which he has been successfully operating to the present time.

Mr. Faust married Rebecca Haas, daughter of Augustus Haas and three children were born to this union: Mabel, Warren and Leon, the latter two of whom met their death in a railroad accident.

Mr. Faust is a member of the Reformed Church, of which he has been a deacon and elder, while his wife is a Lutheran. In politics he is a Democrat, and he has held the offices of school director, tax collector and delegate to numerous county conventions. Fraternally Mr. Faust is connected with Washington Camp, No. 169, P. O. S. of A.; Leesport Lodge, I. O. O. F., and K. G. E., of the same place.

M. J. SHALTER, one of the substantial men, prominent farmers and large land owners of Berks county, residing on his finely improved farm of 170 acres, at Temple, was born in 1852, in Ontelaunee township, Berks county, son of Jonas and Rebecca (Maurer) Shalter, and grandson of Michael and Susanna (Fisher) Shalter.

The progenitor of the Shalter family, Franz Shalter, came to America at an early day and settled near Shalter Church, which is situated on a portion of the Beidler farm. He married a daughter of Mr. Beidler, and they had a large family of children, among whom are remembered: Michael and Jacob.

Michael Shalter was born and reared in Ontelaunee township, where he carried on farming and general merchandising all of his life, and was a prominent and highly esteemed citizen. He was a pillar of the Lutheran Church of his vicinity, and in politics was a Democrat, being one of the stanchest supporters of that party's principles in his township. He and his wife were the parents of four children: Frank; George; Jonas, the father of M. J.; and Sallie, m. to George Fox.

Jonas Shalter was educated in the common schools of his native township, and on reaching his majority he became the proprietor of the general merchandise business founded by his father. In addition to this he engaged in farming and lime burning, owning several farms and quarries, and became one of the most prominent men of his section of Berks county. He died in 1896, aged eighty years, his wife having passed away when thirty-five years of age. Five children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Jonas Shalter, namely: Edwin, deceased, who was an attorney of Reading; James, a retired merchant; Catherine, m. to William Krick; Emira, m. to Richard Swartz; and M. J. Mr. Shalter was a deacon and elder in the Lutheran Church, and took much interest in church and charitable work. In politics he was a Democrat. He was a charter member of the local Masonic body.

M. J. Shalter was educated in the schools of his native place and the Keystone State Normal School, also attending Lafayette College and Ursinus College. After his school days were passed he read law in his brother's office for a short time, but owing to ill health gave this profession up to take charge of his father's farms. He continued for twenty-eight years in this capacity, and then located permanently in Temple, where he has a fine property of 170 acres, which he has platted out in building lots, in one of the handsomest sections of Temple.

Mr. Shalter married Emma Saylor, daughter of Henry Saylor, and seven children have been born to this union: Charles S., an attorney of Reading, m. to Lizzie James; Irvin, a professor in Muhlenberg township; Florence; Mabel; Emily; Mary, and one who died in infancy. Mr. Shalter is a Democrat and for fifteen years was a school director of Muhlenberg township, where he was a census enumerator in 1890. In religious belief he is a Lutheran, and he has held all of the offices in that church. Fraternally he is connected with the K. G. E., at Hyde Park.

JOHN GEHRET, who was for many years engaged in business enterprises in Reading, Pa., and who since July, 1907, has been proprietor of the well known Center Square Hotel in Muhlenberg township, Berks county, was born Dec. 13, 1851, in Muhlenberg township, son of Israel and Malinda (Reiff) Gehret.

Israel Gehret was born in 1824 in Muhlenberg township, and received his education in the common schools, after leaving which he learned the carpenter's trade, an occupation which he followed for several years. He then entered the employ of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad, where for fifty-seven years he was a faithful and trusted employe, dying while in the service of that company in October, 1900. Israel Gehret married Malinda Reiff, born in 1828, who died Sept. 25, 1904, having been the mother of twelve children, as follows: Henry (1), deceased; John; James; Daniel; Israel; Samuel; Henry (2); Benton; William, deceased; Eli; Augustus; and Ellen, m. to William Hoffman. In religious belief the family was Reformed. Mr. Gehret was a Democrat in politics, and was fraternally connected with the I. O. O. F. and the P. & R. Relief Association.

John Gehret was educated in the schools of Muhlenberg township and Reading, after leaving which he worked for some time at Printz & Sands' brick yard. At the age of nineteen years, up to which time he had been engaged in common laboring, he learned the butcher's trade, which he followed for thirty-seven years in Reading, and was very successful thereat. On July 10, 1907, he decided to enter the hotel field, and leased the Center Square Hotel, which he has since been conducting.

On April 3, 1880, Mr. Gehret was married to Annie C. Weber, daughter of John and Annie E. (Mohning) Weber, the former of Hesse Darmstadt, Germany, and the latter of Würtemberg, that country. To Mr. and Mrs. Gehret have been born these children: Anna E., who married Thomas Gresinger and has two children—Helen and John; Louisa C.; John W.; Anna Marie; and Paul W., who is deceased.

Mr. Gehret owns a valuable property at No. 1260 North Tenth street, Reading. He is a member of the Reformed Church, and was confirmed at the age of twenty in the Alsace church by Rev. William Renley, while his wife and family are Lutherans, the former confirmed March 24, 1872, by Rev. J. J. Kuendig. Fraternally he is connected with the K. G. E. and the American Protestants, while in politics he is a Democrat, and was auditor of Muhlenberg township for three years. He is a member of the Junior Fire Company, of Reading.

JOHN FRANKLIN ANGSTADT, the well-known proprietor of a flourishing hat and gents' furnishings business on Main street, Kutztown, Berks county, was born in Kutztown, Jan. 16, 1872, son of Samuel and Esther (Reinhart) Angstadt.

Samuel Angstadt, great-grandfather of John F., was the grandson of George Angstadt, the immigrant, who came to this country from Germany, Sept. 28, 1733. Samuel Angstadt was married to Catherine Herman, and lived in Rockland township, having these children: Martin, who lived in Pricetown; Daniel, who lived in Oley township; Peter; Dinah m. Henry Sander of Kutztown; and Angelina m. Daniel Schlencker of Wessnersville.

Peter Angstadt, grandfather of John F., was a well-known citizen of Kutztown, and was for many years sexton of St. John's Union Church. He was born July 4, 1808, and died Jan. 29, 1890. Mr. Angstadt married Eliza Fegely, and they had these children: John m. Hetty Becker and lived at Emaus, Pa.; James m. Mary Herring and died about 1891; William m. Hettie Grauer and lives at Kutztown; Sarah m. John Eyrich and lives at Reading, Pa.; Louisa m. William Harris and lives in Indiana; Samuel m. Esther Reinhart; George died single in 1900, aged forty-nine years; Emma m. James Morris and lives in Philadelphia; and Mary m. Lewis Block and lives in Kutztown.

Samuel Angstadt, father of John F., was a well-known carriage painter and trimmer and worked for many years for R. Miller and Sons, the extensive carriage manufacturers of this community. Mr. Angstadt was born in 1850 and passed away in 1884. Mr. Angstadt married Esther Reinhart, daughter of Samuel and Fietta (Adams) Reinhart and they had these children: Llewellyn, who married Annie Stein, and John Franklin.

John Franklin Angstadt attended the public schools and the Keystone State Normal School, and at the age of fourteen years was apprenticed to Charles D. Herman to learn the tailoring trade. He remained in Mr. Herman's employ for sixteen years, but in 1903 engaged in business on his own account, and in a few years has built up a large and profitable trade in his various lines. He is a young man of enterprise and progressive ideas, and possesses much business ability.

Mr. Angstadt was married April 4, 1894, to Katie Heffner, daughter of Henry and Tama (Hilbert) Heffner, and two children have been born to this union: Clarence Henry, and Esther R., who died Aug. 7, 1906, from an accident, aged four years, one month and twenty-one days.

WILLIAM BRUNNER, an enterprising and progressive young business man of Muhlenberg township, who is conducting the Temple Hotel, was born in 1877, in Muhlenberg township, son of Dallias Brunner.

Dallias Brunner married Ellen Phillips and a large family was born to them: Henry, deceased; Isaac; William; Charles; Edward; Anna; Katie; Mamie; and Ellen. During his active life Mr. Brunner was a day laborer, but is now living retired at No. 641 North Ninth street. Politically he is a Democrat and in religious belief a Lutheran.

William Brunner was educated in the schools of Muhlenberg township, and when a lad engaged in laboring on a truck farm. Later he secured employment at the Temple Iron works, under Albert Broden, but subsequently became hostler at the Union House, Reading. He was for one year clerk at the Temple Hotel, under Mohr and Smith, for two and one-half years at John Northeimer's hotel in Reading, and for two years at John Mullett's hotel at Sixth and Buttonwood streets, Reading. After a short period at the Union House, under E. H. Gaul, Mr. Brunner went to Hamburg, and for one year conducted a hotel of his own, but returned to Reading and clerked in Weiler's Hotel for three years, after which he became proprietor of the Five Mile House for one and one-half years. From there he went to the City Hotel as clerk for Al Payne, but again engaged in the business on his own account, conducting the Mineral Spring Hotel for one year. On April 1, 1905, Mr. Brunner leased the William L. Graul hotel, at Temple, which he has conducted very successfully to the present time.

Mr. Brunner was married to Minnie Becker, daughter of Simpson Becker, and three children were born to this union: Edna, Earl and Willie, the latter of whom is deceased. In religious belief the family are Lutherans. In political matters he is a Democrat, and fraternally he is associated with the F. O. E., of Reading; Lamonita Tribe, I. O. R. M.; and Washington Camp No. 107, P. O. S. of A.

HENRY G. KISSINGER, a prominent agriculturist of Bern township, Berks county, where he was for a number of years well known as an educator, was born on the Kissinger homestead in Bern township, July 6, 1861, son of Henry G. and Angeline (Gruber) Kissinger.

Michael Kissinger, the great-grandfather of Henry G., was the ancestor of this family in Berks county. He owned a large tract of land in Bern township, between the Schuylkill river and the Tulpehocken creek, the land from Kissinger's bridge (also called Schuylkill Avenue bridge) to the Tulpehocken and all the land now embraced in Glenside being included in his property. At the time of his death, which occurred in the early part of 1791, he left a large estate, which he distributed equitably by will among his nine children, four of whom were sons and five daughters. Their names were: Michael, John, Abraham, Woolrich (Ulrich), Barbara Bricker, Mary, Catherine, Susanna and Eva Elizabeth. This pioneer's will is on record in Will Book 3, p. 160, and is a lengthy document, disposing of considerable land, bonds, money and personal property. It was made May 8, 1782, and was probated Feb. 12, 1791. He called himself a yeoman. His wife, Mary Catherine, was amply provided for, and the land was distributed among the sons, the bonds being bequeathed to the daughters. He had made a draught of his lands, divided into four parts, known as A, B, C and D. Michael was given land in draught A, which included the dwelling of the ancestor; John was given land in draught B, according to its lines and boundaries; Abraham obtained the land in draught C, and Woolrich (Ulrich) received that part situated across the Tulpehocken in Cumru (now Spring) township, contained in the lines and boundaries of draught D. This land, a tract of 105 acres, Michael Kissinger bought from Anthony Morris. The testator bought two separate tracts of land in March, 1781, fom Casper Eggly, containing 260 acres, and this was included in his division to his sons. A document dated Jan. 16, 1769, relating to a court proceeding about damages sustained by Michael Kissinger, is on record in Deed Book, Vol. 13, p. 96. It appears that one Henry Fidler constructed a breast dam, which forced the water on Kissinger's land, for which he was awarded damages to the sum of forty pounds, which were paid by the aforesaid Henry Fidler. Michael Kissinger, Jr., made his will April 7, 1780, and it was entered for probate June 11, 1811, the executors being Jacob and Michael Kissinger. It is contained in Will Book A, p. 594. Abraham Kissinger, son of Michael the ancestor, died in 1833. His will is on record in Will Book 7, p. 162.

John Kissinger, the grandfather of Henry G. was born in Bern township in 1785, and died July 7, 1850, aged sixty-five years, three months, seventeen days. He cultivated his small tract in Bern township, and followed the butcher trade for many years, being familiarly known as "Butcher" Kissinger. He was married to Elizabeth Griess, born Dec. 25, 1785, who died Dec. 20, 1857, aged seventy-two years, less five days, and they had eleven children, as follows: Isaac, who died in Ohio; Daniel, who was unmarried; Gregorius, of Bern; John, of Reading; Solomon, of Epler's Church, Bern township; Henry G., Sr.; Esther, who died unmarried; Rebecca m. Bernhart Roth; Elizabeth, m. William Roth, brother of Bernhart; Jestina, m. Adam Moyer; and Catherine, m. William Greth.

Henry G. Kissinger, father of Henry G., was born Feb. 11, 1825, and died on his farm along the Tulpehocken in Bern township, Sept. 24, 1904, being buried at Alsace. He was born and reared on one of the old Kissinger homesteads, which originally comprised twenty-four acres, and there he later followed the trade of blacksmith in addition to farming. In politics he was a Democrat. A Lutheran in faith, he was a deacon and elder in Kissinger's Church. Feb. 12, 1857, Henry G. Kissinger was married to Angeline Gruber, who was born April 2, 1831, in Millcreek, Lebanon county, daughter of William and Lydia (Stamm) Gruber, and granddaughter of John and Anna M. (Losch) Gruber, of Heidelberg township. Mr. and Mrs. Kissinger had four children: Frank, born in the year 1857, married Elmira Maurer, who was born in 1858 and died in 1896; Rosa, born April 14, 1859, died June 27, 1859; Henry G.; William, of Reading, born June 9, 1864, married Annie Albright, by whom he has two children, Lizzie and Harry.

Henry G. Kissinger was reared to agricultural pursuits, and worked for his parents until after passing his thirtieth year. His early education was secured in Kissinger's school in Spring township, and after his parents removed to the homestead in Bern he attended the public schools there until sixteen years old, being licensed to teach in 1877, by Prof. S. A. Baer, superintendent of schools of Berks county. He taught his first term in Alsace township, and later attended Reading Academy, where he received instruction from the late Prof. D. B. Brunner. Still later he attended Oley Academy, which was in charge of Rev. D. E. Schoedler, after which he taught for nineteen consecutive terms in Bern and Spring townships. During this long period Prof. Kissinger became well known throughout this section of the State, and his reputation as an educator was an enviable one. For some time he was also a teacher at the Reading Night school, and displayed much tact and discipline in the handling of the pupils there. Mr. Kissinger is now devoting all of his time to agricultural pursuits, and since 1905 he has been located at Glenside. He is a prominent man of his community, and is a leading Democrat, having been a member of the school board of Bern township since 1898 and at present is secretary of that body, a position he has held since 1901. He has also been a delegate to numerous county conventions. Fraternally he is connected with Washington Camp, P. O. S. of A. He and his family are members of Kissinger's Church, being connected with the Lutheran congregation, and Mr. Kissinger is superintendent of the Sunday-school. He resides on the homestead, and is the executor of the Henry G. Kissinger estate. He owns a residence in Reading, and several houses at Glenside, besides a number of building lots.

On Jan. 3, 1900, Prof. Kissinger was married to Eva A. Eyrich, daughter of the late Joshua and Sarah (Shirk) Eyrich, and to this union there has been born one daughter, Angeline Ruth.

SAMUEL H. MOSER, a well-known farmer and representative citizen of Bern township, residing on the old homestead, was born Dec. 24, 1862, in Penn township, near Garfield, Berks county.

Mr. Moser was about four months old when his parents settled on his fine farm. He attended the schools of Bern township and assisted his father as he grew older and when he reached manhood rented the farm for some nine years. In 1894 he purchased the property, which contains 160 acres of very valuable land. It is very favorably situated not far from West Leesport and extends on both sides of the highway. His handsome residence is situated on one side and his substantial barn and numerous other buildings are on the opposite side. He has made many improvements and has his land under a fine state of cultivation.

Mr. Moser was married (first) to Catharine G. Kauffman, a daughter of David and Elizabeth (Ginn) Kauffman. They had three children: Lizzie, m. Henry Becker, residing at North Leesport; and Debbie and Edwin D., at home. Mrs. Moser died May 20, 1896, aged thirty-five years, one month and twenty-six days. She was buried at Epler's Church. Mr. Moser was married (second) to Helen Backenstone, daughter of Henry and Rebecca (Marsh) Backenstone, of Centre township, and they have the following children: George D., Emma, Catharine, Herbert and William. Mr. Moser is a member of Epler's Reformed Church, in which he has served as deacon and as elder. He is a Democrat in his political views and has been one of the most active workers for his party in this section. He has served on the election board and since the adoption of the new law has served as treasurer of the Bern township road board. In 1900 he was elected to the school board and has always been interested in local educational affairs. He is substitute rural free delivery carrier No. 1 of West Leesport and was appointed by the regular carrier, J. L. Snyder. He has frequently attended county conventions armed with credentials as a delegate and is always faithful to the responsibilities entrusted to him. Fraternally he belongs to K. G. E. Castle No. 503, Leesport; P. O. S. of A. Camp No. 165; and Ontelaunee Council, No. 985, O. of I. A., Leesport.

ENOCH J. HEINLY, the well-known miller and farmer on the Sacony Creek, about three fourths of a mile northeast of Virginville, in Greenwich township, was born Nov. 15, 1848, on this place, son of Samuel and Mary (Dreibelbis) Heinly.

David Heinly, the great-grandfather of Enoch J., was born in the Fatherland, Oct. 17, 1728, and when about twenty-one years of age he and his brother, Matthew, emigrated to the New World. Soon after his coming to America, he apparently settled in Greenwich township, where many of his descendants live to this day. He died Oct. 3, 1784, at the age of fifty-six years, leaving two sons: J. George, born June 15, 1758, who died Aug. 27, 1840; and David.

David Heinly, son of David, was born June 27, 1765, and died May 26, 1825. He was a prominent man of his day and a soldier of the War of 1812, doing service at York. His children were: Captain George, 1796-1869; Jacob D., 1798-1875; David, 1799-1863; Catherine, 1803-1869, m. Nathan Hoch; John D., 1805-1880; and Samuel.

Samuel Heinly, father of Enoch J., was born Aug. 6, 1808, and died Feb. 21, 1884. In 1863 he and his brother George built Heinly's mill on the Sacony, and profitably operated it in partnership until 1866, when Samuel bought his brother's interest and continued the business until the time of his death. He was possessed of considerable property and was prominently identified with the success of his community. He was well and favorably known and he and his family were leading members of the Dunkel's Church in Greenwich township, of which he served as an official member for many years. He married Mary Dreibelbis, daughter of Jacob Dreibelbis, and to them were born children as follows: Maria, July 19, 1837, who died July 17, 1902, m. David L. Heinly, of Reading, Pa.; Florenda, Aug. 13, 1838, died Jan. 22, 1869; Catherine, Feb. 6, 1840, m. Samuel Fegley; Esther, Feb. 27, 1841, m. John W. Adam; Amelia, Oct. 18, 1841, m. Henry W. Dietrich; Enoch J.; and Theresa, Oct. 18, 1852, m. Alfred Fink.

Enoch J. Heinly was reared on his father's farm, and obtained a liberal education in the schools of his district and at the Freeland Seminary, at Collegeville, Montgomery Co., Pa. He has owned and successfully operated Heinly's mill since 1903, having purchased it from the estate of Samuel Fegley, who had operated it since 1885. The mill is a well known landmark. He also owns the Heinly homestead, which lies in the southeastern end of Greenwich township along the famous and historical Sacony creek and consists of 108 acres of the most fertile and productive soil of the township. It is a valuable property, having large, modern, substantial buildings, and the latest improved machinery. Mr. Heinly is a heavy tax payer of the township and a man of influence and public spirit. He and his family are members of the New Jerusalem (Dunkel's) Church, being of the Lutheran denomination. He served his church as elder for many years, and has been a liberal supporter. He is a kindly, Christian gentleman, and has many friends in his community, who recognize and appreciate his many sterling traits of character.

Mr. Heinly was married May 19, 1872, to Catherine A. Dietrich, daughter of George B. and Magdalena (Heinly) Dietrich, granddaughter of Johann Christian and Elizabeth (Georg) Dietrich, and great-granddaughter of Adam and Maria Magdalena (Steinbruch) Dietrich, who in 1767 came from the Palatinate in the Fatherland. To this union there were born children as follows: (1) George S. m. Mary L. Sonday, daughter of William Sonday, and has three children, Elda, Alma and George, Jr.; (2) Charles E. m. Bertha Dietrich, daughter of Emanuel J. Dietrich, and has two children, Raymond J. and a baby girl; and (3) Harvey L. and (4) James E., at home. In politics Mr. Heinly is a Democrat, and has been a frequent delegate to county conventions.

GEORGE F. HUY, station agent and dealer in coal and lumber at Lenhartsville, Greenwich township, where he owns a beautiful residence, was born in Maiden-creek township, Aug. 18, 1849, son of Isaac and Elizabeth (Fegley) Huy, and grandson of Abram Huy.

Isaac Huy, father of George F., was born in 1800 and died in 1853. He married Elizabeth Fegley, who died in 1850, the daughter of the Hon. S. Fegley, who represented his county in the State Legislature continuously from 1837 to 1851. To Mr. and Mrs. Huy there were born five children: Samuel, born in 1841, m. (first) Susanna Rothermel and (second) Isabella Robinson, and lives at Hamburg, Pa.; Abram, 1843, m. Emma Dunkel and resides at Blandon, Pa.; Catherine, 1845, m. Nathan Fisher and lives at Hamburg; Mordecai, 1847, m. (first) Miss Moll and (second) Charlotte Heinly, and lives in Windsor township; and George F.

George F. Huy was educated in the public schools of his native township, the Keystone State Normal school and Eastman's Business College, from which he was graduated. In 1873 he located at Lenhartsville, where he is the oldest man in point of service on the Berks & Lehigh railroad, having been there since the building of the railroad. At the same time he opened a coal and lumber yard, which he has ever since conducted with much success. When Lenhartsville was incorporated into a borough, Mr. Huy was the first choice of his fellow townsmen for the office of chief burgess. He has for some time been a member of the town council, has served as school director, and in many ways has aided in the progress and development of his township. He is a man of excellent character, and is held in the highest esteem by all who have the pleasure of his acquaintance. He is a member of Friedens Lutheran congregation, which worships in the Union Church at Lenhartsville. Mr. Huy's beautiful home at Lenhartsville is surrounded by a large, well-kept lawn.

In 1873 George F. Huy was married to Clara Merkel, born May 11, 1850, daughter of George and Anna (Rann) Merkel. She died Oct. 16, 1881, having been the mother of two daughters: Lizzie Magdalena, born Jan. 28, 1876, who died May 8, 1878; and Mamie, born May 3, 1879, who died Dec. 20, 1885. Mr. Huy was married (second) to Anna W. Adams, born Jan. 10, 1845, daughter of John Adams, of Richmond township, and her death occurred Oct. 1, 1902. Mr. Huy's third marriage was to Anna M. Moll, daughter of A. B. Moll, born at Hamburg in 1874.

ALFRED BAVER, of Greenwich township, who owns and operates an excellent farm of 154 acres, was born Feb. 4, 1864, in Perry township, son of Samuel and Lydia (Focht) Baver.

Christopher Baver, grandfather of Alfred, was a resident of Perry township, and married Susan Boyer, by whom he had these children: John, Polly, Elizabeth, Joseph, Samuel, Daniel (1825-1899), Anna and Amelia. Polly married Daniel Miller, of Port Clinton, and is the holder of the family records.

Samuel Baver, who was also a native of Perry township, was born in 1820 and died in 1898. He married Lydia Focht, who was born in 1818 and died in 1901, and they had the following children: Elias m. Elizabeth Spohn; John, m. Mary Dietrich; Samuel, m. Cordelia Smith; Emma m. Samuel Himby; Amelia m. William Lenhart; Ellen m. Milton Reeser; and Alfred S.

Alfred Baver has been engaged in agricultural pursuits all of his life, and now owns a fine property of 154 acres, upon which is situated a large stone house, surrounded by a spacious, well-kept lawn, and other buildings, including a large wood and stone bank barn. Mr. Baver has always been actively interested in township matters, and has served as tax collector, register, assessor and delegate to county conventions. He is a member of Friedens Lutheran congregation of Lenhartsville.

In 1886 Mr. Baver was married to Susan Boyer, and they have the following named children: Edna, a successful school teacher, who obtained her training in the Keystone State Normal school; Leon, born in 1891; Percy, 1893; and Merkie, 1904.

Jacob Boyer, the grandfather of Mrs. Baver, was born July 11, 1780, and died in 1856, and his wife, Sarah (Balthauser) Boyer, was born in 1778 and died in 1862. Their son Daniel, Mrs. Baver's father, was born in 1823 and died in 1904. He married Mary Miller, born in 1828, who died in 1896, daughter of William and Mary (Keller) Miller, the former of whom died in 1873 and the latter in 1879. Mr. and Mrs. Boyer had these children: Susan m. Mr. Baver; William m. Diana Appel and has three children, Wilson, Calvin and Morris; John; and Elias m. Anna Focht and has one daughter, Laura, the wife of William Albert.

JAMES M. GAUL, a farmer of Lower Heidelberg, was born March 10, 1855, in Spring township, this county, and has lived in Lower Heidelberg since he was ten years old.

John Gaul, great-grandfather of James M., was born in 1739 and died in 1767. He was married to Barbara Arbogast, and by her had seven sons, of whom Christian was the sixth. The great-great-grandfather was Henry Gaul.

Christian Gaul, of Cumru, grandfather of James M. Gaul, was a farmer. He was born in 1781, married Mary Kissinger, and by her had six children: Christian did not marry; Abraham m. Mary Texter; Jacob m. Mary Huyett; Reuben m. Elizabeth Marshall; Mary m. Elijah Ruth; and Hannah m. Adam Hain.

Reuben Gaul, father of James M. Gaul, was brought up in Cumru township, and carried on farming in Lower Heidelberg from 1865 until 1887. He married Elizabeth Marshall, a daughter of David Marshall, of Spring, and they had ten children: David m. Mary Huyett; Frank m. Mary Buck; Henry m. Mary Ruth; James M. has mention further on; Mary m. Frank Fister; and five died young.

As previously stated, James M. Gaul was ten years old when his parents moved to Lower Heidelberg. He was educated in the township schools and at the Palatinate College in Myerstown. Upon leaving school he assisted his father on the farm until 1887, when he engaged in farming for himself and has continued to follow that calling until the present time. Besides his farming operations he has dealt quite extensively in live stock, more especially hogs, selling large numbers several times a year. He served as a school director of the township for six years.

Mr. Gaul was married to Kate D. Huzzard, a daughter of William Huzzard, of Reading, and granddaughter of Rudolf Huzzard. William Huzzard was a clerk in the employ of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company at Reading for many years, and died in 1867. He was married to Catharine L. Bechtel, daughter of Daniel Bechtel, of Cumru, and by her had one child, Kate, Mrs. Gaul. To Mr. and Mrs. Gaul were born two children: William R., who married Lillie Snader, a daughter of Tobias B. Snader, of Lancaster county, and is now residing at Robesonia, in Berks county; and one that died young.

DR. H. ECKERT MORRET, a successful medical practitioner located at Wernersville, Lower Heidelberg township, and one of the town's leading and representative citizens, was born June 1, 1879, at Douglassville, Berks Co., Pa., son of Benjamin Franklin and Clara C. (Herman) Morret.

The Morret family, which is one of the oldest and most honored in Pennsylvania, is of patrician rank and the name occurs among immigrants to America, compiled from The Nobility of Normandy, date A. D. 1688. In Claude D. du Maigney's Science of Heraldry, a very fine work and authority on the French nobility, published in 1856 in Paris, the name Morret also appears. Jean Dedier and Matthieu Morrett, brothers, came to Berks county, Pa., in 1757, the former of whom was the direct ancestor of Dr. H. Eckert Morret, and was buried in Lower Berks county, where he had lived.

Samuel Morret, son of Jean Dedier Morrett, and great-grandfather of the Doctor, was a farmer of Cumberland county, where he died about 1831, ripe in years. His wife passed away in 1860, when ninety years of age, having been the mother of three children: Samuel, the grandfather of Dr. H. Eckert; and John and George, who lived and died in Cumberland county.

Samuel Morret, son of Samuel, was a native of Cumberland county, where he became a general merchant and a prominent and successful man. He died in 1867, at the age of sixty-six years, and is buried at Circleville, Ohio. Mr. Morret was married to Mary Grabille, who was born in Adams county, Pa., and she bore him seven children, as follows: William resides at Muncie, Ind.; Caroline m. Jacob Throne, of Circleville, Ohio; Mary m. McKinney Smith, a farmer of near Waynesport, Lycoming Co., Pa.; Julia m. Jacob G. Leber, of Manheim, Pa.; Lida m. John G. Oliver, of Circleville, Ohio; Rusetta died in infancy; and Benjamin F.

Benjamin Franklin Morret was born June 29, 1842, at Churchtown, Cumberland Co., Pa., and received his education in the common schools of Carlisle and Wrightsville, Pa., and Circleville, Ohio. At the age of fourteen years he learned the coach-making trade at Muncy, Lycoming Co., Pa., an occupation which he pursued for one and one-half years. When the Civil war broke out, he enlisted at Circleville, for a term of three years, in Co. C, 15th Reg., O. V. I., 3d Brigade, 3d Army Corps, Army of the Cumberland. He was wounded by a musket ball in the right hip, Dec. 31, 1862, during the battle of Stone River, and after recovery was sent as drill sergeant to Fort Adams, Newport, R. I., where he drilled recruits and formed them into companies, a work which he continued until the end of his service. He received his honorable discharge with the rank of sergeant at Newport, R. I., Sept. 16, 1864.

After the close of his services to his country, Mr. Morret embarked in the iron business, renting Dowling Forge at Dowling, Chester county, where he continued two years, employing thirty men. He then went to the falls of French Creek for three years, and subsequently conducted the Union Forge, now called Lickdale, for four years. In 1878 he erected a forge at Douglassville, which he operated successfully for twelve years, employing sixty people, and in 1891 he built the Hamburg Vitrified Brick Works at Hamburg, in company with A. Howard Merritt and George W. Raudenbush. This he operated six years and then sold his interests to the Mack Brothers of Philadelphia. For three years Mr. Morret lived retired at Hamburg, but in 1900 he located at No. 40 North Sixth street, Reading, where he has since been extensively engaged in a real estate business.

In 1875 Benjamin F. Morret was married to Clara C. Herman, and one son was born to this union: Dr. H. Eckert. Mrs. Morret was a daughter of Rev. Augustus Herman, of Reading, Pa., who erected the old St. John's Church at Hamburg, and preached there for many years.

Dr. H. Eckert Morret received his education in the common schools of his native locality and the Hamburg high school, from which latter institution he was graduated in 1899, being class orator. He then entered Jefferson Medical College, from which he was graduated in 1903, at which time he was elected resident physician of the St. Joseph Hospital, Reading, where he remained one year. Selecting Wernersville as the field of his professional labor, Dr. Morret soon built up a large and lucrative practice, extending over a radius of twenty miles and including considerable practice in Reading. He is a general practitioner and has been very successful in his treatment of many complicated cases, giving most careful attention to his patients and sparing himself in no way when life or health are in the balance. Thus Dr. Morret has won the confidence and affection of the community. He is a member of Wernersville Lodge No. 835, I. O. O. F.; Washington Camp No. 199, and William Penn Commandery No. 8, of the P. O. S. of A.; and Maccabees of the World, of which he is examining physician of his district of Berks county.

On Feb. 7, 1907, Dr. Morret was united in marriage with Mary M. Schaeffer, of Wernersville, Pa., and they make their home in a desirable residence on Main Street.

JOHANNES KOCH, a native of Hessen-Darmstadt, Germany, came to America with a regiment of Hessian soldiers, who fought against the United Colonies during the struggle of the latter for their freedom from British tyranny. These Hessians were imprisoned at Mount Penn, at Reading. After their release, at the close of the war, many of them decided to remain in this country, as they could see it was a fair and good one, and among these were Johannes Koch and one Daniel Texter. They married women of Berks county and settled in the South Mountains in Lower Heidelberg township, where they secured land which they improved and cultivated and on which they lived out honest, virtuous lives. Both reared generous families and their descendants reside in Lower Berks County and at Reading, many of them being among the most substantial citizens of their localities. The children of these pioneers married and intermarried and many of them still live in the same community and retain the old plantations.

Johannes Koch was a weaver by trade and this business he taught to all of his five sons. In addition he conducted his small farm, which is now embraced in the property of his great-grandson, Franklin Koch, of Lower Heidelberg township. He was a tall, well-built, raw-boned man, robust and exceedingly strong, and his sons and grandsons inherited his great stature along with his sterling honesty and persevering industry. He was noted for a kindness of heart that also distinguishes his descendants to the present generation. In religious belief he was a Lutheran. His burial took place at the St. Daniel's (Corner) Church. His family consisted of five sons and four daughters. (1) Stophel m. Elizabeth Texter and had no children. (2) Molly m. a Mr. Auchenbach. (3) John m. Maria Bergman. (4) Jacob m. a Miss Neff, and settled and died in Lancaster county, their children being, Frederick, Lewis, John, Catherine, Matilda and Mary. (5) Maria m. John Getz and they lived at Schoeneck, Lancaster county. (6) Susanna m. Benjamin Weidner and they lived at Ephrata, Lancaster county. (7) Christian, who was born in the South Mountains, Dec. 25, 1803, died there Oct. 7, 1875, in his seventy-second year. (8) Frederick m. Betsy Killian and they lived at Blainsport, rearing two children: Levi; and Betsey, who married Jacob Harding. (9) Elizabeth m. David Intzel and accompanied him to Ohio.

Christian Koch, of the above family, was a weaver by trade and owned a farm of seventy-four acres. Here he built a set of buildings which have since been torn down with the exception of the old log house which is used by his grandson and family as a wash house. Christian Koch was a member of St. Daniel's Church and served as deacon and elder. He was twice married, (first) to Mary Getz, who died July 10, 1838. They had two children: Mary, who married Richard Wenrich, and Catherine, who married Nathaniel Wenrich. He was married (second) to Hannah Hassler, a daughter of Sebastian and a granddaughter of Philip Hassler, of Heidelberg, and to this union were born three sons: Adam and Isaac, twins; and Franklin. Adam lived at Wernersville and Isaac lived at Reading. Franklin Koch was born Feb. 21, 1852, on the homestead in the South Mountains which he now owns and operates. In 1891 he erected the present substantial barn, and in the following year the house. In 1874 he married Malinda Hartline and they had children as follows: Henry, Eva Ann, Aaron, Ellen, Levi and Irwin.

John, second son of Johannes was a charcoal burner and in time was able to purchase a small farm. His entire life from 1795 to 1873, was passed in the South Mountains. He and his wife, Maria, had nine children, Annie, John, Jacob, William, Mary, Elizabeth, Benjamin, Joseph and Peter. John B. Koch, son of John and grandson of Johannes Koch, was born Dec. 14, 1821, in Lower Heidelberg township. With his father he learned the cooper trade and followed this until he was of age, when he was married to Sarah Hassler, daughter of Sebastian and Polly (Beck) Hassler, of South Mountains. They lived at Middle Creek, in Lancaster county, for four years, where he was a general laborer, after which he worked at his trade for seven years. For the next sixteen years he engaged in farming in Lancaster county and then purchased land in Lower Heidelberg township and lived on it for several years. He then resumed farming on his father's land in the South Mountains. After the death of his father he purchased the farm near Wernersville now owned by Albert Gehart and on that he lived for ten years and there his first wife died. After remaining a widower for several years he was married a second time and then bought land near Blainsport, in Lancaster county, where they lived for ten years, until the second wife died. Mr. Koch then sold that farm and made his home with his son Samuel. Although Mr. Koch is in the latter eighties he needs neither spectacles nor staff. He is, like his ancestors, tall and well built and remarkably preserved and in his prime could lift a barrel of cider unassisted with ease. He had no children born to his second union, but six were born to his first marriage: Mary m. Andrew Gauner of Lebanon; Samuel; Sebastian, deceased, who was buried at Hokendauqua, Pa.; twin daughters who died young; and Sarah m. Martin Texter.

SAMUEL KOCH, a resident of Lower Heidelberg township, was born Nov. 15, 1848, at Middle Creek, Lancaster county, a son of John, a grandson of John and a great-grandson of Johannes Koch, the ancestor of the family. He was reared on the farm and lived there until he was twenty-five years old, after which he worked in a stone quarry for about twelve years, opening one at Wernersville and another between Manheim and Lititz, in Lancaster county. Mr. Koch is very versatile and if he had been forced to do so could have earned a good living at a half dozen employments. For two years he worked at shoemaking near Wernersville, then employed himself at various kinds of labor for a time and for seven years dealt successfully in cattle, handling from 300 to 400 head a year. In 1903 he took charge of the Hain's grist mill in Lower Heidelberg township, which he conducted until the spring of 1908. During this time he made a specialty of manufacturing two brands of flour which found a ready sale throughout this district and Reading, the Young America and the White Rose. After leaving the mill he retired to his own farm in Heidelberg township.

In 1874 Mr. Koch was married to Catherine Long, a daughter of Jacob Long, of Penn township, and to them have been born the following children: Irwin, m. Mattie Lutz and is a prosperous farmer residing near Albany, Ill.; Henry, residing at Robesonia, m. Kate Bierman; William T., also residing at Robesonia, m. Matilda Greth; Reily, also of Robesonia, m. Gertrude Fox; John L., living at Robesonia, m. Bessie Putt; and Nora and George both reside at home.

With his family, Mr. Koch attends the Hain's Reformed Church. In every relation of life he is respected and esteemed and may be justly considered as a representative of the best type of citizen to be found in Berks county.

GEORGE W. MARKS, an enterprising young business man of Lower Heidelberg township, Berks county, who is engaged in blacksmithing at Lorah, was born Sept. 17, 1872, in Spring township, son of Jonathan and Elizabeth (Hatt) Marks.

The great-grandfather of George W. Marks was a resident of Lebanon county and the father of a number of children, among whom were: Christian; Molly, who m. Daniel Umbenhauer; George, who was a resident of Bern township; and Hannah, who died unmarried. Christian Marks, grandfather of George W., was born in Lebanon county in about 1806, and after a long and useful life spent at laboring, died in 1890, being buried in the Sinking Spring Church burial ground. He was married to Sarah Stahl, of Womelsdorf, and they had five children: John, who is buried at Sinking Spring Church; Lovina, who m. Isaac Hoster, of Reading; Jonathan; Aaron; and Adam, of Montello.

Jonathan Marks, father of George W., was born Nov. 18, 1831, at Womelsdorf, and there as a young man learned the trade of tinsmith, which he followed regularly for nine years, and off and on for the major part of his life. He also engaged in farming in Heidelberg, Spring and Cumru townships. In 1900 he removed from Heidelberg township to Montello, where he now lives retired. Mr. Marks was married to Elizabeth Hatt, daughter of William and Elizabeth (Ortz) Hatt, and to this union there have been born the following children: Emma, who died young; John, of Wernersville; Adeline, m. to Joseph Wenrich; Katie, m. to John Bitler; Frank, a hatter of Montello; George W.; Annie, m. to Howard Kalbach; and Ellen, deceased, who m. Michael Kintzer.

George W. Marks worked upon his father's farm until reaching the age of nineteen years, at which time he learned the blacksmith trade from John S. Bitler, of Lorah, for whom he worked nine years. At the end of that time he purchased his employer's business. In 1903 he bought the blacksmith shop, brick residence and thirteen acres of land, and here he has continued to reside to the present time. He is an excellent mechanic, and his fairness and honesty in business transactions have won him the trade of the community within a radius of three miles, as well as the respect and esteem of his fellow townsmen. In politics Mr. Marks is a stanch Democrat. He and his family attend Hain's Reformed Church, of which he is now serving as deacon.

On Aug. 27, 1902, Mr. Marks was married to Hattie Parson, the estimable daughter of William and Maria (Greth) Parson, residents of Lower Heidelberg township, near Lorah. Two children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Marks, namely: Paul E. and Marvin G.

DANIEL J. REINIGER, one of the well known residents of Lower Alsace township, Berks county, who is extensively engaged in truck farming and wine manufacturing, was born in Wurtemberg, Germany, in 1856, son of George L. and Anna Maria (Mayer) Reiniger.

The grandfather of Daniel J. Reiniger was a wine manufacturer and stone mason of Wurtemberg, Germany, where he was married and had six children: George L. John, who emigrated to America and settled at Douglassville, Berks Co., Pa., later bought a farm near Stony Creek and died aged eighty-two years, his wife surviving him until eighty-nine years of age; they had six daughters and two sons. Sophia, who married John Goll, died in 1874, in Wurtemberg, her husband having passed away the year previous, after which their four children emigrated to America. Catherine died unmarried after emigrating to America in 1873. Margaret died at the age of eighteen years. Daniel, who emigrated to America, settled first at Douglassville, Pa., and later in 1860 went to Ohio, where he died, leaving nine children.

George L. Reiniger was born Oct. 11, 1814, in Wurtemberg, Germany, and in 1857 emigrated to America, settling at Douglassville, Pa., from whence he went to Unionville and then in 1859 to Lower Alsace township, where the remainder of his life was spent. His home there was purchased in 1863. Mr. Reiniger was married to Anna Maria Mayer, daughter of John and Maria Mayer, and to them the following children were born: Caroline died in infancy. Sophia, who married Henry Reich, both now deceased, had nine children, Lizzie, Henry, Katie, John, Mary, George (deceased), Daniel, George and an unnamed infant; six are living. Caroline (2) died in infancy. Lizzie died when nineteen years of age. Mary, who married Augustus Saltzman, both now deceased, had two sons, Augustus and Charles, of Reading. Frederick died in infancy. John L. was a resident of the old homestead, where he died at the age of fifty years, leaving five children, George L., Amelia, Mary, Rose and Frank. Daniel died in infancy. Daniel J.

Daniel J. Reiniger was one year old when the family emigrated to America and his education was secured in the common schools of Berks county. He assisted his parents until his marriage, since which time he has been engaged in truck farming and wine manufacturing. He gives his special attention to the latter, making about 8,000 gallons annually.

On April 29, 1879, Mr. Reiniger was married to Agnes Eppler, daughter of Michael and Catherine (Luppold) Eppler, and to this union there have been born eight children: Anna Maria, Elizabeth, William, Emma, John, Daniel, Agnes and Esther, all living at home.

The family are members of Kuendig's Lutheran Church of Reading. In politics Mr. Reiniger is a Democrat, and he has served as school director, declining nomination to other offices.

THOMAS STEIGERWALD, a prominent farmer and wine grower of Lower Alsace township, whose fine residence is situated near the Gravity Railroad, on Mount Penn, was born in 1831 on his father's homestead in Unter-Franken, Bavaria, Germany, son of Michael and Magdalena (Seaman) Steigerwald.

Michael and Magdalena Steigerwald were both born at Unter-Franken, and were the parents of eight children, two of whom died young. Eva m. Martin Wright, and both died in Germany leaving one son, who now resides in Reading. Adam, who emigrated to America after serving his time in the army, m. Lucinda Bower, and they resided for a time in Cincinnati, O., but subsequently located in Reading, where both died. John, who emigrated to America in 1847 with one of his sisters, m. Sarah Bower, and they reside in Lower Alsace township. Thomas. Margarita, who came to America with Thomas in 1849, m. Sebastian Smith, and resides at Chestnut and Maple streets, in Reading, her husband having passed away twelve years ago. Catherine, who came to America with her brother John in 1847, m. John Eiler, and both are deceased.

Thomas Steigerwald came to America at the age of eighteen years with his sister Margarita and brother Adam, and settled near Reading. For some time he conducted a bakery at Fourth and Penn streets, in that city, but subsequently embarked in agricultural pursuits, and became one of the leading agriculturists and wine growers of this section of Berks county. In politics Mr. Steigerwald is a Democrat in the true sense of the word, always voting for the candidate whom he deems best fitted to fill the office. His first Presidential vote was cast in 1856, in favor of James Buchanan. With his family he attends the Catholic Church.

Mr. Steigerwald was married to Barbara Silberman, daughter of David and Margaretta Silberman, and to this union there have been born four children: Anthony, who resides in the West; Catherine, who is a Sister and a teacher in the Catholic schools; Margaret, who is unmarried and resides at home; and Sarah, who is also a Sister and teacher in the Catholic schools.

BENJAMIN GRAEFF, one of Heidelberg township's venerable citizens, who for some years before his death, which occurred in August, 1909, lived retired from active pursuits, was born Aug. 8, 1823, in Bern township, Berks Co., Pa., son of Samuel and Elizabeth (Stamm) Graeff.

Jacob Graeff, the progenitor of the numerous Berks county family, was a native of Germany, who emigrated to Maiden-creek township, Berks county, where he died in the winter of 1806. He owned upwards of 200 acres of land and left a large estate to his children. He and his wife, Catherine Margaretha Kindt, are buried at St. Peter's Church in Richmond township. They had these children: Abraham obtained the old homestead; Sebastian, John and Jacob each received 200 pounds in lawful money of Pennsylvania; Eva Maria, m. Jacob Murria; Elizabeth m. Adam Kindt; and Catherine m. Jacob Trowitz, each of the daughters receiving 150 pounds of lawful money of Pennsylvania; and Rosina, who married a Miller, by whom she had three children,—Rosina, Susanna and Hannah, all of whom were provided for in the will. Abraham Graeff, of the above family, lived on the homestead for some years, where he carried on farming, and later removed to Reading, where he died. He was married to a Miss Kieffer, and they had two children: Isaac and Abraham.

Jacob Graeff, grandfather of Benjamin, was born in 1762, and died in 1841. He was a lifelong farmer, and owned a tract of 180 acres near Gernand's Church, where he is buried. He married Rosina Adam, and to them were born the following children: Jacob, a farmer of Maiden-creek, who married and died at Reading; Daniel, who died unmarried; Samuel; John, a farmer of Maiden-creek, buried at Gernand's Church; Isaac, who was a farmer on the homestead; Solomon, a farmer of Upper Tulpehocken township; Elizabeth, who died unmarried and is buried at Gernand's Church; and Sallie, whose husband's name is not known.

Samuel Graeff, father of Benjamin, was born in Maiden-creek township, Nov. 17, 1793, and died Sept. 11, 1876, in Centre township, in which district he settled after his marriage. He owned a farm at the Belleman's Church, where the cemetery is now situated, his tract consisting of 136 acres. He erected a house in 1849 upon the farm on which his son, Isaac, lived until after his marriage. He was a prosperous man, a good, useful citizen and a member of the Reformed congregation, of Belleman's Union Church, of which he was deacon and elder. He married Elizabeth Stamm, born on Jan. 27, 1797, who died on Sept. 26, 1877, daughter of Nicholas Stamm, and they had seven children: Mary, who died young; Benjamin; Isaac, who lives on the homestead in Centre township; Catherine, m. John Faust, of Reading; Sarah, m. Elias Kreider of Bern township; Samuel, deceased, who was a farmer of Centre township; Anna Eliza m. John Haak. The parents are buried at Belleman's Church.

Benjamin Graeff was educated in Bern township in the pay schools of his day, at Belleman's Church, and for a short time at the Quaker meeting house in Maiden-creek township. He attended an English school a short time only, but later educated himself in various ways, and became well informed on general topics of the day. Until twenty-three years old he worked for his parents, but in 1853 he began operating for himself in Centre township, on his father's farm, continuing farming until 1882. In 1860 he located in North Heidelberg township, but in 1872 purchased his late home, a tract of 113 acres, where he afterward resided. Since 1890 his farm has been tenanted by his son Samuel, and prior to that time was occupied by his son James. Fine limestone is found on this farm in great quantities, and in addition to carrying on agricultural pursuits, the Graeffs sell hundreds of bushels of lime yearly, having four lime kilns.

Mr. Graeff was a Democrat in politics, and served as delegate to various conventions. He was honest and upright in dealings with his fellow men, and had the respect and confidence of the community to a large degree. With his family he belonged to St. Paul's Church, of Robesonia, though previously he was a member of the Corner Church of Robesonia, as well as of North Heidelberg church, in both of which he was an official.

Mr. Graeff was married Jan. 9, 1847, to Magdalena Ludwig, born Jan. 6, 1824, who died Feb. 12, 1899, and was buried at Corner Church. To this union there were born children as follows: Annie, deceased, born April 23, 1848, m. Jonathan Stump, and died Oct. 24, 1902; Allison, born Dec. 4, 1849, died Feb. 10, 1862; Mary, born in October, 1851, died Feb. 11, 1862; James L., born Feb. 5, 1856, is a farmer in Spring township; and Samuel, born July 5, 1868, m. Ellen Keeny, farms upon the homestead, and has three children, Milton, May and Laura.

WILLIAM S. KURTZ, an enterprising young business man of Berks county, who is carrying on a successful flour and feed business at Womelsdorf, was born Aug. 31, 1870, at Womelsdorf, son of Samuel and Eve Ann (Arnold) Kurtz.

Stephen Kurtz, the ancestor of the numerous Berks county family, was born in Switzerland, where he lived all of his life. Among his children were two sons, Johannes and Christian, who came to America, the latter a number of years prior to the former. He located in Tulpehocken township, where he was a taxable in 1759, paying three pounds federal tax in that year. He had a son, Stephen, now buried near Moyerstown, north of the pike. These pioneers were of the Amish faith, were devout in their worship, and good, upright citizens.

Johannes Kurtz, son of Stephen of Switzerland, and great-great-grandfather of William S., was a native of Switzerland and came to America in the ship Anderson, landing at Philadelphia, Sept. 27, 1752, being a resident of the Northkill in 1757. His great-grandson James, who lives on the old homestead, has a large book printed at Ephrata, Pa., in which is printed in good German the name of the ancestor and the date, 1757. He owned one farm of 206 acres, which he acquired in 1764, having purchased it from Adam Losh (Lesh), whose father Johan Losh erected a house on the old homestead in 1753. This house, which is of stone, is in good condition today, and the wall will be good for another century. This land Johannes Kurtz, in about 1780, divided in two tracts, the deeds therefor calling for 101 and 120 acres respectively, the difference being due to the provincial authorities allowing six per cent for roads and other improvements. The inscription on his tomb-stone in the private burial ground on the homestead reads: "Denkmal von Johannes Kurtz. Er war geboren in Europe in der Schweitz und storb im April 1796 alt 74 Yahre." His wife, Betty Rickenbach, died in February, 1796, aged seventy-three years, and was the mother of these children: Jacob, who settled in the vicinity of Ephrata, Lancaster county, had three children,—John, Jacob and Nancy, m. to John Kurtz, of another branch of the family in Cumru township, who founded Kurtz House; John also settled in Lancaster county; Stephen lived on one of the homesteads for some years and then removed to Mifflin county, where he died; Adam; and Mrs. John Forney lived in Ontelaunee township.

Adam Kurtz, the great-grandfather of William S., was born on the old Kurtz homestead in Marion township, Sept. 4, 1768, and died Aug. 3, 1852, aged eighty-three years, ten months, twenty-nine days. He was a farmer on the homestead, was a well-known and substantial citizen, and as each of his children became of age he gave them farms. His wife was Anna Mast, born Dec. 11, 1773, who died Jan. 9, 1842, aged sixty-eight years, twenty-nine days, and they had seven children, as follows: (1) Jacob died unmarried. (2) David m. Susan Hettinger and had five children,—Abraham, Samuel, David, Sarah and Lydia. (3) John (1800-1870), m. Margaret Field, and had eight children,—Mary, Rebecca, Matilda Leah, Lovina, John, Elias, Reuben and Samuel. (4) Samuel. (5) Elizabeth m. John Koenig, of near Rickenbach Station. (6) Jonathan m. Molly Koenig and had three children,—Adam, Eliza and Rebecca. (7) Magdalena m. David Kurtz and lived along the Susquehanna, in Upper Pennsylvania.

Samuel Kurtz, grandfather of William S., was born Sept. 25, 1804, and died March 18, 1876. He attended the old German pay schools, where the Psalter and New Testament were the text books, and was reared to agricultural pursuits. He became the owner of a nice farm of nearly 100 acres in Marion township, and there his death occurred, his burial taking place on the private burial ground of the family, where five generations are buried. In 1828 Mr. Kurtz was married to Sarah Rickenbach, born Sept. 25, 1799, who died Nov. 18, 1875, and they had these children: Levi, who died in 1893, in his sixty-third year, had these children,—Amanda, George, James, John, Sallie and Levi; Jacob lives in Des Moines, Ia.; William and James (born Feb. 18, 1838) live on the homestead, which they own jointly with Samuel; Samuel; and Amanda m. John Kintzer (both now deceased) and had these children,—Samuel, John, Robert, Sallie and Annie.

Samuel Kurtz, son of Samuel, was born Jan. 29, 1841, in Marion township, Berks county. Until he was twenty-one years old he worked on the farm, and then learned the milling trade in Womelsdorf, an occupation which he followed until 1907, in which year he retired. In politics Mr. Kurtz is a Democrat, was burgess in 1884 and served as councilman for three years, and has always shown a lively interest in public matters and movements for the public good. He is one of the substantial men of his community, where he wields considerable influence. In 1869 Mr. Kurtz was married to Eve Ann Arnold, born Jan. 12, 1850, daughter of William and Elizabeth (Stettler) Arnold, of Womelsdorf, and to this union two children have been born: William S., and Arnold R., born June 7, 1876, who died July 16, 1876. Although a part owner of the old homestead, Mr. Kurtz makes his home in his fine residence on High street, Womelsdorf, and is also the owner of a residence property on Franklin street, in the same borough.

William S. Kurtz was educated in the township schools, which he left at an early age to learn the stove moulding trade with the Lebanon Stove Works, an occupation which he followed for seven years at Lebanon and eight years at Womelsdorf. In 1903 he engaged in the flour, feed and confectionery business, which he has followed to the present time, with gratifying success. He has displayed more than ordinary ability in handling his business affairs, and the scope of his operations is constantly increasing. In politics he is a Democrat, and fraternally he is connected with the Modern Woodmen of America, and the Woodmen's Protective Association of Womelsdorf. He and his family are members of Zion's Union Church of Womelsdorf.

In 1892 Mr. Kurtz was married to Mary C. Kintzer, daughter of Isaac Y. and Elvina (Smith) Kintzer, the former of whom was the warden of the Berks county prison for a number of years. Two children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Kurtz, namely: Ruth E., born Nov. 17, 1892, who died March 29, 1895; and Edith E. Mr. Kurtz has his place of business on High street, while his residence is situated on Franklin street. He is a popular member of Womelsdorf Fire Company.

JOHN W. FISHER, a resident of Douglassville and one of its representative men, was born in Chester county, North Coventry township, Oct. 19, 1849, a son of Evans Fisher, grandson of Jacob Fisher and great-grandson of Henry Fisher.

(I) Henry Fisher was a carpenter and lived near Port Union, in Chester county, where he died. He is buried at Shenkels church. The following were his children: Nicholas, John Henry, Levi, Jacob, Samuel and Sarah, m. John Ammons. The Fishers nearly all were carpenters and lived in the vicinity of Port Union. The early generations were Episcopalians, but the latter ones became Baptists and Methodists.

(II) Jacob Fisher, son of Henry, lived nearly all his life in the vicinity of Douglassville, in Union township, Berks county, where he worked as a laborer. He died at the age of seventy-three, and is buried at Shenkels church, in North Coventry township, Chester county. His wife was Rebecca Shenkel, who died at the age of ninety, and came of a large and influential family of Upper Chester county. These children were born to Jacob Fisher and wife: Susanna Willaner, who still lives at Linfield, Montgomery county, with her son-in-law Jacob Gauger, and is over ninety; Elizabeth, widow of Thomas Sheradin; Mary Ann m. Mahlon Wessner, both deceased; Rebecca, deceased, m. Mr. Jones; Ann; Evans; Isabella, who married (first) George Potts, and (second) David W. Pennick, and who is still living in Reading, eighty-two years old and blind; Jacob, who died at Fricks Locks in Chester county; John, who died unmarried.

(III) Evans Fisher, son of Jacob, was a native of North Coventry township, where he was born in 1824, and he died in August, 1904, in the eightieth year of his life. He was a farmer and owned a small farm in the district where he was born. This property is now owned by his son John W. Fisher. He was a Methodist, and in early life was prominent in church work. He, too, is buried at Shenkels Church. His wife was Sophia Mells, who died in 1903, aged seventy-seven years. They had issue as follows: John W.; Mary, m. Franklin Breidenbach of Pottstown; Solomon, of Douglassville; and Warren, who at the age of six years was drowned in the canal at Laurel Hill Locks.

(IV) John W. Fisher was reared on the homestead, and attended the public school, and when eighteen began to learn the carpenter trade from Jacob Haas of Douglassville. This occupation Mr. Fisher has always followed. He served an apprenticeship of two and one-half years, and in 1879 engaged in contracting and building at Douglassville, and he has had the contract for all the work done on the Messerchet's estate for the past twenty-five years. He has built many very fine residences in the lower end of the county. He gives employment to from ten to twelve men. Mr. Fisher lives at Douglassville in his own home, which he built in 1885.

In politics Mr. Fisher is a Republican, and is active in local matters. He and his family are Methodists, and very popular in their church.

In 1873 Mr. Fisher was married to Bessie Weiser of Pottstown, a descendant of the great Indian interpreter, Conrad Weiser. They have had children: Stella, who died at the age of six; Amy, who died at the age of ten years; Daniel, of Kenilworth, Chester county, a pattern maker, who married Lucretia Quay, a distant relative of U. S. Senator M. S. Quay, and has two children, John and Mary; Lillie, who died in infancy.

JOHN H. EGOLF, one of the old-time business men of Douglassville, Berks Co., Pa., where he conducts a flourishing wholesale and retail coal, grain and feed business, was born Sept. 8, 1843, at Pottstown, Pa., son of Hezekiah B. and Lavina (Pott) Egolf.

Jacob Egolf, the great-grandfather of John H., was a native of New Hanover, Montgomery Co., Pa. June 4, 1795, he purchased from Henry Keim a tract of land consisting of seventy-nine acres, thirty-two perches, in Rockland township, Berks county, which property is recorded in Patent Book A, vol. 7, p. 123, and in Berks county in Deed Book 14, p. 421. Here the ancestor spent the remainder of his days. In 1907, twelve persons of the name were residing in Reading and some of the descendants of Jacob Egolf now live at Hamburg and in Fleetwood.

Adam Egolf, the grandfather of John H., is buried in the old Pottstown cemetery, the date of his birth and death unknown. In 1837 he purchased a property in Amity township from Henry Mane, and at one time owned a tract of 150 acres, on which he carried on farming. He retired some years before his death. He was a tall, slender man, was a consistent member of the Lutheran Church, and was known throughout his community as an honest and upright citizen. Adam Egolf married Elizabeth Bunn, and to them the following children were born: Hezekiah; Jacob who died young; Caroline, m. Samuel Murphy and lived in Chester county; Julian, m. John Luppold and lived in Amity township; and Rebecca, m. Amos Reifsnyder and lived in Amity township. All of these children are deceased.

Hezekiah B. Egolf was born in Rockland, Berks Co., Pa., April 13, 1816, and died Nov. 12, 1887, aged seventy-one years, six months, twenty-nine days. He was a miller by trade, and conducted a grist mill in Union township for a number of years, this being known as Sixpenny Mill, as it was situated on Sixpenny creek. Here he also carried on farming to some extent. Later he located in Douglassville, where for ten years he was engaged in a coal and lumber business, and became a successful business man and useful citizen of his community. In politics a stanch Democrat, Mr. Egolf was elected by his fellow citizens to the positions of school director, auditor, tax collector and assessor, and filled all of these incumbencies ably and faithfully. He was a member of the Amityville Lutheran Church, and was a member of the building committee that erected the present edifice. He is buried at Amityville cemetery, where his wife was also laid to rest. Hezekiah B. Egolf was married to Lavina Pott, born in 1821, who died in 1904, daughter of John and Ellen (Eagle) Pott. Mr. Pott came from Germany in infancy. He and his wife both met their death on the Reading railroad tracks one and one-half miles above Douglassville, Pa., when the carriage in which they were riding was struck by the Aerial Engine. To Mr. and Mrs. Egolf there were born these children: John H.; Abigail, born in 1845, who died in 1881; Emily F., deceased, m. Walt. Young; Anna, who died unmarried in 1865, aged seventeen years; Ellen, who also died young; Elizabeth, born in 1858, who died in 1862; Franklin P., born in 1853, who died in 1857; and Bertha K., m. Ammon K. Rhoads of Amityville, Pa.

John H. Egolf was brought to Exeter township, Berks county, by his parents, when one year old, and his education was secured in the public schools of Union township and the Philomathean Institute below Birdsboro, which was organized by Prof. B. F. Barge in 1861. This gentleman, who was a graduate of Yale College, had first conducted his school in a private house, but later founded the well known institute. At an early age young Egolf began working in his father's mill, remaining there until twenty-two years of age, and on coming with the family to Douglassville he assumed charge of the Reading Station, a position which he held for eleven years. In 1877 Mr. Egolf purchased the good will, stock and fixtures of Charles H. Hine, conducting that well known general store for twenty-five years, and in 1903 he engaged in his present business, employing three men and being eminently successful. His business ventures have not been confined to these enterprises, however, and he now serves as treasurer of the Douglassville Iron Company, of which he was one of the founders, and which employs as many as eighty men. For fifteen years he was president and a director of the Phoenix Mutual Fire Insurance Company, with main offices at Phoenixville, and he was also one of the organizers of the American Casualty Company. Mr. Egolf's home is a large, stone residence, situated near his place of business, built by Henry McKanty about 1838. It is surrounded by a fine, large, well-kept lawn and shrubbery and flowers add greatly to the beauty of the place. He also owns a tract of forty-two acres, which is being cultivated under his personal supervision. In political matters, like his father, he is a stanch Democrat, and has served as school director, assessor, delegate to a number of county conventions, and State delegate on two occasions, once when the Hon. Mr. Day of Philadelphia was nominated for the office of State treasurer, and again when Robert E. Pattison was nominated the second time for the governorship, to which he was subsequently elected. During President Cleveland's administrations, Mr. Egolf was postmaster at Douglassville. With his family he attends divine worship at the Lutheran Church of Amityville.

On March 8, 1878, Mr. Egolf was united in marriage with Lizzie J. Conard, daughter of Adam and Elizabeth Conard, of Douglassville, and to them there have been born the following children: Nellie, m. to Frederick A. Satter, of Douglassville; Mabel, m. to Albert Kupp, a resident of Douglassville; and John Conard, and Frances E., who are attending school.

JAMES B. McLEAN. The McLean family originated in Ireland where Daniel McLean was born in the northern part, April 8, 1812, and came to America when twenty-one years of age. His death occurred June 22, 1876, when he was sixty-four years, two months and fourteen days old. His remains are interred at Amityville.

After coming to America he located in the vicinity of Mauch Chunk, Carbon Co., Pa., being attracted there by the coal mines, as he was a miner. There he resided until 1850, when with his family he moved upon a farm in Amity township, near Weaverstown. This farm consisted of 116 acres of good, fertile land, and he farmed it successfully until his death. Daniel McLean was an enterprising man, and very industrious, and labored hard to bring up his children in the right way and give them more educational advantages than he had enjoyed. Although a Presbyterian, as there was no church of that denomination in the vicinity, he attended the Reformed Church. His wife was Elizabeth Ann Breuster, who was born Aug. 12, 1816, and died Oct. 17, 1881, aged sixty-five years, two months and five days. She too was a native of Ireland, and she and Mr. McLean met on shipboard. During the two months consumed by the trip on the sailing vessel, the young people grew to love each other, and upon landing in New York they were married. Their children were: James B.; Samuel B., who resides in Amity township on the old homestead; Dr. Daniel B., who resides near his brother James B.; and John, who was born Dec. 10, 1851, and died April 6, 1886, aged thirty-four years, three months and twenty-six days. The old homestead has a stone house upon it built by Daniel McLean in the sixties. Mr. James B. McLean has an old dinner gong, brought from Ireland, and of a kind seldom seen in this country. It is 2½ inches in diameter and 3-8 of an inch thick. This family relic is over a hundred years old, and is greatly prized.

JAMES B. McLEAN, a farmer of Weaverstown, Amity township, was born Sept. 9, 1843, and when twenty-five years old he began farming in that vicinity. His boyhood was filled with work on the farm and attending school, until he was given the advantage of a course at the Hill school at Pottstown and at the Boyertown Academy. He was licensed to teach by Professor Ermentrout and was examined by James N. Ermentrout, later president judge. Mr. McLean taught school one term during the winter of 1866-7 at Weaverstown, and received twenty-five dollars a month for his services. Then he worked for his father-in-law for several years, and after the latter's death he bought the farm of 131 acres of very good land, suitable for mixed farming. The house was built by George Lorah in 1797, and is in excellent condition.

Mr. McLean and family are members of the Reformed Church of Amityville, in which he is a deacon and elder, and has been since 1866. In politics he is a Democrat and has served his township as committeeman, auditor, assessor and registry assessor. He might have had any of the other offices within the gift of his neighbors, but refused them, feeling that he had done his full duty as a good citizen. He was a State delegate to four conventions, and a delegate to a number of county conventions. Mr. McLean was a delegate to the convention that nominated Judge James N. Ermentrout for the first time, and to the one which nominated him for the second term.

In 1866 Mr. McLean was married to Mary A. Lorah, a daughter of John and Emma (Griesemer) Lorah. Mr. and Mrs. McLean have had two children: William Lorah, who died in infancy; and Rev. Eugene Lorah.

The Rev. Eugene Lorah McLean was educated in the public schools of his community, Kutztown State Normal school, Franklin & Marshall college, and in a theological seminary. After his graduation he was ordained and his first charge was at Everett, Pa. There he preached the gospel for ten years and is now stationed at Frederick, Md. He married Mary Neff, of Huntingdon county, Pa., and they have a daughter, Mary Margarite.

James B. McLean is widely and favorably known in Berks county as a man who is industrious as a farmer, and public-spirited as a citizen. He is pleasantly located and he has brought his land to a high state of cultivation.

EFFINGER W. LEAVER, lumber, coal, flour, feed and hardware merchant at Boyertown, Pa., was born Sept. 5, 1855, in Earl township, Berks Co., Pa., a son of Samuel and Elizabeth (Weidner) Leaver.

The Leaver family is of German extraction and was established in Douglass township, Berks Co., Pa., by Jacob Löwer, who had three sons. Johannes or John Leaver, the grandfather of Effinger W., was born Dec. 26, 1778, and died Jan. 19, 1846, aged sixty-seven years, twenty-three days. He is buried at Boyertown and the name on his tombstone is written Johannes Löwer. He owned a small tract of land in Douglass township and worked at his trade, weaving. In March, 1803, he married Catherine Kerlin, daughter of Samuel and Mary Kerlin, born Jan. 11, 1784, died Nov. 7, 1864, aged eighty years, ten months, twenty-six days. The inscription on the tombstone of herself and husband, in the Boyertown cemetery, states that they had two sons and seven daughters. The names of eight children are appended: Lydia, m. Charles Leopold; Sarah, m. Jacob Allbright; Mary, m. Samuel Brunner; Samuel; John, who lived and died in Ohio; Kate, m. Elias Will, of Washington township; Hettie, m. Levi Fritz; and Elizabeth, who died unmarried. All of the above family are deceased with the exception of Kate, who survives (1908) aged eighty-four years.

Samuel Leaver was born Dec. 21, 1810, in Douglass township, Berks Co., Pa., and died at Boyertown, on Christmas morning, 1881, aged seventy-one years, four days. His remains rest in Fairview Cemetery, Boyertown. For a number of years he engaged in mercantile pursuits at New Berlinville and he operated the lumber yard at Boyertown that is now conducted by his sons. He was a successful business man and a respected member of his community. In addition to his own home he owned other real estate at Boyertown. In religious faith he was a Lutheran and he brought his family up under strict discipline. In politics a Democrat, he was frequently elected by that party to local offices and served with intelligence and honesty.

Samuel Leaver was married (first) to Elizabeth Weidner, a daughter of Jacob and Mary (Landis) Weidner, of Earl township. She was born Nov. 13, 1820, and died in November, 1864, aged forty-four years. They had the following children: Mary m. Frank G. Riegner, of Reading; Kate, who resides with her sister Emma, at Boyertown; Henry, deceased; Jacob, who lives at Roxboro, Pa.; Ellen, who perished in the Boyertown fire, Jan. 13, 1908, m. Ephraim B. Johnson; Emma; Effinger W.; John, who resides at Boyertown; Clara, a popular and efficient teacher, who perished in the holocaust at Boyertown, Jan. 13, 1908; and Laura, m. George Z. Hunter, a teacher residing at Ephrata. Mr. Leaver was married (second) to Mrs. Anna (Smith) Wagner, and they had one daughter, Anna, wife of John Dry, residing at Boyertown.

Effinger W. Leaver was given good educational advantages and early became a helper to his father in his store and in 1883 he took charge of the business, having been trained in it from the age of fifteen years. He gives employment to seven people and has two teams in use in his coal industry and one in his lumber business. His yards are conveniently located close to the railroad station, covering almost a block. He has an interest in other concerns and is a director in the Union Manufacturing Company of Boyertown.

In 1879 Mr. Leaver was married to Sarah Mory, daughter of Aaron Mory, a resident of Boyertown. Mr. and Mrs. Leaver had three children born to them, namely: Warren, serving as clerk, treasurer and chief bookkeeper in the casket factory, who married Lizzie Ritter and has two children, Marguerite and Carrol; Ruth; and Bessie E. With his family, Mr. Leaver is a member of St. John's Lutheran Church and is very active in its affairs.

In his political views Mr. Leaver belongs to the old Democracy. He has frequently been elected to public office at Boyertown, has served the borough as auditor and in 1903 he was elected to the school board, on which he is still serving. He is a representative citizen of his section.

OSWIN A. H. JACOBS, justice of the peace at Boyertown, Pa., was born in Hereford township, Berks Co., Pa., March 17, 1865, a son of William H. and Susanna (Hensinger) Jacob.

John Jacob, the grandfather, was a native of Trappe, Montgomery Co., Pa. In early life he settled in Hereford township, where he lived for many years and later resided in Columbia county. He was a veterinary surgeon for forty years and made his trips over the country in a high, two-wheeled sulky, such as was used by professional men of that day. He was a man of natural and acquired ability and is described as being of aristocratic appearance and as always wearing a "stove-pipe" hat. For thirty years he filled the office of justice of the peace. His first marriage was to a Miss Hittle and his second to a Miss Miller. The children of the first marriage were: Elizabeth, who married Joseph Nuss and lived at Lena, Ill.; William H.; John H., who lives in Lehigh county; and Joshua H., who was a soldier in the Civil war and was killed at the battle of the Wilderness. A large family was born to the second union, among whom were: Mary, Amanda, Susanna, Abraham, Franklin, Allen, James and Charles. The father was buried at Hoover's Church, Montgomery county.

William H. Jacob, father of Justice Jacobs, was born in Berks county, Pa., in May, 1832, died Oct. 14, 1898, in the sixty-fifth year of his age, and is buried in Lehigh county. He was a carpenter and followed bridge work for many years and assisted in building the railroad bridges on the Reading line between that city and Philadelphia. His grandfather Hittle was the general boss of the construction work and under him William H. Jacob learned the trade. Later Mr. Jacob became a farmer at Hensingerville, on his father-in-law's land, and in addition he conducted the hotel there for some time. Later he became the proprietor of the Maple Grove hotel in Longswamp township, which he owned and conducted for twelve years. After this he bought a farm of seventy acres near Topton but a few years later sold and purchased the Bentsinger farm of fifty acres, at Maple Grove, and on that farm he died. He was a man of large intelligence and retentive memory, possessed a natural gift for penmanship and was very popular among his fellows.

William H. Jacob married Susanna Hensinger, a daughter of Peter and Catherine (De Long) Hensinger, formerly of Berks and then of Lehigh county. Peter Hensinger once conducted Gauby's tannery in Berks county and after selling that he bought a tract of 150 acres in Upper Macungie township where valuable minerals, rock and hematite ore were found. He built the Hensingerville store and hotel, together with dwellings, and was the leading man in the village, which was named in his honor. His children all became good members of society.

The children born to William H. Jacob and wife were: Catherine, deceased; William, who conducts a photographic studio at Clarion, Ia.; John, a resident of Des Moines, Ia.; James, residing at Wilmington, Del., is superintendent of the Pennsylvania Railroad Construction Co.; Oswin A. H.; Franklin H., foreman of the car shops at Wilmington, Del.; and an infant daughter.

Oswin A. H. Jacobs secured his educational training in the public schools and at the Keystone State Normal School at Kutztown and was licensed to teach school by Prof. D. S. Keck but he never made use of the permission. When he was fourteen years of age he learned the milling trade and continued to be interested in it until 1906, with the exception of three years; from 1883 to 1886, when he went to Hawarden, Ia. His business there was preparing and dealing in hay. He cut, dried and baled the upland blue joint prairie grass, which is noted for its sustaining qualities and during his last year in the West he was superintendent of the Chicago & Northwestern Hay Co., which is a successful corporation still doing business.

In the spring of 1886, Mr. Jacobs returned to Berks county and continued his milling business, conducting it along the most modern lines at different points and while at Linfield, in Montgomery county, he served as postmaster from 1893 until 1905. From there in 1906 he came to Boyertown and now occupies a handsome residence on North Reading Avenue. He is still in business, conducting an extensive wholesale feed trade and also operates his four-acre farm near Boyertown.

On Jan. 11, 1887, Mr. Jacobs was married to Mary G. Weidner, daughter of William and Mary (Grant) Weidner, of Lobachsville, and to this union were born the following children: Frances E., who married William Weidner, of Boyertown; Oswin D., a bookkeeper residing at Boyertown; Lizzie, Annie and Eva, all deceased; and Mary J., Mabel, William, Helen, Esther, Elda and John, residing at home. Mr. Jacobs and family are members of the Longswamp Lutheran Church of which he has been a deacon and elder.

In politics, Justice Jacobs is a Democrat and he has held local offices in Longswamp and Colebrookdale townships. In the spring of 1908 he was elected a justice of the peace of the borough of Boyertown. For many years he has been interested in fraternal organizations, believing they increase sociability and foster humanitarian impulses and at the same time implant ideas of high and virtuous living. He organized three of the lodges at Boyertown, the Odd Fellows, the Red Men and the Woodmen. While at Kutztown he helped to organize the Adonai Castle, K. G. E., of which he was a charter member. He belongs to Boyertown Lodge of Odd Fellows, No. 708, to the Boyertown Lodge of Woodmen, No. 8286, and to the Boyertown P. O. S. of A., No. 104.

DAVID BROWN, a prosperous truck farmer of Robeson township, who is operating twenty-three acres of fertile land near Gibraltar, was born in 1850, in Robeson township, Berks county, son of David and Eleanora (Wicklein) Brown.

David Brown, Sr., was born in Cumru township, and at the age of twelve years, after the death of his father, he learned the blacksmith trade, which he followed in connection with farming all of his life. He located in Robeson township, where his death occurred in 1888, at the age of eighty-two years, three months. His wife passed away in 1883, aged seventy-two years, and she like her husband was a member of the Lutheran Church. They had children as follows: Lydia A., m. Ephraim Quinter; Mary m. Mahlon Schaeffer; Hannah m. John Quinter; William m. Catherine Ulrick; Daniel m. Annie Becker; Margaret m. Reuben Wicklein; Sarah m. George Bechtel; and David.

David Brown received his education in the schools of Robeson township, since leaving which he has followed farming and trucking all of his life, now owning twenty-three acres of bottom land, which is well adapted to truck farming. He is energetic and enterprising and has one of the best properties, for its size, in the community. Mr. Brown was married to Anna Ulrick, who died in October, 1905, aged forty-nine years. She was the mother of eleven children, as follows: Freddie, deceased; Eva, m. Edward Dieffenderfer; David, m. Sallie Helms; Charles, deceased; Daniel m. Anna Koch; Warren deceased; Edgar, single; Mahlon m. Nellie Esterly; Percival; Margaret, and Perley. In religious belief Mr. Brown is a Lutheran. Politically he is a Democrat, and his fraternal affiliations are with the P. O. S. of A. and the I. O. R. M.

B. FRANK DICKINSON, a well-known resident of Robeson township, Berks county, where he has been engaged in agricultural pursuits all of his life, was born in Robeson township, Dec. 24, 1860, son of Lewis and Catherine A. R. (Gaul) Dickinson.

Eli Dickinson, the grandfather of B. Frank, and a native of Robeson township, was a cabinet maker by trade, and also owned and operated a farm of sixty-five acres. He died at the age of eighty-two years. Mr. Dickinson married (first) Lydia Stevens, by whom he had these children: Rachel, Samuel, Lewis, Hannah, Lizzie and Phebe. The family were Quakers in religious belief, while in politics Mr. Dickinson was a Republican.

Lewis Dickinson, father of B. Frank, was born and reared in Robeson township, where he spent his entire life in agricultural pursuits, dying in 1905, at the age of seventy-three years. He married Catherine A. R. Gaul, born June 19, 1835, daughter of Benjamin Gaul, and to this union there were born these children: Lydia A., m. (first) Thomas Gest, by whom she had,—Jennie, Lewis and William (twins), Bessie and Frank, and m. (second) James Morrison, by whom there was no issue; Emma J., m. (first) Lafayette Geiger, by whom she had one child Sallie, and m. (second) Wilmer Seifert, by whom there was no issue; B. Frank; and Valeria, m. Samuel Lively. Mr. Dickinson was reared in the Quaker faith, but later in life joined St. James Lutheran Church, of which he was a trustee for ten years. He was a Republican in politics, but never sought office.

B. Frank Dickinson received his education in the common schools of Robeson township, and from the time when he was old enough, worked on the home farm, which he inherited at his father's death. He has operated this property ever since, with much success.

In 1891 Mr. Dickinson was married to Anna Dickinson, daughter of Benjamin and Sarah (Seifert) Dickinson, and three children have been born to this union: Irene, Lewis and Frank. In religious belief Mrs. Dickinson is a Baptist. Mr. Dickinson is a stanch Republican in politics, but like his honored father has never desired to hold public office.

JOHN BURKHART ARTZ, a substantial citizen of Brecknock township, Berks county, who is engaged in truck farming near Knauer's, was born across the line in Spring township, April 2, 1852, son of John H. and Sarah (Burkhart) Artz.

Jacob Artz, grandfather of John B., was a lifelong resident of Spring township, and was a shoemaker by trade. He died old in years, and was buried at the Muddy Creek Church, as was also his wife, Anna Maria (Harding) Artz, who bore him one son: John H.

John H. Artz was born in Spring township in 1821, and there received his education. For about twenty years, until his eyesight failed, he taught school in the winter seasons in Brecknock, Spring, Cumru and Lower Heidelberg townships, carrying on agricultural pursuits in the summer time on his forty acre farm. He was well and favorably known, and was elected on the Democratic ticket to the office of assessor and tax collector, which he held for many years. He was a Reformed member of the Muddy Creek Church, where he held official position. Mr. Artz married Sarah Burkhart, daughter of Andrew Burkhart, and eight children were born to this union: Mary, Catherine, Jacob, Harriet, Sarah, John B., Andrew and Katie, the last named of whom died in childhood. Mr. Artz died in 1893.

John B. Artz was reared upon the farm in Spring township, and in early life came to Brecknock township, where he has since lived. For some years Mr. Artz was a tenant, but in 1885 he purchased a small tract, where he lived until 1891, and then bought a farm of seventy-five acres, which he is still cultivating. In politics Mr. Artz is a Democrat, and has served as a delegate to numerous county conventions. He and his wife are Reformed members of the Gouglersville congregation, of which he was deacon and elder for many years, and of which he is now treasurer.

In 1870 Mr. Artz was married to Susanna Fitterling, born Nov. 2, 1851, daughter of Daniel and Mary (Schonour) Fitterling, and ten children have been born to this union: Pierce, m. Kate Matz; Mary, m. Howard Schonour, deceased; Ella, who died at the age of six years; Kate, m. Charles Reisch; Maggie, m. Charles Hain; John, m. Mary Dautrich; Lillie, m. Cenus Schonour; Howard, who died at the age of sixteen years; W. Stephen and Carrie, both at home.

THE REBER FAMILY. The Reber family which is quite numerous in Reading and in the northeastern section of Berks county, had its beginning in Leonard Raver (Reber), who was a German Palatinate and came to America prior to 1740. In that year he had already settled in Windsor (now Perry) township, where he owned considerable land. Warrants for land were deeded to him as follows: Oct. 11, 1750, for ninety-three acres; April 5, 1775, another warrant was given him. Prior to these dates he already owned land. In 1769 Leonard Reber sold a tract of his land to George, his oldest son. He died prior to May 1, 1777, leaving the following eleven children: George, whose wife's first name was Anna Elizabeth; Adam, of Northampton county (now Weisenburg township, Lehigh county); John, of Berks county; Frederick, of Northampton county; Leonard of Northampton county; Dorothy (m. Henry Roush, of Berks county); Hannah (m. Jacob Häffly, of Berks county; Elizabeth (m. Nicholas Lingel, of Berks county); Christina (m. Conrad Ruhl); Catherine (m. Adam De Walt); and Magdalena (m. Adam Bieber).

George Reber, the eldest son of Leonard, the immigrant, obtained a warrant from the Province of Pennsylvania, which bore the name of "Ravensburg," and was dated April 15, 1783. He also on May 1, 1777 (after his father's death), bought the homestead, paying 100 pounds of lawful money to each of his sisters and brothers as their share of the inheritance. He had a son named Jacob, who had among his children two sons: Samuel and William. Samuel Reber was a farmer and blacksmith in what is now Perry township, where he owned ninety-six acres of land. He was a Lutheran and is buried at Zion's Church. His wife's name was Esther and their wedding trip was made on horse-back, as was the custom, and they had these children: (1) Jeremiah, who had—Owen, Oscar, Ann and Lillian; (2) David (1832-1906), who had,—Mary, Kate, Arch, Edith, Samuel A., William H., Annie and Jacob; (3) Kate; (4) Esther; (5) Abraham, who had one son, John; (6) an infant son; (7) one whose name is not known; and (8) Ann, who died young. William, the second son of Jacob Reber, was born in 1818, and died in 1890, and was twice married, having by his first wife, one son,—Jacob, and by his second wife, Ann Gordner, fifteen children.

Adam Reber, the second son of Leonard the immigrant, lived for some years in Northampton (now Lehigh) county, in Weisenburg township, but later returned to his native county,—Berks. His son, George, the great-grandfather of Ira J. J. Reber, of Mount Penn borough, was born in Bern township, where he was engaged in milling, and died in Reading in his eightieth year, being buried at the Charles Evans cemetery. He married a Miss Hoy, and to them were born the following children: Polly, who died unmarried; Catherine, m. to Daniel Klahr; Rebecca, m. to Samuel Spohn; Augustus, who was a miller and died in Reading; Joel, who settled at State Hill; George, who lived in Allentown for many years, but died out West; Joseph; and Jacob, who lived and died in Schuylkill county.

Joseph Reber was a native of Bern township, but in later years removed to Maiden-creek township, where he operated the Evansville grist mill until his death. He was married to Elizabeth Kline, and to them there were born children as follows: Mary m. Eli Saul; William is a clock-maker of Reading; Aaron, a distiller by trade, is now conducting a grocery in Reading; Ella, deceased, m. Harry Boyer, a car inspector of Reading; Joel K.; Daniel, a clock-maker of Reading, has three children,—David L., Wesley and Howard L.; Sarah m. Irwin Smith, a wall paper dealer of Reading; and Emma m. Samuel Perry, of Kansas.

Joel K. Reber was born in Bern township, Dec. 16, 1842, and in 1858 learned the painting trade in Reading, which he has followed at intervals to the present time. In 1862 he engaged in the wall paper business, opening a little store in partnership with Henry Wertz, on Ninth street, near Washington. Later he built at No. 154 North Ninth street, where he continued alone until 1891, the year in which he purchased his present place, No. 943 Penn street, where he has followed the business very successfully ever since. He is a consistent member of Ebenezer Evangelical Church of Reading, which he joined in 1877, and in which he has served as trustee and steward for some years. In 1869 Mr. Reber was married to Catherine Ziegler, daughter of James W. and Christiana (Eddinger) Ziegler, and to this union there were born children as follows: Lillie m. Charles Kelly, a shoe-last maker of Philadelphia; Minnie died in childhood; E. J. is at home; Javan, a paper hanger of Reading, m. Minnie Wilgeroth; Ira J. J.; Katie died in childhood; and Harry C. m. Carrie Smith and works as a clerk in Reading.

Ira J. J. Reber was born June 25, 1880, in Reading, received a good education in the city schools and the High school, and left the latter to enter his father's paper store, now located at No. 943 Penn street, which he is now conducting. He carries a full line of wall-paper and accessories doing the largest business of this kind in Berks county. They also do considerable painting, frescoing and decorating, and during their busy season employ upwards of twenty-five skilled workmen. Many buildings in Reading and the surrounding country bear evidence of the excellence of Mr. Reber's work, among them being churches, halls and public buildings.

In politics this branch of the Reber family is strongly Republican in national and State matters, while in local affairs honesty and ability are considered before partisanship. Mr. Reber is a member of the Mount Penn Board of Health, and is fraternally connected with the P. O. S. of A., No. 163, Reading; and the Knights of Malta, No. 47. He and his family are members of Salem Evangelical Church, of which he has been a trustee for some years, and where he is a teacher in the Sunday school.

On Aug. 6, 1901, Mr. Reber was married to Lizzie Levan, daughter of George A. and Philibena (Stuber) Levan.

LEWIS MILLER was one of that energetic and talented class who seem to be born to control men and affairs and leave their impress upon the industrial history of the times. He was a member of a family of French-German descent, founded in America about 1828, by John Miller, his father, who came from Strasburg, Province of Alsace, Germany, then French territory. The father soon after his arrival located at Royer's Ford, Montgomery Co., Pa., where most of his life was spent. By occupation he was a stonemason and contractor and built several bridges in this part of the world. He married Magdalena Brown and had two sons: Frederick, who was a sea captain and is supposed to have been lost at sea, as nothing was afterward heard of him, and Lewis.

Lewis Miller was born at Royer's Ford, Oct. 13, 1830. He received a common school education, to which he afterward added largely by a wide course of reading and careful study of men and affairs. His early life was spent on his father's farm near Phoenixville, Pa. Afterward locating in Wilmington, Del., he engaged himself as an apprentice to the machinist's trade with the late Jesse Ermie, of that city, and after five years spent in acquiring a mastery of that business became a foreman in the machine shop of Pusey, Jones & Co., at the same place, and later was made general superintendent. In 1857 he associated with Josiah Custard, under the firm name of Miller & Custard, and began building machinery for cotton and woolen mills at Chester, Delaware county.

In 1859 the firm of Miller & Allen was formed and continued the same business until 1872, when it was dissolved by the retirement of Mr. Allen. While in this city Mr. Miller, under a contract with Mr. Corliss, was the only builder of the now famous Corliss engines south of New England. Through his agency these engines were introduced to the public in Pennsylvania and the Southern States. During this time Mr. Miller designed and built for Mr. Bruner the handsomest Corliss engines ever erected, every piece being tool finished and no chipping by hand permitted in any part. These engines attracted the attention of skilled machinists from all parts of the country, persons interested coming long distances to inspect them.

After the firm of Miller & Allen was dissolved, Mr. Miller, through the influence of Seyfert & McManus, was induced to come to Reading and become a partner with them in the Scott Foundry. After reorganizing it, he introduced the building of large cotton compress machines and also large and powerful sugar machinery which at once put it upon a paying and prosperous basis. During the panic of 1873, when the industries of the country were so seriously crippled that almost all the manufacturing plants of Reading were forced to close their shops, Mr. Miller by remarkable business ability and untiring effort secured a sufficient amount of work to operate the shops of the Scott Foundry at practically the normal capacity, thereby giving employment to a large number of men, which was of immense benefit to the general business conditions of Reading, at a critical time in its history. He remained in the works until 1877, when he retired from the firm and devoted his attention to the building of the "Miller Cotton Press," making improvements from time to time until he perfected the best press known to the public.

In 1882 he left this country and went to Bogota, United States (now Republic) of Colombia, South America, where he succeeded in doing a work that had baffled the united skill of English and French engineers. Away up near the line of perpetual snow, where communication could only be had by mules, he started on the mountain peaks a mill for rolling rails for tramways. As no weighty machinery could be transported on mules over the towering ranges, he was compelled to build a blast furnace and rolling mill from material found on the ground. Nothing daunted, he began the work, and the record of his success reads like one of the stories of Jules Verne. His remarkable ingenuity and wonderful power of resource and expediency were constantly called into play. He made bricks for the furnace, erected the entire plant from foundation to roof, and having dug the ore from the earth near by, smelted it, ran it into pigs and ultimately rolled it into rails, the first ever made in that country.

Owing to the extreme rarefaction of the atmosphere at that high altitude, unable to secure draught enough for combustion, he devised and constructed a machine to compress the air fed to the furnace.

When the first rail was manufactured a great demonstration took place at Bogota. It was made a gala day, with bunting flying, troops, societies and public officials taking part in the display. The first rail was exposed to public view on a decorated wagon, drawn through the streets, amid cheers from the assembled thousands who lined the sidewalks on every hand. On that occasion Mr. Miller, as the honored guest of the Republic, was in a coach drawn by four horses at the head of the parade. During the celebration, speeches were made by the president and other prominent men of national fame. An insurrection, breaking out soon after, arrested the work and Mr. Miller returned to the United States. He then built the present plant of the Penn Steel Castings Company, of Chester, and with the Chester Foundry & Machine Company engaged in the manufacture of the superior cotton press which bears his name. He was also president for a short time of the Limwood iron works. He was a member of the Masonic fraternity and of Franklin Scientific and Mechanical Institute of Philadelphia.

His death occurred May 31, 1892, in the sixty-second year of his age. In 1849 he married Mary A. Dixon, daughter of William and Mary Dixon, of Wilmington, Del. To them was born a family of six children: Ada A. married John E. Nugent; William died in infancy; Mary M. married C. R. Heizmann and died in February, 1892; Laura Amelia became Mrs. Joseph P. Kremp; Lewis J., and Alonzo A.

Mrs. Kremp, the youngest of the three daughters of the subject of this sketch, possesses many of the characteristics of her distinguished father. She has given great attention to works of beneficence as officer and member of institutions in Reading and elsewhere. [Also see sketch of Joseph P. Kremp.]

Lewis J. Miller, who ably sustained the eminent reputation of his father for business activity and mechanical ingenuity, was born in Chester, Pa., May 25, 1859, where he grew to manhood, and received his preliminary instruction in the public schools, finishing his education at the Broad Street Academy, Philadelphia. Leaving school, he served an apprenticeship with his father in the Scott Foundry, at Reading, and after completing his trade became a draftsman in the employ of that firm, remaining with them until 1877. In the latter year he entered the employ of Pusey, Jones & Co., of Wilmington, Del., as draftsman, and was thus engaged until 1880. He was afterward employed in similar work for various other firms, drawing designs for all kinds of machinery. In 1888 he went to Catasauqua, Lehigh Co., Pa., where he planned and made all the drawings for a large rolling-mill.

Later he became soliciting agent for the Chester Iron & Machine Company, of Chester, and in 1889 formed a partnership with William W. Bierce, of Memphis, Tenn., for the manufacture of cotton compresses, at Chester, with offices in Memphis and Philadelphia. This firm continued operations until March, 1891. Upon its dissolution Mr. Miller became associated with his father in the same industry and after the death of the latter in 1892 succeeded to the entire business. These presses are made under a number of patents, some of which were owned by the elder Miller, while others were taken out by Lewis J., and cover his own improvements.

Mr. Miller was married in 1888 to Ocy J. Price, daughter of Hugh and Harriet P. (Cox) Price, of Wilmington, Del. Their union was blessed by the birth of three children: Ada A., Lewis J. and Frank P.

Mr. Miller was a resident of Philadelphia until 1892, when he removed to Chester, where he resided in a beautiful home at No. 515 West Seventh street until his decease, in 1894.

JOSEPH P. KREMP, one of the best known and most successful business men in the city of Reading, son of the late Louis and Caroline (Prestat) Kremp, was born in 1854, in Berks county, Pennsylvania.

He was educated in the public and high schools of that city and later finished at Villa Nova College. After graduation, he entered his father's building association office, in which he obtained a thorough, practical training in the conduct of all branches of real estate, banking and insurance business. Later, he became interested in the manufacture of high class ornamental glassware, previously made only by expert artists and workmen in Europe and exported to this country. For this purpose he left his father's office to establish the Reading Glass Works, the pioneer American company in this line, and was appointed general manager. A modern plant was erected, but conditions were not conducive to making the enterprise a commercial success. It was therefore abandoned; and, in conjunction with his father, he incorporated the Reading Brewing Company, the plant being built on the site of the glass works. Mr. Kremp was made general manager, which position he held for eight years. He was notary public for the First National Bank and other banks of Reading (succeeding his father, upon his death, as director), and represented many of the leading insurance companies in this district. In 1882 he became interested in the Penn Butt Works as a partner with C. R. and A. A. Heizmann, with a one-third interest. Later, upon the consolidation of the Penn Butt Works with the Penn Hardware Company, his interests were transferred and he became a director in the latter company.

Mr. Kremp was a director of the Penn National Bank, the Pennsylvania Trust Company, and a member of the Board of Trade. He was also interested in a great number of building associations in Reading.

Mr. Kremp enjoyed an extensive personal acquaintance through the southeastern section of the State. He had many stanch friends who admired his social qualities and unswerving loyalty to his social and business ideals. As a business man, he was energetic and extremely broad-minded. Although through his active efforts he gained a competency, on a number of occasions he sacrificed financial interests when in conflict with the high standard which he had set for himself and on which his business reputation was based. The city of Reading is not only indebted to him for the establishment of two important industrial plants which gave employment to hundreds of men, but also to his public-spirited citizenship in taking part in most important movements for the general welfare and advancement of the community.

At the time of his death in Reading, Oct. 31, 1902, besides his extensive professional and business occupations, he was a member of St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church, of the Catholic Historical Society of Philadelphia and of St. John's Society.

On March 4, 1887, Mr. Kremp was married to Laura Amelia Miller, daughter of Lewis Miller (mentioned just above), a former partner in the old Reading Iron Works, and the inventor of the well-known Miller cotton compress. To this union were born two children: Lewis, who having prepared at the Cascadella School, Ithaca, N. Y., became of the Chronic Insane Asylum at Wernersville, the building of the Reading Hospital, the building up of the Keystone State Normal School by procuring State appropriation, the building of the United States post-office at Allentown, all remain as monuments to Mr. Green's useful citizenship.

CHARLES M. YETTER, a prosperous young business man of Cumru township, engaged in the manufacture of cigars at Shillington, was born in Millway, Lancaster county, July 12, 1872, son of Michael and Louisa (Smith) Yetter.

Michael Yetter, who was born in Germany, was a miller by trade and emigrated to America when a young man of twenty-nine years. He settled at Millway, Lancaster county, and followed his trade until his death, in 1888, at the age of sixty-six years. His wife, who bore the maiden name of Louisa Smith, is still living, the mother of these children: Louisa, m. Harry Y. Yocum, who resides at Grill, Cumru township; Albert, a prominent cigar manufacturer of Lancaster county; and Charles M.

Charles M. Yetter attended the schools of Brecknock township, Lancaster county, and the Millersville State Normal school, after graduating from which latter institution he taught school for nine years, three terms in Lancaster county and six in Cumru township, where he became well and favorably known. He learned the cigar making business during the summer months, and engaged in business at Mohnton in 1901. There he continued until 1905, when he located at his present place, building a factory on Broad street, just off Wyomissing. It is a substantial three-story structure, 73 x 30 feet, with a fine cement cellar for storage, and having a capacity of 31,000 cigars daily; 130 workmen are employed. His goods are known and find a ready market from coast to coast, and include the following well known brands: "Walter Thomas," "Real Diamond," "John Mitchell," "Patriarch Club," and "Richard Webster." His factory is No. 71, and is in the first district. In political matters he is a Republican, and was one of the leaders in the movement to have Shillington become a borough. He is enterprising and energetic and although yet young in years is one of the most substantial men of his community. For some years Mr. Yetter has been vice-president of the Mohnton National Bank of Mohnton. His fine residence on Wyomissing avenue, which he erected in 1905, is one of the most modern in the locality. His religious belief is that of the Lutheran Church, which his wife also attends. He is fraternally connected with Reading Lodge, B. P. O. E., No. 115, Aerie No. 66 of the Eagles, of Reading, and the Knights of Pythias, of Mohnton, Lodge No. 485.

Mr. Yetter married Emma Lessley, daughter of William Lessley, and they have two children, Earl F. and Myrtle Ruth.

WILLIAM W. MILLER, a representative young business man of Shillington, Pa., dealing in machinery, tools, dies and specialties, was born in the house in which he now resides, Oct. 26, 1870, son of William H. Miller.

Nicholas Miller, great-grandfather of William W., was a laborer of Adamstown, and was twice married. Daniel Miller, his son, was a blacksmith by trade, and also followed agricultural pursuits near Adamstown, where he died at the age of seventy-one years. He and his wife had the following children: Abraham, who resides near Adamstown; Jeremiah, of that place; Joseph, Elias, Daniel, John, all deceased; Caroline m. Samuel Zimmerman, residing in Iowa; and William H., the father of William W.

William H. Miller was born in 1836 in Lancaster county, and under his father learned the blacksmith trade, which he followed for a number of years. He was an expert tool maker, and one of his latest pieces of work was the making of the Bible stand in the Shillington Emanuel Reformed Church. For several years he engaged also in the mercantile business in Reading, Gouglersville and later at Shillington. He died at the age of forty-six years, and is buried at Gouglersville. Mr. Miller's first marriage was to a Miss Burkholder, of Bowmansville, and to this union there were born twelve children, the only survivor of whom is Reuben, a cabinet-maker of Millmont, Berks county. He married (second) Lydia H. White, daughter of William White, and to this union was born one son, William W. Mr. and Mrs. Miller were members of the Union Church of Allegheny, belonging to the Reformed denomination.

William W. Miller secured his education in the local schools and the Scranton Correspondence school, taking up the mechanical course. In 1886 he accepted a position at the Penn Hardware Company, in the machine department, remaining there for a period of four years, after which he went to St. Louis and Chicago for more experience. He remained in the West for one year and then returned to Reading, where he was employed at the Reading Hardware Company for three years. For twelve years he worked at the Chantrell Tool Company, at Millmont, Berks county, the last few years being master mechanic there. In 1900 he built his present shop, sixteen by thirty-six feet, two stories high, and engaged in business on his own account, manufacturing tools, machinery, dies and specialties, and also being the inventor of the large seller "Perfect Spark Timer," for automobiles. He employs three skilled workmen and has a large and increasing business.

Mr. Miller married Maggie G. Fritz, daughter of John Fritz, and to this union have been born these children: Edna E., William A., Elwood A., Margaret and Floyd M. Mr. Miller is a member of the Gouglersville Lutheran Church, has served that church as deacon and has also taken an active part in Sunday school work. He is a member of the Reading Tent of Maccabees. He was at one time a member of the National Guards, Co. A, 4th Pa., was in camp with his company at Columbia, Gettysburg and Mt. Gretna, and holds the record of his company as a marksman, having made forty-nine targets out of a possible fifty on the Shillington range. He is greatly interested in movements for the advancement of Shillington, having been prominent in the movement to have Shillington made into a borough, and he is considered one of the substantial and public-spirited business men of the place.

DANIEL B. HILL, a leading hotel man of Berks county, who is proprietor of the Gouglersville House in Cumru township, was born in Ruscombmanor township, Berks county, son of William Hill and a member of one of the oldest families of this section of the State.

George Hill, grandfather of Daniel B., was born in Ruscombmanor township, and was a shoemaker by trade, an occupation which he followed in connection with farming. He and his wife had the following children: William, father of Daniel B.; Benjamin, who died in Alsace township; Augustus, who died at Pricetown, Ruscombmanor township; Frank, who died in 1906, at Leavittsville; Lena m. Bennewell Shreader; Hannah m. a Mr. Keffer; Mrs. Hoyer.

William Hill was born in Ruscombmanor township in 1822, and in his native place followed brick and stone masoning, as well as farming. He died in January, 1900, when seventy-eight years old, in the faith of the Reformed Church. In politics he was a Democrat, and for some years served his township as school director, being a well known and influential man of his community. He married Harriet Bechtel, who passed away in 1899, at the age of seventy years Mr. and Mrs. Hill had eleven children, as follows: Amos m. Catherine Horst and died at Palmyra; Susan died young; Caroline m Daniel Oilinger of Ruscombmanor township; Sarah m. Jacob Hartman, of that township; Mary m. John Wise, of Mt. Penn; Louisa m. Dallas Kline; Emma m. the late August Houck; Harriet m. Jacob Freiberger; William m. Annie Noll of Ruscombmanor township; Daniel m. Winnie Moyer; and George, twin of William, died when eight years old.

Daniel B. Hill attended the schools of Ruscombmanor township and Friedensburg Academy, and then engaged at farm work. Later he went into the hotel business in Reading, taking charge of the well known Union House, which he successfully conducted for a period of three years, from 1900 to 1903. He next embarked in the wholesale liquor business at Tenth and Penn streets, Reading, where he continued for two and one-half years. Mr. Hill at the end of this time came to his present location, buying out in April, 1906, Mr. Augustus Wentzel, who was then the proprietor of the Gouglersville Hotel, and here he has made many improvements, his fifteen room house being one of the best hostelries in the county. Mr. Hill is an excellent business man and a very pleasant host, and has many friends in this section.

Mr. Hill married Earena Moyer, daughter of Amos and Sarah (Hartman) Moyer. They have no children. Mr. Hill is a member of the Reading Aerie of Eagles, No. 66, and the Oley Lodge, I. O. O. F. In political matters he is a Democrat, but takes little interest in public affairs.

JOHN WARREN, a well known contractor and builder of Cumru township, Berks county, and the owner of a planing mill at Oakbrook, Pa., who has been serving as prison inspector of Berks county since 1898, was born Jan. 8, 1862, in Cumru township, son of Elias and Mary (Kleinginna) Warren.

Elias Warren, who during life carried on farming on his thirty-five acre tract in Cumru township, near Cedar Top, was a Lutheran member of Gouglersville congregation, where he was buried. He married Mary Kleinginna, daughter of John Kleinginna, and to them were born two sons and two daughters: Emma m. David Mohn; Thomas m. Sarah Fritz; Sallie m. Adam Lutz, and John.

John Warren was educated in the township schools, which he attended until seventeen years of age, and then learned the carpenter trade with Samuel Hornberger. After working at his trade as journeyman for some years, Mr. Warren engaged in the contracting and building business for himself. Up to the present time he has built twenty-three houses in Mohnton; fourteen at Shillington; six at St. Louis, Mo.; four at Wyomissing; and twenty-nine at Oakbrook, as well as other buildings throughout the county. He owns his own planing mill at Oakbrook, where is installed an invention of his own,—a combination wood-working machine, combining fourteen different machines, which was patented Aug. 8, 1905. Politically Mr. Warren is a Democrat, and he has been active in the ranks of the party for some years, being elected prison inspector in the fall of 1898, since which time he has been twice re-elected. He has served on the supply and building committees, and has done much towards improving conditions in the penal institutions of Berks county. Mr. Warren is a great traveler, and has visited nearly every point of interest in this country and Canada. He is an enterprising and successful business man, and as a public official he has proved equally capable.

HENRY E. SEIDERS, who is engaged in the draying business at Millmont, Berks county, is a veteran of the Civil war, in which great struggle he took an active part. Mr. Seiders was born May 2, 1847, in Reading, Pa., son of Benjamin L. and Esther (Engle) Seiders.

Lewis Seiders, the grandfather of Henry E., was a boatbuilder by occupation, and was a man of substance and sterling worth. He married Mary Levan, and to them were born the following children: Isaac; Lewis; Solomon; Benjamin L.; Jackson; John; Emma, who married Mahlon G. Hoyer, a soldier in the Civil war; and Caroline, who married Reuben Breish. Lewis Seiders died at the age of seventy-six years.

Benjamin L. Seiders was born Jan. 19, 1826, in Reading, where his death occurred Sept. 11, 1861. Like his father, he was a boat-builder, was employed as engineer on the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad when wood was used for fuel, and also held a responsible position with the Navigation Company of Reading. His wife survived him some years, dying when seventy-four years of age. Their children were: Katie, m. John W. Ringler, of No. 205 Bingaman street, Reading; Mary A., m. the late Henry Adams; and Henry E. In political matters Benjamin L. Seiders was a Republican.

The educational advantages of Henry E. Seiders were decidedly limited, consisting of but three days attendance in the Reading schools. When but fourteen years old he enlisted, July 31, 1861, in Co. L, 1st Pa. Cav., and while a member of that organization was captured by the Confederates, May 2, 1863, at Chancellorsville. For about three months he was kept a prisoner, being confined in the famous Libby Prison, and was then paroled, when he returned home. Shortly thereafter, however, he rejoined his regiment, and served with it until the close of the war, receiving his honorable discharge Aug. 16, 1865. Mr. Seiders' record in the army is that of a brave and faithful soldier, and one of which any man might well be proud. While giving Mr. Seiders' war record, the following may be quoted which appeared in a Reading paper under the caption "Soldiers meet after lapse of over forty years": "A reunion took place in Reading on Memorial Day, between Henry H. Brownmiller, burgess of Orwigsburg, and Henry E. Seiders of Millmont. It was their first meeting since the war. The 'Squire', who is a Civil war veteran, had accepted an invitation to make an address at Boyertown. He arrived in Reading in the morning, and learned that his car would not be due for over an hour. While on Penn street he saw the letters—'Keim Post, No. 76, G. A. R.' in front of the building at No. 410. As he had some time to spare he dropped in, and one of the first to greet him was Mr. Seiders. Each eyed the other closely, and the 'Squire' finally said: 'Isn't your name Seiders, a member of Co. L, 1st Pa. Cav.?' 'Yes,' was the reply, and a moment later Mr. Brownmiller recognized his old comrade in arms. This was their first meeting since June, 1865, at Chancellorsville, and a merry time followed."

On his return to Reading after the close of the war, Mr. Seiders secured employment in the rolling mill of the Philadelphia & Reading Company, and later at John Kreig's mill, continuing at this kind of work for twenty-five years, when he became foreman in the coal establishment of A. L. Frame for a period of five years. He was for one year engaged in the ice business in Reading, and July 10, 1893, came to Millmont. Since 1899 he has been engaged in draying for the Prizer Painter Stove works, owning all of his own teams. Mr. Seiders makes this business a paying one, as he is known to be reliable and trustworthy and faithful in carrying out the letter of any contract. He is a member of Keim Post No. 76, G. A. R., which he joined in 1899, and of which he is past commander, and also of Lodge No. 169, I. O. O. F., Reading. From 1870 to 1872 Mr. Seiders served as a member of the Reading police force, under Mayor Samuel C. Mayer.

On April 11, 1868, Henry E. Seiders was united in marriage with Amanda Emore, daughter of Frederick and Caroline (Grant) Emore, and to this union there were born the following children: Henry F., of No. 831 Bingaman street, m. Ida Rohrbach; Samuel W., of No. 1051 Culvert street, Reading, m. Fianna Clark; Israel E. and Ammon O. are at home; Benjamin died when eighteen years of age; and Emma died when seven years old. Mr. and Mrs. Seiders are also rearing two of their grandchildren—Charles H. and Benjamin F. Seiders.

WILLIAM RATHMAN GLASSMEYER, a substantial citizen of Cumru township, Berks county, who has been living retired since 1902, was born on the farm he now owns, Dec. 9, 1843, son of Thomas and Mary (Rathman) Glassmeyer.

Joseph Glassmeyer, grandfather of William R., was a farmer in Exeter township, where he owned considerable land, and where the major portion of his life was spent. His children were as follows: Peter, who settled in Pottsville; George, who settled in York county, Pa.; Thomas; John; Jacob, who settled in York county; and two children who died young. Thomas Glassmeyer, father of William R., was born Dec. 22, 1804, in Cumru township, and his death occurred Jan. 18, 1891. He was an iron worker, employed at the Mount Penn furnace for thirty years, and he also owned the 100 acre farm now in the possession of William R. Glassmeyer. He married Mary Rathman, born June 6, 1808, who died Nov. 12, 1891, a daughter of Jacob and Barbara (Fitterling) Rathman, and to this union were born six children: Mary Ann, unmarried; Amelia m. Benjamin Kohl; Eliza Ann m. Benneville Kleinginna; Jonathan, who died single, in 1886, at the age of thirty-nine years; William R.; and Henry, who died in June, 1904, in his fifty-seventh year.

William R. Glassmeyer was reared on his father's farm, and obtained his education in the common schools, beginning farming for himself on his father's farm in 1867. He spent five years on this farm as a tenant, and in 1876 purchased it from his father, since which time he has been engaged in improving and cultivating it. In 1894 he built a fine, substantial barn, 40 x 76 feet, and his property in every detail compares favorably with others in his locality. Of late years he has lived retired in Mohnton, where he owns a comfortable residence. In politics Mr. Glassmeyer is a Republican, and he and his family are Lutheran members of Allegheny Union Church, where his parents were buried.

Mr. Glassmeyer has been twice married, his first wife being Jestina Ziegler, who died in 1887, aged thirty-eight years, the mother of six children: John; Benjamin; William; Emeline m. Samuel Hoshour; Elizabeth m. Henry Reitz; and Winnie A., who died in childhood. In 1893 Mr. Glassmeyer was married to Emeline Shupp, born in 1855, who died in 1894. One child, Minerva, was born to this union.

ELAM H. RHOADS, a popular Berks county hotel man, who is conducting the Jacksonwald Hotel, a well-known hostelry of Exeter township, was born Dec. 1, 1873, in Oley township, son of Nathan and Mary Ann (Frey) Rhoads.

Nathan Rhoads was born in Rockland township, son of Samuel Rhoads, a farmer, and early learned the trade of miller, which he has followed throughout life, and although now sixty years of age is the miller at Fairview Mills. In politics he is a Democrat and fraternally he is connected with the I. O. R. M. He is a member of the Lutheran Church in the faith of which his wife died Feb. 28, 1901, at fifty-three years of age. Two children were born to Nathan and Mary Ann (Frey) Rhoads, namely: Elam H.; and Morris F., a painter of Reading, who married Anna Romig and has four children,—Mary, Myrtle, Abbie and one younger.

Elam H. Rhoads was reared in Oley township, and was educated in the public schools. At the age of thirteen years he began to learn telegraphy, and, when sixteen years old, the trade of carpenter. He then went to Reading and worked as a journeyman ten years, and in 1903 embarked in the contracting and building business, which he followed successfully for four years, building many residences in Reading, probably in all about 165 houses. In the spring of 1907 Mr. Rhoads purchased the fixtures and stock of the Jacksonwald Hotel at Jacksonwald, and here he has since conducted a first-class house. His thirteen rooms are finely furnished, and he caters to only the best patronage. In politics he is a Republican, and on May 16, 1907, he was appointed postmaster at Jacksonwald. Fraternally he is connected with the K. G. E., No. 461, and K. of F., No. 26, Reading.

On June 9, 1893, Mr. Rhoads was married to Alice H. Gift, daughter of John M. and Annie (Heckman) Gift, and two children have been born to this union, Helen M. and Nathan F. The family are members of the Lutheran Church.

CYRUS K. AHRENS, a substantial business man of Exeter township, Berks county, who is proprietor of the Esterly P. O. Fertilizing Company, was born May 2, 1844, in Ontelaunee township, son of Henry and Nancy (Xoennig) Ahrens.

Henry Ahrens was born in Ruscombmanor township, where he was reared, and early in life learned the carpenter's trade, which he followed for some years, building many barns in Oley township. The last forty years of his life, however, were spent on his 100 acre farm in Ontelaunee township where he died at the age of seventy-four years, and his wife when eighty-eight years old. He was a Republican in politics. Mr. and Mrs. Ahrens had a family of eight children, namely: Sarah, m. Henry Saylor, of Tuckerton; Catherine, m. James Leinbach, of Reading; Annetta, deceased, m. (first) Lewis Hoffman, and (second) Daniel Stitzer, of Spangsville; Eliza m. Daniel Rosenberger, of Muhlenberg township; Frank, deceased, who was a farmer on the homestead; James, deceased, who was a carpenter, and later a merchant at Blandon; Henry, an ice dealer of Reading; and Cyrus K.

Cyrus K. Ahrens was educated in the public schools and in 1862 he left home to learn the harness-maker's trade in Friedensburg, with Jonathan Cleaver. This business he followed on and off until 1874, working in Allentown, Easton, Philadelphia, and finally in Washington, D. C., where he was employed as U. S. hostler. He had, however, enlisted in July, 1863, for three months service in the State militia, and after his services returned to Reading, where he again engaged at his trade. He bought the business of Amos Seidel, which he sold in 1867 and entered the Philadelphia & Reading rail mill, where he worked until 1874. In 1876 he embarked in the fertilizer business at his present location, and this enterprise he has enlarged and improved until his plant is one of the leaders in its line in Berks county. He has given his entire attention to this business, and has made a decided success. In 1896 he erected his present residence, one of the finest homes in St. Lawrence, which he has fitted up with all modern improvements. In politics he is a Republican.

In 1866 Mr. Ahrens was married to Hannah Haas, daughter of John Haas, of Freystown, and to this union there have been born six children: Charles, a machinist of Coatesville; Harry, a steam fitter with the Monitor Boiler Company, of Lancaster; Clara, who married James Esterly, of Reading; Kate, who married Bert Bupp, a grocer of Reading; Lillie, who married John Spotts, of Fleetwood; and Nettie, at home.

VICTOR L. GOODHART, an enterprising young business man of Stonersville, where he has served as postmaster since December, 1905, was born June 30, 1878, near Hertzog's Mill, in Exeter township, son of Amos K. and Ellen S. (Levan) Goodhart.

John Neikirch Goodhart, the grandfather of Victor L., was born in Exeter township, son of William Goodhart, and followed agricultural pursuits all his life, dying at an advanced age. He married Sophia Kline, and to them were born five children, as follows: Amos K., father of Victor L.; Sarah, deceased, who was the wife of Frank Livingood, of Amity township; Amelia; Alice, the wife of Harry Batz; and Elmer, of Exeter township. Mr. Goodhart was a Democrat in politics and he and his wife were members of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

The parents of Victor L. Goodhart are both natives of Exeter township, where they have spent their entire lives in agricultural pursuits. The father is a Democrat, and has served on the school board, and both parents are members of the Schwartzwald Reformed Church. They have a family of five children: Victor L.; Sallie, m. Jacob Bridenstine, of Amity township; Annie, m. Edwin M. Schearer of Exeter township; Harry L., a milk dealer; and Peter Neikirch, a carpenter.

Victor L. Goodhart was educated in the public schools of Exeter township, and was reared on the home farm, after leaving which he engaged in the milk business, conducting a milk route to Reading for some time. For four years he was employed by the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad in the shops at Reading, and then returned to his milk business, which he continued until 1906, being compelled to give it up in this year to give all of his attention to his growing store business.

In December, 1905, Mr. Goodhart purchased the stock and good will of William Dunkleberger, at Stonersville, a store founded by George Stoner, since whose time it has changed hands repeatedly. Since taking hold of this business, Mr. Goodhart has increased the stock of goods two-fold, and has gained the confidence of a large and growing trade by his good business methods. He is an auctioneer of some note, a business which he has followed for five years, and in the winter and spring of 1906-1907 conducted fifty-two sales, having one every day of February with the exception of Sundays. In politics he is a Democrat, has been delegate to several county conventions, judge and inspector of elections, and now, in addition to being postmaster, is serving his second term as a member of the school board. He is a charter member and past officer of Bobolink Tribe, No. 179, I. O. R. M., of Yellow House; and Washington Camp No. 230, P. O. S. of A., of St. Lawrence, also claims him as a member. He is a member of Schwartzwald Reformed Church, and a trustee of Stonersville Union Sunday-school, and his wife is a member of the Oley Lutheran Church.

On Oct. 9, 1897, Mr. Goodhart was married to Miss Aquilla H. Gift, daughter of John M. and Annie (Heckman) Gift, and they have a family of seven children: Harry G., Martha G., George G., Victor G., Annie E., Raymond G. and Clarence G.

JOHN MOYER GIFT, a venerable citizen of Stonersville, and a veteran of the Civil war, is now operating his fine farm of forty-three acres in Exeter township. Mr. Gift was born Feb. 10, 1839, in Maiden-creek township, son of Jonas and Mary (Moyer) Gift.

Jonas Gift, who was a native of Maiden-creek township, engaged in agricultural pursuits there early in life, but later removed to Exeter township, from whence he returned to Maiden-creek township, and went thence to Ruscombmanor township, where he died at the age of eighty-eight years, his wife having passed away when seventy-five years of age. They had a family of fifteen children: Benjamin, Charles, Herman, Robert, Isaac, Harrison, William, Kate, Frederick, Elizabeth, and five who died in infancy. The parents were members of the Reformed Church.

John M. Gift was reared on his father's farm in Maiden-creek township, received his education in the public schools, and after leaving them he learned shoemaking, an occupation which he followed for fifteen years. He then learned the butchering business, in which he was engaged in connection with farming in Oley township until 1902, when he purchased his present farm of forty-three acres, and has since resided in Exeter township. Mr. Gift has always been a Republican, and has been elected to positions of trust and responsibility, including those of prison inspector, school director, constable, delegate to county conventions and member of the county committee for many years.

During the Civil war Mr. Gift enlisted in Co. E, 205th P. V. I., as a private, and for nearly a year shared the privations and hardships of a soldier's life, participating in the battles of Petersburg and Devil's Hole, and in many skirmishes, and showing himself at all times to be a brave, cheerful and faithful soldier. For a time he acted as quartermaster.

On March 30, 1866, Mr. Gift was married to Miss Annie Heckman, daughter of Jacob and Abbie (Deysher) Heckman, of Alsace township, and twelve children were born to this union: Kate, the widow of Reuben Rhoads, of Reading; Oliver, a brick maker and contractor of Reading; Jacob, a brick maker of Gouglersville; Alice, the wife of Elam H. Rhoads, a hotel proprietor; Oscar, a farmer of Berks county; Thomas, a farmer of Oley township; Aquilla m. Victor L. Goodhart, a merchant of Stonersville; John, a blacksmith; Christina m. John Weidner; George, a brick mason of Reading; Lottie, deceased; and Adam, at home.

Mr. Gift is a member of the Reformed Church, and served as deacon for six years and elder for nine years of Shalter's Church of that denomination, and for nine years as superintendent of the Sabbath School. His wife is connected with the Lutheran Church.

JOHN E. TROXEL, a representative citizen of Exeter township, who is serving as justice of the peace, was born June 1, 1859, in Exeter township, son of Samuel and Annie (Eshelman) Troxel.

William Troxel, the grandfather of John E., was a shoemaker by trade, and also owned a small farm in Cumru township, where he died at the age of forty-five years, in the faith of the Reformed Church. He and his wife, a Miss Schnabel, had these children: Samuel; John; William: Aaron; Levi; Elias; Sarah, m. Benjamin Strunk; Mary, m. Martin Campfield; and Elizabeth, m. a Mr. Boyer.

Samuel Troxel was born in 1810, on the Yocum farm in Cumru township, was educated in the public schools, and was a farmer all of his life in Exeter township, where he died in 1880. Politically a Republican, he was religiously connected with Spies's Reformed Church, of which he was a deacon and trustee, and was very active in church work. Mr. Troxel married Annie Eshelman, daughter of Francis and Elizabeth R. Eshelman, and she died in 1878, at the age of sixty-two years. They had eleven children, of whom the following grew to maturity: Mary, the widow of John Hinnershitz, of Reading; Franklin, a farmer of Exeter township; Sarah, m. Adam Haas, of Reading; William, a farmer of Muhlenberg township; John E.; Elizabeth, who died unmarried at the age of thirty-three years; Henry, and Isaac, farmers of Exeter township; and Albert, who died in 1903, at the age of thirty-one years.

John E. Troxel was educated in the public schools of Exeter township, and the Keystone State Normal School at Kutztown. At the age of eighteen years he began teaching in Spring township, where he spent one term, then taught for two terms in Alsace township, and for twenty-four terms has taught in Exeter township—twenty-two in his home district, Woodville. His name as an educator was known not only in his own township, but throughout Berks county, where as an earnest worker in the cause of education he is respected and esteemed. He also owns and operates a forty acre tract of good farm land adjoining the school where he has been master for so long. Prof. Troxel, who has always been active in the ranks of the Democratic party, was first elected to the office of justice of the peace in 1895, and twice re-elected to that position since that time. He has also been a delegate to State and county conventions on numerous occasions. Fraternally he is connected with Gibraltar Camp No. 492, P. O. S. of A., the K. G. E., St. Lawrence, No. 592, and Neversink Camp, M. W. of A. He is a member of the Reformed Church and for eighteen years was superintendent of the Sunday-school at Lorane, where he is now assistant.

In 1883 Prof. Troxel was married to Sarah Hertzog, daughter of Jacob and Hannah Hertzog, of Exeter township, and to this union there were born children as follows: Carrie A., who died at the age of seven years; Hannah G., a teacher in the public schools of Exeter township, being now engaged for a fourth term at Lorane; Walter, at the Keystone State Normal school; Estella, at home; Arthur; Earl; Venus; Howard, and Lester.

FRANKLIN GRILL MOSSER, one of the substantial men of Berks county, who is postmaster and general merchant at Grill, in Cumru township, was born on a farm in this township, Aug. 28, 1856.

Mr. Mosser's educational advantages were secured in the schools of his native township, where at the age of thirteen years he learned the hatter's trade, an occupation which he followed for seven years. He then engaged in the hotel business at Mohnsville, during the Centennial year, and continued in this enterprise for five years thereafter. When twenty-five years of age Mr. Mosser engaged in the painting buisness, which he followed for six years at different places, and then accepted the position of hotel clerk at the Merchants Hotel, Reading, where he became well and favorably known. In 1902 Mr. Mosser built a dwelling and store building at Grill, and opened the first store, where he has since built up a large trade in groceries and general merchandise. Since June 4, 1904, Mr. Mosser has held the position of postmaster. In politics Mr. Mosser is a stanch Democrat, and for six years served his township efficiently as school director. He owns a fine, large dwelling in Mohnton borough, where he resided for twenty years prior to coming to Grill. He is a member of Mohnton Lodge No. 485, K. P., Knights of Friendship No. 146, of Mohnton, and Jr. O. U. A. M., No. 186. He and Mrs. Mosser are members of Gouglersville Union Church, of which he was a deacon for several years.

On Christmas Day, 1876, Mr. Mosser was married to Rebecca Mengel, daughter of John and Catherine (Fulday) Mengel, and five children have been born to them: Lillie m. George Baker, and has one child, Annie; Sallie m. John A. Hollinger and has one child, Ruth; Katie m. D. F. Gaul; John died in his fourth year; and Harvey A. was born Jan. 10, 1891.

MARTIN W. GLASS, who since 1893 has been engaged in farming on his thirty-eight acre tract near Trostle's schoolhouse, in Brecknock township, Berks county, was prior to that time engaged in carpentering, following this trade throughout Berks and the surrounding counties.

George Glass, the great-grandfather of Martin W., was a soldier in the Revolutionary war, being an ensign May 17, 1777, in the Seventh company, Capt. Joseph Davis, Lieut.-Col. Balzar Geehr, and Col. John Weaver, having enlisted from Robeson township. (Pa. Archives, Fifth Series, Ed. 1906, vol. v. p. 217.) He was a native of Ireland, whence he had come to this country when a young man with his brother, Robert, who settled in Providence township, Lancaster county. How many children he had besides Jacob, the grandfather of Martin W. Glass, is unknown. Robert Glass, his brother, had an only son, James, who operated a farm in Providence township until his death in 1859, at the age of forty-five. He was a member of the M. E. Church and a Whig in politics. He was the father of five children, namely: Mary, born in 1832, Samuel, 1835; John, 1837; Eliza, 1840; and Susan, 1842, all of Lancaster county.

Jacob Glass, the grandfather of Martin W., was a farmer and stone mason in Robeson township, where he was also an early school teacher, as he was in Brecknock township. He was born June 1, 1795, and died Aug. 3, 1865, being buried at the Robeson (Plow) Church, of which he was for many years a member. Mr. Glass married Elizabeth Slouch, born March 23, 1800, who died May 17, 1865, and to this union there were born twelve children: Isaac, who lived in Robeson township; Martin; Jacob, who died single; Amos, who lived in Robeson township; George, who was a blacksmith of Reading; Joseph, a resident of Robeson township; Charles, who died in his twenty-third year; Elizabeth, m. John Phillips; Joanna, m. Jesse Moore; Mary, m. Joseph Seifrit; Kate, who died unmarried in 1878, in her forty-third year; and Ann, m. Jacob Hill.

Martin Glass, father of Martin W., was born in 1822, in Robeson township, and died there in 1900, having been a lifelong farmer in different parts of Berks county. He is buried at the Allegheny Church, of which he and his wife were members. Mr. Glass married Elizabeth Westley, daughter of Henry Westley, whose wife was a Miss Klinger. To Mr. and Mrs. Glass were born the following children: Henry is a farmer of Brecknock township; Jacob died in boyhood; Martin W.; Margaret died in infancy; Amos, a farmer in Brecknock township, m. Ann Heilhinger; Elizabeth m. Joseph Wagner, of Mohnton; Hallawell died in boyhood; John m. Hettie Griffith and lives in Mohnton; and Wilson lives in Brecknock township, near the home of his brother, Martin W.

Martin W. Glass learned the carpenter's trade in youth with Samuel Reifsnyder, of Fleetwood, and this he followed from his twenty-first year until 1893, working at Fleetwood, Sinking Spring, Carlisle, in Cumberland county, and elsewhere. He is a skilled mechanic, and his services were continually in demand, but in 1893 he decided to engage in agricultural pursuits, and purchased his present farm of thirty-eight acres, where he is engaged in trucking. Mr. Glass has made a decided success of his new venture, and has stands Nos. 52 and 53 at the Bingaman street market, Reading, where he attends regularly twice a week. He is a Democrat in politics, and has served Brecknock township as school director since 1902. He and his family are members of Allegheny Church, of which he was deacon for eight years, and he also served as Sunday-school superintendent at Bowmansville, Lancaster county.

On Dec. 25, 1881, Mr. Glass was married to Mary Ann Lewis, daughter of Archibald Lewis, of Robeson township, and two children were born to this union: Mamie, m. to Howard Trostle of Brecknock township; and Walter, unmarried, who is engaged in assisting his father on the farm.

MILTON KERN, one of Berks county's enterprising agriculturists who is conducting a truck farm in Brecknock township, was born Nov. 18, 1856, in Brecknock township, Lancaster county, son of Isaac and Elizabeth (Musser) Kern.

Isaac Kern was a lifelong farmer in Brecknock township, Lancaster county, where he became highly esteemed and fairly prosperous. He married Elizabeth Musser, daughter of John Musser of Berks county, and to this union there were born the following children: Caroline m. Jacob Keefer; Barbara, deceased, m. Isaac Shupp; Elizabeth m. William Hoffman; Mary A. m. Theodore Musselman; Susan m. Jefferson Ludwig; Hettie E. m. Martin Weber, residing in Reading; Milton; Adam m. Albina Rathman; and John m. Dora Ludwig.

Milton Kern attended the schools of Lancaster county until the age of fifteen years, and then worked with his father until 1880, when he engaged in farming on his own account on the old homestead in Brecknock township. He then removed to the farm of Frederick R. Bubtel, in Cumru township, where he remained for two years. Mr. Kern then spent one year on William Gring's farm, a like period on Isaac Kramer's property, and in 1888 bought the old Henry Ziemer farm of sixty-three acres, which he has conducted to the present time. He has erected handsome and substantial buildings, and his farm is one of the best in the township. Mr. Kern is enterprising and a good business man, and attends the Kissinger market in Reading, having his stand at Nos. 24 and 25. In politics he is a Democrat, and in 1898 and again in 1907 was elected for a three year term as school director, a position he fills very efficiently. He and Mrs. Kern attend the Lutheran Church of Allegheny, where he has served as deacon.

In May, 1879, Mr. Kern was married to Mary Kramer, daughter of Isaac and Elizabeth (Hoschour) Kramer, and to this union there have been born: William, who was a school teacher and is now living at home; Rev. Howard, who attended the Keystone State Normal school for three terms, and graduated with the class of 1908 from Mt. Airy Theological Seminary, Philadelphia; Charles, who married Maude Newman and resides in Reading; Morris E., who is at home assisting his father; and Wayne, at school.

EDGAR R. SCHOLLENBERGER, a business man of Hamburg, Berks county, Pa., was born there Nov. 3, 1876, and comes from an old and honorable family of Berks county which we can trace to the great-great-grandfather, the founder on American shores. His name was Lorenz Schollenberger and he emigrated from Germany in 1742, settling in Berks county. He married Elizabeth Mertz and it is known that they had at least two children, John and Abraham. The latter was born Dec. 19, 1768, and married Barbara Moll, born Dec. 4, 1774, daughter of Benedict Moll. They had fourteen children, namely: Catherine, Susan, Christina, Elizabeth, Maria, Johannes, Sara, Hannah, Jacob, Wilhelm, Charles, Esther, Abraham and Alexander.

John Schollenberger, the great-grandfather of Edgar R. Schollenberger, was born Nov. 14, 1767, and died March 16, 1840. He had these children: Jacob, John, Benjamin, Samuel, Daniel, George and Susanna.

Samuel Schollenberger was born in 1800, at Hamburg, and died in 1863. For a number of years he worked at his trade of blacksmith, but later engaged in a mercantile business at Hamburg, which he carried on until his death. He built a house at the northwest corner of State and Fourth streets and also operated a farm in Windsor township, of which he and his brother were joint owners. For many years he was chorister of St. John's Union Church. He was elected first burgess of Hamburg when it became a borough in 1837.

Samuel Schollenberger married Mary Lewars and they had these children: James, Erasmus, Marquis H., Clara S., John L., Helen C., and Samuel, who died in infancy, with perhaps one other whose name is not known.

Erasmus Schollenberger, father of our subject, was born at Hamburg and here he has spent the greater part of his life, for many years engaged in his father's store. He is a veteran of the Civil war and participated in many battles during his period of service. He married Caroline Koller, and they had two sons: Irwin K. m. Bertha Faust; and Edgar R.

After completing his education in the public schools at Hamburg, Mr. Schollenberger began work in the Wilhelm Bicycle Works, where he fitted frames for two years, and later worked in machine shops in Reading. In August, 1897, he engaged in the plumbing business at Hamburg and has successfully continued in the same until the present. In 1903 he secured a large contract in connection with the building of the public water works at McConnellsburg, Pa., and later became the superintendent of these works and was elected secretary of the company. Mr. Schollenberger has fitted out all the factories and the public school building at Hamburg and he also put the steam fittings into the large M. E. Church here. Honest work commands good prices and Mr. Schollenberger is prospering.

On May 18, 1899, Edgar R. Schollenberger married Rosa F. Frey, daughter of John and Rosa (Schrubgier) Frey, of Reading. Mr. Fry is a native of Wurtemberg, Germany and his wife of Switzerland. They both came to America when young. Mr. and Mrs. Frey have these children: Ida, wife of Harry Bachman; Rosa, wife of our subject; Ella, wife of Oscar Bender; Louise; Maggie; John; Helen and Victor. The Frey family is one well and favorably known at Reading, where it has been established many years.

Fraternally Mr. Schollenberger is a member of Vaux Lodge, No. 406, F. & A. M., of Hamburg; Lodge No. 600, B. P. O. E., of Chambersburg, Pa.; Ontelaunee Tribe, Red Men, No. 312, of Hamburg; Washington Camp No. 72, P. O. S. of A., of Hamburg, and the Royal Arcanum. He is also a member of the Hamburg Fire Co.

HENRY G. SEIDEL, residing some two miles from Windsor Castle, in Windsor township, is a member of one of the oldest and largest families in the state, whose representatives have for generations been among the most substantial and reliable citizens of Pennsylvania.

(I) The first Seidel to come to America was Johann Heinrich, who was a native of Strasburg, Germany, born in 1732. He crossed the ocean on the ship "Brothers," and on landing at Philadelphia, Sept. 10, 1751, was, according to a custom of the time, sold for his passage, as he was too poor to pay his own way. The following year he obtained his freedom and immediately proceeded to Reading, Berks county, where in time he became a large land owner, possessing property in Bern township and a tract of 400 acres in Maiden-creek township. Farming was his chief occupation and brought him large returns, but during a period beginning with 1786 Mr. Seidel returned to Germany and entered upon mercantile ventures there. He was, however, mainly identified with Maiden-creek township, where he operated his farm for many years. In his earlier life he saw considerable military service, participating in the Indian Wars under Capt. Hiester and later in the Revolutionary struggle, while his wife and children carried on the farm meantime.

In 1760 Johann Heinrich Seidel married Anna Catherine Rodmacher, who was born Jan. 19, 1738. She died Feb. 9, 1808, aged seventy years and twenty days. Her husband died some years earlier, Aug. 21, 1801, at the age of sixty-nine years, four months and twenty-one days, and his last resting-place is in the graveyard of Zion's Church, in Perry township, the spot marked by a heavy marble slab. Johann Heinrich and Anna Seidel had six sons, Michael, Henry, Daniel, John, Philip and Jacob, and three daughters, only two of whom, Mary and Margaret, are recorded by name. It is supposed the third daughter died in infancy. From the second son, Henry, comes one large branch of the Seidel family. He was born Nov. 12, 1765, and died Aug. 7, 1847. He married Elizabeth Reber and from 1791, on, they made their home on the Seidel homestead in Windsor township, where they reared a family of fourteen children, ten of them growing to maturity.

(II) John Seidel, fourth son of Johann, was the grandfather of Henry G. Seidel. Born in Windsor township in 1777, John Seidel was a lifelong farmer there, and died in 1856. He became a very wealthy man and owned several large farms, one of the most valuable being on the State Road, near St. Paul's Church. He married Miss Catherine Stitzler, and had issue as follows: Godfrey; Daniel; John; Joseph, who settled in the West; Reuben; William; Catherine, Mrs. Nathan Krause; and Mrs. Fusselman.

(III) William Seidel was born on the Windsor homestead in 1818 and died in 1899, in his eighty-first year. Like his father, he was an extensive landowner, having one farm of 176 acres in Windsor township, one of 165 acres in Greenwich township, one of 75 in Bucks county, and one of 150 in Lehigh county. During most of his active life he lived in Windsor township, where he was a well known citizen, and one especially interested in advancing education, serving efficiently for some time as school director for his district. For a number of years before his death, however, Mr. Seidel resided in Virginville.

William Seidel was twice married. His first wife, whose maiden name was Christian Gerhart, bore him five sons, namely: Montillus, born in January, 1841; Henry G.; Francis; John; and William. By the second wife, Susanna Dreibelbis, there was a large family, as follows: Ellen m. S. Paul Smith; Charles m. Miss Sarah Dietrich; William m. Miss Barbara Kline; Susan m. William Moyer; Fannie m. (first) Benjamin Trexler, and (second) W. Adams Fraunfelder; Mahlon m. Miss Valeria Schaeffer; George m. Miss Luckenbill; and Mary m. Reuben Dietrich. The family were at one time members of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, but after removing to Virginville Mr. and Mrs. Seidel united with Dunkel's Church, in that town, and at their death their remains were interred in that graveyard.

(IV) Henry G. Seidel was born March 23, 1843, on the Seidel farm in Windsor township. He entered the public school the first year it was established in that district, and was instructed in the rudiments by Alfred Spears. At the age of sixteen he left school and learning the trade of a mason, worked at it for two years, and then returned to his father's farm to assist there. From 1870 till 1890 he was with his father-in-law, John Balthaser, working his farm with him on shares. At the end of that period Mr. Seidel bought the farm where he now lives, consisting of 126 acres of excellent land. He is a capable and successful farmer and as a citizen is held in high estimation. He, too, has worked for better educational advantages in the district, has been a school director and helped to secure the erection of Balthaser's school.

On Nov. 25, 1865, Henry G. Seidel and Emma Balthaser were united in marriage, the latter a daughter of John and Kate (Baer) Balthaser, and granddaughter of John Balthaser. To their union twelve children have been born, as follows: Fianna, Aug. 15, 1866, m. (first) Edward Wessner and (second) John Lutz; Darius A., Feb. 25, 1868, m. Miss Annie Troxel; Isadora, July 1, 1869, m. Edward S. Merkel; Elmira, Dec. 25, 1870, m. Wilson Heffner; Satira, Sept. 13, 1872, m. Charles Bond; Catherine, Jan.

18, 1874, m. (first) the late George Merkel, and (second) Cornelius Strasser; Andrew J., July 16, 1875, m. Valeria Heffner; Alice, Jan. 5, 1877, who died aged twenty-four; Lavoda, March 23, 1878, m. Mahlon Gruber; Irwin H., Nov. 23, 1879, m. Miss Alice Sunday; Milton W., July 29, 1881, unmarried; and Minnie, March 23, 1886, who died at the age of three years, ten months and five days. Mr. Seidel and his family attend Zion's Church, in which he served three years as an elder, and of which he is a loyal supporter. He is an influential man in the community and a worthy representative of the old family to which he belongs.

JONATHAN SWOPE, a highly esteemed citizen and substantial business man of Bethel township, Berks Co., Pa., who is engaged in a general store and agricultural implement business at Cross-kill Mills, was born in Tulpehocken township, Dec. 2, 1849, son of Daniel and Catherine (Peifer) Swope.

Christian Swope, the grandfather of Jonathan, was a native of Lebanon county, where he was married to a Miss Gloninger, who bore him these children: Philip, who lived and died in Dauphin county; Elizabeth, m. Michael Shirk, a merchant of Dauphin county; Henry, who followed farming for some time and afterwards contracting and building, and who died in Lebanon, aged about sixty years; Daniel; and Mary, m. Henry Shirk, a farmer of Grantville, Dauphin county, who after retirement removed to Harrisburg, and died, aged eighty-two years, his wife having preceded him to the grave at the age of seventy-two. Christian Swope was married (second) to a Miss Miller, who bore him two children, Kate, the elder, married Jared Lengel, a miller by trade, and constable for about twenty-five years. They resided in Millersburg, where he died about thirty years ago, while she is still living and resides with her daughter, Jennie, near Lebanon. John, the only son, who learned the coopering trade with his father, afterwards followed coach making, and still later building and contracting, and subsequently removed to Lebanon county, where he is engaged in the real estate business. Christian Swope was a cooper by trade, but later engaged in farming at Millersburg, where he died in 1877. He was a member of Salem Reformed Church, at Millersburg, where he was buried.

Daniel Swope, father of Jonathan, was born and reared in Bethel township, where he married Miss Catherine Peifer. Her father, born in Tulpehocken township, later was a resident of Bethel. He married there and settled on a farm which he conducted so successfully that for his last twenty years he was able to retire. He died at the age of sixty-seven and was a member of Salem Reformed Church. After marriage Daniel Swope removed to Tulpehocken township, where he engaged in farming for about fifteen years, and then returned to Bethel township for two years, after which he again located in Tulpehocken township. There his death occurred Sept. 14, 1866, at the age of forty-two years, eight months, twenty-nine days. He was an active member of the Reformed Church, holding various offices therein. In politics he was a Democrat, but he never aspired to public office. Mr. Swope's burial took place at the Salem Reformed Church, Millersburg. He was twice drafted for service during the Civil war, but was never accepted.

To Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Swope were born the following children: Jonathan; Davilla, who is residing on a large farm in Myerstown, is married and has three children living and one deceased; Amanda, who married Henry Bensing, resides on a farm in Bethel township, and has one child; Elmira, who married John W. Frantz, resides on a large farm near Myerstown, Lebanon county, and has six children; Kate, unmarried, resides with her brother Jonathan; Daniel, who married Mary Bomberger, by whom he has had six children, resided for five years in Sunnyside, Wash., and then returned to Bethel township; and Jacob, of Millersburg.

Jonathan Swope attended the public schools of Tulpehocken township, at the same time largely assisting his father on the farm. When he was sixteen his father died, and being the oldest of the family, the father's duties fell upon his young shoulders, and from that time until his twentieth year he was obliged to give up his studies. The mother with her children continued to conduct the farm, and here she passed away, April 10, 1898, aged seventy-four years. At the age of twenty years Jonathan Swope went to the Keystone State Normal School, Kutztown, attending for several spring terms and passing a creditable examination, after which he taught school for seventeen terms, at the same time conducting a farm. He then returned to the Normal for a term and was ready for the graduating class, but did not finish the course. Deciding to give more attention to agricultural pursuits, Mr. Swope rented two large farms, and later he purchased one of these, still, however, continuing in teaching. In 1884 he located in Cross-kill Mills, Bethel township, where in the spring of 1885 he was elected justice of the peace, an office which he is still holding. In 1888 he gave up teaching, and in 1890 he purchased the general store of the town, since that time having erected a new building for his large business. This is one of the largest and handsomest general stores in Berks county and is largely patronized. He has built up a fine trade, and in addition to the stock carried by a general store he has put in a complete line of agricultural implements, this being a great convenience to the people of his community.

On Dec. 4, 1875, Mr. Swope was married to Rebecca C. Behney, daughter of Augustus and Mary Anna (Loose) Behney, and to this union there have been born two children: Mary Luella, who died when about two years of age; and Augustus, who resides at home and is married to Miss Ida Deck, daughter of Hiram and Susanna (Dubbs) Deck. They have one child—Jonathan Hiram.

Mr. Swope and his family are members of the Reformed Church, Myerstown, Lebanon county, where he has held the offices of deacon and elder at various times. He is a Democrat in politics, but outside of the office of justice of the peace has never cared to secure public preferment. He has been connected with various business enterprises, and is at present president of the First National Bank of Fredericksburg, Lebanon county, in which he is also a director.

JACOB SWOPE, a leading citizen of Bethel township, Berks county, who is the popular proprietor of the well-known Bordner House, Millersburg, was born March 24, 1866, in Bethel township, son of Daniel and Catherine (Peifer) Swope.

Mr. Swope attended the public schools of his township until twenty years of age, and until twenty-one lived with his parents and worked on the farm near Millersburg. He then engaged in farming on his own account on the old homestead, where he continued for eight years, and then received the contract to carry the daily mails through between Bethel P. O. (Millersburg) and Myerstown, Lebanon county, for four years. At this time Mr. Swope engaged in the hotel business, in what is known as the Bordner House, Millersburg, which he has improved greatly and successfully conducted ever since. Meantime Mr. Swope has purchased two small farms, which he turned into one, and after bringing this to a high state of cultivation he sold the tract and purchased a piece of land close to the hotel, on which fine property he now resides. In politics he is and always has been a Democrat, is active in his party, and has been elected for seven years a member of the standing committee, also serving as State delegate in 1903, when Robert E. Pattison was nominated governor of Pennsylvania. He is a member of the P. O. S. of A., Jr. O. U. A. M., and the I. O. O. F. In religious belief he is Reformed.

In 1887 Mr. Swope was married to Maria L. Wilhelm, daughter of John and Elizabeth (Winter) Wilhelm, and to this union there have been born three children: Lloyd Ezra, Lee Jacob and Margaret Catherine, all deceased.

FRANK WAGNER, an estimable citizen and justice of the peace of Millersburg, Bethel township, Berks county, was born May 26, 1865, son of Jeremiah and Lydia (Binner) Wagner, natives of Lebanon and Berks counties, respectively.

Jeremiah Wagner was born in 1837, and when a young man came to Berks county with his parents, Jacob and Salome (Reigle) Wagner. Jacob Wagner was a farmer and tailor by occupation, and he spent his last years at these callings in Mt. Etna, Berks county, where he died when about sixty years of age, his wife having preceded him in death. They were members of the Reformed Church, and the parents of five children: Laurina, who died unmarried; Fianna, who became the wife of Fred Hasler, of Reading; Jeremiah; Solomon, who was a resident of the fated district at the time of the Johnstown flood, and has never been heard of since that event; and Michael, who was a resident of Mt. Etna. Jeremiah Wagner, father of Frank, spent most of his life in Bethel township, where he followed the tailor's trade, becoming known as a good and substantial citizen. His death occurred Jan. 10, 1906, his wife having passed away in 1877. Mr. Wagner was buried at the Salem Reformed Church, and his funeral was one of the largest ever held in this part of Berks county. He was known throughout Bethel township as a man of jovial and hearty disposition, ever ready to help a friend in need, and equally ready to forward any movement calculated to be of benefit to the community. He was a member of the I. O. O. F., and the P. O. S. of A. His children were: Jane, who married Milton Bashore, of Marion township; Morris, deceased, who married Mary Bashore; Frank; Wilson, who served six years in the regular army, was in the hospital corps in the Spanish-American war, and who died in the service while in camp at Montauk, N. Y.; and Mary, who married Levi Binner.

Frank Wagner was born and reared in Bethel township, where he received his education in the public schools. When a boy he worked on a farm, but at the age of twenty-one years he began teaching, a profession at which he continued for twenty years, eight terms of which have been spent at the Bethel Grammar school. He has also taught special schools as a preparatory course, and has been much interested in institute work. For the past five years Mr. Wagner has been conducting a job printing establishment at Millersburg. In political matters he is a stanch Democrat, and was elected to the office of justice of the peace in 1903 and deputy coroner in 1907. Fraternally he is connected with Lodge No. 820, Bethel, I. O. O. F., in which he is past noble grand; and with the P. O. S. of A., Camp No. 214. He and his wife are members of Salem Reformed Church, of which he is treasurer.

On May 19, 1887, Mr. Wagner was married to Miss Fianna Bashore, daughter of Jonathan and Sarah (Bixler) Bashore, of Bethel township, and five children have been born to this union, namely: Robert E., Sallie M., Frank, Paul, and Frances Grace.

ISAAC BARR, junior member of the firm of Klinger & Barr, proprietors of the Bethel Shirt Co., and the Bethel Creamery, north of Millersburg, Bethel township, is a representative citizen of Berks county, and has been prominent in business, public and fraternal circles. He was born Dec. 23, 1857, in Bethel township, son of Adam and Rebecca (Henninger) Barr.

John Barr, grandfather of Isaac, emigrated from Germany to America and settled in Northern Berks, where he followed the trade of charcoal burner for many years. He was a man of a very high order of intelligence, and possessed an education far beyond the average, having command of five languages. He and his wife had eight children. Jacob, a shoemaker by trade, died in Pinegrove township, Schuylkill county, aged ninety-three years. George, who owned a small tract of land which he cultivated in addition to working for his neighbors, died on his farm in Pinegrove township, aged seventy-five years. His wife was a Miss Schnoke, from the same neighborhood. Christian also lived and died in Schuylkill county. Adam was the father of Isaac. David died young. Rebecca married (first) Henry Metz, and (second) Harry Leis, and died childless, aged about seventy-five years. Maria died single, aged about eighty-two years. Kate married Mr. Kramlich, and died many years ago.

Adam Barr, the father of Isaac, was born on the old homestead in Bethel township, in 1813, and assisted in preparing wood and burning charcoal with his father for many years, continuing that occupation after his father's death. He married Miss Rebecca Henninger in 1846, and to this union there were born four children, as follows: John, who died single; Priscilla, who married Israel Zerbe, of near Host Church, Jefferson township, and has two children; Mary, who married John White, of Bernville, and died aged thirty-nine years, leaving two children, Frank and George; and Isaac.

Isaac Barr was reared in Bethel township, and received his education in the common schools, and although the school terms were very short and the distance to the school great in his time, he inherited his grandfather's love of study and obtained an excellent education. His father dying when Isaac was quite young he was placed in charge of his uncle Henninger, with whom he remained until about eighteen years of age, being engaged in farm work. At this time he learned the trade of blacksmith, an occupation which he followed for about ten years, and then evinced a strong tendency towards machinery. He followed threshing and the operation of engines until 1897, in which year he and Mr. Klinger formed a partnership under the firm name of Klinger & Barr, a connection which has continued to the present time, and which has been very successful. The firm are the proprietors of the Bethel Shirt Works and the Bethel Creamery, north of Millersburg. Mr. Barr is a very able business man, and has been a promoter of various enterprises, being a stockholder and director in the Blue Mountain Electric Company, and other large concerns.

In 1885 Mr. Barr was married to Miss Laura J. Price, and to them there have been born three children, as follows: Sadie, who died, aged twelve years; Minnie, who married Charles C. Clemence, and resides at home, having one child, Gerney; and Emma, who died at the age of four years.

Mr. Barr is an active Democrat in politics, and has been on a number of occasions honored by his party. He held the office of town clerk for seventeen years, has been delegate to numerous county conventions, was county committeeman for four years, and in 1906 was elected to the responsible position of County Jury Commissioner, which office he now fills with credit. He takes an active interest in secret and benevolent organizations, and is an active member of Lodge No. 820, I. O. O. F., in which he has passed all of the chairs, and in 1905 was representative of the lodge at Scranton. He has also been through all the chairs in Washington Camp No. 214, P. O. S. of A., of which he is a member. He is also connected with the Ridgely Protective Association, of Massachusetts. Mr. Barr and his wife have always been active in church and charitable work, he being connected with the "Old Lutheran Church," of Rehrersburg, Pa., while she is a member and regular attendant of the Salem Reformed Church at Bethel (Millersburg). Both have a wide social acquaintance, and are well known and highly esteemed in this community.

JACOB B. LIVINGOOD, who is the well known proprietor of Kline's Mill, formerly known as Shubert's, is one of the substantial business men of Bethel township. His birth occurred July 7, 1847, at Ebling's Mill, Bethel township, and he was a son of John and Catherine (Betdorf) Livingood.

Peter Livingood, the great-grandfather of Jacob B., served seven years in the Revolutionary war, after which great struggle he assisted in arresting the Tories and transporting them to Canada. He married a Miss Sands, of Montgomery county, and to them were born six children. (1) Jacob was the grandfather of Jacob B. (2) Samuel, who resided near Livingood's Mill, in Tulpehocken township, was a farmer all his life, and died aged about sixty-seven years. (3) Thomas, also a resident of Tulpehocken township, near the old mill, later removed to Iowa, where he died when seventy-five years of age. (4) Eli, who resided in Myerstown, Lebanon county, served through the Mexican war, under Gen. Scott, gained high honors and was mustered out as captain of artillery. He was reputed to have been very daring and positively without fear, and when the Pottsville Company arrived at his command he was so elated that in the height of battle he mounted a cannon and waving his cap gave three cheers. He died in his native town at the advanced age of eighty-three years. (5) A daughter married John Artz, a farmer of Tulpehocken township, and died when seventy-eight years old. (6) Mrs. Baum resided in Lancaster county and died there at an advanced age.

Jacob Livingood, grandfather of Jacob B., was a miller and resided at the old homestead in Tulpehocken township until his death, March 30, 1853, at the age of fifty-nine years, eleven months, twenty-two days. He was married to Catherine Miller, and she bore him twelve children: (1) John was the father of Jacob B. (2) Elizabeth married Edward Walborn, who followed various occupations until the outbreak of the Civil war, when he received a clerkship from the capitol at Washington. She died in Myerstown, when about sixty-four years of age. (3) George, who was married and lived at what is known as Ebling's Mill, enlisted in the Union army when the war broke out, and was killed at the battle of Gettysburg, leaving five children. (4) Thomas and (5) Jacob died young. (6) Sarah, who married Benjamin K. Fisher, resided in Western Pennsylvania, but died in Philadelphia aged about sixty years, leaving three children. (7) Catherine died young. (8) Lydia, unmarried, lives at Myerstown, Lebanon county, with a sister. (9) Rebecca, who is also unmarried. (10) Lucy, who married Cyrus Koller, resided at Myerstown. (11) Mary married Jackson Moyer and resides in Schuylkill county, having three children. (12) Isaac, who resided in Schuylkill Haven, followed various occupations, being at one time telegraph operator at Auburn, Schuylkill county, and died aged sixty-one years, leaving two children.

John Livingood, father of Jacob B., was born Jan. 13, 1820, at the old homestead in Tulpehocken township, and learned the trade of miller, which he followed until his retirement. He married Miss Catherine Betdorf, and to them were born the following children: John, a miller of near Stouchsburg; Cyrus, formerly a miller and later an engineer, of Sinking Spring; Jacob B.; Thomas, a miller and steam sawmiller, as well as general lumberman of Hamburg, Berks county; Malinda, who married Levi Frantz and died aged about forty years; Levi, who is married and resides at Lebanon, Lebanon county; Lovina, who married George Stricker, of Reading; and Eli, who is unmarried and also makes his home in Reading.

Jacob B. Livingood, the well-known mill proprietor, secured his literary training in the public schools, although his educational advantages were somewhat limited owing to the fact that he was expected to assist his father in the mill. He learned the trade with his father, with whom he remained until some time after his marriage, when he went into business for himself, now being the owner and operator of what was formerly known as Shubert's, now Kline's, Mill.

When not quite of age, Mr. Livingood was married (first) to Miss Sarah Bickel, daughter of Jonathan Bickel, and to this union one child was born, who died when quite young. Mr. Livingood was married (second) to Miss Rebecca Schreiver, who bore him one son, Jacob, now living in Heidlersberg, Adams county. He was married (third) to Miss Ella Holtzman, of near Millersburg. Mr. Livingood is a Republican in politics, but has never aspired to office. He belongs to the Knights of the Mystic Chain, the Sons of America, and the I. O. O. F., in the latter of which he has been very active, filling all of the chairs.

ADAM K. BROWN, one of the prosperous agriculturists of Berks county, Pa., who is also engaged in horse dealing, owns and operates the old Brown homestead farm in Bethel township. Mr. Brown was born Jan. 14, 1852, near Rehrersburg, Tulpehocken township, son of Jacob and Kate (Keeny) Brown.

Philip Brown, the great-grandfather of Adam K., resided at Stouchsburg, where he conducted a farm, and where he died at an advanced age, probably about eighty years. His son, also named Philip, was born near Stouchsburg, but early in life located in Bethel township, where he conducted the old homestead for many years. He married a daughter of Michael Beshore, and to them were born eight children: Kate, m. John Smith; Elizabeth, m. Simon Belleman; Sarah, m. Jacob Bubb; Daniel; David; Philip; Jacob and John, all of these children dying at an advanced age, except Mrs. Belleman, who still survives.

Jacob Brown, father of Adam K., was born on the old homestead near Meckville, and was a farmer and horse dealer all of his life. He married Miss Kate Keeny, and to them were born children as follows: Adam K.; John H., unmarried who resides in Lancaster county; Belle, who married William Sheidy, has six children and lives at Wyomissing; Priscilla, who was married to the late Jacob R. Kline, and had four children; Jacob M., who is married, resides on his farm in Salina, Kans., and has four children.

When he was three months old, Adam K. Brown's parents removed to Bethel township, and located on the present farm, where young Brown was reared, his education being obtained in the public schools. He assisted his father in the farm work, and also followed horse dealing until twenty-one years of age, at which time he embarked in agricultural pursuits on his own account, but later engaged also in the cattle business, in which he has continued to the present.

On Sept. 24, 1872, Mr. Brown was married to Leah Beshore, daughter of Michael Beshore, and to this union there were born children as follows: Clara, m. Stephen Porter, resides near Womelsdorf, and has three boys; Jonathan is married and lives near Wintersville, Berks county; Lillie, m. Jacob Brown, son of John Brown, resides in Bethel township and has four children; Harvey, m. to the daughter of Isaac Fidler, lives near Meckville; Sallie m. George Frantz, and has a family of three children; Belle, twin of Sallie, m. Joseph Frantz and resides at Freystown, having three children; Morris died young; and Calvin, m. to Benjamin Beshore's daughter, resides near Meckville and has four children. Adam K. Brown's second wife was also a Leah Beshore, daughter of Jonathan Beshore, who bore him one child, Frank Adam, who is single and resides at home.

JEREMIAH W. STETZLER. This enterprising young farmer of Perry township, Berks county, who is operating the original Stetzler homestead, was born on this farm May 12, 1876, son of Jacob and Esther (Schappell) Stetzler.

Johan Peter Stetzler, the progenitor of this numerous family of Berks county, was a native of Europe, born March 5, 1724. He was married in 1761 to Maria Eva Freyin, widow of Michael Kelchner, and she bore him five sons: Peter, born in 1764, who was killed in 1841 by falling from a barn; Johan Martin, great-grandfather of Jeremiah W.; and three whose names are unknown. Johan Peter Stetzler died July 18, 1795, in his seventy-second year.

Johan Martin Stetzler, who was born March 18, 1770, lived on the old homestead, which has been in the possession of the family since 1768. In 1830 he built the stone house on the farm, which is still standing, in a very good state of preservation. His death occurred April 5, 1849. He was twice married, his first wife being Maria Seidel, with whom he was united March 22, 1797. She was born Feb. 13, 1774, and died Dec. 7, 1820, and was the mother of five sons and two daughters among whom were: Jacob, Daniel and Polly, the latter of whom married Joseph Kline. Johan Martin Stetzler was merried (second) April 14, 1822, to Maria Susannah Baer, widow of Jacob Hoffman. She died Dec. 12, 1852, aged seventy-three years, seven months, seven days.

Daniel Stetzler, grandfather of Jeremiah W, was born March 21, 1802, and died Aug. 14, 1877. He was born and reared on the old homestead, which he acquired in later years by purchase, and in 1861 built the brick house still standing on the property now owned by his grandson. He was a prominent and well-to-do citizen, influential in his section, and in politics was a Democrat, serving as school director in Perry township. He and his family were connected with the Zion church, in the Lutheran denomination, in Perry township, and he was prominent in church and Sunday school matters, serving as superintendent. May 3, 1833, Daniel Stetzler was united in marriage with Catherine Hoffman, born Nov. 1, 1809, who died July 16, 1847. They had seven children: Jacob; Susanna, who died young; Martin, Catherine, Elizabeth, Polly and Daniel.

Jacob Stetzler, of the foregoing family, was born and reared on the Stetzler homestead, where he spent the major part of his life in farming. He attended the public schools of his district and was later sent to Union county to school to learn English. He died March 18, 1904, in his sixty-ninth year, having been born Nov. 13, 1835. Mr. Stetzler was married to Esther Schappell, daughter of Jeremiah and Esther (Miller) Schappell. Their marriage occurred May 6, 1854, and their married life continued until within forty-eight days of fifty years, when their Golden Wedding was to have been celebrated. To Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Stetzler were born the following children: Andora, m. Martin R. Mengel; Daniel F., who died in his ninth year; Catherine m. Jeremiah De Turk, warden at the Berks county prison; Alfred L., of Shoemakersville, Pa.; Jacob M., who died in 1905; Mary, m. Charles Muntz; Emma, m. Samuel Schwoyer; John W., who died aged seven years; Adeline, m. Hiram Kauffman; Samuel, who died aged twenty-five years; and Jeremiah W.

Jeremiah W. Stetzler obtained a limited education in the public schools of his native district, since leaving which he has been engaged in agricultural pursuits on the old Stetzler homestead. He has been energetic and enterprising and is considered one of the substantial young farmers of Perry township. June 17, 1899, he was united in marriage with Cora Luckenbill, daughter of Cyrus and Susan (De Turk) Luckenbill, prosperous farming people of Perry township. To this union have been born two sons, Luther D. and Guy D.

CYRUS LUCKENBILL, one of the good, practical farmers of Berks county, at present carrying on operations in Perry township, was born Dec. 24, 1847, in this township, not far from the village of Virginville, son of Thomas Luckenbill.

The progenitor of the family was Johan Tost Luckenbill, who came from Germany on the ship Thistle, landing at Philadelphia, Sept. 20, 1730. It is believed that he and his wife were buried at Bowers Church in the aforesaid township, and it is traditional that he was married when he came to America, that his wife was a Swiss, and that he came from that part of Germany that bounds Switzerland. He had two sons, Christian and Abraham, the latter of whom is said to have settled in Schuylkill county. In 1759 he was a taxpayer in Rockland township, and he later moved across the line into Maxatawny township.

Christian Luckenbill, grandfather of Cyrus, was born in 1767, and died about 1852. He was married to Catherine Kline, of Maxatawny township, and they had these children: Thomas; David, who settled in Jefferson county, Pa.; Benjamin, who settled in Iowa; Elizabeth, m. Jacob Rothermel; and a daughter, m. Mr. Heckman.

Thomas Luckenbill was born in Perry township in 1800, and died there in 1863. He was a farmer and owner of the Luckenbill homestead, and was a school director and useful citizen. His wife was Annie Wink, daughter of John Wink, of Maxatawny township, and ten children were born to this union: Augustus; Edwin; Lucy, who died in infancy; James; Thomas; Sarah; Jacob; Simon; Alfred and Cyrus.

Cyrus Luckenbill was educated in the common schools of his native township, which he attended until twenty-one years of age, when he located on his present farm, on which he has been engaged to the present time. It consists of 195 acres of well cultivated land, well supplied with substantial and modern buildings, and the latest, most up-to-date machinery. His residence is one of the fine ones of the section, and around it during the summer months great masses of roses grow, making it one of the beautiful sights of the locality. Mr. Luckenbill is also the fortunate possessor of a fine orchard. He is a progressive, enterprising agriculturist, and well deserves the success which has attended his efforts. Mr. Luckenbill is greatly interested in educational matters, and has been a school director for a number of years. He and his wife attend the Zion's Lutheran Church, of which he has been a trustee for three years.

Mr. Luckenbill was married May 15, 1880, to Susan De Turk, daughter of John and Susan (Mengel) De Turk, and to this union thirteen children have been born: Cora, m. Jeremiah Stetzler; John T.; Nicholas P.; Even C., m. Clara Muntz; Annie B.; Howard C.; Lucy F.; Mary L.; Robert G.; Jerry G.; Minnie E., who died in infancy; Nevin J.; and Lovie May, who died when less than two years of age.

CHARLES B. REPPERT, one of the substantial and representative citizens of Shoemakersville, Berks Co., Pa., who owns and operates a fine 175-acre tract of land, was born Oct. 10, 1868, in Hamburg, son of Henry and Priscilla (Old) Reppert.

Daniel Reppert, the immigrant ancestor of the family in America, came to the New World from Germany, landing in America Sept. 28, 1753, when twenty-four years of age. He was married to a lady from the Fatherland who crossed the ocean on the same vessel as he, and among their children was Joseph, who lived in Windsor township about one mile below Lenhartsville. Joseph Reppert drove a mine team and worked on the farm all of his life, dying in 1876 in his ninety-seventh year. He was the father of these children: Joseph, who lived in Windsor for many years but removed to Hamburg a short time prior to his death in 1903, at the age of 102 years; Henry; Levi; Peter; Charles; Adam; Sally Ann, and Catherine.

Henry Reppert, father of Charles B., was born Dec. 26, 1845, in Greenwich township, and was there reared, later living at Windsor. At the age of sixteen years he began driving a six-mule mining team for the Windsor furnace. He was married to Priscilla Old, daughter of Charles and Polly (Heckman) Old of Windsor, and they had children as follows: Annie, deceased; Milton O.; Charles B.; Lillie; Robert; Edwin E.; Martha; Mamie; Clara, deceased; Nora, who died in infancy; Sadie, and Mabel. Mr. Reppert died in his fifty-sixth year, while his widow, who was born in 1850, survives him and resides in Reading.

When two years of age Charles B. Reppert was taken by his parents to Windsor township and some time later to Lenhartsville. Mr. Reppert obtained his education in the local schools which he attended until sixteen years of age, and from youth worked on the farm. He hired out with Henry Fraunfelder of Windsor township for many years and then purchased the Baer homestead in Perry township, above Shoemakersville, which consists of 175 acres of excellent land, in the best of condition. Mr. Reppert has a fine dairy of sixteen Holstein and Durham cows, and operates a daily milk route to Shoemakersville, where he disposes of the product. Mr. Reppert is a self-made man, having forced his way to the front rank of the citizens of his district. He is public-spirited and much interested in educational matters, now serving the township as school director. He has been auditor and is a man of influence in Perry township.

On Dec. 25, 1889, Mr. Reppert married Priscilla Engel, daughter of Henry and Susanna (Baer) Engel, and to this union there were born: Henry O.; Annie, who died in youth; Lizzie F.; Charles B., who died in 1899, and Mamie M.

JACOB S. BOYER, a highly esteemed resident of Berks county, who is engaged as a sand merchant and agriculturist at the Five Locks, south of Hamburg, Perry township, was born June 5, 1862, in Windsor township, son of George B. and Mary Ann (Bausher) Boyer.

John Jacob Boyer, great-grandfather of Jacob S., was a farmer and lived in Windsor township for some years. He had five children, as follows: John R., who died at the age of sixty, a bachelor, and who owned, tradition says, considerable land in Tennessee, upon which was found coal after his death; Jacob; Samuel; Matilda m. Samuel Zimmerman; and Sarah, who is unmarried and lives near Klinesville, Pa. Jacob Boyer, of this family, was a farmer all of his life and lived in Windsor township, although several years in early life were spent in Richmond township. He married Hannah Balthaser, daughter of John and Molly (Greth) Balthaser, and they had these children: Daniel; Jacob; George B.; Susanna m. Daniel Sands, and a daughter, who married Daniel Kutz.

George B. Boyer was born Feb. 4, 1828, and died Sept. 14, 1890. He was a farmer and stone-mason by occupation, also conducting a general store business at the Five Locks, when boating was still being carried on. He and his family were connected with Zion's Union Church. He served the township in which he lived as school director for three years, and was a Democrat in his politics. Mr. Boyer was married in 1852 to Mary Ann Bausher, born Nov. 22, 1834, daughter of Daniel and Hannah (Adam) Bausher. Mrs. Boyer is now living in Hamburg. These children were born to the union: Eleanora, who was married to Bradford Sunday, and died in 1891, aged thirty-seven years; Washington F., of Hamburg, Pa.; Jacob S.; and Andrew W., a clerk of Hamburg, Pa.

Jacob S. Boyer obtained his early educational training at home, in the local schools of Perry township and the Hamburg public schools. From boyhood Mr. Boyer has been active and industrious, his early years being spent as a clerk in the store of his father. He later purchased the farm on which he now resides, on which is an inexhaustible amount of high-grade moulding sand, which he ships to points all over Pennsylvania, averaging about 170 car loads per annum. Politically Mr. Boyer votes the Democratic ticket. He and his family are active members of Zion's Lutheran Church of Perry township.

On June 8, 1889, Mr. Boyer was married to Amanda L. Kershner, daughter of Joel and Esther (Lesher) Kershner, and granddaughter of John and Catherine (Smith) Kershner. One daughter has been born to Mr. and Mrs. Boyer, Essie A. The Boyer family is one which has always stood high in the esteem of the community.

SAMUEL M. REBER, one of the good, practical farmers and stock dealers of Perry township, Berks county, was born on the old Reber homestead in this township, March 3, 1845, son of Jacob H. and Elizabeth (Umbenhaur) Reber.

Conrad Reber, great-grandfather of Samuel M., was a son of Leonard Reber, who emigrated from Germany prior to 1756. He was a taxable in Windsor township in 1759, being a large land-owner, paying fifteen pounds tax. He was one of the founders of Zion's Union Church of Perry township. Conrad Reber had seven children: George, John, Catherine, Susannah, Nancy, Sarah and Maria, and died while several were still under age. John Reber of this family was also a farmer, and owned the original homestead, which then consisted of more than 200 acres of land. He was a frugal man and was the builder of some of the structures still standing on the farm. He married a Miss Baer and they became the parents of these children: Jacob H., father of Samuel M.; John; Kate, m. Henry Becker; Sally, m. Samuel Lesher; and Mrs. Joseph Smith.

Jacob H. Reber was born in 1804 and died in 1889, on the old homestead, where he had spent all of his life. He and his family were Lutherans, belonging to Zion's Church where he was buried. Mr. Reber married Elizabeth Umbenhaur, daughter of Jonas, and to this union there were born children as follows: Jonas, who died in 1900, aged seventy-one years; Lovina, who died in 1895, m. Daniel Yeager; Mary m. David Rauch; John, who died in youth; Susannah, m. Joel Hoffman; Samuel M.; Beckie, m. Henry Hoffman; and Catherine, m. Albert Schappell.

In his youth Samuel M. Reber attended a pay school for several months during the year and after the establishment of the public school system attended these schools for several terms, his teacher being John Stahr, now deceased. He was reared on the farm on which he now lives, and which he owns, consisting of 145 acres of fine farming land. Mr. Reber owns also five good horses and eleven head of cattle. He is a good, honest, industrious citizen, liberal in his contributions towards church and charitable movements. He and his family are members of the Lutheran denomination, and attend Zion's Union Church of this township, where he was a deacon for several years. Mr. Reber supports the Democratic party, but has never had political aspirations.

Mr. Reber was married in 1877 to Elizabeth Keim, daughter of Elias and Amanda (Hartman) Keim, and granddaughter of John Keim. Six children were born to this union, namely: Annie Susannah, Jacob S., Thomas S. and Robert J., all of whom died in infancy; Lizzie A., born Nov. 27, 1887; and Alvin A., born Jan. 29, 1890. Both live at home and assist their parents in the work on the farm.

ALUE F. UNGER, a highly esteemed resident of Shoemakersville, Berks county, Pa., who is now living retired from active business, was born Nov. 15, 1852, in Perry township, son of Samuel and Mary (Loy) Unger.

Christian Unger, the great-great-grandfather of Alue, came to this country on the ship Edinburgh, and landed at Philadelphia, Sept. 19, 1752. In 1756 he was a taxable resident of Greenwich township, Berks county. He had these children: Michael, who was a taxable in Greenwich township in 1759; John, who settled in the vicinity of Shamokin, Pa.; Herman; a son, whose name is unknown and who settled in Maryland; Susanna, m. John Schappell; Elizabeth, m. George Heffley; and Mrs. Christian Reeser.

Herman Unger was born in Greenwich township, and married Elizabeth Keim, having these children: Daniel, who settled in Windsor township and had an only son, Isaac; Samuel, who also settled in Windsor township; Jacob, who settled in Wabash county, Ind.; Abraham, who settled in Sandusky county, O.; Christina, m. John Hollenbach; and Mrs. Coleman.

Samuel Unger, grandfather of Alue F., was born in Windsor township, in October, 1793, and his death occurred July 6, 1843. He was a prominent citizen of his day, owning about 500 acres of land in the vicinity of Shoemakersville, where he spent his entire life. Samuel Unger was married Dec. 25, 1819, to Elizabeth Snyder, daughter of Philip and Elizabeth Snyder, and they had these children: Anna, born Nov. 24, 1820; John, Aug. 2, 1822, died in infancy; Samuel; Daniel, May 27, 1826; Elizabeth, Dec. 24, 1828; Catherine, Sept. 29, 1831, m. Abraham Witman, and died Sept. 27, 1902; Reuben, April 3, 1834; and Maria, Dec. 29, 1837.

Samuel Unger, father of Alue F., was born July 9, 1824, in Windsor township on the old homestead, and was a well-to-do and prominent citizen, owning large tracts of valuable land, a great portion of which has been cut into building lots in Shoemakersville. He built the Mansion House and store in 1873, which he conducted for a number of years, and also owned the hotel which in later years was replaced by the Metropolitan House.

He was for sixteen years justice-of-the-peace, dying in office, was a stanch Democrat, and served as school director for several years. Mr. Unger was a deacon, elder and trustee of the Lutheran Church, and in 1856 assisted in building the Shoemakersville Church. In 1851 he was married to Mary Loy, daughter of Michael Loy, and to this union there were born these children: Alue F.; George W., who died Oct. 6, 1882, aged twenty-eight years; Susannah, Jeremiah, Adam, Samuel and Mary, who all died in infancy; Emma, twin sister of Mary, m. John L. Marburger, who lives in Schuylkill county; and William, who is single and makes his home in Philadelphia.

Alue F. Unger obtained a good education in the schools of his district, and this was later supplemented by a course in Eastman's Business College at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., from which he graduated April 15, 1872. He then became a clerk in his father's store in his native town, remaining until his father's death, after which event he took charge of the hotel, conducting it until 1886. At this time he removed to Reading and opened the Reading Horse Exchange, now known as Schitler's Horse Exchange, which he conducted four years, then returning to Shoemakersville. He continued in this same line, buying and selling, and shipping to Philadelphia, until a few years ago, when he retired from active business.

Mr. Unger is a Democrat in his political views. His religious connections are with the Lutheran Church. In the year 1879 he was married to Annie L. Burkhart, daughter of William F. and Caroline (Stump) Burkhart, and to this union were born children as follows: Frank F., Oct. 21, 1879, unmarried, as is Samuel E., born Dec. 4, 1880; George H., Oct. 28, 1882, m. Molly M. Suess, and has one son, Harry C.; Jennie L., Nov. 9, 1885, living at home, who is a graduate of Shoemakersville High School and of the Schuylkill Valley Seminary, and is highly accomplished; and Earl, July 22, 1889.

SHAPPELL—SCHAPPELL—SCHAPPEL. In Perry township, which until 1853 was a part of Windsor township, Berks county, is a prominent family bearing the name of Schappelle, Choppelle, Schobbel, Shobel, but now more commonly found spelled Shappell, Schappell and Schappel. The original home of the family was in France, but through religious persecution its members sought refuge in Germany, making their home at Wittenberg. Among the one hundred and eight passengers aboard the good ship "Patience," which landed at port Philadelphia, Sept. 17, 1753, was Jeremie Chappelle and one Jean Pierre Chappelle. The kinship of these two emigrants is unknown, but it is not doubted that they were relatives. What became of Jean Pierre after landing in the New World is not known. Jeremias Shappelle (as it appears on the tombstone) (or Schobel) and Eberhart Schoppel, brothers, were residents in Windsor township, Berks county, Pa., in 1754 [See Rupp's History].

(I) According to the tombstone inscription at Zion's Church, in Perry (formerly Windsor) township, Jeremias Schappelle was born in 1715, and he died Oct. 15, 1804. His wife Catharine, born 1724, passed away June 8, 1801. The will of Jeremiah Shappel (sic) is on record in Berks county court-house in Will Book A, page 505. It was made Feb. 11, 1803, and probated Jan. 7, 1805. At the time the will was made he was a resident of Windsor township. The following children are mentioned in the will: Jacob (who was made executor of his father's estate), Matthias, Jeremiah, Magdalena and Catharine. In the cemetery at Zion's Church is a tombstone bearing the following inscription: "Elizabeth Schappelle, wife of Jeremias, formerly of Deutschland, born Feb. 16, 1771, died July 9, 1817, aged forty-six years, five months, twenty-three days." This probably refers to the wife of Jeremias or Jeremiah, son of (I) Jeremias.

No records of the descendants of Eberhart Schoppel are in evidence at Zion's Union Church. He may have left Windsor township after 1774, in which year he hewed his name on a stone now in the southeastern wall of the old graveyard. Tradition says that the stones upon which these names were carved (one bears the name of Jeremias) were once a part of the walls of the first church. The fourth church is now (1908) being built.

(II) Jacob Schappell, son of Jeremias, was better known as "Jockey," a nickname evidently taken from the German pronunciation of his name. He was born in Wittenberg, Germany, Feb. 2, 1744, and he died Sept. 11, 1826. As stated above he was the executor of his father's will in 1805. His wife Susanna was born Feb. 2, 1751, and she died July 24, 1828. They are both buried at Zion's Church. Jeremias, Eberhart and Jockey Schappell were founders of the original Zion's Church. Tradition says Jacob and Susanna had a large family, some of their children, however, dying in infancy and childhood. Of those of whom there is record may be mentioned: Peter, born April 19, 1770; Col. Jeremiah, born March 20, 1774; Daniel, who was a taxable resident in Manheim township, Schuylkill county, in 1790, where he reared a family and where his descendants still live; and Hannah, m. to Georg Hoffman, a farmer of Perry township.

There is a valley in Perry township known to the residents there as Schappell's Dale, because of the many Schappells living there.

(III) Peter Schappell, son of Jacob and Susanna, born April 19, 1770, died Nov. 18, 1851. He was a farmer in Windsor township, and he and his family all belonged to Zion's Church, and are buried in the cemetery there. He was twice married. His first wife was Elizabeth Lenhart (1768-1790), and his second Annie Kosch (1778-1841). His children were: Jacob, who located in Schuylkill county; Benjamin, who died young; Daniel, who settled in Schuylkill county; Samuel, who settled in Windsor township; John, who settled in Richmond township, Berks county; Mary, m. to William Miller; Kate, m. to Martin Eisenhaur; Elizabeth, m. to Jacob Boyer; a daughter m. to Anthony Adam; and Solomon.

(III) Lieut. Col. Jeremiah Schappell, son of Jacob and Susanna, born March 20, 1774, died Sept. 16, 1845. He was a famous officer in the war of 1812, and brigade inspector for many years. His home was always in Windsor township. He was a leading man of his time, and a military officer of fine physique, rare tact and ability. He was dearly beloved, and because of his happy disposition had hosts of friends throughout Pennsylvania. He was Lieutenant-Colonel of the 1st Regiment, 2nd Brigade, and was in active service from September, 1814, to Nov. 1, 1814, in and around Baltimore, Md. He distinguished himself at Fort Henry. It was he who remarked that "when the British smelled the powder of the Berks county militia men they thought it best to return upon their waiting ships and sail away." He was buried with full military honors, the funeral being attended by a large throng that came to do him honor, and the procession to the cemetery was over a mile in length. The people in the vicinity of his home supplied food for the many visiting friends and soldiers, and it was said that "the entire community was eaten up." From 1818 until the time of his death he was brigade inspector, a period of more than a quarter of a century.

(IV) Jeremiah Schappell, son of Lieut. Col. Jeremiah, was born Dec. 20, 1801, and died Dec. 31, 1842, aged forty-one years. He owned about three hundred acres of good, fertile land in Schappell's Dale, and engaged in cattle dealing and farming. He made frequent trips to Philadelphia with produce, returning with his wagon laden with merchandise for his and other families of his district, these trips usually consuming the greater part of a week's time, from Monday morning to Friday or Saturday. He married Esther Miller, born March 5, 1805, daughter of Isaac Miller. She died May 31, 1886. To this union were born: Samuel, born Sept. 20, 1825, was a farmer in Perry township, and died April 11, 1895; Hannah m. Jacob Kerschner; Mary m. Jacob Engel; Esther (Hettie) m. Jacob Stetzler; Jacob M. was born April 12, 1832; and Jeremiah M. resides in Perry township.

(V) Samuel Schappell, son of Jeremiah and Esther, born Sept. 20, 1825, in Windsor township, died April 11, 1895. He was a lifelong farmer in Schappell's Dale, where he owned two properties, one a farm of 113 acres on which he made his home, and the other a tract of one hundred acres. He was a Democrat in politics, and served as a school director, being a good and useful citizen in his community. He was a Reformed member of Zion's Church. He married Catherine Adam, born Oct. 27, 1825, who died April 19, 1900, daughter of Jacob and Anna Maria (Gardner) Adam. Twelve children were born to this marriage, as follows: Allen settled in Iowa; Albert, Isaac and Jacob became farmers in Perry township; Mary married Frank Hoffman; Adam A.; Priscilla married Frank Bauer; Catherine married Jacob D. Hoffman; Ettie died aged fifteen years; Annie died in her fifth year; Samuel is carrying on agricultural operations in Perry township; Amelia married Jacob Leiby.

(VI) Adam A. Shappell, son of Samuel and Catherine (Adam), for over twenty years a prosperous farmer in Windsor township, where he owns 109 acres of land, was born April 2, 1856, in Perry township. He obtained a limited education in the pay schools of his day, attending in the stone building still standing at Zion's Church, which old residents believe must have been erected prior to the Revolution. Later he went to the public school. In 1882 he began operations on the farm now owned by Joseph L. Smith, but was a tenant for one year only, when he purchased the William Engel farm, which he traded one year later for the one on which he now resides. This farm is in a fine state of cultivation, and is equipped with good buildings and modern machinery. Mr. Shappell has a fine herd of live stock, and his dairy does an extensive business, shipping milk daily to Shenandoah, Schuylkill county, where he receives four and one-half cents per quart. Among his modern machinery may be mentioned a self-binder, separator, gasoline engine and feed mill. His water supply is excellent, and taking everything into consideration his farm is one of the best in the township. In politics he is a Democrat, but although he takes a great interest in the success of his party, he has never aspired to public office. He and his family are Reformed members of Zion's Church.

Mr. Shappell has been twice married, his first wife being Isabella Engel, whom he married in 1877. She was a daughter of Henry and Susanna (Bär) Engel, and became the mother of four sons and one daughter, namely: Albert L., born Jan. 26, 1878, m. Annie Madeira; Andrew D., born Dec. 12, 1880, m. Sarah Riegel; Ida S., born Feb. 17, 1883, m. Moses Swoyer; Adam W., born April 22, 1884, is unmarried; Samuel H., born Aug. 15, 1886, died Oct. 25, 1886. Mrs. Isabella Shappell died in 1886. On Oct. 28, 1887, Mr. Shappell m. (second) in Windsor township Isabella Riegel, daughter of John and Rebecca (Fox) Riegel, of Upper Bern township. To this union were born two children: John, born Feb. 23, 1889, died four days before his first birthday, being buried on the anniversary of his birth; and Rosabella, born Nov. 13, 1891, passed away in her fourth month.

(V) Jacob M. Schappell, son of Jeremiah and Esther (Miller), born April 12, 1832, was engaged in agricultural pursuits all his life until 1896, when he retired from active work. He was the owner of 160 acres of land, which in later years he divided among his children. He is well known in his district, where he served as school director and church official for many years. He married Sophia Schmidt, daughter of Michael and ——— (Reber) Schmidt, and to this union were born children as follows: Sassaman S.; Franklin S.; Jeremiah S., a farmer of Perry township; Louisa, m. to Simon L. Adam; and J. Maurice, a merchant at Windsor Castle, Pennsylvania.

(VI) Sassaman S. Shappell, son of Jacob M. and Sophia (Schmidt), was born in Perry township, in Schappell's Dale, April 25, 1855. He is a great-grandson of Lieut.-Col. Jeremiah Schappell. He received a good education in the public schools of his native locality, which he attended until the age of nineteen years, since which time he has been engaged in farming in Perry township. He also owns a sawmill, and makes trips among the farmers, sawing their timber for buildings and other purpóses, being one of the first men in the county to own a portable gasoline engine which generates the power to run the saw, as well as the grain separator and other machinery. For the last twenty-two years he has also been running a threshing machine outfit among the farmers. Mr. Shappell is one of the best-known men in the township, and has many friends, drawn to him by his many sterling characteristics. He is a great friend to the cause of education, and for six years served as a member of the school board. He is greatly interested in the politics of his county, and has always worked in the interests of the Democratic party, being candidate for the office of county commissioner, a position for which he made a strong "run" in the spring of 1908. For a number of years he was an official member of Zion's Union Church of his township.

Mr. Shappell has been twice married, his first wife being Candace Reeser, daughter of Peter and Hettie (Stetzler) Reeser, and children as follows were born of this union: Laura Miltmeary; J. Peter, now a dairy farmer; Hettie S., who died in her twentieth year; William S., now a machinist; and Benjamin F., a graduate of Dickinson College, now a student at the University of Pennsylvania. Mrs. Shappell died Oct. 6, 1885, in her thirty-third year. Mr. Shappell married (second) Louisa Adam, daughter of John and Catherine (Weidenhammer) Adam. She had a son, William Lawson Machmer, a most exemplary young man, who was reared by Mr. Shappell. He received his early education in the schools of Perry township and Keystone State Normal School, graduating in the class of 1901. After his graduation he taught school for several years in Perry township, and then reentered the Normal, taking a post-graduate course. He was graduated from Franklin and Marshall College, Lancaster, in 1907, with first honors, and is at present a member of the faculty; he expects to take a theological course. To Mr. Shappell's second marriage were born: Harvey A., now a farmer; James I., who died in childhood; and George H., Katie B., Clarence E. and Newell A., at home.

(VI) Franklin S. Schappell, son of Jacob M. and Sophia, whose valuable farm is located in Shappell's Dale, Perry township, was born July 1, 1858. He received his education in the schools of his native township, and there he has always made his home. He has engaged in farming, and his fine home and farm testify to his good management and to his industry. The ground is fertile and well cultivated, running water is in abundance, and all modern machinery is used. Mr. Schappell was married, Nov. 20, 1886, to Emma Isadora Rothermel, daughter of Jacob and Catherine (Smith) Rothermel, and children as follows have been born to this union: Milton F.; Lillie V.; Mamie L., who died in her eighth year; Alfred R., who died when two years old; Florence K., who died in infancy (she and Alfred R. both died of bronchitis within one hour of each other, and both were buried in one coffin); Clayton A.; Bertha S.; Ellen R.; James A.; Calvin Dewey; Howard H.; and Jacob Roosevelt. Mr. Schappell is a Democrat in politics. He is interested in school matters, and served the district as school director. He and his family are members of Zion's Reformed Church in Perry township.

(IV) Capt. John Shappel, son of Lieut. Col. Jeremiah, was born in 1809, and died in 1893; he is buried at Shoemakersville, Pa. He was a boss carpenter, and built many houses and barns in Windsor and surrounding townships. He served as school director in Windsor township. His wife, Susanna Unger, was born in 1808, daughter of Michael Unger; she died in 1882, aged seventy-four years. They had ten children: Lafayette, of Orwigsburg, Pa.; Rebecca m. Benjamin Adam, of Frackville, Pa.; George made his home in Perry township; Henry became a resident of Wernersville, Pa.; Sallie m. John Hell, of Reading; Caroline m. I. N. Levan, of Reading; Jonas died at Shoemakersville; John died young; Susanna m. John Heater, of Mullentown, Pa.; Malinda m. Morris Kline, of Schuylkill Haven, Pennsylvania.

Daniel F. Bittner

(IV) John Schappell, son of Peter and Annie (Kosch), was born in 1801, and died aged forty-eight years. By trade he was a weaver, but he also worked on farms in Windsor township. He married Sarah Heffner, daughter of Jacob and Beckie (Dietrich) Heffner, and they had issue as follows: John; Betsey, m. to Moses Miller; Benjamin, who died young; John (2); Simon, who died aged seventeen years; Jesse, a farmer of Perry township; Mary, m. to Jacob Levan; Ann, m. to Isaac Hardinger; Kate, m. (first) to Henry Kemmerling, and (second) to Samuel Trautman; and Samuel, who settled in Albany township.

(V) John Schappell, son of John and Sarah (Heffner), was born Aug. 18, 1824, and was baptized by Rev. R. Dubbs. He died in 1901. He understood two excellent trades and followed clockmaking in the winter time and brickmaking in the summer. His places of residence were Maxatawny, Richmond and Perry townships, Berks county, and Lynn township, Lehigh county. He married Catherine (Kuhns) Baer, born in 1820, who died in 1905. To this union were born two sons; Wilson, born Dec. 1, 1848; and Pharon B.

(VI) Pharon B. Schappell, son of John and Catherine (Kuhns), was born Aug. 18, 1851, in Lynn township, Lehigh Co., Pa. In young manhood he moved to Maxatawny township, where he was employed in George H. Heffner's grist-mill for many years, becoming an experienced miller. In 1876 he removed to Greenwich township, near Grimville, where he resided until 1887, when he returned to Mill Creek, in Maxatawny township. In 1903 he moved to Kutztown, where he is employed in a foundry. On Aug. 30, 1873, he married Sarah Donmoyer, daughter of John and Polly (Gangeware) Donmoyer, and they have two sons, Chester E. and Herbert G. C.

(VII) Chester E. Schappel, son of Pharon B. and Sarah (Donmoyer), and one of the successful teachers of Richmond township, was born near Grimville, Greenwich township, Jan. 9, 1876, and there spent his boyhood. After his parents moved to Mill Creek, Maxatawny township, he continued at school there for some eight years, and then entered the Keystone State Normal School, where he was graduated in 1897. In the summer of 1892 he was licensed to teach school, by County Superintendent William M. Zechman, and in the fall of the same year taught his first term in Richmond township. He has taught ten terms in that township, and also two terms in Maxatawny. In the summer of 1900 Mr. Schappel taught a summer school at Lyons, Pa., during a short residence there. He possesses all the necessary qualifications for an educator and follows the profession with satisfaction to all concerned.

On Feb. 26, 1898, Mr. Schappel was united in marriage with Annie K. Hoch, daughter of Abner R. and Sarah (Kieffer) Hoch, and a granddaughter of Philip Hoch. Mr. and Mrs. Schappel have five children, namely: John H., May M., Wirt C., Lloyd H. and Ruth A. The religious connection of the family is with the Reformed congregation of Bethel Zion's Church at Grimville. In politics Mr. Schappel is a supporter of the Democratic party. In 1903 he was elected auditor of the borough of Fleetwood. In fraternal life he belongs to the Jr. A. O. U. M., Council No. 380, of New Smithville; and Camp No. 103, P. O. S. of A., of Fleetwood, Pennsylvania.

(V) Jesse Schappell, son of John and Sarah (Heffner), was born in Windsor township, July 17, 1829. When he was quite young his father sold his services to a farmer for seven years, one of the stipulations of the contract being that young Jesse should be sent to school for a period of nine months, but when reckoning was made it was found that he had secured less than eight months' schooling. During this time he learned to read and write German fairly well, which was the only education he ever received. Mr. Schappell and his wife are devoted Christians and regular attendants at the U. B. Church in Shoemakersville. On Dec. 14, 1850, Mr. Schappell married Elizabeth Shiffert, born Jan. 18, 1832, daughter of Reuben and Susanna (Augey) Shiffert. To them have been born the following children: P. Sassaman; William H., who died in infancy; Joshua W., who lives at Danville, Ill.; Alfred H., of Virginville, Pa.; John F., of Boyertown; Sarah, who died unmarried, aged forty-three years; George Washington, of Allentown; Samuel D., who settled in Arkansas; Charles R., of Shoemakersville; Oscar D., of Centreport; and Sevena J., who died in infancy.

(VI) P. Sassaman Shappell, son of Jesse and Elizabeth (Shiffert), and a well-known dairyman and farmer in Perry township, was born May 9, 1851, in Windsor township. When he was about ten years of age the family removed to Perry township, and there he received his education. He now has an excellent farm of 151 acres, and in 1905 built thereon a large barn, modern and complete in every respect. His live stock is in fine condition, the herd of Holstein cattle, which averages over thirty head the year around, being the finest in the county. During the past three years Mr. Shappell has averaged a shipment of over 90,000 quarts of milk per annum. He sends all of his milk by train into cities in Schuylkill county. He and his family live in a nice brick residence, surrounded by a large lawn studded with flowers and shrubbery.

Mr. Shappell was married Oct. 21, 1871, to Sarah Dreibelbis, daughter of Peter and Elizabeth (Lesher) Dreibelbis. They have had children as follows: Ella; Mahlon, married to Kate Underkoffler; Hattie, deceased; Minnie, married to John L. Bernet, of Leesport; Louis, married to Ellen Epting; William A., deceased; Jesse, and Maurice. On Dec. 25, 1907, a family reunion was held, and besides the children and grandchildren there were present Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Schappell and Mrs. Elizabeth (Lesher) Dreibelbis, the father and mother of Mr. Shappell and mother of Mrs. Shappell, respectively, all over eighty years of age.

DANIEL F. BITTNER was among the leading agriculturists and large landowners of Lower Heidelberg township who also had large interests in Spring township, and in his death, which occurred Nov. 18, 1905, Berks county lost one of its most prominent and influential citizens. Mr. Bittner was born Dec. 11, 1842, near Jonestown, Lebanon county, son of Jacob and Hettie (Fessler) Bittner.

Jacob Bittner, the grandfather of Daniel F., was married to a Miss Wiest, and it is family tradition that he was a native of Germany, from which country he came to America as a young man and settled in Lebanon county. His son Jacob was a resident of Jonestown, and carried on agricultural pursuits in Lebanon county, where he owned a farm. He married Hettie Fessler, and their children were: Abraham, who settled between Brunnerville and Lititz, Lancaster county (he is still living); Jacob, who removed to California, where he became wealthy and died unmarried; Sarah, who married a Mr. Ruth, of near Brickerville, Lancaster county; and Daniel F.

Daniel F. Bittner was reared upon his father's farm in Lebanon county, where he remained until past twenty years of age, at which time he embarked in the hotel business at Pennville, Lancaster county, at the intersection of five roads. There he continued for two years. For about five years he engaged in farming and horse dealing, and he then became employed at the Lebanon Reservoir, where he operated two horses and carts, gaining much valuable experience in the contracting business. In the fall of 1873 Mr. Bittner came to Millersburg, where he became a foreman on the grading of the South Mountain railroad, a position which he held for more than three years, when he was promoted to walking boss of his section. About this time, 1876, the road went into bankruptcy, and Mr. Bittner removed with his family to Reading, where he operated a local express until, in 1884, he became a contractor in topping ground from coal beds in Schuylkill county, an occupation which he followed with much success for a number of years, also building a branch railroad for the Baltimore & Ohio Company at Port Deposit, Md.—two miles of double track. Another large contract of Mr. Bittner's was the uncovering of the surface in the coal districts of the Lehigh Coal & Navigation Company.

Mr. Bittner owned several large farms in Spring township, one of which was a tract of 143 acres along the Berks and Dauphin turnpike, which he purchased in 1889, and on which his widow and daughter now reside, occupying the fine brick residence erected by Mr. Bittner in 1891. His other Spring township farm was a tract of 133 acres on the road leading from Sinking Spring to Shillington, and this belongs to one of his daughters, Mrs. Clara Henry. In addition to these he owned several very fine farms near Denver, Lancaster county, which are still in the family, as well as the Hull street store building and other valuable property at Sinking Spring. Mr. Bittner was called "The People's Bank" at Sinking Spring, where he was most highly esteemed by all who knew him. His death occurred there, when he was aged sixty-two years, eleven months, twenty-three days, and he was buried at the Bittner family plot at Schaefferstown, Lebanon county, where a large monument is erected in his memory. He was a member of Sinking Spring Reformed Church, and in political matters was a Democrat.

On Oct. 2, 1862, Mr. Bittner was married to Sarah Keener, daughter of George and Elizabeth Krieg Keener, of Lebanon county, and granddaughter of George and Elizabeth (Krum) Keener, and to this union were born ten children, as follows: Emma married Daniel R. Hagey, of Denver, Pa.; Lizzie, deceased, was the wife of Charles D. Schofer, of Reading; Sallie died aged six years; Clara married Amandus E. Henry; Laura, twin sister of Clara, died in infancy; George died Sept. 21, 1888, aged sixteen years; Edwin and Benjamin died in infancy; Bertha married Charles H. Andrus, of Altoona, Pa.; May died aged four years.

JACOB M. KELLER, of Cumru township, who has lived retired since 1906, was born Feb. 15, 1850, in Ephrata, Lancaster Co., Pa., son of Henry and Annie (Mohler) Keller.

Jacob Keller, grandfather of Jacob M., was a farmer in Lancaster county, where he spent his entire life. He became a prosperous man, and was well known and highly esteemed in his community. Mr. Keller had these children: Jacob, John, Samuel, Henry, Mary and Elizabeth, all deceased, who spent their lives in Lancaster county.

Henry Keller was born on the old home farm, and early in life learned the milling business, which he made his occupation throughout his active period. Mr. Keller died in Cocalico township in 1868, advanced in years. He married Annie Mohler, daughter of John Mohler, and she died at the age of seventy-two years, both she and her husband being buried at Springville cemetery, Lancaster county. They were members of the Dunkard church. Twelve children were born to Henry Keller and his wife, six of whom died young. Those who grew to maturity were: John; Peter; Jacob M.; Sallie; Elizabeth, m. George Bingaman; and Annie, m. John Eshelman.

Jacob M. Keller attended the schools of Lancaster county until sixteen years of age, and then worked at the mill and on the farm for his father until the latter's death. He continued milling for two years, after which he spent nine years at day's work, and then engaged in farming in Lebanon county on the old John Texter farm of 400 acres, one of the largest farms in that county. Nine years later Mr. Keller went to Sinking Spring, where he spent five years, and finally located at the Kurtz House farm in Cumru township, continuing at the latter place until his retirement in 1906.

Mr. Keller was married to Miss Hettie Hertzog, daughter of Peter Hertzog, of Cocalico township, Lancaster county, and to this union there were born the following children: Jacob; Miles; Henry, who died young; Nora m. James Noll; and Cecelia m. Henry Wolff. In political matters Mr. Keller is a Democrat, and he has been a member of election boards. He is a pillar of the Robesonia Lutheran Church.

LEINBACH. The Leinbach family had its early home in the district of Wetterau, Germany, where the first known ancestor of the Berks county (Pa.) family was Henry Leinbach, who married Barbara Lerch.

Johannes Leinbach, Sr., son of Henry and Barbara, was born in Langen-Selbold, Wetterau, March 9, 1674; he was baptized by the Reformed pastor. In his native land he was an organist. Seibert

Rev. Thomas H. Leinbach, son of John Daniel, born Jan. 18, 1802, died March 31, 1864, aged sixty-two years, two months, thirteen days, became a clergyman in the Reformed Church. He was born on the old Leinbach homestead near Spies's Church, in Oley township, was reared upon the farm, and was educated by the Rev. Dr. Herman, of near Boyertown. Practically he was a self-made man, as were many of the successful workers of that day. He was a man of strong constitution and fine physique, had a powerful voice and was an excellent singer. He was a strong catechist. About 1825 he settled at the parsonage of the old Tulpehocken Church, in Berks county, living there until his death, which occurred at Millersburg, Berks county, where he had preached continuously for thirty-eight years. He was one of the best known ministers of Berks county, and was highly esteemed. On Aug. 24, 1824, he m. Elizabeth Seibert, born May 15, 1806, daughter of Michael and Catharine (Reiss) Seibert, of near Womelsdorf, died April 14, 1891, aged eighty-four years, ten months, twenty-nine days. They had thirteen children, five sons and eight daughters, of whom one son and two daughters died in infancy and are buried at the Tulpehocken Church. Of the others, (1) Rev. Dr. Aaron S. Leinbach lived and died in Reading, passing away at the age of seventy-one years; one of his sons, John Hiester Leinbach, was a Reformed minister. (2) Maria R. m. Dr. Isaac Walborn, of Myerstown, Pa. (3) Elvina m. Rev. Joel L. Reber, of Berks county, latterly of Hanover, York Co., Pa.; their only son, Thomas N., is a minister of the Reformed Church. (4) Sarah M. m. Gen. William Uhrich, of Herndon, Va., who was a general in the Civil war. (5) Rev. Thomas Calvin is mentioned further on. (6) Emma L. died at Myerstown Sept. 26, 1902. (7) Jane P. m. John Uhrich, of Myerstown, and died June 12, 1874. (8) Charles H. died Oct. 6, 1891, aged sixty-one years, eight months, five days. (9) Rev. Samuel A., of Reading, Pa., is mentioned further on. (10) Clara N. m. Reilly J. Dundore, of Myerstown, and died aged fifty-one years, one month, twenty-four days.

Rev. Thomas Calvin Leinbach, late of Womelsdorf, Pa., was born in Jackson township, Lebanon Co., Pa., Dec. 31, 1837. His boyhood days were spent upon the farm. His early education was obtained at the Myerstown Academy, at Myerstown, Lebanon county, and was followed by a course in the preparatory department of Franklin and Marshall College. In 1854 he entered the same college, from which he graduated in 1858. The following September he entered the Reformed Theological Seminary at Mercersburg, Franklin Co., Pa., from which he graduated with honor in 1860; he was awarded the German oration. He then became an assistant to his father, Rev. Thomas H. Leinbach, pastor of the Tulpehocken charge, which consisted of Trinity, of Tulpehocken; Salem's, of Millersburg; Klopp's, of Hamlin, Lebanon county; Kimmerling's, Northeast, of Lebanon, Pa.; Gushert's, of Mt. Zion; Schaefferstown, and Millbach. He then received a call from Schaefferstown, Millbach and Newmanstown, Lebanon county, and served in connection with these three Reamstown, and Swamp Church, in Lancaster county. In the course of several years he resigned this charge, and on March 4, 1866, he accepted a call from the Bernville charge, composed of St. Thomas, at Bernville; North Heidelberg; Zion's, at Strausstown; St. John's, at Host; Christ, in Jefferson township; St. Paul's, Robesonia. He here remained, active in the ministry, until his death, May 1, 1909, his son, Rev. Edwin Samuel, assisting him. In these years Rev. Mr. Leinbach preached over four thousand sermons, officiated at the funerals of over 2,535 people, baptized 4,435, confirmed 950, and married 1,425 couples. He was a member of Williamson Lodge, No. 307, F. & A. M. The comments of the daily and church papers show that he was recognized as one of the ablest catechists in the Reformed Church, and was ranked among the best German preachers of his generation. "After life's toil he sleeps well; nay, he doth not sleep, but lives—lives in the eternal morning and in the hearts of all who knew him." His was a strong, cheerful, commanding personality.

On Sept. 6, 1870, Rev. Mr. Leinbach m. Maria R. Seibert, born June 16, 1840, daughter of John and Elizabeth (Seidel) Seibert, farming people of Marion township, Berks county. Mr. Seibert was a commissioner of Berks county at the time the present court-house was erected. To Thomas C. and Maria R. (Seibert) Leinbach were born eleven children, seven of whom are deceased. The survivors are as follows: (1) Rev. Paul Seibert Leinbach, now of Easton, Pa., prepared for college at the so-called Palatinate College, in Lebanon county, graduated from Franklin and Marshall College in 1894 with highest honors, entered the Theological Seminary at Lancaster, Pa., and graduated from that institution three years later. (2) Rev. Edwin Samuel Leinbach was born Sept. 12, 1878, in Womelsdorf, Berks Co., Pa., and received his early education under the parental roof, also attending the public schools of his native town. He subsequently continued his studies at Myerstown, spending three years at the Albright Collegiate Institute, after which he took a course at Franklin and Marshall College. His theological course was taken at the Seminary in Lancaster, where he finished in 1903, afterward taking a two years' post-graduate course. After his graduation he assisted his father as associate pastor of the Bernville charge (which is composed of six congregations), being stationed at Womelsdorf, and upon his death succeeded him in that charge. He is at present State chaplain of the P. O. S. of A., and also county chaplain of that order. On June 16, 1903, he m. Miss Carrie M. Bausch, and they have had one daughter. (3) Oliver Eugene Leinbach is a clerk in the employ of the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company, and lives in Reading. (4) Rev. Elmer G. Leinbach graduated from the same institutions in which his brothers were educated, and at present has a charge at Millersburg, Dauphin Co., Pennsylvania.

Rev. Samuel A. Leinbach, youngest son of Rev. Thomas H., was born in Jackson township, Lebanon Co., Pa., June 10, 1844. He graduated from Franklin and Marshall College in 1864, and from the Theological Seminary at Mercersburg in 1867. After his graduation he was assistant to his brother, Thomas C., for one year, when he received and accepted a call to the Egypt charge, in Lehigh county, serving it for sixteen years. In 1884 he accepted a call to the Leesport charge, which he served until Classis reconstructed the charge, and he discontinued at Leesport and Gernants, and continued at Epler's, Bern and St. Michael's. In 1904 he resigned the two former congregations and is now pastor at St. Michael's only, a congregation served by the three brothers and a nephew continuously for a period of forty-three years. On June 27, 1872, Rev. Samuel A. Leinbach m. Margaret H., daughter of Dr. Charles W. and Elizabeth Everhart, of Sellersville, Pa. To this union came one daughter, Margaret Grace, wife of E. E. Althouse, editor of the Sellersville Herald. He m. (second) in 1879 Mary Catharine, daughter of William S. and Sarah Long, of Durham, Pa., and they have one son, Samuel A., a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania and now a practising physician in Quakertown, Pennsylvania.

John (Johannes) Leinbach, eldest son of John Daniel, born in Oley April 3, 1778, died in 1860, in his eighty-third year. By occupation he was a farmer. He m. Elizabeth Kleiss, and they had five children, of whom two died young. The others were: Mary (m. George Beecher), David (m. Elizabeth Rhoads), and John.

John Leinbach, son of John (Johannes) and Elizabeth (Kleiss), born in Exeter township Jan. 16, 1814, died Sept. 26, 1900, aged eighty-six years, eight months, ten days. He owned a fifteen-acre truck farm, which he successfully conducted while teaching school. He was one of the earliest teachers in the county, teaching in the German pay school for some years. He also taught in the old Moravian school, which was situated on a seven-acre plot of ground in Oley township. After the establishment of the public school system he taught several terms at Spies's Church. In politics he was a Whig, and he took an active interest in his party. The Leinbachs generally have been strong advocates of Republican principles. In 1839 Mr. Leinbach m. Louisa Keller, daughter of Conrad and Catharine (Schmehl) Keller. They had children as follows: Tyler is mentioned below; Catharine m. Franklin Hartman; Dallas m. Elizabeth Babb; Llewellyn m. Elizabeth Marquette; Mary Ann m. Oliver Hinnershitz; Amanda died in 1861, aged eight years; John died in 1858, aged one year; Louisa m. John Eisenbise, of Reading; Albert died in 1861, aged two years; Ellen m. Henry Young, of Reading.

Tyler Leinbach, eldest son of John and Louisa, was born in Exeter township, Berks county, Sept. 19, 1841. He attended the schools of Oley, Exeter and Alsace townships for some years, and was hired out among the farmers until he was twenty-nine years of age. When the Civil war broke out he went in defense of his country, enlisting Aug. 22, 1861, in Company K, 93d Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and participated in the engagements at Williamsburg and Fair Oaks (in Virginia), the Seven Days' battle, and Malvern Hill. He then became one of four teamsters of his regiment until he was mustered out, April 23, 1865. After the war he again engaged at farm work for a year, and then went to Montgomery county, Ohio, where he remained seven months. He next went to Elkhart county, Ind., where he made his home until 1869, when he returned to Berks county, Pennsylvania.

On Feb. 14, 1871, Mr. Leinbach m. Anna, daughter of Josiah and Catharine (Maule) Manwiller, and granddaughter of Daniel and Sallie (Gambler) Manwiller. To Mr. and Mrs. Leinbach have been born children as follows: Ida, born Dec. 24, 1871, died July 22, 1899, m. Samuel Angstadt; Kate, born Jan. 28, 1874, died Feb. 11, 1883; Calvin M., born Aug. 26, 1875, a clerk in the Customs House, Philadelphia, m. Emma Schweitzer; John E., born May 24, 1877, a cigar manufacturer at Stony Creek Mills, Pa., m. Amelia Reninger (he is a member of the M. W. A.); Charles M., born Oct. 24, 1879, clerk in the Reading post-office, m. Jennie Snyder; Annie, born Oct. 30, 1881, died aged one year, three months; Howard M., born Nov. 2, 1884, is a medical student in the University of Pennsylvania; Louella, born Jan. 23, 1887, who was a school teacher in Exeter township, m. Edwin F. Palm, assistant secretary of the Y. M. C. A. of Buffalo, N. Y.; and Josiah M., a tool-maker by trade, born Jan. 2, 1889, is at home (he is a member of the Modern Woodmen of America, Camp No. 9,289, Reading, Pa.). Mr. Leinbach and his family are members of Spies's Union Church, of which he has been deacon and elder. Since 1906 he has resided in Mt. Penn borough, where he has a comfortable home on Cumberland street. He is now living retired from active work, and is in the enjoyment of the esteem and respect of all who know him.

John Henry Leinbach, the fifth child of John Daniel Leinbach, was born in Oley township Aug. 29, 1780. In his later years he settled in Muhlenberg township, where he cultivated his large farm, located on the present site of Rosedale. He m. Joanna Herman, and to them were born a number of children, among whom was Jonas Leinbach, the grandfather of William O. Leinbach, of Mt. Penn borough.

Jonas Leinbach, born Nov. 30, 1820, in Muhlenberg township, died Nov. 24, 1902. He was a wheelwright for some years, and for eight years worked for the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company, on leaving whose employ he went to a farm in Cumru township. There he lived nine years, and then moved to the farm of the late Judge Stitzel, in Muhlenberg township, where he remained two years, finally settling on the Judge's large farm in Richmond township, where he lived for twenty-five years. He was twice married, and had the distinction of being the father of more children than any other man in Berks county, having had thirteen children by each of his wives. His first wife, Rebecca Wentzel, was the mother of children as follows: Harriet, Ellen (who died unmarried), Percival, Thomas, Mary (m. William Rothermel, of Temple, Pa.), Katie (m. Henry Boyer), William (died single), Emma (born June 22, 18--, who died Feb. 8, 1876), Rebecca (m. Theodore Dickinson), Sarah (m. Daniel Stoudt), Daniel (m. Annie Schneck) and ————. Mr. Leinbach's second marriage was to Harriet Lloyd, born Dec. 28, 1837, died Dec. 25, 1897, and to them there were also born thirteen children, namely: Jonas, a molder of Reading, m. Emma Herring; Alice m. Andrew Ganser, a carpenter of Reading; Laura m. Alfred Leiby, of Reading; Annie m. Monroe Lebo, of Reading; Henry, of Reading, m. Lena Hintz; Nora m. Jacob Hintz, a puddler, of Reading: Joseph L. has a sketch elsewhere in this work; Minnie m. Solon Stern, foreman in an underwear factory of Reading; Lillie died unmarried, aged twenty-one years; Emma died young; three children died in infancy.

Percival Leinbach, the father of William O., was born March 23, 1844, in Muhlenberg township, and was reared on his father's farm, on which he continued to reside until nineteen years of age, when he learned the blacksmith's trade with John Becker, of Reading. He has followed that occupation to the present time. For a number of years he was located in Reading, but now resides in Mt. Penn. He is a Democrat in politics, and for one term was a school director in Lower Alsace township; fraternally he is connected with the K. G. E., Castle No. 63, of Reading. Mr. Leinbach is a Reformed member of the Alsace Church. In 1865 he m. Catharine Reifsnyder, daughter of Samuel and Judith (Price) Reifsnyder, and to this union were born three children: Henry, a coal receiver for the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company, in Reading (m. Sallie Raudenbush); William Oliver; and Emma, who died in 1875, aged six years.

William Oliver Leinbach was born Nov. 16, 1867, in Reading, and was taken to Alsace (now Lower Alsace) township by his parents when a mere lad. There he attended the common schools until fifteen years of age. When sixteen years old he began to learn the blacksmith's trade with his father, for whom he worked thirteen years, and in 1897 began working in Reading, being employed for two years with Harry Bard, a carriage builder. Since 1899 he has been with the Keystone Wagon Works. He is an excellent mechanic and his services are highly valued by his employers.

In his political views Mr. Leinbach is a Democrat. He was auditor of Lower Alsace township for four years, and on the organization of Mt. Penn borough was elected one of its first councilmen, serving on the fire and approving committees. He is a member of Castle No. 63, K. G. E., of Reading; Camp No. 230, P. O. S. of A., of St. Lawrence, Pa.; and Wyomissing Council, No. 1584, Royal Arcanum, Reading, Pa. He was one of the charter members of Trinity Reformed Church of Mt. Penn, and has been janitor thereof since its erection, in 1898. He has been secretary of the Sunday-school since its organization in 1890 and in twelve years' time missed but five Sundays in attendance.

On July 27, 1887, Mr. Leinbach m. Lizzie Stuber, daughter of Jacob and Barbara (Moyer) Stuber, deceased, of Reading, and by this union there is one daughter, Emma Victoria, born Nov. 6, 1890.

"REV. DR. AARON SEIBERT LEINBACH, a well-known Reformed Clergyman, who died in Reading, was a son of the late Rev. Thomas H. and Elizabeth Leinbach, and was born July 20, 1825, in Spring township, several miles from Reading, in the house now occupied by Benneville Krick. He was one of a family of thirteen children, the following of whom survive: Rev. Samuel Augustus Leinbach, of this city; Rev. Thomas Calvin Leinbach, of Womelsdorf; Charles Leinbach, Mrs. Maria Walborn, Mrs. Clara Dundore, Mrs. Emma Loose, all of Myerstown; and Mrs. Elvina Reber, of Philadelphia.

"Before he was a year old his father moved to the parsonage of the Tulpehocken church, of which he was pastor, located in Jackson township, Lebanon county. It was here that Dr. Leinbach spent his earlier years. He attended the common schools of the neighborhood, and afterward entered the academy at Womelsdorf and then the academy at Myerstown. From here he entered Marshall College, at Mercersburg, in 1842, and graduated in the fall of 1846. He then prosecuted his theological studies in the seminary at the same place until 1848, and was licensed to preach on the 16th day of May of the same year. He was ordained by the classis of the Reformed Church and installed as pastor of the Palmyra charge in Lebanon county, which he served for the short period of five months when he was called to the pastorate of the First Reformed church of Reading. He entered upon his duties Sept. 6, 1848, and successfully served the congregation for fourteen and one-half years. He preached in German and English and lectured during the week. The German and English services alternated, as did also the lectures. During the greater portion of the time he delivered two lectures a week, one in German and the other in English, but afterward only once a week in German and English alternately. At times, when Trinity Lutheran Church was without a pastor, he attended weekday services there and sometimes filled the pulpit on Sundays. During a period of the time he was pastor of the First Reformed Church, he preached at stated intervals at Schwartzwald Church, and became the regular pastor of that well-known congregation, July 1, 1855.

"Dr. Leinbach began his pastorate at Shalters, May 1, 1864; at Hinnershitz church, Oct. 8, 1871; at Alsace, Oct. 8, 1873. He also served the following congregations: Immanuel, Hamburg, from April 24, 1864, to June 10, 1866; St. Michael's, Upper Bern, from Aug. 7, 1864, to Sept. 29, 1867; St. John's, Robeson, from May 22, 1864, to June 29, 1873; Mohrsville, from Jan. 22, 1865, to Jan. 23, 1881; Bern church, from July 25, 1875, to Aug. 12, 1883; Leesport church, from June 26, 1870, to Jan. 23, 1881.

"When he announced to the members of his different congregations in the spring of 1895 that he would resign his charges and throw aside the cares of his office, the expressions of regret were general. This course, Dr. Leinbach deemed necessary, as of recent years his manifold duties were too great a strain on his nervous system. On Sunday, July 28, 1895, the venerable pastor conducted his concluding services in Alsace church; on Sunday morning, Aug. 4, Hinnershitz, and in the afternoon of the same day at Shalter's church. On Sunday, Aug. 11, he preached his farewell sermon at Spies' church, and on Sunday, Aug. 18, at Schwartzwald (which congregation he has served for a period of nearly forty years). All services were largely attended, not only by the members of the different congregations, but by numerous friends living within a radius of many miles.

"Since the time he was licensed as a preacher he had baptized 7,729 persons; confirmed 3,437; married 2,829 couples, and officiated at 4,289 funerals. At various times, his son, the late Rev. John Hiester Leinbach, officiated in his stead, otherwise these figures would have been larger.

"A number of years ago the title of D. D. was conferred upon him by Franklin and Marshall College. Dr. Leinbach was for nearly half a century one of the most active and influential Reformed clergymen in Eastern Pennsylvania. He labored in season and out of season, and as his congregations were widely scattered he was out almost daily, preaching funeral sermons, visiting the sick, and in an hundred ways ministering comfort and consolation. He filled in full and complete measure all the duties of a pastor, and in addition to his weekday appointments, he held services at two or three, and occasionally four of his churches on a single Sunday, on which occasions he was required to drive many miles. He thoroughly understood the people, and they had full confidence in his advice and judgment in temporal as well as spiritual affairs. He was sympathetic and considerate of every one with whom he came in contact. His amiable disposition and even temperament made him one of the most approachable of men. His kindliness of manner commended him as a model pastor, and there was never any friction between him and his congregation. His parishioners believed in him as no other man and he was held by them in the greatest affection as a counsellor, pastor and friend. He was amiable, charitable and always good-natured, and his parsonage was at all times a place where his many hundreds of members were always welcome. There were few men who enjoyed a wider acquaintance throughout Berks county than Rev. Dr. Leinbach, and he was beloved wherever he was known. His relations with his congregations were based on a mutual confidence and good feeling that added much to the prosperity of the congregations. He was the embodiment of kindness, and he will be sincerely mourned in hundreds of homes. His name was a household word throughout this entire section. As a preacher he was practical and eloquent. He drew his lessons from everyday life, and his sermons were based on old-fashioned Gospel truths, and ran in a channel of thought that all could understand. While he at all times directed his hearers to prepare for the better land above, Dr. Leinbach never neglected to inculcate in his discourses principles of right living, right thinking, and right doing in one's daily life. He addressed his people as a kind father would a child and in this lay one of the sources of his popularity.

"At the farewell services at Schwartzwald, Rev. Dr. Mosser, a successor of Dr. Leinbach, at the First Church, truthfully said, 'A minister of the Gospel who remains in one church forty years as its pastor, and then lays down the cares of the office on account of the infirmities of old age, is a hero of God.' On the same occasion Dr. Leinbach gave the statistics of the church. He stated that he began his pastorate in Schwartzwald, July 29, 1855, and since then had baptized 1,523 people, confirmed 1,012, wedded 484 couples and officiated at 694 funerals. At the first communion he had 166 guests and at the last 426. This number, he said, was not the largest, however, as he had had already as many as 550. He concluded with these words: 'It is a sad thing for me to sever my connection with this church, but my declining years demand it. I now bid you farewell and pray that our Father's blessing may rest upon you all.' During the deliverance of the above many were moved to tears. At the close he was presented on behalf of the congregation with a handsome engrossed set of resolutions enclosed in a frame, testifying to his great ability as a minister, and to his faithful services as their pastor. Dr. Leinbach, in a feeling manner, responded. He said, I thank you for your expression of good will and efforts to reward me. You have always shown me the greatest kindness and words cannot express my appreciation.

"The resolutions in conclusion paid Dr. Leinbach this beautiful tribute: 'May God grant you an eventide of life as gentle and calm as a pleasant summer's eve; and we beg of you to rest assured in your retirement that in the bosoms of the members of Schwartzwald congregation, hearts beat, praying for you that heavenly benediction may descend on you from the Great Bishop of our souls.' The other congregations took similar action when Dr. Leinbach retired as their pastor.

"Of the numerous weddings he performed, the first was on the 10th of September, 1848, when he married Lewis Ruth, a young merchant of this city, to Miss Matilda Houck, of Lebanon county. The second was on the 24th of the same month, when he married William Call to Miss Clementine Fichthorn, both of this city.

"When visiting in the country, the venerable pastor was always greeted in the most cordial manner. To the Eagle he said at the time of his retirement: 'I do not believe there are people anywhere who are more hospitable and social than those of Berks. They are principally from German stock, and you know it is the nature of Germans to be gemuethlich. This is a German word for sociality and geniality which is difficult to translate into English and retain its full force. In the whole course of my ministry I have never been repulsed or treated coldly in a single instance.'

"In going out to fill an appointment Dr. Leinbach's difficulty was not to find a place to stop, but to decide where not to stop, the invitations being so numerous and pressing. No matter where he visited it was very evident from the manner in which he was received that he was heartily welcome. He always endeavored to visit in the order of invitations. In answer to the question—'What do country people generally talk about when they meet at church and when you meet them at their homes?' Dr. Leinbach replied some months ago: 'As we are living among nature it is natural that the people should talk about the works of nature, including the crops. I think it is in keeping with Christianity for the people when they meet, to inquire about each other's health, circumstances, etc. Religion should not destroy the humanity of a person and make him morose, stiff and unnatural. During the services the country people are usually attentive and when I meet them in their families, they are, as a general thing, very fond of talking about church matters.'

"When Dr. Leinbach assumed the pastorate of the First Reformed church in 1848, it was the only one of the denomination in Reading. The second church was just about being organized. As he never refused to respond to a call his work for many years was very wearing and his devotion to it helped to somewhat impair a constitution that had in it vigor enough to have carried him to an age considerably beyond that at which he died.

"Dr. Leinbach is survived by his widow, who was his second wife, and four children: Jacob J. S. Leinbach, Mrs. Adam B. Rieser, Mrs. Morris Schaffer and Mrs. John Armstrong. His son, Rev. John H. Leinbach, a prominent Reformed clergyman, died less than a year ago, and another son, Thomas, died about three years ago. His first wife was Eliza Amanda Schantz, of Allentown, to whom he was married Jan. 8, 1850. She died Aug. 13, 1867."

The notice of his funeral as telegraphed to the Times was: "The funeral of the late Rev. Dr. Aaron S. Leinbach this afternoon [June 27, 1896] was the largest here in years. There were nearly fifty clergymen in attendance. The floral tributes were many and magnificent. Rev. Dr. B. Bausman, of St. Paul's Memorial Reformed Church, who fifty years ago was the roommate of Dr. Leinbach in Marshall College, at Mercersburg, preached the sermon. Six pastors of Reformed Churches in this city were pall-bearers."

LLEWELLYN LEINBACH, former teacher and merchant, and present successful farmer near Oley Line, in Oley township, was born Jan. 13, 1848, son of John and Louisa Leinbach. He assisted on the home farm and attended the district schools in his boyhood. He pursued his higher education in Freeland Seminary, now Ursinus College, at Collegeville, and he was licensed to teach by Prof. John S. Ermentrout, then county superintendent. In 1869 he taught his first term in Alsace township, at a salary of twenty dollars per month, the term consisting of four months. He taught in all four terms, two in Alsace and two in Exeter, and then began his mercantile experience as a clerk in the general store of B. A. Glase, at Friedensburg, where he remained two years. He then came to Oley Line, and associated with O. H. Hinnershitz, engaged in the general merchandise business, and at the same time conducted the hotel. This partnership continued four years, when, owing to ill health, Mr. Leinbach was obliged to retire, his partner continuing the business. Mr. Leinbach moved to Amity township, and there lived on one farm for seven years, and for twenty-two years he lived on the farm of Mary W. Hains, and has continued as manager of her farm. In 1891 he bought his present home farm near Oley Line, this being the homestead of his father-in-law, Samuel Marquette. The tract consists of eighty-eight acres of good land. Mr. Leinbach devotes considerable time to the raising of truck, which he markets in Pottstown. In politics Mr. Leinbach is a Republican. He and his family all belong to the Reformed Church at Amityville, in which he has been deacon, and an elder since 1888.

In 1874 Mr. Leinbach was married to Eliza A. Marquette, and six children have been born to this union: William J., a carpenter and farmer in Amityville, m. Maud Rhoads; Samuel m. Jennie Weider, and assists on the home farm; Walter is at home; Lottie M. m. George B. Griesemer, a merchant at Spangsville; Sallie, a graduate of the Keystone State Normal School, class of 1907, is a teacher in the public schools; and Paul R. died in 1891 at the age of two and one-half years.

HIRAM P. YEAGER, proprietor of the Pennsylvania Boiler Works, and a prominent citizen of Reading, Pa., was born in Schuylkill county, June 26, 1844, son of John L. and Mary (Gift) Yeager, and grandson of John Yeager.

John Yeager, the grandfather, who was a native of Germany and a hatter by trade, served as a soldier in the war of 1812. He and his wife were both buried in the Charles Evans cemetery, being members of the Reformed Church. In politics John Yeager was a Whig. He and his wife had seven children: John, Nicholas, Harry, George, Michael, Mrs. Whitman and Mrs. Seiders.

John L. Yeager, father of Hiram P., was also a hatter by occupation, a trade which he learned of his father. When a young man he located in Schuylkill county, and there for a number of years followed his trade, but later went into the hotel business, conducting a hostelry for about thirty years. Mr. Yeager died in 1858, aged fifty-seven years, while his widow survived him until 1879, being in her seventy-eighth year at the time of her death. He was a member of Orwigsburg Lodge, F. & A. M., of Schuylkill county. In politics he was a Whig.

Hiram P. Yeager received his literary training in the schools of his native county, and in early youth learned the blacksmith's trade. In 1862 he enlisted in Company B, 129th Pa. V. I., and served with that regiment until 1863, when he was discharged; but he immediately re-enlisted, veteranizing with Co. B, 205th Pa. V. I., with which he remained until the close of the war. Mr. Yeager had an honorable war record, and was several times wounded in battle. On returning to Schuylkill county, Mr. Yeager learned the boilermaking trade, and went to Philadelphia to work on the Centennial grounds in 1876, later in the year locating in Reading where he worked for Reasor & McCoy for two years. He then engaged in business on his own account under the firm name of the Yeager Boiler Company, but was later connected with Wilson & Co. In 1905 he purchased Mr. Wilson's interest in the business, which he has since conducted alone, doing a general line of boiler repairing and manufacturing. He is a practical mechanic and an expert in his line, and the excellence of his work has won him a large patronage. Mr. Yeager is a member of Chandler Lodge, No. 227, F. & A. M., and of McLean Post No. 16, G. A. R. Politically he is a Republican. Mr. Yeager is a member of the Second Reformed Church of Reading.

Mr. Yeager has been twice married, his first wife, whom he married in 1872, being Anna Seigfred. Four children were born to that union: Harry, of Philadelphia; George and Luther, of Reading; and Florence, at home. Mr. Yeager was married (second) in 1886, to Susan Koch. They have no children.

BERTOLET—BERTOLETTE. The Bertolet family of Berks county, Pa., has an ancient and honorable lineage, and for centuries before its planting in the New World played an important part in the history of the Old. The "Dictionnaire de la Noblesse de France (1771)" says "The family Bertholet was originally from Brittany, where it comprised several branches, one of which settled in Picardie." From this Picardie family comes the American line. "Picardie was an old Province adjoining the north of France, having on the north and west the English Channel."

Gabriel O'Gilvy, London, 1864, in his work on the Nobility of Normandy, etc., Vol. I., p. 157, says: "Bertholet (Germanized and Americanized Bertolet) 1470, ennobled by warrant of the francs-fief (francsfee) and new acquisitions: The widow Blesot Bertolot, of the vic. of Conches and Breteuil, was taxed five livres.

"Bertolet, 1470, ennobled by warrant of the francs-fief and new acquisitions: Jean Bertolet of the vic. de Conches and Breteuil was taxed fifteen livres.

"Bertolet de Mezernay vic. de Caen: arms of blue, helmet with front of silver, lowered under two cuirasses of the same."

Part of the family in Picardie became Protestant, and the persistent persecution of the Huguenots after the Revocation of the Edict of Nantes, 1685, drove them to Bern, in Switzerland, whence they went to the Lutheran Palatinate.

In the article that follows the Roman numerals indicate the number of generations, beginning with the first known ancestor in direct line.

(I) "Jean Bertolet, Sr., was born in Picardie, France, where the family held large estates. During the religious wars he retired into Switzerland, and established himself on a farm near Gottenberg, which belonged to the 'Pfaltzgrafflische gemsin-schaft,' held by the Protestant congregation, and which had been confiscated from the Catholics and rented."

(II) Jean Bertolet (or Berthelot) was born in Chateau d'Oex, Switzerland, son of Jean, Sr., during the sojourn of the family in the haven of refuge. He became one of the leaders of the Huguenot faction, and with others moved to the Bavarian Palatinate. There prior to (one authority says 1711) 1712, he married Susanna, daughter of Jean Hericourt, in Muhlhaften, bei Landau, a short distance southwest of Speier. The family of Hericourt also belonged to the ancient nobility of France, and it took its name from the estate (terre) de Hericourt in la Comte de Saint Pol. The town of Saint Pol is in the Province of Pas de Calais, Picardie, the ancient home of the Bertolets. In 1712 Jean Bertolet and wife moved (again because of persecution) to and tenanted a farm belonging to the Chapter of Selz, a town in Alsace on the Rhine, near Minnefeldten, where they remained fourteen years, and where five children were born. During all these years they had been subject to more or less persecution, and in 1726 they determined to come to America to find home and peace in Quaker Pennsylvania. The authorities of the district in which he lived gave to Jean Bertolet the following testimonial:

"Attestation for John Bertolet (Jean Berthelot).

"We, the undersigned, President Judge of the Principality of Pfalz for the District of the Community of Guttenberg, do hereby testify by virtue of this letter, that the bearer of this, the well reputed and discreet John (Jean) Bertolet (Berthelot), born in Chasteaudeux (Chateau-d 'Oex) in Switzerland, under the jurisdiction of Bern, with his wife, have for fourteen years, as occupants of the adjoining farm, belonging to August Chapter of Seltz, conducted themselves piously, honorably, uprightly and justly, and in such manner as is appropriate for virtuous persons praiseworthily conducting themselves, that we of him, as well as of his wife, cannot otherwise speak than to their honor and praise.

"Inasmuch as this married couple with their five children under the hope of improving their best interests and opportunities desired to remove themselves to the new country of Pennsylvania, there to settle themselves in a domestic manner and are wholly resolved and determined upon the same. We respectfully, obedient to our numerous duties of station and service would in a friendly way solicit and entreat for the aforesaid John (Jean) Bertolet (Berthelot) and his wife Susanna and five children not only that they may pass all places free and without hindrance, but besides, on account of their respectable conduct, to extend to them ever desired aid and assistance.

"To such are we on similar occasions in the most friendly manner ready and willing to reciprocate the kindness.

"To this as a truthful record we, besides our subscribed names, append our usual seal.

"So given and done in the Upper Official District of Minnfeldten the twenty-ninth day of the month of April as men enumerate one thousand seven hundred and twenty-six.

"J. G. Wimpffen,
"Nicolaus Schoenlaub,
"Anwald (Council)
"Hans Ehrhart Beyer,
"des Gerichts Secretary."

The story of Pennsylvania as a refuge of those persecuted for religion's sake, was carried through Holland and Germany in 1677 by William Penn himself. In Germany the opposition of the Roman, Lutheran, and Reformed churches had repressed the awakening minds of the people, and the Imperial Edict of the Chancery Court of Speier, capital of Bavaria in 1671, was intended to recall the people to a stricter ritualistic worship, but all failed. William Penn, on his continental trips proselyting on behalf of the doctrine of the "Inner Light," impressed the people with his zeal and his character, and in a short time was formed the company that founded Germantown, the birthplace of the German-American race. From that time on the tide of emigration was steady, and Pennsylvania became the home of a sturdy, independent Christian people.

Oley

Jean Bertolet and his wife and five children landed at New York in 1726, preceded in 1720 by his brother Pierre (Peter) Bertolet, who located in Oley, Berks county, Pa., March 25, 1720, and that year was a signer of a petition to have Oley organized into a township. Jean Bertolet also settled in Oley, and some years later a third brother, Samuel, joined the other two. The first generation of the Bertolets in America married into the Frey, De Benneville and De Turk families.

Pierre Bertolet died prior to 1737, as his widow sold their farm May 7, 1737. Elizabeth Bertolet's will is on record in Philadelphia. Daniel H. Bertolet, of Philadelphia, an authority on early family records, says: "This may be only letters of administration signed by John Bertolet, of Germantown (sadler), Aug. 5, 1747." And again "This may be only letters of administration on the estate of Dr. Jonathan Bertolet, who married Charlotte, daughter of Dr. George and Susanna (Bertolet) De Benneville (second cousins)."

Jean Bertolet purchased land in Oley, Pa., near the present Yellow House, and in 1731 he erected a substantial stone dwelling. The Indians were his neighbors, and he taught them how to farm. His death occurred in 1754. At the third reunion of his descendants, the Bertolet Family Association, held at Oley in 1900, a committee was appointed to try to discover beyond all doubt the exact spot of his grave; while the Finance committee of this Association took subscriptions for a fund for the purchase of a headstone for the grave, and the renovation of the burial lot. When Jean Bertolet came to America he brought with him his Bible, which had proved a source of great comfort to him in all the years of his sojourn in strange lands for conscience's sake. Its title page reads: "La Bible qui est Tovte La Saincta Ecritures x x Par Francois Perrin Pour Antoine Vincent MDLXVII." Its fly leaf bears the inscription: "Le Presante Bible apartien a Jean Bertolet." This Bible was sold in 1907 for $183, but still remains in the family, and is in an excellent state of preservation. To Jean and Susanna (Hericourt) Bertolet were born children (the first five before the emigration to America), as follows: Abraham, born Dec. 11, 1712, died in 1766; Maria, born July 12, 1715, m. H. Bernet; John, born Sept. 28, 1717, m. a daughter of Peter Pallio, an early settler of the Manatawny region, and died at Pottstown, Pa., in 1789; Esther, born Aug. 12, 1720, m. Dec. 24, 1745, Dr. George de Benneville (who died in 1793), and died in March, 1795, the mother of two sons and five daughters, of whom Daniel was a surgeon in the Revolutionary war, and George also followed the medical profession; Susanna, born Nov. 17, 1724, m. Jacob Frey, and died Feb. 2, 1805; and Frederick Americus, born in America in 1726.

(III) Abraham Bertolet, son of Jean and Susanna, born Dec. 11, 1712, married Esther de Turk, daughter of Isaac de Turk and his wife, Maria Gerber. Isaac de Turk, born in 1686, landed at New York, with his sister Esther in 1707, and settled at Esopus, then became one of the first settlers at Quassick Creek, Dutchess county, N. Y., and on June 11, 1712, was granted 300 acres at "Oley," Pa. (the first mention of this locality on record), by the Commissioners of Pennsylvania, who described him "late of Franklin-thal, in Germany." Isaac de Turk had three children—Catherine (m. Abraham Levan), John (m. Deborah High) and Esther (m. Abraham Bertolet)—but bequeathed all his landed estate to his son, who paid his sisters their proportionate shares according to the appraisement. To Abraham and Esther (de Turk) Bertolet were born the following children: Maria, born Sept. 18, 1736, m. a Hoch, and died July 17, 1802; Daniel, born May 9, 1741, m. Maria (Mary) Yoder, born Feb. 13, 1749, and he died Nov. 19, 1799; Samuel, born 1744, m. a Frey, served in the Revolutionary war, and died Jan. 1, 1805; Elizabeth, born in 1745, m. a de Turk; Esther, born in 1746, m. a Yoder; and John, born 1748, m. a Shenkel, and they died leaving a son, John Shenkel. Abraham Bertolet, the father, died in 1766.

(IV) Daniel Bertolet, son of Abraham and Esther, was born May 9, 1741. He married Maria (Mary) Yoder, who was born Feb. 13, 1749, and his death occurred Nov. 19, 1799. Eight children were born of this union: Esther, born Oct. 21, 1769; Abraham, born Feb. 28, 1772; Catherine, born July 23, 1775, m. Daniel Grim, who died in 1802, and is buried in the Grim lot in Maxatawny township, and their only son, Daniel Grim, was living in 1861; Charlotte, born Feb. 10, 1778; Daniel (2), born June 11, 1781; John, born Feb. 21, 1784; Maria, born Jan. 9, 1788; and Samuel, born May 4, 1791.

(V) Daniel Bertolet (2), son of Daniel and Maria, born June 11, 1781, was married Oct. 3, 1802, to Maria (Mary) Griesemer, and they became the parents of nine children: Abraham, born Nov. 4, 1803 (died Oct. 1, 1835); Samuel, Nov. 15, 1804; Maria, Dec. 3, 1807; Daniel, Jan. 17, 1809; Isaac, April 14, 1810; Esther, May 15, 1811; Jacob, Nov. 3, 1815; Hannah, Nov. 21, 1817; and Peter, June 11, 1822.

(VI) Isaac Bertolet, son of Daniel (2) and Maria (Griesemer) Bertolet, was born April 14, 1810, and died June 7, 1882. He m. (first) Eliza Cleaver (born July 2, 1812, died June 2, 1849), and their children were: Rebecca, born Jan. 18, 1836, died April 20, 1856; Dr. Jonathan, born Nov. 19, 1837, was an eminent surgeon in the army during the Civil war, and died in Europe May 1, 1868, and is buried at Berlin, Germany; Maria, born March 8, 1840, died July 21, 1856; and Keturah, born July 15, 1844, m., Sept. 15, 1863, Hiram W. Keehn, and has two children—Clarence H. (born 1872, m. Elizabeth Davy, and has two children Hiram, born April 12, 1898, and Helen, born March 10, 1900) and Maria C. (born 1875, m. John M. Chestnut). Isaac Bertolet m. (second) Christiana Griesemer (born March 9, 1820, died Nov. 25, 1905) and they had three children: Daniel N., born Jan. 22, 1851, unmarried; Anne, born Nov. 1, 1854, deceased; and Charles, born Jan. 22, 1859, deceased.

(VII) Dr. Daniel N. Bertolette, son of Isaac and Christiana (Griesemer) Bertolet, was born in Oley Jan. 22, 1851. He graduated from the Reading high school in 1866, and was valedictorian. In 1872 he received the degree of M. D. from Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia; and in 1873 was appointed assistant surgeon in the U. S. Navy, and in 1877 lieutenant, passed assistant surgeon U. S. N. In 1888 he was made lieutenant commander, surgeon, U. S. N. On Jan. 17, 1891, he was made special commissioner of the United States to Uruguay, Paraguay and Argentine Republic for the World's Columbian Exposition. He was present at the special audience given by the Dowager Empress of China, and accompanied the United States commission, attending the coronation of Czar Alexander II at Moscow, in 1896. He was also captain, medical director, U. S. N., naval laboratory, Brooklyn, N. Y., and in March, 1909, was assigned to the command of the Naval Hospital, Washington, D. C., having just completed a term of duty at Philadelphia. His entire career has been marked with signal honors and unusual distinction. His home is at No. 127 South Sixth street, Reading.

(VI) Jacob Bertolet, born Nov. 3, 1815, son of Daniel (2) and Maria (Griesemer), was twice married. On Oct. 24, 1841, he m. (first) Hannah Mattis, who was born Oct. 29, 1818, and who died March 15, 1853. He m. (second) Sept. 11, 1860, Lucetta Shearer. Seven children were born of the first marriage: Israel M., born Sept. 2, 1842; Mary Ann, born May 29, 1844, m. William Y. Antrim (now deceased), and died June 9, 1876, leaving a daughter, Hannah Antrim Jordan, of Colebrook, N. H.; Elizabeth, born June 7, 1846, m. F. M. Heilig, of Pine Iron Works, Pa.; Sarah, born March 21, 1848, died unmarried; Catherine, born April 20, 1849, m. A. K. de Turk; Hannah, born Jan. 24, 1851, died unmarried; and Jacob, born March 4, 1853, died June 15, 1855.

Jacob Bertolet, the father, died June 19, 1878. He was a life long resident of Oley township, where he was engaged as a farmer and lumber dealer. In his lumber business he employed many men and teams. He was a man of large business capacity, and was held in the highest repute in his district. He was a man of piety and religious zeal.

(VII) Israel M. Bertolet, son of Jacob and Hannah (Mattis), was born Sept. 2, 1842, on his grandfather's homestead in Oley, near Friedensburg. He was educated in the public schools and the famous Oley Academy, and in 1860 he was licensed to teach by Prof. John S. Ermentrout, the county superintendent of Berks county. He taught first at the Wiest school in Oley township, remaining there two terms. In all he was employed at teaching five terms—one term in Heidelberg township, and the rest in Oley. He also taught a subscription school at Oley Academy during the Civil war, for one term. His early training had been along agricultural lines, and the summer months were devoted to that work. In 1867 he went to Reading, Pa., and was employed by the East Penn Railroad Company. He lived at Reading for twelve years. In the spring of 1876 he was elected first alderman of the Eleventh ward, Reading, and he served in that office continuously until one year after the death of his father, when he resigned and in May, 1879, he moved to the homestead farm in Oley. For a few years he carried on the farm himself, and then rented it to give his entire attention to the manufacture of lumber. He retired from this business in 1906, and now resides at Friedensburg, Oley, Pennsylvania.

Mr. Bertolet owns the family homestead, which has descended through five generations; it contains 140 acres. Mr. Bertolet was one of the organizers of the First National Bank of Oley, and is its president. He is a director of the Second National Bank of Reading, and has been since its organization in 1882; and is director in the Colonial Trust Company in Reading. He is also interested in the Oley Knitting Mills. He is a member of Zion's United Evangelical Church of Friedensburg, to which his family also belong.

Mr. Bertolet has been twice married. In 1868 he m. Annie V. R. High, daughter of Henry and Rebecca (Van Reed) High, and the two children of this marriage were: Henry, born 1870, died 1891; and Frederick, born 1872, died 1873. Mrs. Bertolet died Aug. 12, 1872, aged thirty-one years. He m. (second) in 1874, Annie E. Driebelbis, widow of Dr. D. L. Driebelbis, and daughter of Solomon Ely, late of Allentown, Pa. This union has been blessed with seven children, namely: Heyman E., born 1875, a civil engineer, Philadelphia; Samuel E., born 1877, an attorney at Reading; Irene, born 1881, m. to Rev. Thomas S.

Knecht; Mabel, born 1883, m. to Prof. Irwin Ziegler, a teacher at Clearfield, Pa.; Helen, born 1888; and Annie and Marie, twins, born 1891.

(VIII) SAMUEL E. BERTOLET, a member of the Berks county Bar, with residence at Reading, was born in that city Feb. 17, 1877, son of Israel M. He attended the public schools, Oley Academy, Schuylkill Seminary and Lafayette College, graduating from the latter in 1897. He at once entered upon the study of law in the office of Frank S. Livingood, and in 1899 was admitted to practise. He is Referee in Bankruptcy for Berks county. He is a Republican in politics, and takes an active part in the affairs of that party. In 1904 he made the race for the State Senate and polled a full party vote.

Mr. Bertolet is a Mason and a member of the Knights of the Golden Eagle, and in matters religious holds membership with the Presbyterian Church. On June 29, 1905, he married Alexandrine, daughter of Alexander M. Wilson, of the Reading Railroad, residing in Reading.

(IV) John Bertolet, born 1748, son of Abraham and Esther (de Turk) Bertolet, married a Miss Shenkel, and they both died young. Their only child was John Shenkel.

(V) John Shenkel Bertolette (as this branch of the family spell the name), was born on the homestead now owned by Ephraim Kauffman in Oley township, in 1775. He was a large land owner, and was one of the first iron makers of this section to use the charcoal furnace, being engaged in the manufacture of iron at Spring Forge. He also did much teaming, carrying on a stage line between Philadelphia and Pittsburg. He was known as one of the most prominent mill men and influential citizens of his day, and was always spoken of as a man of great wealth. He died in 1833. In 1808 he married Mary Boyer, and their children were: Dr. David, born in 1809, lived at Washingtonville, Ohio, and died in 1880; Lydia, born in 1811, m. Filbert Nagle, and died in 1885; Levi John, born March 29, 1813, died April 10, 1883; Zechariah, born in 1815, died in 1890; and Mahlon, born in 1817, died in 1852. John S. Bertolette m. (second) Mrs. Peter (Reiff) Guldin. No children were born of this union.

(VI) Levi John Bertolette, son of John Shenkel, was born at Yellow House, at the Old Spring Forge, in Earl township, Berks county, March 29, 1813, and he died April 10, 1883. He was a prominent man of his day in this section of the State, being an early director of the Union National Bank of Reading, and was also a great traveler, and a man of wide and varied experience. He was a great lover of horse flesh, and also engaged in farming to some extent. In political matters he was a radical Democrat, and was very positive in his opinions. He was a member of the Lutheran Church. At the age of eighteen he married Maria Henrietta Guldin, daughter of Peter Guldin, and to them were born these children: John C., born in 1831, has a ranch near Denver, Colo.; Levi A. lives in Wilmington, Del.; Emma Josephine m. (first) Dr. J. A. Jack, and (second) Samuel Heckman; Jeremiah Guldin; and several died young.

(VII) Jeremiah Guldin Bertolette, son of Levi John, was born March 17, 1833, and he died of typhoid fever Jan. 4, 1876. His life was spent in Oley township in agricultural pursuits, and he owned the old original Bertolette homestead of upwards of 200 acres. He was prominent in the movements of the State Grange, and was considered one of the good practical agriculturists of his day. In politics he was a Democrat, and held a number of the offices of his township, including that of school director. He had a good mind, and possessed great reasoning powers, and was able to solve any problem in trigonometry. He was a member of the Lutheran Church, and was buried at the Oley church. On Oct. 9, 1855, he married Fianna Christman Butz, a descendant of one of the early German settlers of Longswamp township; she survives and lives on North Tenth street, Reading. The four children of this union were: Martin Luther; Mary Alice, born Jan. 2, 1859, m. David G. Gross, and is now deceased; Charles Albert, died in childhood; and Annie Virginia, born March 6, 1874, died Feb. 11, 1898.

(VIII) DR. MARTIN LUTHER BERTOLETTE, son of Jeremiah Guldin, was born Oct. 5, 1858, in Oley township, and was educated in the common schools of his native township, Oley Academy, and the Keystone State Normal School at Kutztown. He entered Lafayette College in 1875, and graduated from the University of Pennsylvania Medical School in the class of 1878, giving much study while at school to the Eye as a special line. His medical preceptor was Dr. J. A. Jack, of Oley. After his graduation he located at Jacksonwald, and in March, 1882, accompanied an invalid cousin to Colorado, and in the summer of that year settled at Dubuque, Iowa, where he spent seven years. In 1888 he went to Philadelphia, and took a post-graduate course at the Polyclinic and the University of Pennsylvania. In 1889 he returned to Berks county, locating at Mt. Penn, which has since been his field of practice. He has been a member of the staff of St. Joseph's Hospital since 1890, being chief for diseases of the chest. He is a member of the County, State and National Medical Societies, the P. O. S. A. and the K. G. E. In political principle he is a Democrat, and he has been president of the Mt. Penn council and president of the water board.

On Nov. 27, 1879, Dr. Bertolette was married to Hannah Elizabeth High, daughter of Jacob Van Reed High. On March 27, 1902, he was married to Catherine Breiner, of Mt. Penn, daughter of William and Annie (Dengler) Breiner. The Doctor and his wife attend the Lutheran Church.

BENFIELD. The family historian of the Benfields has traced his name back to the time of William the Conqueror in his conquest of England, 1066. In his army was General John Benfield, from Normandy, who after the conquest moved his family to England and became a man of prominence in the circles of the court of William the Conqueror, then ruler of England. After his death he was buried in Westminster Abbey, where there is a tablet to his memory. The family in the course of time spread into Scotland and Ireland, and from the Scotland family, so far as the historian is able to discover, came two brothers, which no doubt is correct. These two brothers were Thomas Benfield and John Benfield. The former is the head of the Benfields of this section as well as those of the Central and Western States. The latter is the head of the Benfield family in North and South Carolina as well as Georgia, whither he emigrated from Union township, Berks county, about 1760, with the Boone family. These two persons came to America about 1712, so far as can be learned from records. The said brothers then located west of Pottstown several miles, in Union township, where both owned tracts of land.

In 1728 Thomas Benfield bought a tract of land in Oley township, Berks county, but sold it to Abijah Sands in 1733, he having lived there all that time. The next year he received a patent for land (100 acres) in District township, Berks Co., Pa. This tract is now owned by Israel Weller and his brother. In 1744 another patent was granted to him for a tract of fifty-two acres, adjoining the 100-acre tract. This then for years became the home of the family, and there he raised a family of two sons and four daughters. This same Thomas Benfield while he lived here purchased several other tracts in Union and Amity townships. Two tracts were sold by him in 1762 to John Wanger, of the same township; these two tracts are located near Port Union and still in the Wanger family name. From the tax lists in the possession of the Berks County Historical Society we find that he paid taxes at different dates, showing that he either lived in these townships or at least owned property and paid tax. In 1759 he paid £8 tax in District township. And from 1761 to 1769 he paid tax in that township, where he died and where his son Samuel was executor of his will and filed his statement in 1771.

The son Samuel was a taxable in East District (now District) township in 1790. He and his wife Anna lived in District up to 1792, when he moved to Northampton (now Lehigh) county, but returned in 1811, to Albany township, Berks county, where he died. His will was probated in 1813, John Benfield and George Greenwald, executors. In his family were two sons and five daughters, all mentioned in the will, namely: John, Catharine, Margaret, Susanna, Elizabeth, Maria and Jacob. The sons, moving to western Pennsylvania, left one grandson of this Samuel, Henry Benfield, who had just married and did not live in the above locality, but moved to District township with a man by the name of Gluck, by whom he was employed.

John Benfield, brother of Samuel, left no issue. He also had moved to Lynn township, Northampton (now Lehigh) Co., Pa., but moved into West Penn, Schuylkill county, where he died. Three of the daughters (sisters of John and Samuel) were married, as follows: Catherine to a Mr. Ulrich, Mary to a Mr. Harp, Elizabeth to a Mr. Updegrove, and Susanna remained single. Of these persons very little is known by the historian.

Of Samuel's two sons, John, as before intimated, moved to Montour county, where his descendants now live and are prominent. And of Jacob, who moved to central Pennsylvania, where he died, it may be said that he and his wife, whose maiden name was Keck, raised a family of five sons and one daughter, who all but one left for the West, George locating in Illinois, Jacob and Daniel in Crawford county, Pa., John in Michigan and Maria (Mrs. Schlosser) in Crawford county, Pa., thus leaving one, Henry, behind.

Henry Benfield raised eight sons and one daughter, all the sons becoming prominent farmers and business men. On Aug. 20, 1906, his descendants held a reunion at Huff's Church, the first gathering of this family, and six of his sons, as well as many grandchildren, were present on the occasion. Henry Benfield was born in Lynn township, Lehigh Co., Pa., Sept. 3, 1803, and in 1824 came to Hereford township, Berks county, where he worked one year for a Mr. Gluck, on the farm later owned by his son George and now the property of his grandson, Henry W. Benfield. He then learned the blacksmith's trade from Jacob Heydt, following that trade for several years, until he commenced farming on his own account. The rest of his active years he spent in agricultural work, from which he retired, however, many years before his death, which occurred Jan. 21, 1891, at the ripe age of eighty-seven years, four months, eighteen days. In his early years he was a teamster, hauling for different forges. He bought a farm of seventy-five acres above Bechtelsville, in Washington township, which is now the property of his grandson, William Benfield. Mr. Benfield was a Reformed member of the Hill Church, where he is buried. He was a tall man, with black hair and dark complexion. Henry Benfield married Sarah Becker, born July 4, 1806, died Feb. 22, 1886, aged seventy-nine years, seven months, eighteen days. Of their nine children, (1) David, born March 26, 1827, died Nov. 27, 1903; his wife, Anna Maria, born in 1830, died in 1904. David was in his younger years a teacher and later a very prosperous farmer in Washington township, and the possessor of considerable real estate, being the owner of the home of his father, Henry Benfield. (2) Abraham and (3) Daniel both became farmers and contractors and lumbermen, and are the owners of oil land in Ontario, Canada, where Daniel had lived many years, pumping oil from their wells. Both reside near Huff's Church, and live retired. (4) Henry was a shoemaker by trade, but started farming, and still later became interested in iron ore mining, in Longswamp township, Berks county, and neighboring localities. This was his vocation for many years. Later he also became a lumberman, in which line of business he continued up to his death. (5) Jacob and (6) Aaron both worked at their trades, but later became tillers of the soil, and both are still living, Jacob in Washington township, near Bechtelsville, and Aaron near Huff's Church. (7) George B. also was a farmer all his life, living near Bechtelsville. (8) Samuel, also a farmer, finally drifted into the hotel business, living in Lehigh county, having hotels at Wanamakers, Kempton and Emaus. All these brothers have been very industrious and are men of means and stand high in social circles. Their descendants are scattered far and wide, and have engaged in various vocations, being farmers, mechanics, educators, doctors, prominent business men, etc. Henry Benfield's only daughter, Elizabeth, now deceased, was the wife of Joseph Dotterer.

Most of the history given in the foregoing was contributed by Mr. Harry N. Benfield, son of Aaron Benfield, and now located at Pottstown, Pa. He is more fully mentioned later, in the paragraphs concerning his father.

Abraham Benfield, son of Henry, was born June 21, 1830. He learned the shoemaker's trade, which he followed at Norristown some years. He next engaged in lime burning in Washington township, and later hauled ore. In 1869 he bought 169 acres of land in District township, upon which was an old saw and grist mill, built in 1769. He remodeled the mill and put it in operation. He owns another farm in Washington township and a small tract in Hereford, and a limestone quarry in Upper Milford township, Lehigh county. Since 1900 he has lived retired in a tenant house on the old home farm. Though past fourscore years he is well preserved and active, still interested in all that goes on. For many years he was superintendent of the Sunday-school of the Reformed Church. In politics he is a Democrat. He married Lucinda Rohrbach, daughter of Nathan Rohrbach, a farmer of District township. They had ten children: Sarah, wife of Reuben Moll, of Hereford township; Seneca, a farmer of Washington township; Franklin N.; Mary Ann, deceased wife of Alfred M. Fisher, general store clerk; Andora, who became the second wife of Alfred M. Fisher; Amanda, wife of John D. Reifsnyder, a teacher then residing in District township, but now in Colebrookdale township; Ida, wife of Milton Gerhard, who operated a creamery at Womelsdorf, but is now farming his own farm in Washington township; Abraham R., in Allentown, Pa.; and James and Alfred, who both died in infancy.

Franklin N. Benfield, justice of the peace of District township, and director of the Farmers National Bank at Pennsburg, is a native of the borough of Bechtelsville, Washington township, born April 16, 1862. He attended the public schools of District township, a subscription school in Hereford township, and the Keystone State Normal School at Kutztown. He worked for his father on the farm until he was twenty-one, and the next year he became the manager of Huff's Church creamery for W. H. Young, and he conducted it for five years. In 1891 he rented the Benfield Mill, formerly Bechtel's Mill, a gristmill located in the northeast part of District township, near the Hereford township line. This mill he carried on for ten years. On March 8, 1901, he lost his right foot while clearing ice from the water wheel. In 1905 he purchased his father's farm and mill property, now having 136 acres of fine land. He has since then successfully operated both mill and farm, employing besides his own two sons two other men. He also has twenty-eight acres of wood and pasture land in the same township. In partnership with his father he owns one hundred acres of woodland in District township, and with Frank R. Meck a tract of twenty acres of woodland. With his uncle, Henry Benfield, he conducts a portable sawmill in the lower end of the county. In 1898 in partnership with Jonas Weiler he formed the Royal Dynamite Company, and for one year they manufactured dynamite, but since then Mr. Benfield has abandoned its manufacture, though he continues to buy and sell it. In the spring of 1908 he rented the mill to his son Claude E., who now operates it.

Franklin N. Benfield is an active Democrat, and in the spring of 1885 was made justice of the peace of his township, since which time he has been four times re-elected. For ten years he was committeeman of the township, and then declined to serve longer, but in 1908 he was again elected to the office. He is one of the political powers of his and surrounding districts. He and his family are Reformed members of Huff's Church, of which he was for four years treasurer for both denominations. He served four years each as deacon and elder of the church.

Since 1898 Mr. Benfield has been a director of the Farmers National Bank of Pennsburg, and since 1902 he has been secretary of the board. He is a director of the Windsor Mutual Accident and Fire Insurance Company, of Berks county, and is agent for the following companies: Steelton Mutual Fire Insurance Company; Manatawny Mutual Fire & Storm Insurance Company; Mutual Fire Insurance Company of Lehigh County; Mutual Fire Insurance Company of Berks County; Boyertown Fire Insurance Company; Farmers Mutual Assistance and Fire Insurance Company of Berks County; Tulpehocken Mutual Fire Insurance Company of Berks County.

On Nov. 17, 1883, Mr. Benfield was married to Mary Y. Siesholtz, daughter of David and Sarah (Yeakel) Siesholtz. She died Oct. 12, 1898, aged thirty-five years, nine months, twenty-two days. They had seven children, as follows: Eliza A., a highly educated young lady, who kept house for her father for several years, and who was organist of the church and Sunday-school, m., Jan. 20, 1909, James S. Shankweiler, who is conducting a dry goods store at Kutztown; Claude E., conducting the mill, m. Mary, daughter of Augustus Reinert, of Hereford township; Minnie S. m. Marvin Ledger, of Reading; and Irwin S., Mary A., Frank S. and Lillie S. are all in school. On Jan. 20, 1909, Mr. Benfield m. (second) Amanda Siesholtz, sister to his first wife.

George B. Benfield, son of Henry, was born Jan. 21, 1834, in the section of Hereford township now embraced in Washington township, and died on his farm at Forgedale July 19, 1898, aged sixty-four years, five months, twenty-eight days. He was a lifelong successful farmer, and owned the large place which his son Henry now owns. He was a highly respected man, a member of the Reformed congregation of the Hill Church, of which he served both as deacon and elder. Mr. Benfield married Mary Weller, born May 10, 1840, daughter of Philip and Mary (Heydt) Weller, of District township, died Aug. 20, 1904, aged sixty-four years, three months, ten days. Twelve children were born to this union: Ephraim died unmarried; Amanda m. Fred Weller; Rebecca m. Elijah Nester; Adam W. and Henry W. are mentioned farther on; Daniel is a resident of Hereford township; Jonathan lives in Pike township; Elam lives in Washington township; four died in infancy.

Adam W. Benfield, son of George B., was born Dec. 27, 1868, in Washington township, Berks county, and received a good education, beginning in the public schools of his native township. Later he attended the Longswamp high school and the Keystone State Normal School, at Kutztown, where he was a student for two terms. Meantime, assisting his father at home, he had gained a thorough knowledge of farming, and he continued to help at home until he was nineteen years old, attending school in the winter until he began to teach. He received his license in 1887, from Prof. D. S. Keck, and began his experience in Washington township, where he was engaged for eight terms. After that for five terms he was in District township, before he commenced farming, which he has followed on his own place in District township since the spring of 1909. His tract comprises seventy-eight acres of good land, which the present owner bought from Isaac Heydt, who was preceded in its ownership by David Heydt, and he in turn by a Mr. Reichert. There are good buildings on the property, from which Mr. Benfield makes a good living.

On June 1, 1895, Mr. Benfield was married to Ellen R. Hoffman, daughter of Jonathan and Elizabeth (Reitenauer) Hoffman, of Forgedale. They have had four children: Elmer C., Edna M., Cora V. and Ambrose J. Mr. and Mrs. Benfield are Reformed members of the historic Hill Church in Pike township, and he has served five years as deacon of that congregation. In politics he is a Democrat, and he has served in local offices. He has been treasurer and trustee of Council No. 1007, Order of Independent Americans, at Landisville, being one of the prominent members of that body.

Henry W. Benfield was born Feb. 24, 1871, in Washington township, Berks county, on the old homestead of his father and grandfather. Most of his life has been passed in farming. He attended the common schools of the home district, and worked for his parents on the farm until twenty-one years old, after which he was engaged as a clerk, serving in that capacity in stores at Huff's Church, Bechtelsville and South Bethlehem, one year in each place. Returning home, he hired out to his father for one year, in the spring of 1894 commencing to farm on his own account on his father's farm at Forgedale, in Washington township. He was a tenant for eleven years, in September, 1905, buying the place, which consists of eighty-nine acres in good condition and very fertile. The present barn was built in 1854 by Adam Boyer, and the house was built in 1881 by Mr. Benfield's father. Mr. Benfield keeps three horses and fourteen head of cattle, having a good dairy business in addition to his general farming interests. In politics he is a Democrat, and in 1908 served as school director in Washington township.

On Nov. 11, 1893, Mr. Benfield was married to Lillie G. Reitenauer, daughter of Benjamin and Mary (Gery) Reitenauer, and they have had four children, Mary A., Ida M., Eva S. and Lloyd B. Mr. Benfield and his family are Reformed members of the Hill Church, where he has served three years as deacon.

Aaron Benfield, son of Henry, was born June 14, 1842, in Pike township, in that section now included in Washington township. He attended the old pay school for one term, until the public school was established, after which he received the benefits of free education. When seventeen years old he went to learn the blacksmith's trade which he followed for eight years in all—two years in Frederick township, Montgomery county, and about half a year at the Black Bear, in Berks county, thence returning to Frederick township. In 1877 he began farming in Washington township, where he was thus engaged for eleven years, at the end of that time removing to Hereford township, where he has since made his home. In 1894 he purchased the farm of eighty-four acres upon which he has since lived, and which was the old Jacob Hoffman homestead. The present barn on the place was built in 1872, but many of the improvements were made by Mr. Benfield, who was known as a successful farmer throughout his active years. He retired from arduous labor in 1907, but his son Oscar had previously taken charge of the home place, which he has cultivated since 1895. Mr. Benfield owns another tract, of twenty-eight acres, near Oberholtzer's schoolhouse. Before settling at his present home he lived for fifteen years at Huff's Church, cultivating a twenty-three-acre tract in that location. His neighbors have shown their confidence in his business ability by electing him township treasurer. He is a Republican in politics. During the Civil war he enlisted at Norristown, April 7, 1865, for service in the Union army, becoming a private in Company D, 215th Pa. V. I., for one year or during the war, and served until after its close, being mustered out July 31, 1865, at Fort Delaware.

Mr. Benfield was married Oct. 2, 1866, to Maria Elizabeth Kepler, born Oct. 2, 1839, daughter of Copeland and Margaretha (Binder) Kepler, farming people of Upper Hanover township, Montgomery Co., Pa. Mrs. Benfield died Nov. 8, 1906, the mother of three children, Oscar, Harry N. and Elmer. All this family are Reformed members of Huff's Church.

Oscar Benfield, oldest son of Aaron, is farming on his father's place in Hereford township. He is married to Mary Gehris, and they have had children as follows: Gertie, Grace, Webster, Nevin, Mabel, Florence and Erma.

Harry N. Benfield, second son of Aaron, was born in 1871, in Washington township, Berks county, and received his early education in the township schools, later going to the schools of Hereford, where he finished the course. In the fall of 1890 he entered the Keystone State Normal School at Kutztown, but left the same year to begin teaching, which profession he has followed ever since, having filled positions in Berks, Lehigh and Montgomery counties before taking his present position in Chester county, in the fall of 1908. He is now supervising principal of Coventry township, Chester county. For two years he taught the west Pottsgrove township high school, at Stowe, Montgomery county. Mr. Benfield has never neglected his studies in spite of his work, having taken a preparatory course in Schuylkill Seminary, at Fredericksburg, Lebanon county, and in 1900 he graduated from the Keystone State Normal School. He is now doing post-graduate work at a college.

He married Elizabeth Kemp, of District township, Berks county. They have no children. Mr. Benfield is the historian of the Benfield family, of which he is preparing a history.

Elmer Benfield, now engaged as a carpenter at Marysville, worked at his trade in car shops in Philadelphia for ten years, being employed as a car inspector. He has been twice married, his first wife being Maleira Wetzel, who died in 1903. They had no children. In 1905 Mr. Benfield married Maggie Rohrbach, by whom he has one daughter, Myrtle.

RHOADS. The Rhoads family is one of the oldest in Berks county, having been planted here in the early days of the eighteenth century, some accounts give the year 1710, by several brothers of the name, one of whom was (I) John Jacob Rhoads. His nationality is uncertain, and in the early tax lists and records his name is also spelled Roth and Roads. In 1753 he was a taxable resident of Amity township, Berks county, and owned considerable land. He was a man of affairs, and operated a paper mill in Amity township. Tradition has it that one of the sandstone tombstones east of Amityville church, whose inscription has become illegible by time, marks his grave. His children were: (1) Lena m. Henry Baum. (2) Jacob in 1778 was a captain in the Revolutionary army. He m. Susanna Yocum, and their children were: Hannah, Daniel, John, Jacob, Samuel and Elizabeth. (3) Matthias was a lieutenant colonel in the Revolution. He m. Elizabeth Gotterin, and had children: Mary, Esther, Capt. Jacob, Joseph, Abraham and John. (4) Daniel m. Magdalena Kerst, and is mentioned below. (5) Mary m. Major George Lorah, a Revolutionary patriot. (6) Elizabeth m. Major George Lorah after the death of her sister Mary. (7) Samuel m. Elizabeth Auvenshine, and had children: William, John, Daniel, Samuel, Abraham, Elizabeth and two sons that died young. (8) Christina m. Jacob Griesemer. (9) John m. Catharine Greiner, and had children: Jacob, Hannah, John, Catharine, George, Mary, Eleanor, Elizabeth, William and Samuel.

(II) Daniel Rhoads, son of John Jacob, was born in Amity township, and there died. He was a farmer near Yellow House. Both he and his wife were Lutherans and are buried at Amityville. By his wife, Magdalena Kerst, he had twelve children, namely: David and Peter died young; Samuel died aged twenty years; Jacob died unmarried; John; Solomon died unmarried; Adam died at the age of eighty-eight years, unmarried; George; Daniel m. Catharine Schrader, and had children, Ammon (m. Leanna Rhoads) and Levi; Henry died in infancy; Abraham; and Mary m. George Lorah.

(III) Abraham Rhoads, son of Daniel, was born in Amity township Jan. 20, 1802, and died April 21, 1865, and is buried at Amityville. He was a farmer. He was twice married, his wives being sisters. He m. (first) Elizabeth Lorah, and their children were: Hannah m. John F. Guldin; Mary died unmarried; Daniel L.; and Amanda m. Hon. D. B. Brunner, a member of the Fifty-First and Fifty-Second Congresses. He m. (second) Hannah Lorah (1816-1883), but no children were born to this marriage.

(IV) Daniel L. Rhoads, son of Abraham, and for many years president of the National Bank of Boyertown, was born Oct. 28, 1837, and died at his residence at Yellowhouse in Amity township, Oct. 10, 1896. He was reared to farm life in Amity township, and was educated in the common schools and later in Norristown Academy under the tutelage of Samuel Aaron, afterward attending a preparatory school at East Hampton, Mass. Coming home after his school days were ended, he resumed work on the farm, and in time became the owner of the old Rhoads homestead of 130 acres of fine land. Upon the establishment of the National Bank of Boyertown, he became one of its first directors and soon thereafter its president, an office which he filled most efficiently until his death, bringing the bank to a high degree of prosperity, and establishing it as one of the sound financial institutions of the county. In 1873 he built a large brick residence at Yellowhouse, and there his widow still makes her home. In his religious belief he was a Lutheran, while his wife belongs to the Reformed Church at Amityville. The present Union Church was erected at Amityville during his active days, and he served on the building committee, and gave liberally of both time and means toward the erection of the present church edifice. In politics he was greatly interested, and he served at one time as prison inspector of Berks county. He was one of the very foremost men of the township and lower Berks county, and in every position he was found to be strictly honest and fair in his dealings and in his life. On Feb. 18, 1864, he married Catharine E. Rhoads, daughter of Ezekiel and Susanna K. (Bertolet) Rhoads. Ezekiel Rhoads (son of Samuel and Elizabeth Rhoads, grandson of Jacob, and great-grandson of John Jacob the emigrant ancestor) was a tailor and farmer, and became very wealthy and influential in his community. To Daniel L. and Catharine E. Rhoads was born one son, Abraham, who died aged three years. Mrs. Rhoads resides, as is stated, in the home on the Douglassville and Yellowhouse turnpike. She is well posted on current events, and is a cultured woman, highly esteemed by all.

(III) Daniel Rhoads, son of Daniel and Magdalena (Kerst) Rhoads, m. Catharine Schrader, and they became the parents of two children, namely: Ammon, m. to Leanna Rhoads, and mentioned below; and Levi.

(IV) Ammon Rohads, son of Daniel, was born July 16, 1830, and died Oct. 9, 1869. He passed all his life as a farmer in Amity and Oley townships, moving to the latter in 1869. He owned two farms in Oley township, one of seventy and one of fifty acres, both of the best land in that district. When he purchased the seventy-acre farm in 1869, just before his death, he paid $14,000.70 for it. In politics he was a Democrat, and held a number of offices, and was an active and enterprising man. He and his wife both belonged to the Amityville Church, he serving many years as deacon and elder, and holding the latter office at the time of his death. He and his wife are buried in the Rhoads plot at the Church. In 1851-52 he married Leanna Rhoads, daughter of William and Susan (Hoffman) Rhoads, of Amity. She was born Aug. 30, 1830, and died Jan. 24, 1902, the mother of two sons: Daniel R., born Jan. 9, 1853, died Feb. 18, 1897; and William R.

(V) William R. Rhoads, son of Ammon, was born July 1, 1860, at the old Rhoads home in Amity township. He was educated in the township schools, Amityville Academy and Oley Academy, the latter taught by Profs. George H. Heffner and Daniel Schadler. He worked for his parents until he was thirty years of age. In 1890 he began in the butcher business at Amityville, and continued this business very successfully for six years, when he rented it to D. F. Frey, later selling to him. During the time Mr. Rhoads was engaged in butchering he killed from five to twenty head of cattle, five to twenty-five calves, and from ten to twenty hogs per week, selling as much as 4,200 pounds of meat per week to Philadelphia, where he had a very extensive market. He employed from two to five men all the time. He also operated four teams in the country around Amityville, and had a meat store in Birdsboro. He now resides in one of the best places in Amityville, his handsome residence with its beautiful lawn being one of the most delightful spots in a most delightful locality. Since his retirement in 1896 he has been practically retired from all active work, except for occasional deals in cattle. He owns a farm of 186 acres of good land in Douglass township, formerly the Jeremiah Romig homestead, which is now tenanted. He is interested in the overall factory at Amityville which employs about twenty hands. Until 1908 he was a director and secretary of the Conestoga Telephone Company. In politics Mr. Rhoads is a Democrat, and had served as supervisor of his township, and in other local offices. He is active in party work, and wields considerable influence. Mr. Rhoads has been a member of the Knights of the Golden Eagle, of Amityville, since its organization, and has been the treasurer from the first. He and his family are Lutheran members of St. Paul's Church of Amityville, and he was a deacon for six years.

In October, 1885, Mr. Rhoads married Mary A. Spohn, daughter of Jeremiah and Rachel (Auchey) Spohn, of Oley township. They have two children: Kate, who is the forelady in the overall factory; and Charles N.

ELI M. RAPP, county superintendent of public schools since 1896, was born at Friedensburg, Berks county, March 20, 1865, and when he was five years old his parents removed to Lyons, in Maxatawny township. He attended the township school and the Oley Academy, and after teaching public school for three years, entered the Keystone State Normal School, from which he was graduated in 1886, having paid for his tuition by his own earnings. He also became a graduate of the Chautauqua Literary and Scientific Circle after a course of four years; and in 1894 he took a course in the University of Pennsylvania in pedagogy and psychology with laboratory courses. During this time he was principal of the Lyons grammar school, the Fleetwood high school, and the Hamburg high school. In 1896 he was elected county superintendent of the public schools, and he has been re-elected four times, his present term expiring in 1911, which evidences his success and popularity.

In 1886, he was married to Annie Merkel, daughter of William Merkel, of Fleetwood, by whom he has three children, Herbert, Scott and Maud.

Prof. Rapp is a son of Amos Rapp, who was engaged in the grain, coal and lumber business at Lyons for many years. His paternal and maternal ancestors came from Germany, and were among the early settlers of Berks county. On his mother's side he is a descendant of Rev. Jacob Miller, a Lutheran minister in the county from 1808 until his death in 1850, the last twenty-one years as pastor of Trinity Lutheran Church at Reading.

SCHWARTZ. The first of this family to settle in Pennsylvania came from Germany, and was married after his arrival in this country, his wife's maiden name being Nye. She was the mother of his son John, the next in line in the branch of the family we are tracing, and died when he was only a few years old. The father afterward moved to Shamokin, Pa., and there married again.

John Schwartz, born Jan. 11, 1769, died Aug. 10, 1807. In early life he conducted the "Black Horse Tavern," near Adamstown, Lancaster county, and while there met and married Rachel Adam, born July 4, 1769, daughter of Bernhart Adam, the founder of Adamstown. She long survived her husband, living until July 2, 1851, being just two days less than eighty-two years old. After his marriage John Schwartz moved to Cumru township, this county, where he bought a farm which he cultivated until his death, which was caused by a fall from a barn door at night; his injuries resulted in his death nine days later. He left five children, namely: Joseph, born Jan. 9, 1797, m. Sarah Homan; Thomas, born Feb. 6, 1795, died at Pine Grove, Schuylkill county, Jan. 11, 1854; William is mentioned below; Peggy m. Nicholas Madeira, of Reading; James, born June 6, 1805, died Aug. 12, 1879, and his wife, Susan, born June 19, 1814, died at the age of seventy-six years, eight months.

William Schwartz, son of John, was born in Reading in 1799 and died in that city in 1861, aged sixty-two years. In his early life he was a miller, and with his brothers Joseph and James conducted the historic old mill which obtained its water-power from the Wyomissing creek. He owned a farm of seventy-two acres in Cumru township, which is now the property of his son's widow, Mrs. William S. Schwartz. At the time of his death he was a merchant at the northwest corner of Tenth and Penn streets, Reading, being a member of the grocery firm of A. H. & W. Schwartz; his partner was his nephew, Adam H. Schwartz. Mr. Schwartz is buried in the family lot in the Charles Evans cemetery. He married Magdalena Seidel, born in 1804, daughter of Nicholas Seidel, who was an extensive land owner in the vicinity of Reading. Mrs. Schwartz died in her seventy-fifth year. She was the mother of three children: William S., Alvin F. (who died unmarried in 1871, aged twenty-eight years), and Henry N.

William S. Schwartz, son of William, born in Reading Dec. 27, 1840, died there Aug. 4, 1895, at his home, No. 25 South Tenth street. He was a well-known business man, having kept a livery stable on Cherry street, below Sixth, for some years, later engaged in the butchering business, and subsequently in the manufacture of cigars in partnership with Samuel Lotz, and in the manufacture of hats in partnership with William Donahower. Later he conducted the "Three Mile House" at Shillington for four years, and in 1891 he and his brother Henry built the famous "Summit Hotel" on Mount Penn, a spacious three-story stone building of about thirty rooms. It is located 1,200 feet above sea level, and the view is one of the grandest to be obtained anywhere in the eastern part of the United States. This hotel is still owned by his widow and brother, the latter conducting it.

Mr. Schwartz was twice married. By his first wife, Hannah Bridegam, he had no children. On March 30, 1886, Mr. Schwartz m. (second) Emily S. Dengler, daughter of Madison and Catharine (Rudy) Dengler, and granddaughter of George and Christina (Luther) Dengler. Mrs. Schwartz's father was a railroad engineer in his earlier life, and later conducted a restaurant in Reading, at Eighth and Penn streets. To Mr. and Mrs. Schwartz were born four children, Alvin D., William B., Mazie E. and Katharine M. The family belong to St. Andrew's Reformed Church of Reading.

Henry N. Schwartz, youngest son of William, was born March 23, 1846, in Reading, at the corner of Tenth and Penn streets, and was educated in the public schools of the city. On Jan. 29, 1864, he enlisted at Reading in Durrell's Battery (D), Pennsylvania Volunteer Artillery, and served until June 13, 1865. He was in active service in the battle of the Wilderness and at the siege of Petersburg. On a previous enlistment, in July, 1863, in Company B, 53d Pennsylvania Regiment, Mr. Schwartz had been in the service for about two months.

After the war he engaged in farming, in Cumru township, for eight years, and since 1880 he has been continuously in the hotel business. He has conducted the hotel at Tenth and Penn streets, Reading, the "Five Mile House," and the "Summit Hotel," at Mount Penn, which he built in partnership with his elder brother, William S. Schwartz, and which he has conducted since 1891. Its picturesque location and comfortable accommodations make it a very desirable hostelry, and it is well patronized the year round.

In 1867 Henry N. Schwartz married Mary Bickel, daughter of Elias and Mary (Rothenberger) Bickel, of Heidelberg township, and to this union were born four children: Harry B.; Ella, m. to Charles Sheidy, of New York; Alice; and Minnie, m. to George Leinbach, of Reading. Fraternally Mr. Schwartz is a member of Aerie No. 66, F. O. E., of Reading.

LUTZ. The Lutz family of Albany township, Berks county, Pa., and of Lynn township, in what is now Lehigh county, is said to have had its origin in three brothers who emigrated to America from Switzerland. The date of their arrival is somewhat uncertain, but it is known that at least one of them located in the vicinity of Steinsville, in Northampton (now Lehigh) county. The existence of a Frederick Lutz, born in 1742, and who married in Lehigh county one Elizabeth Eckroth, is established and proved by record. Tradition has different names for the other two brothers, if there were such. Frederick and Elizabeth Lutz are credited with the following sons: Jacob, Peter, Frederick, John, Christian and Henry. There were also two daughters, Mrs. Henry Hartman and Mrs. Hill. Eve Lutz, daughter of Christian, married Nathan Ebert of Headleville, Columbia Co., Pa., and lived to a very ripe old age. According to her, Frederick Lutz came from Germany and was a tailor by trade. It is well to note however, that people of that day used the term "Germany" in the broad sense of "old country," and thus Frederick and his two brothers may have come from Switzerland.

Frederick Lutz (2), son of Frederick (1), was born June 5, 1771, and died Jan. 1, 1823. He married Catharine Stapleton, born May 4, 1783, died Feb. 26, 1858, and they had issue as follows, all born at Steinsville: Reuben, Oct. 27, 1803, Lydia, Feb. 13, 1805, Samuel, Nov. 3, 1806, Joseph, Oct. 12, 1808, Ann, Jan. 1st 1812, Presena, Dec. 25, 1815, David, Sept. 22, 1817, Isaac, April 2, 1819, Benneville, June 16, 1823.

John Lutz, son of Frederick (1) and grandfather of Edwin S. Lutz, was born in Lynn township, Northampton (now Lehigh) county, April 11, 1773, and died July 10, 1819, being buried at Jacksonville, Pa. He was a farmer near Steinsville, cultivating the farm now owned by Charles Lutz, together with the farm of James S. Lutz, and the tract owned by Daniel F. Lutz. His wife was Franconia, daughter of John Hamm. She lived to the advanced age of ninety-one years, and was the mother of the following children: Samuel, who lived in Lynn township, m. Catharine Knepper, and had John, Michael and Samuel; Christian, father of Edwin S., is referred to later; Isaac, grandfather of Wellington L. Lutz, is mentioned later; Daniel, who lived on part of his father's homestead (now owned by Daniel Lutz, his son), m. a Miss Fegley, and among his children were: Daniel, Elihu (who lives at Jacksonville), James (of Philadelphia), Amanda and Mary; Kate, m. Samuel Smith; Maricha m. Christian Knepper.

Christian Lutz, father of Edwin S., was born June 11, 1804, and died at the age of sixty, Aug. 17, 1864. A farmer through life, he owned the property now cultivated by Edwin S. Together with his farming operations, Christian Lutz engaged extensively in the distilling business, burning apple-jack during the fall of the year, the still-house having stood by the creek about two hundred feet southwest from the house in which Edwin S. now resides. He was also a skilled weaver of both wool and flax. Politically he was a Democrat, and served with efficiency as supervisor for a number of years. Early in life a member of the Reformed Church at Jacksonville, he later transferred his membership to the New Bethel Church, of which he was deacon and elder.

Christian Lutz married Sarah, daughter of John Smith. She was born in Albany June 19, 1803, and died there March 18, 1894, at the advanced age of ninety years, eight months, twenty-nine days. They had a family of eleven children: Catharine, born in 1827, died in 1828; Maria M., born 1828 (m. Daniel Braucher); Anna Maria, born 1830, died 1833; Abraham, born 1831 (living at Kempton, Pa., m. Catharine Bailey, and their children are Elias, Walter, Mary, Emma and Janetta); Elias, born 1834 (living in Albany), m. Amanda Trexler (deceased) and had children, Simon, Sarah, Mary Ann, Lewis, Oscar and Elmer (m. to Annie C. Snyder); Edwin S., born 1835; Harrison, born 1837 (living at Tiffin, Ohio, m. Susannah Burkholder); Sarah, born 1840, died 1875, m. Levi Graver (deceased); a daughter, born 1841, died unnamed; Maria Anna, born 1844, died 1845; Lovina, born 1847, m. Jacob Berk.

Edwin S. Lutz, son of Christian and great-grandson of Frederick (1), is a retired farmer and shoemaker in Albany township, living about one mile southwest of Steinsville. He was born on the farm on which he now resides, May 1, 1835, and passed the period of his boyhood on the homestead, being apprenticed when sixteen years old to the shoemaker's trade with a well known shoemaker of that day,—William Long. He continued to follow this trade for thirty-five years, making many pairs of boots and shoes, there being no shoe factories in those days. In 1864, upon the death of his father, Mr. Lutz took the farm at appraisement, and in the spring of 1865 began its cultivation. This he continued with great success until 1901, when he gave up the activities of life and retired to enjoy the competency which he has accumulated. The farm upon which Mr. Lutz resides consists of 130 acres about eighty acres of which are under cultivation. It is known as good "potato" land. Prior to coming into the hands of Mr. Lutz's father it was owned by George Greenawald, to whom it had been sold by Peter Frees. The buildings now on the farm were put up by the present owner, the house in 1876, and the barn in 1891. Mr. Lutz and his family are members of New Bethel Church, belonging to the Reformed congregation of which he served as deacon and elder a number of years.

On Feb. 21, 1863, Mr. Lutz married Mary Ann Trexler, daughter of Jarius and Catharine (Faust) Trexler, of Albany. She was born March 28, 1844, and she died Feb. 13, 1900. The following children were born to this union; Cecilia N. m. John Hamm; John C. is mentioned below; Emma L. m. James Lins, a printer at Reading; George W. is mentioned later; Charles E., born June 14, 1870, died July 21, 1889; Alvin J., born July 11, 1874, died June 18, 1889; Lena C. m. Lewis Hemerly, and they cultivate the old homestead; William C., born May 9, 1880, died Aug. 27, 1880; Frank E. m. Minnie Weaver, and now resides at Lynnport.

John C. Lutz was born at the old homestead Feb. 11, 1865. He was reared to farm life, obtaining his education in the schools of his home township. At twenty he began business on his own account on the farm which he has since cultivated, located near Mountain, on the road leading from Steinsville to Drehersville. He bought this farm from Jonas Werner, his father-in-law, who had obtained it from Simon Smith, and he from Samuel Smith. It contains 158 acres of choice land, most of which is under a high state of cultivation. Mr. Lutz has it well stocked and is a successful farmer. His house is a large stone residence, and the barn was built in the year 1851 by Samuel Smith. Mr. Lutz holds membership in Steinsville Lodge, No. 249, I. O. O. F., and is a member of the Loyal Association, a branch of Odd Fellowship, with headquarters at Boston, Mass. His political allegiance is given to the Democratic party, and he is the present supervisor of Albany township, elected in the spring of 1909. Since 1908 he has been president of the Lutz Family Reunion, an organization which holds yearly meetings at stated places. Mr. Lutz has lived at his present location since his young manhood with but one interval of a year and a half. In 1887 he went to Sedgwick county, Kans., where he was engaged in farming until called home because of the death of two of his brothers and his grandmother.

In 1896 Mr. Lutz married Rosa Werner, daughter of Jonas Werner, a worthy and respected farmer of Albany township. She died Aug. 12, 1901, aged forty-two years, leaving two sons, Albert E. and John C. His present wife was Fianna Seidel, daughter of Henry and Emma (Balthaser) Seidel, farming people of Windsor township. One son has been born to this union, Norman H.

George W. Lutz, brother of John C., lives on a farm near Mountain, in Albany township. His birth occurred May 29, 1868, and he was reared on the old homestead and remained with his parents until his majority. He then farmed for two years on his father's farm. In 1903 he removed to the farm on which he now resides, consisting of 120 acres of rich land, and annually devotes from ten to fifteen acres to potatoes. The buildings on this farm are in fine condition at the present day, the old "Stapleton" buildings all having been removed save the barn, which has been thoroughly remodeled; the original was built in 1835. A landmark of the early days is the foundation of a dwelling which served several Stapleton generations and is still standing, a summer house being built on it. In it is a never-failing spring and over it was built a dwelling which is still standing, it having been the custom in the early days to build over a spring if possible. The history of the farm runs back from Mr. Lutz, who purchased it in 1902, from Jesse Wagner of Hamburg; he bought it from Joel Baer; he from Levi Graver, who had bought it from Gideon Stapleton. Mr. Stapleton received it from his father Robert, who in turn had received it from his father, Tobias Stapleton; the latter came to Albany from Oley township.

Mr. Lutz is a Democrat, and is a man of fine public spirit. He served a term of three years as auditor of Albany township, and after an interval was again elected, in 1908, and is at present giving efficient service in the office. He is a Reformed member of the New Bethel (Corner) Church, while his wife is a Lutheran member of the same church. On May 30, 1895, Mr. Lutz married Lorena Kunkel, daughter of Benjamin and Sarah (Hartman) Kunkel. Four children have come to them: Alma S., born in 1896 (died in 1904); Olive M., 1897 (died in infancy); Marion E., and Ira G.

Isaac Lutz, son of John and grandson of Frederick (1), passed his early life at Steinsville, later coming to Albany township, where he carried on blacksmithing at the point where now resides William Schroeder. He lived to the age of seventy-two, dying in 1876, and is buried at Steinsville. His wife was Sybilla Schmidt, who lies in the cemetery at Drehersville. Their children were as follows: Mary m. Daniel Bower; Lenius is referred to later; Caroline m. Joel Focht; Henry died on the battlefield in the Cival war; Hannah m. Benjamin Hagenbuch; Sally became the second wife of Benjamin Hagenbuch; Rebecca m. a Mr. Moll.

Lenius Lutz, father of Wellington L., was born in Albany, April 7, 1834, and died in middle age, Aug. 24, 1880. His trade was that of a blacksmith. For several years after his marriage he lived where Benjamin Trexler now resides, and there his daughter Alice and son Wellington were born. He then bought the farm which his son Wellington now owns, and at that place carried on blacksmithing until his death. He was a Democrat in politics, and was a Reformed member of New Bethel Church, being deacon thereof. On Oct. 10, 1857, in Maxatawny township, by the Rev. Mr. Roller, Mr. Lutz was married to Eliza, daughter of George and Hetty (Miller) Leibensberger, of Maxatawny township. Mrs. Lutz was born April 29, 1841, and passed away Aug. 28, 1905. She and her husband lie in the old graveyard at New Bethel Church, where substantial monuments mark their last resting places. Ten children were born to them as follows: Morzi Elmira, born Sept. 8, 1858 (died March 28, 1860); Alice J., April 8, 1861; Wellington L., mentioned later; Allen, mentioned below; Ellen, Feb. 2, 1868; Lora Ann, June 9, 1870 (died 1870); Kate Ann, July 2, 1871; Charles A., mentioned later; Mahlon L., March 30, 1877 (died April 20, 1887); Missouri, July 11, 1879.

Wellington L. Lutz was born in Albany, Sept. 3, 1863, and has passed his life as a farmer and blacksmith. He received such education as could be secured in the public schools of the township, and his father being a blacksmith, very early learned to be of service at the forge, so early that it was necessary to keep a box standing by the anvil in order that he might reach it readily. He continued with his father until his death, then in 1881 worked in West Penn township, Schuylkill county. After a year he returned to Albany township, and continued the trade at his father's stand. He owns the homestead farm, and operates it in connection with his blacksmithing. This farm is known as a "Hackenbuc" farm, and came into the possession of Mr. Lutz in 1887. It consists of forty-five acres of fine land of great productive quality. The present commodious house was built in 1878 by his father, who also built part of the barn, that building having been finished by our subject. Mr. Lutz is known as the busiest of men, his reputation as a blacksmith drawing from a radius of many miles. However, he finds time to take an active part in the affairs of his local community. He is a Democrat in politics and acted as committeeman several years, during which he was frequently called to Reading. He believes in public improvements and favors substantial advancement. He and his family are Reformed members of the New Bethel Church, of which Mr. Lutz has served as deacon, and is now a member of the building committee.

On Oct. 10, 1885, Mr. Lutz married Ellen M. Grim, daughter of Daniel and Eliza (Lenhart) Grim, of Lenhartsville, and their children are: Alvin D., m. to Ida Snyder; Mahlon L., unmarried, a blacksmith in the employ of his father; Gertie A.; Howard O.; George E. and Verna E.

Allen Lutz, son of Lenius and Eliza Lutz, is one of the prosperous farmers of Albany township where he was born April 22, 1866. He was reared to farm life, and received a common school education. Working out for a period of a year, he in the spring of 1885 began farming in Albany township on the Jacob Berk farm. After a year he went to Windsor where he cultivated the Reuben Miller farm for some four years. For the next seven years he lived with his father-in-law, John Hamm, of Albany township. In the spring of 1900, having purchased his present place the year before from Mahlon K. Trexler, he moved thereon and has continued to reside upon it since. This farm consists of 100 acres of the finest potato land in Berks county. It is well located, and is one of the most level farms in the township. The large brick house was built by Jonas Smith during the forties; he also built the barn in 1853. This place is a fine country home.

Mr. Lutz is a Democrat in politics, and takes an intelligent interest in the public life of his community. As school director of Albany township for six years he evidenced by his works his desire for the best to be had in educational facilities. He and his family are Reformed members of the New Bethel church, and active in its work, he having served as deacon and treasurer.

Mr. Lutz married in January, 1883, Sarah A. Hamm, daughter of John and Kate (Knepper) Hamm, of Albany township. Four daughters came to the home: Ida E. m. Alfred Bachman, of Kempton; Nora J. m. Llewellyn Faust, of the Albany creamery; Ellen R. and Edna K. are at home.

Charles A. Lutz, third son of Lenius and Eliza Lutz, is engaged in blacksmithing at Kempton, Pa. A native of Albany township, born July 31, 1874, he passed his boyhood on his father's farm, securing the usual country school education. At eighteen he entered his brother Wellington's blacksmith shop, and two years later began business for himself at his present location. He enjoys large patronage from the surrounding country and is justly regarded as one of the best mechanics in the county. In connection with his blacksmith shop which is large and well-appointed, he carries on the kindred trade of wagon-making. Mr. Lutz is an industrious and respected citizen in his community. He is a Democrat and he and family are Reformed members of the New Bethel church. In November, 1901, he married Clara Snyder, daughter of Jonas and Catharine (Mosser) Snyder, of Albany township. One child has come to bless their home, Paul N. Lutz.

NEWTON RUSSELL TURNER, of Pottstown, Pa., was born at Douglassville, Amity township, Berks county. He attended the local common and private schools, and he was in the old eight-cornered school-house at Douglassville on Tuesday morning, Feb. 16, 1864, when his brother Cyrus (who was the chief clerk and salesman in the general store of Henry McKenty) walked into the room at Mr. McKenty's request and urged him to leave school and accept a position in the store. It was considered an honor in those days in that locality for a boy to secure a position with Mr. McKenty, because he was then the recognized leading man of affairs in the neighborhood, having had an up-to-date general store, retail coal yard, been freight, ticket and express agent and owner of the railroad station, treasurer of the Schuylkill Bridge Company at Douglassville, and owner of tenement houses and valuable real estate there; and no ambitious boy would have refused such an offer. The position having come to him unsolicited he, as a matter of course, accepted, left the school-room, and entered the store as clerk and salesman without going home to consult his parents until noon, when he obtained their approval. He was there three months when Mr. McKenty, in May, 1864, selected him to assist in looking after the increasing business of the railroad station, and he continued in the station at Douglassville as clerk, performing the duties of station agent from July 4, 1864, until Mr. McKenty sold the station, including the coal yard, in 1867, when he entered the freight and ticket office of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad Company at Bridgeport, Pa., remaining there five months.

Later he filled the following positions with this company: station agent at Royersford; clerk in freight office at Reading; clerk in freight and ticket office at Pottsville; May 15, 1873, appointed station agent and later general agent at Williamsport; March, 1877, transferred to the general freight agent's office in Philadelphia, and three years later appointed division general freight agent, which last position he resigned in 1886. He then devoted much of his time to travel, visiting many places on the Pacific coast, the Yosemite Valley, the Rocky Mountain region (including Yellowstone National Park), Salt Lake City, the Great Mammoth Cave in Kentucky, and other prominent places of interest in this country and Canada.

In 1882 Mr. Turner was elected secretary of the General Freight Agents' Association of the Middle States and was re-elected annually for three years. In 1885 he assisted in organizing the Freight Traffic Association of the Middle States (successor to the organization mentioned), was elected secretary, and continued to hold this position until 1890. In 1887, at Niagara Falls, he helped to organize the General Freight Agents' Mutual Aid Society, and became its first secretary; and he continued to be the secretary until 1890, when he severed his connection with the railroad, though he continued to be (and is still) a contributing member of the society.

In 1889 and 1890 Mr. Turner was the general freight and passenger agent of the Central New England & Western Railroad Company (Poughkeepsie Bridge Route), with an office in Poughkeepsie. In 1891 he entered the employ of the Pottstown Iron Company, and he remained with the company until 1895, when he purchased the Sunbury Iron Works at Sunbury, operating them successfully until May 30, 1902, when they were totally destroyed by fire. He then resumed his residence in Pottstown, making his home with his sister (Mrs. Francis H. Hallman), and here he has continued until the present time, being principally engaged in private real estate transactions. He takes especial interest in looking after his improved properties, which he keeps in the best repair, not permitting them to depreciate because of neglect.

While at Philadelphia Mr. Turner became a member of the Union League in 1880 and he has continued his membership until the present time. In 1896 he was elected an active life member, and he has kept up his active interest in this prominent patriotic and social organization by going there frequently, notwithstanding his residence at Pottstown. Being interested in historical subjects, Mr. Turner has also become an active member of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania at Philadelphia.

Mr. Turner has been a member of the Masonic fraternity for thirty years, and is a life member of the Crescent Boat Club of Philadelphia. He was one of the organizers and is still a member of the Colonial Club, and also of the Automobile Club, of Pottstown. While a young man at Douglassville he identified himself with St. Gabriel's Protestant Episcopal Church and for a time served as a vestryman. Since locating in Pottstown he has been a member of Christ Episcopal Church. (For antecedents, see sketch of brother, Amos Turner, following.)

AMOS TURNER, master mechanic of the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company for ten years, residing at Easton, Pa., was born at Douglassville, Amity township, Berks county. He was educated in the local schools. When quite a small boy, he displayed remarkable skill in mechanism and devoted many of his boyhood days in his father's wheelwright shop to make small wagons. His youthful efforts in this direction caused the loss of part of the left forefinger, but undaunted he continued his efforts, and before he was thirteen years old had succeeded in turning out a boy's four-wheeled wagon, and admittedly the largest, handsomest and best sled in use in those days. His generosity in permitting all the boys and girls to use this sled made him a great favorite with his associates.

After quitting school, in 1864, he entered the service of the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company as an apprentice in their shops at South Easton, to learn the trade of machinist. Soon after completing his apprenticeship he was appointed as one of the foremen in the shop, and later transferred to Perth Amboy, N. J., to take charge of the shop at that place; but he continued there for only a short time, the company appreciating his unusual ability and success and selecting him to be general foreman of the shop at Easton. In 1899 he was promoted to the position of master mechanic and this responsible position he has filled in a most successful manner until the present time. His period of service—upward of forty-five years—exceeds that of any other officer now in active service.

Mr. Turner took a very prominent part in the municipal affairs of South Easton for a number of years. After having served as a councilman he officiated as the chief burgess from 1887 to 1891; also in 1893 and 1897. The school affairs also received his active support. In 1896 he became a member of the school board, and during that year the board erected a large and commodious building which was named the "Asa Packer" school. Mr. Turner, as chairman of the building committee, selected the name in appreciation of the enterprise and generosity of the former president of the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company and founder of Lehigh University. It was while Mr. Turner was serving his last term as chief burgess that the consolidation of South Easton with Easton was earnestly advocated, and it was mainly through his influence that it was accomplished in June, 1898.

In 1870 Mr. Turner married Anna Vanderbilt Godley, daughter of William V. and Anna Godley, of Williams township, Northampton county, and they have two children: Sarah (married to Dr. Oscar M. Richards, of Easton) and Newton Russell (attorney at Easton, city solicitor, and United States commissioner). He and his family have been devoted members of Trinity P. E. Church at Easton during his residence there, and he has served as a vestryman of the congregation for a number of years. He has affiliated with the Freemasons there since 1874 as a member of Easton Lodge, No. 152.

Peter Turner, his father, was born April 10, 1800, near Hopewell Furnace, in Union township, Berks county. He was left an orphan when only a year old, and brought up by his mother's parents and his uncle, Absalom Lord. When quite young, he was apprenticed to a Mr. Jones, in Douglassville, to learn the wheelwright's trade, and he continued with Mr. Jones until he attained his majority; then he started in business on his own account and carried it on quite successfully for about thirty years, employing several men and giving them steady work. The demand for heavy wagons, such as he built and repaired, gradually decreased in that section of the country along the Schuylkill Valley after the railroad had begun to transport all kinds of merchandise, and he having combined farming with wheelwrighting he discontinued his trade about 1850 and devoted his time entirely to farming until 1861, when he retired. He died at Douglassville in 1865. He had served as a school director of the township for a number of years, and at the time of his death was a vestryman of St. Gabriel's Episcopal Church. For many years he was recognized as one of the most active members of the congregation, and it was principally through his efforts that a parsonage was erected in 1858. He was twice married, first to Margaret Ludwig, youngest daughter of John and Rachel (Morris) Ludwig, of Cumru township. She died in May, 1841, the mother of the following children: Louisa m. John Kohler; Catharine m. John C. Kerst; Caroline m. Henry Bush (she died in 1901); Emeline died in 1837; Lewis died in 1908; Rachel and Ellen reside at Douglassville; Cyrus L. resides at Allentown. In December, 1842, Peter Turner married Mrs. Sarah Donnelly, widow of George Donnelly, of West Chester, and second daughter of Joseph and Elizabeth Russell. By this marriage there were four children: Elizabeth died in childhood; Amos is mentioned above; Newton Russell is mentioned above; Annie m. Francis H. Hallman, of Pottstown. The mother, Sarah Turner, died in February, 1901, in her eighty-eighth year, at Pottstown, and is buried in St. Gabriel's Church Cemetery, Douglassville.

The grandfather, also named Peter, married Elizabeth Lord (sister of Absalom, Thomas, Joseph and Joshua), and Peter was their only child. The grandfather died in 1801. The ancestors of the Lords came from England, as did also the ancestors of Peter Turner, grandfather.

Mr. Turner's mother by her first marriage had one son, James Russell Donnelly, named after his great-grandfather, James Russell. He was born at West Chester, Pa., in 1834, entered the service of the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company with its engineer corps in 1852, and continued in its service, advancing step by step, until he became superintendent. He died in 1903. Mr. Turner's brother, Newton R., served twenty-six years in the traffic department of different railroads (as appears in his sketch); Cyrus L. is now passenger train conductor on the Perkiomen railroad, having been in the continuous service of that company since October, 1873; and Lewis Turner's two sons are both locomotive engineers, John with the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company, and James with the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company. A nephew of Mr. Turner, John T. Kerst, was with the Philadelphia & Reading Company and the Fall Brook Railroad Company from 1883 to 1898; but he is now conducting a business school in the Baer building at Reading.

Amos Turner's grandfather, Joseph Russell, was a native of Union township, Berks county, and for many years carried on the manufacture of gun-barrels and coffee-mill hoppers. In the war of 1812-15 he served as a corporal in the company of Capt. Jonathan Jones. He died in 1862, aged seventy-five years. He married Elizabeth Reifsnyder (daughter of Peter, of Montgomery county), and had nine children: Mary (m. Henry Antrim, of Mount Holly, N. J.); Sarah (m. Peter Turner); Washington (who became a sea-faring man); Peter (m. Sarah Sharp, of Wilkes-Barre, and became a prominent Episcopal rector at Mauch Chunk); George; Elizabeth (the only one now living, widow of Samuel Eagle, of Douglassville); Catharine (died when two years old); Harriet (died when eight months old); and James (died at the age of six years, nine months).

Mr. Turner's great-grandfather, James Russell, emigrated with his father, Thomas Russell, from Scotland on account of religious persecution about 1780, and located in the upper section of Chester county in the vicinity of Hopewell Furnace, where he married a widow, Mrs. Green (nee Updegrove).

His great-grandfather Peter Reifsnyder was a farmer of the upper section of Philadelphia county (afterward Montgomery), and served in the Revolution. He married Catharine Yost and they had six children: Philip, Andrew, Mary (m. Peter Bush), Elizabeth (m. Joseph Russell), Catharine (m. Jonas Warley), and Frances (m. Andrew Stubblebine). His first wife having died, he married Barbara Lachman and by her had ten children: Peter, Benjamin, John, Joseph, Charles, Tobias, Moses, Jacob, Rebecca and Harriet.

SAMUEL H. DAVIS, an honorable citizen of Reading, who has been identified with many phases of the development of that city, was born June 19, 1847, at Merthyr Tydvill, Wales, son of Samuel and Martha (Garnel) Davis.

Samuel Davis, the father, was born in Wales and died in his native land. His business was building and contracting, and these occupations filled out a busy life of fifty-eight years, his death occurring in January, 1872. His wife died at Scranton, Pa., in 1891, at the age of sixty-nine years. They had twelve children, of whom John died in Wales; James came to America in 1857; Samuel H. came several years later; Harry, Joseph and Elizabeth all came to America in 1889; George followed his brothers and sister in 1896; the others died in Wales. The family were Welsh Baptists in religious faith. Many natives of Wales settled very early in Berks county, and they have ever been classed with the best citizens.

Samuel H. Davis was fourteen years old when he left his school books and home and went to the north of England, where he found work in a rolling mill. After remaining there five years he made his way to Scotland and continued to work in iron mills until he was twenty-one years of age, when he came to America. He landed at old Castle Garden, whence he immediately proceeded to Reading, Pa., where he found employment in McManus's sheet mill, at which he had been engaged some two years when the strike of 1873 threw him out of work.

Mr. Davis then turned his attention to other things and in 1874 was employed by Robert Williams on the construction of the new Philadelphia & Reading depot, on which he worked from start to finish. Later he engaged with a Mr. Daniel Francis as a carpenter during the construction of the first horse car line on Sixth street, which was operated then by horsepower. This work lasted for several years and he then hired out to J. H. Sternbergh at the steel plant, working at the furnaces, and remained until he was promoted to be boss in three mills.

During this time Mr. Davis, in partnership with Walter A. Griesemer, under the firm name of Davis & Griesemer, erected a row of residences. The firm later went through several changes, becoming successively, Davis & Leinbach, Davis & Reiff, Davis, Ganter & Eichner, and finally Davis & Reiff. The row of stone-front modern residences mentioned contains nineteen houses, on Greenwich street, between Front and McKnight, of handsome construction, and they have given satisfaction to those who occupy them in every respect. Mr. Davis erected a home for himself at No. 134 North Fourth street, Reading, where he expects to spend the rest of his days in peace and comfort. It is of Indiana limestone, substantial and commodious, a desirable home in every respect and a credit to the locality. Mr. Davis is about to retire from active business pursuits to enjoy a well-earned rest. During all his energetic business life he has followed the rule of leading his workmen and taking the same chances they do. Clad in overalls, although his capital was being used in the different contracts being carried out, he looked and worked just like his men. This modest and unassuming manner won him high regard with the various artisans, and has done much to keep his men from making any serious inconvenience when labor troubles have annoyed almost every contractor and builder in the country. Mr. Davis has very kind memories of Jonathan G. Leinbach, whom he met in 1877, a perfect stranger, and during the many years of their business association they remained warm personal friends. In discussing the reasons for his success in business where many others who started out seemingly better equipped failed, Mr. Davis says that he has always kept in mind the old saying that he who attends carefully to his own business has his hands full.

In 1884 Mr. Davis was married to Mary Hoff, daughter of Bright Hoff, and a member of a family old and prominent in Reading. Away back in its early history, the grandfather of Mrs. Davis kept the hostelry which was well known in those days as the "Brighton Hotel." Mr. and Mrs. Davis have had two children, Paul and Walter, the latter dying aged three months. The former was born in 1885. From boyhood he was fond of athletic sports and for three years he managed the Scholastic League and also managed a team of ball players, while he was pursuing his studies at the Bethlehem Preparatory School. He has always been a favorite with lovers of athletic sports. At present he is working as an expert electrician at Reading, with Goldenberger & Lyons.

Mr. Davis has been a citizen of the United States ever since coming here, having taken out naturalization papers immediately. In political sentiment he has always been identified with the Republican party and has given hearty support to its candidates. He is very well known in political circles in the Sixth ward and has done yeoman service for the city in the line of public-spirited efforts, in that ward, for the past twenty years.

MOYER. On April 27, 1790, (I) Martin Moyer (also spelled Myer) made his last will and testament, and he died the following year. His will is recorded in Will Book A, p. 212, and his wife Magdalena, and his brother George, were the executors. The only children mentioned in the will were George, Jacob and Conrad, of whom George was the eldest, and Jacob second. It is certain that there were several other children.

The name appears in the early tax lists. In 1800 in Colebrookdale township were the following: John, $1.68; Conrad, $1.24; John, $.19; Samuel, $.12; and Jacob (estate) $.6. In 1805: John, $7.12, Conrad, $2.39; and Isaac $.82. In 1809: John, $5.43; Conrad, $1.82; Isaac, $.59; and Martin, $.21. In 1805 two Moyers paid taxes in Earl township: John, $1.43; and Abraham, $.25; and in that same township in 1809 Henry Moyer paid $1.75. In April, 1829, Abraham Moyer made his will, and died the following October in Hereford township, leaving his wife Anna, and children as follows: John, Abraham, Francis, Catharine (Gerhard), Esther (born 1784, died 1880, m. Daniel Nester) and Nancy (m. Jacob Nester). Casper Moyer (also spelled Meyer) was a taxable in Hereford township in 1758, and again in 1759, in the latter year paying fourteen pounds. He is thought to have been the ancestor of many of the name in the southeastern part of the county. Among his sons were: Jacob, in 1744, an innkeeper in Colebrookdale township, and the father of a son, Jacob; George; and Martin. Tradition says that the Berks county Moyers spring from a common ancestor.

(II) Conrad Moyer, son of Martin and Magdalena, in 1791 lived on his father's farm in Colebrookdale township, as is indicated by his father's will. His name appears in the above lists as a taxable of that township.

(III) Joseph Moyer, son of Conrad, was born in 1791, and he lived in Colebrookdale township, one and one-half miles northwest of Bechtelsville, where he followed his trade of harness making, and also engaged in farming. He died in 1861, and is buried at Hill Church, to which he and his family belonged. He married Elizabeth Reitenauer, who was born at the store at Hill Church. Their children were: Charles; and Daniel, who lived in Hanover township, Montgomery Co., Pa., and had children—David, Elizabeth, Mary, William and Amandus.

(IV) Charles Moyer, son of Joseph and Elizabeth, was born in Colebrookdale township on the old Moyer homestead, in 1825, and he died in the spring of 1907. He was a farmer during his active days, but the last thirty years of his life he lived retired at Bechtelsville. He owned the old homestead of ninety acres in Colebrookdale township, and this is now owned by his son, Tobias H. His ballot was cast in support of the Democratic party, and for some years he served as school director. He and his family were members of Hill Church until Bechtelsville church was built. Of the latter he was one of the organizers and a liberal contributor. He helped to organize the Hill Church Cemetery Company, and at the time of his death was one of its trustees. He was well and favorably known throughout his district. He married Anna Henrich, daughter of Jacob and Anna (Muthart) Henrich. She died in December, 1906, in her seventy-eighth year. To Charles and Anna (Henrich) Moyer were born the following children: Ephraim, of New Berlinville, Pa.; Joseph H., of Bechtelsville; Elizabeth (m. Alfred Brumbach); Tobias H., of Bechtelsville; William, of Colebrookdale township; Jeremiah H.; Frank, of New Berlinville, formerly county commissioner of Berks county; Olivia (m. Frank Minner, of Allentown, Pennsylvania).

(V) Joseph H. Moyer, son of Charles, and now vice president of the Farmers National Bank, Boyertown, was born on the old Moyer homestead, in Colebrookdale township, March 4, 1849. He attended the public schools, and was reared to farm work. As a young man he learned the cigar maker's trade, and followed it for two years. In the fall of 1872 he began in the produce business, and this he continued for five years with great success. In 1878 he opened up a coal, flour and feed store in Bechtelsville, and enjoyed a good trade until 1889, at the same time buying and selling lime, often as much as 40,000 bushels annually. His lime was sold in Lower Berks and Upper Montgomery counties. Mr. Moyer is an excellent business man, and has considerable executive ability. He was one of the founders of the Kensington Hygeia Ice Company of Philadelphia, which was founded in 1895, and he has since been one of its directors. He is a director and vice president of the Farmers National Bank, Boyertown.

In 1875 Mr. Moyer erected a large brick residence at the corner of Main and Chestnut streets, and that has since been his home. Beyond serving as the first treasurer of the borough of Bechtelsville, he has always declined to hold office. He is officially connected with Trinity Union Church, of Bechtelsville.

In January, 1873, Mr. Moyer married Annie B. Oberholtzer, daughter of John and Anna (Bliem) Oberholtzer, of Washington township. To this union were born three daughters, namely: Odelia, who died in childhood; Annie O.; and Orpha O. Mrs. Moyer and the daughters belong to the new school of the Mennonite church, having membership in Hereford church.

(V) Tobias H. Moyer, son of Charles and now owner of the Moyer homestead, was born in Colebrookdale township, Oct. 20, 1852. He attended the township schools, and worked for his parents until twenty-two years of age, when he went to learn the carpenter's trade, following it four years. He then took to farming on the Moyer homestead of one hundred acres, and for thirty years he has given it his attention. He also owns a farm near Bechtelsville of 160 acres, which he has stocked and now farms it himself. Since 1888 he has carried on a butchering business. In 1889 he moved into Bechtelsville and has since resided there. For six years he has been a deacon in Bechtelsville Reformed Church, and for some years he served the vestry as treasurer.

On Oct. 2, 1875, Mr. Tobias married Emma R. Hess, daughter of David and Harietta (Yoder) Hess. She died Nov. 19, 1899, aged forty-four years, ten months, eighteen days, and is buried at Hill Church. She passed away suddenly at church during communion service on Sunday morning. One daughter was born of this union, Eva May, born April 22, 1896. On March 30, 1901, Mr. Tobias married (second) Katie A. Kramer, born in Rockland township, July 21, 1879, daughter of Jonathan and Sarah (Deysher) Kramer. They have two children: Edna K., born Feb. 3, 1903; Sallie K., Aug. 28, 1904.

(V) Jeremiah H. Moyer, son of Charles and now a farmer and dairyman at Bechtelsville, was born in Colebrookdale township, July 14, 1856. He worked for his parents until he was nineteen, and then took to farming in his native township. After two years there he went to New Hanover, Montgomery county, where he farmed five years, and then located in Washington township, his home since 1884. For twelve years he lived in Bechtelsville, which he helped to incorporate into a borough. He was six years a member of the borough council. While living there he dealt to a large extent in horses and cattle. He made ten annual trips to western States to buy stock, and he has proved himself an excellent judge. In the spring of 1899 he moved upon the farm he now occupies. This consists of eighty-seven acres of good land, all in fine condition. Mr. Moyer gives special attention to dairying, keeping about twenty head of cattle and shipping his milk daily to Philadelphia. In political affiliations Mr. Moyer is a Democrat, and since 1906 has been a school director. With his family he attends Bechtelsville Reformed Church.

On Aug. 19, 1876, Mr. Moyer married Emma B. Eshbach, daughter of George Eshbach, after whom Eshbach Crossing was named. To this union have been born the following family: Charles, who died in infancy; Emma, who married Charles Brumbach; Jesse, of Marshalltown, Iowa; Mabel; Warren; Elsie; Harry; and Frank.

DEHART. The early history of the Dehart family of Berks county, Pa., is gleaned wholly from scattering records and tradition. The origin of the family is French. The Deharts were early settlers of this Commonwealth, settling in Lower Berks, in the district now embraced in Amity township. They belonged to a band of emigrants known as French Huguenots, who settled here prior to 1719. In 1734 among the names of thirty-seven taxables, now embraced in the territory of the township mentioned, were those of Elijah and Simon Dehart, each paying quit rent on one hundred acres of land. In 1744, a petition for the erection of Amity township was presented to the Court at Philadelphia, signed by forty-one adult persons, and the first two names on this petition were Gilbert and Simon Dehart. In 1752 and 1759 among the list of taxables in this township is the name of Cornelius Dehart, a large land owner, who paid a federal tax of fifteen pounds. In 1759 the name of Cornelius Dehart also appears as a taxable of District township, where he paid a tax of three pounds. In 1782 the name of Widow Dehart is mentioned as resident of Earl township, in Berks county.

Gilbert Dehart, who signed the petition for the erection of Amity township in 1744, made a will which is on record in Berks court house in Will Book 1, page 20. He was a yeoman, and possessed several large plantations, and left a vast estate. His wife was Elizabeth Reed, daughter of Adam Reed, and she survived him, her name appearing in the will. The testator, Gilbert Dehart, provides a reasonable maintenance for his sister Charity Dehart. The will was witnessed by William Boone and John Warren, who belonged to a class called "Quakers." Gilbert Dehart had six children, namely: Samuel, who obtained the plantation on the north side of the Tulpehocken wagon road, and an additional twenty-five acres on the south side of it; William, who obtained the plantation on the south side of this road; and Catharine, Sarah, Elizabeth and Mary, to each of whom was given fifty pounds of money besides other bequests of value.

The will of Jacob Dehart, of Exeter township, is on record in Will Book, 6, page 269. It was made Sept. 28, 1828, and probated Dec. 1, 1828. His wife Susanna was amply provided for. An item says: "The residue of my estate shall be equitably divided among all my children," but their names are not mentioned.

The ancestor of the DeHart family of lower Berks county, tradition says, was Jacob DeHart. He had a large family and is said to have left his native country, France, during the religious upheaval. Two of his sons remained in France to look after his confiscated property, and they in later years were joined by their brother Samuel. Among the children of the ancestor Jacob were: Elijah, Simon, Gilbert, Cornelius, Samuel, Jacob and Isaac. It is said that several DeHarts went with Daniel Boone the famous hunter and native of Exeter township, Berks Co., Pa., to Virginia—whence Daniel Boone proceeded to Kentucky. The early DeHarts were a bellicose people, and participated in the early wars of this country. Two DeHarts, one of whom was Isaac, were scouts under General Wayne; and there were also DeHarts who were scouts in the Miami Valley, in Ohio.

While Samuel DeHart, son of Jacob, was in France,—Marquis de Lafayette organized his army and came to America to assist the struggling colonies—the three DeHart brothers came over with him and fought in the war for independence.

The Pennsylvania Archives have the following Revolutionary records of the family:

Abraham DeHart resided in Monroe county, Va. (now West Virginia), in 1834, aged seventy-nine years. He was connected with First Pennsylvania Regiment, Continental Line, as private in the Revolutionary war. In 1776, he was a corporal in Col. Thomas Craig's regiment. From Jan. 1, 1777, to 1781 he was a sergeant in same Regiment.

Isaac DeHart was a private in Capt. Samuel Kennedy's Company, which was commissioned April 17, 1780, and his time was to expire Jan. 15, 1781. In 1776 he was in Capt. Samuel Kennedy's Company. The first enlistment was for seven months. His name appears also as a private in Berks County militia in Capt. Jno. Robinson's Company. He served eighteen days in October, 1781. He was killed by a British soldier in Philadelphia.

Jacob DeHart on Feb. 3, 1781, was a master or soldier on the vessel "Nansemond," which carried sixteen men. He was twenty-five years of age. Stature five feet, five inches; with light brown hair and light complexion.

Jacob Mausier DeHart entered United States service June 2, 1778, and was a first Lieutenant, having been promoted to the rank from Ensign May 16, 1780. He died from wounds July 25, 1780. He was commissioned ensign July 2, 1778, in Capt. Jacob Ashmead's light infantry, 2d Regiment of Pennsylvania. On March 25, 1780, he was first Ensign in above company and regiment. On May 1, 1780, the return sheet of the Second Pennsylvania Regiment shows the position of Ensign held by Jacob M. DeHart vacant. The records show that the estate of Jacob M. DeHart received Depreciation Pay—(Pennsylvania Archives, Fifth Series, Vol. IV, Page 116).

Samuel DeHart was a private in Capt. Lewis Former's Company, enlisting April 12, 1776. In 1780 his name appears on the roster of Capt. David Weidner's Company of the Berks County Militia. His name also appears on Pennsylvania Vol. Co.—in service from June, 1780, to serve to July 15, 1781.

Descendants of the ancestor live in Massachusetts and New Jersey. At Atlantic City lives "Squire" DeHart. Three of the ancestor Jacob DeHart's grandsons lived and died at Harrisburg, Pa. They died at the remarkable ages of 101, 103 and 104 years, respectively. The family generally are a long-lived people.

John Dehart, grandfather of David E. Dehart, of Reading, was in Amity township in 1764, and died at the advanced age of 104 years, in Exeter township, Berks county. His wife was Mary Harner, who died Dec. 2, 1859, aged eighty-five years. They were the parents of eleven children: William, David H., John, Jacob, Gilbert, Jeremiah, Amos, Abraham, Annie (m. Sylvester Trout), Mary (m. John Babb) and Lydia (m. Joseph Bechtel). All of these are now deceased except Amos. Mr. John Dehart had a most remarkable memory. J. Irvin Dehart lived with this remarkable personage, and the centenarian delighted in relating his Revolutionary war experience and his acquaintance with the great Washington. When he was fourteen years old he entered the army. He learned of his father, a soldier of the Revolution, known as "Captain DeHart," being at Valley Forge and came to see him there. His father asked the boy about Philadelphia and the lad unknowingly gave information which proved of great value to Washington. On being taken before Washington, the latter patted him upon the back, and said he should get more information. The youth made several trips between Philadelphia and Valley Forge. On one of these trips he was captured and imprisoned with five others. They were all to be shot on the day General Howe in haste left Philadelphia, overlooking them. Howe's hasty leave from the city saved their lives. The boy followed Washington into New Jersey, and was lost in the woods for two weeks.

Amos Dehart, son of John, was born in Amity township, Aug. 1, 1813, and now lives on a farm in Alsace township near Stony Creek mills, which was formerly the property of his father. He is a remarkable man in many ways, and is well-preserved, being able to see easily without the aid of glasses. For a period of thirty years he followed the trade of carpenter and millwright. He married Mary Leas, who was born April 1, 1823, daughter of Daniel and Sarah Saylor, and she died April 26, 1907, aged eighty-four years, twenty-five days, after a happy married life of sixty-five years. Twelve children were born to Amos Dehart and wife, namely: (1) Rosana m. (first) James Lorah, and (second) Ezra Romich. (2) Amelia m. in 1866 Jacob Wentzel (1827-1873), a native of Alsace township, who passed away in Reading, and she now resides at No. 943 Muhlenberg street, Reading. She has four children: Edwin, Richard, Amelia and Allen A. (3) Daniel lives at Decatur, Ill. (4) Sarah m. John Geltz. (5) Richard died in the State of New York. (6) William died in Mexico in October, 1907. (7) Solomon lives at Reading. (8) Ellen m. Henry Seidel. (9) Louisa died young. (10) Debbie m. Jacob Wentzel. (11) Amanda m. James Scheildt. (12) Lydia died young.

David H. Dehart, son of John and father of David E., was born at his father's homestead in Amity township in 1800, and he died at Reading Jan. 3, 1892. In his earlier life he was a weaver by trade, but about 1842 he came to Reading, and here worked as a laborer. He is buried in Aulenbach cemetery, Reading. He was twice married. His first wife, whose maiden name was Breiner, bore him six children, namely: John, Daniel, Sarah, Lucett, Cadehl and Caroline. He m. (second) Julia Ebert, who was born in 1812, daughter of John Ebert, of Germany, and she died Dec. 25, 1880, at the age of sixty-eight years. To this union were born the following children: Adam, David E., Sarah, Mary, Barbara, Eve and Susan.

David E. Dehart, son of David H., was born in Reading May 6, 1851. When only nine years of age he commenced working in the Reading cotton mills, and continued there upwards of twelve years. His next employment was that of a driver, and he assisted in the building of the Reading Fair Grounds. For about four years he worked in the brick yards of Thomas A. Danzell, and he next worked at the Scott works for a number of years. In 1886 he began in the contracting and building business in North Reading, where he has erected about eight hundred houses. He built whole squares of houses, and is well known in the business in the city of Reading. He was instrumental in the erection of the Windsor street market house. He has in his employ at all times from fifty to one hundred men. He is foreman of the sewer and contracting gangs for the large contracting firm of Fehr & O'Rourke, of Reading. He also laid the pavement around the large Nolde & Horst factory. Mr. Dehart is a man of great ability and is active and energetic. During the earlier years of his life he lived on Walnut street, but for twenty-five years he has had his home in the North section of Reading.

Mr. Dehart is a member of a number of fraternal societies, among which may be mentioned: Knights of Malta, No. 247; Muhlenberg Lodge, No. 1085, I. O. O. F.; Victory Castle, No. 433, Knights of the Golden Eagle; and he has belonged to the Hampton Fire Company since its organization. He and his family are members of Christ's Evangelical Church, of Reading, and he is active in the church and Sunday-school.

On March 8, 1873, Mr. David E. Dehart was married to Sarah Rote, daughter of Abraham and Harriet (Wolf) Rote, of Lancaster, Pa., and they have three children: Malissa M., m. to Harry G. Hain; David F., m. to Clara Eben; and Mary J., m. to Charles Graul.

Jeremiah DeHart, son of John and brother of David H. and Amos, was born in Alsace township, Berks county. He early learned the trade of wheelwright, and became a very able mechanic, many men learning their trade under his careful guidance. He owned a tract of twenty-five acres of land, upon which he made his home. His remains rest in the Aulenbach cemetery at Reading. He married Catharine Reppert, who bore him nine children, as follows: Celinda, Annie, Ellen, Oliver R., William R., Mary, Almeretta, J. Irvin and Clara.

Oliver R. DeHart, son of Jeremiah, was born in Exeter township April 1, 1846. As a young man he learned the wheelwright trade, and this he followed for some years, and later manufactured hats. Some time later he admitted partners, and branched out on a larger scale. In 1885 he came to Reading, and since then he has made his home at No. 1246 Chestnut street, and he is now employed as a watchman. In 1867 he married Caroline Stieff, daughter of William Stieff, of near Adamstown, where he lived and died. Their children, all of whom live at Reading, are: Charles, William, Catharine, Jackson, Emma, Robert, Harry, Carrie, Anna and Helen M.

William R. DeHart, fifth child of Jermiah, was born in Alsace township, Dec. 16, 1847. He remained upon the farm until he was sixteen years of age, when he enlisted as a private in Company D, 15th United States Infantry, being enrolled as a member of this company July 5, 1864, for three years, and he saw active service in Tennessee and Georgia. He was confined in Lookout Hospital, whence he was discharged Aug. 28, 1865. He then came to Reading, and learned the hatting trade, which he followed six years. He then learned the millwright's trade from his father, and this he followed with much success for many years. He built cars for the Reading Railroad Company for eight years, and later he began the building of houses in Reading, erecting Nos. 1715, 1717, 1719, 1721 and 1723 Perkiomen avenue. In the last named place he lived for twenty-two years, removing from there in 1907. In politics Mr. DeHart is a Republican, and in February, 1908, he was elected the constable of the Sixteenth ward. He is a thirty-second degree Mason. In 1869, Mr. DeHart married Rebecca Fisher, daughter of George and Catharine Fisher, of Muhlenberg township. Eight children have been born to them, as follows: Flavey, Geneva, Herbert S., George C., Howard W., Allen E., Claud W., and Hazel R.

PENROSE W. HAWMAN, member of the firm of Hawman Brothers, general contractors at Reading, and one of the best known and most enterprising business men and citizens of that city, was born there Jan. 22, 1858, son of Henry Reigard and Emma Esser (Henry) Hawman, the former a native of Lancaster and a son of Peter and Catherine Susanna (Hiester) Hawman.

Peter Hawman, grandfather of Penrose W., was born in the city of Lancaster, a son of the emigrant ancestor of the family in America. He was well known in the business world of Lancaster, where he died, and was at one time sheriff of the county. He was also a veteran of the war of 1812, in which he rendered distinguished service. He married Catherine Susanna Hiester, daughter of Isaac Hiester, and member of one of the early Lancaster county families. Their children were: Annie C., who died unmarried; Elizabeth C., m. to Benjamin F. Streaker, and killed on the Pennsylvania railroad, leaving children—Frank, Harry, Charles, Edward, Mary, Susan and Emma; Henry Reigard, father of Penrose W.; Mary H., m. to Levi Moyer, of Reading; William H., a chair maker, who died in Lancaster county; and Peter, who died young.

Henry Reigard Hawman, father of Penrose W., was born March 11, 1822, at Lancaster, Pa., and learned the molder's trade. He moved to Reading when eighteen years of age and entered the foundry of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad Company, where he became foreman.

After remaining there ten years he became a co-partner in the Reading Industrial Works and in the Bertolette Foundry at the foot of Court street until the latter was destroyed by fire in 1856. He then conducted a restaurant in the Old State House building, and besides catering to the public he relieved many distressed families who applied for aid, and was the originator of the public relief society. In 1861 he began contracting and continued until his last illness. He was identified with the construction of a number of railroads, among which were the Reading & Columbia, Philadelphia & Erie, and the New York Division of the Pennsylvania Railroad. He was also engaged on the Berks County Prison extension and the Philadelphia & Reading round houses, car shops and passenger station. For many years he took an active part in politics, and from 1862 to 1865 was county commissioner, from 1867 to 1869 represented the Seventh ward in the common council, and from 1872 to 1875 in the select council. He was bank assessor for Berks and Lebanon counties by appointment from the auditor general of Pennsylvania, and he was a delegate to county, State and National Democratic conventions. On Aug. 12, 1846, he was raised a Mason in Lodge No. 62, F. & A. M., and in 1853 and 1854 served as worshipful master, and in 1856 and 1857 as treasurer; he also belongs to Reading Chapter No. 152, R. A. M., and was past eminent commander of DeMolay Commandery, No. 9, K. T. He died at Reading May 4, 1879, and was buried with Masonic honors in the Charles Evans cemetery. He married Emma Esser Henry, and their children were: William H., P. Frank, Albert H., Penrose W., George K., Harry E., Charles H., and two others—Charles Edward Howard and Charles Howard—both of whom died very young.

Albert H. Hawman, brother of Penrose W. and senior member of the contracting firm of Hawman Brothers, was born in Reading Sept. 22, 1853, and was educated in the public schools of the city, leaving in the last year of high school, when his father, a large contractor, needed his services. At the age of eighteen he became an assistant to his father, and in 1883 he and his brother Penrose W. formed a partnership under the firm name of Hawman Brothers. This firm as described below is most active and successful. Mr. Albert H. Hawman has general supervision of all work the company undertakes.

On June 27, 1877, Mr. Hawman married Miss Lillian Goodfellow, daughter of Isaiah and Rebecca (Lightcap) Goodfellow, of Reading. To this union have been born two children: (1) Dr. Erle G., born in Reading Sept. 1, 1881. He was graduated from the Reading high school June 29, 1899, and from the medical department of the University of Pennsylvania June 15, 1904. He was resident physician at St. Joseph's Hospital, Reading, from June, 1904, to July, 1905, and at the Berks County Hospital from April, 1906, to November, 1907, when he resigned and went to Philadelphia, and did post-graduate work until Sept., 1908, when he returned to Reading and located at No. 131 North Fifth street, where he is engaged as a specialist in diseases of the Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat. He is a member of the Reading, Berks County, and State Medical Societies and of the American Medical Association. Fraternally he belongs to Lodge No. 549, F. & A. M.; Reading Lodge of Perfection, 14th degree; Philadelphia Consistory, 32nd degree; and Rajah Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S. (2) Vera L. graduated from the Reading high-school June 23, 1904, and from Ossining School, Ossining-on-the-Hudson, June 6, 1905. She is at home. The family residence is at No. 13 South Tenth street, Reading. Mr. Albert H. Hawman is connected with Reading Lodge, No. 549, F. & A. M.; Excelsior Chapter, No. 237, R. A. M.; Reading Commandery, No. 42, K. T.; Rajah Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S.; and the Royal Arcanum. He and his family are members of Grace Lutheran church, of which for a number of years he was an official.

David Goodfellow, paternal grandfather of Mrs. Hawman, was originally from Lycoming county, Pa., but later located in Reading. He was of Scotch descent. Isaiah Goodfellow, son of David, and father of Mrs. Hawman, was born in 1810, and died March 21, 1888. He married Rebecca Lightcap, born in 1815, daughter of John Lightcap (a member of an old Quaker family of Pennsylvania, who lived in Montgomery county). She died Jan. 9, 1894, and both she and her husband are buried in the Charles Evans cemetery.

Penrose W. Hawman received his education in the public schools of his native city, graduating from the high school in the class of 1876, and in the same year was confirmed in the Lutheran church, becoming a member of St. James parish. In 1877 he began to learn the trade of machinist with the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company, in the old shops on Seventh and Chestnut streets. He was possessed of mechanical ability of a high order, and was soon advanced out of the apprentice class, continuing to rise and to give satisfaction during the entire eleven years he remained in the employ of the company. In 1889 he made his first venture in the contracting business, and his first work was the construction of a sewer from Second and Washington streets to Court and Canal, and under the paper mills of the city. With his brother as his partner, Mr Hawman has gradually extended the scope of his operations and the firm of Hawman Brothers has become known far beyond the confines of its own city. Among the important contracts intrusted to them and successfully carried out may be mentioned the following: Two additional tracks for the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company, between Reading and Tuckertown, and in this they did all the work incidental to it, including grading and bridges; a number of railroads, trolley roads and sewers all over the country; twenty miles of railroad for the Long Island Railroad Company; many bridges for the Philadelphia & Reading road on different parts of the system; the first concrete sewer ever constructed in Reading—this was in the early nineties—and since then many others for the city; several sewers and trolley lines in Trenton, N. J., and the trolley line from Trenton to Trenton Junction, a distance of four miles; an addition to the Phoenixville Water Supply; and in 1900-01 all the buildings and Pipe line of the Lebanon water supply for the city of Lebanon, Pa., in which they installed everything needed. On April 5, 1909, they completed the Spring street subway for the city of Reading. The number of men in their employ varies according to the magnitude of the work engaged upon—sometimes requiring sixty men, while at others they have a pay-roll of 2,000. That success has attended their efforts speaks well for the business ability of the brothers, as well as for their mechanical ability. They are strictly honest and fair in their dealings, and their workmanship is always of the best possible. They take just pride in turning over to the corporations employing them, work that will stand the test of years, and they have a reputation equalled by few, excelled by none. Mr. Penrose W. Hawman is a man of large business capacity, and with the ability to see and understand almost intuitively the needs of construction in a work vast enough to make most men stand aghast at its daring conception.

In his political faith Mr. Hawman is a stanch Democrat. He is a Mason of high degree, belonging to Reading Lodge No. 549, F. & A. M.; Reading Lodge of Perfection; Harrisburg Consistory; and Rajah Temple, Mystic Shrine. He is also a member of Reading Lodge, No. 155, B. P. O. E.; and the Royal Arcanum.

In 1896 Mr. Hawman married Miss Laura Edna Tomlinson, daughter of Lewis Kendall and Emily Jane (Newlin) Tomlinson. They have one daughter, Claire Dorothy.

The Tomlinson family was founded in America by the great-grandfather of Mrs. Hawman, who came from England in young manhood, and settled in New Jersey, where he reared a family. One of his sons, David, born in New Jersey in 1798, became a produce dealer in Philadelphia market, and died at the age of fifty-two years; he married Nancy Ann Emmel, of Cumberland, N. J., and had three children, Henry E., Lewis Kendall and a daughter that died in infancy. Lewis Kendall Tomlinson was born in Camden, N. J., Oct. 13, 1848, and in his youth learned the potter's trade, which he carried on until 1890, when he moved to Reading, and was variously employed until April 1, 1898, then moving to Vaughan, N. C., and farming one summer. Returning to Reading he remained until 1894, when he purchased a small place in Mt. Penn, and there has since resided. He married Dec. 25, 1871, Emily Jane Newlin, daughter of William K. and Ann Eliza (Gyles) Newlin, and granddaughter of John and Elizabeth (Cavinder) Newlin. Mr. and Mrs. Tomlinson have had eight children: N. Robert, Laura Edna, Lewis B. (deceased), Maggie E., Josephine, Ross K., Blanche T. and Lewis V. (deceased).

BOYER. The Boyers have long been a prominent Berks county family, and the name has been perpetuated in the borough of Boyertown, so called in their honor. The family history in this country begins with

(I) John Philip Beyer (as the name was then spelled), from whom the brothers James K. and Horace K. Boyer, general merchants of Boyertown, trace their line through (II) Jacob, (III) Daniel and (IV) Daniel B. Boyer. Henry and Daniel Boyer, sons of (II) Jacob Boyer and his wife Catharine, were really the founders of the present beautiful borough, now a prosperous community of 2,500 souls, which was known as Boyertown long before it was laid out in 1835. It was not incorporated until 1851. We give a brief record of both these men, first mentioning their forefathers in America.

John Philip Beyer came to these shores from Rhenish Bavaria, better known as the Palatinate, in 1731, and settled in Pennsylvania, dying in Frederick township, Montgomery Co., Pennsylvania.

(II) Jacob Beyer, son of John Philip, born in August, 1754, died Feb. 11, 1796. He lived on the old homestead at Perkiomenville, in Frederick township, Montgomery Co., Pa., where all his children lived, he and his wife Catharine Schantz (who was born in 1759) having a family of eleven, viz.: Henry, Daniel, Jacob (born Jan. 9, 1777, died March 13, 1853; married Elizabeth Heebner, born May 4, 1777, died July 30, 1838; had ten children, all daughters), Philip, John, Samuel, and five daughters, Susanna (born Aug. 2, 1787, died May 10, 1863, married Jacob Houck), one who married a Setzler, one who married a Campbell, one who married a Sassaman and one who married a Hendrix. One of the daughters, Mary, born Feb. 18, 1784, died Aug. 30, 1857, and she and her sister Susanna are buried in Keelor's churchyard. Jacob Beyer is said to be buried in the family plot near his homestead. After his death his widow married Daniel Schwenck, and she survived until Feb. 1, 1837; she is buried at Keelor Church, in Montgomery county, Pennsylvania.

(III) Henry Boyer, son of Jacob, was among the early comers to the vicinity of what is now Boyertown, and he settled on what was then the Latshaw place, securing a central location on the farm and opening the public house then known as the Boyertown Inn; it is now the "Union House." He became a large land holder, he and his brother Daniel owning the land upon which Boyertown is now built. Henry Boyer owned the land upon which the ore mines have since been opened. He was an exception to most of the name in that he was active in public affairs as well as in business, serving as representative in the State Legislature from 1824 to 1827, and again in 1832. He died in Boyertown March 18, 1857, aged seventy-eight years, four months, twenty-nine days, and is buried in Fairview cemetery, at Boyertown. Henry Boyer married Sarah Krebs, who died at Boyertown July 7, 1858, aged seventy-four years, four months, nine days, their married life covering a period of fifty-seven years, fifteen days. She, too, is buried in the Fairview cemetery. They had children as follows: (1) Catharine K. married John Rhoads. (2) Caroline married George Huff, of Huff's Church, Berks county, and they had six children, Harry, Sallie Ann (of Altoona, Pa.), Hon. George (Congressman-at-large for Pennsylvania), Caroline (married William Tyson), Elizabeth (married John Craig) and William A. (banker at Greensburg, Pa.). (3) Michael lived and died at Reading. (4) Jacob K., born Dec. 21, 1811, died March 10, 1850, and is buried at Boyertown. In 1835 he married Lucy Ludwig, who was born July 3, 1813, daughter of David and Sarah Ludwig, and died Feb. 7, 1868. They had five children. (5) Henry. (6) Hannah married Dr. Sellers, and they had a son Colvin, who was a prominent man in his day, being superintendent of the Reading division of the telephone service. (7) Maria married Marshall Campbell, and they lived in Michigan. (8) Angeline married Rev. F. W. Dechant. (9) Sarah married a Griesemer. (10) ———married an Allebach. The sons of this family were also engaged in business at Boyertown.

(III) Daniel Boyer, brother of Henry, was born Sept. 12, 1782, and died at Boyertown April 23, 1869, at the advanced age of eighty-six years. He passed his entire life at Boyertown, and is buried there. Commencing in the mercantile business in a very small way, he prospered from the start by careful management and attention to detail. He married Salome Hill, born Nov. 16, 1785, who died June 14, 1861, and they had the following children: Samuel; Henry B., of Reading; Daniel B.; Sally Ann, who married William Schuler; Betsey, who married John Steinruck; Lavina, who married Richard Richards; and Willoughby, who lived and died at Norristown, Pa., where he was engaged as a merchant (he married Harriet Dengler).

(IV) Daniel B. Boyer, son of Daniel, born at Boyertown Jan. 12, 1814, died April 5, 1892, and is buried in the Boyer plot in Fairview cemetery, where the Boyer monument marks his last resting-place. He passed all his life at Boyertown, becoming a clerk in his father's store when quite young, and as early as 1830 embarked in the mercantile business on his own account, following that line throughout his active life, though he had numerous other interests. He and his brother Samuel were partners in the mercantile business, which they conducted under the firm name of Boyer Brothers. They were eminently successful, drawing their patronage from a radius of twenty miles about Boyertown, for there were few stores in those days, and not all the merchants replenished their stock with the enterprise shown by the Boyer Brothers, who hauled all their freight from Philadelphia, making weekly trips to that city, a distance of forty miles. In time he took his sons into the business with him, and they have carried it on since 1872 under the present name, J. & H. K. Boyer. Daniel B. Boyer served many years as postmaster, in 1836 succeeding his father in that office, which the older man held from 1828. He served until 1841, after which he and his cousin Jacob K. Boyer filled the office until 1865. Daniel B. Boyer held it again from 1869 to 1885. In addition to his mercantile business he dealt in lumber, his yards being in the center of the borough, where D. S. Erb's large cigar factory now stands, and in this connection may also be mentioned his building operations, which at one time were quite extensive. He built up three of the corners at the junction of Philadelphia and Reading avenues, and about thirty dwelling-houses in the town were of his construction. Mr. Boyer was the first man to organize a bank in Boyertown, the institution being known as the Mory, Boyer & Co. Bank, which later became the National Bank of Boyertown, and Mr. Boyer was vice-president at the time of his death. The bank was originally located in a corner of the "Union Hotel." Altogether his activities made him a very well known and useful man. He was active both as a member and official of the Lutheran Church at Boyertown, to which he gave a liberal support.

Daniel B. Boyer married Mary Ann Keely, born Feb. 14, 1815, who died May 6, 1890. Eight children were born of this union, viz.: William, born in 1837, who died in 1838; Samuel K., born in 1838, who died in 1866; Cornelia, born in 1842, who died in 1843; Catharine, born in 1846, who died in 1847; Emeline, who is unmarried; Malinda, now the wife of David S. Erb; James K.; and Horace K.

(V) JAMES K. BOYER, eldest surviving son of Daniel B. Boyer, and senior member of the well known mercantile house of J. & H. K. Boyer, was born in Boyertown Oct. 31, 1848. He has passed all his life in his native place, and received his education in the public schools. When only a boy of thirteen he began clerking in the large general store his father then conducted, and he has continued to make merchandising his principal interest. After he became associated as a partner in the business the firm was known for some years as D. B. Boyer & Sons, and in 1872 the name was changed to its present form. J. & H. K. Boyer are the most prominent general merchants in the lower end of Berks county, carrying a heavy stock of dry goods, groceries, hardware, pumps, and other things in constant demand in their community, where no firm is rated higher or enjoys more universal popularity. They occupy an immense three-story brick building, and employ six clerks regularly, the bulk of trade in the vicinity coming to them. Their location in the Boyer building, which is 50 x 80 feet in dimensions and stands at the southwest corner of Philadelphia and Reading avenues, is very advantageous. Both the brothers are interested in the general progress of the community and in other important business affairs aside from their large mercantile business. They own the "Union Hotel," the post-office building, and six dwellings in town. Mr. James K. Boyer succeeded his father as vice-president of the Boyertown National Bank in 1893 and has served in that capacity ever since. He is a director of the famous Boyertown Casket Company, which is one of the most important industrial concerns in the town, giving employment to three hundred and fifty people, and he is also a director in the Union Manufacturing Company of Boyertown.

In 1878 Mr. Boyer was married to Annie Stetler, daughter of Isaac and Elizabeth (Schwenk) Stetler, her father a merchant of Earlville, Berks county. Five children, two sons and three daughters, have been born to this union, as follows: Florence, who graduated from Washington College, Washington, D. C., resides at home with her parents. Edna, who perished in the Opera House fire of Jan. 13, 1908, was also educated at Washington College, was a talented musician and often called upon to sing on public occasions, and was a young woman greatly admired in her town. Edith is a graduate of Lutherville College, of Baltimore, Md. Daniel B. graduated from the Meigs Hill School, of Pottstown, Pa., and is now a student at Yale. J. Keely, who also perished in the Opera House disaster, was a student at Boyertown high school and a young man of promising character. Mr. Boyer and his family are active members of St. John's Lutheran Church and also of the Sunday-school, in which he was a teacher for many years, until 1906. He has also served as deacon of the church, and he is generally regarded as one of the pillars of the congregation.

(V) HORACE K. BOYER, junior member of the mercantile firm of J. & H. K. Boyer, was born Feb. 18, 1851, at Boyertown, and received his education there in the public schools. When fourteen years old he became a clerk in his father's store, with which he has ever since been connected. As in the case of his brother, the mercantile business has been his principal interest. Horace K. Boyer is treasurer of the Union Manufacturing Company of Boyertown, and he is interested as a stockholder in a number of local industries, he and his brother supporting some of the most important enterprises in the borough, where the members of the Boyer family have always sustained the name of being substantial citizens.

Mr. Boyer was married in June, 1871, to Sallie K. Grant, daughter of Charles and Catharine Knauss Grant, who for many years conducted the "Union House" at Boyertown. Mr. and Mrs. Boyer have had three children, as follows: (1) Warren, who died May 5, 1892, aged twenty years, five months, had just graduated from the Pierce Business College, Philadelphia, and was an ambitious young man, just ready to enter upon the earnest work of life. He came home from school sick, and died four days later. (2) Anna G., who died Nov. 25, 1900, at the age of twenty-six years, was the wife of Joshua B. Lessig, of Pottstown, Pa., who was connected with his father in the iron business, eventually succeeding him. Mrs. Lessig left no children. (3) Edgar G., who graduated from the Schissler Business College, of Norristown, Pa., is engaged as assistant to his father in the mercantile business at Boyertown.

Mr. Boyer and his family are members of St. John's Lutheran Church at Boyertown, in the work of which they are active.

REUBEN T. LANDIS is an influential citizen and notary public of Robesonia, Berks county, and also carries on agricultural operations near the toll-gate on the Berks and Dauphin turnpike. He was born Dec. 15, 1844, in Rockland township, Berks county, son of Carl and Sarah (Truckenmiller) Landis.

Samuel Landis, grandfather of Reuben T. Landis, belonged to the Montgomery county branch of the Landis family, but in early life settled in Shimerville, Lehigh county, where he was a farmer and hotel proprietor for many years, owning considerable property and being a men well known and highly respected. In middle life he suddenly disappeared from home and nothing has ever been heard from him since. Samuel Landis married a Miss Frederick, born in 1770, who died in her eighty-ninth year and was buried at Bowers Station, Pa. Ten children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Landis, of whom we have record of George, Samuel, Jonathan, Carl, Reuben, Nathan, Hettie and Elizabeth.

Carl Landis, father of Reuben T., was born at Shimerville, Lehigh county, Feb. 12, 1803, and died in Reading Feb. 28, 1887. His educational advantages were decidedly limited, as he attended pay school for less than one month, but he was naturally bright and learned to read, write and cipher well. His industry placed him in comfortable circumstances, so that he was able to give all his children better educational opportunities than he had enjoyed, sending them all to higher schools of learning. Three of his sons became school teachers. Mr. Landis was a general weaver by trade, weaving flax, linens, woolen goods, carpets, etc. He and his wife are buried at Hain's Church, of which they were members.

Mr. Landis married Sarah Truckenmiller, who was born in Upper Milford township, Lehigh county, in June, 1805, daughter of John George Truckenmiller, a well known rake-maker of Lehigh county. Mrs. Landis died at Wernersville May 20, 1876. Fourteen children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Landis, seven of whom died in infancy, the others being: Samuel, Leah, Jonathan, Charles, William, Reuben T. and Daniel.

Reuben T. Landis obtained a liberal education in the township schools, the Boyertown Academy, under I. B. Hankey, and the Maxatawny Seminary, which was organized into the Keystone State Normal School in 1866, while Mr. Landis was a student. He then taught school for seven consecutive sessions, three terms in his native township and four at Wernersville, in Lower Heidelberg township, and in 1888 he taught one term in Lower Heidelberg township. Mr. Landis has been organist and chorister at three different churches and cultivated small farms connected with these churches. In 1884 he was elected a justice of the peace of Heidelberg township, and this office he filled with efficiency and honor for fifteen consecutive years. He refused another re-election, and later took out a notary public's license, since which time he has settled up many estates, acted as administrator, executor and assignee, and has been a useful citizen in his community in many ways, always supporting movements for the benefit of his section. He is a Democrat in politics, has been delegate to county conventions, and for four years was also committeeman of his district. He is a Reformed member of the congregation of St. Paul's Church, of Robesonia, of which he was an elder for many years.

On Nov. 18, 1869, Mr. Landis was married to Eva A. Huntzinger, born Oct. 25, 1840, daughter of Jared Huntzinger. To Mr. and Mrs. Landis have been born two children: Laura E., born Sept. 10, 1870, who died Sept. 19, 1872; and Homer L., born Jan. 17, 1874.
